city between him and the advance of the Egyptians. To do this, he was obliged to transfer his army across the Orontes. Ramses, now quite unsuspecting, advances alone with only his household troops, and deliberately goes into camp northwest of the city (Poem, ll. 12 and 21; Record, ll. 7, 8; Reliefs, § 336, ll. 3, 4; Fig. 10). Thus the Asiatics, with a strong fortress on their right for refuge in case of defeat, by their remarkably skilful maneuvering, have gained a position on Ramses' right flank, which, properly utilized, means his destruction.

300. As the division of Amon comes up and is settling in camp around the tent of Ramses (Reliefs, § 331), an Egyptian scout brings in two of the enemy's scouts, who are beaten (Reliefs, § 330) into confessing the proximity of the foe (Record, § 321). Thoroughly alarmed, Ramses commands the vizier to order up the troops from the south of Shabtuna (§ 324), and the vizier, besides sending a horseman to hasten them, probably goes also himself in a chariot (Record, § 324; Reliefs, §§ 333 f.). Meanwhile the threatening catastrophe becomes a fact: remaining with his infantry, the king of the Hittites sends his chariotry (Poem, ll. 18, 19) to the attack; they "came forth from the southern side of Kadesh, and they cut through the division of Re in its middle, while they were marching, without knowing, and without being drawn up for battle" (Poem, § 311). Totally unprepared, caught thus in marching order, the Egyptians fled northward<sup>a</sup> toward Ramses' camp (Record, l. 21), while a messenger was sent to acquaint him with the disaster. But to make the attack (Record, l. 20), they must have come from the east side of the river; and while on the northwest of Kadesh, they were certainly on the west side; hence the two crossings are certain.

---

<sup>a</sup>This is evidently the northern half of the division of Re, which thus retreats; the southern half apparently fell back southward on the marching division of Ptah.

the Hittite chariotry, which made the attack, pressed the retreating Egyptians northward so rapidly that, while Ramses was sitting in his tent chiding his officers for their ignorance of the enemy's whereabouts, some members of the royal family were driven in headlong flight over the western barricade into the camp by the most advanced of the Hittite chariots (Record, ll. 19, 20; Reliefs, § 332, a, b). These first hostile intruders were dragged from their chariots by the Egyptian foot in the camp and slain.<sup>a</sup> The fleeing troops of the division of Re<sup>b</sup> now arrive and sweep the camping division of Amon into panic and flight, while the advancing Hittite chariotry rapidly enfold Ramses between their extended wings (Poem, l. 23; Record, l. 22; Reliefs, § 336, a, ll. 7, 8, and scene),<sup>c</sup> being 2,500 in number, and representing a force of 7,500 men. Ramses, having with him only his bodyguard,<sup>d</sup> now saw the extended wings of the enemy close completely around him on four sides, seeming like four bodies of chariotry<sup>e</sup> (Poem, l. 23; Record, ll. 21, 22; Reliefs, § 336, a, l. 8). For the moment, he is thus isolated, even from the troops which had accompanied him to the north of Kadesh.

301. On the west side, where the royal fugitives have just

<sup>a</sup>Battle of Kadesh, Pl. I.

<sup>b</sup>These are the northern portion of the division of Re. As the Hittites succeeded in cutting directly through this division, the southern portion of it should be represented on the plan (Fig. 12) somewhere south of Kadesh between Kadesh and the division of Ptah; but as their position succeeding the attack is quite uncertain, I have not attempted to indicate it.

<sup>c</sup>This enfolding or flanking movement is clearly evident in the relief, where the Hittite chariots, with three men in each, may be easily distinguished from the Egyptian, which carry only two. See also Fig. 12.

<sup>d</sup>It is this circumstance which has given rise to the proud boast, so often repeated in the Poem and in the Reliefs, that he was utterly alone, and won the battle single-handed.

<sup>e</sup>They can be seen thus in the relief scene (Battle of Kadesh, Pl. V); see also Fig. 12.

been driven in, the enemy is already pressing into the camp. On the east the enfolding wing of the enemy is evidently weakest. Ramses did not hesitate an instant, but immediately rallied his household troops and charged into the invaders of his camp, in the endeavor to cut his way out, to rejoin his southern divisions. This unexpected onset gained him a moment's respite, during which he perceived how the enemy was massed against him on the south, and he therefore turned against the enemy's thin line on their extreme right, before they should have time to strengthen it after their rapid advance northward. He charged eastward into the scanty opposing line of chariots so impetuously that he drove them into the Orontes north of the city.<sup>a</sup> In so doing he forsook his camp, which immediately fell into the hands of the enemy. It is unquestionably the rich plunder in Ramses' camp which diverts the Hittites for the moment and saves Ramses from being pushed into the river in his turn.

302. A body of troops, which it is difficult to connect with any of Ramses' four divisions, now unexpectedly arrives and begins his rescue. They are called "recruits (n<sup>c</sup> ryn)," and are said to arrive from Amor.<sup>b</sup> They enter the camp and slay the plundering Hittites to the last man (§ 340).

---

<sup>a</sup>It is this episode which the reliefs depict so vivaciously in the battle scene (§ 335).

<sup>b</sup>Battle of Kadesh, 37, 38. Since reading my account of the incident, Eduard Meyer suggests to me that these troops may be reinforcements from the coast, which have landed at one of the Phœnician harbors, far enough south to be in Amor. It is not possible that these are infantry reinforcements belonging to the troops south of Shabtuna, although they are spoken of as arriving "from Amor," for the text mentioning them clearly distinguishes them from the divisions of Re and Ptah. But the course of the battle and the disposition of the troops are from this point quite uncertain. Ramses' desperate assault with his bodyguard is the subject and the raison d'être of all these documents, and they depict the whole victory as consisting in this one heroic incident. This over, the subsequent course of the battle between the opposing forces, in which the king is no longer so conspicuous, is of little importance to any of the three documents.

The fleeing troops of Ramses now rallied, and together with the “recruits” just mentioned, the Egyptian force engaged was no longer a mere handful.

303. It is apparently at the head of these forces that Ramses now charges six times into the mass of the Hittite chariotry that lies between him and the reinforcements approaching from the south, and brings the enemy to a stand.<sup>a</sup> The Hittite king now sent in an additional thousand chariots from his reserves.<sup>a</sup> Ramses has maintained himself for some three hours and at this juncture, while he is holding his own against fearful odds, the vizier arrives with the division of Ptah, and coming in from the south, quite unexpectedly strikes the Asiatics in the rear.<sup>b</sup> After Ramses’ stubborn stand this unforeseen blow in the rear quickly decides the contest, and the Hittite chariotry breaks and flees into the city. Caught between the closing lines of the Egyptians, some of them were taken prisoners and many slain;<sup>c</sup> and the Hittite king was forced to see the day, begun so auspiciously for him, now lost, without being able to throw in against the Egyptian chariots the 8,000 or 9,000 foot which for some reason he held in reserve to the end on the other shore.<sup>d</sup>

304. Whether Ramses attempted an assault upon this Asiatic infantry or not, is a question upon which our documents throw no light. The poem claims that there was another battle on the next day, which is extremely doubtful<sup>e</sup> In any case, it is clear that Kadesh is not taken,<sup>f</sup> and Ramses,

<sup>a</sup>Battle of Kadesh, 39.

<sup>b</sup>The Luxor relief shows this approach in the rear of the Asiatic chariotry, which is seen retreating into the city. It is clear that the Hittites were forced by Ramses’ strong stand to put in all their chariotry against him, and were unable to prevent the advance of the division of Ptah.

<sup>c</sup>Reliefs, Battle of Kadesh, Pl. V.

<sup>d</sup>Battle of Kadesh, 40.

<sup>e</sup>Battle of Kadesh, 46, 47.

<sup>f</sup>See p. 142, note b.

happy in his remarkable escape from destruction, and proud of the personal reputation gained, having won the battle with but a portion<sup>a</sup> of his army, is glad to return to Egypt for a time, where he offers his prisoners to Amon.<sup>b</sup> But Syria as far south as Kadesh, if not farther, remains in the hands of the Hittites.

a. Poem on the Battle of Kadesh<sup>c</sup>

305. This poem, long called the "Poem of Pentaur," is our most important document for a study of the battle of Kadesh. It is, fortunately for us, introduced by a sober and careful prose account of Ramses' departure from Egypt, his march to Kadesh, and the position of his four divisions up to the moment of the Asiatic attack. Supplemented by the official record of the battle (§§ 316 ff.), we are able to trace in it all Ramses' movements, immediately before and leading up to the battle.

<sup>a</sup>The entire division of Sutekh was too far away to reach the field in time.

<sup>b</sup>Reliefs, §§ 348-51.

<sup>c</sup>For fuller statement of bibliography, see my Battle of Kadesh, 6, 7. The texts are of two kinds: hieroglyphic and hieratic. The hieroglyphic text has been found in three copies on temple walls: at Luxor (Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, IV, 232-48; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, 40-42; lower ends, Daressy, Revue égyptologique, IX, 58); Karnak (Rougé, ibid., IV, 206-31; Brugsch, ibid., II, 29-32; Mariette, Karnak, 48-51); and Abydos (Mariette, Abydos, II, 4, 5). All these originals are excessively fragmentary, especially the one at Abydos, of which only the lower ends of the vertical lines have survived. Of the publications the Karnak copies of Brugsch and Mariette are so incomplete as to be unusable, and Rougé's copies are neither accurate nor exhaustive. Besides the above publications, I had a collation of Abydos by Borchardt, and photographs of Karnak also by Borchardt, for which I am indebted to the Berlin dictionary. Of the hieratic text there are two papyri, both belonging to the same roll; Papyrus Raifet, containing only one page of ten lines (published by Rougé, Recueil, I, and Papyrus Sallier III (select Papyrus I, 24-34), containing eleven pages. Raifet precedes Sallier III, but the beginning is lost. I arranged all the texts in parallel columns, and this quadruplex was then carefully collated with the original Papyrus Sallier III, in the British Museum, by Professor Erman. The texts were once similarly put together by E. de Rougé and published by J. de Rougé (Revue égyptologique, III-IX), but without the Abydos copy, the lower part of Luxor, or a collation of the original Papyrus Sallier III. The addition of Abydos has filled a considerable number of lacunæ, and the collation of Sallier III has likewise cleared up many difficulties. As a long passage is misplaced in the hieratic text, and it lacks also the beginning (ten lines), it was necessary to adopt the line numbering from the hieroglyphic for which the Luxor text was chosen. All passages on movements connected with the battle are published in my Battle of Kadesh.

The discussion of the poem as a literary composition does not fall within the scope of this volume.<sup>a</sup>

Introduction

306. <sup>1</sup>bBeginning of the victory of King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), [who is given life], forever, which he achieved in the land of Kheta (Ht), and Naharin (N-h-ry-n), in the land of Arvad (Y-r-tw),<sup>c</sup> in Pedes (Py-d-s), in the Derden (D-r-d-ny), in the land of <sup>2</sup>Mesa (M-s), in the land of Kelekesh ([K]-r-[k]y-š, sic!), —, Carchemish (K-[r]-k-my-š), Kode (Kdy), the land of Kadesh (Kdš), in the land of Ekereth (ʿ-k-r-t), and Mesheneth (Mw-š-n-t).
3. . . . . 8. . . . .<sup>d</sup>

Preparations and March to the Frontier at Tharu

307. Behold, his majesty prepared his infantry and his chariotry, the Sherden (Š-r-dy-n) of the captivity of his majesty from the

<sup>a</sup>It will be found complete with translation and notes in a later volume of this series.

<sup>b</sup>The conventional phrase for beginning a literary composition.

<sup>c</sup>This location of the battle in all these lands is probably a loose way of indicating that the land in which it took place was then in the possession of these nationalities. Of the old Syrian enemies of Egypt, we see in this list (also ll. 13-15 and 24): Naharin, Arvad, Carchemish, Kode, Kadesh, Nuges, Ekereth (Ugarit of Amarna Letters), Aleppo, and perhaps Mesheneth. The others, Kheta, Pedes, Derden, Mesa, Kelekesh, Kezweden, and Luka (or Lukat), are the Hittites and their neighbors in Asia Minor. Of the latter the Luka are almost certainly the Lycians, the Kelekesh, probably the Cilicians, the Derden, perhaps the Dardanians, and the Mesa, the Mysians. Kezweden was a part of the Hittite kingdom. The remnant is entirely uncertain, though many indentifications have been proposed. See Müller's treatment (Asien und Europa, 334 f. and 355 ff.), and Hall (Annals of British School at Athens, VIII, 157).

<sup>d</sup>Hymn of praise of the king's valor.

<sup>e</sup>Earliest mention of these mercenaries in an Egyptian document, although they were used at the close of the Eighteenth Dynasty, as shown by Amarna Letters, (ed. Winckler) where they were called Shirdana. They are identified with the Sardinians (Müller, Asien und Europa, 372 ff., where the Shirdana, of the Amarna Letters, are still unknown).

victories of his sword [— —] 9————<sup>a</sup> they gave the plan<sup>b</sup> of battle. His majesty proceeded northward, his infantry and his chariotry being with him. He began<sup>c</sup> the goodly way, to march. Year 5, the second month of the third season (tenth month), on the ninth day,<sup>d</sup> his majesty passed the fortress of Tharu (T<sup>3</sup> -rw) 10————<sup>e</sup> [like] Montu when he goes forth. Every country trembled before him, [fear] was in their hearts; all the [rebels] came bowing down for fear of the fame of his majesty, when his [army] came 11 upon the [narrow]<sup>f</sup> road, being like one who is upon the highway of —.

March from Tharu to the Region of Kadesh

308. Now, after many<sup>g</sup> days after this, behold, his majesty was in "Usermare-Meriamon,"<sup>h</sup> L. P. H., the city of —————<sup>i</sup> cedar. His majesty proceeded northward, and he then 12 arrived at the highland<sup>j</sup> of Kadesh (Kdš). Then his majesty, L. P. H., marched before, like his father, Montu lord of Thebes, and crossed over the channel

<sup>a</sup>Lacuna of uncertain length.

<sup>b</sup>Compare Uni, l. 19 (I, 312).

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "took the head of the goodly way," a phrase regularly used when a king sets out on an enterprise, like Queen Hatshepsut's expedition to Punt, Amenhotep III's wild cattle hunt, or Amenhotep IV's inspection of the Amarna boundaries (II, 960, l. 6).

<sup>d</sup>About the end of April.

<sup>e</sup>Lacuna of uncertain length.

<sup>f</sup>This word (g<sup>3</sup> wt) is a little uncertain; the meaning given is that of Brugsch, who states (Dictionnaire géographique, 995) that it designates here the narrow road between the Mediterranean and the lake of Serbonis. The meaning fits this passage well, but there is only one other example of the word (which is not decisive). Müller (Asien und Europa, 216) refers it above to the narrow way in the valley (Buḫa c a) between the Lebanons, but the "many days'" march leading to the Lebanon region is still in the future (ll. 11, 12), not in the past, as Müller states (ibid., 216, n. 3).

<sup>g</sup>Papyrus Raifet begins here.

<sup>h</sup>Some unknown city named after the king, and apparently reached after the departure from the coast. Müller places it near southern Lebanon (Asien und Europa, 273, 7).

<sup>i</sup>Lacuna of uncertain length, containing of course, some reference to the arrival among the cedars of Lebanon.

<sup>j</sup>This highland is "south of Kadesh," according to the Record (l. 2), and as he crosses to the west side of Orontes later on (l. 12), where the battle took place, the highland must be some hill on the east side. The plain between Orontes and Anti-Lebanon is here some twenty miles wide (Palestine Exploration Fund Quarterly Report, 1881, 166), and the highland referred to is that of Kamū c at el-Harmel (Fig. 7 and Battle of Kadesh, 19-21).

of the Orontes<sup>a</sup> (ꜥ-ꜣ-ꜥ-ꜥ), there being with him the first division of Amon<sup>b</sup> (named): "Victory-of-King-Usermare-Setepnere-L.-P.-H."

The Coalition of the Prince of Kheta

309. When his majesty, L. P. H., reached the city,<sup>c</sup> behold, <sup>13</sup>the wretched, vanquished chief of Kheta (*Ht*ꜥ) had come, having gathered together all countries from the ends of the sea to the land of Kheta, which came entire: the Naharin (N-h-ꜣꜣ-n) likewise, and Arvad (ꜥ-ꜣꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), <sup>14</sup>—, <sup>d</sup>Mesa (*M*ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), Keshkesh (Kš-kš),<sup>d</sup> Kelekesh (*K*ꜥ-ꜣꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), Luka (*Rw-k*ꜥ), Kezwen (*K*ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), Carchemish (*K-ꜣꜥ-ꜥ-k-my-š*ꜥ),<sup>e</sup> Ekereth (ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), Kode (Kdy), the entire land of Nuges (Nw-g-s), Mesheneth (*Mw-š*ꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ), and Kadesh (Kdš). <sup>15</sup>He left not a country which was not brought, to[gether with] their chiefs<sup>f</sup> who were with him, every man bringing his chariotry, an exceeding great multitude, without its like. They covered the mountains and the valleys; they were like grasshoppers with their multitudes. <sup>16</sup>He left not silver nor gold<sup>g</sup> in his land (but) he plundered it of all its possessions and gave to every country, in order to bring them with him to battle.

<sup>a</sup>Compare the same phrase on Amenhotep II's Syrian campaign (II, 784, l. 4). This is the crossing at the ford south of Shabtuna, where the Pharaoh was met by the two Shasu-Bedwin, with the false report (Record, ll. 2, 3).

<sup>b</sup>The rest of the army being some distance in the rear on the other side of the river. When the whole army is with him, the usual phrase is: "his infantry and his chariotry being with him;" e. g., l. 9. Ramses is therefore already far in advance of the other three divisions, just as he was later when the Hittites attacked him.

<sup>c</sup>Kadesh.

<sup>d</sup>In place of these two names the hieroglyphic texts all have Pꜣ-dꜥ-ꜥ and Yr-wn. Kškš is supposed by Müller to be a corruption of Kꜥ-ꜣꜥ-ꜥ-ꜥ, but as it has a different k and occurs in the Papyrus side by side with Kelekesh, the supposition is doubtful, if not improbable. On the list as a whole, see p. 136, n. c.

<sup>e</sup>Instead of Ekereth, Raifet has Kadesh, which is, of course, senseless repetition, like that of the other texts in repeating Kadesh at the end of the list.

<sup>f</sup>It is incredible that the larger kingdoms of Asia Minor should have been represented at this battle by their kings (wꜣ-w). These mercenaries of the Hittite king had, of course, their commanders; the Syrian princes were some of them really present, and the Egyptians were glad to class the mercenary commanders as similar princes, to the greater glory of the Pharaoh's victory. The close of this section (§ 309) shows clearly how these mercenaries were enlisted.

<sup>g</sup>Karnak, the only hieroglyphic text preserved here, has: "he left no silver at all (hꜥ nb)." This may point to the more plentiful use of silver in Asia Minor, where it was produced.

The Positions of the Two Armies

310. Behold, the wretched, vanquished chief of Kheta, together with the numerous allied countries, were stationed<sup>a</sup> in battle array, concealed on the northwest of the city of Kadesh,<sup>b</sup> while his majesty<sup>17</sup> was alone by himself,<sup>c</sup> [with] his bodyguard,<sup>c</sup> and the division of Amon was marching behind him. The division of Re crossed over the river-bed on the south side of the town of Shabtuna (Š<sup>3</sup>-b-tw-n),<sup>d</sup> at the distance of an iter<sup>e</sup> from the [division of Amon]; ——— the division of Ptah was on the south of<sup>18</sup> the city of Aranami<sup>f</sup> (ʿ-r<sup>3</sup>-n<sup>3</sup>-m); and the division of Sutekh was marching upon the road.<sup>g</sup> His majesty had formed the first rank of all the leaders of his army, while they were on the shore in<sup>h</sup> the land of the Amor (ʿ-m-w-r<sup>3</sup>i). Behold, the

<sup>a</sup>So Raifet. The hieroglyphic texts have: "were stationed, concealed in battle array, [behind] the city of Kadesh."

<sup>b</sup>See plan (Fig. 9) for the following positions.

<sup>c</sup>Raifet has in place of this phrase: "none other was with him;" but the above text (Karnak) is more probably correct.

<sup>d</sup>Raifet has Š<sup>3</sup>-bw-dw-n<sup>3</sup>, and says "west side." It is the town later called Ribleh (Battle of Kadesh, 21, 22). The location of this town is clear from the references given by the Poem and the Record. After camping on the "highlands south of Kadesh" (Record, l. 2), Ramses advances toward Kadesh, and on the way thither passes Shabtuna (Record, l. 3), which is near a ford over the Orontes, as our above passage shows. Shabtuna was therefore on the Orontes a few miles south of Kadesh. [Conder (Palestine Exploration Fund Quarterly Report, 1881, 169 ff.) was not furnished with proper data from the inscriptions, for the location of Shabtuna.] Ramses, having hitherto advanced on the east side of Orontes, is now moving on the west side, while half his force is still on the east side (Fig. 9).

<sup>e</sup>This variable measure does not exceed 1½ miles (see II, 965).

<sup>f</sup>Raifet has: "the division of Ptah was opposite them." This indicates that Aranami was on the east side of the Orontes. It is certain that Aranami is south of Shabtuna, for the division of Ptah, here marching northward, while just south of Aranami, was still south of Shabtuna when sent for by Ramses after the attack of the Asiatics (Record, ll. 18, 19). See Battle of Kadesh, 22, 23.

<sup>g</sup>A very indefinite indication, showing only that this division was far away somewhere on the road. It is not mentioned again, and did not get up in time for the battle.

<sup>h</sup>Raifet has "of."

<sup>i</sup>The "shore of Amor" is the Mediterranean coast, at some point in southern Lebanon, where Ramses turned inland. (Cf. Meyer, Festschrift für Georg Ebers, 69, n. 2); it was long mistranslated "lake." This detail of Ramses' manipulation of his troops, therefore, refers back to an earlier stage of the campaign like a similar remark on the arrangement of the Hittite king's troops (at end of l. 19).

wretched <sup>19</sup>vanquished chief of<sup>a</sup> Kheta was stationed in the midst of the infantry which was with him, and he came not out to fight, for fear of his majesty. Then he made to go the people of the chariotry, an exceedingly numerous multitude like the sand, being three people to each span.<sup>b</sup> Now, they had made their combinations (thus): among every three youths was one man of the vanquished of Kheta,<sup>c</sup> <sup>20</sup>equipped with all the weapons of battle. Lo, they had stationed them in battle array, concealed on the northwest<sup>d</sup> the city of Kadesh.

The Attack of the Asiatics

311. They came forth from the southern side of Kadesh, and they cut through the division of Re in its middle, while they were marching without knowing and without <sup>21</sup>being drawn up for battle. The infantry and chariotry of his majesty, L. P. H., retreated before them. Now, his majesty had halted on the north of the city of Kadesh, on the western side of the Orontes (ḥ-r-n-t). Then came one to tell<sup>e</sup> it to his majesty, L. P. H.

Ramses' Attack

312. His majesty, L. P. H., shone like his father <sup>22</sup>Montu, when he took the adornments of war; as he seized his coat of mail, he was like Baal in his hour. The great span which bore his majesty, L. P. H., called: "Victory-in-Thebes," from the great stables of Ramses (II), <sup>a</sup>Here Papyrus Raifet ends and Papyrus Sallier begins.

<sup>b</sup>With every two of the mercenaries was one Hittite, each three thus formed being in one chariot. This is omitted in the hieroglyphic texts.

<sup>c</sup>Sallier adds: "without number;" but this is a misunderstanding by the ancient copyist.

<sup>d</sup>So the Papyrus. The hieroglyphic versions have only "behind," but as the Egyptian army is south and southeast of Kadesh, "behind Kadesh" is for them the north and northwest.

<sup>e</sup>This messenger doubtless found the king already engaged in battle. At any rate, the messenger could only confirm what Ramses had already learned from the two Hittite scouts. Had he arrived earlier, the torture of the scouts would have been unnecessary. Their torture, therefore, shows that this messenger had not yet arrived. The attack in the south, therefore, which cut in two the marching division of Re, being at the most not more than a few miles from Ramses' camp, could not have taken place very long before the attack on said camp. This would indicate the rapidity with which the Egyptians were driven northward into Ramses' camp.

<sup>a</sup>was in the midst of the leaders.<sup>a</sup> His majesty halted in the rout;<sup>b</sup> then <sup>23</sup>he charged into the foe, the vanquished of Kheta, being alone by himself and none other with him. When his majesty went to look behind him, he found 2,500 chariotry surrounding him, in his way out, <sup>24</sup>being all the youth of the wretched Kheta, together with its numerous allied countries: from Arvad ( $\rho$ - $r$ <sup>2</sup>- $tw$ ), from Mesa ( $M$ <sup>2</sup>- $s$ <sup>2</sup>), from Pedes ( $Py$ - $d$ <sup>2</sup>- $s$ <sup>2</sup>), from Keshkesh ( $Kk$ - $kk$ ), from Erwenet<sup>c</sup> ( $Yr$ - $wn$ <sup>2</sup>- $t$ , sic!), from Kezwenen ( $K$ <sup>2</sup>- $d$ <sup>2</sup>- $w$ <sup>2</sup>- $d$ <sup>2</sup>- $n$ <sup>2</sup>), from Aleppo ( $H$  $y$ - $r$ <sup>2</sup>- $bw$ ), Eketeri ( $\rho$ - $k$ <sup>2</sup>- $t$ - $r$ - $y$ , sic!), Kadesh ( $Kd$ ), and Luka ( $Rw$ - $k$ <sup>2</sup>- $t$ <sup>d</sup>), being three men to a span, acting in unison.

313. Now follow highly idealized and sometimes purely imaginary incidents, the creation of the poet, in which nothing is historical save the one fact that Ramses holds his own until the arrival of his southern army. He first calls upon Amon for help in his unequal battle. Amon responds and strengthens him against the foe. The king of the Kheta is obliged to summon his allied commanders and send them into the fray. Ramses addresses a scathing rebuke to his own troops, and when his charioteer is dismayed because they are entirely surrounded, he encourages him and charges six times into the hostile ranks, thus holding the enemy in check until his reinforcements from the south can come up.<sup>e</sup>

314. At evening the captives of every country are brought to the king's tent, and the next morning the plain is seen

<sup>a</sup>This phrase is not in Luxor (the only hieroglyphic text preserved at this point), and the connection in the hieroglyphic version was apparently: "The great span etc., . . . . . was called, etc."

<sup>b</sup>The same word ( $y/d$ ) is used of the headlong flight of the Syrians before Thutmose III at the battle of Megiddo (II, 430, l. 4).

<sup>c</sup>By Brugsch identified with Ilios! Müller would read the first syllable ( $Yr$ ) as  $y$ , producing Yawan, or Ionians. For this reading the evidence is insufficient.

<sup>d</sup>The last six names are omitted by the hieroglyphic texts; hence the incorrect writings, as the papyrus is inaccurate.

<sup>e</sup>There is no reference to the arrival of the "recruits," who began the rescue.

covered with the dead, especially of the family of the prince of Kheta.<sup>a</sup> The army comes to the king's tent and celebrates his victory in a hymn of praise. But the king responds, reminding them of their cowardice, and reproaching them that they did not depend upon him to lead and protect them. The next (?) morning Ramses drew up his battle lines and renewed the attack with such effect that the prince of Kheta sent a humble letter suing for peace, which the king read in triumph before his assembled troops, who thereupon gave him another ovation.<sup>b</sup> Pleased with this flattery, he marches southward, and returns in peace to Thebes, where, of course, he is received with triumphant jubilation by the people.

315. The last three lines of Papyrus Sallier III (XI, 9-11), which is the only text in which the conclusion is preserved, furnish the date of "this writing, in the year 9, second month of the third season, day —, [under the majesty] of King Ramses II." This particular copy was one "which the scribe, Pentewere<sup>c</sup> (Pn-t<sup>3</sup>-wr·t) made" (XI, 11), a mere copyist, who was not the author of the poem, as is still usually stated.

b. Official Record of the Battle of Kadesh<sup>d</sup>

316. This document is appended to the wall scenes (§§ 328-47), and seems to have been an official record of

<sup>a</sup>This is corroborated by the reliefs.

<sup>b</sup>Even the Poem makes no claim that Ramses captured Kadesh, as is so often stated in the histories. It seems incredible, furthermore, that there should have been a successful battle on the next day, of which the reliefs and inscriptions should show not a single trace. It is possible to conclude with Müller (Asien und Europa, 216, n. 1) that the entire conclusion of the poem, recounting the Hittite king's letter proposing peace, is to be referred to the actual arrangements for peace in year 21; but see my Battle of Kadesh, 46. In any case, the poem is clearly wrong in placing a treaty of peace after the battle of Kadesh, for Ramses continued the conflict with the Hittites until long after this.

<sup>c</sup>Usually called "Pentaur;" that he was not the author of the poem, as formerly supposed, was shown by Erman (Neuägyptische Grammatik, 7).

<sup>d</sup>See my Battle of Kadesh, 7, for fuller discussion of bibliography. Three originals:

the battle. It is not as full as the Poem on the marches and positions of the two armies, but it narrates fully the inside history which led to Ramses' incautious advance to the north of Kadesh, furnishing an account of the earliest military ruse known in history. Of all this the Poem says nothing.

Date

317. <sup>1</sup>Year 5, third month of the third season, day 9;<sup>a</sup> under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, Beloved of Truth; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnere; Son of Re; Ramses-Meriamon, given life forever.

Camp South of Kadesh

318. Lo, his majesty was in Zahi (D<sup>3</sup> -hy)<sup>b</sup> on his second victorious campaign. The goodly watch<sup>c</sup> in <sup>2</sup>life, prosperity and health, in the tent of his majesty, was on the highland south of Kadesh.

False Message of the Shasu near Shabtuna

319. When his majesty appeared like the rising of Re, he assumed the adornments of his father, Montu. When the king proceeded

1. ABU SIMBEL (Champollion, Monuments, 27-29; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 100-102; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 187, c-e. I had also photographs by Grünau, kindly loaned me by Steindorff.

2. RAMESSEUM (Lepsius, ibid., III, 153; Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, 2d part, 52).

3. LUXOR (Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, 53; Champollion, Monuments, 127 bis; Rosellini, ibid., 106).

Of these Luxor is not given by Champollion and Rosellini, but was copied by Brugsch. Furthermore, the Abu Simbel text is bad, sometimes omitting whole passages. Champollion and Rosellini's copy of this text is unusable, two whole lines being omitted and often the sand-covered lower ends. Although I collated the Abu Simbel text exhaustively, the translation is based chiefly on the Ramesseum. For this text I had only Lepsius, Denkmäler; for Sharpe's copy is totally worthless. Though all the originals show lacunæ, I found these disappeared on arranging them in parallel columns. A combined text by Guieysse (Recueil, VIII, 126-31) I found unreliable. The line numbers herein refer to the Ramesseum text. All passages on movements of the battle are also published in my Battle of Kadesh.

<sup>a</sup>This is about the end of May (see Breasted, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 37, 129), just one month after leaving the Egyptian frontier at Tharu (Poem, l. 9).

<sup>b</sup>This shows that Zahi was not confined to Phœnicia, this passage making it extend inland over Lebanon and the Orontes valley. See also II, 616, ll. 9, 10.

<sup>c</sup>Compare Thutmose III's camp at Aruna (II, 425, ll. 56, 57).

northward, and his majesty had arrived at the locality south of <sup>3</sup>the town of Shabtuna<sup>a</sup> ( $\text{Š}^{\text{D}}$  -b-tw-n), there came two<sup>b</sup> Shasu, to speak to his majesty as follows: "Our brethren, who belong to the greatest of the families with the vanquished chief of Kheta, have made us come to <sup>4</sup>his majesty, to say: 'We will be subjects of Pharaoh, L. P. H., and we will flee from the vanquished chief of Kheta; for the vanquished chief of Kheta sits<sup>c</sup> in the land of Aleppo ( $\text{Ḥy-r}^{\text{D}}$  -bw), on the north of Tunip (Tw-n-p). He fears <sup>5</sup>because of Pharaoh, L. P. H., to come southward.'" Now, these Shasu spake these words, which they spake to his majesty, falsely, (for) the vanquished chief of Kheta made them come to spy <sup>6</sup>where his majesty was, in order to cause the army of his majesty not to draw up for fighting him,<sup>d</sup> to battle with the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Positions of the Two Armies

320. Lo, the vanquished chief of Kheta came with every chief of every country, their infantry and their chariotry, <sup>7</sup>which he had brought with him by force,<sup>e</sup> and stood, equipped, drawn up in line of battle behind Kadesh the Deceitful, while his majesty knew it not. Then his majesty proceeded northward and arrived on the northwest<sup>f</sup> of Kadesh; <sup>8</sup>and the army of his majesty [made camp] there.

Examination of Hittite Scouts

321. Then, as his majesty sat upon a throne of gold, there arrived a scout who was in the following of his majesty, and he brought two scouts of <sup>9</sup>the vanquished chief of Kheta. They were conducted into the pre-

<sup>a</sup>On the location of Shabtuna, see Battle of Kadesh, 21, 22, and infra, p. 139, n. d; and the plans of the battle (Figs. 7, 8).

<sup>b</sup>Abu Simbel has "two," but Ramesseum has "three," which, of course, may be merely the plural strokes.

<sup>c</sup>So Abu Simbel; Ramesseum has "is." The former omits "the land of."

<sup>d</sup>That is, to keep the Egyptians in marching order, that he might surprise and find them unprepared for battle, as he actually did.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "from victories."

<sup>f</sup>He had now passed northward along the west side of Kadesh, and camped on the northwest of the city ("north," Poem, l. 21). The text over the battle (§ 336, ll. 3, 4) also says he camped on "the northwest of Kadesh." In any case, the general location of his camp is certain. L. 8 perhaps began with some reference to the position of Ramses' three divisions, far in his rear, which is so carefully noted in the Poem (ll. 17, 18), but the restoration above is more probable.

sence, and his majesty said to them: "What are ye?" They said: "As for us, the vanquished chief of the Kheta has caused that we should come to spy out where his majesty is." Said his majesty <sup>10</sup>to them: "He! Where is he, the vanquished chief of Kheta? Behold, I have heard, saying: 'He is in the land of Aleppo (H̄y-r̄-b̄).'" Said they: "See, the vanquished chief of Kheta is stationed, together with many countries, <sup>11</sup>which he has brought with him by force,<sup>a</sup> being every country which is in the districts of the land of Kheta,<sup>b</sup> the land of Naharin (N-hy-r-n), and all Kode (Kd).<sup>c</sup> They are equipped with infantry and chariotry, bearing their <sup>12</sup>weapons; more numerous are they than the sand of the shore. See, they are standing, drawn up for battle, behind<sup>d</sup> Kadesh the Deceitful."

The Council of War

322. Then his majesty had the princes called into the presence, <sup>13</sup>and had them hear every word which the two scouts of the vanquished chief of Kheta, who were in the presence, had spoken. Said his majesty to them: "See ye the manner wherewith the chiefs (mr) of the peasantry<sup>e</sup> (yw̄-c̄-ty) and <sup>14</sup>the officials under whom is the land of Pharaoh, L. P. H., have stood, daily, saying to the Pharaoh: 'The vanquished chief of Kheta is in the land of Aleppo (H̄y-r̄-b̄-y); he has fled before his majesty, <sup>15</sup>since hearing that, behold, he came.' So spake they to his majesty daily. But see, I have held a hearing in this very hour, with the two scouts of <sup>16</sup>the vanquished chief of Kheta, to the effect that the vanquished chief of Kheta is coming, together with the numerous countries [that are with] him, being people and horses, like the multitudes of the sand. They are stationed behind Kadesh the

<sup>a</sup>Or: "in victory."

<sup>b</sup>Clearly showing the composite character of the Hittite kingdom at this time.

<sup>c</sup>This is a clear indication of the extent of Kode; all the rest of the countries from Arvad to Asia Minor are included in the term "all Kode." But see Müller, Asien und Europa, 242, 48.

<sup>d</sup>"Behind Kadesh," from Ramses' present position in his camp on the north of Kadesh is, of course, south of Kadesh, where the Hittites moved out for the attack on the division of Re.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "infantry;" these officials are parallel with "the governors of the (foreign) countries" in l. 17. It is clear that the king is chiding the officials in authority both in Asia and Egypt, that is, both his provincial and Egyptian officers.

Deceitful. But <sup>17</sup>the governors of the countries and the officials under whose authority is the land of Pharaoh, L. P. H., were not able to tell it to us."

323. Said the princes who were in the presence of his majesty: "It is a great fault, which the governors of the countries and the officials of Pharaoh, L. P. H., have committed <sup>18</sup>in not informing that <sup>a</sup>the vanquished chief of Kheta was near the king;<sup>a</sup> and (in) that they told his<sup>b</sup> report to his majesty daily."

The Divisions in the South Are Ordered Up

324. Then the vizier was ordered to hasten<sup>c</sup> <sup>19</sup>the army of his majesty, while they were marching on the south of Shabtuna<sup>d</sup> (Š<sup>2</sup> -b-tw-n), in order to bring them to the place where his majesty was.

The Attack of the Asiatics

325. Lo, while his majesty sat talking<sup>e</sup> with <sup>20</sup>the princes, the vanquished chief of Kheta came,<sup>f</sup> and the numerous countries, which were with him. They crossed over the channel<sup>g</sup> on the south of

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "that the vanquished chief of Kheta was where the king was."

<sup>b</sup>Viz., the false report of the Hittite which he sent out by the two Shasu (II. 3, 4).

<sup>c</sup>The vizier sent the message by a horseman, and probably went also by chariot himself (§§ 333-4).

<sup>d</sup>This is one of the most important statements in the documents on this battle. It shows that, while Ramses is in camp on the north of Kadesh the main body of his army is south of Kadesh on the march in the vicinity of Shabtuna (see Fig. 11). Besides the division of Amon, which is with Ramses, only the division of Re has passed Shabtuna.

<sup>e</sup>The messenger announcing the attack on the division of Re in the south had up to this point not yet arrived, and Ramses apparently receives no notice of the attack until it is upon him.

<sup>f</sup>So Ramesseum; Abu Simbel has: "with [his] infantry and his chariotry likewise;" but this is incorrect; the entire battle was one of chariotry, as the reliefs show.

<sup>g</sup>This channel is, of course, that of Orontes, the Hittite king having previously led his forces from the west to the east side, now goes back to the west side, in order to get around the city, while keeping it between him and the Egyptians. Being a city which he commanded, he could, of course, go through it, and emerge for his attack on the south side, unless prevented by lack of gates at the proper points. But this would probably have exposed his issuing forces to the view of the marching division of Re, as the city wall was necessarily clearly in view across the moat. In any case, there must have been some cover south of the city from which the Asiatics emerged for the attack.

Kadesh, and charged into the army of his majesty while they were <sup>21</sup>marching, and not expecting it. Then the infantry and chariotry of his majesty retreated before them, northward to the place where his majesty was. Lo, the foes <sup>22</sup>of<sup>a</sup> the vanquished chief of Kheta surrounded<sup>b</sup> the bodyguard of his majesty, who were by his side.

Ramses' Personal Attack

326. When his majesty saw them, he was enraged against them, like his father, Montu, lord of Thebes. He seized the adornments of battle, <sup>23</sup>and arrayed himself in his coat of mail. He was like Baal in his hour. Then he betook himself to his horses, and led quickly on, being alone by <sup>24</sup>himself. He charged into the foes of the vanquished chief of Kheta, and the numerous countries which were with him. His majesty was like Sutekh, the great in strength, smiting and slaying among them; his majesty hurled them <sup>25</sup>headlong, one upon another into the water of the Orontes.<sup>c</sup>

Ramses' Own Statement

327. "I charged all countries, while I was alone, my infantry and my chariotry having forsaken me. Not one among them stood to turn about. I swear, as Re loves me, as my father, Atum, favors me, that, as for every matter which his majesty has stated, I did it in truth, in the presence of my infantry and my chariotry."

c. The Reliefs of the Battle of Kadesh<sup>d</sup>

328. The pictured story of the battle of Kadesh presented in these reliefs, like the great epic poem on the battle, was a source of such gratification to Ramses, that he had them reproduced six times in the temples of Upper Egypt and

<sup>a</sup>Viz., "belonging to."

<sup>b</sup>The Hittite king, having effected the isolation of Ramses and a portion of his troops, now enfolds between his two wings the camp of Ramses, toward, and of course past, which the latter's fleeing troops have retreated (see l. 25).

<sup>c</sup>Ramses evidently attacked the enemy's right wing, before it was sufficiently strong to withstand him, and drove the enemy directly eastward into the river; see Fig. 12.

<sup>d</sup>Cut on the walls of Ramses II's temples at Abydos, Thebes (three times), Derr, and Abu Simbel:

1. ABYDOS.—On the outside of the north, west, and south walls; nearly the whole has perished, and the remains are still unpublished. Short inscriptions

Nubia, and doubtless also several times in the vanished temples of Lower Egypt. As will be seen, owing to the primitive character of Egyptian topographical and architectural drawing, these scenes cannot be made to coincide with the data of the inscriptions, but they furnish invaluable side lights on the battle, and the accompanying inscriptions add facts of the greatest importance.

I. THE COUNCIL OF WAR<sup>a</sup>

329. Ramses sits enthroned, with his officers before him, in consultation. Below, the two Hittite scouts are being beaten, to force them to disclose the location of the enemy.

(Mariette, Abydos, II, 10, 11) and three scenes (Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, Pl. 30-32 and p. 72).

2. THEBES.

a) Ramesseum, first pylon: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 153-55, 157-61; Champollion, Notices descriptives, 870-72.

b) Ramesseum, second pylon: Champollion, Monuments, 328-30; Champollion, Notices descriptives, 585-89, 873, 874; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 109, 110; Lepsius, III, 164, 165.

c) Luxor, on the first pylon: Champollion, Monuments, 323, 324, 327-327 bis (last two incorrectly marked Ramesseum); Rosellini, ibid., 104-7; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 53 (inscriptions only); Description, Antiquités, III, 3-6. (None at Karnak, as stated by Guieysse, Recueil, VIII, 126, note 1.)

d) Karnak, chiseled out in antiquity: Breasted, Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VIII, 45, 46.

3. DERR.—Now destroyed; seen by Champollion (Wiedemann, Aegyptische Geschichte, 434, note 5).

4. ABU SIMBEL.—In the great temple, first hall, north wall: Champollion, Monuments, 17 bis-33; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 64-66; Rosellini, ibid., 87-103; Lepsius, Denkmäler, 187, c-e.

The inscriptions from all these reliefs have been combined (from the publications) by Guieysse (Recueil, VIII, 120-42) in a handy form for reference, but it is not reliable. An exhaustive publication of the combined originals is very much needed. For the following translations I arranged my own combined text, placing all the publications of all the originals in parallel columns. These are published, in so far as they concern the movements of the armies, in my Battle of Kadesh. All the reliefs are also published there, Pl. I-VII.

<sup>a</sup>1. RAMESSEUM, first pylon: Champollion, I, 870; Lepsius, Denkmäler, 153.

2. LUXOR: Champollion, Monuments, 327 bis; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 106; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. IV.

3. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, Monuments, 29; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 66; Rosellini, ibid., 102; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

The whole scene is evidently located in the tent visible as a rectangle in the center of the camp on the northwest of Kadesh.

Beating Spies

330. <sup>1</sup>The arrival of the scout of Pharaoh, L. P. H., bringing the two scouts of the vanquished chief <sup>2</sup>of Kheta into the presence of Pharaoh, L. P. H. They are beating them, to make them tell <sup>3</sup>where the wretched chief of Kheta is.

Over Horses

Great first span of his majesty: "Victory-in-Thebes," of the great stable: "Usermare-Setepnere-Beloved-of-Amon."

II. THE CAMP<sup>a</sup>

331. In the midst of a rectangular inclosure, barricaded with shields, appears the royal tent,<sup>b</sup> surrounded by the small tents of the officers and the animated life of the camp, which the "first<sup>c</sup> division," that of Amon, is engaged in arranging. This is the camp north or northwest of Kadesh (Record, l. 7; Poem, l. 21). Within the royal tent, Ramses sits, chiding his officers for their neglect, when suddenly the extreme north end of the Hittite right wing bursts in at the

<sup>a1</sup>. RAMESSEUM: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 154, 155; Prisse, Histoire de l'art égyptien (plates unnumbered); Battle of Kadesh, Pl. I.

<sup>2</sup>. LUXOR: Champollion, Monuments, 326, 327 (no text); Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 106, 107 (no text); Battle of Kadesh, Pl. IV.

<sup>3</sup>. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, Monuments, 30, 31; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 65, 66; Rosellini, ibid., 98-99; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

<sup>b</sup>The lion behind the king's tent is his personal pet. He is shown at Luxor fettered; at Abu Simbel (Champollion, Monuments, 15) with the Pharaoh on the march; at Bet-Walli beside the Pharaoh's throne (Champollion, Monuments, 62); and finally at Derr in two scenes (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 183, b, and 184, a), where the king is sacrificing prisoners to Amon-Re. In these last scenes he is accompanied by the inscription: "The lion, follower of his majesty, slayer of his enemies" (cf. Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 90); and he is biting one of the prisoners. There is no basis in all this for the current statement that this lion accompanied his master in the battle, where (Champollion, Monuments, 25, and Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 87) a lion in the decoration of the chariot has been mistaken for the Pharaoh's pet (see Battle of Kadesh, 44, 45).

<sup>c</sup>Evidently so called because of its position in the line of march.

eastern end of the barricade (upper right-hand corner), driving some members of the royal household before them. These hostile intruders are quickly dispatched by the household troops of Ramses, who are to be seen on foot poniarding them.

Over Prince in Chariot

332. <sup>1</sup>Fan-bearer on the king's right hand, —, <sup>2</sup>king's-scribe, army commander — <sup>3</sup>———— <sup>4</sup>his majesty the — <sup>5</sup>on his right hand —.

Over Official in Chariot

<sup>1</sup>Arrival of <sup>2</sup>the — of Pharaoh, L. P. H., at — — <sup>3</sup>the mother of the royal children, together with the <sup>4</sup>— of the divine mother <sup>5</sup>— — — fleeing to <sup>6</sup>the west [side] of the <sup>7</sup>camp <sup>8</sup>— — <sup>9</sup>before the foe.

At Top

The first division of Amon (named): "He-Gives-Victory-to-Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II)-Given-Life," with which Pharaoh is engaged in making camp.

III. RAMSES' MESSENGERS<sup>a</sup>

333. These messengers are the ones sent southward by the vizier (Record, § 324, ll. 18 and 19) to hasten the forces still in the south near Shabtuna. To carry such a message, they must either make a wide detour westward, to go around the enemy's lines, or hazard the dangerous passage through them. To render the arrival of the orders more certain, the vizier dispatches a horseman, and goes himself<sup>b</sup> in a chariot. Their orders seem to concern only the division of

<sup>a</sup>1. LUXOR: Champollion, Monuments, 323; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 106; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. IV.

2. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, ibid., 18; Rosellini, ibid., 95; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

<sup>b</sup>The Luxor relief contains a fragment of inscription showing that the vizier himself probably went. Among the approaching reinforcements hastening up in the rear of the Hittites to relieve Ramses, appear the words: "Arrival of the vizier to [assist] the army of [his majesty]" (Champollion, Monuments, 324, incorrectly numbered 314). This shows that the vizier got through, and brought up the reinforcements himself.

Ptah. This is because the southern half of the division of Re was, of course, aware of the attack, and the division of Sutekh was evidently too far away for Ramses to hope to bring them up in time.

Before Horseman

334. <sup>1</sup>The scout of the army of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>2</sup>going to hasten the division of Ptah, <sup>3</sup>saying: "March on! <sup>4</sup>Pharaoh, L. P. H., your lord, <sup>5</sup>stands ———."

IV. THE BATTLE<sup>a</sup>

335. We here see the city of Kadesh, by which the battle was fought, so thoroughly moated that it seems to lie in the very Orontes itself, rather than on it. The four drawings of the city preserved show great differences among themselves;<sup>b</sup> and it is evident that no clear idea of the relative positions of city and combatants can be gained from them.<sup>c</sup> We must remember that, according to the inscriptions, the Pharaoh is north of the city. It would seem that a bend in the river enables him to charge directly toward the city, viz., southward, and to drive the enemy into the river. But if the side of the Egyptian drawing where the Pharaoh is, is north, then it represents him as on the east side of the river. Or again, if, as the texts state, he should be on the west side of the river in the Egyptian drawing, then the drawing represents him as south of the city and charging northward.

<sup>a</sup>1. RAMESSEUM, first pylon: Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 872; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 157-61; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. II.

2. RAMESSEUM, second pylon: Champollion Monuments, 328-30; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 586-89, 873, 874; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 109, 110; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 164, 165; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. III.

3. LUXOR: Champollion, Monuments, 323, 324; Rosellini, ibid., 104, 105; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. V.

4. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, Monuments, 18-26; Rosellini, ibid., 88-95; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

<sup>b</sup>See Müller's useful comparison of the four (Asien und Europa, 214, 215).

<sup>c</sup>I have discussed the value of the reliefs fully in my Battle of Kadesh, 40-46.

In no way can any of the four ancient drawings of this battle-field be made to coincide with the data of the inscriptions. This is not remarkable when we remember that they do not coincide with each other. In these, as in all Egyptian drawings, each part is drawn largely irrespective of its relations to any of the other parts. We can here gain no true conception of the plan of the battle. Some facts stated in the inscriptions may be clearly seen in the reliefs however. We observe the Hittite chariotry (above and below) enfold- ing Ramses within its extended wings. We see also how he drives into the river those in his immediate front, including many prominent allies, officials, and even relatives of the Hittite king. The king of Aleppo is held head downward by his soldiers on the farther shore, that he may disgorge the water which he has swallowed. Here also stands the Hittite king with 8,000 foot,<sup>a</sup> which he makes no effort to bring into action. The inscriptions are these:

FIG. 13.—The Modern Mound of Kadash (from Koldewey)

Over King's Horses and Chariot

336. <sup>1</sup>The Good God, mighty in valor, great in victory, crushing <sup>2</sup>all countries, King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnere; Son of Re; Ramses-Meriamon. <sup>3</sup>The stand which his majesty made while he was camping on the north<sup>4</sup>west of Kadesh. He charged into the midst of the foe <sup>5</sup>belonging to the vanquished chief of Kheta, while he was alone <sup>6</sup>by himself, and no other with him. <sup>7</sup>He found surrounding him <sup>8</sup>2,500 horse in four bodies on his every side. <sup>9</sup>He slaughtered them, making <sup>10</sup>(them) heaps beneath his horses. <sup>11</sup>He slew <sup>12</sup>all the chiefs of all the countries, <sup>13</sup>the allies of the vanquished chief of Kheta, together with his own great chiefs, <sup>14</sup>his infantry and his chariotry. He overthrew them <sup>15</sup>prostrate upon their faces, and hurled them down, one upon another into the waters <sup>16</sup>of the Orontes. His majesty was behind them like a fierce-eyed lion <sup>17</sup>———— in their place. Lo, the vanquished chief of Kheta <sup>18</sup>stood extending backward his arms in praise of the Good God.

Among the Fleeing Enemy

337. Tergen — (Ty-r<sup>2</sup>-g<sup>2</sup>-n —).

Tergenenes (Ty-r<sup>2</sup>-g<sup>2</sup>-n-n<sup>2</sup>-s<sup>2</sup>), charioteer of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

The great horse of his majesty: "Victory-in-Thebes;" of the great stable: "Usermare-Setepnere,-Beloved-of-Amon."

<sup>a</sup>So Ramesseum; Abu Simbel has: "Other warriors (tw-hy-r<sup>2</sup>) — before him, 9,000." The "other" is to distinguish them from the troops in battle. Luxor has merely: "[The army] of the vanquished chief of Kadesh, very numerous in men and horses." As the 2,500 Hittite chariots had (three men each) 7,500 men, we get 16,000, to 17,000 men as the total Asiatic force. Ramses will possibly have had about 20,000, and thus each of his four divisions was about 5,000 strong, or about equal to a modern army division. A body of troops mentioned in the Anastasi Papyrus No. 1, as belonging to Ramses II, contained 5,000 men, all foreign mercenaries. See Battle of Kadesh, 9.

Kemeth ( $K^{\circ} -my-t^{\circ}$ ), chief of the Warriors ( $Tw-hy-r^{\circ}$ ).
 ———es (————— $-s^{\circ}$ ), charioteer of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Tergetetethes ( $Ty-r^{\circ} -g^{\circ} -ty-t-t^{\circ} -s^{\circ}$ ) chief of the archers of the Thebes ( $\overline{K}bsw$ ).

Kherpesar ( $H\overline{y}-r^{\circ} -p^{\circ} -s^{\circ} -r^{\circ}$ ), scribe of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Egem ( $^{\circ} -g-m$ ), chief of the archers of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Teyeder ( $Ty-y^{\circ} -dw-r^{\circ}$ ), chief of the bodyguard of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Peyes ( $P^{\circ} -y-s^{\circ}$ ), charioteer of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Gerbetes ( $G-r-b^{\circ} -tw-s^{\circ}$ ), chariot-warrior of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Semretes ( $S^{\circ} -my-r^{\circ} -tw-s^{\circ}$ ) ———.

Peyes ( $P^{\circ} -y-s^{\circ}$ ), charioteer of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Teder ( $T^{\circ} -d^{\circ} -r^{\circ}$ ), chief of the warriors ( $Tw-hy-r^{\circ}$ ).

Methrem ( $My-t^{\circ} -ry-m^{\circ}$ ).

Rebesnen ( $R^{\circ} -b^{\circ} -sw-n-n^{\circ}$ ), chief of the archers of Enenes ( $^{\circ} n-n^{\circ} -s^{\circ}$ ).

Septher ( $S^{\circ} -p^{\circ} -t^{\circ} -r^{\circ}$ ), brother of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

Thewethes ( $\overline{T}^{\circ} -w^{\circ} -t^{\circ} -s^{\circ}$ ), chief of the country of Tenes ( $T^{\circ} -ny-s^{\circ}$ ).

Rebeyer ( $R^{\circ} -b^{\circ} -yw-r$ ).

The wretched chief of Aleppo ( $H\overline{y}-r^{\circ} -b^{\circ}$ ) turned upside down by his soldiers, after his majesty hurled him into the water.

Warriors ( $Tw-hy-r^{\circ}$ ), who are in front of the 'commander', 8,000. Town of Kadesh.

By the King of Kheta

338. <sup>1</sup>The vanquished, wretched chief of Kheta, <sup>2</sup>standing before his infantry and chariotry <sup>3</sup>with his face turned round, and his heart afraid. <sup>4</sup>He went not forth to battle, for fear of his majesty, <sup>5</sup>after he saw his majesty prevailing [against the vanquished chief] <sup>6</sup>of Kheta and all the chiefs of all the countries <sup>7</sup>[who] were with him. His majesty — — — <sup>8</sup>he overthrew them — — —. <sup>9</sup>[The vanquished chief of Kheta] said: "He is like <sup>10</sup>Sutekh, great in might; Baal is <sup>11</sup>in his limbs."

V. THE DEFENSE OF THE CAMP<sup>a</sup>

339. While Ramses was at the front early in the battle, his camp was entered by the Hittite advance; but on the arrival of the "recruits" from Amor, the latter fell upon these spoilers and slaughtered them.

In Front of Troops

340. <sup>1</sup>The arrival of the recruits of Pharaoh, L. P. H., from the land of Amor (<sup>2</sup>-m-w-r). They found that the force of the vanquished chief of Kheta had surrounded the <sup>3</sup>camp of his majesty on its western side. His majesty had been camping alone, no army with him, [awaiting the] arrival of his [officers] <sup>4</sup>and his army and the division with which Pharaoh, L. P. H., was, had not finished setting up the camp. Now the division <sup>5</sup>of Re and the division of Ptah were on the march; they had not (yet) arrived, and their officers were in the <sup>6</sup>forest of Bewey (B <sup>7</sup>-w-y). Then the recruits <sup>8</sup>cut off the foe belonging to the vanquished chief of Kheta, while they (the foe) were entering into the camp, and Pharaoh's officers <sup>9</sup>slew them; they left not a single survivor among them. Their hearts were filled with the mighty valor of Pharaoh, <sup>10</sup>their good lord; he was behind them like a steward of —, like a wall of iron, forever and ever.

VI. AFTER THE BATTLE<sup>c</sup>

341. This relief shows us the king after the battle is over, enjoying his triumph. As he stands in his chariot, his officers throw down before him the hands of the slain, cut off as trophies. The relief on the Abydos temple (unpublished), though very fragmentary, contained a fuller repre-

<sup>a</sup>1. RAMESSEUM: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 155; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. I.

2. LUXOR: Champollion, Monuments, 327; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 107; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. IV.

3. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, ibid., 32; Rosellini, ibid., 97; Lepsius, ibid., 187; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

<sup>b</sup>Sgm' w-c š.

<sup>c</sup>1. ABYDOS: Mariette, Abydos, II, 10, 11.

2. ABU SIMBEL: Champollion, Monuments, 18; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 95; Battle of Kadesh, Pl. VI.

sentation of Ramses' triumph than the meager scene at Abu Simbel. It showed the king receiving the prisoners, captured according to the accompanying inscriptions, by himself! These inscriptions<sup>a</sup> are as follows:

Ramses' Officers Bringing Captives before Him

342. Bringing in prisoners before his majesty, being those which [he] brought off in the victory of his sword in this wretched land of Kheta, when his majesty caused to be [announced to] his infantry and his chariotry, saying: "[Behold, these are] the prisoners of my own capture, while I was alone, no infantry being with me, nor any prince with me, nor any chariotry."

Beside a Group of Prisoners

343. List (shwy) of those countries which his majesty slew, while alone by himself: Corpses, horses, and chariots, bows, swords, all the weapons of warfare.

Beside Another Group of Prisoners

344. Receiving the prisoners which his majesty brought off, in the victory of his sword in this wretched land of Kheta and this wretched land [of] Naharin (N-h-ry-n), together with the chiefs of all countries who came with the vanquished chief of Kheta, <sup>b</sup>as living captives.<sup>b</sup>

Over Fleeing Chariots

345. Warriors (Tw-hy-r<sup>2</sup>) of [— —] the chariots of the camp of the vanquished chief of Kheta.

The texts at Abu Simbel are not so full; they are the following:

Behind Chariot

346. <sup>1</sup>The Good God, who fought for his army, whose sword repulsed the Nine Bows; king, mighty in victory, <sup>2</sup>who hath not his like; charging into the multitudes of every country, making them prostrate bodies. <sup>3</sup>His face is fierce-eyed before the chief of Kheta, and the countries of Naharin [— —].

<sup>a</sup>Mariette, Abydos, II, 10, 11.

<sup>b</sup>This phrase is to be construed with "brought off."

Over Horses

347. Great first span of his majesty (named): "Mut-is-Satisfied," of the great stable: "Usermare-Setepnere-Beloved-of-Amon."

VII. PRESENTATION OF CAPTIVES TO AMON<sup>a</sup>

348. As his father, Seti I, is seen presenting captives and spoil to Amon, on the north wall of the great Karnak hypostyle, so Ramses appears in a like capacity on its south wall. Here he leads and presents to Amon, Mut, and Khonsu, three rows of prisoners, accompanied by inscriptions<sup>b</sup> which show that they are captives taken at the battle of Kadesh:

349. List of the chiefs of Kheta, which his majesty, L. P. H., brought as living captives to the house of his father, Amon: Derden (D-r<sup>o</sup>-d-n-y), Pedes (P-y-d-s<sup>o</sup>), Kele[kesh] (K-y-r<sup>o</sup>-[k-y-š<sup>o</sup>]) ———.

350. These are followed by four short lines of prisoners, each led by one of Ramses' sons:

- a) ——— [behind his majesty, by the] ——— scribe, commander in chief of the army, Amenhirkhepeshef.
- b) ——— [behind] his majesty, by the king's-son, Khamwese.
- c) ——— behind his majesty, by the king's-son, Meriamon.
- d) ——— behind his majesty, by the king's-son, Seti.

351. All these are designated as:

Captives from the northern countries, who came to overthrow his majesty, whom his majesty slew, and whose subjects he brought as living captives, to fill the storehouse of his father, Amon.

III. PALESTINIAN REVOLT

352. At some time between the fifth and eighth years all Palestine, doubtless incited by the Hittites, revolted<sup>c</sup> against <sup>a</sup>Relief on the exterior of the south wall of the hypostyle of the great Amon-temple at Karnak; published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 122, 123; accompanying inscription also, Brugsch, Recueil de Monuments, I, Pl. 29.

<sup>b</sup>Over the lowermost of the three rows. The inscriptions of the other two, as well as the figures of the captives, have perished. A portion of the middle row is, however, still visible.

<sup>c</sup>It is supposed that Ramses must have met with serious reverses between the fifth and the eighth years, for the Palestinian princes down to the Shephelah to have dared to revolt.

Ramses II, and he was obliged to take up the reconquest of his Asiatic possessions, at his very door, in the later Philistine country with the siege of Askalon.<sup>a</sup>

I. RECONQUEST OF SOUTHERN PALESTINE<sup>b</sup>

353. A relief at Karnak represents the storming of the city of Askalon, and the accompanying inscription refers to its rebellion. Of course, Askalon did not revolt alone, but must have been in league with the other cities of Palestine.

354. In the relief we see the king in his chariot charging the bearded defenders, lined up outside a battlemented city, which is located on an elevation. The storming ladders are up, and an Egyptian officer is demolishing the city gate with an ax, while the inhabitants appear on the walls, beseeching mercy. By the city is the following inscription:

355. The wretched city (dmy), which his majesty captured, when it rebelled, Askalon (ʿ-s-k-rw-n). It (the city) says: "It is joy to be subject to thee, and delight to cross thy boundaries. Take thou the heritage, that we may speak of thy valor in all unknown countries."

Over the king's horses appears the usual glorification of his valor.

II. RECONQUEST OF NORTHERN PALESTINE

356. By the eighth year Ramses has reached northern Palestine again, and captures the cities of western Galilee.

<sup>a</sup>The place of this siege in Ramses II's wars is uncertain; but as western Galilee revolted in his eighth year, it is not unlikely that the revolt of Askalon is to be connected with that of west Galilee. Indeed, one name in the list of the eighth year may be Askalon (Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 871, I, No. 2 [-----] r-n). The date "IXth year" (Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 400) for the capture of Askalon is without any documentary support.

<sup>b</sup>Relief and inscription on the exterior of the south wall of the great hypostyle hall at Karnak; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 195 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 145, c.

The only document is a list<sup>a</sup> showing rows of battlemented cities from which Egyptian officers drive prisoners. Each city bears an inscription beginning: "City which his majesty plundered in the year 8;" after which appears the name of a city.<sup>b</sup> Only a few of these names have survived, among which are: a "city on the mount of Bethanath ( $B^{\text{r}}-y\text{-ty}^{\text{c}}-n\text{-ty}$ )," named Kerpet ( $K^{\text{r}}-r^{\text{r}}-pw\text{-}[t^{\text{r}}]$ ); Merem ( $M^{\text{r}}-r^{\text{r}}-m$ , Hebrew, Marôm "Height"); and Sherem ( $S^{\text{r}}-r^{\text{r}}-m$ , Hebrew, Salôm, "Greeting"). The only place not in the west Galilean region is a city "in the land of Amor ( $^{\text{r}}-m-w-r^{\text{r}}$ ), Deper ( $D^{\text{r}}-pw-r^{\text{r}}$ )," which carries us over to the region of Tabor.<sup>c</sup> The capture of this city has been depicted with great spirit and much detail in a splendid relief at the Ramesseum.<sup>d</sup> It shows Ramses' sons<sup>e</sup> playing a prominent part in the battle.

357. The accompanying inscriptions unfortunately contain almost exclusively the conventional praise of the king's valor. They disclose, however, the important fact that the

<sup>a</sup>On the west side of the northern tower of the first pylon of the Ramesseum; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 870, 871; Burton, Excerpta hieroglyphica, 16; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 156, and Text, III, 127, 128. Another series of cities, on the outside of the south wall of the great hypostyle at Karnak, evidently bore inscriptions of the same form, though none is now complete; see Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 20, and Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 120.

<sup>b</sup>There were originally at least eighteen, and possibly twenty-four of these cities. They have been studied best by Müller (Asien und Europa, 220-22), who is followed above.

<sup>c</sup>But see Müller (Asien und Europa, 221), who places it farther north. It seems to me that its place in this list is a good argument for a position farther south.

<sup>d</sup>Description, II, 31 = Champollion, Monuments, 331 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 108 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 166 = Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 59 = Prisse, Histoire de l'art égyptien = Meyer, Geschichte, 290 (colored). Long inscription also Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 54, 1, and the first five lines also, Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 51.

<sup>e</sup>On the inhabitants of the city coming forth with their children and household goods, compare the great tablet in front of the Abu Simbel temple (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 195, a, ll. 11 f.): "their gifts are of the varieties of the products of their lands, their soldiers and their children are before them, to crave peace from his majesty."

Hittites have pushed southward since the battle of Kadesh and temporarily occupied the Tabor region, from which Ramses now ejects them (ll. 11-13). This is the extreme southern limit of the Hittite advance, and was, of course, purely transitory, as their remains are not found south of Hamath. This extreme advance is undoubtedly to be connected with the revolt in Palestine.

358. It was perhaps at this time that the northern trans-Jordan region, the Hauran, again<sup>a</sup> came under the control of Ramses, and some official erected a memorial relief<sup>b</sup> of him there, representing him offering to one of the local gods, with possibly a Semitic name.

The Deper scene, which is our longest document on this period, contains the following inscriptions:

359. <sup>1</sup>Said the vanquished of Kheta in praising the Good God: "Give to us the breath that thou givest, O good ruler. Lo, we are under thy sandals; thy terror, <sup>2</sup>it has penetrated the land of Kheta. Its chief <sup>3</sup>is fallen, because of thy fame; we are like herds <sup>4</sup>of horses, when the fierce-eyed lion <sup>5</sup>attacks them."

360. <sup>6</sup>The Good God, mighty in valor in the countries, stout-hearted <sup>7</sup>in the array, firm on the steed, <sup>8</sup>beautiful in the chariot, when he has taken the bow, shooting, <sup>9</sup>(or) fighting hand to hand, — firm, whom none escapes, — — taking the <sup>10</sup>beautiful corselet — — — in the array, and returning when he has triumphed over <sup>11</sup>the vanquished chief of Kheta. When he overthrew him, he scattered him like <sup>12</sup>straw before the wind, (so that) he forsook his city, <sup>13</sup>for fear of him. He (Ramses) set his fame therein for every day. His might was in his limbs <sup>14</sup>like fire; a bull fighting upon his boundary, seizing <sup>15</sup>upon the things <sup>16</sup>which he has captured, a survivor of his hand he has not left. <sup>17</sup>He is a tempest in the countries, great in tumult; bringing <sup>18</sup>the storm-cloud against the chiefs, to desolate their cities, making all their places

<sup>a</sup>This region of course revolted with the rest of Palestine.

<sup>b</sup>Known as the "Job-stone;" discovered by Schumacher (Zeitschrift des Deutschen Palästina-Vereins, XIV, 142 ff.) at the modern village of Sa c dtych, east of the Lake of Genesaret. It was published by Erman (ibid., XV, 205-11).

<sup>18</sup>into desert regions. His arrows are behind them like Sekhmet <sup>19</sup>when the wind seizes <sup>a</sup> — — the wretched land <sup>20</sup>of Kheta, which is his enemy. King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Usermare-Setepnere, <sup>21</sup>Son of Re, Ramses-Meriamon.

Over Horses' Heads and again over Their Backs

361. Great first span of his majesty (named): "Meriamon," of the great stable of Ramses-Meriamon.

Six Princes, Beginning at Left

362. 1. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Khamwese.
 2. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Montu —.
 3. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Meriamon.
 4. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Amenemuya.
 5. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Seti.
 6. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Setepnere.

In City

———— [D]eper [D]<sup>2</sup> -pw-rw).

IV. CAMPAIGN IN NAHARIN

363. Having thus, in the Palestinian war, recovered Palestine, Ramses again pushed northward and advanced into Naharin.<sup>b</sup>

I. CONQUEST OF NAHARIN

364. In a fragment<sup>c</sup> at the Ramesseum we find him fighting at Tunip. He has, it would seem, already held this important city of the north, and had set up in it a statue of himself. The city had then revolted, and Ramses is now recapturing it. The inscription evidently narrated some personal exploit of Ramses without his coat of mail.

<sup>a</sup>Or: "taking the breath — — —." Brugsch shows some impossible words in this lacuna.

<sup>b</sup>Although this campaign in Naharin is not dated, it is impossible to place it between the battle of Kadesh (year 5) and the recovery of Galilee (year 8). It can only have followed the campaign of year 8.

<sup>c</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 888; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, 54, 2; Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 51.

365. <sup>1</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnere, Son of Re: Ramses-Meriamon, given life. The king himself, he says: "I swear as Re loves me, as my father Atum favors me, as my nostrils are rejuvenated with satisfying life <sup>2</sup>——— the [palace].<sup>1</sup>" As for this [overthrow], they stood fighting the city of Kheta, wherein the statue of his majesty, L. P. H., was. His majesty made it <sup>3</sup>——— his infantry and his chariotry. His majesty was at the front of his infantry and his chariotry <sup>4</sup>——— the vanquished of Kheta, who were in the districts of the city of Tunip (Tw-n-p) in the land of N[aharin]. His majesty took his coat of mail <sup>5</sup>——— twice.<sup>a</sup> He stood fighting the city of the vanquished of Kheta, at the front of his infantry and his [chariotry] —— [not having<sup>1</sup> his] coat of mail upon him. [His] majesty came to take his coat of mail again. It was placed upon him, when <sup>7</sup>——— [the vanquished] of Kheta, who were in the districts of the city of Tunip (Tw-n-p) in the land of Naharin (N-h-r-n), while his coat of mail was not upon [him].

366. In harmony with this fragment, we find that the lists<sup>b</sup> of cities and countries, which Ramses claims to have conquered, mention Naharin, Lower Retenu, Arvad, Keftiyew, and Ketne<sup>c</sup> in the Orontes valley. The fact that these northern regions had to some extent already been under Ramses' control indicates long and arduous campaigning against the Hittites. The revolt of these regions, evident from the Ramesseum fragment just translated, was therefore undoubtedly late in the Asiatic war, and probably had something to do with Ramses' willingness to make peace, later sealed by a treaty of alliance with the Hittites in the year 21, seventeen years after the beginning of the war.

<sup>a</sup>The date "year 12," usually read here is impossible; it is not supported by any of the three copies.

<sup>b</sup>On a colossus at Karnak (Mariette, Karnak, 38) and another at Abydos (Mariette, Abydos, II, 2). The list on the north wall of Karnak (Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 119; Brugsch, Geographische Inschriften, II, 75; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 144) attributed by Müller to Ramses II, I have credited to Seti I (p. 57, n. b). See also Daressy, Recueil, XX, 119.

<sup>c</sup>The mention of Shinar (Babylonia), Assur, Cyprus, and the like, can, of course, only mean the receipt of gifts from the kings of those countries, as under Thutmose III, who controlled none of them but probably Cyprus.

II. TREATY WITH THE HITTITES<sup>a</sup>

367. After possibly fifteen years of warfare in Syria, Ramses II consents to a peace with the Hittites. This peace is sealed in a treaty of alliance which forms one of the most remarkable documents which have survived from ancient Egypt. The copy preserved to us is clearly a translation from an original in a foreign language,<sup>b</sup> and in his rendering the Egyptian translator has not always succeeded too well.

368. For recording upon the temple walls, the royal scribe has prefixed: (1) the date (l. 1); (2) the account of the arrival of two Hittite messengers with the treaty on a silver tablet; and (3) the heading of the copy as preserved in the royal archives. In content the treaty which follows is clear and well arranged. After a title or caption, it proceeds with the following eighteen paragraphs:

1. Review of the former relations of the two countries, the immemorial peace of earlier times, and the later war.

<sup>a</sup>There are two originals: (1) At Karnak on wall extending south of the great hypostyle, published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 195-204 (only 30 lines); Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 116; Burton, Excerpta hieroglyphica, 17 (not used); Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 146; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, I, 28 (ll. 1-20); Bouriant, Recueil, XIII, 153-60; collation of the geographical names by Sayce, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXI, 194 ff.; Müller, Vorderasiatische Gesellschaft, VII, 5, Taf. I-XVI; I had also photographs by Borchardt. (2) At the Ramesseum; only fragments of the last 10 lines; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 585, 586; Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 50; Bouriant, Recueil, XIV, 67-70. In spite of the mutilated condition of the two monuments, the frequent repetitions make restoration certain in almost all cases. Müller's edition is the only one which is done with care and accuracy; a number of readings may be added to Müller's text from Sharpe's copy, which seems to have escaped him. The following translation was already in my manuscript when Müller's publication appeared. His text added a few new readings, but otherwise the translation remains unchanged.

<sup>b</sup>In view of Amarna Letter No. 35, from the Hittite king, Seplul (see Knudtzon, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 141 f.), in Babylonian writing and language, the original of this treaty may have been in the same form.

2. Formal declaration of the new peace pact, which is made binding upon future generations.<sup>a</sup>
3. Mutual resignation of all projects for further conquest in Syria, but without any statement of the boundary adopted.
4. Reaffirmation of the former treaty of the time of Khetasar's grandfather, Seplel,<sup>b</sup> which had continued till interrupted by the war with Khetasar's brother, Metella; but with no restatement of its articles.
5. Egypt makes a defensive alliance with Kheta, depending upon the latter's assistance against all foreign foes.
6. Egypt is to enjoy the co-operation of Kheta in the chastisement of rebellious Syrian (?) subjects.
7. Analogous to 5, in Kheta's favor.
8. Analogous to 6, in Kheta's favor.
9. Extradition of Egypt's political fugitives to Kheta.
10. Extradition of emigrants from Egypt to Kheta.
11. Extradition of Kheta's political fugitives to Egypt.
12. Extradition of emigrants from Kheta to Egypt.
13. The witness of the gods of Kheta and Egypt.
14. Curse on the violator of the treaty.
15. Blessing on the observer of the treaty.<sup>c</sup>
16. Appendix exacting humane treatment of persons

---

<sup>a</sup>It was kept by them in fact, as is shown by the relations of Merneptah with Kheta (§ 580, l. 24).

<sup>b</sup>Knudtzon (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 141 f.) has found in the Amarna collection a cuneiform letter (No. 35) from this king (called Šu-ub-bi-lu-li-u-ma) to a king of Egypt, called Khuri[ya], who, from the content of the letter, is certainly Napkhuriya, the cuneiform for Neferkheprure (Amenhotep IV). Seplel desires, in this letter, to continue with the Pharaoh the friendly relations hitherto existing between himself (S.) and the Pharaoh's father, who has just died. This is clearly Amenhotep III, to whom we may therefore carry back the first treaty between Egypt and Kheta. But the Amarna letters show how badly the Hittites observed the treaty. On the chronological difficulty, see p. 167, n. c.

<sup>c</sup>These two paragraphs form a frequent conclusion of documents intended to be valid in perpetuity, and they mark the logical conclusion here.

extradited from Kheta, who are to suffer no injury in person, family, or property.

17. The same regarding those extradited from Egypt.

18. This final paragraph belongs only to the copy, and not to the treaty. It describes the figures and seals on the silver tablet, and records the words accompanying these seals.

369. Space does not permit further discussion of this remarkable document,<sup>a</sup> but it will be evident that, notwithstanding Ramses' conquest of such northern cities as Tunip in Naharin (§§ 344 f.), he never succeeded in breaking the power of the Hittites. Evidently his complete success in stopping the further southward advance of so powerful an invader was no small reason for congratulation.

Date

370. <sup>1</sup>Year 21, first month of the second season, twenty-first day, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnere, Son of Re: Ramses-Meriamon, given life, forever and ever, beloved of Amon-Re-Harakhte, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," Mut, mistress of Ishru, and Khonsu-Neferhotep; shining upon the Horus-throne of the living, like his father, Harakhte, forever and ever.

Arrival of the Hittite Messengers

371. <sup>2</sup>On this day, lo, his majesty was at the city (called): "House-of-Ramses-Meriamon," performing the pleasing ceremonies of his father, Amor-Re-Harakhte-Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis; Amon<sup>b</sup> of Ramses-Meriamon, Ptah<sup>b</sup> of Ramses-Meriamon, "— great in strength, son of Mut," according as they gave to him eternity in jubilees, everlastingness in peaceful years, all lands, and all countries being prostrate beneath his sandals forever. <sup>3</sup>There came the king's-messenger, <sup>a</sup>See discussion of special points by W. M. Müller (Vorderasiatische Gesellschaft, VII, 215-40).

<sup>b</sup>Forms of Amon and Ptah, worshiped in Ramses' temple at Tanis.

the deputy and butler —,<sup>a</sup> together with the king's-messenger —<sup>a</sup> [bringing<sup>1</sup> to the king] Ramses II [the messenger<sup>1</sup>] of [Kheta<sup>1</sup>, Ter]teseb and the [second messenger<sup>1</sup>] of Kheta [bearing<sup>1</sup> a silver tablet<sup>b</sup>] <sup>4</sup>which the great chief of the Kheta, Khetasar ( $\overline{H-t}^{\circ}-s^{\circ}-r^{\circ}$ ) [caused]<sup>b</sup> to be brought to Pharaoh, L. P. H., to crave peace [from] [the majesty] of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Ramses II,<sup>c</sup> given life, forever and ever, like his father, Re, every day.

Heading of the Copy

372. Copy of the silver tablet, which the great chief of Kheta, Khetasar ( $\overline{H-t}^{\circ}-s^{\circ}-r^{\circ}$ ) caused to be brought to Pharaoh, L. P. H., by the hand of his messenger, <sup>5</sup>Terteseb ( $T^{\circ}-r^{\circ}-ty-s-bw$ ), and his messenger, Ramose, to crave peace from the majesty of Ramses II, the Bull of rulers, making his boundary as far as he desires in every land.

Caption of the Treaty

373. The treaty which the great chief of Kheta, Khetasar, the valiant, the son of Merasar ( $M-r^{\circ}-s^{\circ}-r^{\circ}$ ), <sup>6</sup>the great chief of Kheta, the valiant, the grandson<sup>d</sup> of Seplel ( $S^{\circ}-p^{\circ}-[rw-rw]$ ), [the great chief of Kheta, the valiant, made, upon a silver tablet for Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), the great ruler of Egypt, the valiant, the son of Menmare (Seti I), the great ruler of Egypt, the valiant, the grandson of Menpehtire (Ramses I), <sup>7</sup>the great ruler of Egypt, the valiant; the good treaty of peace and of brotherhood, setting peace [between them<sup>e</sup>], forever.

<sup>a</sup>The names of two Egyptian envoys have here disappeared. Whence they came is not clear. They may have gone out to meet the two Hittite envoys a day's journey or two; or they may have been the Egyptian commissioners who had negotiated the treaty at the court of Kheta.

<sup>b</sup>The restoration is based on l. 4, where we have a verbatim repetition of this connection.

<sup>c</sup>Double name.

<sup>d</sup>There is no word for "grandson" in Egyptian; text has "son of the son."

<sup>e</sup>The loss is greater than this by several words. In view of the preceding words ("setting peace") and similar phrases frequent in the treaty (e. g., ll. 9, 10), it seems to me that Müller (Vorderasiatische Gesellschaft, VII, 215-21) overemphasizes the alliance side of the document. It is not only a treaty of alliance, but also a treaty of peace, and the war evidently continued until the negotiations for the treaty began, which could hardly have been earlier than a year before the date of the arrival of the messengers in Egypt. They reached Egypt in late winter or early spring (twenty-first of Tybi), somewhere around the first of February; and the preceding summer may have seen the last of the hostilities. The treaty distinctly states (ll. 8, 9) that it marks the beginning of a relation designed by the gods to conclude hostilities between the two nations.

Former Relations of the Two Countries

374. 1. Now, at the beginning, since eternity, the relations of the great ruler of Egypt with the great chief of Kheta were (such) that the god prevented hostilities between them, by treaty. Whereas, in <sup>8</sup>the time of Metella (Mw-t-n-r <sup>2</sup>), the great chief of Kheta, my brother, he fought w[ith Ramses II],<sup>a</sup> the great ruler of Egypt, yet afterward, beginning with this day, behold, Khetasar, the great chief of Kheta, is [in] a treaty-relation for establishing the relations which the Re made, and which Sutekh made,<sup>b</sup> for the land of Egypt, <sup>9</sup>with the land of Kheta, in order not to permit hostilities to arise between them, forever.

The New Peace Pact

375. 2. Behold then, Khetasar, the great chief of Kheta, is in treaty relation with Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), the great ruler of Egypt, beginning with this day, in order to bring about good peace and good brotherhood between us forever, <sup>10</sup>while he is in brotherhood with me, he is in peace with me; and I am in brotherhood with him, and I am in peace with him, forever. Since Metella (Mw-t-n-r <sup>2</sup>), the great chief of Kheta, my brother, succumbed to his fate,<sup>c</sup> and Khetasar sat as <sup>a</sup>A cartouche is visible.

<sup>b</sup>Re and Sutekh are here the gods of Egypt and Kheta respectively.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "departed (hnn) after his fate," this, of course, indicates his death. The succession of his brother justifies the suspicion that his death was due to his brother; but this is not certain. Furthermore, this death of Metella is clearly the occasion of the peace, and not the occasion of the war with Ramses II, as often stated (Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 389). Thus the opponent of Ramses II was Metella (l. 8), and Khetasar hastens to make peace soon after his accession (l. 10). We may roughly reconstruct thus:

Amenhotep III, end of reign	}	Seplel, father of	} brothers
Ikhnaton
Ikhnaton's ephemeral successors	}	Merasar, father of Harmhab
Ramses I	}	Metella
Seti I
Ramses II to about year 20	}	Khetasar
Ramses II from year 20 on

The three generations of Hittite kings ruled accordingly over 110 years—over 37 years each—an exceptionally high average for three successive kings in the orient. This would indicate some uncertainty as to the identity of Seplel and Šubbiluliuma of Amarna Letter No. 35, which carries him back to Amenhotep III (see note, p. 164). He may therefore possibly be no earlier than Harmhab, and, as Müller has suggested (op. cit., 226), the Amarna letter may be from an earlier Seplel.

<sup>11</sup>great chief of Kheta upon the throne of his father, behold, I am together with Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, and he is [[with<sup>a</sup> me in] our peace and our brotherhood. It is better than the former peace and brotherhood which were in the land. Behold, I, even the great chief of Kheta, am with <sup>12</sup>[Ramses II], the great ruler of Egypt, in good peace and in good brotherhood. The children of the children of the great chief of Kheta shall be in brotherhood and peace with the children of the children of Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, being in our relations of brotherhood and our relations <sup>13</sup>[of peace], that the [land of Egypt] may be with the land of Kheta in peace and brotherhood like ourselves, forever.

Mutual Renunciation of Further Conquests

376. 3. There shall be no hostilities between them, forever. The great chief of Kheta shall not pass over into the land of Egypt, forever, to take anything therefrom. Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, shall not pass over into the land <sup>14</sup>[of Kheta, to take anything] therefrom, forever.

Reaffirmation of the Former Treaties

377. 4. As for the former<sup>b</sup> treaty which was in the time of Seplel (S<sup>2</sup>-p<sup>2</sup>-rw-rw), the great chief of Kheta, likewise the former<sup>b</sup> treaty which was in the time of Metella (Mw-t-n-r<sup>2</sup>), the great chief of Kheta, my father,<sup>c</sup> I will hold to it. Behold, Ramses-Meriamon, the great

<sup>a</sup>So Müller, but he does not give room for "with."

<sup>b</sup>This word (mtj) has not been hitherto understood in this connection; there is no doubt about its meaning, "customary, usual, habitual," and then "former." Compare Amada Stela (II, 798), where a new four-day list of offerings is established for Anuket "as an increase upon the 3 days of her customary (mtj) feast;" or II, 619; after new offerings are presented, the old ones are to be offered "according to the measure of the customary (mtj) offering which is in this temple;" after a feast a god returns to his "customary (mt(t)) seat" (Recueil, 16, 56, l. 6, above).

<sup>c</sup>"Father" is either used here as in Egypt, where any predecessor on the throne is called "father;" or the name "Metella" is an error for Merasar, who was certainly the father of Metella and Khetasar. Now, as Khetasar has already (ll. 7, 8) referred to the ancient peace as continuing down to, but broken under, Metella, a new treaty under Metella above mentioned (l. 14) is surprising. He may be marking the beginning and end of the same treaty: beginning under Seplel and ending, because broken, under Metella. The Pharaoh with whom Metella's treaty was maintained can hardly be any other than Seti I. (See "it," ll. 14, 15.)

ruler of Egypt, will hold <sup>15</sup>[to it] with us <sup>1</sup>together<sup>1</sup>, beginning with this day. We will hold to it, and we will deal in this former manner.<sup>a</sup>

Egypt's Defensive Alliance with Kheta

378. 5. If another enemy come against the lands of Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), the great ruler of Egypt, and he shall send to the great chief of Kheta, saying: "Come with me as reinforcement against him," the great chief of Kheta shall <sup>16</sup>[come], and the great chief of Kheta shall slay his enemy. But if it be not the desire of the great chief of Kheta to come, he shall send his infantry and his chariotry, and shall slay his enemy.

Chastisement of Syrian Subjects

379. 6. Or if Ramses-Meriamon, <sup>17</sup>[the great ruler of Egypt], be provoked against <sup>1</sup>delinquent<sup>1</sup> subjects,<sup>b</sup> when they have committed some other fault against him, and he come to slay them, then the great chief of Kheta shall act with the lord of Egypt <sup>1</sup>— —<sup>1</sup>.

Kheta's Defensive Alliance with Egypt

380. 7. If another en[emy come] against the great chief of Kheta, [and he shall send] to the great chief (sic!) [of Egypt], Usermare-Setepnere <sup>18</sup>[<sup>c</sup>for reinforcements<sup>1</sup> then he] shall come to him as reinforcement, to slay his enemy. But if it be [not]<sup>d</sup> the desire of Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, to come, he shall [send his infantry and his chariotry <sup>1</sup>and shall slay his enemy<sup>1</sup>]. <sup>1</sup>Or<sup>1</sup> ———— <sup>19</sup>— seeing them, besides returning answer to the land of Kheta.<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>The stipulations of the former treaty, as known to both parties, are not stated.

<sup>b</sup>This word (modified by s w, which Müller regards as a conjunction) must refer to Asiatic subjects of Egypt, who rebel or fail to pay tribute. Kheta is not, in such a case, to interfere in Egypt's attempts at punishment, but is to act in harmony with Egypt. Egypt's obligation in the corresponding clause is much more elaborate, but is unfortunately not clear, owing to its fragmentary condition. Evidently the two clauses mean that both are to act in harmony in Syria; each is to assist the other there, and not take advantage of any revolt in the other's dependencies, for self-aggrandizement.

<sup>c</sup>There is not room for the message, as in the corresponding paragraph.

<sup>d</sup>Omitted in original.

<sup>e</sup>There is evidently a second alternative of some kind here, to which the Egyptian king may resort, which is not found in the corresponding clause defining the Hittite obligation.

Chastisement of Syrian Subjects

381. 8. Now if subjects of the great chief of Kheta transgress against him, and Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, shall ——— the land of Kheta and the land of Egypt <sup>20</sup>— — — [— — —], that is to say: “I will come after [their punishment,<sup>1a</sup> to Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, living forever, — — — the land of Kheta. . . . .
 . . . . .<sup>b</sup> their appointing him for them, to be lord, to cause that Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt, shall be silent from his speech forever.<sup>c</sup> If he — his — — the land of Kheta, and he shall turn back [again to] the great chief of Kheta ———.

Extradition of Political Fugitives in Kheta

382. 9. [If any great<sup>d</sup> man of the land of Egypt shall flee and shall come to] the great chief of Kheta, from either a town <sup>22</sup>[or] — of the lands of Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, and they shall come to the great chief of Kheta, then the great chief of Kheta shall not receive them, (but) the great chief of Kheta shall cause them to be brought to Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt, t[heir] lord therefor.

Extradition of Emigrants to Kheta

383. 10. Or if there flee a man, or two men who are unknown <sup>23</sup>—, and they shall come to<sup>e</sup> the land of Kheta, to become foreign subjects, then they shall not be settled in the land of Kheta, but they shall be brought to Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt.

<sup>a</sup>Or: “jate,” have we here: hr-s > -p > yf (or p > ysn) š > y, as in l. 10?

<sup>b</sup>A few unintelligible fragments are omitted; about one-fifth line.

<sup>c</sup>This last is the legal phraseology of receipts, by which all future claim is renounced. From the end of l. 19 on we have additional enactments not found in the corresponding clause of the Hittite obligations.

<sup>d</sup>The persons who flee are of two classes: “great men” and “men who are not known,” viz., people of no consequence from the Egyptian point of view, but merely mechanics, artisans or servants.

<sup>e</sup>These, being people of no rank, come only “to the land of Kheta,” but the “great men” go personally “to the great chief of Kheta.” The verb used for the “great men” shows also the distinction between the two classes; it is šsp, “receive,” whereas, referring to the unknown persons, we find w > h (possibly “admit”), probably “settle,” that is, allow them to settle down (but w > h is also used once of the “great men,” l. 24).

Extradition of Political Fugitives in Egypt

384. 11. Or if any great man shall flee from the land of Kheta, [and he shall come to] Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt, (from) either a town or a district,<sup>a</sup> or <sup>24</sup>[any region of] those belonging to the land of Kheta, and they shall come to Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, then Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt, shall not receive them, (but) Ramses - Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, shall cause them to be brought to the great chief of Kheta. They shall not be settled.

Extradition of Emigrants to Egypt

385. 12. Likewise, if there flee a man, or two, or three, <sup>25</sup>[who are not] known, and they shall come to the land of Egypt, to become foreign subjects, then Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt, shall not settle them, (but) he shall cause them to be brought to the great chief of Kheta.

The Witness of the Gods of Kheta and Egypt

386. 13. As for the words of this 'contract'<sup>b</sup> of the great chief of Kheta, with Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler <sup>26</sup>[of Egypt], written upon this silver tablet; as for these words, a thousand gods of the male gods and of the female gods, of those of the land of Kheta, together with a thousand gods, of the male gods and of the female gods of those of the land of Egypt, they are with me as witnesses [to] these words: the Sun-god, lord of the heavens, the Sun-god, of the city of Ernen<sup>c</sup> (<sup>2</sup> -r-n-n<sup>2</sup>), <sup>27</sup>Sutekh, the lord of the heavens, Sutekh of Kheta, Sutekh of the city of Ernen, Sutekh of the city Zepyerened (<sup>D</sup> -pw-y<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -n-d<sup>2</sup>), Sutekh of the city of Perek (<sup>P</sup> -y-r<sup>2</sup> -k<sup>2</sup>), Sutekh of the city of Khesesep (<sup>H</sup> -y-s<sup>2</sup> -s<sup>2</sup> -p<sup>2</sup>), Sutekh of the city Seres (<sup>S</sup> -ry-sw), Sutekh of the city of Aleppo (<sup>H</sup> -y-r<sup>2</sup> -p<sup>2</sup>), Sutekh of the city of Rekhsen (<sup>R</sup> -p<sup>2</sup> -sy-n<sup>2</sup>), Sutekh <sup>28</sup>[of the city of —], ——— [—], Sutekh of the city of Sekhpen ( $S^{\circ} - y - \dot{h}y - p^{\circ} y - n^{\circ}$ ), Antheret ( $^c n^a - \dot{t} - r^{\circ} - ty$ ) of the land of Kheta, the god of Zeyethekhrer ( $D^{\circ} y - y^{\circ} - \dot{t} - \dot{h}y - r - ry$ ), the god of Kerzet — ( $K^{\circ} - r - \dot{d}^{\circ} y - \dot{t}^{\circ} -$  —), the god of Kherpenteres ( $\dot{H} - r - p^{\circ} - n - ty - ry - s^{\circ}$ ), <sup>29</sup>the goddess of the city of Kerekhen — n — ( $K^{\circ} - r - \dot{h} - n - - n - -$  —), the goddess of 'Khewek' ( $\dot{H}^1 - w^{\circ} - \dot{r} - k^{\circ}$ ), the goddess of Zen — ( $D^{\circ} - y - n -$  —), the god of Zen — wet ( $\dot{D}^{\circ} - n - - \dot{r} - w^1 - ty$ ), <sup>c</sup> the god of Serep ( $S^{\circ} - r^{\circ} - p^{\circ}$ ), <sup>d</sup> the god of Khenbet ( $\dot{H} - n - b^{\circ} - \dot{t}^{\circ}$ ), <sup>e</sup> the queen of the heavens, gods, lords of swearing, the goddess, the mistress of the soil, the mistress of swearing, Teskher ( $T^{\circ} - s^{\circ} - \dot{h} - r^{\circ}$ ), the mistress of <sup>30</sup>the mountains, and the rivers of the land of Kheta, the gods of the land of Kezweden ( $Ky - \dot{d}^{\circ} - w^{\circ} - \dot{d}^{\circ} - n^{\circ}$ ), Amon, the Sun-god, Sutekh, the male gods and the female gods of the mountains and the rivers of the land of Egypt, of the heavens, the soil, the great sea, the wind, and the storms.

<sup>a</sup>Cf. the use of this word (k c k, "corner") for a distant region in Harkhuf (I, 335), and for any district as here, in the Twenty-second Dynasty, Dakhel stela (IV, 726, l. 2), and two more examples (ibid., note).

<sup>b</sup>We expect here the name of the Hittite king; hence the above (Müller) is very uncertain.

<sup>c</sup>A city in the district called by the Assyrians "Kammanu . . . on the border of the territory of the Cappodocian Comana," according to Sayce (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 23, 98).

Curse on the Violator of the Treaty

387. 14. Now, these words, <sup>31</sup>which are upon this silver tablet, are for <sup>f</sup>the land of Kheta and for the land of Egypt. As for him who shall not keep them, the thousand gods of the land of Kheta, and the thousand gods of the land of Egypt shall desolate his house, his land, and his subjects.

Blessing on the Observer of the Treaty

388. 15. Now as for him who shall keep these words, which are upon this silver tablet, whether they<sup>g</sup> be of Kheta, or whether they be people <sup>32</sup>of Egypt, and they shall not devise (aught) against them; the thousand gods of the land of Kheta, together with the thousand gods of the land of Egypt, shall preserve his health, and his life, together with his issue, with his land,<sup>h</sup> and his subjects.

<sup>a</sup>Müller corrects to s and reads Astarte, which is probable.

<sup>b</sup>Sayce's reading  $\dot{h}^{\circ}$ , with  $\dot{h}$  and  $^{\circ}$  is, of course, impossible.

<sup>c</sup>So Bouriant and Müller; Sayce has  $D^{\circ} - y - ty - ty$ .

<sup>d</sup>So the old texts; Müller has a lacuna for  $S^{\circ}$ .

<sup>e</sup>Uncertain.

<sup>f</sup>The fragments of the Ramesseum duplicate begin here; but Bouriant's reconstruction begins with l. 33.

<sup>g</sup>The change of number is in the original.

<sup>h</sup>According to Müller, this word is omitted in the original, and he is corroborated by the photograph.

Treatment of Extradited Persons by Kheta

389. 16. If a man flee from the land of Egypt, or two or three, and <sup>33</sup>come<sup>a</sup> to the great chief of Kheta, the great chief of Kheta shall seize upon them, and shall cause them to be brought back to Usermare-Setepnere, the great ruler of Egypt. Now, as for the man who shall be brought (back) to Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, let not his crime be set up against him; let not <sup>34</sup>his house be injured, nor his wives, nor his children, [let] him [not be killed], and let no injury be done to his eyes, to his ears, to his mouth, nor to his feet. Let not any crime be set up against him.

Treatment of Extradited Persons by Egypt

390. 17. Likewise if a man flee from the land of Kheta, be it one, be it two, (or) be it three, and they shall come to Usermare-Setepnere, <sup>35</sup>the great ruler of Egypt, let Ramses-Meriamon, the great ruler of Egypt, seize [upon them, and let him cause] that they be brought to the great chief of Kheta; and the great chief of Kheta shall not set up their crime against them; let not his house be injured, nor his wives, nor his children, let him not be killed, and let no injury be done to his ears, <sup>36</sup>to his eyes, to his mouth, nor to his feet. Let not any crime be set up against him.

Figures and Seals on the Front of the Silver Plate

391. 18. <sup>b</sup>That which is in the middle of this silver tablet: on its front side is a figure<sup>c</sup> in the likeness of Sutekh embracing the likeness of the great chief of Kheta, surrounded by the following [words]: "The seal of Sutekh, the ruler of the heavens; the seal of the treaty which Khetasar, the great chief <sup>37</sup>of Kheta, the valiant, the son of Merasar (M-r 2 -s 2 -r 2), the valiant, the great chief of Kheta, the valiant, made."

<sup>a</sup>From here on, see Bouriant's reconstruction, Recueil, XIV, 68, 69.

<sup>b</sup>That this phrase begins the description of the silver plate is self-evident; but is rendered still more clear by the parallel phrase in l. 37 and l. 38.

<sup>c</sup>This word (hpyw) is the usual one for inlay-figures in descriptions of Egyptian monuments; it may equally well mean "design" or "device." The sculptures of Boghazköi show a figure of the Hittite ruler embraced by his god (see Messerschmidt, Corpus Inscriptionum Hittiticarum, Taf. 27 E; di Cara, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 13, 196; and Müller, Vorderasiatische Gesellschaft, VII, 233 f.). [Later: Krall's review of Müller's publication of the text contains the same explanation of the figures on the plate.]

That<sup>a</sup> which is in the midst of the surrounding design<sup>b</sup> is the seal [of Sutekh, the ruler of the heavens]. [That which is [in the middle<sup>3</sup> on] its other side is a figure, in the likeness of [—]<sup>c</sup> of Kheta, embracing the figure of the princess of Kheta, surrounded by the following words: "The seal of the <sup>38</sup>Sun-god of the city of Ernen (<sup>ꜥ</sup>-<sup>r</sup>-<sup>n</sup>-<sup>n</sup>), the lord of the land; the seal of Petkhep (<sup>Pw</sup>-<sup>tw</sup>-<sup>ky</sup>-<sup>p</sup>), the princess<sup>d</sup> of the land of Kheta, the daughter of the land of Kezweden (<sup>Ky</sup>-<sup>d</sup>-<sup>w</sup>-<sup>d</sup>-<sup>n</sup>), the — — — of Ernen, the mistress of the land, the votress of the goddess. That which is in the midst of the surrounding design is the seal of the Sun-god of Ernen, the lord of every land."

---

RELATIONS OF EGYPT WITH THE HITTITES AFTER THE WAR

392. Ramses II regarded the conclusion of his war with the Hittites as a triumph for himself. Peace once established, he referred to himself continually as the conqueror of the Hittites.<sup>e</sup> Especially at Abu Simbel is this noticeable, where his inscriptions speak of him as one:

"Who has made the land of Kush as if it had not existed; who has caused the land of Kheta to cease the contradiction of its mouth . . . . smiter of the land of Kheta . . . . smiter of the land of Kheta, which is made heaps of dead."<sup>f</sup>

This attitude is also evident in his obelisk inscriptions, e. g., at Tanis he is spoken of as "carrying off the chiefs of Retenu as living prisoners, crushing the land of Kheta;"

---

<sup>a</sup>So here and in l. 38, as the duplicate (Sharpe's copy) shows.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "the surrounding of the design;" the same also in the last line.

<sup>c</sup>Some female divinity, as the word for figure (ꜥpy't) shows.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "chieftainess;" being the feminine (wr't) of the word which we render "chief" (wr), lit., "great one." and again, "penetrating this land of Kheta, capturing it with valor, making a great slaughter among his heroes."<sup>a</sup>

<sup>e</sup>Besides the following, it should be noticed that the latest copies of the Kadash Poem represent Ramses in the same light (see Müller, Asien und Europa, 216, n. 1; and infra, § 314, n.).

<sup>f</sup>Stela on the front of the Abu Simbel temple (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 195, a, portions of ll. 2-9).

393. This is the light then, in which the Egyptians chose to represent their relations with Kheta. But the peace was not broken, and we are able to trace the amicable relations between the two nations through the thirty-fifth year of Ramses' reign, and we know it continued also into that of his successor. The documents are:

I. Blessing of Ptah (§§ 394-414).

II. Marriage Stela (§§ 415-24).

III. Message of the Chief of Kheta to the Chief of Kode (§§ 425, 426).

IV. Coptos Stela (§§ 427, 428).

V. Bentresh Stela (§§ 429-447).

I. THE BLESSING OF PTAH<sup>b</sup>

394. This remarkable document contains a long address of Ptah to Ramses II, which promises him all possible good fortune (ll. 3-28). To this Ramses replies by enumerating some of his good works for the god (ll. 29-37). The document is chiefly of religious interest, but both addresses contain references to historical events of importance.

395. The speech of Ptah mentions his building of the residence city, Tanis (ll. 16-18), and the visit of the Hittite king (ll. 24-28), bringing his eldest daughter, which had occurred in the year 34, a year before the erection of our stela. It furnishes us with a shorter account of the incident than the Marriage Stela (§§ 415-24). It is interesting to note that the visit is attributed to the influence of Ptah (ll. 15 and 25), just as in the Coptos Stela (§§ 427, 428), which refers to the same or a similar incident.

<sup>a</sup>All of Ramses II's obelisks were erected at least nine years after the close of the Hittite war; the above texts are translated from Petrie, Tanis, I, VII, No. 45, and VIII, No. 49.

<sup>b</sup>Engraved on a large stela in the first hall of the great Abu Simbel temple, and is published by Champollion, Monuments, 38 (without relief at top); Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 194, from which Rheinisch, Chrestomathie, XIII, is copied; Naville, Transactions of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, VII, 119 ff. and plate, made from a squeeze. The document was later appropriated by Ramses III and engraved by him upon the first pylon of the Medinet Habu Temple, published by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 7-10; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, II, 131-38. The translation herein is made with constant reference to the later version (called M), which is very useful, as the older text (called A) omits the first person singular ending frequently and is in places corrupt. Important variants from M are given in the notes.

396. The reply of Ramses mentions in particular his temple buildings at Memphis (ll. 32-34) and their endowment (ll. 34, 35).

397. A relief at the top of the stela shows Ramses II smiting three Asiatic enemies before Ptah-Tatenen, who is leading to him six captives, one of whom is a Negro, and the rest are bearded; but, as the names show, the latter should be Negroes (p. 202, n. c). The inscription below, of thirty-seven lines, is as follows:

Date

398. <sup>1</sup>Year 35, first month of the second season, day 13, under the majesty of . . . . . <sup>2</sup>. . . . . Ramses II,<sup>a</sup> given life.

Introduction

399. Utterance of Ptah-Tatenen, of lofty plumes and ready horns, begetter of the gods, to his son, his beloved, <sup>3</sup>firstborn of his body, the divine god, sovereign of the gods, great in royal jubilees like Tatenen, King Ramses II, given life:<sup>b</sup>

Speech of Ptah; Birth of Ramses

400. "I am thy father, who begat thee as the gods, all thy limbs are of the gods. I assumed my form as the Ram, lord of <sup>4</sup>Mendes,<sup>c</sup> and begat thee in thy august mother,<sup>c</sup> since I knew that thou wouldst be my champion, that thou wouldst indeed do profitable things for my ka. I fashioned thee to rise like Re, exalted thee before the gods, King Ramses II, given life. The companions of <sup>5</sup>Ptah jubilate,<sup>a</sup> thy Meskhenet<sup>b</sup> rejoices in jubilation since <sup>c</sup>they have seen me, <sup>f</sup>a likeness to<sup>1c</sup> my august, great, and mighty body. The priestesses<sup>d</sup> of the house of Ptah, the Hathors<sup>b</sup> of the house of Atum are <sup>6</sup>in festivity, their hearts are in joy. Their hands are uplifted in acclaim since they have seen thy beautiful form. Thy amiability is like my <sup>f</sup>majesty<sup>1</sup>; the gods and goddesses acclaim thy beauty, praising, <sup>7</sup>and assigning to me laudation, saying: "Thou art our august father, who hast fashioned for us a god like thee, Ramses II, given life."

<sup>a</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

<sup>b</sup>Double titulary.

<sup>c</sup>M has: "I cohabited with thy august mother, in order to fashion thy form (ky) as lord of [the Two Lands]."

Ptah Promises Happiness

401. "When I see thee my heart rejoices, and I receive thee in an embrace of gold, I enfold thee with <sup>8</sup>permanence, stability and satisfaction; I endow thee with health and joy of heart; I immerse thee in rejoicing, joy, gladness of heart, and delights, — forever."

Ptah Promises Wisdom

402. "I make thy heart divine like me, I choose thee, I weigh thee, I prepare thee, that thy heart may discern, that thy utterance may be profitable. There is nothing <sup>9</sup>whatever which thou dost not know, (for) I have completed thee <sup>e</sup>this day and before, that thou mayest make all men live by thy instruction,<sup>e</sup> O King Ramses II, given life."

Ptah Promises Power

403. "I have set thee as everlasting king, ruler established forever. I have wrought <sup>10</sup>thy limbs of electrum, thy bones of copper, thy organs of iron. I have given to thee the divine office, that thou mayest rule the Two Lands <sup>f</sup>like the King of Upper and Lower Egypt."<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Following M, which the parallelism shows to be more probably correct, A has: "The companions of Ptah are (thy) nurses."

<sup>b</sup>Goddess of birth.

<sup>c</sup>Following M; a lacuna makes A unintelligible. M would mean that in seeing Ramses they see Ptah.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "great, august ones," a title of these priestesses.

<sup>e</sup>M has: "in the counsels of life, that thou mayest make others live by thy designs."

<sup>f</sup>M: "as thy kingdom."

Ptah Promises Agricultural Wealth

404. "I give thee a great Nile, I endow for thee the Two Lands with wealth, produce, food, and luxuries, giving <sup>11</sup>plenty<sup>a</sup> in every place where thou treadest. I give to thee constant harvests, to feed the Two Lands at all times; the sheaves<sup>b</sup> thereof are like the sand of the shore, their granaries approach heaven, and their grain-heaps are like mountains. There is joy and laudation <sup>12</sup>at seeing thee, (for) plenty of fish and fowl are under thy feet.<sup>c</sup> The South and North are satisfied with thy ka.<sup>c</sup> Heaven is given to thee and that which is in it; earth<sup>d</sup> is led to thee and that which is in it; <sup>e</sup>the pool comes to thee bearing its fowl.<sup>e</sup> Harsekha<sup>f</sup> <sup>13</sup>bears her provisions, the best of the ka of Re; Thoth has set them on thy every side, that thou mayest open thy mouth, to enrich whom thou pleasest, according as thou art the living Khnum, and thy dominion is in victory and might like (that of) Re when he ruled <sup>14</sup>the Two Lands, O King Ramses II, given life."

Ptah Promises Mineral and Industrial Wealth

405. "I cause the mountains to shape for thee great, mighty, perfected monuments; I cause the countries to fashion for thee [all] splendid, costly stone, for <sup>1</sup>employment<sup>1</sup> in monuments in thy name. <sup>2</sup>I make profitable for thee all works;<sup>g</sup> I cause all labor<sup>h</sup> to serve thee, everything that goes on two legs, (or) upon four legs, everything that flies, and all that soars. I put it into the heart of every land <sup>i</sup>to offer and to labor for thee<sup>i</sup> themselves;<sup>j</sup> <sup>k</sup>chiefs, great and small,<sup>k</sup> with <sup>6</sup>one accord do profitable things for thy ka, King Ramses II, given life."

<sup>a</sup>Read sdj.

<sup>b</sup>M: "grain."

<sup>c</sup>M.

<sup>d</sup>Original has "Keb," the earth-god.

<sup>e</sup>In M the word "pool" is determined with a wild fowl, and it reads: "the (bird-) pools lead to thee the fowl of heaven" (yry'w-pt). A similar notion is found in IV, 265, l. 2.

<sup>f</sup>A rare goddess of unknown functions.

<sup>g</sup>Perhaps: "workmen."

<sup>h</sup>Lit., "all artisanship" (fem.); but M shows as determinative a man.

<sup>i</sup>M: "to offer their labor (impost) to thee."

<sup>j</sup>The same idea is found in the Coptos stela of Ramses II (§ 428).

<sup>k</sup>Possibly: "chiefs and petty kings;" M has only "great and small."

Ramses' Residence City and its Buildings

406. "Thou hast made an august residence, to make strong the boundary of the Two Lands (named): "House-of-Ramses-Meriamon-Given-Life," <sup>a</sup>that it may flourish on earth like the four pillars <sup>17</sup>of heaven — — — a sovereign therein, <sup>a</sup> that thou mayest celebrate the royal jubilees that I celebrated therein. I put on thy crown with my own two hands, when thou appearest upon the great double staircase. Men and gods acclaim thy name <sup>18b</sup>like mine when thou celebratest the royal jubilees.<sup>b</sup> Thou fashionest the statues, thou buildest their holy places as I<sup>c</sup> did at the first beginning."

Ptah Promises Long Life and Prosperity

407. "I give to thee years of royal jubilees, my rule, my place, my throne. I endow thy limbs with life, satisfaction and protection behind thee, <sup>d</sup>with <sup>19</sup>prosperity and health. I protect Egypt under thy authority, the Two Lands are diffused with the satisfying life of<sup>d</sup> Ramses II, given life."

Ptah Promises Power

408. "I have set for thee the might, victory, and strength of thy sword in every land, I have bound for thee the hearts of all lands, <sup>e</sup> <sup>20</sup>I have set them beneath thy feet. When thou appearest every day, <sup>f</sup>the captives of the Nine Bows<sup>f</sup> are brought to thee, the great chiefs of every land present to thee their children, I assign them to thy mighty sword, to do what thou pleasest with them, <sup>21</sup>O King Ramses II, given life. I have put thy terror in every heart, thy love in every body; I have set thy might in every country, thy fear encircles the mountains, and the

<sup>a</sup>M has: "plentiful in provisions for Egypt, flourish[ing] like [the four pillars of] heaven; thy majesty abides in its palace, that I may build the wall of my seat therein."

<sup>b</sup>M has: "when thou appearest at the jubilees, like me."

<sup>c</sup>Compare the great Ptah inscription of Memphis, which says of him: "He made likenesses of their (the gods') bodies to the satisfaction of their hearts, he made the gods enter into their bodies of every wood, of every costly stone, of every metal" (l. 60); also: "He formed the gods . . . . he set the gods in the holy places" (ll. 59, 60; Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1901, Taf. I, II).

<sup>d</sup>M has: "As the protection of (thy) limbs. Victorious art thou, every land is under thee, Egypt is diffused with thy beauty."

<sup>e</sup>M has: "the lands of the Asiatics (Sṯ tyw)."

<sup>f</sup>M has: "the captives of thy two hands."

chiefs tremble at the mention of thee. Thy majesty flourishes, <sup>22</sup>steadfast as their head; they come to thee, crying out together, to crave peace from thee. Thou lettest live whom thou wilt, and thou slayest whom thou wilt. Lo, the throne of every land is under thy authority."

Ptah the Author of Ramses' Prosperity

409. "I cause to befall thee <sup>23</sup>thy <sup>a</sup>great<sup>a</sup> wonders, and every good thing to happen to thee. The Two Lands<sup>b</sup> under thee are in acclamation, Egypt flourishes, rejoicing, O Ramses II, given life. I have transferred my dignity to thee; thy great and marvelous <sup>24</sup>excellence approaches heaven; the Two Lands are in joy, they who are therein rejoice at that which has happened to thee. As for the mountains, the waters, and the buildings upon the land, they remove at thy good<sup>c</sup> name, when they behold this command."

Visit of the Hittites

410. "I have made <sup>25</sup>for thee the <sup>d</sup>land of Kheta<sup>d</sup> into subjects of thy palace; I have put it into their hearts to present themselves, with fearful steps to thy ka, bearing their impost which their chiefs have captured, all their possessions as tribute to <sup>26</sup>the fame of his majesty, L. P. H. His eldest daughter is in front thereof, to satisfy the heart of the Lord of the Two Lands, King Ramses II, given life. <sup>e</sup>It<sup>e</sup> is a mysterious marvel; she knows not the excellent matter which I have done at thy desire, <sup>27</sup>that thy great name should be excellent forever. The success of the victorious hero is a great mystery for which he prays. It has not been heard since (the time of) the gods; the mysterious records have been in the house of books from the time of Re until thy majesty, <sup>28</sup>L. P. H., (but) the relation of Kheta in one accord with Egypt has not been known. Lo, it was commanded to slay them beneath thy feet, in order to make thy name live forever, O King Ramses II, given life."

<sup>a</sup>M.

<sup>b</sup>M has: "the lands."

<sup>c</sup>M has: "victorious."

<sup>d</sup>M modifies these statements to suit the times of Ramses III; it has: "every land" here; and in place of "his eldest daughter, etc." (l. 26), it has: "their sons and their daughters as slaves to thy palace."

<sup>e</sup>Possibly: "she;" all this is omitted in M.

Reply of Ramses

411. <sup>20</sup>Utterance of the divine king, Lord of the Two Lands, <sup>21</sup>lord of the form of<sup>a</sup> Khepri, in whose limbs is Re, who came forth from Re, whom Ptah-Tatenen begat, King Ramses II, given life; to his father, from whom he came forth, Tatenen, <sup>30</sup>father of the gods: "I am thy son whom thou hast placed upon thy throne. Thou hast assigned to me thy kingdom, thou hast fashioned me in thy likeness and thy form, which thou hast assigned to me and hast created. I shall do again every good thing that thou desirest, while I am sole lord, as thou wast, to settle the 'affairs'<sup>b</sup> of the land. I have created Egypt for thee anew, I have made it as at the beginning, I have wrought the gods' forms from thy limbs, even to their color and to their bodies; I have equipped Egypt according to their desire, I have built it up with <sup>32</sup>temples."

Building of Memphis Temple

412. "I have enlarged thy house in Memphis,<sup>c</sup> protected with everlasting works, with excellent labor, in stone, wrought with gold and genuine costly stones, I constructed thy forecourt <sup>33</sup>on the north with an august double façade before thee. Their doors are like the horizon of heaven, causing (even) strangers to praise thee. I made for thee an august temple in the midst of the inclosure. Thou god, 'whom I have' fashioned, art in its secret chapel, <sup>34</sup>resting upon its great throne."

Endowment of Memphis Temple

413. "It is equipped with priests, prophets, peasant-slaves, lands, and cattle. It is made festive with innumerable divine offerings consisting of all things. I have celebrated thy great feast of royal jubilees, <sup>35</sup>as thou commandest them me. All things that are, are brought to thee in great offerings, at thy desire: bulls (wn-dw), cattle beyond limit. I have brought all their number in millions; as for the fat thereof, it has reached heaven, and the dwellers in heaven have received it."

<sup>a</sup>So M; A has: "becoming as (= like, or merely introducing the predicate) Khepri."

<sup>b</sup>See Ineni, l. 17, note (II, 341).

<sup>c</sup>See §§ 530-37.

Foreign Conquests

414. <sup>36</sup>“I have caused every land to see the beauty in the monuments which I have made for thee. I have branded the people of the Nine Bows and the whole land with thy name, they belong to thy ka, forever, for thou art the creator of them; by command of this thy son, who is upon thy throne, <sup>37</sup>lord of gods and men, sovereign celebrating the jubilees like thee [when thou] bearest the two sistrums, <sup>a</sup>son of the white crown, heir of the red crown, <sup>a</sup>possessing the Two Lands in peace, Ramses II, given life, forever and ever.”

II. MARRIAGE STELA<sup>b</sup>

415. This monument enables us to trace more fully the further relations between Egypt and the Hittites after the peace had been negotiated. A relief at the top shows the king of the Hittites and his daughter in the presence of Ramses. Before the daughter are the words: “Matnejrure, c daughter of the chief of Kheta.” A mutilated inscription accompanying the two visitors contained their words of praise to Ramses II. The beginning is entirely lost for five lines, where it proceeds:<sup>d</sup>

Speech of King of Kheta

Thou didst command the land of Kheta, thou takest captive the people — with all their possessions, the eldest<sup>e</sup> daughter being at their

<sup>a</sup>Amend so; see Naville's commentary.

<sup>b</sup>Cut in the face of the south wall of the excavated court in front of the temple of Abu Simbel. The lower half being covered by sand, Lepsius saw only the relief at the top and eighteen lines (of the forty-one lines) below; this much he published (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 196), but without indication that it was not the whole. The entire inscription, without the relief, was published by Bouriant (Recueil, XVIII, 164-66). In ll. 36-39, I was able to control Bouriant's publication by the copy of Steindorff, which he kindly placed at my disposal. The original is much mutilated, and so indistinct that some passages have been omitted as too uncertain in text for translation.

<sup>c</sup>Misread by Lepsius; for proper reading, see § 417.

<sup>d</sup>Bouriant did not copy this; the following translation is made from Steindorff's copy of the original.

<sup>e</sup>As the Hittite king is speaking, one expects “my daughter” as in l. 32 of the long inscription, which repeats these words.

head, to ——— before thy beautiful face. Thou commandest them — — under thy feet forever and ever, together with the whole land of Kheta. While thou shinest upon the throne of Re, every land is under [thy] feet, forever.

416. Below the relief is a long inscription of forty-one lines beginning with the date “year 34,” Three-fourths (twenty-nine lines) of this inscription are devoted to an extravagant encomium of the Pharaoh, containing only the hackneyed phrases of conventional praise, relieved by two references to the defeat of Kheta. The last fourth of the document (ll. 30-41) then proceeds with an incident, of which the mutilated condition of the monument and the excessively inaccurate publication permit us to gain only the meagerest outline. After a reference to the treaty of peace, the king of the Hittites is represented as reverting to their defeat by Ramses, and he apparently proposes that they proceed to Egypt. This they do, bringing rich gifts, and the news soon reaches Ramses, who is filled with delight, and prepares to receive his visitors; the chiefs of Kheta, Kode, and “the chiefs of every land.” He seems to be concerned for their arrival in the uncertainties of winter travel, and offers an oblation to Sutekh on their behalf. When finally, with the escort he had sent to meet them, they arrive in safety, they appear with the Hittite king’s eldest daughter at their head, the troops of Egypt “mingling with the foot and horse of Kheta.” A great feast seems to have been immediately held, where those who had once faced each other in combat now eat and drink together, while the Asiatic princes approach the Pharaoh in audience.

417. It is probably at this feast that the Hittite princess thus brought to Egypt was married to Ramses. The historical character of this marriage is further evidenced by the colossus of Ramses II at Tanis, attached to which is a statue of a queen bearing the inscription:<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Mariette, Recueil, IX, 13; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 74; Petrie, Tanis, I, 24, Pl. 5, 36 B.

“Great king’s-wife, mistress (hn·t) of the Two Lands: Matnefrure (Mᵛ·t-nfr·w-Rᶜ),<sup>a</sup> daughter of the great chief of Kheta.”

This inscription, therefore, renders unquestionable the main facts of the following narrative on the Marriage Stela.

The Treaty of Peace

418. <sup>30</sup>. . . . . The chief of Kheta sent, asking of me permanent<sup>b</sup> peace. Never did he — for them. Now <sup>1</sup>afterward<sup>1</sup> . . . . . <sup>31</sup>under the great fame of the Lord of the Two Lands, King Ramses (II).

The Chief of Kheta Counsels with His Officers

419. Then spake the chief of the land of Kheta to his <sup>1</sup>army<sup>3c</sup> and his nobles, saying: “Now is our land devastated; Sutekh <sup>1</sup>is<sup>1</sup> our lord to <sup>1</sup>protect us<sup>1</sup>, (but) [The has<sup>1</sup>] not . . . . . <sup>32</sup>fighting with them. We have been taken captive with all our possessions; my eldest daughter being before them<sup>d</sup> . . . . .”

They Proceed with Gifts to Egypt

420. Then they [<sup>1</sup>came<sup>1</sup>] with [their] possessions, and [their] splendid [<sup>1</sup>gifts<sup>1</sup>] before <sup>33</sup>them, of silver and gold, marvels many and great, horses to — them, — living things . . . . .

The News Reaches Ramses

421. . . . . . to delight the heart of his majesty, saying: “Behold, the great chief of Kheta comes, <sup>34</sup>bringing his eldest daughter, bearing much tribute, being everything . . . . . The chief of Kheta, together with the chief of [<sup>1</sup>Kode<sup>e</sup> and people<sup>1</sup>] of Kheta, are bringing them. They have traversed many mountains and difficult ways, that they

<sup>a</sup>Meaning: “She who sees the beauty of Re” (the sun). It is the name of the last hour of the night (Brugsch, Thesaurus, IV, 845; Petrie, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXVI, 36).

<sup>b</sup>N rnḫ·t n rnḫ·t, “year by year?”

<sup>c</sup>The word is lost except the determinative of men and plural strokes; of course, the first f is a misread n.

<sup>d</sup>These words are among those used by the chief of Kheta in addressing the Pharaoh in the relief above (§ 415).

<sup>e</sup>This restoration, in view of the letter in Anastasi, II (§§ 425, 426), is exceedingly probable.

might reach the boundaries of his majesty. . . . <sup>35</sup>. . . .” His majesty received the ‘word’ — — [in] the palace, with joy of heart.

Ramses Makes Preparations to Receive Them

422. When he heard such strange and unexpected matters . . . . . he commanded <sup>36</sup>the army and the princes to receive in front of them in haste.

Ramses’ Sacrifices to Sutekh for Good Weather

423. Then his majesty took counsel ‘for’ the army<sup>a</sup> with his own heart, saying: “What are these newcomers like! When there goes not a messenger<sup>b</sup> to Zahi (D<sup>3</sup>-h<sup>3</sup>) in these days of flood <sup>37</sup>on the upper ‘heights’<sup>c</sup> in winter.”<sup>d</sup> Then [he] offered an oblation for ‘—’ and for Sutekh. Then he came [‘pray’]ing, saying: “Heaven is — and earth is under ‘thy feet’. That which thou commandest is all that happens. Thou — to make the flood and the cold upon the ‘heights’ . . . . . <sup>38</sup>. . . . which thou hast assigned to me, King Ramses (II).” Then his father, Sutekh, heard every [wor]d . . . . .

Arrival of Ramses’ Escort with the Visitors

424. . . . . his army came, their limbs being sound, and they were long in stride <sup>39</sup>. . . . . The daughter of the great chief of Kheta marched in [‘front’] of the army . . . . . of his majesty in following her. They were mingled with foot and horse of Kheta; they were <sup>40</sup>warriors<sup>e</sup> as well as regulars; they ate and they drank ‘not’ fighting face to face . . . . . between them, after the manner of the

<sup>a</sup>This is probably the “army” escort of the visitors, by which term (“army”) Ramses refers to the whole expedition now on the way to Egypt.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “they go not by messenger,” or “as a messenger.”

<sup>c</sup>Bouriant has miscopied the word, as is shown by its second occurrence in this same line; it is perhaps k<sup>3</sup>, “height.”

<sup>d</sup>It is evident that Ramses expresses to himself here his wonder that these visitors are coming in the winter rainy season, when hardly a state messenger could reach Zahi; though the language he uses is obscure and difficult. He now offers to Sutekh a gift for the sake of good weather and the safe arrival of the visitors. The similar reference in the poem (§ 426) on the same occasion to Ramses’ power over rain and storm is hardly accidental. The author of the poem knew of the Abu Simbel Stela. For a similar offering for favorable weather on a voyage, see Punt Expedition (II, 252).

<sup>e</sup>Mercenaries.

god himself, King Ramses (II). The great chiefs of every land came; they were bowed down, turning back in fear, when they saw [this majesty; the chief of] Kheta [came] among them, [to seek the favor] of King Ramses (II).

III. MESSAGE OF THE CHIEF OF KHETA TO THE CHIEF OF KODE<sup>a</sup>

425. This poetic fragment perhaps indicates that Ramses II invited the chief of Kheta and other Asiatic chiefs, at least the chief of Kode, to Egypt, and this invitation a court poet of course regards as a command (Poem below, l. 2). To this invitation the Abu Simbel stela (§§ 415-24) makes no reference, and the whole ten-line poem, being of course only the fancy of a court poet to embellish his description of the glories of Ramses' capitol, to which the Hittite visitors came, may have no foundation in fact. Such a visit, however, and the marriage alliance which it consummated, as we know from the Amarna Letters, must have occasioned much preliminary correspondence, of which this poem offers us a hint.

426. The great chief (wr-<sup>c2</sup>) of Kheta sent to the chief (wr) of Kode (saying):

“Equip thyself that we may proceed to Egypt,
That we may say: ‘The behest of the god comes to pass;’
Let us make overtures to Ramses II, L. P. H.,
For he gives breath to whom he will,
And every country lies at his disposition.
Kheta is in his power alone,
If the god accepts not his offering,
It (Kheta) sees no rain,<sup>b</sup>
For it is in the power of Ramses (II), L. P. H.,
The Bull, loving valor.”

<sup>a</sup>Papyrus Anastasi II, Pl. II. ll. 1-5 = ibid. IV, Pl. VI, ll. 7-10. Their connection with the Hittite king's visit was first noted by Erman, Aegypten, 707.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “water of heaven,” it can hardly be an accident that the prose account (§ 423) also narrates an instance of Ramses' power with the god in respect of rain and storm.

IV. COPTOS STELA<sup>a</sup>

427. This document recorded the visit to Egypt of a number of the Asiatic princes bearing gifts for the Pharaoh. It is a visit precisely like that of the Hittite king (§ 410) and his neighbors, and reference is made to "his other daughter," as if another princess were being brought to Ramses in marriage. As the mention of this princess occurs directly after a reference to Keshkesh, one of the allies of the Hittite king; as the envoys are later (l. 13) said to be "the children of the great chiefs of the land of Kheta," and as there is a reference to a coming "to Egypt for the second time," this may possibly be the account of Ramses' marriage to a second Hittite princess. The pious priests attribute both the visit and the gifts, to the gods (l. 9), and particularly, among the gods of Egypt, to Ptah, precisely as is done in the Blessing of Ptah in referring to the visit of the Hittite king with his daughter (§ 410, l. 25).

428. <sup>3b</sup>———— [chiefs of]<sup>c</sup> all countries conveying their tribute, <sup>4</sup>———— of much gold, of much silver, of all costly stones, <sup>5</sup>———— very many captives of Keshkesh (Kš-kš), many captives <sup>6</sup>[of] ————— in writing for King Ramses (II) <sup>7</sup>———— many [herds] of goats, many herds of small cattle<sup>d</sup> before his other daughter <sup>8</sup>———— Ramses II, given life, to Egypt for the second time. It was not troops who brought them; it was not <sup>9</sup>———— [the god]s of the land of Egypt,

<sup>a</sup>A "black quartzose" stela found by Petrie in the Coptos temple; it had contained an older, probably Middle Kingdom, inscription, which Ramses II had dressed off for the reception of his own inscription (Petrie, Coptos, 15). It has been broken so that about half the document is missing, the line of breakage being from the beginning of the first to the end of the last line. Text, ibid., XVIII; I had also a copy by Schaefer, which added a little at the broken edge, and furnished one correction.

<sup>b</sup>The extreme ends of the first two lines show remains of the titulary.

<sup>c</sup>Both the following context and the remains seen by Schaefer render this restoration probable, if not certain.

<sup>d</sup>The published c nḥ't, "goats," is an error; original has y w't (Schaefer's copy).

the gods of every country, while they caused the great chiefs of every country to convey <sup>10</sup>——— their — themselves to King Ramses (II), given life. <sup>11</sup>——— to convey their gold, to convey their silver, to convey their vessels of green <sup>12</sup>[stone to King] Ramses (II), given life; to bring their herds of horses, to bring their herds of <sup>13</sup>——— their herds of goats, to bring their herds of large cattle. The children of the great chiefs of the land of Kheta <sup>14</sup>came<sup>a</sup> bearing them themselves, from the boundaries of the lands of King Ramses (II), given life, <sup>15</sup>——— themselves. It was not a prince who came to bring them, it was not the infantry who came to bring them, it was not the chariotry who came to bring them, it was not <sup>16</sup>the [mercenaries] who went to bring them; it was Ptah, father of the gods, who has put all lands, and all countries under the feet of this Good God, forever and ever.

V. BENTRESH STELA<sup>b</sup>

429. It is clear that the visit of the Hittite king to Egypt was for the purpose of personally presenting his daughter to Ramses II in marriage. This marriage made a great impression upon the people, and the story of it circulated among them as the introduction to a legend which had grown up from another incident closely connected with the marriage. In the Eighteenth Dynasty, Dushratta, king of Mitanni, sent to Egypt the goddess Ishtar of Ninevah, in the year 35 or 36 of Amenhotep III,<sup>c</sup> doubtless for the sake of the old king's health;<sup>a</sup> she had likewise gone to Egypt in the time of Dushratta's father. The chief of Kheta sent in like manner to Egypt, desiring that Khonsu be brought to Kheta for the purpose of healing his daughter, the younger sister of Ramses' queen, Matnefrure. This was done,<sup>b</sup> and although no contemporary record of the incident has survived, it gradually found place among the folk-tales of the time.

<sup>a</sup>Remains of the determinative of the verb of going may be seen.

<sup>b</sup>Discovered by Rosellini in a small temple of Græco-Roman age now perished, which stood by the Khonsu-temple at Karnak (Erman, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 58; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, II, 48 f.; but when first seen by Champollion it was in the "ruines du Sud-Est" (Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 280). It was carried to Paris by Prisse, and is now in the Bibliothèque Nationale. It was published by him (Monuments égyptiens, XXIV) afterwards from Champollion's copy (Notices descriptives, II, 280-90); Birch, Egyptian Texts, 77-81; Rougé, Etude sur une stèle égyptienne appartenant à la Bibliothèque Impériale, Paris, 1858 (extrait du Journal Asiatique, August, 1856; August, 1857, June and August to September, 1858; Rheinisch, Chrestomathie, Taf. 12; finally Ledrain, Les monuments Eg. de la Bib. Nat., Pl. 36-44. The publications contain a number of inaccuracies, and it was possible to correct a good many errors from my own copy of the original, now in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris.

<sup>c</sup>Amarna Letters, ed. Winckler, 20, 13-29.

430. Some eight or nine hundred years later, in Persian or early Greek times, the priests of Khonsu at Thebes determined to record the story to the greater glory of their god. They put the current tale into language as archaic as they could command, and engraved it upon a stela, which is now our source for the document.<sup>c</sup> In doing this they evidently found some difficulty. The current version, of course, spoke of the king only as Ramses or Ramses-Meriamon. The priests, desiring to lend an official air to their stela, attempted to prefix to the king's name his full titulary, and in doing so used that of Thutmose IV! Nor was their knowledge sufficient to correct the errors or remove the absurdities of the popular version of the story. They consistently carry through seventeen months as the length of time necessary to go from Egypt to Bekhten<sup>d</sup> (Bkhtn), a land otherwise unknown; Nefrure, a corruption of Matnefruré, the real name of the Hittite chief's daughter; a date before the year 23 for the marriage of Matnefrure, which

<sup>a</sup>See Meyer, Festschrift für Georg Ebers, 65, 66.

<sup>b</sup>A tradition of the visit of an Egyptian god in Syria is preserved in Macrobius; see Birch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1874, 67 f.

<sup>c</sup>The real age and origin of the Bentresh Stela were first noticed by Erman (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 54 ff.), but as the earlier case of Ishtar (Amarna Letters, ed. Winckler, 20) was then unknown, Erman naturally denied the content of the stela much of an historical basis.

<sup>d</sup>A corruption of Bactria?

really took place in the year 34—these and other errors, which will be evident to the reader, were calmly accepted by the priestly editors. Incidentally, this document therefore shows clearly how utterly ignorant of earlier Egyptian history were these late priests; and suggests caution in the use of the priest Manetho's work, who lived at about the time when this tale was put into writing.

431. The upper fourth of the stela is occupied by a relief, showing on either side the two sacred barques of the Khonsu's borne on the shoulders of priests. That on the right is Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest, to whom Ramses II is offering incense; while that on the left belongs to "Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes, Great God, Smiter of Evil Spirits." Before him his priest, offering incense, is accompanied by the inscription:

432. The name of the prophet, priest of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes, is Khonsuhetneterneb (Hnsw-h<sup>2</sup> t-ntr-nb<sup>1</sup> t, sic!).<sup>a</sup>

Below the relief is the long inscription, as follows:

Introduction

433. <sup>1</sup>Horus: Mighty Bull, Likeness of Diadems, Abiding in Kingship, like Atum; Golden Horus: Mighty of Strength, Expelling the Nine Bows;<sup>b</sup> King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Setepnere; Son of Re, of his Body: Ramses-Meriamon, <sup>2</sup>beloved of Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, and all the gods of Thebes. . . .
4. . . . .<sup>c</sup>

Tribute in Naharin

434. Lo, his majesty was in Naharin (N-h-r-[n]) according to his yearly custom, while the chiefs of every country came bowing down in peace, because of the fame of his majesty. From the marshes<sup>a</sup> was their tribute; silver, gold, lapis lazuli, malachite and every sweet wood of God's-Land were upon their backs, each one leading his neighbor.

<sup>a</sup>Meaning: "Khonsu is chief of all gods." The form, both of this name and this short inscription, is unknown in the time of Ramses II.

<sup>b</sup>These three names (the second title, "Favorite of the Two Goddesses," has been omitted before "Abiding, etc.") are those of Thutmose IV! The last two, however, show clearly that Ramses II is meant.

<sup>c</sup>The usual epitheta of the kings, running through ll. 2-4 (beginning).

Marriage of Ramses and Chief of Bekhten's Daughter

435. Then the chief of Bekhten (Bh̄tn) caused his tribute to be brought, and he placed his eldest daughter in front thereof,<sup>b</sup> praising his majesty, and craving life from him. Now, she was exceedingly beautiful to the heart of his majesty, beyond everything. Then they affixed<sup>c</sup> her titulary as: "Great King's-Wife, Nefrure (Nj̄r'w-R̄)."<sup>d</sup> When his majesty arrived in Egypt, she fulfilled all the functions of king's-wife.

Arrival of the Messenger from Bekhten

436. When the year 23, the tenth month, the twenty-second day, came, while his majesty was in Thebes, the victorious, the mistress of cities, performing the pleasing ceremonies of his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, at his beautiful feast of Southern Opet (Luxor), his favorite seat, of the beginning (of the world), came one to say to his majesty: "A messenger of the chief of Bekhten has come, bearing many gifts for the King's-Wife." Then he was brought<sup>e</sup> before his majesty together with his gifts. He said, praising his majesty: "Praise to thee, Sun of the Nine Bows! Give us life from thee." So spake he, smelling the earth before his majesty. He spake again before his majesty: "I come to thee, O king, my lord, on account of Bentresh (B-n-t-r-š), thy great<sup>e</sup> sister of the King's-Wife, Nefrure. Sickness has penetrated into<sup>f</sup> her limbs. May thy majesty send a wise man to see her."

<sup>a</sup>At the northern limits of the earth. The division may be wrong here; "from the marshes" goes better with the verb "came," but too much seems to intervene. The following would then be: "Their tribute, silver, etc., were upon their, etc."

<sup>b</sup>Exactly as in the documents on the coming of Matnefrure, especially the Ptah Stela (§ 410), with which the above passage is also in verbal agreement.

<sup>c</sup>To all seals and documents; that is, she takes an official Egyptian name on becoming a queen. On the use of this word "affix" (wd), see my New Chapter (Sethe, Untersuchungen, II, 2, 19, 20).

<sup>d</sup>This is, of course, an error of the late priests for M' t-nj̄r'w-R̄, the real name of the Hittite king's daughter (§ 417).

<sup>e</sup>Possibly to be rendered "oldest."

<sup>f</sup>Lit., "has mingled with."

Dispatch of the Wise Man to Bekhten

437. Then said his majesty: "Bring to me the sacred scribes<sup>a</sup> and the officials <sup>10</sup>of the court." They were led to him immediately. Said his majesty: "Let one read to you, till ye hear this thing. Then bring to me one experienced in his heart, who can write with his fingers, from your midst." The king's-scribe, <sup>11</sup>Thutemhab,<sup>b</sup> came before his majesty, and his majesty commanded that he go to Bekhten together with this messenger.

Arrival of the Wise Man in Bekhten

438. The wise man arrived in Bekhten; he found Bentresh in the condition of one possessed of a spirit. He found <sup>12</sup>her<sup>c</sup> [unable<sup>d</sup>] to contend with him.

Message of the Chief of Bekhten to Ramses

439. The chief of Bekhten repeated in the presence of his majesty,<sup>d</sup> saying: "O king, my lord, let his majesty command to have this god brought ———."<sup>e</sup> [Then the wise man whom his majesty had sent, returned<sup>f</sup>] <sup>13</sup>to his majesty in the year 26, the ninth month, at the feast of Amon,<sup>f</sup> while his majesty was in Thebes.

<sup>a</sup>Ḥt nt pr ˁ nh = lit., "those in charge of the writings of the house of life," a title especially common in Ptolemaic times. In the Canopus Decree it is rendered by the Greek οἱ ἱερογραμματεῖς.

<sup>b</sup>A man of this name and of the same office lived in the time of Ramses II, and his stela is in Leyden (Lieblein, 884; Erman, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 55).

<sup>c</sup>Su for sy; several words, now no longer visible on the stone here, were seen and copied by Prisse, but more correctly by Rheinisch.

<sup>d</sup>This alone would indicate that the chief of Bekhten, finding the wise man unable to cast out the spirit, went himself to Egypt to ask that the god be sent to do so. The loss between the two parts of the stela, just below this point, makes it difficult to trace the connection, but it seems more probable that the words of the chief of Bekhten are a message, sent by the returning wise man to Ramses, for it is clear that he received some message at the beginning of l. 13; and, further, the chief of Bekhten is found in Bekhten by the god on his arrival there. The chief therefore certainly remained in Bekhten.

<sup>e</sup>Lacuna of uncertain length, between the two fragments of the stela.

<sup>f</sup>As the god later consumes one year and five months (l. 17) in going to Bekhten, the round trip between Egypt and Bekhten should take some thirty-four months. This exactly suits the above passage, according to which the returning wise man has been absent nearly three years, which allows for a short stay in Bekhten.

Ramses' Interview with the Two Khonsu's

440. Then his majesty repeated (it) before Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest, saying: "O my good lord, I repeat before thee concerning the daughter of the chief of Bekhten." <sup>14</sup>Then they led Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest to Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker, the great god, smiting the evil spirits. Then said his majesty before Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest: "O thou good lord, if thou inclinest thy face to Khonsu-<sup>15</sup>the-Plan-Maker, the great god, smiting the evil spirits, he shall be conveyed to Bekhten." There was violent nodding. Then said his majesty: "Send thy protection with him, that I may cause his majesty<sup>a</sup> to go to Bekhten, to save the daughter of the chief of Bekhten." <sup>16</sup>Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest nodded the head violently. Then he wrought the protection of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes, four times.

Departure of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker

441. His majesty commanded to cause Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes to proceed to a great ship, five transports (kḫ't), numerous chariots <sup>17</sup>and horses of the west and the east.

Arrival of the God in Bekhten

442. This god arrived in Bekhten in a full year and five months. Then the chief of Bekhten came, with his soldiers and his nobles, before Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker. He threw himself <sup>18</sup>upon his belly, saying: "Thou comest to us, thou art welcome with us, by command of the King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II)."

Cure of Bentresh

443. Then this god went to the place where Bentresh was. Then he wrought the protection of the daughter of the chief of Bekhten. She became well <sup>19</sup>immediately.

Conciliation of the Spirit

444. Then said this spirit which was in her before Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes: "Thou comest in peace, thou great god, smiting the barbarians. Thy city is Bekhten, thy servants are its people, I am thy servant. <sup>20</sup>I will go to the place whence I came, to satisfy thy heart concerning that, on account of which thou comest. (But) let thy majesty command to celebrate a feast-day with me and with the chief of Bekhten." Then this god nodded to his priest, saying: <sup>21</sup>"Let the chief of Bekhten make a great offering before this spirit." While these things were happening, which Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes wrought with the spirit, the chief of Bekhten stood with his soldiers, and feared very greatly. Then <sup>22</sup>he made a great offering before Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes and the spirit; and the chief of Bekhten celebrated a feast-day <sup>1</sup>with them. Then the spirit departed in peace to the place he desired, by command of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes, <sup>23</sup>and the chief of Bekhten rejoiced very greatly, together with every man who was in Bekhten.

<sup>a</sup>Meaning the god.

Retention of the God in Bekhten

445. Then he took counsel with his heart, saying: "I will cause this god to remain with me in Bekhten; I will not permit that he return to Egypt." <sup>24</sup>Then this god tarried three years and nine months in Bekhten.

Vision of the Chief of Bekhten

Then the chief of Bekhten slept upon his bed, and he saw this god coming to him, to forsake his shrine; he was a hawk of gold, and he flew upward toward Egypt. <sup>25</sup>He (the chief) awoke in fright.

Departure of the God for Egypt

446. Then he said to the priest of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes: "This god, he is still with us; let him depart to Egypt; let his chariot depart to Egypt." <sup>26</sup>Then the chief of Bekhten caused this god to proceed to Egypt, and gave to him very many gifts of every good thing, very many soldiers and horses.

Arrival of the God in Egypt

447. They arrived in peace at Thebes. Then came the city of Thebes, and <sup>27</sup>the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes to the house of Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest. He set the gifts which the chief of Bekhten had given to him, of good things, before Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest, (but) he gave not every thing thereof into his house. Khonsu-the-*Khonsu has probably been omitted by mistake.

---

Plan-Maker-in-Thebes arrived <sup>28</sup>[at] his [plac]e in peace in the year 33, the second month, the ninth day,<sup>a</sup> of King Usermare-Setepnere; that he might be given life like Re, forever.

NUBIAN WARS AND REFERENCES TO NORTHERN WARS

448. The temples of Nubia contain many references of an indefinite character to Ramses II's Nubian wars, from which it is impossible to gain any idea of them, the localities conquered, or the date of the campaigns. These references are often so mingled with those of the northern wars against the Asiatics and Libyans that it is not possible to separate and classify them all. They are continued through the temples of Egypt also.<sup>b</sup> Of the Libyan war we learn little more than the fact, though the Tanis Stela furnishes an important hint of an alliance of the Libyans with the Sherden and a naval battle<sup>c</sup> (§ 491). To our knowledge of the Asiatic wars nothing definite is added. The materials are:

<sup>a</sup>The round trip consumed 34 months (1 year and 5 months each way, l. 17), and he had remained in Bekhten 45 months (l. 24), a total absence of 79 months, or 6 years and 7 months. As he left Egypt in the ninth month of the year 26 (l. 13, date of wise man's return to summon him), if that date be late in the year 26, an absence of 6 years and 7 months would put his return in the year 33, as the priestly author of the inscription has done.

<sup>b</sup>Scenes showing Ramses sacrificing foreign captives of the north and south are found in practically all his temples; e. g., at the Ramesseum (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 159, b), where we find beside the scene the words: "Slaying their chiefs, making them as if they had not been;" and again: "The chiefs of the countries of the south and the north, whom his majesty carried away as living captives." On his obelisks also there are very general references to his wars; thus at Tanis (Petrie, Tanis, I, VII, No. 45) he is called one, "capturing Nubia by his valor, wasting Tehenu;" and "great in valor like a bull in Retenu;" again (ibid., No. 47): "carrying off the chiefs of Retenu as living prisoners, crushing the land of Kheta." At Kurna, in the temple, some divinity addressed Ramses thus (Piehl, Inscriptions, I, 145 A): "the gods of Khenthennojer and Wawat in their nomes, and lands; the chiefs of God's-Land, who fashion every splendid costly stone for their son, Ramses II lapis lazuli of Tejrer, every costly stone that is in the two mountains, the products of Nun. The subjects of the Negroes come to thee by land and water, bringing down-stream all the reckonings of Nubia in the records of Thoth, in order to make festive the temple of thy father, Amon, lord of gods." (See also Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, 38.)

<sup>c</sup>The hymn to Ramses II, in Papyrus Anastasi II, says: "Libya falls before his sword" (III, 4).

- I. Abu Simbel Temple (§§ 449-57).
- II. Bet el-Walli Temple (§§ 458-77).
- III. Assuan Stela (§§ 478, 479).
- IV. Luxor Temple (§§ 480-84).
- V. Abydos Temple (§§ 485, 486).
- VI. Tanis Stelæ (§§ 487-91).

I. ABU SIMBEL TEMPLE

449. The following scenes<sup>a</sup> in the great temple at Abu Simbel contain references to Ramses II's Asiatic wars, a war against the Libyans, and the Nubian war.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

450. Ramses II, with bow and sword in hand, rides slowly in his chariot, evidently accompanying his army on the march. Beside his horses runs his tame lion, while an orderly with bow, quiver, and staff, his sandals strung on his arm, marches at the horses' heads. Before them are driven two lines of bound Negro prisoners.

Inscription

451. Good God [—], who smites the south, who crushes the north; king, fighting with his sword, carrying off the furthest ends<sup>c</sup> of those who transgress his inviolable [places]. When his majesty arrives in the countries, he overthrows myriads; he desolates them. He has — Retenu, slaying their chiefs; he causes the Negroes to say: "Away! He is like flame, when it comes forth, and there is no water to quench it." He makes the rebels to cease the contradiction which their mouths offered, when he took them.

<sup>a</sup>The publications will be found with each scene. The great battle scene of Kadesh will be found in §§ 335-38.

<sup>b</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 15, 16 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 84, 85; Champollion, Monuments, also adds (Pl. 16 bis) two Negro heads, in full size of original.

<sup>c</sup>There is possibly a lacuna here.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

452. Ramses II, with bow in hand, leads two lines of captive Negroes, and presents them to Amon, Mut, and Khonsu.

Inscription over Ramses and Negroes

453. The bringing of the tribute, by the Good God, to his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, after his arrival from the country of Kush, overthrowing the rebellious countries, crushing the Asiatics in their place; consisting of silver, gold, lapis lazuli, malachite, and every splendid costly stone, according as he decreed for him might and victory against every country.

The wretched chiefs of Kush, whom his majesty brought from his victories in the country of Kush, in order to fill the storehouse of his august father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, according as he gave might against the south, victory against the north, forever and ever.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

454. Ramses II, with drawn bow, stands in his chariot, charging a Syrian city, situated on a hill. The inhabitants on the city walls are nearly all pierced with arrows; just outside, a fleeing Syrian drives off his cattle to refuge in the city. Behind Ramses, three princes dash forward, each in his chariot.

Inscription over Ramses

455. Good God, valiant son of Amon, lord of the sword, protector of his army [in] battle, mighty in strength, knowing where to place his hand, firm in the chariot like the lord of Thebes, lord of victory, fighting millions, mighty Bull among multitudes, piercing through the allies, crushing the rebellious upon the mountains; they enter into their valleys like grasshoppers. Thou makest the sword to cut off their place, 'where' thy enemies come forth, O king, mighty of sword.

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 35 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 86 (both without inscription over Ramses and Negroes); Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 66; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 188, a.

<sup>b</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 12-14 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 80-82 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 61.

Over Three Princes

456. King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Amenhirkhepeshef.
King's-son, of his body, his beloved, Ramses.
King's-son, of his body, his beloved Pehirunamef.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

457. Ramses II, standing over a fallen Libyan, hurls backward another Libyan, whom he is thrusting through with his spear.

Inscription

The Good God, slaying the Nine Bows, crushing the countries of the north, — valiant in the countries, a mighty swordman, like Montu, bringing the land of the Negroes to the land of the north, the Asiatics (<sup>c</sup> m·w) to the land of Nubia. He has placed the Shasu (<sup>S</sup> -s) into the land of —, he has settled the Tehenu on the heights, filling the strongholds, which he built, with the captivity of his mighty sword, 'slaying' Kharu (<sup>H</sup> -rw), 'wasting' Retenu (Rtnw), which his sword overthrew.

II. BET EL-WALLI TEMPLE<sup>b</sup>

458. The impressive reliefs in this temple represent the northern and southern wars of Ramses II: the northern wars, against Asiatics and Libyans, are on the northern wall of the forecourt, and the southern wars, against the

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 17 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 83. The scene is copied from that of Seti I on the north wall of Karnak (Scene XIII, §§ 123-32).

<sup>b</sup>These scenes are cut on the rock side-walls of the excavated forecourt of the Bet el-Walli temple. Young published the complete series from drawings by Wilkinson (Hieroglyphics, 81-87, b). An effective colored reproduction of the ensemble is given by Bonomi-Arundale, Antiquities, Pl. 38, Figs. 155, 156; the separate scenes are published by Champollion, Monuments, 63-73, 92, No. 4; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 154; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 65-75; Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 15; and fragments, Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 176, a, b, d, e, f, g.

Nubians, are on the southern wall. Thus each series indicates by its position the locality where the wars it depicts took place. In each series the movement of events is toward the temple door, where the king sits in both final scenes, receiving the captives from his wars.

I. NORTHERN WARS

459. The scenes in this series are chiefly, if not exclusively, symbolical, and therefore do not depict specific events. They were evidently devised to form a pendant to the other series on the southern wall, which does depict an actual Nubian campaign.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

460. Ramses II, charging in his chariot, leans over and seizes two of the enemy by the turban, and cuts them down with his sword; before him the mass of the enemy flees. They are bearded, and are undoubtedly Semites.

Inscription

461. ——— valiant son of Amon, lord of the sword, protector of his army in battle, mighty against — — — his hand, firm in the chariot, like the lord of Thebes, ——— victorious, fighting millions, mighty Bull among myriads, ——— smiting the rebellious ———.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

462. A symbolic scene showing an Asiatic city, on the walls of which the inhabitants gather, with hands uplifted, beseeching mercy. The city chief or petty prince in the citadel is seized by the gigantic Ramses, who stands over him with upraised sword. A prince (with sidelock) advances to the gate with a battle axe.

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 64 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 67 = Bonomi-Arundale, Antiquities, Pl. 38, Fig. 156 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 3.

<sup>b</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 65 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 68 = Bonomi-Arundale, Pl. 38, Fig. 156 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 3.

Inscriptions

463. The inscriptions have all perished<sup>a</sup> except the words of the captured chief:

By the Citadel

Said the wretched chief,<sup>b</sup> in magnifying the Lord of the Two Lands: “[— —] there is no other like Baal, O ruler, his real son, forever.”

Scene<sup>c</sup>

464. Ramses II slays with the sword a Libyan<sup>d</sup> whom he has seized by the hair and forced to the knees. A hound leaps upon the Libyan's hip. Approaching Ramses in front, with uplifted arms, are two rows of officials, now almost vanished.

Inscription behind Ramses

465. O Good God, great in terror, victorious lion, lord of the sword, embracing the rebellious lands of Tehenu (Tḥnw); thy sword has overthrown the Nine Bows, slaying him who is beneath thy sandals, like Re, every [day] forever and ever.

Before Officials, Upper Row

466. Said the princes who are in the presence of his majesty, in magnifying the Lord of the Two Lands: “— — — [migh]ty in valor, victorious when thou hast shown thy might among the rebellious — — the sun shines not because of thy rage therein . . . . . ———.”

Before Official, Lower Row

467. Said the fan-bearer on the right of the king, prince, — real king's-scribe, his beloved, king's-son, Amenhirunamef, in [“celebrating”]

<sup>a</sup>Fragments of three columns over the city show the main inscription to have been of the usual conventional character.

<sup>b</sup>The absence of the name shows the purely typical character of the scene.

<sup>c</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 63 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 66 = Bonomi-Arundale, Antiquities, Pl. 38, Fig. 156 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 2.

<sup>d</sup>A similar scene within the temple (rear wall, Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 151; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 176, c) bears the words: “Good God, slaying Tehenu.”

the praise of his lord, in magnifying his might: "——— in the countries. Thou hast slain their chiefs ——."

Over Hound

Anath (<sup>c</sup> nty)-is-Protection.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

468. Ramses II, standing, battle axe and bow in hand, grasps three Syrians by the hair, as they kneel before him. A king's-son (from his dress), doubtless Amehirunamēf, leads up a line of prisoners, consisting of a Libyan and three Asiatics.

Inscriptions

469. The inscriptions have all disappeared except two short lines:

Behind Ramses

Thy might and thy victory are in all lands and all countries; thy terror is in their hearts.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

470. Ramses II, enthroned in state, with his tame lion by his side, gives audience to his vizier (from the costume), followed by six officers; and to his son, Amehirunamēf, leading Asiatic prisoners.

Inscription before Vizier

471. Said the princes, who are in the presence of his majesty: "Praise to thee, O good and amiable ruler, son of Amon, who came forth from his limbs. When thou camest forth upon earth, thou wast like Re on high . . . .<sup>c</sup> Black land (Egypt) and Red land (desert) are under thy sandals; Palestine and Kush are in thy grasp. Egypt rejoices, O 'good' ruler, because thou hast extended their borders, forever."

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 66, 67 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 69, 70 = Bonomi-Arundale, Antiquities, Pl. 38, Fig. 156 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 1.

<sup>b</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 62 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 65 = Bonomi-Arundale, Antiquities, Pl. 38, Fig. 156 = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 12, 14, 2.

<sup>c</sup>Conventional praise.

Over King's-Son

The fan-bearer on the right of the king, prince, real king's-scribe, his beloved, Amenhirunaméf.

II. SOUTHERN WAR

472. This series evidently depicts particular events in Ramses II's Nubian war. When this war took place it is difficult to say with certainty,<sup>a</sup> but it was under the administration of Amenemopet as viceroy of Kush, and must, therefore, have fallen in the first half of Ramses' reign.<sup>b</sup> The scene of the war is equally uncertain. The three lists<sup>c</sup> of conquered Nubian countries consist of unfamiliar names, from which little can be obtained as to the locality of the war. Brugsch thinks that the Abu Simbel list does not extend above Napata.<sup>d</sup>

Scene<sup>e</sup>

473. Ramses, standing in his chariot with drawn bow, charges the Negroes, who flee in a horde before him into a palm grove, in which two Negroes lead away a wounded

<sup>a</sup>There is a current statement that Ramses II was viceroy of Ethiopia before Seti I's death, and that the battle depicted in our reliefs took place then. Not only is there no evidence that Ramses II was ever viceroy of Kush, but our reliefs further show that Amenemopet was viceroy at this time.

<sup>b</sup>The Assuan stela (§§ 478, 479), which is dated in the year 2, may possibly have been erected on this campaign.

<sup>c</sup>Mariette, Abydos, II, Pl. 2, a, b, Pl. 3; and a list of six names at Abu Simbel (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 194), which are those of Negro peoples, in spite of the beards (see Brugsch, Geschichte, 529, and 346 f. Nos. 25, 28, and 77). Southern countries are also mentioned on the Karnak wall (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 148, d).

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch, Geschichte, 529, note.

<sup>e</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 71, 72 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 74, 75 = Bonomi-Arundale, Gallery, Fig. 155; and Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 176, a, b.

comrade to his family. Behind him charge two princes in their chariots.<sup>a</sup>

Inscriptions

474. An inscription over the enemy has disappeared, except the words: "——— those who transgress his boundaries." Two others have survived:<sup>b</sup>

Over First Prince

Said the fan-bearer on the right of the king, the hereditary prince, the king's-son, of his body, his beloved, Amenhirunamef: ". . . . . in the South; I rejoice, my heart is joyful, (for) my father smites his enemies; he puts forth the might of his strength against the Nine Bows."

Over Second Prince

The king's-son, of his body, his beloved, the divine water that came forth from the Mighty Bull, Khamwese.

Scene<sup>c</sup>

475. On the right sits Ramses enthroned; approaching from the left are two long lines of Negroes, bringing furniture of ebony and ivory, panther hides, gold in large rings, bows, myrrh, shields, elephants' tusks, billets of ebony, ostrich feathers, ostrich eggs, live animals, including monkeys, panthers, a giraffe, ibexes, a dog, oxen with carved horns, an ostrich. At the end are also two Negro women, one carrying her children in a basket. Led by two Egyptians at the head of the lower line are two bound Negroes. The lower line is introduced by the vizier, and two officials, followed by the viceroy of Kush, bearing a table hung with skins and decorated with flowers. At the head of the upper row (which represents the scene a moment after that of the lower row) is the king's-son, Amenhirunamef, presenting the gifts which together with the splendid table have been placed on the ground. Behind the table which he has just set down appears the viceroy of Kush, receiving decorations for good service.

<sup>a</sup>A scene inside the temple shows Ramses II smiting a Negro, with the words: "Good God, repulsing the Nine Bows, smiting the chiefs of Kush, the wretched." (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 176, d.)

<sup>b</sup>In Bonomi-Arundale are the fragments of a text over the palm grove in which one may discern: "——— ruler like Baal," probably belonging to words of the Negroes.

<sup>c</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 68-70 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 71-73 = Bonomi-Arundale, Fig. 155; and Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 176, e, f = Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 15.

Inscriptions

476. Behind Ramses are four columns containing an elaborate titulary, in which is the phrase: "making boundaries as he pleases in Retenu." The other texts are brief and fragmentary.

Over Viceroy of Kush, Lower Row

477. King's-son of Kush, Amenemopet, son of Peser, triumphant.

Over King's-Son, Top Row

The fan-bearer on the right hand of the king, real king's-scribe, his beloved, hereditary prince, first king's-son, of his body, Amenhirunamef, triumphant, revered (sic!).

Over Viceroy of Kush, Top Row

King's-son of Kush, Amenemopet, son of Peser, triumphant.

III. ASSUAN STELA<sup>a</sup>

478. This monument contains only a fulsome eulogy of Ramses II, in which reference is made to all his wars. Its position at the Nubian frontier would indicate that it was erected on some Nubian expedition of Ramses II, and its date, "year 2," may, therefore, be that of the Nubian war, recorded at Bet el-Walli.

<sup>a</sup>Cut on the rocks at Assuan; published by Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 175, g = Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 252, 253, = de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, 6.

479. 1. Year 2, eleventh month, twenty-sixth<sup>a</sup> day, under the majesty of <sup>2</sup>Ramses II,<sup>b</sup> beloved of Amon-Re, king of Gods, and Khnum, lord of the cataract region.

<sup>3</sup>Live the Good God, Montu of millions, mighty like the son of Nut, fighting for [—], strong-hearted lion. He has overthrown <sup>4</sup>myriads in the space of a moment; great wall of his army in the day of battle, whose fear has penetrated all lands. <sup>5</sup>Egypt rejoices when the ruler is among them (i. e., the lands); he has extended its boundaries forever, plundering the Asiatics (Sṯ tyw) and capturing their cities. <sup>6</sup>He has crushed the foreigners of the north, the Temeh<sup>c</sup> have fallen for fear of him, the Asiatics are anxious for breath from him, <sup>7</sup>who sends Egypt on campaigns; their hearts are filled with his designs, as they sit in the shadow of his sword, and <sup>8</sup>they fear not any country. He plunders the warriors (<sup>c</sup> h ṣ w) of the sea, the great lake of the north, while they lie sleeping. <sup>9</sup>A vigilant king, accurate in design; there fails not anything that he has said. The foreigners come to him carrying their children, to ask <sup>10</sup>the breath of life; his battle-cry is mighty 'in' the land of Nubia (T ṣ -p d t), his strength repels the Nine Bows; Babylon (S ṣ -[n-]g ṣ -r ṣ), Kheta and A— (ṣ —)<sup>d</sup> come to him, bowing down, because of his fame.

IV. LUXOR TEMPLE

480. Besides the reliefs and inscriptions relating to the battle of Kadesh (§§ 305–51), the Luxor temple contains a number of references to Ramses II's wars, conquests, and relations with foreign countries. On a granite statue,<sup>e</sup> under a list of northern and southern countries, is the usual statement of the extent of Pharaoh's power, including the

<sup>a</sup>Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, has 27.

<sup>b</sup>Full titulary.

<sup>c</sup>Text has Ty-m-h-ww! It may be that Tehenu is meant.

<sup>d</sup>Probably Arvad or Isy-Cyprus.

<sup>e</sup>Recueil, 16, 50, 51.

"Great Circle (šn wr), the sea, the southern countries of the land of the Negro as far as the marsh lands, as far as the limits of the darkness, even to the four pillars of heaven."

481. More important is a scene among the reliefs which portrays the presentation of annual dues<sup>a</sup> by the king's sons and the chief officials of the kingdom. These dues consist of both "tribute" (yn-w) and taxes or impost (bk·w), besides "dues" (hsb·t); and they come from Nubia, Asia, and Egypt. At the head of the procession are seventeen sons of Ramses, of whom the first four are:

482. 1. Hereditary prince, king's-son, crown prince, of his body, commander in chief of the army, Amonhirkhepeshef.

2. King's-son, of his body, commander of the army<sup>b</sup> of the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses.

3. Captain of archers, master of horse, Perehirunamēf.<sup>c</sup>

4. Khamwese.

483. These are all well known elsewhere, especially Khamwese, as they took part in the king's wars (§ 362). The thirteenth in the row is Merneptah, who, on the death of his twelve elder brothers and his father, became king.

Behind the princes is a line of men bearing "des offrandes, conduisant des bœufs à cornes singulières comme à Abydos." Above them all is an inscription, designating them as:

484. The hereditary prince [of the palace], king's-son, crown prince; [the king's-sons], the grandees of the palace [—<sup>d</sup> their lord, their father, Ramses II, given life. The governors of the city and

<sup>a</sup>Relief and accompanying inscriptions in the first court of the Luxor temple, south side; Recueil, XIV, 31, L, but without the reliefs.

<sup>b</sup>Personal troops of the king.

<sup>c</sup>A list of seventeen daughters is on the west wall of this court (Recueil, XIV, 32). They are preceded by the first three sons above, but No. 3 has the title, "First charioteer of his majesty." The queen Nefretiri heads the line.

<sup>d</sup>Some verb like "come to" has here been miscopied, as is evident from the parallelism with the second group, also followed by the name of Ramses after a verb of coming.

viziers,<sup>a</sup> companions, treasurers of the palace, overseers of the silver- and gold-house, commanders of the army, commanders of 'infantry' (mnjy't), captains of archers, 'master builders', governors of southern and northern countries, chief treasurers, chief mayors, stewards, leaders of leaders, and town commandants, overseers of horns,<sup>b</sup> overseers of hoofs,<sup>b</sup> overseers of feathers,<sup>b</sup> '—' of Egypt, the marshal of the two thrones of Upper and Lower Egypt, the counts, and superior prophets, coming with bowed head, bearing their tribute of the impost of Nubia (T'p-d't), every product of Asiatic countries, the dues (hsb't) of Egypt, to behold the beauty of their lord, King Ramses II.

V. ABYDOS TEMPLE<sup>c</sup>

485. Ramses II's mortuary temple at Abydos, as we have already noted, contains reliefs from the Kadesh series (§ 328), as well as a copy of the Kadesh poem (§§ 305-15). Besides these, the mortuary reliefs also contain references to his wars.<sup>d</sup> These reliefs show a long procession of priests and officers, bringing an immense and varied array of offerings for Ramses II's mortuary temple, in which these reliefs appear. Like others of their class, these scenes are of purely religious and mortuary significance, except the last.<sup>e</sup> This represents a section of the procession headed by a superb bull, and an ibex; these animals, with their attendants and some lesser offerings, face a long procession in a double line of Egyptian troops who are summoned by a

<sup>a</sup>"Governors" is clearly plural, but "vizier" is not so written; the relief would probably determine whether we have here the two viziers.

<sup>b</sup>Live-stock and poultry.

<sup>c</sup>A series of mortuary reliefs on the walls of the first court; published by Mariette, Abydos, II, 6-10.

<sup>d</sup>Mariette indicates other historical materials in this temple; he says: "La face antérieure du pylône semble présenter un résumé des campagnes de Ramsès. Le roi a la hache, la masse d'armes, et l'enseigne de victoire. Des officiers lui amènent des prisonniers. Aucun personnage n'est visible en entier. On croit cependant reconnaître des Lybiens, des nègres et des Asiatiques."

<sup>e</sup>Mariette, Abydos, II, Pl. 10; long inscription also Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1222, 1223.

trumpeter. Four men at the head of the troops are followed by a royal span drawing an empty chariot, accompanied by an orderly with sandals strung on his arm as usual. Behind the troops who follow the chariot are Negroes, Asiatics, Puntites, and perhaps Libyans. Over the whole is an inscription in one long line, the beginning of which is very fragmentary; scattered among the figures were also some inscriptions, most of which have now disappeared:

Over Chariot Horses

486. Great span of his majesty, L. P. H., (named): "Beloved-
_____."

Over Asiatics

Chiefs of the countries _____.

Long Inscription

.....<sup>a</sup> Utterance of the Son of Re, Ramses-Meriamon: "O ye Kings of Upper and Lower Egypt, who shall come after, who shall assume the double crown upon the throne of Horus, who shall desire Abydos, region of eternity; may your ka's exist for you without ceasing, may your time be happy like my time, may the full Nile come for you at his season, may valor be yours without flinching, like the victories of my sword in every country, may ye take captive those that rebel against Egypt, may ye put those whom ye capture in them, into my august temple. Lo, as for a king, he is the divine seed,<sup>b</sup> while he is a dweller in heaven, as when he was on earth; he assumes the forms, which he desires, like the Moon-god. Establish ye the offerings of this my temple of Osiris, whose august image rests therein, the divine ennead which follows him, being united at his side; (then) shall favors be craved from them, making sound your limbs. An excellent reward shall be his who doeth it, according as ye protect my house for its gods, and hearken to the Good God, Ramses II, given life."

<sup>a</sup>The mutilated beginning contained an address to Ramses II.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "divine water."

VI. TANIS STELÆ

487. The Tanis temple contained at least four large granite stelæ commemorating Ramses II's prowess in war. Of two<sup>a</sup> of these only insignificant fragments have survived; and the third<sup>b</sup> contains a conventional encomium much mutilated. At the end was the narrative of some specific event, of which the following is discernible:

He (Ramses II) said to the king's-messenger ——— fortresses equipped with everything for ———.

488. The fourth stela<sup>c</sup> is almost entirely the conventional praise of the king's valor; but the last three lines contained a reference to rebellious Sherden and ships of war, which would indicate a naval battle in connection with the Libyan war, with whom the Sherden were, of course, allied.

Ramses' Valor

489. <sup>1</sup>Live the Horus, Mighty Bull . . . . . Ramses (II), given life, <sup>2</sup>forever, victorious king, valiant in the array, mighty, fighting myriads, overthrowing on his right, slaying on his left, like Set in his hour of rage, <sup>3</sup>mighty Bull, shaking every opposing country with the victories of his sword; protector of Egypt, repulsing the Nine Bows. Every land fears before him; he is like <sup>4</sup>a lion when he has tasted combat; no land can stand before him, King Ramses II; charging into the array, <sup>5</sup>he turns not back, he is the first of the front rank of his army; valiant upon the steed, when he takes his bow, shooting on his right, and he who stands in the rear<sup>d</sup> escapes him not; mighty in strength, <sup>6</sup>with victorious arm, bearing the mace and the shield; crushing the chiefs beneath his feet; no one is able to sustain the combat, every country flees before him, the terror of him is like fire behind them.<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Petrie, Tanis, II, Pl. II, 76, 77.

<sup>b</sup>Ibid., 78, bis.

<sup>c</sup>Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 68-70 = Petrie, Tanis, II, Pl. II, 78. Both publications show many errors, for which each furnishes control of the other; Rougé has even omitted half a line (l. 8).

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "behind the land."

<sup>e</sup>Tanis, II, has: "in their heart."

Triumphs in Asia and Nubia

490. <sup>7</sup>King Ramses II, given life; capturing the lands of the Asiatics (St' tyw) with his sword, carrying off their chiefs as living captives; <sup>8</sup>great ruler, — — — — by the might of his youthful strength; <sup>a</sup>brave-hearted<sup>7</sup> before the mighty, valiant like Montu, defender of the land, <sup>9</sup>husband of Egypt, rescuing her from every country. His fame is mighty in — — — — the land of the Negro, with valor, slaying the Troglodytes of wretched Kush <sup>10</sup>in the victories of his mighty sword. He causes Egypt to be joyful, and sets gladness of heart in Tomeri (Egypt), King [Ramses II] ————; <sup>11</sup>plundering the chiefs of the Asiatics in their land. He has wasted the inheritance of —, making them to be ————, <sup>12</sup>slain under his feet, whose great sword is mighty among them.

Triumphs in the West

491. He has captured the countries of the West, causing them to be as that which [is] not ———— <sup>13</sup>[Sute]kh on his right, of the battle, King Ramses II. [He] has ferried over<sup>b</sup> ———— [come] <sup>14</sup>to him, bearing their tribute; [his] fear [penetrates<sup>7</sup>] their heart. The rebellious-hearted Sherden<sup>c</sup> (Š<sup>3</sup> -r<sup>3</sup> -d-ny) ———— <sup>15</sup>them; mighty — — — — ships of war in the midst of the [sea] <sup>16</sup>——— before them.

BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS

492. Although the name of Ramses II is more widely found upon the monuments of Egypt than that of any other king, no comprehensive building record of his, such as those of the Eighteenth Dynasty, has survived to us. The great inscription of Abydos concerns almost solely Seti I's temple there, which is chiefly the work of Seti himself. The account of Ramses I's buildings preserved in his inscriptions is therefore but a slight indication of the vast extent of his building achievements; and this fact must be clearly borne in mind, in using the following inscriptions.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>The remainder of l. 8 from this point on was omitted by Rougé, who passes to the second half of l. 9 which he represents as the beginning of l. 9 ("the land of the Negro, etc.").

<sup>b</sup>This is the word used for crossing a river; it probably refers to a crossing of one of the branches of the Nile in the western Delta by Ramses or his western foes (see IV, p. 49, n. b).

<sup>c</sup>The Kadesh poem refers to the capture of Sherden before that campaign (§ 307); and Papyrus Anastasi II mentions "the Sherden whom thou hast taken in thy might" (V, 2), who have been sent as Egyptian mercenaries against the "tribes of the desert." The reference to the "Sherden of the sea, who are of the captivity of his majesty," may belong to the reign of Merneptah (Anastasi II, verso of Pl. 8, l. 1).

493. They comprise:

- I. Great Temple of Abu Simbel (§§ 495-99).
- II. Small Temple of Abu Simbel (§§ 500, 501).
- III. Temple of Serreh (§ 502).
- IV. Temple of Derr (§ 503).
- V. Temple of Sebû<sup>c</sup> a (§ 504).
- VI. Temple of el Kab (§ 505).
- VII. Temple of Luxor (§§ 506-8).
- VIII. Temple of Karnak (§§ 509-13).
- IX. The Ramesseum (§§ 514, 515).
- X. Temple of Kurna (§§ 516-22).
- XI. Seti I's Temple at Abydos and Great Abydos Inscription (§§ 262-77).
- XII. Ramses II's Temple at Abydos (§§ 524-29).
- XIII. Memphis Temples (§§ 530-37) and further:
  1. Great Abydos Inscription (§ 260, l. 22).
  2. Blessing of Ptah (§§ 412-413, ll. 32, 35).
- XIV. City of Tanis (Blessing of Ptah, § 406, ll. 16-18).<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>For example, in Nubia Ramses II built at least six new temples: (1) Bet el-Walli; (2) Gerf Husen; (3) Es-Sebû<sup>c</sup> a; (4) Derr; (5) Abu Simbel (large temple); (6) Abu Simbel (small temple). Of these I was able to find the dedication inscriptions of the last four only.

<sup>b</sup>Poetical description of the city by an Egyptian scribe: Papyrus Anastasi II, Pl. I, l. 1-Pl. II, l. 5 = ibid., IV, Pl. V, Pl. VI, ll. 1-10. It is in this passage that the message of the chief of Kheta (§§ 425, 426) to the chief of Kode is found (cf. Chabas, Mélanges égyptologiques, 2<sup>e</sup> sér., 151. Maspero, Du genre épistolaire, 102; Erman, Aegypten, 242). A longer description of the city in a similar vein is found in Papyrus Anastasi III, Pl. I, l. 11-Pl. III, l. 9 (cf. Chabas, op. cit., 132-34; Maspero, op. cit., 103-6; Brugsch, Geschichte, 545-48).

494. Besides the above, there are occasional unimportant doorway inscriptions, giving the building record in the conventional form as at Bet el-Walli, Kalabsheh<sup>a</sup> or a similar statue dedication as at Sebû<sup>c</sup>a. There must also be a number of architrave dedication inscriptions, like those of the Ramesseum, which are still unpublished.

I. GREAT TEMPLE OF ABU SIMBEL<sup>b</sup>

495. This, the most remarkable of the grotto temples of Egypt, was already far advanced in its construction, in the reign of Seti I. It is impossible to find any other explanation of the fact that an inscription of Ramses II's first year<sup>c</sup> is found in the doorway at the rear of the first hall, which connects it with the second hall.

496. The building inscription accompanies a relief<sup>d</sup> showing Ramses II enthroned, with an official named Ramses-eshahab (R<sup>c</sup>-ms-sw-<sup>c</sup>š<sup>2</sup>-hb) bowing before him. The inscription shows that Ramses II is instructing him to build a temple in honor of Horus of He,<sup>e</sup> which may be some other temple than that of Abu Simbel. There is no mention of any previous work by Seti I; and the interesting references to the use of foreign prisoners in the work might imply that it was done after the wars of Ramses had begun.

<sup>a</sup>Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 59.

<sup>b</sup>See Champollion, Monuments, 3-37; Notices descriptives, 43-77; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 114; Gau, Antiquités de la Nubie, 57-61; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 185-193; Dümichen, Der ägyptische Felsentempel von Abu Simbel, 1869.

<sup>c</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 189, a.

<sup>d</sup>This relief has been published (with inscription) only in Champollion, Monuments, 9, where the text is plainly very badly copied. Wiedemann (Aegyptische Geschichte, 452, 453) would refer this inscription to some other as yet undiscovered building.

<sup>e</sup>This may be the temple of Ramses II at Serreh (called Aksche, Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 191, m, n), ten miles north of Wadi Halfa (Sayce, Recueil, XVII, 163). It occurs also in the Middle Kingdom; see I, 602.

Before the said officer are the words:

King's-butler of his majesty, L. P. H., Ramses-eshahab, triumphant; he says: "As for all that comes out of thy mouth, it is like the words of Harakhte."

497. A longer inscription above and behind him is introduced by the full fivefold titulary of Ramses II, accompanied by poetic epithets, such as "he who spreads out his wings over his army," and closing appropriately with "maker of monuments in the house of Horus, his august father." The inscription then proceeds:

498. Behold, as for his majesty, L. P. H., he is vigilant in seeking every profitable occasion, by doing excellent things for his father, Horus, <sup>12</sup>lord of He (H<sup>2</sup>), <sup>a</sup>making for him his house of myriads of years, by excavating in this mountain of He, [which no] one before [did], except the son of <sup>13</sup>Amon, lord of —. His might is in all lands; bringing for him multitudes of workmen from the captivity of his sword in every country. He has filled the houses (pr·w) of the gods <sup>14</sup>with the children of <sup>b</sup>Retenu (Rtnw). <sup>1</sup>Afterward he <sup>3</sup>gave orders <sup>c</sup>to the king's-butler, Ramses-eshahab, to equip the land of Kush anew in the great name of his majesty, L. P. H. He said: "Praise to thee! O valiant king of Egypt, sun of the Nine Bows. There is no rebel in thy time, every land is pacified. Thy father, Amon, has decreed for thee that every land be beneath thy feet; he gives to thee south as well as north, west and east, and the isles in the midst of the sea.

499. A dedication <sup>d</sup>to Harakhte is as follows:

Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Harakhte, <sup>e</sup>great god, lord of Nubia (T<sup>2</sup>-pd·t).

II. SMALL TEMPLE OF ABU SIMBEL

500. The smaller grotto temple on the north of the large temple was made by Ramses II for his queen, Nefretiri, as the divinity to whom it was dedicated:

<sup>a</sup>Name of the region in which Abu Simbel is located (see I, 602).

<sup>b</sup>"The chiefs of," is probably omitted.

<sup>c</sup>Read rdy m hr n.

<sup>d</sup>Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 29; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 187, a, b.

<sup>e</sup>Variant: "Amon-Re, king of gods."

<sup>a</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for the Great King's-Wife, Nefretiri, beloved of Mut —, a house hewn in the pure mountain of Nubia (T<sup>2</sup>-pd·t), of fine, white and enduring sandstone, as an eternal work.

Its origin is sometimes also ascribed to the queen herself.

<sup>b</sup>The Great King's-Wife, Nefretiri, beloved of Mut; she made a house in the pure mountain.

501. Other references to the construction of the monument are these:

<sup>c</sup>Ramses-Meriamon, beloved of Amon, like Re, forever, made a house of very great monuments, for the Great King's-Wife, Nefretiri, fair of face — —.

His majesty commanded to make a house in Nubia (T<sup>2</sup>-pd·t), hewn in the mountain. Never was done the like before.

III. TEMPLE OF SERREH<sup>d</sup>

502. "Southward of the village of Serreh, . . . on the western bank of the Nile, and about ten miles north of Halfa, are the foundations of a temple built by Ramses II." The architrave dedications have perished, but one of the doors still bears the words (twice):

Great door of Usermare-Setepnere; he made (it) as his monument for his living image in the land of Nubia (T<sup>2</sup>-pd·t); its beautiful name, which his majesty made, is: "Usermare-is-Splendid-in-Strength."

Ramses II was thus himself the god of this temple, as Amenhotep III was at the Nubian temple of Soleb.

IV. TEMPLE OF DERR

503. This temple was dedicated to Re-Harakhte by Ramses II. On its later history, see IV, §§ 474-83.

<sup>a</sup>Dedication from the hypostyle (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 192, d); variations of it in abbreviated form appear on the front, between the statues.

<sup>b</sup>Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 58; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 192, c.

<sup>c</sup>On façade; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 192, b.

<sup>d</sup>Sayce, Recueil, XVII, 163 f.

<sup>a</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Harakhte; making for him the "House<sup>b</sup> of Usermare-Meriamon in the House of Re."

Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes (Ns'wt-t'wy); making for him a temple in the House of Re.

V. TEMPLE OF SEBÛ<sup>c</sup> A

504. A so-called hemispeos, by the village of Sebû<sup>c</sup> a, built by Ramses II, who called it "House of Amon." He was himself one of the deities worshiped in it.

The dedications are as follows:

<sup>c</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as a monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods.

A pillar in the forecourt bears the following:<sup>d</sup>

Ramses-Meriamon in the House of Amon; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him a great and august pillar, adorned with every splendid costly stone; that he might be given life, stability, and satisfaction, like Re, every day.

VI. TEMPLE OF EL KAB

505. A small temple to Nekhbet, built within the city wall by Ramses II, bears the following dedication:

<sup>e</sup>[<sup>f</sup>Ramses II<sup>g</sup>; he made (it) as his monument for his mother, Nekhbet], making for her a great pylon, — [—] of fine white sandstone, its length is 15 cubits; its door is of cedar, the [mounting<sup>h</sup>] thereof of copper; [with<sup>i</sup>] the great name of [my majesty<sup>j</sup>] —————.

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 94 (first 94, there are two!); Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 183, a.

<sup>b</sup>Also called "Temple of Ramses in the House of Re;" Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 91.

<sup>c</sup>Twice in the cella; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 180.

<sup>d</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 182, b.

<sup>e</sup>Along bottom of the left pylon of sandstone; Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, IV, 37.

VII. TEMPLE OF LUXOR<sup>a</sup>

506. Ramses II built a peristyle court in front of the Eighteenth Dynasty Luxor temple, with a façade of two large pylon-towers. To do this, he destroyed a beautiful granite chapel of Thutmose III, which had stood in front of the Eighteenth Dynasty temple. The architect was the High Priest of Amon, Beknekhonsu, who has left a brief record of the building on his statue (§§ 561-68). The king's only building record, as far as published, is contained in the following dedication inscriptions:

507. <sup>b</sup>Mighty Bull, exalter of Thebes, Favorite of the Two Goddesses, establishing monuments in Luxor for his father, Amon, who placed him upon his throne; Golden Horus, seeking excellent things for him who fashioned him; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnere. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, making for him the "Temple (ht-ntr)-of-Ramses-Meriamon<sup>c</sup>-in-the-House (pr)-of-Amon," of fine white sandstone, which the Son of Re, Ramses-Meriamon, given life, like Re, forever, made for him.

508. The other two dedications are substantially the same as far as the words: "house of Amon," one<sup>d</sup> then proceeds:

In front of Luxor, erecting for him a pylon (bḥn·t) anew; its flag-staves approach heaven; which the Son of Re, etc. (as above).

The other continues:<sup>e</sup>

Its beauty is unto the height of heaven, a place of the appearance for the lord of the gods, at his feast of (Luxor).

<sup>a</sup>On the history and construction of this temple, see the paper by Borchardt (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1896, 122-38); and Daressy, Notice explicative des ruines du temple de Louxor (Le Caire, 1893).

<sup>b</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 149, a.

<sup>c</sup>The words "Possessed of Eternity" are added to Ramses' name in the name of this temple in at least one other occurrence of it (northwest corner, letter from Borchardt).

<sup>d</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 338, and Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1241.

<sup>e</sup>Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1242; verified from a photograph.

VIII. TEMPLE OF KARNAK

509. Ramses II brought to completion at Karnak the works begun by his two predecessors. He erected all of the columns in the southern half of the great hypostyle hall, except the two short rows immediately south of the nave, Seti I having completed the northern half, the nave with both rows of flower-columns and the first row of bud-columns of the southern half. Ramses II further built a girdle wall entirely around the Eighteenth Dynasty temple, to widen it to the increased width of the new hall in front. The Nineteenth Dynasty Karnak temple thus became the largest temple ever erected in the history of building, whether ancient or modern.

510. Although the conception, and for the most part the erection, of the great hall belong to Seti I and his father, the dedication inscriptions were largely added by Ramses II in his own name.

<sup>a</sup>Ramses II, mighty king, making monuments in the house of his father, Amon, building his house in eternal work, established forever. Lo, the Good God inclined his heart to make monuments, sleeping or waking, he ceased not seeking to do excellent things. It was his majesty who gave the regulations, and led the work on his monuments. All his plans come to pass immediately, like those of his father, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, a likeness indeed of that which the excellent maker, the maker of excellent things, made, which his majesty made ——— of excellent and eternal work. Every country is beneath thy feet, O king, ruler of the Nine Bows, Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses II. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes (Ns'wt t'wy), making for him the "Temple-of-the-Spirit- (Y' h)-of-Ramses-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon-over-against-Karnak (Yp' t-ys'wt)," of fine white sandstone; a resting-place for the lord of gods, a beautiful refuge for the divine ennead; surrounded by — columns; the walls thereof are like the two mountains of Aphroditopolis, established, made very [—]; its beauty (reaches) to the height of heaven.

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 66-68.

Amon Speaks to the Gods

511. <sup>a</sup>“Behold ye, this beautiful, pure and enduring monument, which my son, of my body, my beloved, King Ramses II, hath made for me; whom I brought up from the womb, to make excellent things for my house; whom I have begotten in the fashion of my (own) limbs, to celebrate the ‘Going Forth’ of my ka. Ye shall endow him with satisfying life, ye shall form his protecting suite, and be his associate when he is with you. He shall be a spirit as ye are spirits; his name shall flourish as your names flourish to the end of the two periods (of sixty years) and forever; according to that which he has built for Karnak for the first time, of fine white sandstone. He hath given joy to my dwelling more than (his) predecessors have done. . . . .”

512. Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, making for him the “Temple-of-the-Spirit-of-Ramses-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon,” of fine white sandstone. Its beauty (reaches) to the height of heaven, over against Karnak; its august columns are of electrum, made like every place that is in heaven. (It is) mistress of silver, queen of gold, it contains every splendid costly stone. “I have made it for thee with a loving heart, as a profitable son does for his father, by enlarging the monuments of him that begat him, and establishing the house of him that caused him to take the whole land.”

<sup>b</sup>Live the Good God, who makes monuments for his father, Amon-Re.

513. The dedications on the architraves<sup>c</sup> of the nave, above the windows, are also of Ramses II, and only repeat the above dedications. The architect who erected the gigantic columns of the hypostyle was Hatey, who reverts to his achievement among his titles<sup>d</sup> thus:

<sup>a</sup>Architrave of first row of columns on the right; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 83, 84.

<sup>b</sup>Columns of the first row on the left, Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 79.

<sup>c</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 85.

<sup>d</sup>Statue in Lady Meux's collection; see Some Account of the Collection of Egyptian Antiquities in the Possession of Lady Meux, by E. A. Wallis Budge, 143. I am indebted to Mr. Alan Gardiner for the reference.

Great chief of works on all the monuments of his majesty, erecting great columns in the House of Amon.

IX. THE RAMESSEUM

514. The beautiful mortuary temple of Ramses II on the west side at Thebes, known as the Ramesseum, was combined with a palace<sup>a</sup> which has since perished. The temple itself, while it has preserved some of the most important historical records of Ramses II's reign contains no building inscription except the usual dedication<sup>b</sup> on the architraves:

515. Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him a great and august broad-hall (wsḥ't) of fine white sandstone, its nave<sup>c</sup> of great flower-columns, surrounded by bud-columns: a place of rest for the lord of gods at his beautiful "Feast of the Valley;" that he might, through him, be given life ———<sup>d</sup> shaping his sacred barque like the horizon-god, founding daily offerings, doing the things which please his father, causing that his house should be for him like Thebes, supplied with every good thing, granaries reaching heaven, an august treasury containing silver, gold, royal linen, every real costly stone, which King Ramses II brought for him.

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 159, shows an "Appearance of the king, like Re, in his palace (ḥ'c) which is in the temple (ḥ't ntr)." This fact was already noticed by Erman, Aegypten, 107, 108.

<sup>b</sup>Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 53; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 53, No. 2; Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 134 (see also 133). The name of the Ramesseum was: "The-House (ḥ't)-of-Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II),-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon" (Wiedemann, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 34); also mentioned on a stela at Vienna (Recueil, IX, 50, 51). An architect of the Ramesseum is mentioned on his fragmentary statue at Cairo (Daressy, Recueil, 22, 143); its treasurer (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 249); and its deputy (ibid., 250).

<sup>c</sup>The text has ḥft ḥrs, evidently meaning "its center," as the columns of the Ramesseum hypostyle are so arranged, and no other colonnades are thus placed in this temple. It is not an error, for it is repeated on another architrave (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 134, with a slight mistake).

<sup>d</sup>The connection has been omitted by Sharpe, but it is evidently the conclusion of a second dedication.

X. TEMPLE OF KURNA

516. This mortuary temple of Seti I was left unfinished by him, and his son, Ramses II, states the fact in his inscriptions, narrating also that he completed it for his father; in doing which he made his own dedication inscriptions more prominent than those of his father.

517. <sup>a</sup>He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of heaven, ruler of Thebes, restoring the house of his father, King Seti I, triumphant. Behold, he went to his retreat, he attained heaven, he joined Re in heaven; while this his house was in course of construction. Its doors were in ruin at their stations, and all its walls of stone and brick; no work therein was finished, neither inscriptions nor sculpture. Then his son, the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses II, commanded to build the works in his house of millions of years, over against Karnak, and [to fashion] his<sup>b</sup> image resting in his house, gilded with electrum, when the god sails in [person] at his feast of the valley to rest in<sup>c</sup> his house, as the first of the kings.

518. <sup>d</sup>Utterance of the gods and goddesses who are in the Northland, to their son, King Ramses II, given life: "We have come to thee, our arms bearing offerings, and supplied with provision and food. We have gathered to thee every good thing of all that grows upon earth,<sup>e</sup> in order to make festive the house of thy father. As thou art his beloved son, so art thou like Horus, the protector of his father, in taking the inheritance of the Two Lands. How goodly is the [son] who restores what is ruined! Thou hast built the house of thy father, completed in its work, thou hast fashioned his image for ———— of gold ———— thou hast — divine offerings ———— I have — that

<sup>a</sup>Devéria, Bibliothèque égyptologique, IV, 292, 293; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 694; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 51, 3; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 152, a; beginning also Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 91.

<sup>b</sup>From here on, this text is found also in Devéria, Bibliothèque égyptologique, IV, 293, 294.

<sup>c</sup>See Piehl (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1887, 38), whose reading is confirmed by the duplicate.

<sup>d</sup>See also Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 693.

<sup>e</sup>The following, to the word "gold," is also in Devéria, Bibliothèque égyptologique, IV, 294, 295.

which thou hast done [again for<sup>1</sup>] the house of their father. Thou hast endowed it with satisfying life; as a benevolent son is, so art thou.

519. <sup>a</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, presider over Karnak; restoring the house of his father, King Seti I. ——— they erected all its walls of — stone; no work therein was finished,<sup>b</sup> neither inscriptions nor sculpture . . . . .<sup>c</sup>

520. <sup>d</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, restoring for him the house of his father, King Seti I. Lo, (he is) in heaven ——— its doors are of real cedar, surrounded with walls of brick established forever, which the Son of Re, Ramses-Meriamon, made for him.<sup>e</sup>

521. Ramses II recognized the temple, however, as sacred also to his grandfather, as he indicates in these dedications:

<sup>f</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father's father, the Good God, Ramses I, triumphant.

<sup>f</sup>Renewal of the monument which King Ramses II made for his father's father, the Good God, Ramses I, in the monument of his father, the Lord of the Two Lands, Seti I.

<sup>g</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, the Good God, Menpehtire (Ramses I), making for him a house of millions of years on the west of Thebes, of good white sandstone, wherein Amon rests, like Re, in the horizon of heaven.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Piehl, Inscriptions, I, 145 A f.

<sup>b</sup>Restored from the duplicate passage in § 517.

<sup>c</sup>From here on, as in duplicate (§ 517).

<sup>d</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 296; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 152, b; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 51, 1.

<sup>e</sup>Another fragmentary dedication, Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 100; and a fragmentary door-dedication, Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 51, 2.

<sup>f</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 307 and 704; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 52, 5; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 152, g; Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 94, 95.

<sup>g</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 705; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 152, f, also e with slight variant.

<sup>h</sup>See further, Wilkinson, Materia hieroglyphica, Pl. I.

522. While acknowledging thus the original dedication of the temple to the mortuary service of his father and grandfather, Ramses added also a series of dedications in his own name alone. These are as follows:

<sup>a</sup>Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument to his father, for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, making for him a house of millions of years on the west of Thebes, (of) fine white sandstone, the doors thereof of real cedar, which [the Son of Re], Ramses-Meriamon, given life, like Re, made for him.

. . . . .<sup>b</sup> making for him a broad-hall of appearance in front of his Great House, a place of appearance for the lord of gods at the "Feast of the Valley" —————.

XI. SETI I'S TEMPLE AT ABYDOS

523. See Great Abydos Inscription (§§ 262–77).

XII. RAMSES II'S TEMPLE AT ABYDOS<sup>c</sup>

524. This inscription contains a brief record of the building and endowment of Ramses II's mortuary temple at Abydos.

525. Lo, his majesty, L. P. H., was "Son-Whom-He-Loves," the champion of his father, Wennofer, by making for him a beautiful, august temple, established for eternity, of fine limestone of Ayan; a great double pylon of excellent work; portals of granite, the doors thereto of copper, wrought with figures in real electrum; a great seat of alabaster, mounted in granite, his excellent seat of the beginning; a mesken-chamber for his divine ennead, his august father who rests therein, and Re when he has reached heaven. His protecting image is beside him that fashioned him, like Horus, upon the throne of his father.

526. (He) established for him permanent daily offerings, at the beginnings of the seasons, all feasts at their times, offered to his ka.

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 696.

<sup>b</sup>Omitting introductory formula, which is as in preceding.

<sup>c</sup>Inscription engraved on the exterior of the south wall of Ramses II's temple at Abydos; published by Mariette, Abydos, II, Pl. 3 (cf. ibid., II, § 139); see also Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, I, 29.

He filled it with every thing, overflowing with food and provision, bulls, calves, oxen, geese, bread, wine, fruit; (it) was filled with peasant-slaves, doubled in fields, made numerous in herds; the granaries were filled to bursting, the grain-heaps approached heaven, —<sup>a</sup> for the storehouse of divine offerings, from the captivity of his victorious sword.

527. His treasury was filled with every costly stone, silver, gold in blocks; the magazine was filled with every thing from the tribute of all countries. He planted many gardens, set with every (kind of) tree, all sweet and fragrant woods, the plants of Punt. The Son of Re, Lord of Diadems, Ramses-Meriamon, beloved of Osiris, First of the Westerners, great god, lord of Abydos, made (it) for him.

528. The dedications of the temple doors are as follows:<sup>b</sup>

1. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Osiris, residing in "House (h·t)-of-Ramses-Meriamon-Possessing-Abydos;" making for him a doorway of black granite, the doors mounted with copper, and gilded with electrum,<sup>c</sup> which his son, Ramses II, made for him.

2. Live the god, the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses II. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Osiris, lord of Abydos, making for him a great doorway of pink granite, the doors of bronze in beaten work (called): "Portal-of-Usermare-Setepnere-Raiser-of-Monuments-in-Abydos."

529. The dedication inscription of the shrine-chamber is partially preserved on a fragment of alabaster, thus:

He made (it) as his monument for his father, Osiris, making for him a "Great Seat" of pure alabaster ———.

XIII. MEMPHIS TEMPLES<sup>d</sup>

530. Ramses II built largely at Memphis, and a temple on the south of the sacred lake was chiefly due to him.

<sup>a</sup>There is a sign for "slave" here, but a verb (?) is lacking in the lacuna.

<sup>b</sup>Brugsch (Recueil de monuments, I, Pl. XII), who does not state (p. 22) in which temple he found them. The numbers refer to those on his plate.

<sup>c</sup>These doors are said to be "of electrum" in an inscription at the base of the same door. Its name is also given there as the "Portal-of-Usermare-Setepnere-Possessed-of-Eternity."

<sup>d</sup>See Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 422, 423; Wiedemann, Aegyptische Geschichte, 445, note 3; H. Brugsch, (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, VII, 2),

One of his temples there was called "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Usermare-Setepnere-in-the-House-of-Amon-in-Memphis."<sup>a</sup> But Ramses' works in Memphis have perished with the city. The chief literary references to them are in the Great Abydos Inscription (§ 260, l. 22), and the Blessing of Ptah (§§ 412, 413, ll. 32-35). A paragraph in a letter of instructions from an official to his subordinate refers to Ramses II's Thoth-temple in Memphis, and mentions repairs on the Sphinx, which may be of later date:

531. <sup>b</sup>I have heard that thou hast taken the eight laborers (h<sup>2</sup> y) who were working in the "House-of-Thoth-of-Ramses-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-Satisfied-with-Truth" in Memphis. Thou shalt deliver them to draw stone for<sup>c</sup> the Sphinx in Memphis.

532. References to Ramses II's Ptah-temple are rare. The following interesting building inscription<sup>d</sup> is so fragmentary that the name of the king is uncertain. As it lies in the temple chiefly due to Ramses II, he is the most probable king to whom we may refer it. It was upon a great stela which marked the "Station of the King," or ceremonial station occupied by the Pharaoh during the official ritual ceremonies. Like similar stelæ at Thebes in the temples gives brief mention of Mariette's excavations here (see also Mariette, Monuments divers, 31). De Morgan's later excavations are briefly described by E. Brugsch (Egypt Exploration Fund Archaeological Report, 1892-93, 24, 25). Daressy studied the remains exhumed in 1887-8 and 1892 by the Service, with plan of the temple of Ramses II (Annales, III, 22-31).

<sup>a</sup>Ynbw-hd, Mariette, Monuments divers, 62, b=Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, XXX; cf. also Mariette, Monuments divers, 63 f.

<sup>b</sup>Spiegelberg, Recueil, 17, 158. Papyrus Turin, 19, 2.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "to." Vyse found an incomplete stela of Ramses II between the feet of the Sphinx.

<sup>d</sup>Fragment of a large stela of gritstone still 13 feet high and over 2½ feet wide. The beginnings of 12 horizontal lines are preserved. It was found in the ruins of Ramses II's Memphite temple of Ptah; published by Daressy, Annales, III, 27, 28. Fragments of two other similar stelæ, too scanty for use here, were also found by Daressy in this temple (ibid., 28).

of Amenhotep III (II, 904, 910), Elephantine (II, 791), and Amâda (II, 791-97), it bore an account of the erection of the building in which it stood. As in the building inscriptions of Thutmose III (II, 131 ff.), Amenhotep III (II, 878-92), and others, it is introduced by an account of the king's coronation. Enough of the fragmentary inscription is preserved, to show that, as in the coronations of Thutmose III and Harmhab, Amon appeared in public, delivered an oracle proclaiming him king, and proceeded to the palace to crown him. In all probability, therefore, the oracle and the crowning by Amon, were the regular custom at the accession of every king in the Empire. Hence the innumerable conventional references to Amon's having fixed the diadem upon the Pharaoh's head designate an actual ceremony. That this prerogative of Amon was not originally his, but was usurped from Re, is evident. Undoubtedly a similar ceremony took place at Heliopolis at the accession of every Pharaoh, from the Fifth Dynasty on, to the assumption of the rite by Amon at an uncertain date after the rise of Thebes.

Amon and His Gods Come Forth

533. <sup>1</sup>———— <sup>2</sup>— his house of Luxor, with his ennead (psd·t) behind him. When the land brightened again, and day came ———.

Oracle Naming King

534. ——— <sup>3</sup>Thou art my son, the heir who came forth from my limbs. As I am, shalt thou be, with none except thee ———. <sup>4</sup>Their offerings shall be doubled, they shall recognize thee as my son who came forth from my limbs. I have gathered ———.

Coronation in the Palace

535. ——— <sup>5</sup>coming to him, to the palace. He placed himself before him in the shrine of his august son ——— <sup>6</sup>Amon [—]. Lo, Amon came, with his son before him, to the palace, to fix his diadem upon his head, to exalt the two plumes ———.

Character of Reign

536. ——— that he might do what satisfies thee. He has avoided deceit, and expelled lying from the land, while his laws are firm, in the administration of the regulations of the 'ancestors' ———
 'diadem' ———. He has '——' the circuit of the sun, all lands are together doing the 'service' of this great god, '——' like ———.

Station of the King, and Building Inscription

537. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, making for him a "Station of the Ruler"<sup>a</sup> of gritstone, over against '——'<sup>b</sup> ——— 'doors upon them'<sup>c</sup> of real cedar, in order to make splendid the house of '——'<sup>d</sup>, in order to purify the way which his father, Ptah, treads. He gave to him a house anew ——— 'of — cubits, of every splendid costly stone; its flagstaves are of real cedar, wrought with Asiatic copper, their tips of electrum. A broad-hall was made '——' ——— . . . . .<sup>e</sup>

XIV. CITY OF TANIS

See Blessing of Ptah (§ 406, ll. 16-18); see also above note on XIV, p. 211.

STELA OF THE YEAR 400<sup>f</sup>

538. This monument was erected at Tanis by an important official of Ramses II, named Seti. He had been dispatched thither to erect a stela in honor of Seti I, and improved the

<sup>a</sup>The determinative is a stela, as elsewhere. The place meant is the same as at Thebes, Elephantine, and Amâda, see II, 140, note. The material above mentioned, "gritstone," is that of the stela bearing the inscription, which is here meant. It stood therefore in the holy of holies, and not at the front of the temple, as Daressy thought (Annales, III, 28).

<sup>b</sup>Y > dr't, with determinative of a house.

<sup>c</sup>Probably * > w hr'sn.

<sup>d</sup>Possibly Daressy has omitted R >, and we should read "Ramses;" or ms is vulgar writing for ms-sw = "He who begat him."

<sup>e</sup>The last line is obscure, but it is clear that the account of the building is concluded in l. 11.

<sup>f</sup>Granite stela discovered at Tanis by Mariette and reburied there by him. It could not be found at the excavation of Tanis by Petrie (Tanis, II, 32); hence opportunity to place a stela of his own, bearing a record of his visit in the temple, to which he appended prayers for the favor of the god, as so many officials did in Abydos. Although headed with the full titulary of Ramses II, the document is dated in the four hundredth year of King Opehtiset-Nubti, a Hyksos ruler. This remarkable fact shows that the reign of this king began an era—the only one known in Egypt—which had survived in use at Tanis into the Ramessid times.<sup>a</sup> Unfortunately, the stela does not give the year of Ramses II in which it was erected. Wiedemann dates it, as it seems to me with probability, at Ramses II's death. In any case, the knowledge of the lapse of 400 years between the Hyksos Nubti and some year of Ramses II is of great value.

539. At the top of the monument is a relief, showing Ramses II offering wine to Set. Behind the king stands Seti, the author of the monument, praying, as follows:

— — — thy ka, O Set, son of Nut, mayest thou grant a happy life following thy ka, to the ka of . . . . .<sup>b</sup> [Seti].

540. Below the relief is Seti's record of his commission, with the appended prayer, as follows:

Live . . . . .<sup>c</sup> King Ramses II, sovereign, who equips the Two Lands with monuments in his name, so that Re rises in heaven for love of him, King Ramses II.

541. His majesty commanded to make a great stela of granite it has never been in Bulak, as stated by Birch (Records of the Past, IV, 33). A notice of the discovery was published by de Rougé (Revue archéologique, N. S., IX, 1864, 128-36), and the monument itself by Mariette (ibid., N. S., XI, 1865, Pl. IV and pp. 169-90); and Bunsen, Egypt's Place, 2d ed., V, 734 f. See also Chabas, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1865, 29 ff.; Wiedemann, ibid., 1879, 138 ff.; and Piehl, Recueil, II, 121, 122.

<sup>a</sup>Wiedemann thought that it was still later in use, and that Manetho, as excerpted by Africanus, dates the death of Bokkhoris in the year 990 of this era (see Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1879, 138 ff.); but this conclusion is due to a misunderstanding.

<sup>b</sup>Seti's titles as below.

<sup>c</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

(ymr-n-m<sup>3</sup> t), in the great name of his fathers, in order that the name of his grandfather,<sup>a</sup> King Menmare, Son of Re: Seti-Merneptah, might be exalted, enduring and abiding forever, like Re, every day.

542. In the year 400, in the fourth month of the third season, on the fourth day, of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Opehtiset (c<sup>3</sup>-phty-St); Son of Re, his beloved: Nubti,<sup>b</sup> whom Harakhte desires to be forever and ever; came the hereditary prince, governor of the (residence) city, vizier, fan-bearer on the right of the king, chief of bowmen, governor of foreign countries, commandant of the fortress of Tharu (I<sup>3</sup>-rw), chief of the foreign gendarmes, king's-scribe, master of horse, chief priest of the Ram-god, lord of Mendes, High Priest of Set, ritual priest of Buto-Upet-Towe, chief of prophets of all gods, Seti, triumphant, son of the hereditary prince, governor of the (residence) city, vizier, chief of bowmen, governor of foreign countries, commandant of the fortress of Tharu, king's-scribe, master of horse, Peramses, triumphant; born of the lady (nb t-pr), the musician of Re (P<sup>3</sup>-R<sup>3</sup>), Teya (Ty<sup>3</sup>), triumphant. He said: "Hail to thee, O Set, son of Nut, great in strength in the barque of millions of years, overthrowing enemies<sup>1</sup> in front of the barque of Re, great in terror, ——— [grant m]e a happy life following thy ka, while I remain in ———."

ROYAL JUBILEE INSCRIPTIONS

543. The sources for the jubilee celebrations of Ramses II are fuller than for those of any other king. Unfortunately, his obelisks, although far more numerous<sup>c</sup> than those of his

<sup>a</sup>Seti I was not the grandfather, but the father, of Ramses II; hence Wiedemann has suggested (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1879, 142) that when the upper part of the stela containing the titulary, etc., of Ramses II had been completed, Ramses died, and "his majesty" refers to his son and successor, who sent confirmatory orders for the erection of the monument in Seti I's honor. Seti I could then be referred to as his majesty's grandfather. The rendering "grandfather" is, however, open to objection; it is possible that we should render: "father of his fathers," although it is a question how much attention should be paid to the plural strokes after "father" in a text of this age.

<sup>b</sup>This name is thought by some to refer to the god Set, but, of course, no one in the time of Ramses II believed that Set ruled 400 years before! [Later: See the same view by Ed. Meyer, Aegyptische Chronologie, 66.]

<sup>c</sup>Ramses II erected no less than fourteen obelisks at Tanis alone (Petrie, Tanis, I, Pl. VII-XI; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 194-97); then the well-ancestors, bear inscriptions of a very vague and general nature, extolling the king's power and glory,<sup>a</sup> and containing no references to the royal jubilees, to celebrate which they were erected. Indeed, they do not, for the most part, show even the former conventional dedication inscription.<sup>b</sup>

544. A good example of this, is the Heliopolis obelisk, left uninscribed by Seti I, which was then inscribed by Ramses II, who with, for him, unusual generosity, appropriated only one side for his own inscription. Its inscriptions are as follows:<sup>c</sup>

North Side

545. . . . .<sup>d</sup> (Seti I), whose monuments are excellent in Heliopolis seat of eternity, like the four pillars of heaven, abiding, enduring at known pair in Luxor (one now in Paris); a pair in Karnak (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 148, a); four now in Rome (one a forgery); one now in Florence; besides usurping those of his predecessors, particularly that of his father, Seti I, at Heliopolis. A Berlin scarab (No. 1947, Ausführliches Verzeichniss des Berliner Museums, 420), commemorates the erection of obelisks by him. A pair of obelisks taken out of the Elephantine quarry, probably by Ramses, are commemorated by the official in charge in an inscription on the island of Sehel, thus: "Real king's-confidant, his beloved, conducting the work on two great obelisks, High Priest of Khnum, Anuket, and Satet, Amenhotep." (Mariette, Monuments divers, V, 70, No. 17 = Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1214 = de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, 94, 140 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, IV, 125, [6]. Not in Petrie, Season in Egypt, but see No. 58, ibid.)

---

<sup>a</sup>The historical references in the obelisk inscriptions will be found in § 392 and § 448, note.

<sup>b</sup>As the obelisks at Tanis are all prostrate, there may be dedications on the hidden sides, which have never been turned up. The only dedication to be found on any of Ramses II's obelisks thus far is on the two Luxor obelisks. The one still in Luxor reads (Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 60): "He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, erecting for him two great obelisks of granite." The other one, now in Paris, reads: "Ramses II; he made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him a great obelisk (called): 'Ramses-Meriamon-is-the-Beloved-of-Atum.'" (Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, I, 42, 43; Saint-Maur, Voyage du Luxor en Egypte [Paris, 1835], Pl. II; Champollion-Figeac, L'Obélisque de Louqsor transporté à Paris [Paris, 1833].) For Beknekhonsu's record of the erection of these Luxor obelisks, see his statue inscription (§§ 561-68).

<sup>c</sup>Interpretatio Obeliscorum Urbis . . . . . digesta per A. M. Ungarellium (Romæ, MDCCCXLII), Tab. II; Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 66; Transactions of the Royal Society of Literature, 2d ser., I, opp. p. 176 (drawings by Bonomi), Marucchi, Gli Obelischî Egiziani di Roma (Rome, 1898), Tav. III, IV.

<sup>d</sup>Full titulary, except fifth name.

the forecourt of Re. The ennead of gods is satisfied with his deeds. (May) the Son of Re, Seti-Merneptah, beloved of the gods of Heliopolis, [live] like Re.

South Side

546. . . . . (Seti I), who adorned Heliopolis for him who is therein, who purified it for Re, its lord; the lords of heaven and earth rejoice; his favor is doubled because of his deeds. May the Son of Re, Seti-Merneptah, beloved of Harakhte, live through him, like Re.

West Side

547. . . . . (Seti I), who filled Heliopolis with obelisks, shining with rays; the house of Re is flooded with his beauty, and the gods of the Great House rejoice. May the Son of Re, Seti-Merneptah, beloved of the ennead of gods which is in the Great House, be given life through him (nf).

East Side

548. . . . . Ramses (II), who has made his monuments like the stars of heaven, whose works mingle with the sky, rejoicing over which Re rises in his house of millions of years. It was his majesty who beautified<sup>a</sup> this monument for his father, in order to cause that his name should abide in the house of Re. May Ramses (II)-Meriamon, beloved of Atum, lord of Heliopolis, be given life through him (nf).

549. It will be seen that the obelisk has become more and more a monument of a general character in celebration of the king's glory, and has lost its exclusive significance as a memorial of the royal jubilee. This is indicated also by the fact that memorial inscriptions commemorating the celebration of the royal jubilees are to be found in Upper Egypt from el Kab to Philæ, as if other record than the obelisks were necessary. From these commemorative inscriptions the following table of jubilees may be reconstructed:<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>That is, added the inscriptions. "Beautifying" is used in the same way by Thutmose IV on the obelisk of his grandfather, Thutmose III (II, 833).

<sup>b</sup>The Roman numerals in the following footnotes refer to the nine inscriptions (§§ 552-60). My list (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 39, 60, note), which follows Brugsch, is to be corrected as herein.

550. Year 30,<sup>a</sup> first jubilee.

Year 33,<sup>b</sup>
Year 34,<sup>c</sup> } second jubilee.

Year 37,<sup>d</sup> third jubilee.

Year 40,<sup>e</sup> fourth jubilee.

Year 41,<sup>f</sup>
Year 42, } fifth jubilee.

Year 44,<sup>g</sup> sixth jubilee.

Year [47 ?],<sup>h</sup> seventh jubilee.

Year [50 ?],<sup>i</sup> eighth jubilee.

Year [53 ?],<sup>i</sup> ninth jubilee.

551. Most of these celebrations, at least as far as the year 41, were in charge of Ramses II's favorite son, Khamwese,<sup>j</sup> assisted by another son, Khay, who continued later.

I. FIRST GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>k</sup>

552. Year 30. First occurrence of the royal jubilee of the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnere, given life forever.

[His majesty commanded] to celebrate the royal jubilee in the whole land.

King's-son, (sem-) priest, Khamwese, triumphant.<sup>l</sup>

<sup>a</sup>I, II, III, IV, V.

<sup>b</sup>II, p. 232, n. b.

<sup>c</sup>II, III, IV, V.

<sup>d</sup>II, III, IV (called by mistake the fourth jubilee), V (so Champollion; Brugsch has 36).

<sup>e</sup>III, IV, V, VI.

<sup>f</sup>Year 41, VII; year 42, VIII.

<sup>g</sup>VIII.

<sup>h</sup>Year unknown; its celebration is rendered certain by the certainty of eighth and ninth.

<sup>i</sup>Berlin scarabs, No. 3549 (Ausführliches Verzeichniss des Berliner Museums, 420) and No. 5081 (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1891, 128), giving only number of jubilee without date.

<sup>j</sup>On the monuments of this son, which are too fragmentary for insertion here, see Wiedemann, Aegyptische Geschichte, 464-66.

<sup>k</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 175 f.; Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1127 (without relief); and Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 252.

<sup>l</sup>Relief showing Khamwese in the costume of a high priest of Memphis.

II. BIGEH INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

553. Year 30. First occurrence of the royal jubilee. Year 34.<sup>b</sup> Repetition of the royal jubilee. Year 37.<sup>c</sup> Third occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Of the Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Setepnere, Lord of Diadems: Ramses-Meriamon, given life forever. His majesty commissioned the (sm-) priest, the king's-son, Khamwese, to celebrate the royal jubilees in the whole land.

III. SECOND GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>d</sup>

554. Year 30. First occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Year 34. Repetition of the royal jubilee.

Year 37. Third occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Year 40. Fourth occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Under the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnere, Lord of Diadems, Ramses-Meriamon, given life forever.

His majesty commanded to commission the (sm-) priest, king's-son, Khamwese, to celebrate the royal jubilees in the whole [land] in South and North.

IV. THIRD GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>e</sup>

555. This inscription is a duplicate of the preceding, the lacuna in which it supplies. It shows an incorrect variant, calling the jubilee of year 37, the fourth.

<sup>a</sup>On the rocks of the island of Bigeh: Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 162; Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 58; Young, Hieroglyphics, 42; Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, IV, 175; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, 83, 3. De Morgan (Catalogue des monuments) has omitted this inscription.

<sup>b</sup>Another inscription on the island of Sehel (Bigeh, Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1128; but Mariette, Monuments divers, 71, No. 32, and de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, 88, No. 62, give Sehel) has: "Year 33; repetition of the royal jubilee of the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses II."

<sup>c</sup>The "39" given by Wiedemann (Aegyptische Geschichte, 465) is taken from Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, which has 39; but it is an error, as all the other publications have 37, except Champollion, Notices descriptives, which has 36.

<sup>d</sup>At the right of the entrance of the great rock temple of Harmhab at Gebel Silsileh (Champollion, Monuments, 116). Over the inscription Ramses II and Khamwese appear in a relief, worshipping Ptah and Sebek of Gebel Silsileh.

<sup>e</sup>At the left of the entrance of the great rock temple of Harmhab at Gebel Silsileh: Champollion, Monuments, 115. Above the inscription is a relief in which Ramses II and Khamwese appear in worship before Ptah-Tatenen and Amen-rationther.

V. FOURTH GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

556. Year 30. First occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Year 34. Repetition of the royal jubilee.

Year 37.<sup>b</sup> Third occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Year 40. Fourth occurrence of the royal jubilee.

Under the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnere, Lord of Diadems: Ramses-Meriamon, given life, like Re, forever.

His majesty commanded to commission the hereditary prince, (mry-ntr-) priest, attached to Nekhen, prophet of Mat, chief justice, judge, governor of the (residence) city, vizier, Khay, triumphant, to celebrate the royal jubilees [in the] whole [land], in South and North.

VI. SEHEL INSCRIPTION<sup>c</sup>

557. Year 40. Came the king's-son, (sm-) priest of Ptah, satisfying the heart of the Lord of the Two Lands, Khamwese, to celebrate the [fourth] royal jubilee [in the who]le [land in South and North].

VII. EL KAB INSCRIPTION<sup>d</sup>

558. Year 41. Came the king's-son, (sm-) priest of Ptah, satisfying the heart of the Lord of the Two Lands, Khamwese, to celebrate the fifth royal jubilee [in the wh]ole [lan]d.

<sup>a</sup>Large stela at the right of the door of the great rock chapel of Harmhab at Gebel Silsileh, published by Champollion, Monuments, 118; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, 83; and Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1128 (without relief and quite incorrectly). Over the inscription, before the dates, kneels Khay, and still higher appears Ramses II before Amon-Re, Harakhte, Mat, Ptah-Tatenen, and Re-Sebek of Gebel Silsileh.

<sup>b</sup>Brugsch has 36.

<sup>c</sup>On the rocks of the island of Sehel at the first cataract: Mariette, Monuments divers, 71, No. 33, and de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, 103, No. 33, where de Morgan's copyists have evidently reproduced Mariette's copy, without finding the original. The second jubilee is also referred to on Sehel (see II, p. 232, n. b).

<sup>d</sup>According to Lepsius, this inscription is in the temple of Amenhotep III (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 174, d); whereas Brugsch puts it in the tomb of Setau (Thesaurus, V, 1128). Wiedemann (Aegyptische Geschichte, 465, n. 5) evidently thinks there are two such inscriptions; one in the temple, and one in the tomb; but that given by Lepsius, Denkmäler, is certainly the same as that placed by Brugsch in the tomb of Setau. A relief over the inscription shows Khamwese in obeisance to his father, enthroned as Osiris.

VIII. FIFTH GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

559. Year 42, first month of the second season, day 1, of King Ramses II, given life, forever and ever. His majesty commanded to commission the vizier Khay ( $\overline{H}^c y$ ), to inaugurate the fifth royal jubilee of King Ramses II, in the whole land.

IX. SIXTH GEBEL SILSILEH INSCRIPTION<sup>b</sup>

560. Year 44.<sup>c</sup> First month of the second season, day 1, under the majesty of the king, the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnere, given life forever — —; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems, Ramses-Meriamon, given life, like Re, forever.

His majesty commanded to com[mission] the hereditary prince (mry-ntr-) priest, chief justice, judge, governor of the (residence) city, vizier, Khay, [triumphant, to celebr]ate the sixth royal jubilee, in the whole land, in the districts of South and North.

INSCRIPTION OF BEKNEKHONSU<sup>d</sup>

561. The most important of Ramses II's officials who has transmitted a mortuary autobiography to us, was Beknekhonsu, the High Priest of Amon. He tells us every step in his career, with the length of each office, as follows:

<sup>a</sup>Legrain, Recueil, XXVI, 219, n. 3.

<sup>b</sup>Stela on the right of the entrance of the great rock chapel of Harmhab at Gebel Silsileh; published by Champollion, Monuments, 119; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 83, 2; Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1128, IV. A relief above the inscription shows Ramses II accompanied by Mat, before Amon, Mut, Khonsu, Harakhite, and Sebek of Gebel Silsileh. Below the inscription is Khay kneeling, with a few lines of adoration before him.

<sup>c</sup>So Brugsch; Champollion, Monuments, has 45.

<sup>d</sup>On the back of a squatting statue of Beknekhonsu, now in the Glyptothek at Munich (No. 30). It was carefully published by Devéria, Mémoires de l'Institut égyptien, 1862, I, 701-54; reprinted in Bibliothèque égyptologique, IV, 276-323 (plate opposite p. 288). A collation with a photograph showed the text to be without error. It was again inaccurately published by Brugsch (Thesaurus, 1240 f., where even a year is incorrect: 6 for 27! l. 3). The tomb of Beknekhonsu was found by Champollion (Notices descriptives, I, 538) at Thebes in Assasif; smaller objects from his tomb are noted by Devéria (Bibliothèque égyptologique, IV, 295, 296).

Infancy, 4 years, from 1 to 4.

Youth, 12 years, from 5 to 16. (Being chief of the stable at least a part of this time.)

Priest, 4 years, from 17 to 20.

Divine father, 12 years, from 21 to 32.

Third prophet, 15 years, from 33 to 47.

Second prophet, 12 years, from 48 to 59.

High Priest,<sup>a</sup> 27 years, from 60 to 86.

562. Beginning under Seti I, he must have been of about the same age as Ramses II, and was likewise the only official known to us who survived almost if not quite, as long as the aged Ramses himself.<sup>b</sup> In addition to his sacerdotal duties, he was also chief architect, and as such built a temple for Ramses II, "at the upper portal of the house of Amon," which can only be the Luxor temple of Ramses II. He also refers to its obelisks, its flagstaves, its lake, its gardens, and other accessories which he provided for the temple. He is further found serving as judge in a civil suit in the forty-sixth year of Ramses II.<sup>c</sup>

Titles

563. <sup>1</sup>Hereditary prince, count, High Priest of Amon, Beknekhonsu, triumphant; he says:

Career

564. "I was a truthful witness, profitable to his lord, extolling the instruction of his god, proceeding upon his way, performing the excellent

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "First prophet." Brugsch's six years as the length of service in this office (Thesaurus and Geschichte, 566) is an error; I have especially compared the photograph on this point.

<sup>b</sup>The statue of a Beknekhonsu, High Priest of Amon under Ramses III, found in the temple of Mut (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 343-47), cannot, for reasons of chronology, as well as because at least two high priests held office in the interim, be identified as that of our Beknekhonsu.

<sup>c</sup>Papyrus Berlin No. 47, l. 4; Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, XVII, 1879, 72, and Taf. I.

ceremonies in the midst of his temple. I was chief overseer of works in the house of Amon, satisfying the excellent heart of his lord. O all ye people, take account in <sup>2</sup>your hearts; ye who are on earth, who shall come after me, in millions of millions of years, after old age and infirmity, whose hearts are versed in discerning worth; I will inform you of my character while I was upon earth, in every office which I administered since my birth."

565. 1. "I passed four years in extreme childhood (nds).

2. I passed twelve years as <sup>3</sup>a youth (hwn), while I was chief of the training-stable<sup>a</sup> of King Menmare (Seti I).

3. I acted as priest (w<sup>c</sup> b) of Amon, during four years.

4. I acted as divine father of Amon, during twelve years.

5. I acted as third prophet of Amon during fifteen years.

6. I acted as second prophet of Amon during twelve years.

7. He<sup>b</sup> favored me, he distinguished me, because of my rare merit. He appointed me to be High Priest<sup>c</sup> of Amon during twenty-seven years."

Character

566. "I was <sup>4</sup>a good father to my serf-laborers, training their classes, giving my hand [to] him who was in trouble, preserving alive him who was in misfortune, performing the excellent duties in his temple. I was chief overseer of works before Thebes for his son, who came forth from his limbs, King Ramses II, given life, maker of monuments for his father, Amon, <sup>5</sup>who placed him on his throne."

The assistant, the High Priest of Amon, Beknekhonsu, triumphant, made (it).

Building of Luxor Temple

567. He says as follows: "I performed the excellent duties in the house of Amon, being chief overseer of works of my lord. I made for him a temple (called): 'Ramses-Meriamon-Hearer-of-Petitions,' at the upper<sup>a</sup> portal of the house (pr) of Amon. I erected obelisks<sup>b</sup> therein, of granite, whose beauty approached heaven. A wall <sup>6</sup>was before it of stone over against Thebes; it was flooded;<sup>c</sup> and the gardens were planted with trees. I made very great double doors of electrum; their beauty met the heavens. I hewed very great flagstaves, and I erected them in the august forecourt in front of his temple.”

<sup>a</sup>S. hpr. See Erman, Festschrift für Georg Ebers, 444, 445.

<sup>b</sup>This may refer to either the king or the god, but it probably refers to the god, as in l. 4.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "first prophet of Amon," being in direct succession from the rank of third and second prophet.

Sacred Barges

568. “I hewed great barges of the ‘Beginning-of-the-River,’ for Amon, Mut, and Khonsu; by the hereditary prince, High Priest of Amon, Beknekhonsu.”

---

<sup>a</sup>This is the southern gate of the temenos of the Karnak temple toward Luxor, to which the four southern pylons of Karnak led. At this portal the great obelisk of Thutmose III was erected by Thutmose IV (Lateran Obelisk, II, 835), who also calls it the “upper portal of Karnak.” The only temple of Ramses II at this portal is the Luxor temple; but the name given it by Beknekhonsu does not accord with the name of Luxor temple (see § 507).

<sup>b</sup>These are the two Luxor obelisks of Ramses II, of which one is still in situ, and the other in the Place de la Concorde, Paris.

<sup>c</sup>He means that the wall surrounded or gave access to a temple lake. Cf. the work of Ramses IX (Mariette, Karnak, 40, l. 7), whose wall (d' d' as here) gave access to the Karnak lake. There is certainly no reference to the Kurna temple and the Ramesseum, as some have thought.

REIGN OF MERNEPTAH

THE INVASION OF LIBYANS AND MEDITERRANEAN PEOPLES

569. For this, one of the most serious invasions which have ever threatened Egypt, we possess a series of four documents, which furnish a fairly full account of its course, the ensuing battle, and the resulting relief in Egypt. They are the following:

I. The Great Karnak Inscription (§§ 572-92).

II. The Cairo Column (§§ 593-95).

III. The Athribis Stela (§§ 596-601).

IV. The Hymn of Victory (§§ 602-17).

570. These sources enable us to see the already aged Merneptah facing the evil conditions on his Libyan frontier, inherited from the decades of neglect which concluded his great father's reign. The Libyans have for years past been pushing into and occupying the western Delta.<sup>a</sup> They pressed in almost to the gates of Memphis, eastward to the district of Heliopolis, and southward to the two oases nearest the Fayûm. Worse than this, they had made a coalition with the maritime peoples of the Mediterranean, who now poured into the Delta from Sardinia on the west to Asia Minor on the east. The mention of these peoples in these documents is the earliest appearance of Europeans in literature, and has always been the center of much study and interest.<sup>a</sup> With the sympathy, if not the direct assistance of the Kheta, the Libyan king, Meryey, put himself at the head of these combined allies and invaded the Delta, bringing his wives and belongings, and apparently intending a permanent occupation. Some time during the first half of the tenth month (late in March), in Merneptah's fifth year, a messenger reached him with the news. Rallying his forces immediately, Merneptah met the enemy on the third of the eleventh month (about April 15) at Perire in the western Delta, and in six hours' fighting routed their combined forces with immense slaughter. He pursued them from Perire to the rise of the Libyan desert, called the "Mount of the Horns of the Earth."

---

<sup>a</sup>Golénischeff's interesting and suggestive letter (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 40, 101-6) draws geographical data from a new papyrus in his possession, on the basis of which he would place this immigration and invasion (as well as those under Ramses III) south of the Fayûm near Ehnas. His arguments are not without force, but the conclusion seems to me to be refuted by the statement that this invasion and the battle which repelled it occurred in the "western rwd" (Karnak Inscription, l. 30, where "western" is omitted, and Athribis stela, l. 7). Rwd is a term used only of the Delta, the two halves of which are called the eastern and western rwd (Spiegelberg, Rechnungen). The invasions under Ramses III were also in the "western rwd" (IV, 405). See also Harris, 10, 8 (IV, 224). Furthermore, the improbability that the Libyans would enter Egypt by way of the northern oases, going around the south side of the Fayûm, to reach the region of Memphis, is evident.

571. It is difficult to understand the exact interrelation of the numbers given in the Great Karnak Inscription and the Athribis Stela, but over 9,000 of the enemy were slain, possibly as many more taken prisoners, while many horses and cattle, and vast numbers of weapons were captured. The Libyan king was forced to ignominious flight, his camp, his wives, and his personal belongings falling into the hands of the Egyptians. After setting fire to the camp, the Egyptians carried the plunder in triumph to the king, who viewed the trophies of the dead, the prisoners, and the spoil. He then returned home, and in the royal palace, probably at Memphis, he delivered a triumphal address, to which the court responded with acclamation. The people of the Delta, on hearing the news, break out into rejoicing that peace and safety are restored to them.

---

<sup>a</sup>The layman has long been misled regarding this event by such titles for it as "Invasion of the Greeks," although there is now no doubt that the early peoples of southern Europe participated in this invasion. Since the study of Sardinian art by Perrot and Chipiez, as Müller has shown, we must accept the Sherden as Sardinians; the Teresh may then equally well be the Etruscans (Tyrsenoi), and the Shekelesh might be the Sikeli (if š be an ethnic termination in these western names; but see IV, 59). Maspero has suggested Sagalassos in Asia Minor. The Ekweh are not impossibly the Achæans, and from Asia Minor are the Luka or Lycians. Compare Müller, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, X; and Asien und Europa, 335-59; 371-84; and Hall, Annual of the British School at Athens, VIII, 157.

I. GREAT KARNAK INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

572. This, one of the longest documents preserved on the temple walls of Egypt, gives the fullest account which has survived to us of the great victory of Merneptah over the Libyans. The prominence of Ptah in the narrative betrays the Memphite origin of the document, but the original which doubtless once existed in Memphis has now perished.

573. The document does not offer us any idea of the course of the battle, beginning the account of the conflict itself almost immediately with the rout of the Libyans; but it is gratifyingly full regarding the conditions which led up to the battle and the immense plunder which resulted from it. In style it is often so highly colored, and effuse in poetic figures, that the translation is rendered difficult.

---

<sup>a</sup>A long inscription of originally eighty lines, engraved on the inside (west) of the eastern wall connecting the main Karnak temple with Pylon VII (Baedeker's plan), the northernmost of the southern pylons. The upper ends of the lines have lost the space of one course of masonry, equivalent to about four to five words. The text, noted first by Champollion, was partially published by Lepsius (Denkmäler, III, 199, a; only ll. 44-77 and list of names, Text, III, 43); Brugsch then purposed to publish the first half, omitted by Lepsius, and inserted ll. 8-43 in his Geographische Inschriften, II, Pl. 25 (not Pl. 85, as stated in Records of the Past, IV, 37, nor 35, as given in Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 432). Brugsch numbered his lines 1 to 36, but he really omitted ll. 1-7. It was finally completely published by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 2-6), Mariette (who copies Dümichen's mistakes, Karnak, 52-55), and de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 179-98). None of these publications is very exact; both Lepsius and Brugsch omit the lower ends of the lines, doubtless still covered in their day, without any indication of the fact. Rougé found the upper ends of ll. 36-41 (on a block rediscovered by Legrain in 1901, see l. 36, p. 246, n. a), and properly placed them; I arranged all the publications in parallel columns, and the resulting text, while tolerably close to the original and preserving some signs now lost, was not sufficiently accurate. Later I secured good photographs of the inscription through the kindness of Borchardt, which added some readings of importance. The new fragments found by Legrain (Annales, IV, 2-4) contain nothing of importance except the reference to the "western rdw;" they arrived too late to be available in the following text.

Title

574. <sup>1</sup>[Beginning of the victory which his majesty achieved in the land of Libya]<sup>a</sup> ————— i, Ekweh (ʿ -k ʷ -w ʷ -š ʷ), Teresh (Tw-rw-š ʷ), Luka (Rw-kw), Sherden (Š ʷ -r ʷ -d-n), Shekelesh (Š-k-rw-š ʷ), Northerners coming from all lands.

Valor of Merneptah

575. <sup>2</sup> — — — — —<sup>b</sup> his valor in the might of his father, Amon; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Binre-Meriamon; Son of Re: Merneptah-Hotephirma, given life. Lo, this Good God, flourishing — — — — —<sup>3</sup> — — — — — his [fathers] all the gods, as his protection. Every country is in fear at the sight of him, King Merneptah.<sup>c</sup> <sup>4</sup> — — — — — desolated, made a waste, commanding that the invader of his every boundary of Egypt bow himself down in his time, <sup>5</sup> — — — — — all his [plans] (whose) verdict is the breath of life. He causes the people to be care-free, sleeping while the terror of his strength is in <sup>6</sup> — — —.

Preparation of Defenses

576. — — —, to protect Heliopolis, city of Atum, to defend the stronghold of Ptah-Tatenen, to save — from evil <sup>7</sup> — — — — — tents<sup>d</sup>

<sup>a</sup>The presence of the list of hostile allies at the beginning of the inscription would indicate with great probability that the opening words were the same as in the Kadesh Poem, which likewise begins with a list of the allied foes.

<sup>b</sup>The loss is one course of masonry at the top—at most four or five words at the beginning of each line.

<sup>c</sup>Double name, as also in all other places in the inscription.

<sup>d</sup>Hebrew לַיָּם. This remark may possibly refer to the Libyans and indicate the distribution of their immigrants from Per-Berset on the west to the Heliopolitan canal on the east.

before Per-Berset (Pr-b<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-ys-t),<sup>a</sup> reaching<sup>b</sup> the Sheken (Š<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-n<sup>o</sup>) canal on the [—]<sup>c</sup> of the Eti (ḫ<sup>o</sup>-ty)<sup>d</sup> canal.

Libyan Aggression

577. <sup>8</sup>— — — — not cared for, it was forsaken as pasturage for cattle because of the Nine Bows, it was left waste from the times of the ancestors. All the kings of Upper Egypt abode in their pyramids <sup>9</sup>— — — —; the kings of Lower Egypt [rested]<sup>e</sup> in the midst of their cities, inclosed in the state palace, for lack of troops; they had no bowmen to answer against them.

Accession of Merneptah, and His Preparations

578. It happened <sup>10</sup>ḫ— — — — he [assumed<sup>f</sup>] the throne of Horus, he was appointed to preserve the folk (p<sup>c</sup>-t) alive, he hath arisen as king to protect the people (rḫy-t). There was might in him to do it, because of — — —<sup>g</sup> in <sup>11</sup>— — — — — Meber (M<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>),<sup>h</sup> the choicest of his bowmen were mustered, his chariotry was brought up from every side, his scouts were in — — — his [—]<sup>i</sup> in <sup>12</sup>— — — — — his —. He considered not hundreds of thousands in the day of the array. His infantry (mnjy-t) marched out, the heavy armed<sup>i</sup> troops arrived, beautiful in appearance, leading the bowmen against every land.

<sup>a</sup>This town has nothing to do with modern Belbês on the eastern margin of the Delta (classic Byblos? See Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 197); but was in the western Delta (see IV, 370).

<sup>b</sup>Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, has yr (the eye) = "do, make," perhaps used as in Uni (I, 322, ll. 41, 42, note) with the meaning "reach, visit."

<sup>c</sup>Text has not "north," but either šd or nd with the d written out alphabetically, and a long horizontal determinative lost in a joint of the masonry.

<sup>d</sup>A canal leaving the Nile by Heliopolis; the Sheken canal is otherwise unknown (see Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 77).

<sup>e</sup>The parallelism demands a verb similar in meaning to "abode."

<sup>f</sup>There is here a reference to the accession of Merneptah, as Brugsch has noticed (Geschichte, 569).

<sup>g</sup>Fragments of words; Brugsch's "weil er war das Ebenbild des [schön] gesichtigen" (= Ptah) is quite impossible.

<sup>h</sup>A syllable or two may be lost at the beginning; it is the name of an unknown foreign country. The connection before it is not clear, but it is evident that the practical preparations for the campaign begin here.

<sup>i</sup>Lit., "those who bear the hand-to-hand fighting;" these are heavily armed foreign mercenaries.

News of Coalition of Libyans and Sea-Peoples against Egypt

579. <sup>a</sup> — — — — — the third season, saying: "The wretched, fallen chief of Libya, Meryey (M-r<sup>2</sup>-y<sup>2</sup>-yw-y), son of Ded (Dy-d), has fallen upon the country of Tehenu with his bowmen <sup>14</sup> — — — — — Sherden ([š]<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-d-n), Shekelesh (š<sup>2</sup>-k-rw-š<sup>2</sup>), Ekwesh (<sup>b</sup> -k<sup>2</sup>-w<sup>2</sup>-š<sup>2</sup>), Luka (Rw-kw), Teresh (Tw-ry-š<sup>2</sup>), taking the best of every warrior and every man of war (phrr) of his country. He has brought his wife and his <sup>c</sup> children <sup>15</sup> — — — — — leaders of the camp, and he has reached the western boundary in the fields of Perire."<sup>d</sup>

Merneptah's Speech

580. Lo, his majesty was enraged at their report, like a lion; <sup>16</sup> [The assembled his court], and said to th[em]: "Hear ye the command of your lord; I give — — as ye shall do, saying: I am the ruler who shepherds<sup>e</sup> you; I spend my time searching out <sup>17</sup> — — — — — you, as a father, who preserves alive his children; while ye fear like birds, and ye know not the goodness of that which he does. Is there none answering in <sup>18</sup> — — — — — [Shall the land be] wa]sted and forsaken at the invasion of every country, while the Nine Bows plunder its borders, and rebels invade it every day? Every — takes <sup>19</sup> — — — — — to plunder these fortresses. They have repeatedly penetrated the fields of Egypt [to] the [great]<sup>f</sup> river. They have halted, they have spent whole days and

<sup>a</sup>This announcement was made in the tenth month, as is shown by the Cairo column (§ 595), which fills out the lacuna at the beginning of the above section. Allowing the fourteen days for the muster of the troops (l. 28), and remembering that the armies met in battle on the third of the eleventh month, it will be seen that the news must have reached the king during the first half of the tenth month.

<sup>b</sup>The first syllable is omitted by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, Mariette, Karnak, and Brugsch, Geographische Inschriften; being given only by de Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, where it is probably a correction by de Rougé himself.

<sup>c</sup>So Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques; Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, and Mariette, Karnak, have "their."

<sup>d</sup>Pr-yr misread by Brugsch as Pr-Yr-šps't, and then identified with Prosopis. This is shown to be incorrect by the short version (§ 600, l. 9). See Müller (Asien und Europa, 357, n. 3), who would identify it as the Y<sup>2</sup>rw of the Pyramid Texts (Mernere, 182 = Pepi, 145; cf. also Teti, 351 = Pepi, II, 174), "a border town of the natron district."

<sup>e</sup>Like Seti I in making the well on the Redesiyeh road (Third Inscription, § 195, l. 2).

<sup>f</sup>The restoration is certain, the determinative (papyrus roll) is clear, and there is just room for the "great"-sign (c<sup>2</sup>) above it. In exactly the same connection it is used in Ramses III's Libyan wars (IV, 405, see note).

months dwelling <sup>20</sup>— — — —. They have reached the hills of the oasis,<sup>a</sup> and have cut off the district<sup>b</sup> of Toyeh (T<sup>o</sup>-y<sup>h</sup>).<sup>c</sup> 'So<sup>d</sup> it has been since the kings of Upper Egypt, in the records of other times. It was not known <sup>21</sup>— — — — as worms, not considering their bodies, (but) loving death and despising life. Their hearts are exalted against the people<sup>e</sup> <sup>22</sup>— — — — their chief. They spend their time going about the land, fighting, to fill their bodies daily. They come to the land of Egypt, to seek the necessities of their mouths; their desire is <sup>23</sup>— — — — my bringing them like netted fish on their bellies. Their chief is like a dog, a man of 'boasting<sup>l</sup>, without courage; he does not abide — <sup>24</sup>— — — — bringing to an end<sup>f</sup> the Pedetishew (Pd·ty·šw),<sup>g</sup> whom I caused to take grain in ships, to keep alive that land of Kheta.<sup>h</sup> Lo, I am he whom the gods —, every ka <sup>25</sup>— — — — under me, King Merneptah, given life. By my ka, by the —, as I flourish as ruler of the Two Lands 'the land shall be made<sup>i</sup> <sup>26</sup>— — — — Egypt. Amon nods approval, when<sup>i</sup> one speaks in

<sup>a</sup>The usual designation of the oasis otherwise called by the Egyptians the "Northern Oasis," and by the Greeks "The Lesser." It lies exactly southwest of the Fayûm, in N. 28°, less than one hundred miles west of the Nile valley.

<sup>b</sup>Brugsch (Dictionnaire géographique, 70) has n hr n (for m hr n) = "in front of," that is, "cut off in front of," which does not alter the meaning.

<sup>c</sup>This is the oasis now called "Farafrah," about seventy-five miles west of south of the "Northern Oasis." The Libyans had thus taken the two oases nearest them, south of the natron district.

<sup>d</sup>Mty; it must in some way indicate the customary and habitual thing in former times. See § 377, n. b. Hrtw = "one says;" hence the whole, probably, literally is: "The customary thing," say they, "since, etc."

<sup>e</sup>Of Egypt (rḥy·t). <sup>f</sup>S·rk.

<sup>g</sup>Asiatics, or: "the Pedetishew bring to an end."

<sup>h</sup>The king evidently regards Kheta as included in the coalition of northern peoples against Egypt, and the logic of the reference seems to be Kheta's ingratitude in joining a combination against the Egyptians, who had sent grain for her maintenance, as if such grain had not been sent in a commercial way, but from philanthropic motives, which, of course, was probably not the case. In view of the mention of Kheta among the defeated peoples in the Hymn of Victory (§ 617, l. 26), the question arises whether Kheta already in the year 3 had not been in such close sympathy with the plans of these allies that Merneptah had extended against the Kheta also the campaign on which the Asiatic peoples and towns mentioned in the Hymn of Victory (§ 617, ll. 26-28) were pillaged. I can only answer this question in the affirmative. The plunder of a few towns on the Hittite border in Syria would be quite sufficient, in the eyes of an oriental, to justify the boast in l. 26.

<sup>i</sup>Or: "say they in Thebes."

Thebes. He has turned his back against the Meshwesh (M-šꜣ -wꜣ -šꜣ), and looks [not] on the land of Temeh (T-m-h), when they are <sup>27</sup>—."

Beginning of the Campaign

581. — — — —<sup>a</sup> the leaders of the bowmen in front thereof to overthrow the land of Libya. When they went forth, the hand of the god was with them; (even) Amon was with them as their shield. The land of Egypt was commanded, saying: <sup>28</sup>"— — — — [rea]dy to march in fourteen days."

Merneptah's Dream

582. Then his majesty saw in a dream as if a statue of Ptah were standing before Pharaoh, L. P. H. He was like the height of <sup>29</sup>— — — —. He spake to him: "Take thou (it)," while he extended to him the sword,<sup>b</sup> "and banish thou the fearful heart from thee." Pharaoh, L. P. H., spake to him: "Lo, <sup>30</sup>— — — —."<sup>c</sup>

Approach of the Two Armies

583. — infantry and chariotry in (great) number<sup>d</sup> were camped before them on the shore (rwd)<sup>e</sup> in front of the district of Perire (Pr-yr). Lo, the wretched chief of <sup>31</sup>[Libya] — — — — in the night of the second day of the third month of the third season (eleventh month) when the land grew light (enough) for advancing with them. The wretched fallen chief of Libya came at the time of the third day of the third month of the third season (eleventh month), and he brought <sup>32</sup>— — — — until they arrived. The infantry of his majesty went forth together with his chariotry, Amon-Re being with them, and the Ombite (Set) giving to them the hand.

<sup>a</sup>It is clear that the king's speech is concluded in the lacuna, and that the march of the troops now begins.

<sup>b</sup>Compare the frequent reliefs in which the god extends a sword (ḥpš) to the king. There is not in this speech any warning to Merneptah to withhold himself from the battle, and remain at home, as indicated in the translation of Chabas (Études sur l'antiquité historique, 195). This old misunderstanding of Chabas has gained general currency in the histories. [Later: See W. M. Müller (Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, V, December, 1902, 477) for the similarity of this dream story to that in Herodotus, II, 141.]

<sup>c</sup>The answer of the Pharaoh was evidently very short.

<sup>d</sup>M rḥ' t, lit., "in a list or statement."

<sup>e</sup>See § 570, note.

The Battle

584. [Every] man <sup>33</sup>— — — — their blood, there was none that escaped among them. Lo, the bowmen of his majesty spent six hours of destruction among them; they were delivered to the sword upon <sup>34</sup>— — — — of the country. Lo, as they fought — —; the wretched chief of Libya halted, his heart fearing; withdrew (again), stopped, knelt, <sup>35</sup>— — — — [leaving] sandals, his bow, and his quiver in haste behind [him], and every [thing] that was with him. [— —] his limbs, great terror coursed in his members. <sup>36a</sup>Lo, [they] slew — — — of his possessions, his [equipment], his silver, his gold, his vessels of bronze, the furniture<sup>b</sup> of his wife, his throne, his bows, his arrows, all his works, which he had brought <sup>37</sup>from his land, consisting of oxen, goats, and asses, [and all were carried away] to the palace, to bring them in, together with the captives. Lo, the wretched chief of Libya was in speed to flee [by himself], while all <sup>38</sup>the people among the captains — — — among the wounded of the sword. Lo, the officers (snn), who were upon the horses of his majesty, set themselves after them — — felled with <sup>39</sup>arrows, carried off, slain, — —.

Retrospect

585. No [man] has seen it in the annals of the kings of Lower Egypt; lo, this land of Egypt was in [the]ir power, in a [state] of weakness in the time of the kings of Upper Egypt, <sup>40</sup>so that their hand could not be repelled, — — — — these — out of love of their beloved son, in order to protect Egypt for her lord, that the temples of Egypt might be saved, and in order to announce <sup>41</sup>the mighty power of the [Good] God — — — —.

Escape of Libyan Chief

586. [The commandant] of the fortress of the West<sup>c</sup> [sent] a report to the Court, L. P. H., saying, as follows: "The fallen Meryey (Mw-

<sup>a</sup>De Rougé found a block containing the beginnings of ll. 36-41; they are to be found in place only in his publication. Later (1901) Legrain found the same block under the débris, and published it (Annales du service, II, 269), without recognizing that it had long before been seen and copied by de Rougé. The recovery of this block, however, shows that the loss at the beginnings of the lines is, for the main part of the inscription, only the space of one course of masonry.

<sup>b</sup>Or: "ornaments."

<sup>c</sup>This is the fort or station referred to by Ramses III (IV, 340; Harris, 51*b*, 3).

רֹד־יֹד־י) has come, his limbs have fled because of his 'cowardice', and (he) passed by me, by favor of night, in safety.<sup>a</sup> 42— — — — want; he is fallen, and every god is for Egypt.<sup>b</sup> The boasts which he uttered, have come to naught; all that his mouth said has returned upon his (own) head. His condition is not known (whether) of death 43[or of life] — — — Thou hast — him of his fame; if he lives, he will not (again) command, (for) he is fallen, an enemy of<sup>c</sup> his (own) troops. It is thou who hast taken us, to cause to slay 44— — — —<sup>d</sup> in the land of Temeh (Ty-m-h-w) [and of Libya<sup>e</sup>]. They have put another into his place, from among his brothers, another who fights him,<sup>f</sup> when he sees him. All the chiefs are 'disgusted' 45— — —."

Triumphal Return

587. [Then returned] the captains of archers, the infantry (mnjy't), and chariotry; every contingent of the army, whether recruits, or heavy armed troops,<sup>g</sup> 46[carried off the plunder] — — [driving] asses before them, laden with the uncircumcised<sup>h</sup> phalli of the country of Libya, together with the hands of every country that was with them, like fish

<sup>a</sup>M rwd.

<sup>b</sup>The rendering is grammatically uncertain; it may possibly also be: "every god has overthrown him for Egypt's sake."

<sup>c</sup>Brugsch's text ends here.

<sup>d</sup>Lepsius' text begins here.

<sup>e</sup>Only the foreign determinative is preserved.

<sup>f</sup>This pronoun is omitted by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, and Mariette, Karnak.

<sup>g</sup>Owing to the connection in the following line, hr kjc w is possibly to be rendered "bore the captures." But see l. 12. In any case, some such statement must have introduced l. 46, or is to be found in the closing words of l. 45.

<sup>h</sup>Lit., "phalli with the foreskins" (Krn't=כרלה). Müller's objections (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 1888, 147 ff.) to this rendering, it seems to me, do not take full account of the use of the word in this text. He maintains that krn't="horn" (long ago suggested by Chabas, Etudes sur l'antiquité historique, 234, n. 2) means simply phallus, because Athribis Stela uses it in the same place where our long text has "phallus," or interchangeably with "phallus." But krn't is something which the Sherden and the other allies did not have (l. 54)! Moreover, it is something connected with the phallus which they did not have. As the phonetic equivalence krn't=כרלה is unexceptionable, it seems to me the rendering "foreskin" is very probable. The question of the homes of these people is in greater uncertainty than the rendering of krn't, and should be decided by this rendering rather than the reverse.

on the grass<sup>1</sup>, and the possessions<sup>47</sup> — — — the enemies of their land. Lo, the whole land rejoiced to heaven; the towns and the districts acclaimed these wonders which had happened; the Nile<sup>48</sup> — — — their — as tribute under the balcony,<sup>a</sup> to cause his majesty to see his conquests.

List of Captives and Slain

588. List of the captives carried off from this land of Libya and the countries which he brought with him; likewise the property<sup>49</sup> — — —<sup>b</sup> [between] the 'château'<sup>c</sup> of Merneptah-Hotepirma [destroyer of]<sup>d</sup> Tehenu (Ty-[h]-nw) which is in Perire (Pr-yr), as far as the upper towns of the country, beginning with "— of Merneptah-Hotepirma."<sup>e</sup>

5 <sup>f</sup> [Children of the chief of Libya whose] <sup>f</sup> uncircumcised phalli [were carried off]	6 men
Children of chiefs, and brothers of the chief of Libya, slain, whose [uncircumcised] phalli were carried off	51 — —
— — Libyans, slain, whose uncircumcised phalli were carried off	6,359
Total, children of great chiefs <sup>g</sup>	52 — —

<sup>a</sup>This is the palace balcony on which the Pharaoh appeared to the people. It is also mentioned in a similar connection in Papyrus Harris (infra, IV, 408), and is several times depicted in the Amarna tombs (e. g., Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 103-9). Cf. also Harmhab Decree (II, 66, l. 9).

<sup>b</sup>Athribis Stela, l. 8 (§ 600).

<sup>c</sup>Pr m<sup>2</sup>. It occurs also in the parallel passage in the Athribis Stela (§ 600, l. 8), and twice in Papyrus Harris (5, 2, and 31, 6, one of which was north of Heliopolis). It is clear that the limits of the flight and pursuit are being given as in the battle under Ramses III; they are given in the Athribis Stela (ll. 8, 9) as the château in Perire and the "mount of the Horns of the Earth;" this terminus is the same as under Ramses III, and of course is the rise of the Libyan desert, or some elevation near it, upon which Ramses III had built a town. (The term, "Horns of the Earth," is also used of the southern limit of territory known to the Egyptians.) Whether the beginning point of the flight, viz., Perire, is the same as H t-š c t, where the flight began under Ramses III, is perhaps uncertain, but the above facts concerning the pr m<sup>2</sup>, and the parallel character of the two invasions would certainly at least place them near together, and it is probable that they are identical. (See also Pr-m<sup>2</sup>, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 40, 102.)

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch has "destroyer of" in this lacuna, but it is in none of the texts.

<sup>e</sup>Probably another place-name.

<sup>f</sup>§ 601, l. 10.

<sup>g</sup>Probably continued by l. 12 of the extract.

— — [Sher]den (— — dy-n ), Shekelesh ( Š - k - rw-š ), Ekwesh ( ḳ - y-w - š ) <sup>a</sup> of the countries of the sea, <sup>a</sup> who had no fore- <sup>53b</sup> skins:
Shekelesh ( Š - k - rw-š )	222 <sup>c</sup> men
Making.	250 <sup>d</sup> hands
Teresh ( Tw-rw-š )	742 <sup>e</sup> men
Making	790 <sup>d</sup> hands
Sherden ( Š - r - d-n-n )	54 — —
[Making]	— —
[Ek]wesh (— — y-w - š ) who had no foreskins, slain, whose hands were carried off, (for) they had no <sup>55</sup> [foreskins]	— — —
— — in heaps, whose uncircumcised phalli were carried off to the place where the king was	6,111 <sup>f</sup> men
Making uncircumcised phalli	56 — —
— — whose hands [were carried off]	2,370 <sup>g</sup> men
Shekelesh ( Š - k - rw-š ) and Teresh ( Tw-rw-š ) who came as enemies of <sup>h</sup> Libya	57 — —
— — Kehek, and Libyans, carried off as living prisoners	218 men

<sup>a</sup>It is noticeable that this designation, both here and in the Athribis Stela (l. 13), is inserted only after the Ekwesh. In the Athribis Stela Ekwesh is cut off by a numeral from the preceding, showing that the designation there belongs only to them.

<sup>b</sup>All the texts indicate a lacuna here at the top of l. 53, and yet the half of the word "foreskin" at the bottom of l. 52 fits exactly the other half at the top of l. 53. This may be an accident, but if correct, then there is no lacuna at top of l. 53, and no place for a number between. The number corresponding to this place in the Athribis Stela (viz., 2201 + x) is not found in this text till l. 56.

<sup>c</sup>Müller's 212 (Asien und Europa, 358) is an error; all four texts have 222.

<sup>d</sup>Why the number of hands cut off should exceed the number of men, when one hand was cut from each man, does not appear.

<sup>e</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, has 750.

<sup>f</sup>Apparently only 6,111 of the 6,359 mentioned in l. 51 were carried before the king.

<sup>g</sup>So Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, and Lepsius, Denkmäler; but Mariette, Karnak, and Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, have 2,362 (none has 72 as in Müller, Asien und Europa, 358).

<sup>h</sup>"O]" is here possessive = "belonging to," not in a hostile sense.

Women of the fallen chief of Libya, whom he brought with him, being alive	12 Libyan women
Total carried off <sup>58</sup> — — — —	9,376 people <sup>a</sup>

List of Spoil

589. Weapons of war which were in their hands, carried off as plunder: copper swords of the Meshwesh ( M-š<sup>2</sup> -w<sup>2</sup> -š<sup>2</sup> )	9,111
<sup>59</sup> — — — — <sup>b</sup>	120,214
Horses which bore the fallen chief of Libya and the children [of the chief of Libya, carried off alive, pairs	12 <sup>c</sup>
<sup>60</sup> Possessions — — — — <sup>d</sup> Meshwesh — — <sup>e</sup> which the army of his majesty, L. P. H., who fought the fallen of Libya, captured: various cattle	1,308 <sup>f</sup>
Goats	61 —
— — various —	64 <sup>g</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This is probably the total of the slain, Libyan and non-Libyan, for the corresponding number in the Athribis Stela (l. 17) has before it: "fallen of Libya, total number;" the non-Libyan foreigners being thus merely designated as of the Libyan party. Of the actual Libyans slain we have a total of 6,359 (l. 51), and of non-Libyan foreigners at least 2,370 (l. 56). This makes a total of 8,729, omitting a few hundred non-Libyans, who would doubtless bring the total up to 9,376, as given in our text above. But it is possible that this number refers only to captives, in this case, as the Athribis Stela gives at least 9,300 killed (l. 17), the total of killed and captured would be over 18,000! See also Müller, Asien und Europa, 358, n. 5.

<sup>b</sup>Probably smaller weapons; at the end is the determinative of a foreign country, probably Libya.

<sup>c</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, shows an uncertain 100, and a 1; Mariette, Karnak, idem; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, a 10 and a 1; Lepsius, Denkmäler, remains of the same; Brugsch (Geschichte, 576) has 113. But the photograph is practically certain as 12.

<sup>d</sup>The last word indicates men, as shown by the determinative.

<sup>e</sup>This space was left empty on the monument; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, says: "Cette partie n'a pas été gravée;" Lepsius, Denkmäler, "leer."

<sup>f</sup>So Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, and Mariette, Karnak; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, and Lepsius, Denkmäler, have 1,307.

<sup>g</sup>So Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, and Lepsius, Denkmäler; Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, and Mariette, Karnak, have 54.

Silver drinking-vessels (tb·w) —<sup>a</sup> (ḫꜣ·pw·r)-vessels, (rhd·t)-vessels, swords, armor, knives,<sup>b</sup> and various vessels 3,174<sup>c</sup>

They were taken away <sup>62</sup>— — — — fire was set to the camp and their tents of leather.

Triumph in the Palace

590. Their lord, the king, appeared, L. P. H., in the broad-hall of the palace, while <sup>63</sup>[the court acclaimed<sup>3</sup>] his majesty, L. P. H., rejoicing at his appearance, which he made. The servants [of his majesty] exulted to heaven; the suite on both sides — —.

Merneptah's Speech

591. <sup>64</sup>[His majesty said]: “— — —<sup>d</sup> because of the good which Re has done for my ka I have delivered their utterance, speaking as a god, who giveth might, whose [decree]<sup>e</sup> has caused that King Merneptah, L. P. H., <sup>65</sup>— — — should unite — as subjects<sup>f</sup> in the midst of their town; Kush likewise bears the tribute of the conquered. I cause him to see (it) in my hand in — <sup>66</sup>— — — — his chief, bringing his impost each year, in — a great slaughter being made among them. He that lives shall fill the temples <sup>67</sup>— — — —. Their fallen chief, fleeing before me, I have put into — — — slay him. He is made a roast, snared like a wild fowl.<sup>g</sup> I have given the land <sup>68</sup>———— for every god. They are born [of the mouth<sup>3</sup>] of the sole lord of Egypt. Fallen is the transgressor — . . . . . — . . . . <sup>69</sup>— — — —, victorious is Re, mighty against the Nine Bows; Sutekh giveth victory and might to Horus, rejoicing in truth, smiting —, King Merneptah, L. P. H. I am <sup>70</sup>— — — — mighty, he is not taken. The Libyans plotted evil things, to do them in Egypt. See! their [protectors<sup>3</sup>] are fallen!

<sup>a</sup>Left empty on original, as in l. 60; after it are the fragmentary names of the two sorts of vessels, and it is possible that the lacuna did not contain a numeral. In that case, the miscellaneous list begins with the silver vessels.

<sup>b</sup>With determinative of copper.

<sup>c</sup>So Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, Mariette, Karnak, and Lepsius, Denkmäler; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, has 3,175.

<sup>d</sup>The lacuna here is evidently longer than usual at the beginning of the lines.

<sup>e</sup>The word has the determinative of speech.

<sup>f</sup>Bk·w, viz., “tax-paying subjects.”

<sup>g</sup>Ramses III makes use of the same figure (IV, 41).

I have slain them, and they are made 71— — — — I have made Egypt to flow with a river; the people love me, as I love them, and give to them breath for their cities. There is rejoicing over my name in heaven and earth 72— — — — they found. My time hath achieved beautiful things in the mouth(s) of the youth, according to the greatness of the excellent things which I did for them. It is true throughout 73— — — — adoring the excellent lord, who has taken the Two Lands, King Merneptah, L. P. H.”

Reply of the Court

592. They said: “How great are these things which have happened to Egypt! — — 74— — — — Libya is like a petitioner, brought as a captive. Thou hast made them to be like grasshoppers, for every road is strewed with their 75[“bodies”]<sup>a</sup> — — — — [“bestowing”] thy provision in the mouth of the needy. We lie down with joy at any time;<sup>b</sup> there being no 76—————<sup>c</sup> . . . . .

II. THE CAIRO COLUMN<sup>d</sup>

593. This document first furnished the date of Merneptah’s great Libyan victory, and was therefore formerly of greater importance than at present.

It contained a shorter account of the announcement of the invasion to the king, which fills out the lacuna in the great Karnak Inscription (§ 579, ll. 12, 13), preceding the announcement. The historical content of the document is as follows:

<sup>a</sup>Brugsch, Wörterbuch, Supplement, 894.

<sup>b</sup>There is perhaps a reference to this in the Athribis Stela (recto, l. 4), where the king is called: one “who causes Egypt to sleep until the morning.” Ll. 76, 77 contain only scanty fragments of conventional phrases; ll. 78 and 79 have each only two signs visible at the bottom. They must be near the end of the inscription, but the exact number of lines lost at the end is uncertain.

<sup>c</sup>These are the last two lines of text preserved; they are too fragmentary for use here. Mariette, Karnak (Texte, 75), states that there are two more lines, but his plate (55) gives ll. 78–80, without any visible signs.

<sup>d</sup>Section of a granite column now in the Cairo Museum, first noticed in the court of the building of the minister of public instruction in Cairo by Brugsch (Geschichte, 577, note); then removed to the museum and published (without the reliefs) by Maspero (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1881, 118).

594. Above is a scene showing Merneptah receiving a sword from a god,<sup>a</sup> who says to him:

"I cause that thou cut down the chiefs of Libya whose invasion thou hast turned back."

595. Below was an inscription in vertical lines, of which only the following is now visible:

<sup>1</sup>Year 5, second month of the third season (tenth month). One came to say to his majesty: "The wretched [chief] of Libya has invaded [with] —,<sup>b</sup> being men and women, Shekelesh (š<sup>3</sup>-k-rw-š<sup>3</sup>)<sup>2</sup>—————."<sup>c</sup>

III. THE ATHRIBIS STELA<sup>d</sup>

596. This monument contains a shorter account of Merneptah's Libyan campaign, closing with a list of the killed, the captured, and the spoil. It forms a useful supplement to the Karnak document, furnishing, among other data, the exact date of the battle in Merneptah's fifth year.

Recto

597. A relief at the top shows Atum at the left and Amon-Re at the right, both seated. The scene before Atum is lost; before Amon-Re appears Merneptah, who receives the sword from the god, and leads to him at the same time seven captives.

<sup>a</sup>Called only "dieu innommé" by Maspero, who has not published the relief; but he states that the heads are lost, and the god therefore unrecognizable.

<sup>b</sup>Name of a country, of which only "—n-r—" is now visible.

<sup>c</sup>Only a few traces.

<sup>d</sup>A granite stela from Athribis in the southern Delta, now in Cairo; published without reliefs by Maspero (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 65-67). It is inscribed on both sides. A piece broken off vertically through the ends of the horizontal lines is now lost, depriving us of several words at the end of each line of the recto, and at the beginning of each line of the verso. The exact amount of the loss is determined on the verso at the beginning of l. 9, by comparison with the Karnak Inscription (§ 588, l. 49). As Maspero has published only from the squeeze, his text (used here) is sometimes uncertain; and a collation of the original is much needed.

Below is an inscription of sixteen lines, mostly conventional praise of the king. It contains the following references to the campaign against the Libyans:

Introduction; Valor of Merneptah

598. Year 5, third month of third season (eleventh month), third day, under the majesty of King [Merneptah] ——— achieving his fame against the land of Temeh . . . . .<sup>4</sup>. . . . . they speak of his victories in the land of Me[shwesh] . . . . .<sup>6</sup>. . . . . who puts Libya under the might of his terror. . . . . ———<sup>7</sup>making their camps into wastes of the Red Land, taking ———<sup>8</sup>every herb that came forth from their fields. No field grew, to keep alive<sup>a</sup> . . .<sup>9</sup>. . .<sup>10</sup>Re himself has cursed the people since they crossed into [Egypt] <sup>11</sup>with one accord. They are delivered to the sword in the hand of Merneptah-Hotephirma. . . . .<sup>12</sup>. . . . . The families of Libya are scattered upon the dykes like mice ———<sup>13</sup>seizing among them like a hawk, (while) there is found among them no place of [refuge] ———<sup>14</sup>like Sekhmet. His arrows fail not among the limbs of his enemies; every survivor<sup>b</sup> among them [is carried off as a living captive] <sup>15</sup>They live on herbs like [wild] cattle ———<sup>16</sup>. . . . .

Verso

599. The other side of the stela shows, at the top, another relief like the first, except that the two gods are here Harkhte and Sutekh. Below it is an inscription of nineteen lines, of which the first four contain only the customary fulsome laudation of the king. Specific references to the Libyan campaign begin with l. 5, as follows:

List of Slain, Captives, and Spoil

600. <sup>5</sup>——— the Meshwesh, desolated forever by the might of the valiant warrior, the Mighty Bull, who gores the Nine Bows. <sup>6</sup>——— [List of] the captives which the mighty sword of the Pharaoh, L. P. H., carried off from the fallen of Libya <sup>7</sup>——— who were on the western shore,<sup>a</sup> whom Amon-Re, king of gods, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of On, Harakhte, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, lord of the life of the Two Lands, and Sutekh, gave <sup>8</sup>[to] King Merneptah; (and of) the slain in [—] between the [château]<sup>b</sup> <sup>9</sup>Merneptah-Hotephirma — — [Tehenu, which is in]<sup>b</sup> Perire (Pr-yrw) and the mount of the “Horns of the Earth.” Statement thereof:

<sup>a</sup>There is an obscure reference in l. 9 to the wells.

<sup>b</sup>Of course read sp nb.

601. Children of the wretched fallen chief of Libya, <sup>10</sup> [whose uncircumcised phalli were carried off] <sup>c</sup>	6 men
Children of chiefs, brothers of the wretched, fallen chief of Libya, carried off <sup>d</sup> as the	—
11 —————	—
— <sup>e</sup> of Libya, slain, whose phalli were carried off	6,200 [+x] <sup>f</sup> men
12 ————— of the families of Libya, slain, whose phalli were carried off	— men
13 —————	200 men
Ekwesh ( <sup>2</sup> - k-w <sup>3</sup> - y-š ) [of] <sup>g</sup> the countries of the sea, whom had brought the wretched
14 <sup>h</sup> fallen chief of Libya, <sup>i</sup> whose <sup>i</sup> hands [were carried off] <sup>j</sup>	2,201 [+x] <sup>k</sup> men
Shekelesh ( <sup>5</sup> - k <sup>2</sup> - rw-š )	200 <sup>l</sup> men
Teresh ( Tw-rw-š )	722 [+x] <sup>m</sup> men
15 ————— Libya, and Sherden ( <sup>5</sup> - r <sup>2</sup> - d-n ), slain	— men
16 —————	32 men

<sup>a</sup>Rwd; see Karnak Inscription (§ 583, l. 30).

<sup>b</sup>See Karnak (§ 588, l. 49 and note).

<sup>c</sup>Karnak (§ 588), l. 50.

<sup>d</sup>Karnak differs, having: “whose [uncircumcised] phalli were carried off.”

<sup>e</sup>With the determinative of people, probably belonging to “families,” now lost in the lacuna.

<sup>f</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 51) has 6,359.

<sup>g</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 52).

<sup>h</sup>Restored from context; Egyptian order of words; “chief” is the subject.

<sup>i</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 54).

<sup>j</sup>Restored from parallel passages in Karnak, e. g., l. 54.

<sup>k</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 56) has 2,370.

<sup>l</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 53) has 222.

<sup>m</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 53) has 742.

Women of the wretched chief of Libya	[12 Libyan] <sup>a</sup> women
<sup>17</sup> ———— the fallen of Libya, total number	9,300 [+x] <sup>b</sup>
<sup>18</sup> ————	5,224 [+x] <sup>c</sup>
Bows, — — —	2,000 [+x]
<sup>19</sup> ———— gold ———.

IV. HYMN ON THE VICTORY OVER THE LIBYANS<sup>d</sup> (ISRAEL STELA)

602. This composition is one of a class common in the Nineteenth Dynasty. It is a poetic encomium in celebration of the great victory of Merneptah over the Libyans in the fifth year of his reign. It adds nothing to the facts furnished by the Karnak inscription (§§ 572-92) concerning this victory, except the picturesque description of the joy and relief among the Egyptians (ll. 21-26, § 616). Without the Karnak inscription little could have been gathered from this document of the importance of Merneptah's victory, or the gravity of the danger from which it brought relief; for, as Spiegelberg has remarked, it never even mentions the northern allies of the Libyans. Many of the descriptive passages too, are so figurative and highly colored as to be unintelligible.

<sup>a</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 57).

<sup>b</sup>Karnak (§ 588, l. 58) has 9,376.

<sup>c</sup>This numeral refers to the weapons, etc., beginning in l. 58 (Karnak, § 589).

<sup>d</sup>On a stela discovered by Petrie in the ruins of Merneptah's mortuary temple at Thebes, in 1896. The inscription occupies the back of the stela of Amenhotep III, taken from his mortuary temple by Merneptah (see II, § 878). It was first published by Spiegelberg (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 34, 1 ff.), and again by him (Six Temples, Pls. XIII, XIV). I had also photographs, kindly sent me by E. Brugsch-Bey, made by him on a large scale from a squeeze. There is a duplicate original in Karnak, of which only a fragment has survived. It is published by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 1), and by Erman (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 34). I have collated it for the accompanying translation. A considerable literature on the Israel passage has arisen, which will be found on p. 257, note. On the elucidation of the text in general, besides Spiegelberg's commentary (with his publication of the text), see: Piehl, Sphinx, IV, 125; Müller, Recueil, XX, 31, 32; Griffith, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XIX, 1897, 293-300.

603. The monument has attracted wide attention, because of the reference to Israel in the last section. This is the earliest mention of Israel known to us in literature, not excluding the Hebrew Scriptures themselves. It occurs in a clear-cut strophe (§ 617) of twelve lines, which forms the conclusion of the composition. This strophe opens and closes with a couplet containing a universal statement of the subjugation of foreign peoples in general, while the eight lines between are a rapid list of certain of the defeated foreigners, among whom is Israel. The assertion of the defeat of Israel is so brief and bald that little can be drawn from it. Moreover, it is made up of conventional phrases, applied also to other peoples. Much has been made of the second phrase, "his seed (pr't) is not." It has been applied to the seed<sup>a</sup> of Israel and referred to the slaying of the male children of the Israelites by the Egyptians! But this phrase is found five times<sup>a</sup> elsewhere in the inscriptions referring to a number of other peoples as follows:

---

<sup>a</sup>The treatment which this phrase has received by some biblical scholars furnishes another curious example of the totally misleading use of such evidence, where it is received at second hand. Thus in the Expositor (March, 1897, 161, note) we find the statement that Spiegelberg renders this phrase ("his seed is not") thus: "without fear" (!). An examination shows that Spiegelberg, translating into German, quite properly rendered the phrase: "ohne Frucht" ("without fruit"). The German "Frucht" was then misread by the writer in the Expositor as "Furcht" = "fear"! From the Expositor this absurdity then passed into other articles and gained currency. Some of the essays on the passage are therefore to be used with the greatest caution; but see: Hommel, Neue Kirchliche Zeitschrift, VII, 581-86; Müller, Independent, July 9, 1896, 940; Sellin, Neue Kirchliche Zeitschrift, VII, 502-14; Molandre, Revue des religions, September-October, 1897, Steindorff, Zeitschrift für alttestamentliche Wissenschaft, XVI, 1896, 330-33; and Mittheilungen des Deutschen Palästinischen Vereins, 1896, 45, 46; Marshall, Expositor, July, 1896; Petrie, Contemporary Review, May, 1896, 617-27; and Century Magazine, August, 1896; Spiegelberg, Sitzungsberichte der Preussischen Akademie, 1896, 593 ff.; Naville, Recueil, XX, 32-37; Brandt, Theologische Tijdschrift, 1896, 505-12; Fries, Sphinx, I, 208 ff.; Daressy, Revue archéologique, XXXIII, 263 ff.; Wiedemann, Le Muséon, XVII, 89-107; Halévy, Revue sémitique, 1896, 285 ff. Breasted, Biblical World, January, 1897, 62-68. A useful presentation of the various views on the passage is given by Moore, Presbyterian Quarterly, January, 1898.

604. 1. "Those who reached my border are desolated, their seed is not" (referring to northern invaders).<sup>b</sup>

2. "The Libyans and the Seped are wasted, their seed is not."<sup>c</sup>

3. "The fire has penetrated us, our seed is not" (words of defeated Libyans).<sup>d</sup>

4. "Their cities are made ashes, wasted, desolated; their seed is not" (referring to the Meshwesh).<sup>e</sup>

5. "[Gored] is the chief of [Amor], . . . . his seed is not."<sup>f</sup>

605. The words, "his (their, our) seed is not," are, therefore, a conventional phrase applicable to any defeated and plundered people, and cannot possibly designate an incident peculiar to the history of Israel, like the slaying of the male children(!). Israel, clearly located among Palestinian peoples by the inscription, was defeated and plundered by Merneptah. This inscription is not the only evidence of a campaign by him in Palestine, although the fact seems to have been entirely overlooked in the discussion of the Israel passage. Merneptah was in Asia in his third year, as the journal of a border commandant shows (§ 633, VI. 9; § 635, V, 5).

606. An invasion of Palestine by Merneptah is further

<sup>a</sup>See Breasted, Biblical World, January, 1897, 66. Three of these examples were quoted also by Spiegelberg (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 34, 23). I have there rendered pr' t as "grain," but further study of the parallel texts has led me to modify that rendering.

<sup>b</sup>War of Ramses III's eighth year against sea-peoples (IV, 66, l. 23).

<sup>c</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, XXXIV, l. 36.

<sup>d</sup>Libyan war of Ramses III's fifth year (IV, 43, l. 47).

<sup>e</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, XX, l. 2.

<sup>f</sup>Libyan war of Ramses III's fifth year (IV, 39, ll. 13, 14).

evident from the epithet assumed by him among his titles: “Binder of Gezer ( $k^{\text{3}}$  - $d^{\text{3}}$  - $r^{\text{3}}$ ),<sup>a</sup> which town he must have captured and punished after revolt, as indicated also in our Hymn of Victory (l. 27). For the mention of a specific town, or even nation, in such an epithet, in a titulary must refer to some definite occurrence. In the same way Ramses III called himself in his titulary “Conqueror of the Meshwesh (IV, 84), and had the records of his defeat of the Meshwesh perished, we should still be justified in concluding that he had overthrown them.<sup>b</sup> It is certain, therefore, that Merneptah campaigned in Palestine, and there can be no doubt that Israel there suffered defeat and pillage at his hands.

Date and Introduction

607. Year 5, third month of the third season (eleventh month), third day, under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, Rejoicing<sup>c</sup> in Truth; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Binre-Meriamon, Son of Re: Merneptah-Hotephirma, magnifying might, exalting the victorious sword of Horus, mighty Bull, smiter of the Nine Bows, whose name is given forever and ever.

The Great Deliverance

608. His victories are published in all lands, to cause that every land together may see, to cause the glory of his conquests to appear; King Merneptah,<sup>d</sup> the Bull, lord of strength, who slays his foes, beautiful upon the field of victory, when his onset<sup>e</sup> occurs; the Sun,<sup>f</sup> driving

<sup>a</sup>From an inscription of thirteen lines in the temple of Amâda, published by Bouriant (Recueil, 18, 159, 160). It records a revolt in Wawat, which Merneptah subdued, “seeking out the enemy in this entire land, to prevent their [—] to revolt a second time” (l. 10). The publication is so inaccurate that a translation of the whole is quite impossible.

<sup>b</sup>See a similar epithet applied to Thutmose IV (II, 822).

<sup>c</sup>The sign is  $k^{\text{3}}$  (“be high”), but, as Piehl has remarked (Sphinx, IV, 126), the variants show that  $h^{\text{c}}$   $y$ , “rejoice,” is to be read.

<sup>d</sup>The double name in the text is from here on abbreviated as above.

<sup>e</sup>A word (hnd) used especially of the charge of a bull. (See Piehl, Sphinx, IV, 128.)

<sup>f</sup>Text has “Shu,” a sun-god. See Piehl, ibid., 127.

away <sup>3</sup>the storm which was over Egypt, allowing Egypt to see the rays of the sun, removing the mountain of copper from the neck of the people so that he might give breath to the people who were smothered. He gratified the heart of Memphis on their foes, making Tatenen rejoice over his enemies. He opened the gates of the walled city<sup>a</sup> which were stopped up, and caused <sup>4</sup>his temples to receive their food (even), King Merneptah, the unique one, who establishes the hearts of hundreds of thousands of myriads, so that breath enters into their nostrils at the sight of him. He has penetrated the land of Temeh in his lifetime, and put eternal fear <sup>5</sup>in the heart of the Meshwesh. He has turned back Libya, who invaded Egypt, and great fear of Egypt is in their hearts

The Rout of the Libyans

609. Their advanced columns<sup>b</sup> they left behind them, their feet made no stand, but fled. Their archers threw down their bows, and the heart of their fleet ones was weary <sup>6</sup>with marching. They loosed their water skins<sup>c</sup> and threw them to the ground, their ~~l—~~<sup>d</sup> were taken and thrown out.

The Fall of the Libyan Chief

610. The wretched, fallen chief of Libya, fled by favor of night alone,<sup>e</sup> with no plume upon his head, his two feet <sup>f</sup>failed<sup>g</sup>. His women were taken <sup>7</sup>before his face, the grain of his supplies was plundered, and he had no water in the skin to keep him alive. The face of his brothers was hostile to slay him, one fought another among his leaders.<sup>f</sup> Their camp was burned and made a roast,<sup>g</sup> all his possessions were food <sup>8</sup>for the troops. When he arrived in his country, he was the complaint of every one in his land. <sup>h</sup>Ashamed<sup>h</sup>, he bowed himself<sup>h</sup> down, an evil

<sup>a</sup>Memphis.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "their marchers forward."

<sup>c</sup>Not "tents" (Müller, Recueil, XX, 31), which is a masculine noun (see Harkhuf, I, 353, l. 20, and Karnak, § 589, l. 62), while hn't, "water skin," above, is feminine. Tents were not borne by the troops on the march.

<sup>d</sup>Spiegelberg has: "ihre Säcke (?) wurden genommen und ausgeschüttet (?)."

<sup>e</sup>Cf. Karnak, § 586, l. 41.

<sup>f</sup>Compare Karnak, l. 44.

<sup>g</sup>The figure is that of a snared bird in Karnak (l. 67), where the same phrase occurs (see also Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 139, l. 4, for the same phrase). The figure is continued above in the next parallel phrase.

<sup>h</sup>Read šsp'j ksw, as in Sinuhe (ll. 17, 18, I, 493).

fate removed (his) plume. They all spoke against him, among the inhabitants of his city: "He is in the power of the gods, the lords of Memphis; the lord of Egypt has cursed his name, Meryey (m-w-r<sup>2</sup>-y<sup>2</sup>-y), the abomination of Memphis, from son to son of his family, forever. Binre-Meriamon is in pursuit of his children; Merneptah-Hotephirma is appointed to be his fate."

Merneptah's Fame in Libya

611. He has become a <sup>10</sup>proverb<sup>a</sup> for Libya (R<sup>2</sup>-bw); the youth say to youth, concerning his victories: "It has not been done to us <sup>11</sup>before<sup>3</sup> since the time of Re," say they.<sup>b</sup> Every old man says to his son: "Alas for Libya!" They have ceased to live in the pleasant fashion of walking in the field; their going about is stopped in a single <sup>12</sup>day. The Tehenu are consumed in a single year. Sutekh has turned his back upon their chief; their settlements are desolated with his <sup>13</sup>consent<sup>1</sup>. There is no work of carrying <sup>14</sup>in these days. Concealment is good; there is safety in the cavern.<sup>d</sup> The great lord of Egypt, possessor of might <sup>15</sup>and victory! Who will fight, knowing his stride? The fool, the witless is he who receives him;<sup>e</sup> he shall not know the morrow, who transgresses his boundary.

Divine Protection of Egypt

612. Since the time of the gods, say they, Egypt has been the only daughter of Re; his son is he who <sup>16</sup>sits upon the throne of Shu. No one can make a design to invade her people, for the eye of every god is behind him who would violate her; it (the eye)<sup>f</sup> captures the rear of her foes. <sup>17</sup>A great wonder has happened for Egypt, <sup>18</sup>the <sup>a</sup>Lit., "he has become the striking of a proverb (sḏd't);" compare the Arabic ضرب مثلا.

<sup>b</sup>It is the Libyan youth who speak, in spite of their reference to Re. The Puntites are also made to refer to Re in Hatshepsut's reliefs.

<sup>c</sup>Spiegelberg suggests "Körbe."

<sup>d</sup>See Müller, Recueil, XX, 31.

<sup>e</sup>Meaning his onset in battle.

<sup>f</sup>The feminine pronoun (nt, "she") above translated "it," might refer to Egypt, but the parallelism shows that it must refer to "eye," which is feminine.

<sup>g</sup>This phrase, to the end of l. 13, is corrupt.

<sup>h</sup>Lit., "the hand of which."

power of which has made her invader a living prisoner. The divine king [exults] over his enemies, in the presence of Re. Meryey (M-r<sup>3</sup>-y<sup>3</sup>-y), the evil-doer, whom the god, the lord who is in Memphis, has overthrown, he has been judged <sup>15</sup>with him in Heliopolis, and the divine ennead declared him guilty of his crimes.

Merneptah Divinely Appointed

613. The All-Lord has said: "Give the sword to my son, the upright of heart, the good and kindly Merneptah, the [champion] on behalf of Memphis, the advocate of <sup>16</sup>Heliopolis, who opens the towns that were closed up. Let him set free multitudes who are bound in every district, let him give offerings to the temples, let him send in incense before the god, let him cause the princes to [recover] their possessions, let him cause the poor to [re-enter] their cities."

Heliopolis Praises Merneptah

614. They say among the lords of Heliopolis <sup>17</sup>regarding their son, Merneptah: "Give to him duration like Re, let him be advocate of him who is oppressed in every country. Egypt has been assigned to him as the portion of [him who has gained it] for himself forever. His strength is its people. Lo, when one dwells in the time of this hero, the breath <sup>18</sup>of life<sup>a</sup> comes immediately. . . . . so they say.

The Gods Delivered Meryey to Merneptah

615. Meryey (M-w-r<sup>3</sup>-wy-y), <sup>19</sup>the wretched, vanquished chief of Libya, came to invade the "Walls-of-the-Sovereign" (Memphis), [who is its lord,] whose son shines on his throne, the King Merneptah. Ptah<sup>b</sup> said concerning the vanquished (chief)<sup>c</sup> of Libya: "All his crimes shall be gathered <sup>20</sup>and returned upon his (own) head. Deliver him into the hand of Merneptah, that he may make him disgorge what he has swallowed, like a crocodile. Behold, the swift is the captor of the swift; and the king shall snare him, (though) his strength be known; for Amon shall bind him in his hand and shall deliver him to his ka <sup>21</sup>in Hermonthis, (to him) the King Merneptah."

<sup>a</sup>It is regularly the king who furnishes his people with the breath of life; cf. also l. 4.

<sup>b</sup>The Karnak fragment has "Amon."

<sup>c</sup>Karnak fragment has: "concerning him of Libya (p-n-Rbw)."

Rejoicing of the Egyptians

616. Great joy has come in Egypt, rejoicing comes forth from the towns of Tomeri.<sup>a</sup> They converse of the victories which Merneptah has achieved among the Tehenu: "How amiable <sup>22</sup>is he, the victorious ruler! How magnified is the king among the gods! How fortunate is he, the commanding lord! Sit happily down and talk, or walk far out upon the way, (for) there is no fear in the heart of the people. <sup>23</sup>The strongholds are left to themselves, the wells are opened (again). The messengers <sup>24</sup>skirt the battlements of the walls, shaded<sup>b</sup> from the sun, until their watchmen wake.<sup>c</sup> The soldiers lie sleeping, and the border <sup>24</sup>scouts are in the field at their (own)<sup>d</sup> desire. The herds of the field are left as cattle sent forth, without herdmen, crossing (at will) the fulness of the stream. There is no uplifting of a shout in the night: 'Stop! Behold, one comes, one comes with the speech of strangers!'<sup>e</sup> One comes <sup>25</sup>and goes with singing, and there is no lamentation of mourning people. The towns are settled again anew; as for the one that ploweth his harvest, he shall eat it. Re has turned himself to Egypt; he was born, destined to be <sup>26</sup>her protector, the King Merneptah."

Concluding Strophe

617. "The kings are overthrown, saying: "Salâm!"<sup>f</sup>
 Not one holds up his head among the Nine Bows.
 Wasted is Tehenu,
 Kheta<sup>g</sup> is pacified,
 Plundered is Pекanan<sup>h</sup> (P<sup>o</sup> -k<sup>o</sup> -n<sup>c</sup> -n<sup>c</sup>, sic!), with every evil,
<sup>27</sup>Carried off is Askalon (o<sup>o</sup> -s-k<sup>o</sup> -r-ny),
 Seized upon is Gezer (K<sup>o</sup> -d<sup>o</sup> -r<sup>o</sup>),

<sup>a</sup>Another name for Egypt.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "cool from the sun."

<sup>c</sup>The watchmen who should receive the messenger's news are asleep, and the messenger walks in the shade of the wall till they wake, as his message is not in haste as in time of war.

<sup>d</sup>That is, whether they like or not; they may patrol or not as they wish.

<sup>e</sup>Meaning the cry of the sentinels that men of foreign speech (viz., Libyans) are coming.

<sup>f</sup>The Libyans are represented as also using this Semitic word in Ramses III's war with them (fifth year, IV, 43, l. 50, and IV, 45, l. 56).

<sup>g</sup>See Great Karnak Inscription (§ 580, l. 24).

<sup>h</sup>Lit., "the Canaan."

Yenoam (Y-nw-c<sup>3</sup>-mw) is made as a thing not existing.
 Israel (ꜥ-s-r-ꜥ-r) is desolated, his seed is not;
 Palestine (H<sup>ꜥ</sup>-rw) has become a widow<sup>a</sup> <sup>28</sup>for Egypt.
 All lands are united, they are pacified;
 Everyone that is turbulent is bound by King Merneptah, given life like Re, every day.

INSCRIPTIONS OF THE HIGH PRIEST OF AMON, ROY

618. The documents left by Roy are of the greatest importance as showing when the office of High Priest of Amon was for the first time transmitted from father to son, and thus came to be regarded as hereditary. Moreover, an examination of them discloses the fact that this arrogation of power by the High Priest of Amon took place under Merneptah, not at the close of the Nineteenth Dynasty, as commonly supposed, but at the latest in the reign of Merneptah, and possibly still earlier, in the reign of Ramses II. Roy lived in the reign of Merneptah (§§ 628 ff.), and inherited the high priesthood of Amon from his father, Rome, heretofore considered his son.<sup>b</sup> Roy's father, Rome, therefore lived under Ramses II, and must have been the successor of Beknekhonsu<sup>c</sup> (§§ 561-68). Roy's son was named Bekne-

<sup>a</sup>The meaning of this phrase is rendered evident by an epithet applied to Ramses II on his Tanis stela (§ 490, l. 9), viz., "husband of Egypt," meaning, of course, "protector of Egypt." Hence a land may be widowed (=without a "husband," =without a protector), and Palestine had no protector against Egypt.

<sup>b</sup>Since the above was written Wreszcinski's very useful list of the high priests of Amon has appeared (Die Hohenpriester des Amon, von W. Wreszcinski, Berlin, 1904), in which he also makes Rome the elder, and probably the father of Roy (ibid., 14, note).

<sup>c</sup>Beginning sixty years from some point in the reign of Seti I, Beknekhonsu was High Priest of Amon for twenty-seven years. This brings the close of his term to at least the sixtieth year of Ramses II's reign, so that Rome must have succeeded him. It can hardly be an accident that one of the prophets of Amon in Ramses II's forty-sixth year, under the high priesthood of Beknekhonsu, was named Rome (Berlin legal papyrus No. 3047; Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1879, l. 5).

khonsu;<sup>a</sup> hence, as the name thus appears in Roy's family, he (Roy) may have been the grandson of the Beknekhonsu of Ramses II's reign, in which case the hereditary character of the office began with Beknekhonsu. Roy survived into the reign of Seti II; but already under Merneptah he succeeded in gaining high office for his son, with prospects of succeeding to the high priesthood. According to Legrain, his statue recently found in the great Karnak cache bears the following statement:

“Le roi a donné que mes enfants soient rassemblés en corporation (tribu) de mon sang, les établissant parmi les prophètes qui sont sous sa direction. Moi, je suis premier prophète d'Amon, et mon fils est établi à côté de moi en qualité de second prophète et de sous-directeur du palais du roi à l'occident de Thèbes; le fils de mon fils recevra les titres de quatrième prophète d'Amon, de père divin, d'officier et de prêtre.”<sup>b</sup>

Legrain has accepted the current conclusion that Roy was the father of Rome, and hence identifies Roy's son above, who became second prophet, with Rome. The narrative of Roy, however, does not give the name of his son; but it is given in the Karnak relief (§ 620) as Beknekhonsu, who must therefore be the son referred to on this new Karnak statue.<sup>c</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1321.

<sup>b</sup>Recueil, 27, 72. Legrain gives no text.

<sup>c</sup>As now published (Recueil, 27), Legrain's data furnish no evidence that Roy was the father, and Rome his son. The fact that he is able to reconstruct from Twenty-second Dynasty statues a genealogy reaching back to a second prophet, Rome, has no bearing. We know that our Rome is called High Priest of Amon on contemporary monuments; hence the second prophet, Rome, who heads Legrain's genealogy (Recueil, 27, 73), was evidently a different person. The monuments found by Legrain, when published in extenso, may contain evidence that Rome was the son and Roy the father; for I admit that some difficulties attend the supposition that the reverse was true; but the evidence now accessible is certainly strongly in favor of this conclusion.

I. KARNAK INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

619. This document is of importance, first, because of its place, viz., on the walls of the Karnak temple of Amon, where heretofore none but the Pharaoh's name might appear. At the east end of Pylon VIII, built by Thutmose I, was the kitchen<sup>b</sup> or refectory of the high priests of Amon. In view of the extensive household of the high priests at this time, it must have been a considerable building. In Roy's time it had fallen into ruin; and in the reign of Merneptah (§ 625) Roy rebuilt and enlarged it. On the east end of Pylon VIII, near the entrance to the building, where all who went in would see it, he left a record of his pious work, calling upon all the bakers, confectioners, and the like, who daily entered there, to remember him for it and to pray to Amon for him. To this record he prefixed a hymn of praise to Amon, which he placed in the mouth of his deceased father, Rome. Rome recounts his own long life accorded him by Amon, and adds: "My son is in my place, my office is in his hand, in hereditary succession, forever" (l. 6). Rome is thus represented as regarding the hereditary character of the office of High Priest as a matter of course; which would indicate that the beginning of the hereditary succession was earlier, as indicated above (§ 618). The use of the temple wall, and the restoration of one of its connected buildings by the High Priest of Amon, are significant symptoms of the tendency which two hundred years later placed the High Priest on the throne of Egypt.

<sup>a</sup>On the east end of Pylon VIII, overlooking the sacred lake; published: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 237, c; Stern, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, XI, 74 ff. (partially); and Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1321, 1322 (partially). I had a photograph (for which I am indebted to Borchart) which filled out many of the lacunæ in Lepsius, Denkmäler, and made possible the study of the document as a whole, which, as it has not been done since Stern (1873), furnishes new and important facts.

<sup>b</sup>The dwelling of the High Priest was farther east, south of the lake.

620. Beside the inscription, in relief, are two priests in the attitude of prayer; the first must be Roy, though no name is appended; for the second figure is not Roy (as shown by the accompanying inscription). The second figure is accompanied by the words:<sup>a</sup> "His son, the second prophet of Amon, Beknekhonsu." This second figure and the name have been chiseled out by political enemies, probably at the fall of Seti II, into whose reign Roy survived.

The inscription is as follows:

Praise by Rome

621. Giving praise to Amon-Re, smelling the earth to his beautiful face, by the High Priest of Amon, Rome (R<sup>o</sup>-m). He says: . . . . .

Here follows conventional praise of the god, with a prayer for the king,<sup>b</sup> after which Rome proceeds:

Speech of Rome

622. "4Thou didst grant<sup>c</sup> me long life carrying thy image, while my eye beheld thy two uraei every day, and my limbs were endued with health . . . . .<sup>5</sup>. . . . Thou didst prolong my existence during a pleas-

<sup>a</sup>Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1321; I cannot see any traces of the name on the photograph, but the title is legible as above.

<sup>b</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, gives the name as that of Seti II, like the two scenes on the left; but I cannot read this name on the photograph. It was not read by either Stern or Brugsch. If Lepsius has not introduced it from the neighboring adoration of Amon by Seti II, and it actually stands in our passage, it must be a prayer for the king put into the mouth of the deceased Rome; just as the deceased Seti I is made to pray for Ramses II at Abydos. Our inscription in that case dates from the reign of Seti II. The matter can be settled only by an examination of the original; but historically the reasons against reading Seti II are strong, for Roy would then have been High Priest through the reigns of successive kings hostile to each other, Merneptah, Amenmeses, Siptah, and Seti II, in whose quarrels the High Priest of Amon was, of course, involved. It is not likely that the same High Priest continued under them all.

<sup>c</sup>The tense of the original permits translating all the following as a prayer until l. 6, where the nominal sentence, "my son is, etc.," cannot be optative. Hence the whole is historical, and not a prayer. Again, as both Rome and Roy are given the title High Priest of Amon, one of them must be dead; and the deceased is of course he whose son has succeeded him. Hence we must conclude that Rome is the father, and not the son (otherwise Maspero, Momies royales, 666).

ant life, abiding in thy temple, while my limbs were [sound], following thy ka, while my eye beheld the way, until I arrived at the West<sup>a</sup> of Thebes, satisfied with seeing Amon. <sup>6</sup>My son is in my place, my office is in his hand, <sup>b</sup>in hereditary succession<sup>b</sup> forever, as is done for a just man, profitable in the house of his lord.”

Introduction of Roy's Speech

623. For<sup>c</sup> the ka of the only excellent and just one, the favored of his god, Amon, profitable to Mut, and amiable to Khonsu, pleasing the heart of the Lord of the Two Lands; <sup>7</sup>hereditary prince, divine father, pure of hands, master of secrets of heaven, earth, and the nether world, [—] of Kamephis (Amon), sem priest in the eternal horizon,<sup>d</sup> great seer of Re-Atum in Thebes, third prophet of Amon, second prophet of Amon, High Priest<sup>e</sup> of Amon, Roy, triumphant. He saith:

Roy's Speech

624. <sup>8</sup>“O ye priests and scribes of the house of Amon, good servants of the divine offerings,<sup>f</sup> bakers, mixers,<sup>g</sup> confectioners, makers of cakes, and loaves,<sup>h</sup> those who perform their every duty for their lord; who shall enter into this refectory,<sup>i</sup> which is in [the house of Amon]. <sup>9</sup>——— daily; [pray] for me because of my good and great deeds.”

Roy's Restoration

625. “I found this house (c' t) in complete ruin; its walls falling, the woodwork wretched, the doorposts of wood perishing, the paint [faded].

<sup>a</sup>The cemetery; meaning till he died.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “one, son of another forever” (w c s w c), which is a phrase for hereditary succession. Only the second w c is here clearly preserved, but on the photograph I can see the feet of the s w-goose and one end of the first w c-harpoon. In view of the occurrence of the same phrase in l. 12, there can be no doubt about the reading here. The hereditary character of the high priesthood of Amon is thus proven.

<sup>c</sup>It is possible that this still belongs to Rome's speech, which does not alter the conclusions drawn from the inscription; “for the ka, etc.,” being then a second dative after “done.”

<sup>d</sup>The king's tomb.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., “first prophet.”

<sup>f</sup>Temple income; servants who handle the naturalia of the temple income are meant.

<sup>g</sup>Or: “kneaders” (c i p).

<sup>h</sup>Three sorts of loaves are given: sn't, by't, and prsn.

<sup>i</sup>Or: “kitchen” (w c b't).

I [flaid it out] <sup>10</sup>with increase throughout, heightened and widened and <sup>11</sup>established<sup>1</sup>. I made its doorposts of sandstone, I mounted upon them doors of real cedar; a [pla]ce for the bakers and mixers who are in it. I made it a better work than before, for the protection [of the servants] <sup>12</sup>of Amon, lord of gods.”

Roy's Admonition

626. “Give ye heed and hear ye what I say! Trespass not against any thing which I have made; prosper my name, — my virtues (sp), speak favorably for me in the presence of Amon; then shall he favor you, — according as he does — — [eye shall attain] <sup>12</sup>old age in his house, his food shall be yours, ye shall bequeath (your offices) to your children <sup>13</sup>in hereditary succession<sup>a</sup> in his house forever. Place offerings <sup>13</sup>before my statue,<sup>b</sup> pour out libations upon the ground for my name, set flowers before me when ye enter, <sup>14</sup>bespeak for me his favor with a loving heart for my god, Amon, lord of gods. Then shall be given to you <sup>15</sup>other things which — —. Cause [this writing] to be read, in order to do according to my sayings <sup>16</sup>which are before you. Put my good reputation in the mouth of the youth, according as I have done excellent things in the House of Amon <sup>17</sup>on every occasion, — — Amon, because of these my —. May he grant me 110 years bearing <sup>18</sup>[his] image ———— forever. I said <sup>19</sup>in my heart ———— his ka.” For the ka of the High Priest of Amon, Roy.<sup>c</sup>

II. SILSILEH STELA<sup>d</sup>

627. The building which Roy erected at Karnak was partially of sandstone, and as the High Priest of Amon was regularly chief architect of the buildings at Karnak, it is

<sup>a</sup>W c s s w e, as restored in l. 6 above, q. v.

<sup>b</sup>His statue must have been in the temple near this place.

<sup>c</sup>A relief (Lepsius, Denkmäler, 237, c) beside this long inscription shows Rome and Roy kneeling with upraised hands before two royal cartouches, the names in which are chiseled out. Lepsius' notebook offers no help as to their reading. The two men have each the title “High Priest of Amon.” There is no sign of the relationship between them, and both are m s hrw (“triumphant”)! Below are the words: “The assistant whom his majesty taught, the High Priest of Amon, Rome, made (it).” If made in the lifetime of Rome, the expunged names will be those of Merneptah. Over this scene is one showing Seti II worshiping Amon; it has no necessary connection with that of Rome and Roy.

<sup>d</sup>Champollion, Monuments, 102 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 200, a.

probable that Roy went to Silsileh himself to superintend the quarrying of the sandstone for his building at Karnak. Our inscription does not state the object of his visit, but nothing else is known to us which would bring the High Priest of Amon to Silsileh. This dates Roy's building in Merneptah's reign.

628. The stela shows King Merneptah and Roy worshipping before Amon. Below are the name and titles of Roy as in above Karnak inscription (§ 625, ll. 6, 7). Down each side is a prayer, one for Roy, and the other for Rome, with no statement of the relationship between them. Both bear the title, "High Priest of Amon," which they could not have borne simultaneously. One is, therefore, already deceased in Merneptah's reign, and as Roy appears assisting the king in the relief, it is Rome who is the deceased father. Hence the old supposition that Rome was the son and still lived under Seti II is incorrect, as we found was indicated also by the Karnak inscription. Rome, therefore, if deceased in Merneptah's short reign, must have been High Priest of Amon during the latter part of Ramses II's reign, and possibly survived into the reign of Merneptah.<sup>a</sup>

---

DAYBOOK OF A FRONTIER OFFICIAL<sup>b</sup>

629. On the blank backs of a few pages of a school copy-book an official in some town<sup>c</sup> on the Palestinian frontier, in the days of Merneptah, has noted for temporary reference

---

<sup>a</sup>The other inscriptions mentioning Roy are of no historical importance: a carnelian buckle with his name and titles is in Paris (Bibliothèque Nationale, No. 1468, bis), and a mortuary stela of one of his subordinates is in Leyden (V, 8). I owe the first reference to Dr. Wreszcinski.

<sup>b</sup>Papyrus Anastasi III, British Museum, 10246, Pls. VI and V, verso, of the "Select Papyri." I had also a collation of the original for the Berlin Dictionary by Steindorff. See Erman, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 29, 32, and Life in Ancient Egypt, 538 f.

<sup>c</sup>Erman thinks he was in the well-known frontier town of Tharu.

the names and the business of the messengers who passed through the place on their way to Syria. In addition to the important and interesting glimpse of the active intercourse between Egypt and Syria in the thirteenth century B. C., which the document affords us, it is of importance also as showing that Merneptah in his third year was in Syria, undoubtedly on the campaign during which he plundered Israel, as related in his Hymn of Victory of the year 5 (§ 617).

The notes are of the most hurried character, and so abbreviated that the prepositions are omitted.

Fifteenth Day

630. VI<sup>1</sup>Year 3, first month of the third season (ninth month), fifteenth day:

There went up the servant of Baal, Roy ( $R^{\circ} - y$ ), son of Zeper ( $\underline{D}^{\circ} - pw - r^{\circ}$ ) of Gaza ( $G^{\circ} - \underline{d}^{\circ} - y$ , sic!), <sup>2</sup>who had with him for Syria ( $H^{\circ} - rw$ ) two different letters, to wit: (for) the captain of infantry, Khay ( $H^{\circ} - y$ ), one letter; <sup>3</sup>(for) the chief of Tyre, Baalat-Remeg ( $B - c - l - tw - R^{\circ} - m - g - w$ ), one letter.

Seventeenth Day

631. Year 3, first month of the third season (ninth month), seventeenth day:

<sup>4</sup>There arrived the captains of the archers of the Well of Merneptah-Hotepirma, L. P. H., <sup>5</sup>which is (on) the highland, to <sup>6</sup>report<sup>7</sup> in the fortress which is in Tharu ( $T^{\circ} - rw$ ).

Uncertain Day

632. <sup>6</sup>Year 3, first month of the third season (ninth month), <sup>7</sup>—<sup>8</sup>th<sup>9</sup> day:

There returned the attendant, Thutiy, son of Thekerem ( $T^{\circ} - k^{\circ} - rw - m$ ) of Geket ( $G^{\circ} - k^{\circ} - ty$ ); <sup>b</sup><sup>7</sup>Methdet ( $M - t^{\circ} - dw - ty - w$ ), son of Shem-Baal ( $S^{\circ} - m - B - c - r^{\circ}$ ) (of) the same (town); <sup>8</sup>Sutekhmose, son of Eperdegel ( $c - pr - d - g^{\circ} - r^{\circ}$ ) (of) the same (town), <sup>9</sup>who had with him, for the place where the king was, (for) the captain of infantry, Khay ( $\overline{H}^c y$ ),<sup>a</sup> [gifts] ( $ym tw$ , sic!) and a letter.

<sup>a</sup>The original looks like r2!

<sup>b</sup>Perhaps an error for  $G^{\circ} - \underline{d}^{\circ} - ty =$  Gaza.

633. V<sup>r</sup>There went up the attendant, Nakhtamon, son of Thara ( $\overline{T}^o - r^o$ ) of the Stronghold of Merneptah-Hotepharma, L. P. H.,<sup>2</sup> who journeyed (to) [Upper] Tyre ( $\overline{D}^o - r^o - Rw - m$ ),<sup>b</sup> who had with him for Syria ( $\overline{H}^c - rw$ ), two different letters, to wit: <sup>3</sup>(for) the captain of infantry, Penamon, one letter; (for) the steward, Ramsesnakht, of this town, one letter.

634. <sup>4</sup>There returned the chief of the stable, Pemeckhetem ( $P^o - mr - htm$ ), son of Ani, of the Town of Merneptah-Hotepharma, <sup>5</sup>which is in the district of the Aram ( $^o - r^o - m$ ),<sup>c</sup> who had with him (for)<sup>d</sup> the place where the king was,<sup>d</sup> two letters, to wit: <sup>6</sup>(for) the captain of infantry, Peremhab ( $P^o - R^c - m - hb$ ), one letter; <sup>7</sup>for the deputy, Peremhab, one letter.

Twenty-fifth Day

635. <sup>8</sup>Year 3, first month of the third season (ninth month), twenty-fifth day:

There went up the charioteer, Enwau ( $Ynw - w^o ww$ ), of the great stable of the court of Binre-Meriamon, (Merneptah), L. P. H.<sup>e</sup>

LETTER OF A FRONTIER OFFICIAL<sup>f</sup>

636. This remarkable document is a communication in the usual official style, in which some frontier official informs his superior that certain Edomite Bedwin, doubtless in ac-

<sup>a</sup>As this Khay has already gone up to Syria (according to VI, 2, § 630), and his address is now the king's camp, the king must be somewhere in Syria.

<sup>b</sup>Müller inclines to place this town on the Jordan (Asien und Europa, 272); but he reads  $\overline{D}^o - r^o - d(?)w - m$ .

<sup>c</sup>As the article shows, the scribe has miswritten Aram for Amor. Cf. Müller, Asien und Europa, 222, and 234.

<sup>d</sup>Müller, (Asien und Europa 270 f.) would regard this as the place from which the letter came, and not the address. That this is impossible is shown by the fact that the source of the letters is never given in the entire list; and, further, by the parallel in VI, 9, which is of itself quite enough to show that the king was in Asia; but he was not necessarily in his royal town in Amor, which is only mentioned as the home of the officer bearing the letter.

<sup>e</sup>Here follows a list of fifteen names of unofficial persons, whose connection with the preceding is not indicated.

<sup>f</sup>Papyrus Anastasi VI in the British Museum; Pl. IV, l. 13-Pl. V, l. 4. Cf. Müller, Asien und Europa, 135.

cordance with instructions, have been allowed to pass the fortress in the district of Succoth in the Wadi Tumilât, to pasture their cattle near Pithom. The instance is paralleled by the similar case under Harmhab (§§ 10-12), and that of the Israelites (Gen. 47:1-12).

637. The papyrus is very fragmentary, and some of the uncertain portions are omitted below.

Pl. 4

638. <sup>13</sup>Another matter for the satisfaction of my lord's heart <sup>14</sup>[to wit]:

We have finished passing the tribes of the Shasu (Š<sup>13</sup>-sw) of <sup>15</sup>Edom through the Fortress of Merneptah-Hotephirma, L. P. H., in Theku,<sup>a</sup> (T<sup>15</sup>-kw) <sup>16</sup>to the pools of Pithom, of Merneptah-Hotephirma <sup>17</sup>in Theku, in order to sustain<sup>b</sup> them and their herds in the domain of Pharaoh, L. P. H., the good Sun <sup>2</sup>of every land. . . . . ——— I have caused them to be brought <sup>3</sup>. . . . . other names of <sup>4</sup>days [when] the fortress of Merneptah-Hotephirma may be passed, <sup>5</sup>———.

Pl. 5

<sup>a</sup>Succoth?

<sup>b</sup>Causative of the verb "to live" (as in Hebrew), regularly used to indicate preservation and sustenance in time of famine.

REIGN OF SIPTAH

NUBIAN GRAFFITI

639. The only inscriptions of important historical content from the reign of Siptah are the graffiti of his viceroys in Nubia, especially those at Wadi Halfa.<sup>a</sup> They show that he was at first called Ramses-Siptah, and later Merneptah-Siptah. He went out to Nubia apparently in his first year, as far as Abu Simbel, to appoint Seti his new viceroy of Kush (No. 1), and Neferhor the official who brought the new viceroy out to his post, recorded his arrival at Wadi Halfa (No. 2). The "reward" brought by Neferhor on this occasion for the officials of Nubia can be nothing else than the new king's attempt to win and hold them to his support. He evidently succeeded, for in the year 3 the treasury official, Piyay, records his visit at Wadi Halfa to receive the tribute of Kush (No. 3).

640. In the same year Seti is still viceroy, recording his devotion to the king on the rocks at the first cataract (Nos. 5 and 6). He is now also "governor of the gold-country of Amon" and "chief steward of the king." Siptah ruled at least three years longer, for one of his messengers visited Wadi Halfa in the year 6 (No. 8). Another of his supporters to whom much interest attaches in these graffiti is his treasurer, Bay. This man was chief treasurer, and a man of some power, or he could not have excavated a tomb in the Valley of the Kings; but a mistranslation of Brugsch has given currency to a totally false idea of Bay's position. In both the graffiti (Nos. 6 and 7) commemorating Bay, there is attached to his name a relative clause: "whom the king established in the seat of his father," a not uncommon statement, indicating that a man has inherited his father's office. Brugsch's rendering, following de Rougé,<sup>a</sup> "in dem er (Seti) den König auf den Thron seines Vaters setzte," is grammatically untenable;<sup>b</sup> hence the prevailing interpretation in all the histories since de Rougé's time, that the king owed his throne to Bay, is without foundation. On the contrary, the old hypothesis of Rougé,<sup>c</sup> that the powerful noble of this reign was the viceroy of Kush, Seti, who became King Seti II, succeeding Siptah, is supported by these graffiti. Seti becomes "governor of the gold-country of Amon," which places him in close communication with the powerful priesthood of Amon,<sup>d</sup> from whom so many usurpers drew their strength.

---

<sup>a</sup>On pillars of the southern temple of Thutmose III; they are published by Sayce, Recueil, XVII, 161, 162, and are referred to under his numbers. For most of them I had also the copies of Steindorff, which he very kindly placed at my disposal.

641. The succession of the kings of the time, supposed to be against Rougé's supposition, is clearly in support of it; but the evidence either has been overlooked or has only recently been published. There is space here to note only some of the main points in the evidence. Amenmeses, the successor of Merneptah, was a usurper and persecuted the memory of Merneptah, for example at the Ramesseum, where he set his own name over that of Merneptah.<sup>e</sup> Amenmeses was in turn treated in the same way by his successor, Siptah, who inserted his own name over that of Amenmeses

<sup>a</sup>Etude sur une stèle égyptienne, 186.

<sup>b</sup>See note on No. 7, § 649.

<sup>c</sup>Ibid., 187.

<sup>d</sup>Indeed, there is a definite connection between the High Priest of Amon and Nubia, for he became viceroy of Nubia as his power increased (Annales, IV, 9).

<sup>e</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 219, c, A; ibid., Text, III, 130.

in a relief<sup>a</sup> at Kurna, showing Amenmeses worshipping the Theban divinities, who are associated with Ramses II and Seti I, from whom Amenmeses was probably descended. The succession of Amenmeses-Siptah is therefore certain. On examining the position of Seti II with reference to the said two kings, the evidence of his first tomb in the Valley of the Kings is conclusive. Lepsius' careful and exhaustive examination<sup>b</sup> of the royal names in the tomb of Siptah's queen, Tewosret, shows conclusively that Seti II usurped this tomb. He therefore followed Siptah, and may very well have been that king's powerful viceroy of Nubia, Seti, whom we find commemorated in the following graffiti. In Ramses III's time he was looked upon as the only legitimate king between Merneptah and Setnakht.<sup>c</sup>

642. <sup>d</sup>1. Praise to Amon! May he grant life, prosperity and health to the ka of the king's-messenger to every country, companion of the feet of the Lord of the Two Lands, favorite of Horus in the palace (the king), first charioteer of his majesty, Rekhpehtuf (Rḫ-ḫtww' f). His lord came to establish the king's-son of Kush, Seti, upon his seat, in the year 1 of the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses-Siptah.

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 201, c; Text, III, 91, 92; so Rougé, op. cit., 185. The Horus-name of Amenmeses in the body of the text below (l. 1), was overlooked and not changed by Siptah, thus betraying the identity of the original king to whom the monument belonged. The mythological reference on this monument, to the rearing of Amenmeses by Isis in Khemmis is, of course, applied to any king in the inscriptions (e. g., Thutmose III; II, 138), and does not at all show the actual birthplace of the king. This ancient misunderstanding appears again in Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 1904, 37.

<sup>b</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, Text, 209-14; Mémoires de la mission française au Caire, III, 123-36. Seti II did not use the tomb after his usurpation of it, but hewed another and larger one (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 214 ff.; Mémoires de la mission française au Caire, III, 146 ff.). The empty tomb of Tewosret was then usurped by Setnakht, who enlarged it (loc. cit.).

<sup>c</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 212.

<sup>d</sup>South wall of the Abu Simbel temple; unpublished, so far as I have been able to ascertain; the rendering above is based on Steindorff's copy. It was known to Brugsch (Geschichte, 587 f.).

643. 2.<sup>a</sup> Year 1 of the Good God, Ramses-<sup>b</sup>Siptah, given life. Praise to thy ka, O Horus, lord of Bohem! May he grant life, prosperity, health, fitness for service, favor and love, to the ka of the king's-messenger to every country, priest of the Moon-god, Thoth, the scribe (named) Neferhor, son of Neferhor, scribe of the archives of Pharaoh, L. P. H., when he came with rewards for the officials (h' tyw) of Nubia (T' -pd' t), and to bring the king's-son of Kush, Seti on his first expedition.

644. 3.<sup>c</sup> Year 3 under the majesty of King Siptah.<sup>d</sup> The fan-bearer on the king's right hand, king's-scribe, overseer of the treasury, king's-scribe of the archives of Pharaoh, steward in the house<sup>e</sup> in the house of Amon, Piyay<sup>f</sup> (Pyy' y) came to receive the tribute of the land of Kush.

645. 4.<sup>g</sup> Year 3 of King Siptah. The first charioteer of his majesty, king's-messenger to every country, to establish the chiefs upon their thrones, satisfying the heart of his lord, Hori, son of Kem (K' m), triumphant, of the great stable of Seti-Merneptah, of the court. He made it in the year 3.

646. 5.<sup>h</sup> (Name of Siptah). Year 3, first month of the third season, day twenty. Praise to thy ka! O mighty king! May he grant favor to the ka of the<sup>i</sup> fan-bearer on the king's right hand, king's-son of Kush, governor of south countries, Seti.

<sup>a</sup>Halfa temple, Sayce's 14; Steindorff's manuscript.

<sup>b</sup>This unusual form of Siptah's name occurs also at Abu Simbel (No. 1, § 642)—a fact overlooked in proposing to identify this king with Amenmeses (Recueil, XVII, 162, note), who never has Siptah as the second part of his given name. We must therefore accept two forms of Siptah's name; (1) Ramses-Siptah, used at the beginning of his reign; (2) Merneptah-Siptah, introduced not later than the year 3 (No. 4, § 645). The change is paralleled, e. g., by the alteration in Seti II's name (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 214).

<sup>c</sup>Halfa temple, on a large ram, Sayce's, 11.

<sup>d</sup>Double name.

<sup>e</sup>As this word "house" (h' t) is at the bottom of a line, something has evidently escaped the copyists below; we have here the official name of an Amon-temple, with the name of the king lacking before "in the house of Amon."

<sup>f</sup>A third graffito of the year 3 in this temple was made by this same Piyay, Steindorff's manuscript.

<sup>g</sup>Halfa temple; Sayce's second 12; Steindorff's copy.

<sup>h</sup>Rock inscription on the island of Sehel; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 202, b = Mariette, Monuments divers, 71, No. 44 = de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, I, 86, No. 29 = Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1215, t.

<sup>i</sup>His titles are repeated below, with "hereditary prince" prefixed.

647. 6.<sup>a</sup> A relief shows King Siptah enthroned, with his treasurer, Bay, behind him; Seti, the viceroy of Kush, is before him in the attitude of praise. The inscriptions are:

Over Bay

Wearer of the royal seal, sole companion, casting out lying, presenting truth; whom the king established [in]<sup>b</sup> the seat of his father, great chief treasurer of the whole land, Ramses-Khementer<sup>c</sup>-Bay.

Over Seti

Praise to thee! O mighty king! By the king's-son of Kush, governor of the gold countries of Amon, fan-bearer on the king's right hand, chief steward of the king, king's-scribe of the records of Pharaoh, L. P. H., Seti.

648. 4<sup>d</sup>. Another similar relief shows King Siptah offering flowers to Amon; Bay appears behind the king, and over them both are the words:

King's Prayer

Giving praise to Amon-Re, doing obeisance to his ka. May he protect his son, Lord of the Two Lands, Ikhneres-Setepnere (Siptah).

Bay's Prayer

649. May they<sup>e</sup> grant recognition to truth, and reward to him who doeth it (truth), a prosperous life with a happy heart, joy of heart, possession of health; for the ka of the great chief treasurer of the whole land,

---

<sup>a</sup>Rock inscription near Assuan; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 202, c=Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 214=de Morgan, Catalogue des monuments, I, 28, No. 6 (copied from Lepsius, Denkmäler, with all the mistakes).

<sup>b</sup>The original is to be corrected from No. 7.

<sup>c</sup>A compound name, meaning: "Ramses-Shining-Among-the-Gods-Bay."

<sup>d</sup>In a rock grotto at Gebel Silsileh; Champollion, Monuments, 120, 4=Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 202, a.

<sup>e</sup>"They" means Amon and Siptah.

whom<sup>a</sup> the king established in the seat of his father, whom he loved, Bay.<sup>b</sup>

650. 8.<sup>c</sup> Year 6 of the king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Ikhner-Setepnere; Son of Re: Merneptah-Siptah.

The first charioteer of his majesty, king's-messenger to every country, Ubekhu (Wbḥ·w). His<sup>d</sup> son, the king's-son of Kush, Hori, made (it).

651. 9.<sup>e</sup> (Name of Siptah).

Fan-bearer on the king's right hand, king's-messenger to Kharu and Kush, ——— (name lost).

---

<sup>a</sup>That this is a relative clause is shown by the second relative, "whom he loved," which shows that we should not render smn as a participle. The n-form, which we should expect in earlier times, is perhaps involved in the n of smn (Sethe, Verbum, I, § 226); but more probably the form is simply in accord with the prevailing tendency of the old n-form to give way to sdm·j at this time.

<sup>b</sup>A third inscription of the reign of Siptah, containing the same phrase, is at Wadi Halfa (Steindorff's manuscript), and is, of course, to be assigned to Bay, although his name is lost.

<sup>c</sup>Halfa temple; Sayce's 1. Steindorff's copy.

<sup>d</sup>So Steindorff; Sayce has "son of."

<sup>e</sup>Halfa temple; Sayce's 3.

Class 932

Book B82
v. 4.

Library of Adelbert College

of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O.

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT

ANCIENT RECORDS

UNDER THE GENERAL EDITORSHIP OF WILLIAM RAINY HARPER

---

First Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF ASSYRIA AND BABYLONIA
EDITED BY ROBERT FRANCIS HARPER

Second Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT
EDITED BY JAMES HENRY BREASTED

Third Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF PALESTINE, PHOENICIA
AND SYRIA
EDITED BY WILLIAM RAINY HARPER

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT

HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE PERSIAN CONQUEST, COLLECTED
EDITED AND TRANSLATED WITH COMMENTARY

BY

JAMES HENRY BREASTED, PH.D.

PROFESSOR OF EGYPTOLOGY AND ORIENTAL HISTORY
IN THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

VOLUME IV

THE TWENTIETH TO THE TWENTY-SIXTH DYNASTIES

CHICAGO
THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS
1906

LONDON: LUZAC & CO.

LEIPZIG: OTTO HARRASSOWITZ

COPYRIGHT 1906, BY
THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Published July 1906

A. C. L.

Composed and Printed By
The University of Chicago Press
Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

VOLUME I

	§§
THE DOCUMENTARY SOURCES OF EGYPTIAN HISTORY . . . . .	1-37
CHRONOLOGY . . . . .	38-57
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE . . . . .	58-75
THE PALERMO STONE: THE FIRST TO THE FIFTH DYNASTIES	76-167
I. Predynastic Kings . . . . .	90
II. First Dynasty . . . . .	91-116
III. Second Dynasty . . . . .	117-144
IV. Third Dynasty . . . . .	145-148
V. Fourth Dynasty . . . . .	149-152
VI. Fifth Dynasty . . . . .	153-167
THE THIRD DYNASTY . . . . .	168-175
Reign of Snefru . . . . .	168-175
Sinai Inscriptions . . . . .	168-169
Biography of Methen . . . . .	170-175
THE FOURTH DYNASTY . . . . .	176-212
Reign of Khufu . . . . .	176-187
Sinai Inscriptions . . . . .	176
Inventory Stela . . . . .	177-180
Examples of Dedication Inscriptions by Sons . . . . .	181-187
Reign of Khafre . . . . .	188-209
Stela of Mertityôtes . . . . .	188-189
Will of Prince Nekure, Son of King Khafre . . . . .	190-199
Testamentary Enactment of an Unknown Official, Establishing the Endowment of His Tomb by the Pyramid of Khafre . . . . .	200-209
Reign of Menkure . . . . .	210-212
Debhen's Inscription, Recounting King Menkure's Erec- tion of a Tomb for Him . . . . .	210-212
THE FIFTH DYNASTY . . . . .	213-281
Reign of Userkaf . . . . .	213-235

	§§
Testamentary Enactment of Nekonekh . . . . .	213-215
I. The Priesthood of Hathor . . . . .	216-219
II. The Mortuary Priesthood of Khenuka . . . . .	220-222
III. Nekonekh's Will . . . . .	223-225
IV. Nekonekh's Mortuary Priesthood . . . . .	226-227
V. Nekonekh's Mortuary Statue . . . . .	228-230
Testamentary Enactment of Senuonekh, Regulating His Mortuary Priesthood . . . . .	231-235
Reign of Sahure . . . . .	236-241
Sinai Inscriptions . . . . .	236
Tomb Stela of Nenekhsekhmet . . . . .	237-240
Tomb Inscription of Persen . . . . .	241
Reign of Neferirkere . . . . .	242-249
Tomb Inscriptions of the Vizier, Chief Judge, and Chief Architect Weshptah . . . . .	242-249
Reign of Nuserre . . . . .	250-262
Sinai Inscription . . . . .	250
Tomb Inscriptions of Hotephiyakhmet . . . . .	251-253
Inscription of Ptahshepses . . . . .	254-262
Reign of Menkuhor . . . . .	263
Sinai Inscription . . . . .	263
Reign of Dedkere-Isesi . . . . .	264-281
Sinai Inscriptions . . . . .	264-267
Tomb Inscriptions of Senezemib, Chief Judge, Vizier, and Chief Architect . . . . .	268-277
Mortuary Inscription of Nezemib . . . . .	278-279
Tomb Inscription of the Nomarch Henku . . . . .	280-281
THE SIXTH DYNASTY . . . . .	282-390
Reign of Teti . . . . .	282-294
Inscriptions of Sabu, Also Called Ibebi . . . . .	282-286
Inscription of Sabu, Also Called Thety . . . . .	287-288
Inscription of an Unknown Builder . . . . .	289-290
Inscription of Uni . . . . .	291-294
I. Career under Teti (l. 1) . . . . .	292-294
II. Career under Pepi I (ll. 2-32) . . . . .	306-315
III. Career under Mernere (ll. 32-50) . . . . .	319-324
Reign of Pepi I . . . . .	295-315
Hammamat Inscriptions . . . . .	295-301

	§§
I. The King's Inscriptions . . . . .	296
II. The Expedition's Inscription . . . . .	297-298
III. Chief Architect's Inscription . . . . .	299
IV. Inscription of the Treasurer of the God Ikhi . . . . .	300-301
Sinai Inscription . . . . .	302-303
Inscription in the Hatnub Quarry . . . . .	304-305
Inscription of Uni: II Career under Pepi I . . . . .	306-315
Reign of Mernere . . . . .	316-336
Inscriptions at the First Cataract . . . . .	316-318
I. Northern Inscription . . . . .	317
II. Southern Inscription . . . . .	318
Inscription of Uni: III Career under Mernere . . . . .	319-324
Inscriptions of Harkhuf . . . . .	325-336
Inscriptions of Harkhuf (continued) . . . . .	350-354
Reign of Pepi II . . . . .	337-385
Conveyance of Land by Idu, Called Also Seneni . . . . .	337-338
Sinai Inscription . . . . .	339-343
Stela of the Two Queens, Enekhnes-Merire . . . . .	344-349
Inscriptions of Harkhuf (continued from § 336) . . . . .	350-354
Letter of Pepi II . . . . .	350-354
I. Dates and Introduction . . . . .	351
II. Acknowledgment of Harkhuf's Letter . . . . .	351
III. Harkhuf's Rewards . . . . .	352
IV. King's Instructions . . . . .	353-354
Inscriptions of Pepi-Nakht . . . . .	355-360
Inscriptions of Khui . . . . .	361
Inscriptions of Sebni . . . . .	362-374
Inscriptions of Ibi . . . . .	375-379
Inscription of Zau . . . . .	380-385
Reign of Ity . . . . .	386-387
Hammamat Inscription . . . . .	386-387
Reign of Imhotep . . . . .	388-390
THE NINTH AND TENTH DYNASTIES . . . . .	391-414
Inscriptions of Siut . . . . .	391-414
I. Inscription of Tefibi . . . . .	393-397
II. Inscription of Kheti I . . . . .	398-404
III. Inscription of Kheti II . . . . .	405-414

	§§
THE ELEVENTH DYNASTY . . . . .	415-459
The Nomarch, Intef . . . . .	419-420
Mortuary Stela . . . . .	419-420
Reign of Horus-Wahenekh-Intef I . . . . .	421-423
Royal Tomb Stela . . . . .	421-423
Reign of Horus-Nakhtneb-Tepnefer-Intef II . . . . .	423A-423G
Stela of Thethi . . . . .	423A-423G
Reign of Nibhotep-Mentuhotep I . . . . .	423H
Temple Fragments from Gebelen . . . . .	423H
Reigns of Intef III and Nibkhrure-Mentuhotep II . . . . .	424-426
Relief near Assuan . . . . .	424-426
Reign of Senekhkere-Mentuhotep III . . . . .	427-433
Hammamat Inscription of Henu . . . . .	427-433
Reign of Nibtowere-Mentuhotep IV . . . . .	434-459
Hammamat Inscriptions . . . . .	434-459
I. The First Wonder . . . . .	435-438
II. The Official Tablet . . . . .	439-443
III. The Commander's Tablet . . . . .	444-448
IV. The Second Wonder . . . . .	449-451
V. Completion of the Work . . . . .	452-456
Stela of Eti . . . . .	457-459
THE TWELFTH DYNASTY . . . . .	460-750
Chronology of Twelfth Dynasty . . . . .	460-462
Reign of Amenemhet I . . . . .	463-497
Inscription of Khnumhotep I . . . . .	463-465
Hammamat Inscription of Intef . . . . .	466-468
Inscription of Nessumontu . . . . .	469-471
Inscription of Korusko . . . . .	472-473
The Teaching of Amenemhet . . . . .	474-483
Dedication Inscription . . . . .	484-485
The Tale of Sinuhe . . . . .	486-497
Reign of Sesostri I . . . . .	498-593
The Building Inscription of the Temple of Heliopolis . . . . .	498-506
Inscription of Meri . . . . .	507-509
Wadi Halfa Inscription of Mentuhotep . . . . .	510-514
Inscription of Amenemhet (Ameni) . . . . .	515-523
Stela of Ikudidi . . . . .	524-528
Inscription of Intefyoker . . . . .	529

	§§
Inscriptions of Mentuhotep . . . . .	530-534
The Contracts of Hepzefi . . . . .	535-538
I. First Contract . . . . .	539-543
II. Second Contract . . . . .	544-548
III. Third Contract . . . . .	549-553
IV. Fourth Contract . . . . .	554-558
V. Fifth Contract . . . . .	559-567
VI. Sixth Contract . . . . .	568-571
VII. Seventh Contract . . . . .	572-575
VIII. Eighth Contract . . . . .	576-581
IX. Ninth Contract . . . . .	582-588
X. Tenth Contract . . . . .	589-593
Reign of Amenemhet II . . . . .	594-613
Inscription of Simontu . . . . .	594-598
Inscription of Sihathor . . . . .	599-605
Sinai Inscription . . . . .	606
Stela of Khentemseti . . . . .	607-613
Reign of Sesostris II . . . . .	614-639
Inscription of Hapu . . . . .	614-618
Inscription of Khnumhotep II . . . . .	619-639
Reign of Sesostris III . . . . .	640-748
The Conquest of Nubia . . . . .	640-672
I. The Canal Inscriptions . . . . .	642-649
I. First Inscription . . . . .	643-645
II. Second Inscription . . . . .	646-648
II. The Elephantine Inscription . . . . .	649-650
III. The First Semneh Stela . . . . .	651-652
IV. The Second Semneh Stela . . . . .	653-660
V. Inscription of Ikhernofret . . . . .	661-670
VI. Inscription of Sisatet . . . . .	671-673
See also . . . . .	676 ff. and 687
Hammamat Inscription . . . . .	674-675
Stela of Sebek-Khu, called Zaa . . . . .	676-687
Inscriptions of Thuthotep . . . . .	688-706
Hammamat Inscriptions . . . . .	707-712
Inscriptions of Sinai . . . . .	713-738
I. Wadi Maghara . . . . .	713-723
I. Inscriptions of Khenemsu . . . . .	714-716

	§§
II. Inscription of Harnakht . . . . .	717-718
III. Inscription of Sebekdidi . . . . .	719-720
IV. Inscription of Ameni . . . . .	721-723
II. Sarbût el-Khadem . . . . .	724-738
I. Inscription of Sebek-hir-hab . . . . .	725-727
II. Inscription of Ptahwer . . . . .	728-729
III. Inscription of Amenemhet . . . . .	730-732
IV. Inscription of Harurre . . . . .	733-738
Turra Inscription . . . . .	739-742
Inscription of Sehetepibre . . . . .	743-748
Reign of Amenemhet IV . . . . .	749-750
Kummeh Inscription . . . . .	749
Sinai Inscriptions . . . . .	750
FROM THE THIRTEENTH DYNASTY TO THE HYKSOS . . . . .	751-787
Reign of Sekhemre-Khutowe . . . . .	751-752
Records of Nile-Levels . . . . .	751-752
Reign of Neferhotep . . . . .	753-772
Great Abydos Stela . . . . .	753-765
Boundary Stela . . . . .	766-772
Reign of Nubkheprure-Intef . . . . .	773-780
Coptos Decree . . . . .	773-780
Reign of Khenzer . . . . .	781-787
Inscriptions of Ameniseneb . . . . .	781-787

VOLUME II

	§§
THE EIGHTEENTH DYNASTY . . . . .	1-1043
Reign of Ahmose I . . . . .	1-37
Biography of Ahmose, Son of Ebana . . . . .	1-3
I. Career under Ahmose I (ll. 1-24) . . . . .	4-16
II. Career under Amenhotep I (ll. 24-29) . . . . .	38-39
III. Career under Thutmose I (ll. 29-39) . . . . .	78-82
Biography of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet . . . . .	17-25
I. Ahmose's Campaigns [Continued § 40] . . . . .	18-20
II. Ahmose's Rewards . . . . .	21-24
III. Ahmose's Summary . . . . .	25

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xi

	§§
Quarry Inscription . . . . .	26-28
Karnak Stela . . . . .	29-32
Building Inscription . . . . .	33-37
Reign of Amenhotep I . . . . .	38-53
Biography of Ahmose, Son of Ebana . . . . .	38-39
II. Career under Amenhotep I (ll. 24-29) . . . . .	38-53
Biography of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet . . . . .	40-42
Career under Amenhotep I . . . . .	40-42
Biography of Ineni . . . . .	43-46
I. Career under Amenhotep I . . . . .	44-46
II. Career under Thutmose I . . . . .	99-108
III. Career under Thutmose II . . . . .	115-118
IV. Career under Thutmose III and Hatshepsut . . . . .	340-343
Stela of Harmini . . . . .	47-48
Stela of Keres . . . . .	49-52
Reign of Thutmose I . . . . .	54-114
Coronation Decree . . . . .	54-60
Biographical Inscription of Thure . . . . .	61-66
Tombos Stela . . . . .	67-73
Inscriptions at the First Cataract . . . . .	74-77
I. Sehel Inscription . . . . .	75
II. Sehel Inscription . . . . .	76
III. Assuan Inscription . . . . .	77
Inscription of Ahmose, Son of Ebana . . . . .	78-82
III. Career under Thutmose I (ll. 29-39) . . . . .	78-82
Biography of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet . . . . .	83-85
Career under Thutmose I . . . . .	83-85
Karnak Obelisks . . . . .	86-89
Abydos Stela . . . . .	90-98
Biography of Ineni . . . . .	99-108
II. Career under Thutmose I (ll. 4-14) . . . . .	99-108
Stela of Yuf . . . . .	109-114
Reign of Thutmose II . . . . .	115-127
Biography of Ineni . . . . .	115-118
III. Career under Thutmose II . . . . .	115-118
Assuan Inscription . . . . .	119-122
Biography of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet . . . . .	123-124
IV. Career under Thutmose II . . . . .	123-124

	§§
Campaign in Syria . . . . .	125
The Ebony Shrine of Der el-Bahri . . . . .	126-127
Reign of Thutmose III and Hatshepsut . . . . .	128-390
Introduction . . . . .	128-130
Inscription of the Coronation; Buildings and Offerings	131-166
Semneh Temple Inscriptions . . . . .	167
I. Renewal of Sesostris III's List of Offerings . . . . .	168-172
II. Dedication to Dedun and Sesostris III . . . . .	173-176
Biography of Nebwawi . . . . .	177
I. The Statue Inscription . . . . .	178-183
II. Abydos Stela . . . . .	184-186
The Birth of Queen Hatshepsut . . . . .	187-191
I. The Council of the Gods . . . . .	192
II. Interviews Between Amon and Thoth . . . . .	193-194
III. Amon with Queen Ahmose . . . . .	195-198
IV. Interview Between Amon and Khnum . . . . .	199-201
V. Khnum Fashions the Child . . . . .	202-203
VI. Interview Between Thoth and Queen Ahmose . . . . .	204
VII. Queen Ahmose is Led to Confinement . . . . .	205
VIII. The Birth . . . . .	206-207
IX. Presentation of the Child to Amon . . . . .	208
X. Council of Amon and Hathor . . . . .	209
XI. The Nursing of the Child . . . . .	210
XII. Second Interview of Amon and Thoth . . . . .	211
XIII. The Final Scene . . . . .	212
Statue of Enebni . . . . .	213
Vase Inscription . . . . .	214
The Coronation of Queen Hatshepsut . . . . .	215
I. The Purification . . . . .	216
II. Amon presents the Child to All the Gods . . . . .	217-220
III. The Northern Journey . . . . .	221-225
IV. Coronation by Atum . . . . .	226-227
V. Reception of the Crowns and the Names . . . . .	228-230
VI. Proclamation as King before Amon . . . . .	231
VII. Coronation before the Court . . . . .	232-239
VIII. Second Purification . . . . .	240-241
IX. Concluding Ceremonies . . . . .	242
Southern Pylon Inscription at Karnak . . . . .	243-245

	§§
The Punt Reliefs . . . . .	246-295
I. Departure of the Fleet . . . . .	252-253
II. Reception in Punt . . . . .	254-258
III. The Traffic . . . . .	259-262
IV. Loading the Vessels . . . . .	263-265
V. The Return Voyage . . . . .	266
VI. Presentation of the Tribute to the Queen by the Chiefs of Punt, Irem and Nemyew . . . . .	267-269
VII. The Queen Offers the Gifts to Amon . . . . .	270-272
VIII. Weighing and Measuring the Gifts to Amon . . . . .	273-282
IX. Formal Announcement of the Success of the Expedition before Amon . . . . .	283-288
X. Formal Announcement of the Success of the Expedition to the Court . . . . .	289-295
Inscription of the Speos Artemidos . . . . .	296-303
The Karnak Obelisks . . . . .	304-307
I. Shaft Inscriptions; Middle Columns . . . . .	308-311
II. Shaft Inscriptions; Side Columns . . . . .	312-313
III. Base Inscription . . . . .	314-321
Reliefs of Transportation of Obelisks . . . . .	322
I. Transport . . . . .	323-329
II. Reception in Thebes . . . . .	330-335
III. Dedication of the Obelisks . . . . .	336
Rock Inscription in Wadi Maghara . . . . .	337
Building Inscription of Western Thebes . . . . .	338-339
Biography of Ineni . . . . .	340-343
IV. Career under Thutmose III and Hatshepsut . . . . .	340-343
Biography of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet . . . . .	344
Conclusion of Summary . . . . .	344
Inscriptions of Senmut . . . . .	345-368
I. Inscriptions on the Karnak Statue . . . . .	349-358
II. Assuan Inscription . . . . .	359-362
III. Inscriptions on the Berlin Statue . . . . .	363-368
Inscription of Thutiy . . . . .	369-378
Inscriptions of Puemre . . . . .	379
I. Statue of Inscription . . . . .	380-381
II. Tomb Inscriptions . . . . .	382-387
Inscriptions of Hapuseneb . . . . .	388-390

	§§
Reign of Thutmose III . . . . .	391-779
The Annals . . . . .	391-405
The Annals: Conspectus of Campaigns . . . . .	406
I. Introduction . . . . .	407
II. First Campaign (Year 23) . . . . .	408-443
Wadi Halfa Inscription . . . . .	411-437
Fragment on the Siege of Megiddo . . . . .	438-443
III. Second Campaign (Year 24) . . . . .	444-449
IV. Third Campaign (Year 25) . . . . .	450-452
V. Fourth Campaign . . . . .	453
VI. Fifth Campaign (Year 29) . . . . .	454-462
VII. Sixth Campaign (Year 30) . . . . .	463-467
VIII. Seventh Campaign (Year 31) . . . . .	468-475
IX. Eighth Campaign (Year 33) . . . . .	476-487
X. Ninth Campaign (Year 34) . . . . .	488-495
XI. Tenth Campaign (Year 35) . . . . .	496-503
XII. Eleventh Campaign (Year 36) . . . . .	504
XIII. Twelfth Campaign (Year 37) . . . . .	505
XIV. Thirteenth Campaign (Year 38) . . . . .	506-515
XV. Fourteenth Campaign (Year 39) . . . . .	516-519
XVI. Fifteenth Campaign . . . . .	520-523
XVII. Sixteenth Campaign . . . . .	524-527
XVIII. Seventeenth Campaign . . . . .	528-539
XIX. Conclusion . . . . .	540
Feasts and Offerings from the Conquests . . . . .	541-573
Biography of Amenemhab . . . . .	574-592
Fragments of Karnak Pylon VII . . . . .	593-598
Great Karnak Building Inscription . . . . .	599-608
Building Inscription of the Karnak Ptah-Temple . . . . .	609-622
Obelisks . . . . .	623
I. Karnak Obelisks . . . . .	624-625
II. Lateran Obelisks . . . . .	626-628
III. Constantinople Obelisk . . . . .	629-631
IV. London Obelisk . . . . .	632-633
V. New York Obelisk . . . . .	634-636
Medinet Habu Building Inscriptions . . . . .	637-641
Heliopolis Building Inscriptions . . . . .	642-643
Nubian Wars . . . . .	644-654

	§§
I. Canal Inscription . . . . .	649-650
II. Inscriptions of Nehi, Viceroy of Kush . . . . .	651-652
III. Offerings from the South Countries . . . . .	653-654
Hymn of Victory . . . . .	655-662
Tomb of Rekhmire . . . . .	663-759
I. Appointment of Rekhmire as Vizier . . . . .	665-670
II. Duties of the Vizier . . . . .	671-711
III. The Sitting of the Vizier . . . . .	712-713
IV. Reception of Petitions . . . . .	714-715
V. Inspection of Taxes of Upper Egypt . . . . .	716
A. Above Thebes . . . . .	717-728
B. Below Thebes . . . . .	729-745
VI. Reception of Dues to the Amon-Temple . . . . .	746-751
VII. Inspection of Daily Offerings and of Monuments . . . . .	752
VIII. Inspection of Craftsmen . . . . .	753-755
IX. Inspection of Sculptors and Builders . . . . .	756-759
X. Reception of Foreign Tribute . . . . .	760-761
XI. Accession of Amenhotep II . . . . .	762
Stela of Intef the Herald . . . . .	763-771
Tomb of Menkheperreseneb . . . . .	772-776
Stela of Nibamon . . . . .	777-779
Reign of Amenhotep II . . . . .	780
Asiatic Campaign . . . . .	780-798
I. Karnak Stela . . . . .	781-790
II. Amâda and Elephantine Stelæ . . . . .	791-798
III. Karnak Chapel . . . . .	798A
Turra Inscription . . . . .	799-800
Tomb of Amenken . . . . .	801-802
Karnak Building Inscription . . . . .	803-806
Biography of Amenemhab . . . . .	807-809
Reign of Thutmose IV . . . . .	810-840
Sphinx Stela . . . . .	810-815
Asiatic Campaign . . . . .	816-822
Konosso Inscription . . . . .	823-829
Lateran Obelisk . . . . .	830-838
Stela of Pe'aoke . . . . .	839-840
Reign of Amenhotep III . . . . .	841-931
Birth and Coronation . . . . .	841

	§§
Nubian War . . . . .	842-855
I. Stela at First Cataract . . . . .	843-844
II. Stela of Konosso . . . . .	845
III. Bubastis Inscription . . . . .	846-850
IV. Semneh Inscription . . . . .	851-855
Tablet of Victory . . . . .	856-859
The Commemorative Scarabs . . . . .	860-869
I. Marriage with Tiy . . . . .	861-862
II. Wild Cattle Hunt . . . . .	863-864
III. Ten Years Lion-Hunting . . . . .	865
IV. Marriage with Kirgipa . . . . .	866-867
V. Construction of a Pleasure Lake . . . . .	868-869
Jubilee Celebrations . . . . .	870-874
Quarry and Mine Inscriptions . . . . .	875-877
Building Inscription . . . . .	878-892
I. Introduction (ll. 1-2) . . . . .	882
II. Temple of the (Memnon) Colossi (ll. 2-10) . . . . .	883-885
III. Luxor Temple and Connected Buildings . . . . .	886-887
IV. Sacred Barge of Amon (ll. 16-20) . . . . .	888
V. Third Pylon of Karnak (ll. 20-23) . . . . .	889
VI. Temple of Soleb (ll. 23-26) . . . . .	890
VII. Hymn of Amon to the King (ll. 26-31) . . . . .	891-892
Building Inscriptions of the Soleb Temple . . . . .	893-898
Great Inscription of the Third Karnak Pylon . . . . .	899-903
Dedication Stela . . . . .	904-910
I. Speech of the King (ll. 1-13) . . . . .	905-908
II. Speech of Amon (ll. 14-20) . . . . .	909
III. Speech of the Divine Ennead (ll. 20-24) . . . . .	910
Inscriptions of Amenhotep, Son of Hapi . . . . .	911-927
I. Statue Inscription . . . . .	913-920
II. Mortuary Temple Edict . . . . .	921-927
Statue of Nebnefer . . . . .	928-931
Reign of Ikhnaton . . . . .	932-1018
Quarry Inscription at Silsileh . . . . .	932-935
Tomb of the Vizier Ramose . . . . .	936-948
The Tell El-Amarna Landmarks . . . . .	949-972
Assuan Tablet of the Architect Bek . . . . .	973-976
The Tell El-Amarna Tombs . . . . .	977-1018

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xvii

	§§
Tomb of Merire II . . . . .	981
Tomb of Merire I . . . . .	982-988
Tomb of Eye . . . . .	989-996
Tomb of Mai . . . . .	997-1003
Tomb of Ahmose . . . . .	1004-1008
Tomb of Tutu . . . . .	1009-1013
Tomb of Huy . . . . .	1014-1018
Reign of Tutenkhamon . . . . .	1019-1041
Tomb of Huy . . . . .	1019-1041
I. Investiture of the Viceroy of Kush . . . . .	1020-1026
II. Tribute of the North . . . . .	1027-1033
III. Tribute of the South . . . . .	1034-1041
Reign of Eye . . . . .	1042-1043

LIST OF FIGURES

	PAGE
Plan of Punt Reliefs . . . . .	105

VOLUME III

	§§
THE NINETEENTH DYNASTY . . . . .	1-651
Reign of Harmhab . . . . .	1-73
Tomb of Harmhab . . . . .	1-21
I. Leyden Fragments . . . . .	2-9
I. Stela with Adoration Scene . . . . .	2-5
II. Reward of Gold . . . . .	6-9
II. Vienna Fragment . . . . .	10-12
III. Alexandria Fragments . . . . .	13
IV. British Museum Fragments . . . . .	14-19
I. Doorposts . . . . .	14-17
II. Stela with Three Hymns . . . . .	18-19
V. Cairo Fragments . . . . .	20-21
Coronation Inscription . . . . .	22-32
Graffiti in the Theban Necropolis . . . . .	32A-32C
The Wars of Harmhab . . . . .	33-44
I. In the North . . . . .	34-36
II. In the South . . . . .	37-44
Edict of Harmhab . . . . .	45-67

	§§
I. Introduction (ll. 1-10) . . . . .	49
II. Introduction: The King's Zeal for the Relief of the People (ll. 10-14) . . . . .	50
III. Enactment Against Robbing the Poor of Dues for the Royal Breweries and Kitchens (ll. 14-17)	51
IV. Enactment Against Robbing the Poor of Wood Due the Pharaoh (ll. 17-18) . . . . .	52
V. Enactment Against Exacting Dues from a Poor Man Thus Robbed (ll. 18-20) . . . . .	53
VI. Against Robbing the Poor of Dues for the Harem or the Gods by the Soldiers (ll. 20-24) . . . . .	54
VII. Enactments Against Unlawful Appropriation of Slave Service (ll. 22-24) . . . . .	55
VIII. Enactment Against Stealing of Hides by the Soldiers (ll. 25-28) . . . . .	56-57
IX. Against Connivance of Dishonest Inspectors with Thievish Tax-Collectors, for a Share of the Booty (ll. 28-32) . . . . .	58
X. Enactment Against Stealing Vegetables Under Pretense of Collecting Taxes (ll. 32-35) . . . . .	59
XI. Enactments too Fragmentary for Analysis (ll. 35- 39) and Right Side (ll. 1, 2) . . . . .	60-62
XII. Narrative of the King's Reforms, Containing Also an Enactment Against Corrupt Judges (ll. 3-7) . . . . .	63-65
XIII. Narrative of the King's Monthly Audiences and Largesses (ll. 7-10) . . . . .	66
XIV. Laudation of the King, and Conclusion (Left Side) . . . . .	67
Tomb of Neferhotep . . . . .	68-73
Reign of Ramses I . . . . .	74-79
Wadi Halfa Stela . . . . .	74-79
Reign of Seti I . . . . .	80-250
Karnak Reliefs . . . . .	80-156
Scene 1. March through Southern Palestine . . . . .	83-84
Scene 2. Battle with the Shasu . . . . .	85-86
Scene 3. Capture of Pekanan . . . . .	87-88
Scene 4. Capture of Yenoam . . . . .	89-90

	§§
Scene 5. Submission of the Chiefs of Lebanon . . . . .	91-94
Scenes 6 and 7. Binding and Carrying Away Prisoners . . . . .	95-97
Scene 8. Reception in Egypt . . . . .	98-103
Scene 9. Presentation of Shasu Prisoners and Precious Vessels to Amon . . . . .	104-108
Scene 10. Presentation of Syrian Prisoners and Precious Vessels to Amon . . . . .	109-112
Scene 11. Slaying Prisoners Before Amon . . . . .	113-119
Scene 12. First Battle with the Libyans . . . . .	120-122
Scene 13. Second Battle with the Libyans . . . . .	123-132
Scene 14. Return from Libyan War . . . . .	133-134
Scene 15. Presentation of Libyan Prisoners and Spoil to Amon . . . . .	135-139
Scene 16. Capture of Kadesh . . . . .	140-141
Scene 17. Battle with the Hittites . . . . .	142-144
Scene 18. Carrying off Hittite Prisoners . . . . .	145-148
Scene 19. Presentation of Hittite Spoil and Prisoners to Amon . . . . .	149-152
Scene 20. Slaying Prisoners before Amon . . . . .	153-156
Wadi Halfa Stela . . . . .	157-161
Inscriptions of Redesiyeh . . . . .	162-198
I. First Inscription . . . . .	169-174
II. Second Inscription . . . . .	175-194
III. Third Inscription . . . . .	195-198
Building Inscriptions . . . . .	199-250
I. First Cataract Inscription . . . . .	201-204
1. Assuan Inscription . . . . .	201-202
2. Elephantine Stela . . . . .	203-204
II. Silsileh Quarry Stela . . . . .	205-208
III. Gebelên Quarry Inscription . . . . .	209-210
IV. Mortuary Temple at Thebes (Kurna) . . . . .	211-221
V. Temple of Karnak . . . . .	222-224
VI. Mortuary Temple at Abydos . . . . .	225-243
VII. Temple Model of Heliopolis . . . . .	244-246
VIII. Miscellaneous . . . . .	247-250
Reign of Ramses II . . . . .	251-568
Great Abydos Inscription . . . . .	251-281
Kubbân Stela . . . . .	282-293

	§§
The Asiatic War . . . . .	294-391
I. Beginning of the Hittite War . . . . .	296-351
I. First Campaign . . . . .	297
II. Second Campaign: The Battle of Kadesh . . . . .	298-351
a. Poem of the Battle of Kadesh . . . . .	305-315
b. Official Record of the Battle of Kadesh . . . . .	316-327
c. The Reliefs of the Battle of Kadesh. . . . .	328
I. The Council of War . . . . .	329-330
II. The Camp . . . . .	331-332
III. Ramses' Messengers . . . . .	333-334
IV. The Battle . . . . .	335-338
V. The Defense of the Camp . . . . .	339-340
VI. After the Battle . . . . .	341-347
VII. Presentation of Captives to Amon . . . . .	348-351
III. Palestinian Revolt . . . . .	352-362
I. Reconquest of Southern Palestine . . . . .	353-355
II. Reconquest of Northern Palestine . . . . .	356-362
IV. Campaign in Naharin . . . . .	363-391
I. Conquest of Naharin . . . . .	364-366
II. Treaty with the Hittites . . . . .	367-391
Relations of Egypt with the Hittites after the War . . . . .	392-491
I. The Blessing of Ptah . . . . .	394-414
II. Marriage Stela . . . . .	415-424
III. Message of the Chief of Kheta to the Chief of Kode . . . . .	425-426
IV. Coptos Stela . . . . .	427-428
V. Bentresh Stela . . . . .	429-447
Nubian Wars and References to Northern Wars . . . . .	448-491
I. Abu Simbel Temple . . . . .	449-457
II. Bet el-Walli Temple . . . . .	458-477
III. Assuan Stela . . . . .	478-479
IV. Luxor Temple . . . . .	480-484
V. Abydos Temple . . . . .	485-486
VI. Tanis Stelæ . . . . .	487-491
Building Inscriptions . . . . .	492-537
I. Great Temple of Abu Simbel. . . . .	495-499
II. Small Temple of Abu Simbel. . . . .	500-501
III. Temple of Serreh . . . . .	502

	§§
IV. Temple of Derr . . . . .	503
V. Temple of Sebûfa . . . . .	504
VI. Temple of el Kab . . . . .	505
VII. Temple of Luxor . . . . .	506-508
VIII. Temple of Karnak . . . . .	509-513
IX. The Ramesseum . . . . .	514-515
X. Temple of Kurna . . . . .	516-522
XI. Seti I's Temple at Abydos and Great Abydos Inscription . . . . .	262-267
XII. Ramses II's Temple at Abydos . . . . .	524-529
XIII. Memphis Temples . . . . .	530-537
1. Great Abydos Inscription (l. 22) . . . . .	260
2. Blessing of Ptah (ll. 32, 35) . . . . .	412-413
XIV. City of Tanis (Blessing of Ptah (ll. 16-18) . . . . .	406
Stela of the Year 400 . . . . .	538-542
Royal Jubilee Inscriptions . . . . .	543-560
I. First Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	552
II. Bigeh Inscription . . . . .	553
III. Second Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	554
IV. Third Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	555
V. Fourth Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	556
VI. Sehel Inscription . . . . .	557
VII. El Kab Inscription . . . . .	558
VIII. Fifth Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	559
IX. Sixth Gebel Silsileh Inscription . . . . .	560
Inscription of Beknekhonsu . . . . .	561-568
Reign of Merneptah . . . . .	569-638
The Invasion of Libyans and Mediterranean Peoples . . . . .	569-617
I. The Great Karnak Inscription . . . . .	572-592
II. The Cairo Column . . . . .	593-595
III. The Athribis Stela . . . . .	596-601
IV. The Hymn of Victory . . . . .	602-617
Inscriptions of the High Priest of Amon, Roy . . . . .	618-628
Daybook of a Frontier Official . . . . .	629-635
Letter of a Frontier Official . . . . .	636-638
Reign of Siptah . . . . .	639-650
Nubian Graffiti . . . . .	639-650

LIST OF FIGURES		PAGE
Fig. 1.	Plan of the Reliefs of Seti I, on the North Wall of the Great Hall of Karnak . . . . .	39
Fig. 2.	Seti I on the Route through Southern Palestine (Scene 1) . . . . .	44
Fig. 3.	Showing Two Superimposed Figures . . . . .	61
Fig. 4.	Inserted Figure of "First King's-Son" . . . . .	61
Fig. 5.	An Unknown Prince Following the Chariot of Seti I (Scene 14) . . . . .	66
Fig. 6.	Figure of an Unknown Prince Inserted in a Fragmentary Scene (§ 130) . . . . .	66
Fig. 7.	Map of the Orontes Valley in the Vicinity of Kadesh . . . . .	126
Fig. 8.	March to Kadesh: First Positions . . . . .	128
Fig. 9.	Battle of Kadesh: Second Positions . . . . .	130
Fig. 10.	Battle of Kadesh: Third Positions . . . . .	130
Fig. 11.	Battle of Kadesh: Fourth Positions . . . . .	130
Fig. 12.	Battle of Kadesh: Fifth Positions . . . . .	130
Fig. 13.	The Modern Mound of Kadesh . . . . .	152

VOLUME IV

		§§
THE TWENTIETH DYNASTY . . . . .		1-603
Reign of Ramses III . . . . .		1-456
Medinet Habu Temple . . . . .		1-150
Building and Dedication Inscriptions . . . . .		1-20
Historical Inscriptions . . . . .		21-138
I. Treasury of Medinet Habu Temple . . . . .		25-34
II. First Libyan War, Year 5 . . . . .		35-58
1. Great Inscription in the Second Court (Year 5) . . . . .		36-58
III. Northern War, Year 8 . . . . .		59-82
1. Great Inscription on the Second Pylon, Year 8 . . . . .		61-68
2. Relief Scenes Outside North Wall and in Second Court, Year 8 . . . . .		69-82
IV. Second Libyan War . . . . .		83-114

	§§
1. Great Inscription on the First Pylon (Medinet Habu) . . . . .	85-92
2. Poem on Second Libyan War . . . . .	93-99
3. Relief Scenes on First Pylon and Outside North Wall (Medinet Habu) . . . . .	100-114
4. Papyrus Harris . . . . .	405
V. The Syrian War . . . . .	115-135
VI. The Nubian War . . . . .	136-138
Medinet Habu Temple Calendar . . . . .	139-145
Act of Endowment of the Temples of Khnum . . . . .	146-150
Papyrus Harris . . . . .	151-412
Discussion of . . . . .	151-181
Content:
I. Introduction . . . . .	182-183
II. Theban Section . . . . .	184-246
III. Heliopolitan Section . . . . .	247-304
IV. Memphite Section . . . . .	305-351
V. General Section (Small Temples) . . . . .	352-382
VI. Summary . . . . .	383-396
VII. Historical Section . . . . .	397-412
Record of the Royal Jubilee . . . . .	413-415
Records of the Harem Conspiracy . . . . .	416-456
I. Appointment of the Court . . . . .	423-424
II. The Condemned of the First Prosecution . . . . .	425-443
III. The Condemned of the Second Prosecution . . . . .	444-445
IV. The Condemned of the Third Prosecution . . . . .	446-450
V. The Condemned of the Fourth Prosecution . . . . .	451-452
VI. The Acquitted . . . . .	453
VII. The Practicers of Magic . . . . .	454-456
Reign of Ramses IV . . . . .	457-472
Hammamat Stela . . . . .	457-468
I. The First Stela . . . . .	457-460
II. The Second Stela . . . . .	461-468
Abydos Stela . . . . .	469-471
Building Inscription of the Khonsu Temple . . . . .	472
Reign of Ramses V . . . . .	473
Tomb Dedication . . . . .	473
Reign of Ramses VI . . . . .	474-483

	§§
Tomb of Penno . . . . .	474-483
Reign of Ramses VII . . . . .	484-485
Stela of Hori . . . . .	484-485
Reign of Ramses IX . . . . .	486-556
Inscriptions of the High Priest of Amon, Amenhotep	486-498
I. Building Inscriptions . . . . .	488-491
II. Records of Rewards . . . . .	492-498
The Records of the Royal Tomb-Robberies . . . . .	499-556
I. Papyrus Abbott . . . . .	509-535
II. Papyrus Amherst . . . . .	536-541
III. Turin Fragment . . . . .	542-543
IV. Mayer Papyri . . . . .	544-556
Reign of Ramses XII . . . . .	557-603
The Report of Wenamon . . . . .	557-591
Records of the Restoration of the Royal Mummies . . . . .	592-594
Letter to the Viceroy of Kush . . . . .	595-600
Building Inscriptions in the Temple of Khonsu . . . . .	601-603
THE TWENTY-FIRST DYNASTY . . . . .	604-692
The Twenty-First Dynasty . . . . .	604-607
Reign of Hrihor . . . . .	608-626
Inscriptions of the Temple of Khonsu . . . . .	608-626
Reign of Nesubnebded . . . . .	627-630
Gebelên Inscription . . . . .	627-630
Reign of the High Priest and King Paynozem I . . . . .	631-649
I. Paynozem I as High Priest . . . . .	631-635
Building Inscriptions . . . . .	631-635
Records on the Royal Mummies . . . . .	636-642
II. Paynozem I as King . . . . .	643 ff.
Records on the Royal Mummies . . . . .	643-647
Building Inscriptions . . . . .	648-649
High Priesthood of Menkheperre . . . . .	650-661
Stela of the Banishment . . . . .	650-658
Record of Restoration . . . . .	659
Karnak Graffito . . . . .	660
Records on the Royal Mummies . . . . .	661
High Priesthood of Paynozem II . . . . .	662-687
Records on the Priestly Mummies . . . . .	662-663
Records on the Royal Mummies . . . . .	664-667

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xxv

	§§
Record of Paynozem II's Burial . . . . .	668
Stela of the "Great Chief of Me," Sheshonk . . . . .	669-687
High Priesthood of Pesibkhenno . . . . .	688-692
Records on Mummy-Wrappings . . . . .	688
Burial of Nesikhonsu . . . . .	689
Records on the Royal Mummies . . . . .	690-692
THE TWENTY-SECOND DYNASTY . . . . .	693-792
Records of Nile-Levels at Karnak . . . . .	693-698
Reign of Sheshonk I . . . . .	699-728
Records on Mummy-Bandages of Zeptahefonekh . . . . .	699-700
Building Inscription . . . . .	701-708
Great Karnak Relief . . . . .	709-722
Presentation of Tribute . . . . .	723-724
Karnak Stela . . . . .	724A
Dakhel Stela . . . . .	725-728
Reign of Osorkon I . . . . .	729-737
Record of Temple Gifts . . . . .	729-737
Reign of Takelot I . . . . .	738-740
Statue of the Nile-God Dedicated by the High Priest, Sheshonk . . . . .	738-740
Reign of Osorkon II. . . . .	742-751
Flood Inscription . . . . .	742-744
Statue Inscription . . . . .	745-747
Jubilee Inscriptions . . . . .	748-751
Reign of Takelot II . . . . .	752-755
Graffito of Harsiese . . . . .	752-754
Stela of Kerome . . . . .	755
Reign of Sheshonk III . . . . .	756-777
Annals of the High Priest of Amon, Osorkon . . . . .	756-770
I. East of Door . . . . .	760-761
II. West of Door . . . . .	762-770
First Serapeum Stela of Pediese . . . . .	771-774
Record of Installation . . . . .	775-777
Reign of Pemou. . . . .	778-781
Second Serapeum Stela of Pediese . . . . .	778-781
Reign of Sheshonk IV . . . . .	782-792
Stela of Weshtehet . . . . .	782-784

	§§
Serapeum Stela of Harpeson . . . . .	785-792
THE TWENTY-THIRD DYNASTY. . . . .	793-883
Records of Nile-Levels at Karnak . . . . .	793-794
Reign of Osorkon III . . . . .	795
Will of Yewelot . . . . .	795
Reign of Piankhi . . . . .	796-883
The Piankhi Stela . . . . .	796-883
THE TWENTY-FOURTH DYNASTY . . . . .	884
Reign of Bocchoris . . . . .	884
Serapeum Stelæ . . . . .	884
THE TWENTY-FIFTH DYNASTY . . . . .	885-934
Records of the Nile-Levels at Karnak . . . . .	885-888
Reign of Shabaka . . . . .	889
Building Inscription . . . . .	889
Reign of Taharka . . . . .	892-918
Tanis Stela . . . . .	892-896
Building Inscription in Large Cliff-Temple of Napata . . . . .	897-900
Inscription of Mentemhet . . . . .	901-916
Serapeum Stela . . . . .	917-918
Reign of Tanutamon . . . . .	919-934
Stela of Tanutamon . . . . .	919-934
THE TWENTY-SIXTH DYNASTY . . . . .	935-1029
Reign of Psamtik I . . . . .	935-973
Adoption Stela of Nitocris . . . . .	935-958
Statue Inscription of the Chief Steward, Ibe . . . . .	958A-958M
First Serapeum Stela . . . . .	959-962
Second Serapeum Stela . . . . .	963-966
Statue Inscription of Hor . . . . .	967-973
Reign of Necho . . . . .	974-980
Serapeum Stela . . . . .	974-979
Building Inscription . . . . .	980
Reign of Psamtik II . . . . .	981-983
Statue Inscription of Neferibre-Nofer . . . . .	981-983
Reign of Apries . . . . .	984-995
Serapeum Stela . . . . .	984-988
Stela of the Divine Consort Enekhnesneferibre . . . . .	988A-988J
Inscription of Nesuhor . . . . .	989-995

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xxvii

---

	§§
Reign of Amasis (Ahmose II). . . . .	996-1029
Elephantine Stela . . . . .	996-1007
Serapeum Stela . . . . .	1008-1012
Statue Inscription of the General Ahmose . . . . .	1013-1014
Statue Inscription of Pefnefdineit . . . . .	1015-1025
Mortuary Stelæ of the Priest Psamtik . . . . .	1026-1029

LIST OF FIGURES

	PAGE
Plan of Scenes and Inscriptions in Medinet Habu Temple . . . . .	5
INDEX . . . . .	521

EXPLANATION OF TYPOGRAPHICAL SIGNS AND SPECIAL CHARACTERS

1. The introductions to the documents are in twelve-point type, like these lines.

2. All of the translations are in ten-point type, like this line.

3. In the footnotes and introductions all quotations from the documents in the original words of the translation are in italics, inclosed in quotation marks. Italics are not employed in the text of the volumes for any other purpose except for titles.

4. The lines of the original document are indicated in the translation by superior numbers.

5. The loss of a word in the original is indicated by —, two words by — —, three words by — — —, four words by — — — —, five words by — — — — —, and more than five by —————. A word in the original is estimated at a “square” as known to Egyptologists, and the estimate can be but a very rough one.

6. When any of the dashes, like those of No. 5, are inclosed in half-brackets, the dashes so inclosed indicate not lost, but uncertain words. Thus [—] represents one uncertain word, [— —] two uncertain words, and [————] more than five uncertain words.

7. When a word or group of words are inclosed in half-brackets, the words so inclosed are uncertain in meaning; that is, the translation is not above question.

8. Roman numerals I, II, III, and IV, not preceded by the title of any book or journal, refer to these four volumes of Historical Documents. The Arabic numerals following such Romans refer to the numbered paragraphs of these volumes. All paragraph marks (§ and §§, without a Roman) refer to paragraphs of the same volume.

9. For signs used in transliteration, see Vol. I, p. xv.

THE TWENTIETH DYNASTY

REIGN OF RAMSES III

BUILDING AND DEDICATION INSCRIPTIONS OF MEDINET HABU TEMPLE

1. This building is the most completely preserved temple of Egypt, antedating the Ptolemaic period. With its inscriptions and reliefs, it forms a vast record of the reign of Ramses III, parallel with the other record which he has left us in the great Papyrus Harris (§§ 151-412). It was dedicated by the king in his twelfth year, by the introduction of a new calendar of feasts, with richly endowed offerings (§§ 139-45). It was entirely built by Ramses III, as its inscriptions show. To this fact, as well as to its fine state of preservation, is due its importance. That imposing line of similar temples, of the Eighteenth Dynasty, which once extended eastward and northeastward from Medinet Habu, has now almost entirely vanished. The one exception is the ruined temple of Thutmose III, beside the Medinet Habu temple. The Nineteenth Dynasty temples, crowded into the same line, have likewise perished, leaving the wreck of the Ramesseum and the Kurna temple of Seti I. Each of these temples was, with slight exception (Kurna), the work of one king, and the scenes on the Ramesseum pylons, as well as those at Medinet Habu, indicate what an irreparable loss we have suffered in the destruction of these records of individual reigns. The Medinet Habu temple is therefore unique, and we must intensely regret that it was a Twentieth rather than an Eighteenth Dynasty temple which survived.

2. We shall first notice the inscriptions which concern the building (§§ 3-34); second, the historical records preserved on its walls (§§ 35-138); and, third, the great calendar of feasts (§§ 139-45). The inscriptions of earliest date (year 5) are found farthest back, viz., in the second court; while the second pylon, which forms the front of this court, bears an immense inscription of the year 8. The first pylon, the final front of the temple, carries records of the eleventh and twelfth years; so that the gradual growth of the temple from rear to front is clear. At the same time, it must be remembered that the cutting of the scenes and inscriptions was sometimes delayed. Thus the door of the treasury in the oldest part of the temple bears a scene depicting events of the eighth year or later.

Besides the records of the building on its own walls, there is also a record of it in Papyrus Harris (§ 189).

3. In all the dedicatory inscriptions which follow, the traditional formula is introduced by the king's name, preceding the pronoun "he." This has been omitted in the translations throughout. Beginning at the rear, with the oldest portion of the building, we find a dedicatory inscription running around the holy of holies, which is as follows:

4. <sup>a</sup>He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, making for him a great and august temple of fine, white sandstone, its doors of genuine electrum; an august palace for his image, which is in his house. He made it for him in the sacred district by the side of "Lord of Life," the pure ground of the ruler of Thebes, the eternal resting-place, the accustomed court of the lord of Tazoser, the path of the leaders of the Nether World. I did not overturn the tombs of the lords of life,<sup>b</sup> the tomb-chambers of the ancestors, the glorious place

<sup>a</sup>"Paroi extérieure . . . côté nord. . . . Dernière partie du palais" (meaning temple), Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 739 f.; but "Inscription um die Cella," Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 213, d.

<sup>b</sup>A euphemism for the dead; the king means that in locating his temple in the ancient Theban cemetery he did not appropriate the ground occupied by the old tombs. It is to the already ancient necropolis that the series of epithets (beginning "sacred district" and continuing to the end) refers.

PLAN OF SCENES AND INSCRIPTIONS IN MEDINET HABU TEMPLE

The observer faces southward and looks against the outside of the north wall. The numerals indicate the paragraphs of the translations herein.

which was at the beginning, of the lord of Rosta, the divine way of the gods and the cavern-dwellers<sup>a</sup> to the revered dead.

5. On a chapel of Khonsu, in the heart of the oldest portion, is the following dedication:<sup>b</sup>

He made (it) as (his) monument for his father, Khonsu, residing in Thebes; making for him an august "Great Seat"<sup>c</sup> of fine white sandstone, the door of electrum, in "The-House (h·t)-of-Usermare-Meriamon-Possessed-of-Eternity-on-the-West-of-Thebes;" that he may establish his son, Lord of Diadems, Ramses, Ruler of Heliopolis, as excellent sovereign upon the throne of Atum, like Re, forever.

6. What is now the second court, but originally the first court, was then built in front of the older structure. It contains inscriptions of the year 5; and its dedication is as follows:

7. <sup>d</sup>He made it as (his) monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him "The-House (h·t)-of-Usermare-Meriamon-Possessed-of-Eternity-in-the-House-of-Amon," like unto the great palace of the horizon; of fine sandstone. The "Great Seat" is of gold, its pavement of silver, its doors of gold and black granite;<sup>e</sup> the broad-hall of stone of Ayan, the doors thereof of copper in beaten work, the inlay-figures of electrum and every splendid costly stone. When the sun rises, he shines into its midst, his splendor envelops its house, the favorite seat of <sup>1</sup>his father, Amon. When he sets, he touches its beauty, silver, electrum, and every costly stone. . . . .

8. Another inscription<sup>f</sup> in the same court also refers to the building. We find among the epithets following the name of the king:

<sup>a</sup>Meaning the inhabitants of the nether world, the dead.

<sup>b</sup>"Troisième salle hypostyle," Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 138.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "a great place, an august shrine."

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1307 = Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 732 f. "Sur la frise de la seconde cour, à partir du milieu de la frise de la galerie ouest;" see also Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 53.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "black copper."

<sup>f</sup>Second court, "galerie de l'ouest;" Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 738.

“ . . . . . mighty in making monuments in Victorious Thebes, making his august house like the horizon of heaven, like the great house of the All-Lord who is in heaven. . . . .”

9. During the festival of Min, on the walls of this same (second) court, the king recites to the god the building and equipment of the temple:

<sup>a3</sup>“ . . . . . Thou didst find me as a babe upon the breast, thou didst establish me, thou didst place (me) upon thy throne <sup>4</sup>. . . <sup>5</sup>. . . I built for thee an august house in thy name, of <sup>6</sup>fine white sandstone. Its form is like the horizon of heaven, over against Karnak <sup>b</sup>on the [west of Thebes].<sup>b</sup> <sup>7</sup>Its doorposts are of fine gold, the inlay-figures of every splendid costly stone.<sup>c</sup> Its treasury [overflow]s <sup>8</sup>with everything, even that which the hands of Tatenen (Ptah) made. I fashioned images of the gods and goddesses <sup>9</sup>to rest in the midst of thy house. I made my image before thy front, the regalia <sup>10</sup>of every splendid costly stone, in order to follow thee at thy every appearance, at thy every feast every day, when thou proceedest before its beautiful face. <sup>11</sup>Thou multipliest for it the years in millions. Thou makest it like one among thy divine ennead, established before thee, forever. I bring <sup>12</sup>to thee the tribute of every land, in order to flood thy treasury and thy storehouse. I multiply for thee feasts again, in order to provision thy temple. I multiply for thee wheat in heaps, thy granary<sup>d</sup> <sup>13</sup>approaches heaven; cattle yards, oxen, bullocks, [steers]; the sea bears galleys and transports; and poultry yards are supplied with thy divine offerings, the bird-pools are gathered in them. . . . .”

10. Forming the front of this court, the king erected a great pylon, which bears records of the year 5 on its back,

<sup>a</sup>Northern colonnade, second court; Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1307 f. = Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 734, 735 (with considerable omissions); Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 118-20; and better, Piehl, Inscriptions, I, CXLVIII, B-CL.

<sup>b</sup>Omitted by Brugsch.

<sup>c</sup>Brugsch stops here.

<sup>d</sup>In the tomb of the “chief measurer of the granary of the house of Amon, Userhet,” there is an inscription in which Ramses III is called: “the great Nile, the great harvest-goddess of Egypt, making monuments with a loving heart for his father, Amon . . . . . making for him a very great granary, whose grain-heaps approach heaven” (Naville, Inscriptions historiques de Pinodjem III, 6, n. 3).

facing the court, and of the year 8 on its front. It has also on its back the following dedication:

<sup>a</sup>He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods; making for him a festive hall,<sup>b</sup> before his portal, surrounded by great, <sup>c</sup>'new' monuments, like the horizon of heaven.

This, of course, refers to the erection of this addition<sup>c</sup> in front of the earlier portal.

11. <sup>d</sup>The dedication of the granite portal of this pylon (now the second pylon), once the entrance portal of the temple, is as follows:

He made a monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him a great doorway of fine granite, the door of cedar, bound with copper, the inlay-figures of electrum. Its beautiful name is: "Usermare-Meriamon,-Amon-Rejoices-to-See-Him."

12. The present first court was then erected before this pylon; it bears records of year 8 and possibly year 12. Its dedication inscription is as follows:

<sup>e</sup>He made a monument as a great<sup>f</sup> benefaction from a heart of love for his father, Amon-Re-Iny,<sup>g</sup> ruler of Thebes, making for him a house of millions of years on the west of Thebes. Its beauty reaches Manu, like the heavens which bear the sun; the sun sails to — therein, his love pervades its house.

<sup>a</sup>Back of second pylon, over colonnade behind it; photograph, not very clear.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "the broad" (wsh·t), indicating the shape of the hall.

<sup>c</sup>It would require examination on the spot to decide exactly what new portion is meant.

<sup>d</sup>Second pylon, doorposts of granite doorway facing first court; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 731 f. = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 210, c; = Brugsch, The-saurus, V, 1308; Lepsius, ibid., III, 210, d, is the same dedication on the other doorpost, but lacking the name of the portal.

<sup>e</sup>First court, "nordöstlicher Architrav," Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 213, c.

<sup>f</sup>Duplicate shows tnr.

<sup>g</sup>Uncertain divinity here identified with Amon (cf. Lanzone, I, 62). Another dedication on the back of the second pylon, over the roof of the colonnade behind it, is verbatim the same as far as the name of Amon, to which it then merely appends a series of epithets (photograph).

13. Another dedication in the same court is the following:

<sup>a</sup>He made a monument for Amon, he made a house of millions of years, on the west of Thebes. It is the place of his heart's satisfaction, in the district of Manu, the pure ground of the lord of gods, the resting-place of his divine ennead, the divine adytum since the time of the god, for the king of gods. He is satisfied when he rests in it; when he reaches (it), he is joyful of heart.

14. The following is still another dedication of the same court:

<sup>b</sup>He made a monument for his father, Amon-Re, making for him "The - House - of - Usermare - Meriamon - Possessed-of - Eternity-in-the-House-of-Amon," west of Thebes, of good white [sand]stone; the "Great Seat" — of electrum, the doorways of gold, the doors of copper, in beaten work, the in[lay-figures of electrum] —————.

15. The great pylon which forms the front of this court has on its back inscriptions of the year 11, and on its front records of years 11 and 12. It has the following dedications:

<sup>c</sup>He made a monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, making for him a very great pylon, before his august house.

He made a monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods; erecting for him great flagstaves of real cedar of the royal domain.<sup>d</sup>

And again:

16. <sup>e</sup>[He made a monument for his father], Amon-Re, king of gods;

<sup>a</sup>First court; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 730; "nordöstlicher Architrav," Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 213, b.

<sup>b</sup>"An der östlichen Aussenwand des Vorhofes," Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 213, e = Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1308.

<sup>c</sup>First pylon, left (southern) tower, by left flagstaff channel; photograph; the other channel was not included in the photograph.

<sup>d</sup>The variant on the other pylon (§ 16) has: "of the best of the terraces, of the choicest of the Lord of the Two Lands," as parallel of this phrase; showing clearly that hnt is properly rendered by "royal domain," and that this "royal domain" was located on the "terraces" of Lebanon, as under Thutmose III. (See my New Chapter, p. 28, where the examples from the Old Kingdom in note b should be omitted.)

<sup>e</sup>First pylon, right (northern) tower, on the right of the right flagstaff channel; photograph; the left channel was not included in this photograph. I have restored the lost beginnings from the parallel inscription on the other pylon.

erecting for him a colonnade at the double façade of his house, its roof<sup>a</sup> of real electrum.

[He made a monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of] Thebes; making for [him] great flagstaves of real cedar of the best of the terraces, of the choicest of the Lord of the Two Lands.<sup>b</sup>

17. The stone building in front of the Medinet Habu temple, known as the pavilion, was but the entrance of a great palace, which was considered as part of the temple, for it bore the same name.<sup>c</sup> It extended back to the second court of the temple, and the first pylon was apparently inclosed in its court. This palace served as the king's dwelling, at least during the celebration of great feasts in the Medinet Habu temple, and the doorway connecting the second court with this palace refers to this use, thus:<sup>d</sup>

The king appears like Re in the palace of his august broad-hall, to cause his father, Amon, to appear at his "Feast of the Valley;"

And again:

Ruler, beautiful in coming forth, like 'Horus' at his appearance in heaven at early morning from his august palace which is in the horizon.

Silsileh Inscriptions

18. The official who was taking out sandstone at the quarries of Silsileh, as the temple progressed, has left a record<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>I read  $\overline{d} \text{ } \overline{d} \text{ } \overline{d}$  or tp, "head," but the photograph is not clear; are the capitals meant?

<sup>b</sup>Further dedications of the usual form will be found in Piehl, Inscriptions, I, CLII f., I; CLIII f., M.

<sup>c</sup>Viz., "The-House (h't)-of-Usermare-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon" (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 167), which is the same as the name of the temple; see above dedications, passim.

<sup>d</sup>Daressy, Recueil, XX, 82; he thinks, however, that the pavilion was not connected with the palace, enveloping the front of the temple, and referred to in the above inscription. But the name and the location of the pavilion seem to me to exclude this view. The purpose of this building was already noted by Erman (Aegypten, 107, 108).

<sup>e</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 256, 257=Lepsius, Denkmäler, VI, 23, 8; Piehl, Sphinx, VI, 143-45 (transcription only).

of one of his expeditions thither which he had cut in hieratic on the wall of the quarry. It is especially interesting, because it gives the number of men engaged:

First Inscription

19. Year 5,<sup>a</sup> first month of the third season (ninth month) under the majesty of King Ramses III, L. P. H., beloved of all gods, given life forever and ever.

Expedition<sup>b</sup> which his majesty, L. P. H., made by the overseer of the White House, Setemhab, for "The-House (h t)-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King - Usermare - Meriamon-in - the - House (pr)-of-Amon,"<sup>c</sup> to do the work on the monuments in "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon,"<sup>c</sup> in western Thebes.

Men of the army who were under his command <sup>d</sup>	2,000 men
Quarrymen	500 <sup>e</sup> men
Large transports ( wsh ) which were under his command <sup>d</sup>	40
┌—┐ ships	4
	500 <sup>f</sup> men
Total, various persons	3,000

20. Two other inscriptions were left beside the above, by the same official at the same time:

<sup>a</sup>So both Lepsius, Denkmäler, and Champollion, Notices descriptives; Piehl has "year 2" (by misreading the month); but the second inscription (§ 20) corroborates the old publications, and the above reading is unquestionably correct.

<sup>b</sup>The determinative is uncertain in Lepsius, Denkmäler, and Champollion, Notices descriptives; Piehl gives the "legs;" if the determinative be the "roll," we should read "command," and supply "to" before the official's name instead of "by."

<sup>c</sup>This is the name of the Medinet Habu temple; see dedication inscriptions above.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "who were before him."

<sup>e</sup>Piehl has 300; but Lepsius, Denkmäler, shows clearly 500 (Champollion, Notices descriptives, 200, having overlooked three strokes). Lepsius, Denkmäler, is corroborated by the last number, which is in both Lepsius, Denkmäler, and Champollion, Notices descriptives, 500, and impossibly 700 (Piehl), which it would necessarily be, to make a total of 3,000. The numerals are, of course, like those in Papyrus Harris.

<sup>f</sup>Piehl, 700; but see preceding note.

Second Inscription<sup>a</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Year 5,<sup>b</sup> first month of the third season (ninth month), under the majesty of King Ramses III,<sup>c</sup> L. P. H., ——— [expedition] <sup>2</sup>which the king's-scribe, overseer of the White House —<sup>d</sup> made, (for) "The-House (h't)-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House (pr)-of-Amon."

Third Inscription<sup>e</sup>

He came, to do the work on the great and mighty monuments of his majesty, L. P. H., [for] "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.-in-the-House-of-Amon," on the west of Thebes.

HISTORICAL INSCRIPTIONS<sup>f</sup>

21. The walls of this temple, as we have said, form a vast record of the achievements of Ramses III. This record is chiefly devoted to his wars. Had these wars been reported in the sober and intelligible style of Thutmose III's Annals, we should have known much of them which it is now safe to say we shall never know. It is difficult to describe the character of these Medinet Habu inscriptions. Perhaps, under the influence of the Kadesh poem, it has now become impossible to narrate a war or a victory of the Pharaoh in

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 255 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, VI, 23, No. 6.

<sup>b</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, has 1, having omitted the hook at the top of the stroke given by Lepsius, which converts the sign into 5, as in the first inscription (§ 19). As these inscriptions are together, from the same month and the same reign, and by an official with the same title, for the same building, there can be no doubt that Lepsius is correct.

<sup>c</sup>Double name in original. There is perhaps no loss before "expedition" at the end of l. 1.

<sup>d</sup>The official's name is omitted at the end, and the connection between the temple name and the preceding is wanting.

<sup>e</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 255 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, VI, 23, No. 7.

<sup>f</sup>See Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 297 ff., and Notice explicative des ruines de Medinet Habu, by Georges Daressy (Cairo, 1897).

any other than poetic style. The record must be a poem. This would not be an unmixed misfortune, if the poem were intelligible; but the style is such as to render not merely whole lines, but entire strophes and whole passages, utterly unintelligible. This is due to two facts: first, total lack of order or progress in the narrative; second, the figurative character of the language. The first fault renders the reader's impressions fragmentary and confused in the highest degree. The texts consist almost exclusively of praise of the king and exultation over the conquered foe. The court and priestly flatterers of the king either put all this in the mouths of the Egyptians, or the discomfited enemies are made to express their wonder and terror at the king's valor, mingled with lamentation at their own undoing. All this is mingled in rapid alternation, so that one is often in doubt which party is speaking; and deep in the midst of this confused mixture there may be a few connected phrases stating whether the enemy came by land or water, or where the battle took place, or what were the names of the hostile chiefs. This utter lack of progress or continuity is rendered still more troublesome by the second fault of these texts, viz., their figurative language. Like Arabic poetry, they contain so many epithets of a highly pictorial character as frequently to make even a common word unintelligible. When the text speaks of the "full flame," who could divine that it means the Egyptian fleet; or when it mentions the "wall of metal," who could infer that the Egyptian army is intended?<sup>a</sup> Just as some old Arabic poetry is unintelligible without a native commentator, who stood nearer the author than we do, so, much of these Medinet Habu texts is likely to remain unintelligible, without some obliging

---

<sup>a</sup>See inscription of the year 8, l. 23, § 66, note.

Egyptian familiar with their style, to explain their overdrawn metaphors and metonymies.

22. Fortunately, the temple contains, besides its vast quantity of historical inscriptions, also no less than forty important relief scenes depicting the achievements of the king, in the conventional style common since the days of Seti I. These reliefs are accompanied by the usual explanatory inscriptions, which are commonly couched in such general terms that the total of their historical content is small.

23. The fraction of this great mass of documents which has been published, was copied without any approach to accuracy. Champollion's publication overleaps whole lines, or transposes two successive lines; Rosellini is next to unreadable, so badly are the signs drawn. Chabas bewailed this condition of things thirty years ago,<sup>a</sup> but it is no better today. Over half of the historical reliefs which the temple contains are unpublished. One of the most pressing needs of Egyptology is an exhaustive publication of this entire temple. I was able to procure large-scale photographs of all of the unpublished scenes and inscriptions. Twelve of these were made for me through the courtesy of Baron von Bissing, by Mr. Arthur Weigall; and to both these gentlemen I would express my sincere thanks.

24. With slight exception, this historical material is distributed chronologically from the rear to the front of the temple, the oldest being in the rear. But in the following translations it is naturally arranged chronologically, irrespective of position in the temple, which will be found in the footnotes. The temple really faces southeast, but in locating scenes and inscriptions we have assumed that it faces east, for the sake of convenience, as is done in Baedeker's guide-book.

---

<sup>a</sup>Etudes sur l'antiquité historique, 227, 228.

I. TREASURY OF MEDINET HABU TEMPLE

25. This temple contains a group of treasure-chambers, five in number, the walls of which bear scenes and inscriptions indicative of the contents of the rooms. These are of some historical importance. The scenes themselves have not yet been published (except the weighing scene), but the accompanying inscriptions are as follows:<sup>a</sup>

26. <sup>b</sup>Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "I have built for thee an august treasury<sup>c</sup> in my house in Thebes, which I fill with every real, costly stone, in order to brighten thy beauty therewith, forever.

<sup>d</sup>Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Min-Amon: "I bring to thee myrrh for thy temple, a statue kneeling upon the ground,<sup>e</sup> my figure of gold and every costly stone, mounted in Asiatic gold, to make ointment for thy majesty in my house, which is in Thebes. I have put my name in its midst, like the heavens upholding the sun every day. It is an abiding horizon bearing thy name, supplied with provision, forever."

27. <sup>b</sup>Bringing a chest of silver and gold to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods.

<sup>f</sup>Presentation of native gold to his father, Amon-Re.

<sup>f</sup>Bringing every splendid costly stone to his father.

<sup>g</sup>Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "I have gathered for thee monuments of gold and silver — as (my) <sup>h</sup>image<sup>l</sup> upon earth in the midst of thy treasury."

<sup>a</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 30-34, and II, 47, b; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 365, 366.

<sup>b</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 31.

<sup>c</sup>See Papyrus Harris, § 190.

<sup>d</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 30.

<sup>e</sup>The neighboring reliefs show this statue; on a rectangular base with feet kneels a figure of the king, bearing in his outstretched hands an ointment jar; a similar statue is mentioned in Papyrus Harris, 28, 10, § 268.

<sup>f</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 30.

<sup>g</sup>Ibid., I, 31.

28. <sup>a</sup>Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "I present to thee monuments for thy temple, of electrum, of the mountains,<sup>b</sup> and native gold [of] —<sup>c</sup> from the workshop of Ptah, the impost of Retenu (Rtḥw) as tribute before thee, in order to supply thy temple; for thy treasury, being products of the choicest of every country. I fill thy house from the tribute of my sword, from my might in every land."

29. <sup>d</sup>Utterance of King Ramses III, to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "Take thou gold and silver like sand of the shore, I have produced them for thee from the waters and the mountains, that I might present them to thee by the measure,<sup>e</sup> the regalia of thy majesty every-day. I bring to thee lapis lazuli, malachite and every costly stone in chests, <sup>f</sup>and<sup>1</sup> electrum. I have made for thee many sacred eye amulets of every splendid, costly stone."

Over<sup>f</sup> each of two cow-form weights: "Gum of God's-Land."

On<sup>f</sup> a heap between two trees: "Gum of Punt."

30. Each<sup>f</sup> of the following eight on a sack:<sup>g</sup>

1. Gold of Kush.
2. Gold, 1,000 deben.
3. Gold of the mountain.<sup>h</sup>
4. Gold of the water, 1,000 deben.
5. Gold of Edfu.
6. Gold of Ombos, 1,000 deben.
7. Gold of Coptos.
8. Lapis lazuli of Tefrer.<sup>i</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 31; "over vases of various forms."

<sup>b</sup>Electrum really occurred and occurs commonly in nature, which the artificial alloy then imitated. See Lepsius, Metalle, 44-48.

<sup>c</sup>The lost word has determinative of a land.

<sup>d</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 31.

<sup>e</sup>Ḍmwt hr t?, an unknown measure; see also Harris, 17a, 10.

<sup>f</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 32. See the expedition to Punt, Papyrus Harris (§ 407).

<sup>g</sup>See Lepsius, Metalle, 35; for a still fuller list of gold regions, see Recueil, 16, 51 f.

<sup>h</sup>Gold from the mountain mine, as distinguished from gold of the stream in the next sack.

<sup>i</sup>An unknown country; see Lepsius, Metalle, 73, 74, and Brugsch, Geographie, III, 61-63.

On<sup>a</sup> each of four heaps: "1. Native gold; 2. Gold;
3. Silver; 4. Silver."

On<sup>a</sup> two piles of rectangular blocks: "1. Lapis lazuli;
2. Malachite."

31. The<sup>b</sup> king and Thoth are before Amon; by the king:

I bring to thee silver, gold, copper, royal linen, gums of Punt. I fill thy treasury with every splendid costly stone, to brighten thy beauty therewith, forever and ever.

Over Thoth:

Utterance of Thoth: "I write for thee myriads of ten-thousands, united in a sum of millions, of silver, gold, copper, lapis lazuli, malachite of Reshet (R<sup>2</sup> -š<sup>2</sup> -ty), fine gold of Emu (c<sup>2</sup> mw), before thy august father, Amon-Re, king of gods, that he may give to thee the jubilees of Re, the years of Atum."

32. On<sup>c</sup> three heaps:

1. Fine gold of the mountain; 2. Real lapis lazuli.

3. Real malachite.

Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "I bring to thee every real costly stone, silver and gold in sacks, I cause thy treasury to overflow, and provisions to flood in thy house."

On three piles of metal plates: "1. Silver; 2. Copper;
3. Lead."

33. A<sup>d</sup> pair of balances, with the ape of Thoth at the top. Thoth, who presides over the weighing, says to Amon:

"I come to thee, to see thy beautiful face, bearing every splendid, costly stone, for the hills and mountains pay thee impost of gold and every costly stone."

The king then says to Amon:

"I come to thee, and I report to thee the statement of gold of the land of the Negro. It is thou, who makest the mountains, every costly stone, in order to brighten thy beauty. I bring them to thee in the accurate balances; I unite them for thee in myriads of millions."

<sup>a</sup>Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 32.

<sup>b</sup>Ibid., I, 33.

<sup>c</sup>Ibid., I, 34.

<sup>d</sup>Ibid., II, 47, b; Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 366.

The king bears a tray heaped with gold, and has before him the words: "Bearing gold to his father, Amon-Re." On the scales is a pile of gold, bearing the words: "Native gold."

34. One of the small rooms in the rear of the temple contains a relief, showing the gods of the South bringing their wealth to the king; they are accompanied by the words:<sup>a</sup>

Utterance of the gods, the lords of the southern frontier, the gods who reside in the Southland, who bring the mountains with their costly stones, the trees with [their] fruit, [to] King Ramses III: "God's-Land, with every splendid costly stone, native gold of Emu (m'w), lapis lazuli, — —, malachite of Reshet (R' -š' -t), added together in millions, we bring northward to thee; the dues (hsb) of Negro-land by water, after the northward voyage. All the products of the Southland are in the writings of Thoth; they are for thy house of millions of years, according as thou lovest Thebes."

The enumeration of the tribute of the North, "the sea and the isles" then follows, but is not completely published.

II. FIRST LIBYAN WAR, YEAR 5

35. The materials for this war are extensive, but they are so unsatisfactory that we can only see in vague outlines a repetition of the conditions which led to Merneptah's Libyan war. The Libyans under their king, Themer, have made common cause with the roving sea robbers of the Thekel and the Philistines. Some of the latter joined the land forces of the Libyans; others entered the Nile mouths with their ships. The Libyans had improved the generation of laxity which preceded the rise of Ramses III's reign, to push eastward farther into the Delta, and, as in Merneptah's time, to settle on both banks of the "great river," the Canopic branch of the Nile. They had plundered the towns of the western Delta from Memphis on the south to Kerben (probably in the vicinity of Canopus) on the north. This plundering had been going on for years unremittingly; but the invasion of the Libyan army forced Ramses III to act. He marched against the allies, met them in the western Delta at a town called "Usermare-Meriamon-is-Chastiser-of-Temeh" (§ 52), and completely defeated them, slaying 12,535 men and taking at least 1,000 prisoners. After a great triumph on the field, the captives and spoil were brought to the palace, where the king inspected them from the balcony, and the people rejoiced in their new-found security, as in the days of Merneptah.

<sup>a</sup>Recueil, 19, 19.

The materials are these:

1. Great Inscription in the Second Court, Medinet Habu (§§ 36-47).
2. Relief Scenes in the Second Court and Outside North Wall, Medinet Habu (§§ 48-58).
3. Papyrus Harris, 76, 11-77, 6 (§ 405).

I. GREAT INSCRIPTION IN THE SECOND COURT (YEAR 5)<sup>a</sup>

36. This inscription is the longest in the Medinet Habu temple, filling seventy-five lines. It is also by far the most difficult in this collection of difficult texts. It represents the last extreme of those peculiarities mentioned above (§ 21),

<sup>a</sup>Occupying a large portion of the south wall, behind the columns of the southern colonnade in the second court of the Medinet Habu temple; in seventy-five vertical lines, not too well preserved. It was first published by Rosellini (Monumenti Storici, 139-41, but omitted by Champollion) and then by Burton (Excerpta hieroglyphica, 43-45); later by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, II, 46); de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 139-47); Brugsch (Thesaurus, 1197-1207), and extracts (including names of chiefs, ll. 47 and 48) by Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 178). Brugsch states that he used his own copy, and collated Burton, de Rougé, and a copy by Eisenlohr; but he inserts lacunæ at the ends of ll. 15-20, where they do not belong, and other slips show that we have still to await an adequate edition of this text. I collated the various editions for all questionable passages, and was able to use photographs of some portions.

so that whole passages are unintelligible. Nor would they, if translatable, furnish any new facts of importance concerning the war; for almost the entire inscription consists of praise of the king, mingled with exultation over the fallen foe and the lamentations of the conquered. Only here and there appear incidents of the campaign, or references from which its course and character may be inferred. They are chiefly four: the king's triumph as he views from the palace balcony the prisoners and the trophies of the slain (§ 42, ll. 36-41); the names of the hostile chiefs (§ 43, ll. 48 and 49); the brief mention of the northern sea-roving allies (§ 44, ll. 51-54); and the security of the people, even of a woman alone upon the road (§ 47, l. 73). Only portions of which the rendering would have been exceedingly uncertain have been omitted; but the entire text is of such peculiar difficulty that the following attempt at translation as a whole is exceedingly unsatisfactory to the author.<sup>a</sup>

Introduction

37. <sup>1</sup>Year 5 under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, Extending Egypt, Mighty of Sword, Strong-Armed, Slayer of the Tehenu; Wearer of the Double Diadem; <sup>2</sup>[Mighty in Strength, like his father, Montu], Overthrower of Tehenu in Heaps in their Place; Golden Horus: Valiant, Lord of all Might, Making the Boundary as Far as he Desires Behind his Enemies ——— <sup>3</sup>his Fear, his Terror is a Shield [over] Egypt; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Lord of Day, Youthful and Bright, Shining like the Moon, he hath Repeated [his] Birth ——— [Usermare-Meriamon]; <sup>4</sup>Son of Re: Ramses (III), Ruler of Heliopolis, first in victory, appearing [in] Egypt, of whom Re has exacted that he return with offerings, whom the divine ennead has caused ——— <sup>a</sup>The entire inscription has been translated only once, viz., by Chabas, in the first edition of his Etudes sur l'antiquité historique (which I have not seen), and again in the second edition (228-33), only ll. 17-50). But he had only the entirely inadequate publications of Rosellini and Burton; this fact, and the state of knowledge of the language over thirty years ago, made an understanding of the text and a realization of its difficulties impossible.

---

<sup>5</sup>victory, lord of valor, warrior, having an image like the son of Nut, to make the whole earth like ———— <sup>6</sup>King Ramses III, ruler, great in love, lord of offerings, whose image is like Re at early morning.

The King's Power and Goodness

38. His terror ———— <sup>7</sup>— of his serpent-crest, established upon the throne of Re as king of the Two Lands. The land from front to rear is relieved, <sup>a</sup> the chiefs do honor ———— <sup>8</sup>gathered together in the lands, in the reign of King Ramses III, the brave and valiant king, who creates his —, when he sees ———— <sup>9</sup>raging, 'favorite' protector, who has come in Egypt, long-armed, swift-footed, smiting every land; counselor, excellent in plans, skilled in laws, giving ———— <sup>10</sup>exultation. His name has penetrated all hearts as far as the limit of the darkness; he reaches his limits, he terrifies the 'ends'<sup>b</sup> of the earth, . . . . . [countries] <sup>11</sup>which they knew not. Their lords come with fearful step to crave the breath of life which is in Egypt from Horus, the mighty Bull, great in kingship, King Ramses III, the great wall <sup>12</sup>of Egypt, protecting their limbs. His might is like Set in laying low the Nine Bows; youth, divine at his coming forth, like Harakhte. When he appears he seems like Atum, when he opens his mouth, with <sup>13</sup>breath for the people, to sustain alive the Two Lands with his sustenance every day; favorite son, champion of the divine ennead, for whom they overthrow the lands.

Defeat of Amor?

39. 'Gored'<sup>c</sup> is the chief of 'Amor' (? -m- —) in ['his'] blood<sup>d</sup> <sup>14</sup>his seed is not; all his people are taken captive, carried off, 'spoiled'.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "cooled."

<sup>b</sup>Or possibly: "the isles."

<sup>c</sup>This uncertain adjective (c b c ty) occurs several times in the texts of Ramses III, each time applied to the king. If this is the case here, it would leave "the chief of Amor" without a verb. I have supposed it to mean "horned," both possessing horns or gored with them. The paragraph certainly concerns some foreign chief, but the space in which he is abruptly introduced is very small; and the mention of Amor is a mere conjecture, based on the first two letters, the last letter (r?) being lost. Examination of the original would determine the matter in all probability. If Amor is correct, its desolation then refers to the invasion of the sea-peoples, by whom Amor was wasted, as narrated in the long inscription of year 8 (§ 64, l. 17). This fits well the mention of the sea-peoples as allies of the Libyans in the year 5 (below ll. 51 ff.). They had already reached Amor at that time, and some of their vessels had pushed on to Egypt in time to assist the Libyans in the war of the year 5.

<sup>d</sup>See Israel passage, III, 604, examples.

Everybody in his land comes with praise <sup>15</sup>that<sup>a</sup> the great sun of Egypt may look upon them, that the sun-disk may turn to them, the Sun [—], coming forth, <sup>16</sup>rising upon the earth, the warmth of Egypt, which is in heaven.

Praise of the People

40. They say: "Exalted is the Sun of our land! We were lost <sup>17</sup>in the land daily (in<sup>1</sup>) the darkness, which King Ramses III has expelled. The lands and countries are stripped, <sup>18</sup>and brought to Egypt as slaves; gifts gathered together for her gods' satiety, provisions, supplies, are a flood <sup>19</sup>in the Two Lands. The multitude rejoices in this land, none is sad, (for) Amon has established his son upon his throne, all the circuit of the sun <sup>20</sup>is united in his grasp; the vanquished of the Asiatics and the Tehenu. Taken are those who <sup>21</sup>were spoiling the condition of Egypt. The land had been exposed in continual extremity, since the (former) kings. They were desolated, the gods as well as all people. There was no hero <sup>22</sup>to seize them when they retreated. Lo, there was a youth like a gryphon . . . . .<sup>b</sup> <sup>24</sup>like a bull ready for battle — — — — upon the field. His horses were like hawks.<sup>c</sup> [—] <sup>25</sup>roaring like a lion [terrible] in rage. The officers (smn) are mighty like Reshep, when they see ten thousands likewise. [—] — — like Montu. <sup>26</sup>His name is a flame, the terror of him is in the countries. The land of Temeh comes together in one place in Libya, —,<sup>d</sup> and Meshwesh (M-š ʔ -w ʔ -š ʔ), . . . . <sup>31</sup>. . . .

The Overthrow of the Enemy

41. Lo, the heart of his majesty is violent with might, [like a] mighty [lion] <sup>32</sup>falling upon the sheep.<sup>e</sup> Equipped is he like a valiant bull, (his) two arms are sharp horns to tear open the mountains, behind

<sup>a</sup>Dümichen indicates no lacunæ at the lower ends of ll. 14-20, and the sense confirms this; but Brugsch has inserted lacunæ at the ends of all but l. 14, where the connection is very evident. The photograph shows that these lines are over a door which rises into the inscription at this point. The hieroglyphs extend to the very edge of the door, which would suggest that the door had been cut in after the inscription, but as no hieroglyph is cut through and the connection between lines is good, there is certainly no loss.

<sup>b</sup>Obscure and partially fragmentary epithets of the king.

<sup>c</sup>See the same comparison complete in the march to Zahi, year 8 (§ 72).

<sup>d</sup>Name of a foreign country of which only a pyramid (špd?) at the end is visible.

<sup>e</sup>Any small cattle.

1. The gods 1baffle1 33their plans which they who confront him 1lay1. As for those who shall invade his boundary, his majesty goes forth against them like a flame — — — in the dry herbage. [1They flutter1] like wild fowl 34in the midst of the net, with legs struggling in the basket, made into a roast, laid low, prostrate on the 1ground1 — —. Their loss is heavy, 35without number. Behold, evil is among them to the height of heaven.<sup>a</sup> Bound are their mighty men upon the place of slaughter, they are made into pyramids upon their 36ground, by the might of the king, valiant in his limbs, the sole lord, mighty like Montu, King Ramses III.

The King's Triumphal Audience

42. (They) come forth, carried off as captives to Egypt; the hands 37and foreskins are without number; brought forward as captives, bound, under the balcony.<sup>b</sup> The chiefs of the countries are assembled, beholding their evil plight. The tens<sup>c</sup> 38are conducted to the king, their arms extended, their praise reaching heaven, with hearts of love 1toward1 Amon-Re, the god who accords them the protection of the ruler. 39The messengers of every land come, their hearts fluttering, and so transported that they (the hearts) are no longer in their bodies. Their faces behold the face of the king like Atum, protecting against the Temeh, in order to perfect the 1reign1 of his majesty. When their feet 40trod Egypt, their leaders feared, and were made as common people in strength. (1Their1) names abide through the great name of his majesty. Their leaders — — — 41fear; their mouths cannot mention the manner of Egypt.

The Discomfiture of the Enemy

43. The land of Temeh is spread out, they flee. The Meshwesh (M-š ʔ -w ʔ -š ʔ) are hung up 42in their land, their plant is uprooted, there is not for them a survivor. All their limbs tremble for the terror, which protects against them. They say: "Behold, we are 1subject1 to Egypt, 43its lord has destroyed our soul, forever and ever. . . . 44. . . .

<sup>a</sup>A figure indicating the last extremity or excess.

<sup>b</sup>The balcony of the palace; see II, 982. This scene is depicted with all the details here narrated in the relief, § 52.

<sup>c</sup>A term for councilors, or nobles; see Maspero, Etudes égyptiennes, II, 197-204, and Brugsch, Wörterbuch, Supplement, 927-29.

Our feet find not a way to go; we traverse all the lands as their warriors, (but) they fight not with us in battle-array.<sup>a</sup> We kindled <sup>45</sup>the fire for ourselves at our desire, (but) our own fire has taken (us), we cannot quench (it). Their lord is like Sutekh, beloved of Re, [his] roaring is heard — <sup>46</sup>like a gryphon. He is behind us slaughtering, and he has no pity. He turns us back [from the boundaries] of Egypt, forever. . . . .<sup>47</sup>. . . . The fire has penetrated us, our seed is not. As for Ded (Dy-dy), Meshken (M-š<sup>3</sup> -k-n), Meryey<sup>b</sup> (M-r<sup>3</sup> -y<sup>3</sup> -yw) and Wermer (Wr<sup>c</sup> -m-r<sup>3</sup>), <sup>48</sup>Themer (T<sup>3</sup> -m-r<sup>3</sup>), and every hostile chief who crossed the border of Egypt from Libya, he hath set fire from front to rear . . . .<sup>49</sup>. . . . We know the great might of Egypt, for Re gives to her protection and victory when he appears shining <sup>50</sup>like the sun, when he rises over the people (rḥy t). We come to him; we cry, 'Salâm' to him, we kiss the ground (to) his great might — — <sup>51</sup>King Ramses III."

Defeat of the Northern Countries

. 44. The northern countries are unquiet in their limbs, even the Peleset (Pw-r<sup>3</sup> -s<sup>3</sup> -ty), the Thekel (T<sup>3</sup> -k-k<sup>3</sup> -r<sup>3</sup>), <sup>52</sup>who devastate their land. Their soul came, in the last extremity. They were warriors (t-h-r<sup>3</sup>) upon land, also<sup>d</sup> in the sea. Those who came<sup>e</sup> on [land] — — — <sup>53</sup>Amon-

<sup>a</sup>This line may contain some reference to the Libyans doing mercenary service in the Egyptian army; meaning that these are not the ones who have defeated Libya, but the native Egyptians.

<sup>b</sup>Meryey is the Libyan king defeated by Merneptah, whose inscriptions mention Ded as his father (III, 579, l. 13). But the other Libyan kings above mentioned are new. They seem to be mentioned in chronological order. But as we know that Meryey was the son of Ded, Meshken is likely to have been the brother of Meryey. Themer was probably the contemporary of Ramses III, and Wermer reigned during the ephemeral kings of Egypt, between Merneptah and Ramses III, but survived into Ramses III's reign. Maspero thinks they are all contemporaries (Struggle of the Nations, 456).

<sup>c</sup>Brugsch gives Wr as the first sign of this name (evidently following Burton), but he first read "Za" (Geschichte, 597). This first sign is indicated as lost in all the other publications, including Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 178). Only Chabas (Etudes sur l'antiquité historique, 236) gives The (T<sup>3</sup>) as the first syllable. But as it is wanting in Rosellini and Burton, whose publications Chabas used (ibid., 227 f.), the reading must be a restoration which has passed from Chabas into the histories without inquiry as to its source, e. g., lastly in Maspero's Struggle of the Nations, 459.

<sup>d</sup>See Müller, Asien und Europa, 360, n. 4.

<sup>e</sup>In view of the following: "those who entered" (n<sup>3</sup> c k), we must certainly render here: "those who came" (n<sup>3</sup> yy), and not merely "nahend" (n<sup>3</sup> yy), as

Re was behind them, destroying them; those who entered into the river-mouths<sup>a</sup> were like wild fowl, creeping into the net, made<sup>r</sup> — — — — —<sup>54</sup>their arms. Their hearts fluttered, (so) transported (that) they were no longer in their bodies. Their leaders were carried off, slain, thrown prostrate. They were made captives — — — — —<sup>55</sup>. . . . .

Words of the Dejected Northerners

45. "The only lord is in Egypt, no warrior is (so) accurate in shooting, none escapes him — — —<sup>56</sup>the ends of the Great Circle (Okeanos, šn-wr), until they fear with one accord. We will beseech peace, coming with trembling step, for fear of him. . . . .<sup>57</sup>. . . . ."

The King's Valor

46. He is like a bull standing in the field, his eye and his two horns ready and prepared to attack their rear with his head; a valiant warrior — — — — —<sup>58</sup>roaring; a warrior lord of might, taking captive every land. They come bowing down for fear of him, the blooming youth, valiant like Baal, — — — — —<sup>59</sup>the king effective in plans, possessed of counsel, not failing, but that which he does takes place instantly, Ramses III. . . . .<sup>60</sup>. . . He is like the lion with deep (lit., heavy) <sup>61</sup>roar upon the mountain-tops, whose terror is feared from afar. A gryphon swift in every stride, whose two wings are iters of millions of years,<sup>b</sup> <sup>62</sup>like the — of the gait of the panther, knowing his prey, seizing upon his assailant, his two arms destroy the limbs of those who invade

---

Müller has rendered (Asien und Europa, 360). We have in the entire passage, first the approach both on land and water, and then the destruction of both parties on land and water. The passage is referred by Maspero (following Chabas) to the war of the year 8. But it is evident that in an inscription of the year 5 it can only refer to the Libyan war of that year; and that we must conclude that the sea-peoples already assisted the Libyans in this war. This is again rendered evident by the hands cut off as trophies as in the Libyan war of Merneptah. Had there been only Libyans in the battle, we should have had only phalli. Again, when we consider that the sea-peoples were already in the Libyan ranks in Merneptah's day, there is, of course, no reason why they should not be there now. Only the Thekel and the Peleset have not heretofore appeared in the South.

<sup>a</sup>R > -h > *w*t occurs first in the Eighteenth Dynasty as "river-mouths," where the customs officers and frontier marine police were stationed by Amenhotep III (II, 916). In the war of the year 8 it is used also of "harbor-mouths" (§ 65, l. 20, and elsewhere).

<sup>b</sup>On "iters," see II, 965, l. 19, note; he means the distances attained with his wings would demand millions of years to cover with ordinary means of locomotion.

the boundary, raging — [—], whose right arm <sup>63</sup>is thrust into the fray, slaying hundreds of thousands in their place under his horses; he sees the thick of the multitude like grasshoppers, smitten, ground down, <sup>64</sup>crushed like [—]; strong-horned, relying upon his strength, before whom hundred-thousands and ten-thousands are despised. His form is like Montu, <sup>65</sup>when he goes forth. Every land bows down for him, at the mention of him, the ruler excellent in plan like Osiris, equipping this whole land with — — <sup>66</sup>strong-armed, great in strength in the lands and countries; all that he hath done takes place as (if done by) Thoth.

The King Egypt's Security

47. King Ramses III is kind-hearted toward Egypt, bearing the protection of the land <sup>67</sup>on the height of his back<sup>a</sup> without trouble; a wall, casting a shadow for the people (rhy't). They dwell in his time, with heart relying upon the might of their <sup>68</sup>protection, the [—] of his two arms, saying: "A divine hawk, smiting and seizing!" He has made hosts by his victories, filling the storehouses <sup>69</sup>of the temples with the plunder of his sword, preparing the divine offerings from his excellent things . . . <sup>70</sup>. . . in that Amon, his august father, has given to him the lands, united together under the feet of King Ramses III. Lo, the golden Horus, rich in years, divine water <sup>71</sup>of Re, which came forth from his limbs, august living image of the son of Isis (Horus), who was born adorned with the royal diadem like Set, great in inundations bearing their sustenance for Egypt, <sup>72</sup>so that the people (rhy't) and the folk (hnm'm't) are possessed of good things; the sovereign, executing truth for the All-Lord, presenting it every day before him. Egypt and the lands are in peace in his reign, <sup>73</sup>the land is like [—] with untroubled heart. A woman goes about at her will, with her veil upon her head,<sup>b</sup> her going extending as far as she pleases. The countries come, bowing down to <sup>74</sup>the fame of his majesty, with their tribute and their children upon their backs. South as well as north [come] to him with praise, when they see him like Re at early morning. They — <sup>75</sup>the plans and stipulations of the victorious king, the ruler, effective in plan like the Beautiful-Faced (Ptah), the king, Lord of the Two Lands, lord of might, Ramses III, given life, like Re, forever.

<sup>a</sup>That is, bearing the burden of the land's defense upon his shoulders.

<sup>b</sup>That is, not hanging down over her face.

2. RELIEF SCENES IN SECOND COURT AND OUTSIDE NORTH WALL
(YEAR 5)<sup>a</sup>

48. These scenes depict various incidents of the war, from the march to the frontier to the final triumphs, and probably furnish us with more information as to the character of the campaign than the long inscription devoted to it, which we have just studied.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

49. The king in his chariot, accompanied by troops, is marching against Libya. Before him is a chariot bearing the standard of Amon. Beside the king trots his tame lion. The inscriptions are these:

Over the Amon Standard

Utterance of Amon-Re, king of gods: "Lo, I am before thee, my son, lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon, I give [to thee] all [might and power!] among the Nine Bows; terror — — — their chiefs, I will open [for] thee the ways of the land of Temeh. I will trample them before thy horses."

Over the King<sup>c</sup>

The Good God, victorious king, rich in might, like Montu, lovely like Min, strong-armed like the son of Nut, great in strength, mighty in terror, whose roaring courses through the countries, a lion raging when he sees his opponent. None escapes — —. He rejoices among a hundred thousand, a valiant warrior in his own person, he looks upon untold myriads<sup>d</sup> as one. When he appears upon the battlefield like Baal, his flame consumes the Nine Bows.

<sup>a</sup>The publications are totally inadequate; they began in the days of Napoleon's expedition (Description, II, Pl. 12), and continued until Lepsius' day. Some scenes are still unpublished; for the publications, see note on each scene. I am indebted to Mr. A. H. Gardiner for a number of readings from photographs of the relief inscriptions.

<sup>b</sup>Exterior, north side, west end; Champollion, Monuments, 217 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 124.

<sup>c</sup>This text also in Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, LV.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "hundreds of thousands of myriads."

Scene<sup>a</sup>

50. Ramses III, standing in his chariot with drawn bow, charges the fleeing Libyans, who are trampled by his horses. He is supported by mercenary archers and swordsmen, probably Sherden.

Inscription

Live the Good God, Montu, when he goes forth, beautiful upon the steed, charging into hundreds of thousands, mighty in valor, stretching the [bow] and shooting the arrows whither he will, fighting ——— piercing with sharp horns, overthrowing the Temeh, slain in their places in heaps before his horses, causing that they cease their opposition in their land, whose sword has overthrown their seed by the might of his father, Amon, in all lands together, Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

51. The king in his chariot charging the enemy in the conventional manner. The latter, represented as Libyans, are scattered to right and left or trampled beneath his horses' feet. Among the attacking Egyptians are their foreign auxiliaries, the Sherden.

Inscription<sup>c</sup>

Good God, in the form of Montu, great in strength, whose [heart] is glad when he sees the conflict, like a fire in —, firm on the right, stretching the bow, swift on the left, — — — with arrows, charging before him, conscious of his might, face to face, smiting hundreds of thousands, — the heart of the land of the Temeh; their lifetime, their

---

<sup>a</sup>Exterior, north side, west end; unpublished. Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303, "second scene." I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>b</sup>East wall, second court; Champollion, Monuments, 205 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 136; see also Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 176.

<sup>c</sup>Behind the king there is a further inscription of one line, referring in the usual phrases to the enemy as "overthrown before the horses of King Ramses III." The name of the royal horses is omitted in the publication.

souls are finished,<sup>a</sup> the strong-armed son of Amon is behind them like a young lion.<sup>b</sup> . . . . .

Scene<sup>c</sup>

52. The king stands in a balcony with his waiting chariot below (behind him); he harangues his nobles, who are grouped before him. Behind them approach five rows of captive Libyans and sea-peoples, each row headed by Egyptian officers and scribes, who throw down in five heaps severed hands and phalli, which the scribes record.

The accompanying inscriptions are these:

Before the King

Utterance of his majesty to the nobles and companions who are by his side: "Behold ye, the many good things, which Amon-Re, king of gods hath done for Pharaoh, his son, He hath carried captive the land of Temeh, Seped, and Meshwesh, who were robbers plundering Egypt every day, and overthrown them beneath my feet. Their plant is uprooted, so that not one survives. They have ceased all lying — —, forever, by the good counsels which his majesty has carried out, in order to cause — to be — [— —]. Rejoicing and joy are yours to the height of heaven. My [majesty] raged like Set, extending Egypt, mighty ———, overthrowing the Nine Bows, through that which my father, lord of gods, Amon, lord of [Thebes], creator of my beauty, did for me."

By the Palace

City (dmy) of "Usermare-Meriamon-is-the-Chastiser-of-Temeh."<sup>d</sup>

Over the Nobles

Utterance of the nobles and companions, when they answered before the Good God: "Thou art Re ——— when thou risest, the people live.

<sup>a</sup>See Wadi Halfa stela of Sesostris, I, l. 16 (I, 512), and Breasted, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXIII, 233.

<sup>b</sup>The usual epithets of the lion: "heavy-voiced, roaring in the mountains, etc.," follow here, but are badly copied.

<sup>c</sup>Exterior, north side, west end; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303, "third scene;" unpublished. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>d</sup>So Daressy, Recueil, 19, 18; but I was unable to find this inscription on my photograph. It is also given by Brugsch, Geschichte, 597.

Thy heart<sup>1</sup> is skilled in speech, and thy counsels are excellent. Thy fear hath repelled the Nine Bows; as for Temeh, their heart failed, coming that they might [—] Egypt. As for the lands and countries, their limbs tremble, the fear of thee is before them every day; but the heart of Egypt rejoices forever. . . . .”<sup>a</sup>

Total<sup>b</sup> of foreskins ( $k^2-r^2-n^2-ty$ ), [1]<sup>c</sup>2,535.

Total of hands, 12,535.

Total of —<sup>d</sup> 12,758<sup>e</sup>(+x).

Total of hands, 12,520 (+x).<sup>f</sup>

Total of hands, 12,635 (+x).<sup>g</sup>

Scene<sup>h</sup>

53. The king is seated in his chariot with his back to the horses, which are held by his officers, while three attendants hold sunshades over him. Beside him (below in the relief) was a line of officers, now mostly disappeared. Before him, his sons and the highest officials of the kingdom bring up four lines of captured Libyans, and at the head of the first three, the scribes throw down and count the hands cut off from the fallen Libyans, while at the head of the fourth line they are doing the same with the phalli severed from the slain.

<sup>a</sup>Four short lines more of conventional phrases.

<sup>b</sup>Each total is over a different heap, five heaps in all.

<sup>c</sup>There is just room for the 10,000-sign, which must have been here as in the other lines.

<sup>d</sup>The heap is one of phalli.

<sup>e</sup>The hundreds may be 9, and the arrangement would indicate 9.

<sup>f</sup>Only the tens and units are uncertain, and the total is probably the same as in the first two.

<sup>g</sup>The hundreds may be 9; if only 6, then the tens would be 3. As two of these five totals are identical (12,535), and a third is almost certainly the same, it is evident that the number 12,535 is the sum-total of dead; otherwise we should have over 60,000 dead, which is quite impossible.

<sup>h</sup>South wall, second court; Champollion, Monuments, 206 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 135; see also Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 177; Piehl, Inscriptions, I, CLVI, U-CLVIII; and part of inscription in Young, Hieroglyphics, 15; I had a photograph for some portions of the relief, especially the lowest row.

Inscription over the King

54. Utterance of the king, the lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III, to the king's-children, the king's-butlers, nobles, companions, and all the leaders of the infantry and chariotry: "Acclaim ye to the height of heaven! My sword has overthrown the Tehenu, who came, accoutered, their hearts determined to match themselves with Egypt. I went forth against them like a lion; I smote them, and they were made heaps. I was behind them like a divine Hawk when he has seen the birdlet in the — . . . . . I laid low their soul, I took away their water, and my flame consumed their towns, I am like Montu in Egypt; my might overthrows the Nine Bows, (for) my august father, Amon, prostrates every land beneath my feet, while I am king upon the throne, forever."

Inscription over Hands and Phalli<sup>a</sup>

Bringing up the captured before his majesty, from the vanquished of Libya; making 1,000 men; making 3,000 hands; making 3,000 foreskins.

Inscription over First Line

55. Utterance of the king's-children, king's-butlers, and nobles, before the Good God: "Great is thy might, O victorious king. Thy roaring courses through the Nine Bows. Thou art the rampart, protecting Egypt; they dwell confident in thy strength, O Pharaoh, L. P. H., our lord."

Inscription over Third Line<sup>b</sup>

Utterance of the nobles and leaders (h<sup>3</sup> w' tyw): "Amon, the god, he has decreed the victory to the ruler, who carries off all lands, Ramses-Meriamon, ———."

<sup>a</sup>This inscription occurs four times, namely, over each of the four heaps, three of hands and one of phalli. Once (at the top) "making 3,000 foreskins" is omitted by Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 177); but the older publications (e. g., Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 135), are correct in inserting it, as the photograph shows. Each time it thus records the capture of 1,000 and the slaying of 6,000 men. Taken together, they record a total of 28,000 men killed and captured. This is, of course, impossible. Moreover, the third relief on the north wall (outside, § 57) gives 12,535 as the number of slain. If we assume that only the two lower rows (one showing phalli and one hands) are different in our relief, we obtain a total of 12,000 slain (6,000 in each row), which roughly agrees with the other relief. The two upper rows are then mere duplicates of the third, added to fill up the space at the disposal of the artist. As such repetition is certain in § 57, this solution is very probable.

<sup>b</sup>Numbering from the top; the second line is without inscription.

Inscription over Fourth Line

Utterance of the king's-children, king's-butlers, and nobles: "Thou art the sun, when thou risest over Egypt, thy terror ——— O Pharaoh, L. P. H., child of Amon."

Scene<sup>a</sup>

56. The king in his chariot, accompanied by a pair of sunshade-bearers, and a body of soldiers, drives before him three lines of fettered Libyan prisoners.

Inscription

Ruler, beautiful as king, like Atum, mighty —, — the Tehenu, who come for [fear of him]; he — him who invades his boundary. Amon, his august father, makes sound his limbs, King Ramses III, given life. Valiant —, great in strength like his father, Montu. . . . . He hath overthrown his adversaries in their place. Those whom his sword captures, whose hands are bound before him, are living captives. He is like a mighty bull, he gores ——— beautiful, possessed of valor, [which] his father, Amon-Re, [gave] that he may give to him great victories, and a reign of jubilees like Re; the king, lord of might, Ramses III, given life like Re.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

57. At the left Amon is enthroned in a chapel, with Mut standing behind him. The king, approaching from the right, leads three lines of Libyan captives, whom he presents to the god.

Inscription over Amon

Utterance of Amon-Re, king of gods, to his son, King Ramses III: "Praise to thee! Thou hast captured thine adversaries; thou hast overthrown the invader of thy boundary. I give to thee my might in thy limbs, that thou mayest overthrow the Nine Bows. My hand is the shield of thy body, warding off evil from thee. I give to thee the kingdom of Atum, shining upon the throne of Re.”<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>East wall, second court; Champollion, Monuments, 207 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 137.

<sup>b</sup>East wall, second court; Champollion, Monuments, 208 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 138; see also Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 176; Piehl, Inscriptions, I, CLV, P, Q, R-CLVI (only inscriptions with divinities and king).

Inscription before the King

58. Utterance of King Ramses III before his father, Amon-Re, ruler of the gods: “How great is that which thou hast done, O lord of gods. Thy plans and thy counsels are those which come to pass throughout. Thou sentest me forth in valor, thy strength was with me. No land stood before me, at the mention of thee. I overthrew those who invaded my boundary, prostrated in their place. Their warriors (phrr) were — pinioned, slain in my grasp. I laid low the land of Temeh, their seed is not.<sup>b</sup> The Meshwesh (M-š<sup>3</sup> -w<sup>3</sup> -š<sup>3</sup>), they crouch down for fear of me. It was ordained because of thy victory-bringing commands, it was given because of thy kingdom-bestowing ‘power!’”

Inscription over Libyans

Utterance of the leaders of the vanquished of Libya, who are in the grasp of his majesty: “Great is thy fame, O victorious king; how great the fear of thee and the terror of thee! Thou didst turn (us) back, when we went forth ‘to’ fight, to ‘invade’ Egypt, forever. Give thou to us the breath which we breathe, the life which is in thy hands, O lord, like the form ‘of’ Amon-Re, king of gods.”

III. NORTHERN WAR, YEAR 8

59. Already in Ramses III’s fifth year the tribes of the southern coast of Asia Minor and the maritime peoples of the Ægean had sent some of their advanced galleys to assist the Libyans in their war of that year against Egypt. Or, as in Merneptah’s day, the plundering crews of their southernmost advance had incidentally joined the Libyan invasion. These were but the premonitory skirmishing-line of a more serious and more general movement. The peoples involved were the probably Cretan Peleset, a settlement of whom <sup>a</sup>The short speech of Mut is of no historical consequence.

<sup>b</sup>See III, 604.

later became the biblical Philistines; the Thekel, who may be the Sikeli, later of Sicily;<sup>a</sup> the Shekelesh, the Denyen or Danaoi, and the Weshwesh (§ 64, l. 18), who are of uncertain origin.<sup>b</sup> Owing to pressure from uncertain sources without, large numbers of these peoples, accompanied by their wives, children, and belongings, in clumsy ox carts, left their homes, and moving eastward along the coast of Asia Minor, penetrated Syria. They were accompanied by a strong fleet also. In the author's opinion, this movement was really a "Völkerwanderung," not merely an invasion, with a few families of the chiefs. They were strong enough to hold all northern Syria at their mercy; from Carchemish, through the Syrian Hittite conquests to the coast, as far south as Arvad, and inland as far south as Amor, they plundered the country. They had a central camp somewhere in Amor

60. Ramses evidently still held the coast south of Arvad. Mustering his forces, he dispatched his war fleet to this coast, possibly with his motley army of various mercenaries and Egyptians on board, or in transports thus convoyed. At some point<sup>c</sup> on the coast he met the enemy; a land and naval action took place. Possibly the two battles were near together. In any case, Ramses, after the land victory, was able to station his archers on the strand and aid in the destruction of the hostile fleet. His victory over both forces seems to have been complete, for we do not hear of any further trouble from this source during the remainder of his reign.

---

<sup>a</sup>But see III, 570, note.

<sup>b</sup>See III, 306, and Müller, Asien und Europa, 360 ff. Papyrus Harris also adds the Sherden (§ 403), who probably were from Sardinia and associated with the Lycian tribes in common enterprises on the sea. On all these northern peoples, see also the discussion of Hall, Earliest Civilization of Greece, and Annual of the British School at Athens, VIII, 157.

<sup>c</sup>The land battle was certainly not south of Amor; the naval battle was in one of the harbors of the Phœnician coast.

The sources for this war are:

1. The Great Inscription on the Second Pylon (Medinet Habu, §§ 61-68).
2. The Relief Scenes on the North Wall and in the Second Court (Medinet Habu, §§ 69-82).
3. Papyrus Harris (§ 403).

I. GREAT INSCRIPTION ON THE SECOND PYLON, YEAR 8<sup>a</sup>

61. Of the long inscriptions in the Medinet Habu temple, this is by far the most clear and intelligible, both in language and arrangement. After the date and the usual encomium of the Pharaoh, which occupies about one-third of the inscription (ll. 1-12), the king is introduced as addressing his court and the people of the land, in a speech very similar to that which concludes Papyrus Harris (Pls. 75-79). After reverting to Amon's choice of him for the throne, with which the Pharaohs so often introduce their addresses, he narrates the northern invasion of Syria (§ 64, ll. 16-18), his preparations to repel it (§ 65, ll. 18-23), and then, in highly figurative language, briefly describes the overthrow of the invaders by land and sea (§ 66, ll. 23-26). He closes with a song of triumph as long as the account of the war, occupying one-third of the inscription (§§ 67, 68, ll. 26-38). It is therefore only the middle third of the inscription (§§ 63-66, ll. 13-26) which contains narrative of historical importance.

---

<sup>a</sup>Occupying the entire front of the north tower of the second pylon in the Medinet Habu temple. It is published entire only in Greene, Fouilles exécutées à Thèbes dans l'année 1855 (Paris, 1855), Pls. I-III. Champollion noted and copied the parts containing foreign names (Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 348, giving date incorrectly as year 9); similar fragments also by Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 175, parts of ll. 1, 2, 17, 18, 20, 24, and 35); the important passage, ll. 16 and 17, also by Chabas (Etudes sur l'antiquité historique, 2d ed., 260 ff., from a photograph); finally, ll. 16-25, by Brugsch (Thesaurus, 1207-10). Not much can be said for the accuracy of any of these texts. I collated Greene exhaustively with a series of large-scale photographs, which brought out scores of new signs and many new words; Brugsch was also useful, but a careful publication is very much needed.

Introduction; Praise of Ramses

62. <sup>1</sup>Year 8, under the majesty of Horus: mighty Bull, valiant Lion, strong-armed, lord of might, capturing the Asiatics; Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Mighty in Strength, like his father, Montu, destroying the Nine Bows, driving (them) from their land; Hawk, divine at his birth, <sup>2</sup>excellent and favorite egg of Harakhte, sovereign, excellent heir of the gods, fashioning their images on earth, doubling their offerings; King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Meriamon; Son of Re, Ramses (III), Ruler of Heliopolis; king, lord of valor, extending (his) two arms, and taking away the breath <sup>3</sup>from the countries by the heat of his limbs, great in the power of Montu, — the fray like Re, <sup>4</sup>daily ——— valiant upon (his) horse, fighting hand to hand upon his feet, warrior like the shooting-stars in heaven, King <sup>4</sup>Ramses III; charging into the thick of the fray like ——— turning back the Asiatics, fighting in the territory of rebels who know not Egypt, who tell how they have heard <sup>5</sup>of his might, who come with praise, trembling in all their limbs ——— of the Asiatics. His form and his limbs are <sup>6</sup>straight<sup>1</sup>, the equal of Baal, mighty in the multitude, without his like. He <sup>6</sup>smites millions, alone by himself; all lands are despised and contemptible before him, appearing ———. They come — [to] look upon Egypt, prostrate, bowing down before him. They say every day: “Montu is in his great form, which is in Egypt <sup>7</sup>among you, bearing his mighty sword. Let us all come, that we may make for him ——— him <sup>8</sup>in<sup>1</sup> his grasp, the King Ramses III.” Beautiful is the appearance of the king, like the son of Isis <sup>8</sup>the defender, firstborn son of Re-Atum, ——— wearing the white crown, wearing the red crown, beautiful of face, wearing the double plume like Tatenen. His loveliness — — — — in the early morning, beautiful, sitting upon the throne like Atum, when he has assumed the regalia of Horus and Set; Nekhbet and Buto, the serpent-crown of the South and the serpent-crown of the North, they take <sup>9</sup>their place upon his head. His two hands grasp the crook-staff and hold the scourge, — conscious of strength — — <sup>10</sup>among<sup>1</sup> the Nine Bows —. Plentiful are fowl and provision in his reign, like his father, the Beautiful-Faced (Ptah), Nun, great in love as king, like Shu, son of Re. <sup>10</sup>When he appears, there is rejoicing over him, like Aton; strong and valiant, mustering the lands at [his] desire, — like <sup>11</sup>Montu<sup>1</sup>, creating them like Ptah; ready and skilled in law, there is none like him; like Re when he took the land

as a kingdom, King Ramses <sup>11</sup>III, — numerous in monuments, great in wonderful works, making festive the temples, — the son of Re, — who came forth from his limbs, — firstborn [of] the gods. He was appointed as a youth to be king of the Two Lands, to be ruler of every circuit of Aton, a shield protecting <sup>12</sup>Egypt in his time. They sit under the shadow of his might, the strong one ——— victorious hand laid upon their head; King Ramses III, the king himself, he saith:

Ramses' Speech; His Accession

63. "Hearken to me <sup>13</sup>all the land, gathered in [one place], the court, the king's-children, the butlers, — living, the —,<sup>a</sup> the youth, all<sup>b</sup> the young men who are in this land. Give your attention to my utterance, that ye may know my plans for sustaining you alive, <sup>14</sup>that ye may learn of the might of my august father, Amon-Kamephis, creator of my beauty. His great might —, victorious against every fallen foe, beneath my feet. He decrees to me victory, and his hand is with me, so that every invader of my boundary is slain in my grasp; his chosen one <sup>15</sup>whom he found among hundreds of thousands,<sup>c</sup> who was established upon his throne for safety [—] [when there was not a single man among them to rescue (them)]<sup>1</sup> from the Nine Bows. I surrounded her,<sup>d</sup> I established her by my valiant might. When I arose like the sun as king over Egypt, I protected her, <sup>16</sup>I expelled for her the Nine Bows."

Northern Invasion of Syria

64. "The countries — —, the [Northerners]<sup>1</sup> in their isles were disturbed, taken away in the [fray]<sup>1</sup> — at one time. Not one stood before their hands, from Kheta (Ht<sup>2</sup>), Kode (Kdy), Carchemish (K-r<sup>2</sup>-k<sup>2</sup>-m-s<sup>2</sup>), Arvad (r<sup>2</sup>-tw), <sup>17</sup>Alasa (r<sup>2</sup>-s<sup>2</sup>), they were wasted. [The]y [set up]<sup>e</sup> a camp in one place in Amor (m-r<sup>2</sup>). They desolated his

<sup>a</sup>The determinative shows that the word designates young men (rn p'w?).

<sup>b</sup>"All" may apply to the whole series.

<sup>c</sup>Compare the selection of Thutmose III from among the priests of Karnak (II, 131-48) by oracle of the god.

<sup>d</sup>Egypt, as shown by the end of the line, compared with the beginning of l. 16.

<sup>e</sup>The lacuna is hardly large enough for a verb. The end of the plural suffix (n of sn) is visible before "camp." If we read "their" (p<sup>2</sup> ysn), it would fill the lacuna, and we should necessarily render: "Wasted was their camp, etc.," meaning the camp of the allied Syrians, which was wasted by the Northerners. The series of names preceding as object of the preposition must in that case close the preceding sentence.

people and his land like that which is not. They came with fire prepared before them, forward<sup>a</sup> to Egypt. Their main support<sup>b</sup> <sup>18</sup>was Peleset (Pw-r<sup>3</sup>-s<sup>3</sup>-t), Thekel (T<sup>3</sup>-k-k<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>3</sup>), Shekelesh (S<sup>3</sup>-k-rw-s<sup>3</sup>), Denyen (D<sup>3</sup>-y-n-yw, sic!), and Weshesh (W<sup>3</sup>-s<sup>3</sup>-s<sup>3</sup>),<sup>c</sup> (These) lands were united, and they laid their hands upon the land<sup>d</sup> as far as the Circle of the Earth. Their hearts were confident, full of their<sup>e</sup> plans.”

Ramses' Preparations

65. “Now, it happened through<sup>f</sup> this god, the lord of gods, <sup>19</sup>that I was prepared and armed<sup>g</sup> to ‘trap’<sup>1</sup> them like wild fowl. He furnished my strength and caused my plans to prosper. I went forth, directing these marvelous things. I equipped my frontier in Zahi, prepared before them. The chiefs, the captains of infantry, <sup>20</sup>the nobles, I caused to equip the harbor-mouths,<sup>h</sup> like a strong wall, with warships, galleys, and barges, ‘—’<sup>1</sup>. They were manned ‘completely’<sup>1</sup> from bow to stern with valiant warriors bearing their arms, soldiers <sup>21</sup>of all the choicest of Egypt,<sup>i</sup> being like lions roaring upon the mountain-tops. The charioteers were warriors (phrr) ‘— —’<sup>1</sup>,<sup>j</sup> and all good officers (smn), ready of hand. Their horses were quivering in their every limb, ready to crush <sup>22</sup>the countries under their feet. I was the valiant Montu, stationed before them, that they might behold the hand-to-hand fighting<sup>k</sup> of my arms. I, King Ramses III, was made a far-striding hero, conscious of his might, valiant to lead his army <sup>23</sup>in the day of battle.”

<sup>a</sup>The meaning of this important phrase, “forward” (m hr), with a verb of going, is established among others by the passage in the Kadesh battle (III, 308: Poem, l. 12), and Merneptah’s Hymn of Victory (III, 609, l. 5); but the idiom is not infrequent; see also Griffith, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 19, 298. “To” may be rendered “toward” or “against.”

<sup>b</sup>See Müller, Asien und Europa, 360, n. 2.

<sup>c</sup>On these peoples, see introduction to this war (§§ 59 ff.).

<sup>d</sup>Lit., “Two Lands;” it is doubtful whether we are to suppose that this is an error (as later) for “land.” Some of the northern ships had already reached Egypt, as they had done in the year 5 (§ 44, ll. 51 f.).

<sup>e</sup>Text has “our.”

<sup>f</sup>That is, by his intervention.

<sup>g</sup>Grg hry.

<sup>h</sup>The same phrase (r<sup>3</sup>-h<sup>3</sup>-wt) is used of the “river-mouths,” in the war of the year 5 (§ 44, l. 53).

<sup>i</sup>Possibly: “of every land and of Egypt.”

<sup>j</sup>See Papyrus Harris, 8, 10, note.

<sup>k</sup>Or possibly: “the captures;” the article is plural.

Defeat of the Enemy

66. "Those who reached my boundary, their seed is not; their heart and their soul are finished forever and ever. As for those who had assembled before them on the sea, the full flame was in their front, before the harbor-mouths, and a wall of metal <sup>24</sup>upon the shore surrounded them.<sup>a</sup> They were dragged, overturned, and laid low upon the beach; slain and made heaps from stern to bow<sup>b</sup> of their galleys, while all their things were cast upon the water. (Thus) I turned back the waters to remember Egypt;<sup>c</sup> when they mention my name in their land, <sup>25</sup>may it<sup>d</sup> consume them, while I sit upon the throne of Harakhte, and the serpent-diadem (wr' t-hk' w) is fixed upon my head, like Re. I permit not the countries to see the boundaries of Egypt to  $\text{f}\rightarrow\text{f}$  among<sup>1</sup> them. As for the Nine Bows, I have taken away their land and their boundaries; they are added to mine. <sup>26</sup>Their chiefs and their people (come) to me with praise. I carried out the plans of the All-Lord, the august, divine father, lord of the gods."

Ramses' Song of Triumph

67. "Rejoice ye, O Egypt, to the height of heaven, for I am ruler of the South and North upon the throne of Atum. The gods have appointed me to be king <sup>27</sup>over Egypt, to be victor, to expel them for her from the countries; they decreed to me the kingdom while I was a child, and my reign is full of plenty — — — Strength has been given to me, because of my benefactions to the gods and goddesses, from a heart of love. I have expelled your <sup>28</sup>mourning, which was in your heart, and I have made you to dwell in peace. Those whom I have overthrown shall not return, the tribute — — — their land, their detestation is the daily mention of my name, King Ramses III. <sup>29</sup>I have covered Egypt, I have protected her by my valiant might, since

<sup>a</sup>The "full flame" is the Egyptian fleet in the harbor, and the "wall of metal" is the Egyptian infantry ashore, as shown in the relief (§ 74). These highly figurative phrases, otherwise unintelligible, are rendered quite certain by the relief.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "from tail to head," a phrase which occurs also where ships are not concerned (§ 90, year 11, l. 18). Hence we should perhaps put a full pause here and render thus: ". . . . made heaps from tail to head. As for their galleys, all their things, etc."

<sup>c</sup>Or: "for a remembrance of Egypt," meaning that they (the foe) may remember Egypt.

<sup>d</sup>Or: "the thought consumes."

I assumed the rule of the kingdom ——— the might of my two arms, bringing terror among the Nine Bows. Not a land stays at hearing my name, <sup>30</sup>(but) they leave their cities, starting in their places, forsaking ——— before them. I am a goring Bull, confident in his two horns. My hand is equal <sup>31</sup>to my courage following my valor, when my heart says to me: 'Make ——' —— my office —— in the bow of the morning-barque (mskt' t), I bring to you jubilation. <sup>32</sup>Mourning is in the countries, trembling is in every land —— which I wrought. My heart is filled as a god — — valiant, lord of the sword. I know that his might is greater <sup>33</sup>than (that of) the gods. The 'lifetime' which the gods who are in — decree ——. There is not a moment in your presence, which brings not plunder by the plans of the counsel <sup>34</sup>which is in my heart, for the support of Egypt. Desolated is —— the chief of their cities, wasted at one time. Their groves, and all their people are consumed by fire.<sup>a</sup> <sup>35</sup>They lament in their hearts: 'We will —— their — to Egypt.'

68. "I am the strong and valiant one; my designs come to pass without fail. <sup>36</sup>I have shown my excellence, since I 'know' this god, the father of the gods —— I have not ignored his temple, (but) my heart has been steadfast to double the feasts and food-offerings <sup>37</sup>above what was before. My heart is filled with truth every day, my abhorrence is lying —— the gods are satisfied with truth. Their hands are for me the shield of my body, to <sup>38</sup>ward off evil and misfortune from<sup>b</sup> my limbs; the king, ruler of the Nine Bows, Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III, given life, stability, satisfaction, like Re, forever and ever."

2. RELIEF SCENES OUTSIDE NORTH WALL AND IN SECOND COURT,
YEAR 8

69. These scenes depict the war against the invading sea-rovers of Asia Minor with unusual interest. We see the equipment of the troops, the march to Syria, even possibly a lion<sup>c</sup> hunt on the march, the great battle, both on land and sea, furnishing the earliest known representation of a naval battle, and the final triumphs.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "have become ashes" (ssf), used of a roast fowl.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "that are in"(!), meaning "that might be in, etc."

<sup>c</sup>See § 74, note.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

70. Ramses III stands in a balcony, with two sunshade-bearers behind him. Before him are the standard-bearers of the army, who kneel in salute, followed by a trumpeter. Beside these appear lines of the new recruits levied for the coming war, to whom the officers are distributing bows and quivers of arrows. Spears, quivers, bows, and swords lie piled up beside them.

71. The inscriptions are these:

Behind the King

All the gods are the protection of his limbs, to give to him might against every country.

Before the King

——— king; he saith — — to the princes, every leader of the infantry and chariotry who are before his majesty: "Bring out the weapons ———. Let the archers march to destroy the enemies, who know not Egypt, with might."

Over the Officials

Utterance of the princes, companions, and leaders of the infantry and chariotry: "Thou art the king who shinest upon Egypt. When [thou] risest, the Two Lands live. Great is thy might in the midst of the Nine Bows. Thy roaring is as far as the circuit of the sun. The shadow of thy sword is over thy army. They march, filled with thy might. Thy heart is stout, (for) thy excellent plans are established. Amon-Re appears, leading thy way. He lays low for thee every land beneath thy feet; [thy] heart is glad — forever. 'Thou art' the protection which comes forth without delay. The heart of the Temeh is [dis]turbed,<sup>b</sup> the Peleset (Pw-[rʔ]-sʔ-l) are hung up, [—] in their towns, by the might of thy father, Amon, who has decreed to thee ———."

<sup>a</sup>Outside north wall of second court; Champollion, Monuments, 218 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 125; cf. Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 370.

<sup>b</sup>Read ify.

Over Officers by the Weapons<sup>a</sup>

———— [Give] the weapons to the infantry, the chariotry and to the archers ————.

Over Officers Distributing Weapons

Take ye the [weapon]s of [King] Ramses III.

Over Soldiers Receiving Weapons

The infantry and chariotry who are receiving [weapons].

Scene<sup>b</sup>

72. Ramses III in his chariot, followed by two sunshade-bearers, and accompanied by Egyptian and Sherden infantry, departs for Zahi. The inscriptions are these:

Over the King

The king, rich in might, at his going forth to the North, great in fear, dread of the Asiatics (St' ty), sole lord, skilled in hand, conscious of his might, like Baal, valiant in strength, ready for battle against the Asiatics (<sup>c</sup> mw), marching afar in his advance, 'confident', —, smiting tens of thousands 'in heaps' in the space of an hour. He overwhelms the combatants like fire, causing all those who confront him to become [ashes].<sup>c</sup> They are terrified at (the mention of) his name, while he is (yet) afar off, like the heat of the sun over the two (Nile) shores; a wall casting<sup>d</sup> a shadow for Egypt. They dwell [confident in] the might of his strength, King Ramses III.

Over Horses

Great first span of his majesty (named): "Amon-He-Giveth-the-Sword."<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This and the following inscription have been omitted by Champollion, and Rosellini is very fragmentary. Still another address (below) among the officers has been omitted by Champollion, and is too fragmentary in Rosellini to be read.

<sup>b</sup>Outside north wall of second court; Champollion, Monuments, 219 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 126.

<sup>c</sup>Read ssj, from parallel texts.

<sup>d</sup>Read kh, as in year 5, l. 67 (§ 47).

<sup>e</sup>Published also in Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 172.

Behind King and over Sherden

His majesty marches out in victorious might, to destroy the rebellious countries. His majesty [marches out] for Zahi, like the form of Montu, to crush every country that has transgressed his boundary. His infantry are like bulls, ready for battle upon the field. [His] horses are like hawks in the midst of the fowl before him. The Nine Bows are under (his) power. Amon, his august father, is for him a shield, King — —, Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

73. Ramses III in his chariot, with drawn bow, charges into the discomfited northern allies, chiefly Peleset, as shown by their high feathered head-dress. Their chariots are manned by two warriors armed with shield and spear, and a driver. On foot they fight by fours, each man with two spears and a shield. The native Egyptian troops and their Sherden auxiliaries are mingled in the thick of the fight, slaying the Northerners on every hand, and penetrating to the heavy two-wheeled ox carts in which are the enemy's wives, children, and supplies.

The inscriptions are these:

Over the Battle

———— [at] the sight of him, as when Set is enraged, overthrowing the enemy before the celestial barque (mskt' t), trampling the lands and countries prostrate, crushed [—] before his horses. His heat consumes [them] like fire, desolating their gardens — —.

Over King's Horses

Great first span of his majesty (named): "Beloved-of-Amon."

Scene<sup>b</sup>

74. Five warships of the Northerners, manned by Peleset and Sherden, are hard pressed by four Egyptian warships,

<sup>a</sup>Outside north wall of second court; Champollion, Monuments, 220-220 bis = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 127, 128.

<sup>b</sup>Outside north wall of second court; Champollion, 222, 223 = Rosellini, whose native bowmen are disabling the enemy with a severe archery discharge at long range, before the heavy swords and spears of the latter can be brought into play at close quarters. When the archery has nearly emptied the enemy's vessels, the Egyptians close in with sword and shield, and in the resulting mêlée one of the northern ships has capsized. In three of the Egyptian vessels are pinioned prisoners taken from the enemy, while those who swim ashore are seized and bound by the waiting Egyptian archers. The latter, led by the king, themselves augment the volleys of the Egyptian archers in the warships, and render still more disastrous the complete destruction of the northern fleet. Behind the king are his chariot and waiting attendants.

75. The inscriptions are as follows:

By the King

The Good God, Montu over Egypt, great in might, like Baal in the countries, mighty in strength, far-reaching in courage (lit., heart), strong-horned, terrible in his might, a — wall, covering Egypt, so that every one coming shall not<sup>a</sup> see it, King Ramses III.

Over the Chariot

Lo, the northern countries, which are in their isles, are restless in their limbs; they infest the ways<sup>b</sup> of the harbor-mouths. Their nostrils and their hearts cease breathing breath, when his majesty goes forth like a storm-wind against them, fighting upon the strand like a warrior (phrr). His puissance and the terror of him penetrate into their limbs.<sup>c</sup>

Monumenti Storici, 130, 131; Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 55. I had also good photographs. At this point the order of the war reliefs is interrupted by the scene of a lion hunt, the inscriptions of which contain only conventional phrases in praise of the king. It has often been published; best by Mariette, ibid., II, 54; also by Champollion, ibid., 221; and Rosellini, ibid., 129.

<sup>a</sup>Negative with a verb implying negation; lit., "everyone coming shall not fail to see it."

<sup>b</sup>The word "way" (wꜣꜥt) is used by the Egyptians for a sea route as well as a land route.

<sup>c</sup>Champollion has here interchanged two lines, but they are correct in Rosellini.

Capsized and perishing in their places, their hearts are taken, their souls fly away, and their weapons are cast out upon the sea. His arrows pierce whomsoever he will among them, and he who is hit falls<sup>a</sup> into the water. His majesty is like an enraged lion, tearing him that confronts him with his hands (sic!), fighting at close quarters on his right, valiant on his left, like Set; destroying the foe, like Amon-Re. He has laid low the lands, he has crushed every land beneath his feet, the king of Upper and Lower Egypt, the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

76. The king, attended by sunshade- and fan-bearers, stands in a balcony.<sup>c</sup> Behind him waits the royal chariot, with numerous attendants and soldiers. A castle is depicted over the chariot. Before the king, the two viziers and other officers of high rank present to him Peleset prisoners. Other officials superintend the counting of the hands severed from the fallen of the enemy, the numbers being recorded by four scribes.

77. The inscriptions are these:

By the King

Utterance of his majesty to the king's-children, the princes, the king's-butlers, and the charioteers: "Behold ye, the great might of my father, Amon-Re. The countries which came from their isles in the midst of the sea, they advanced to Egypt, their hearts relying upon their arms.<sup>d</sup> The net was made ready for them, to ensnare them. Entering stealthily into the harbor-mouth, they fell into it. Caught in their place, they were dispatched, and their bodies stripped. I showed

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "becomes one fallen into the water."

<sup>b</sup>Outside north wall of second court; Champollion, Monuments, 224 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 132; the inscriptions are also in Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, 47; the castle and a few extracts, Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 171.

<sup>c</sup>This balcony is, of course, to be understood as belonging to the castle depicted over the chariot; but it has been detached by the artist, in order to enlarge it sufficiently to accommodate the king's figure represented with the usual heroic stature.

<sup>d</sup>Not weapons.

you my might which was in that which my majesty wrought while I was alone.<sup>a</sup> My arrow struck (lit., seized), and none escaped my arms nor my hand. I flourished like a hawk among the fowl; my talons descended upon their heads. Amon-Re was upon my right and upon my left, his might and his power were in my limbs, a tumult for you; commanding for me that my counsels and my designs should come to pass. Amon-Re established the — of my enemies, giving to me every land in my grasp.”

Over the Officials

Utterance of the king's-children, the princes, and the companions; they reply to the Good God: “Thou art Re, shining like him. Thy might crushes the Nine Bows, every land trembles at thy name, thy fear is before them every day. Egypt rejoices in the strong-armed, the son of Amon, who is upon his throne, King Ramses III, given life, like Re.”

Over the Castle

Migdol of Ramses, Ruler of Heliopolis.

Over Horses

Great first span of his majesty (named): “Strong-is-Amon.”

Over Grooms

Live the Good God, achieving with his arms, making every country into something that exists not, strong-armed, mighty, skilful of hand, King Ramses III.

Over Prisoners<sup>b</sup>

Said the vanquished chieftains of Thekel ( $\overline{T}^{\circ} -k-k^{\circ} -r^{\circ}$ ): “———— like Baal ——— give to us [the breath that thou givest] ———.”

Scene<sup>c</sup>

78. In a small chapel sits Amon, with Mut and Khonsu behind him. The king standing before him leads by cords

<sup>a</sup>Champollion has here omitted an entire line, which will be found in Rosellini's and Dümichen's copies.

<sup>b</sup>Omitted by Rosellini and Champollion, and only noted by Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 171); the fragments he gives show that it contained the conventional phrases.

<sup>c</sup>Outside of north wall of second court; Champollion, Monuments, 226 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 134; the inscriptions alone, Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, LV, 3, 4; and the words of the Thekel also, Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, 47, a.

two lines of foreign captives, above Thekel, below Libyans. The inscriptions are as follows:

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon-Re, lord of heaven, ruler of gods: "Come thou with joy, slay thou the Nine Bows, lay low every opponent. Thou hast cast down the hearts of the Asiatics, thou takest the breath from their nostrils, — — — by my designs."

Before the King

Utterance of King Ramses III before his father, Amon-Re, king of gods: "I went forth, that I might take captive the Nine Bows and slay all lands. Not a land stood fast before me, . . . . . and my hands took captives in the van of every country, by the decrees which came forth from thy mouth, . . . . . that I might overthrow my every opponent. The lands behold me with trembling, (for) I am like Montu, — — — him who relies upon thy designs, O protector, lord of might ———."

Over the Thekel

79. Said the fallen, the great ones of Thekel, who were in the grasp of his majesty, while praising this Good God, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon: "Great is thy strength, victorious king, great Sun of Egypt. Greater is thy might than a mountain of gritstone, and thy terror is like Set. Give to us breath, that we may breathe it, the life that is in thy grasp, forever."

Over the Libyans

Said the fallen of Libya, who were in the grasp of his majesty: "Breath, breath! O victorious king, Horus, great in kingship."

Scene<sup>a</sup>

80. Amon, with Mut behind him, stands extending the sword to Ramses III. The latter, leading three lines of fettered captives, advances toward the god, to whom he stretches out his arm. The inscriptions are these:

<sup>a</sup>Second court, second pylon, left (southern) tower, front; published by Champollion, Monuments, 332 (in publication, 331 bis, where it is located in the Ramesseum!); Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 144 (both omit divinities and accom-

Before Amon<sup>a</sup>

Utterance of Amon-Re, lord of heaven: "Come thou in peace! Thou hast taken captive thine adversary,<sup>b</sup> and slain the invader of thy border. My strength was with thee, overthrowing for thee the lands. Thou cuttest off the heads of the Asiatics (<sup>c</sup> mw). I have given to thee thy great might, I overthrow for thee every land, when they see thy majesty in strength like my son, Baal in his wrath."

Before the King

81. Utterance of King Ramses III to his father, Amon-Re, ruler of the gods: "Great is thy might, O lord of gods. The things which issue from thy mouth, they come to pass without fail. . . . Thy strength is behind as a shield, that I may slay the lands and countries that invade my border. Thou puttest great terror of me in the hearts of their chiefs; the fear and dread of me before them; that I may carry off their warriors (phrr), bound in my grasp, to lead them to thy ka, O my august father, — — — —. Come, to <sup>take</sup> them, being: Peleset (Pw-r<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>-t), Denyen (D<sup>o</sup>-y-n-yw-n<sup>o</sup>), Shekelesh (S<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-rw-š<sup>o</sup>). Thy strength it was which was before me, overthrowing their seed, — thy might, O lord of gods. He who relies upon him whom thou hast entrusted with the kingship, and everyone that walks in thy way are in peace. Thou art the lord, strong-armed for him who leans his back upon thee,<sup>d</sup> a Bull with two horns, ready, conscious of his strength. Thou art my august father, who createdst my beauty, that thou mightest look upon me, and choose me to be lord of the Nine Bows. Let thy hand be with me, to slay him that invades me, and ward off every enemy that is in my limbs."

panying inscriptions); Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 211 (inscription over prisoners, also ibid., Text, III, 174); Sharpe, Inscriptions, II, 39; Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 52 (one row only); de Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 129 (upper ends of lines of king's speech, lower ends being covered by rubbish). I had a photograph by Schroeder & Cie., Zürich.

<sup>a</sup>The one before Mut contains only the conventional assurances of protection.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "the one reaching thee" (ph tw); the phrase is common in these inscriptions, with varying pronoun ("him, her") for "his, her adversary." Cf. the personal name, Ph-sw-hr = "His adversary is fallen."

<sup>c</sup>Possibly: "to number."

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "thou art a strong-armed lord, for him who leans to him (his) back." The preposition "to" (n) is more often "upon" (hr).

Over Captives

82. Utterance of the leaders of every country, who are in the grasp of his majesty: "Great is thy might, victorious king, great sun of Egypt. Greater is thy strength than a mountain of gritstone; thy might is like Baal. Give to us the breath that we breathe; the life which is in thy hands."

Over Middle Line of Captives

Utterance of the vanquished of Denyen ( $D^2 -y-n-yw-n^2$ ): "Breath! Breath! O good ruler, great in might [like] Montu, residing in Thebes."

Over Lower Line of Captives

Utterance of the vanquished of Peleset ( $Pw-r^2 -s^2 -ty$ ): "Give to us the breath for our nostrils, O king, son of Amon."

IV. SECOND LIBYAN WAR

83. The disastrous defeat of the year 5 had doubtless too seriously weakened the Libyans for them again to attempt the invasion of Egypt during the reign of Ramses III. But in the year 11 they were themselves invaded by the Meshwesh, a related tribe living on their west, and the Meshwesh chieftains, Keper and Meshesher, father and son, laid waste the Libyan country. The Libyans were then forced to join the Meshwesh in an invasion of Egypt. The allies pushed eastward as far as the canal of Heliopolis, called the "Water of Re,"<sup>a</sup> doubtless at some point near its departure from the Nile. Here, at a place called Hatsho ( $h^c t^c s^c t$ ), in the early part of the twelfth month of his eleventh year, Ramses defeated them in a disastrous battle, in which Keper was captured and his son Meshesher killed. Ramses pursued the routed enemy over eleven miles<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>The name of the herd of Amon in Papyrus Harris, 10, 8 (§ 224), shows that the battle was fought near this canal.

<sup>b</sup>If the terminus of this eleven miles is the margin of the Libyan desert, the point on that margin must be well south in the narrow part of the Delta; otherwise it would be more than eleven miles from the canal of Heliopolis to the Libyan westward as far as his own town, on a rise of ground called "The - Town - of - Usermare-Meriamon - Which - is - upon - the - Mount<sup>a</sup> - of - the - Horns - of - the - Earth." He slew 2,175 men, and took 2,052 prisoners, of whom 558 were women and girls; among these were the survivors of the household of the hostile chief. Returning, flushed with victory, Ramses indulged in the usual triumphal celebrations. The prisoners were distributed throughout the country, and nearly a thousand of the Meshwesh were made herdmen in charge of a herd of Amon, named after this victory (Harris, 10, 8, § 224).

84. These wars, while they checked the aggressiveness of the tribes<sup>b</sup> on the west of the Delta during the remainder of reign of Ramses III, could only temporarily interrupt the tide of immigration into the Delta from the west. Still Ramses III could now style himself in his titulary: "Protector of Egypt, guardian of the countries, conqueror of Meshwesh, spoiler of the land of Temeh."<sup>c</sup>

The sources for this war are:

1. Great Inscription of the First Pylon (Medinet Habu, §§ 85-92).
2. Poem on Second Libyan War (§§ 93-99).
3. Relief Scenes on First Pylon and Outside North Wall (Medinet Habu, §§ 100-114).
4. Papyrus Harris (76, 11-77, 6, § 405).

---

desert. The question of how the pursuit crossed the Nile branches is a difficult one. In the war of the year 5 the Libyans are stated to have been on both sides of the river; if the victory of year 11 took place on the Heliopolis canal, they must have been on both sides at this time also.

<sup>a</sup>This place also marked the limit of the pursuit of Merneptah; see Great Inscription of Karnak, l. 49, note (III, 588).

<sup>b</sup>Papyrus Harris (77, 3, § 405) gives a list of five of these unknown tribes, beside the Meshwesh and the Libyans.

<sup>c</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler. Text, III, 170; left pylon, front of Medinet Habu temple; compare similar title of Thutmose IV (II, 822).

I. GREAT INSCRIPTION ON THE FIRST PYLON<sup>a</sup>

85. The fifty long lines of this document, owing to their bad state of preservation, the lack of clear arrangement in the content, and that highly figurative style, extreme in this document even for Medinet Habu, are hardly less difficult than the long inscription of the year 5. Whole lines are so fragmentary that it would have served no practical purpose to introduce their mutilated words and phrases here; they have therefore been omitted wherever necessary, but the omission is always indicated. Under these circumstances the progress of the narrative can be but vaguely discerned. At the beginning it is fortunately more clear. The alliance, undoubtedly between the Meshwesh and the Tehenu of Libya (§ 86, ll. 1 and 2), although mentioned before the invasion of the Tehenu by the Meshwesh (§ 87, l. 2), of course preceded that invasion, which issued in the alliance. Then follow, in natural order, the invasion of Egypt by the allies (§ 88, ll. 3-5), the march of Ramses III (§ 89, ll. 6, 7), and the battle (§ 90, ll. 7-20). This last, as usual, is chiefly a song of praise to the Pharaoh's valor, which is brought out by depicting the ruin of Meshesher, the Meshwesh chief with his chiefs, his family, and his host. This leads to a long triumphal description of the discomfiture of the defeated (§§ 91, 92, ll. 20-41); and the document then concludes with a speech by the Pharaoh, glorifying himself in the conventional phrases.

---

<sup>a</sup>On the back of the southern tower of the first pylon facing the first court, in 50 vertical lines over the battle scene (§ 101). There are long and frequent lacunæ. It was published by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 20-25); partially by de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, III-III, ll. 19-30, lower ends wanting; wrongly attached to another inscription); and extracts by Lepsius (Denkmäler, Text, III, 174). A photograph shows that Dümichen's text is excessively incorrect; but unfortunately my photograph shows only the lower ends of a few lines.

The Alliance

86. "[The foe]<sup>a</sup> had allied themselves against Egypt, the god permitting that they should [lead on to mount their horses], (but) mighty was the valor of him who is the sole lord, and his talons [made ready] like a [trap] at their arrival, when they came with restless limbs<sup>b</sup> to lay themselves like mice under his arms, the king, Ramses III.

Invasion of Tehenu<sup>c</sup>

87. As for the (chief of)<sup>d</sup> Meshwesh (M-šꜣ-wꜣ, sic!), since he appeared, he went to one place, his land with him, and invaded the Tehenu, who were made ashes, spoiled and desolated were their cities, their seed was not.

Invasion of Egypt

88. They [disregarded] the beauty of this god who<sup>e</sup> slays the invader of Egypt, saying . . . . .: "We will settle in Egypt." So spake they with one accord, and they continually entered the boundaries of Egypt. Then was prepared for them <sup>4</sup>death<sup>f</sup> . . . . . of the [mighty] god, — — [who brightens] the heaven more than the sun, [mighty] with their hands before him. They were numerous <sup>5</sup>. . . . . Amon was his protection, his hand was with him, to confound their faces, to destroy them.

March of the Pharaoh

89. <sup>6</sup>King Ramses III; his majesty went forth in — — — his heart [confident] in his father, the lord of gods. He was — — — seized herds of small cattle; his infantry and <sup>7</sup>his chariotry bearers of victory; the mighty men whom [he] trained [as] valiant warriors. He was a strong wall, firm in — — — King Ramses III.

<sup>a</sup>Some such words must be lost in the small lacuna (see Brugsch, Hieroglyphisch-demotisches Wörterbuch, Supplement, 568).

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "showing restlessness in their limbs;" the phrase is several times used of the northern peoples also, in the Medinet Habu inscriptions.

<sup>c</sup>That this is an invasion of Libya by the Meshwesh is unnoticed in any of the histories. It seems to have been noticed by Spiegelberg (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 34, 23, [65]), though he draws no historical conclusions.

<sup>d</sup>The phrase below, "his land with him," would indicate that the chief of the Meshwesh is designated here. He gathered all his people (called "land") in one place.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "when slaying, etc."

<sup>f</sup>Lit., "Death was put round about for them," or: "death surrounded them."

The Battle

90. His majesty was a hero, protecting — — <sup>8</sup>to fight hand to hand, his voice upraised, shouting like a gryphon ——— his beauty, undivided ——— his nostrils; his talons were — — — <sup>9</sup>his every — before him against his enemy; fearful in might like the shout ———, swift of foot, falling ——— horses — — — arrows, — — <sup>10</sup>slain in their place, their hearts and their souls are finished, perishing — — —. Their mouths have ceased contradiction in — —. Egypt ——— their souls — — — —. <sup>11</sup>His arms are against them like [—], his hand is upon them, he feels about, surrounding — — all — their limbs. Meshesher (M-š<sup>2</sup>-š<sup>2</sup>-r), son of Keper (K<sup>2</sup>-pw-r) ——— <sup>12</sup>laid low at the feet of his majesty. His chiefs, his family, his army are lost — completely. His eyes behold the hue<sup>b</sup> of the Sun, his warriors (phrr) fight ——— their —, their children — — — <sup>13</sup>their arms and their hearts, as living captives; their stuff and their children are borne [upon] their backs. Their herds, their horses, [their] wives ———. The god brings them and their — — — — <sup>14</sup>against them, a lesson for millions of years. All generations are desolated upon — [women], their —, stripped are their — — — — flourishing — — them, Amon-Re, with the [hand] of ——— mighty, confident ——— <sup>15</sup>to — extol him who repels her<sup>c</sup> assailant, — — King Ramses III, who moves quickly, bathing the sword in the slain ——— their food, fruitlessly looking while there is no — — <sup>16</sup>the way [—] before them. As for the land of Meshwesh (M-š<sup>2</sup> ———), [when they] seize their people, their weapons fall from their hands, their hearts cannot ——— smelling fear at a single [attack] — — — — <sup>17</sup>they [know] who is lord of the [land] of Egypt, the great flame of Sekhmet ——— their hearts, consuming their bones, in the midst of their bodies; the —<sup>d</sup> — — — — them. The land rejoices<sup>e</sup> and exults at the sight of his valor, the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III. <sup>18</sup>Every — is in his hand as far as the [southern] towns, as well as the northern marshes. — — — —

<sup>a</sup>The battle begins in ll. 9, 10, which are unfortunately almost entirely destroyed.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “skin of the sun!” This remarkable phrase is applied to the shining appearance of the sun, in religious texts, and Horus is said to have a shining skin. “The sun” must here be a figure for the Egyptian king.

<sup>c</sup>Egypt’s.

<sup>d</sup>The first lost word, as determinative shows, is some designation of the king.

<sup>e</sup>Read wnj.

fire, strong-armed, hurling flame, — to pursue their souls, to plunder their —, which are in their land. The excellent words of Thoth confound their faces; (from) tail to head among them, they are laid low in their place. <sup>19</sup>aHis hand clutches<sup>b</sup> the body of the invader of his border, the 'breath' of [their] nostrils — — taken, perishing, — he leaves not, when enraged — — — —. His talons are over the head of the Meshwesh, the king, Ramses III, <sup>20</sup>the kindly.

Discomfiture of the Enemy

91. The Meshwesh and the land of Temeh, who were bound — — — in Egypt. All lands bow themselves to him, like Set, — overthrowing '—', laying low. The Meshwesh and Temeh mourn and are cast down; they go . . . . . <sup>21</sup>cTheir eyes — the ways, looking behind them; 'flying' far, fleeing in . . . . . <sup>22</sup>The flame seizes them, destroying their name; their feet are weary upon the ground, (but) they wait not the great lord of Egypt. . . . . <sup>23</sup>. . . They say when they see the people:<sup>d</sup> "— — Montu is the form of the man who is behind us ——— . . . <sup>24</sup>He is behind us like Set, [destroying] the foe. He beholds myriads like grasshoppers; behold, they are in an evil plight. . . . . <sup>25</sup>. . . We are like the 'driven barque' with the wind behind it. Our weapons are lost, cast away; our hands are 'weak'." Their soul and their heart are finished ——— . . <sup>27</sup>victory from the time of the god to eternity. "Her<sup>e</sup> violence is that which courses in our limbs, her lord is he who is in heaven; his form is like him ——— Ramses III. <sup>28</sup>He seems like the radiance of the sun; his reach, and the terror of him are like Montu . . . . . ——— <sup>30</sup>. . tearing like a divine hawk, we are made 'impotent', cut down '— —'. He sends arrow upon arrow like shooting-stars ———. <sup>31</sup>The net was spread for us, while we were before [him]. Our 'hands' and our feet were — in the palace. The god has taken us for himself, as 'prey', like wild goats creeping into the trap. The fierce-eyed ——— <sup>32</sup>. . . He turns <sup>a</sup>The upper two-thirds of ll. 19-30 are also published by de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 111-13).

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "claws."

<sup>c</sup>The last third of ll. 21-31 is lost, except a word or two at the ends of ll. 22-27.

<sup>d</sup>Probably meaning, when they arrive at home and see their own people, they excuse their flight in this way.

<sup>e</sup>Meaning Egypt.

not back, he heeds not our pleadings. . . .<sup>33</sup> . . . We are overthrown, our heart perishes ——— like trees. We have heard since those things<sup>a</sup> from our grandfathers, <sup>1</sup>our repulse in their time<sup>1</sup> . . . .<sup>34</sup>from Egypt . . . . . and we desired to take to our heels,<sup>b</sup> <sup>1</sup>fleeing<sup>1</sup> from the flame. Libya has misled us like —. We hearkened to their counsels,<sup>c</sup> the fire — seized <sup>35</sup>——— making for us a warning forever and ever, a chastisement for those whom the boundary of Egypt beholds.”<sup>d</sup> He shall tread upon <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> <sup>1</sup>as far as<sup>1</sup> Tazoser; Montu, strong in arm, he <sup>36</sup>who takes — [<sup>1</sup>in<sup>1</sup>] the fray with you, his assailant, King Ramses III. The land of Meshwesh is desolated at one time, the Libyans and the Seped are destroyed, their seed is not <sup>37</sup>. . . their <sup>1</sup>arms<sup>1</sup> hanging over their heads;<sup>e</sup> their children do not ——— whom fear has seized, weeping and [lamenting] in their hearts: “The fame of thy majesty <sup>38</sup>——— them like fire” . . . . .<sup>40</sup>. . . . . bearing [their] tribute — — — [to] laud and to praise <sup>41</sup>the Good God, Lord of the Two Lands, making [his] boundary as far as he desires in all lands.

Speech of Ramses

92. Lo, Horus, rich in years, who came forth from Re, from his very limbs, <sup>42</sup>to whom he decreed —, abiding upon his throne<sup>f</sup> . . . . .<sup>44</sup>. . . . . King Ramses III; he says to the king’s-children, the great princes, the leaders <sup>45</sup>of the infantry and chariotry: “Give to me your attention — — — complete. I will tell you, I will inform you; I am the son of Re, I came forth from his limbs, I sit <sup>46</sup>upon his throne in rejoicing, since I have been established — —. I give to this land my good counsels, (my) plans are carried out. I am the hero of Egypt, I defend her, placing her — — — <sup>47</sup>lord. I overthrow for [her] every one who invades [her] boundary, I am an abundant Nile, supplying her —, overflowing with good things. I am the excellent sovereign who fills <sup>48</sup>—, giving breath to the nostrils of all people. I have laid low the Meshwesh, and the land of Temeh by the might of my sword. I have caused their overthrow. Behold, <sup>49</sup>ye [<sup>1</sup>know<sup>1</sup>] that there is no

<sup>a</sup>Of course, meaning former defeats.

<sup>b</sup>On hearing the stories of their earlier defeats, they were reluctant to invade Egypt again, and wished to flee.

<sup>c</sup>The Meshwesh now blame the Libyans for their defeats.

<sup>d</sup>When they would invade it.

<sup>e</sup>The arms of the prisoners were often so bound, over their heads.

<sup>f</sup>Here follow nearly three lines of conventional epithets of the king.

contradiction in [‘my speech’]. It was the might of Amon which carried them off, that he might give myriads of jubilees to his son, the Lord of the Two Lands, Ramses III.”

<sup>50a</sup>The king, like the form of Re, of ‘abiding’ — — —. His heart is stout, like his father, Montu. <sup>b</sup>He takes as living captives the Meshwesh and the land of Temeh bound before him, taxed with their impost for the [‘treasury’] —————.

2. POEM ON THE SECOND LIBYAN WAR<sup>c</sup>

93. Over two-thirds of the poem are taken up by the date, and the laudation of the Pharaoh appended to it. The narrative then begins with the invasion of Egypt (§ 95, ll. 23, 24), followed by Ramses’ attack (§ 96, ll. 24-27), the capture of Keper, the father of the Meshwesh chief (§ 97, ll. 27-30), the defeat of the enemy (§ 98, ll. 30-32); and the poem concludes with Ramses’ victorious return (§ 99, ll. 33, 34).

Date

94. <sup>1</sup>Year 11, second month of the second season (sixth month), seventh day<sup>d</sup> under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, Great in Kingship; Wearer of the Double Diadem, [Great in Jubilees, like Ptah]; Golden Horus: Rich in Years, like Atum, Sovereign, Protector of [Egypt, Binder of the Coun]tries; <sup>2</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Meriamon; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (III), Ruler of Heliopolis. . . . .<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This line has no connection with the preceding, but belongs to the figure of the king.

<sup>b</sup>Or: “His captivity as living prisoners, the Meshwesh, etc., are bound, etc.”

<sup>c</sup>On the face of the first pylon, Medinet Habu, right hand (northern tower), beside the right-hand doorpost of the central portal; published by Champollion (Notices descriptives, I, 728 f.; extracts only); relief and list at the top, Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 209, d (see also ibid., Text, III, 170); list only in Champollion, ibid., I, 345; complete by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, I, 13-15, and de Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 121-26; de Rougé gives much the better text. The list was also published by Daressy (Recueil, 20, 119).

<sup>d</sup>The date is some six months after the victory.

<sup>e</sup>The fivefold titulary is followed by seventeen lines of which only fragments have survived. They contained only a long succession of the conventional laudatory epithets applied to the king, constituting merely an expansion of the titulary. References to the defeat of the enemy begin in l. 19, introducing the poetic account of the invasion.

Conclusion of Introductory Triumph

The flame ———— <sup>20</sup>their bones, boiling and scorching in their limbs. They tread the land like those who come into the trap; slain are their <sup>21</sup>heroes on the spot they tread, and their speech is taken away forever. They are overthrown at one time, seized upon are their leaders who were before them. <sup>22</sup>They are bound like fowl before the hawk whose every step is concealed in the midst of the thicket, sitting in<sup>a</sup> — —. <sup>23</sup>They are laid low, doing obeisance.

The Invasion

95. The hostile foe had taken counsel again, to spend their lives in the confines of Egypt, that they might take the hills and plains as their (own) districts.<sup>b</sup> <sup>24</sup>The foe set their faces toward Egypt, coming on foot themselves<sup>c</sup> to —,<sup>d</sup> which is in the <sup>e</sup>fire of the 'lowlands' with its mighty heat.<sup>e</sup>

Ramses' Attack

96. The heart of <sup>25</sup>his majesty was wroth like Baal in heaven, all his limbs were endowed with strength and might. He betook himself — — a goodly 'charge', to fight hand to hand multitudes on his right hand and on his left, <sup>26</sup>meeting their very selves, advancing like an arrow against them, to slay them. His — strength was mighty like <sup>27</sup>his father, Amon.

Capture of Hostile Chief

97. Keper (K > -pw-r >) came to salâm, like '—',<sup>f</sup> he laid down his arms, together with his soldiers. He <sup>28</sup>cried to heaven, to beseech his son;<sup>g</sup> his feet and his hands were 'paralyzed', he stood still in his place, <sup>a</sup>The king is the hawk; the picture is that of the fowler sitting behind a screen, or in the bushes, waiting to pull together the open net, as often seen in tomb reliefs. But the introduction of the hawk mixes the figures.

<sup>b</sup>Dümichen has numbered 23 twice.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "on their own feet," being perhaps contrasted with those who went riding, or by water?

<sup>d</sup>The determinative indicates a building.

<sup>e</sup>An overdrawn figure for the dangerous proximity of the king in the Delta or lowland.

<sup>f</sup>T > k with determinative of an eye.

<sup>g</sup>For help; "to heaven" is merely idiomatic for "at the top of his voice," and does not indicate the place to which his cry was directed. The word "cry" is here g < k, Hebrew, קָרָא.

while the god,<sup>a</sup> who knew his <sup>29</sup>reins, (even) his majesty, fell upon their<sup>b</sup> heads like a mountain of granite.

Defeat of Enemy

98. They were scattered, overturned, brought to the ground; their blood was<sup>c</sup> <sup>30</sup>like a flood, their bodies [crushed on] the spot, trampled ———. The army was slain <sup>31</sup>——— to take them, slaying those whom his arms had taken, bound like fowl, laid low upon the [—] <sup>32</sup>under the feet of his majesty. He was like Montu the victorious, with his feet upon his<sup>d</sup> head. His<sup>e</sup> leaders are before him, slain in his grasp.

Victorious Return

99. <sup>33</sup>Happy are his counsels, his designs have come to pass. He returns to his palace, his heart gratified. He is like a plundering lion, terrifying the <sup>34</sup>goats, in his [coat of mail], King Ramses III. As for Egypt, their hearts rejoice at seeing his victories; they acclaim with one accord over the flight ———.

3. RELIEF SCENES ON FIRST PYLON AND OUTSIDE NORTH WALL<sup>f</sup>

100. These scenes are of the conventional order, but furnish some facts that are new, regarding the campaign. Some of the accompanying inscriptions also are of the greatest importance; e. g., the short line over the battle scene, giving the limits of the pursuit (§ 102). The long inscription over the same scene (§§ 103, 104) is almost exclusively laudation of the Pharaoh for his prowess, but mentions

<sup>a</sup>Meaning the Pharaoh.

<sup>b</sup>Meaning doubtless Keper and his son; the latter is mentioned (§ 90, l. 11), and his name given as Meshesher. Our narrative describes the capture of his old father, who afterward appears in the list of captives as "chief of the Meshwesh, 1 man," but without name appended (§ 111). In the inscription belonging to the battle the son is said to have been killed (§ 90, ll. 11, 12), and the father driven pinioned before the Pharaoh's horses. He is depicted so pinioned in the line of foreign chiefs on the pavilion (§ 114, No. 6).

<sup>c</sup>De Rouge's copy here inserts the words: "in their place."

<sup>d</sup>The head of the conquered foe, perhaps the Libyan chief.

<sup>e</sup>The Libyan chief's leaders.

<sup>f</sup>Also one relief from the front of the pavilion (§ 114).

the capture of Keper and adds the important fact that his son (Meshesher) was slain (ll. 11, 12). The closing section (§ 105, l. 24) also furnishes the date of the battle, between the tenth and twentieth of the twelfth month in the year 11. The date of the Poem (§§ 93-99) is some six months later. The final triumph (§§ 110, 111) furnishes the exact numbers of captured and slain.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

101. In the conventional manner the king is shown charging the enemy in his chariot, in which he stands with drawn bow. Two lines of Egyptian chariots accompany him, with occasional bodies of infantry; and the enemy, driven before them, or falling pierced by the king's arrows, are scattered in the wildest confusion, as the king drives over the fallen.

102. The inscriptions are these:

Over the Charge<sup>b</sup>

[The pursuit]<sup>c</sup> from Hatsho<sup>d</sup> ( $\overline{H} \cdot t \cdot \overline{s} \cdot c \cdot t$ ) to the town of Usermare-

<sup>a</sup>First pylon, inside, southern tower; unpublished; I had a photograph by Schroeder & Cie., Zürich.

<sup>b</sup>Fragments of the name of the king's steeds may be discerned over the horses, but large pieces have fallen off, carrying it nearly all away.

<sup>c</sup>Some such words must have begun this title of the charge; but some six or eight words have really been lost, for some early vandal has cut out a large rectangle here, carrying away a third of this little inscription. This important line was overlooked by Dümichen in his first publication; but appeared in his Photographische Resultate (Pl. 26), too small to be read. It was used by Brugsch in his Geographie (35, 36), where he misunderstood the portion he published (Pl. IV, No. 242). He then published it entire in the Wörterbuch (Supplement, 164), and in Aegyptologie (472); again by Levy, Recueil, 15, 171.

<sup>d</sup>This town, the name of which means "House of Sand," is depicted on the north wall (§ 107). It was a stronghold on the western road, 8 iters from the edge of the plateau. The name is misread by Brugsch as  $\overline{H} \cdot t \cdot \overline{h} \cdot c \cdot t$ ; but it is clearly  $\overline{H} \cdot t \cdot \overline{s} \cdot c \cdot t$  in § 107, and I have verified the reading on both walls carefully in the photographs. It must have been near Perire, where Merneptah's pursuit of the Libyans began (III, 579, 600), if not identical with it. There is a  $\overline{H} \cdot t \cdot \overline{s} \cdot c \cdot t$  mentioned on a late stela at Coptos (Petrie, Coptos, XXII). See also Daressy, Recueil, 19, 19.

Meriamon, which is upon the "Mount of the Horns of the Earth,"<sup>a</sup> making eight iters<sup>b</sup> of butchery among them.

Over Battle<sup>c</sup>

103. Horus, strong bull, mighty-armed, strong-armed, lord of terror in the lands and countries, desolating the Temeh<sup>d</sup> and Meshwesh, who are made heaps, crushed, destroyed before [his horses]. <sup>2</sup>Live the Good God, son of Amon, brave, valiant, like Montu, residing in Thebes, great ruler, by whose name one adjures, beautiful upon the steed, <sup>3</sup>brave in the fray, strong-horned among multitudes, <sup>4</sup>experienced in<sup>1</sup> charging among them like <sup>4</sup>one rejoicing in heart, hero <sup>5</sup>slaying<sup>1</sup> his <sup>6</sup>assailing<sup>1</sup> enemies, seizing the aggressor, confronting the invader of <sup>5</sup>his boundary, great in fame in the land of Meshwesh, great in terror, lord of might, destroying the name of the Asiatic lands, sending <sup>6</sup>his fire as a flame into their limbs, like Re, when he rages, in order to extend the confines of Egypt, by the great victories <sup>7</sup>of his sword, despising a million, holding in contempt two millions, firm-hearted, charging into hundred-thousands, the youthful Bull, mighty in <sup>8</sup>slaughter, like Set when he is enraged, the valiant warrior, achieving with his two arms, planning in heart, like Shu, son of Re, <sup>9</sup>great in victory among the lands and countries, planting terror in the heart of the Meshwesh, their people and their heirs upon the earth have vanished, <sup>9</sup> <sup>10</sup>their — has perished forever, the countries — their soul —, they mention his every name in dread, King

<sup>a</sup>Also the limit of Merneptah's pursuit of the Libyans (III, 600, ll. 1 and 9), q. v. Ramses III otherwise uses this word for the far south, the commoner application. At Karnak he applies it as a gentile parallel with the people of Upper Nubia (Annales, IV, 5, l. 2). His new town or fortified station, not mentioned in the first Libyan war, was doubtless founded at the close of that war as a safeguard against Libyan aggression. In Papyrus Harris (51, a, 5) it is again mentioned and shown to be on the "western canal," perhaps "The Water of Re" of 10, 8, and 62*a*, 2.

<sup>b</sup>This is, of course, parallel with the pursuit measured in iters by Thutmose III (II, 479, l. 18). On the length of the iter, see II, 965, note, and Levy, Recueil, 15, 161-171.

<sup>c</sup>This inscription has been published by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 18, 19, and Photographische Resultate, 26), and de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 114-17); see also Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 173.

<sup>d</sup>This line is longer than the rest, and the lower end was covered in de Rougé's day. His publication therefore omits the end from here on, but makes no note of the loss.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "are not." This phrase is thus parallel with the much-discussed phrase applied to Israel: "his seed is not." (III, 604.)

of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon, <sup>11</sup>victorious king, conscious of his might, ruler treading [—], repelling the Nine Bows, taking captive the Meshwesh, who are made heaps; their chief<sup>a</sup> <sup>12</sup>is fettered before his (Pharaoh's) horses, his son, his wife, his family are slain, their children and their stuff upon their backs <sup>13</sup>while coming, subjecting themselves to his valor; like a bull with ready horn, he thrusts, becoming that which his father, Amon-Re grants him, destroying <sup>14</sup>this —, King Ramses III, ruler, giving breath to Egypt, so that they sit under the shadow <sup>15</sup>of his might, beautiful when appearing upon the throne of Atum; his [form] is like Re over the shadows, great in might, the rampart of this land, it acclaims and it jubilates <sup>16</sup>(over) his valor.

104. Lo, this Good God, the august, divine youth, who came forth from Re, beautiful as a child, like the son of Isis, <sup>17</sup>Sutekh, valiant, strong-armed, like [his] f[ather], Montu, the white and red crown, and the etef-crown are upon his head . . . . . <sup>18</sup>. . mighty of arm in drawing the bow.<sup>b</sup> When he beholds millions before him like a flood, (he) charges into the multitude, <sup>19</sup>repelling the invader; they are laid low on his right and his left; overthrowing the Temeh, desolating the Meshwesh, <sup>20</sup>causing them to cease trampling the boundaries of Egypt, King Ramses III, sole lord, making his boundary as far as he desires, putting <sup>21</sup>fear and terror in the heart of the Asiatics, mighty Lion, plundering his every adversary, taking captive the lands of the Nine Bows, overthrowing them; a — tempest, <sup>22</sup>he comes up behind his adversaries; they [hear] his roaring like Baal in heaven; his august father, Amon-Re gives <sup>23</sup>the lands of the Nine Bows to him . . . lord of strength, destroying the name of the Meshwesh forever and ever, King Ramses III, given life, like Re, forever.

105. <sup>24</sup>Year 11, fourth month of the third season (twelfth month), day 10(+x),<sup>c</sup> of King Ramses III. Beginning<sup>d</sup> of the victory of Egypt, <sup>25</sup>which the victorious king established;<sup>e</sup> who receives acclamation, who exercises the kingship of Re, enlarging Egypt, repelling

<sup>a</sup>This chief, Keper by name, is counted in the enumeration, § 111; see also § 97, note.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "in drawing (stretching out) when bearing the bow."

<sup>c</sup>Not more than 20.

<sup>d</sup>The form is not the usual one here, and another rendering is possible.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "recorded."

the Nine Bows, setting terror in every land. It was <sup>26</sup>the sole lord who made heaven and earth from the origin of the world, Amon-Re, king of gods, the mighty Bull, with ready horns. Lo, the heart of this god who created the earth, inclined to establish <sup>27</sup>the boundaries of Egypt, with great power. He chose a lord, whom he created, <sup>28</sup>begotten, the issue of his limbs, a divine boy, an august youth, <sup>29</sup>great in might, strong-armed, full of plans, brave, lord of counsels, firm-hearted, ready in <sup>30</sup>designs, wise in life, like Thoth, taking account like Shu, son of Re, Usermare-Meriamon, <sup>31</sup>egg that came forth from Re, Ramses, Ruler of Heliopolis, youthful, valiant lord, to whom was assigned <sup>32</sup>victory from birth, the hero of great — like Montu, who has commanded him to crush <sup>33</sup>the lands, to lay them low, to repel them from Egypt. Montu and Sutekh are with [him in] <sup>34</sup>every fray, Anath (<sup>c</sup> nt) and Astarte (<sup>c</sup> -s-ty-r<sup>2</sup>-t) are his<sup>a</sup> shield. Amon judges <sup>35</sup>his speech, he turns not himself back, bearing the sword of Egypt over the Asiatics. He is the example of every land to<sup>b</sup> ———.

Scene<sup>c</sup>

106. Battle with the Libyans. The Egyptian heavy infantry, with sword and shield, preceded by the archers, all in faultless line, have thrown into confusion the Libyans, among whom Egyptian officers leap forward for the hand-to-hand fray. Ramses III has dismounted from his chariot and binds Libyan captives;<sup>d</sup> by his waiting chariot are his officers and bodyguard.

The inscriptions are the following:

Before the King

Good God, [great] in victory, lord of might, seizing every land, encompassing the lands, — — — to seek them that transgress his bound-

<sup>a</sup>The ancient artist has inserted the pronoun in the wrong place, as belonging to Astarte.

<sup>b</sup>Both Dümichen and de Rougé have omitted something at the end of the line, or more probably omitted the last line.

<sup>c</sup>First pylon, rear (west) side of projection, outside of north wall, lowest row; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303; unpublished; I had a photograph by Weigall and another by Beato.

<sup>d</sup>This portion will be found summarily published from Beato's photograph in Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 473.

ary, charging into —, slaying hundreds of thousands; before whom none stands; he is like Baal in his hour (of wrath). He rages like a hawk among the birdlets and the 'doves' (šfw); valiant upon the battlefield, fighting hand-to-hand upon his feet, seizing the chiefs with his two hands; (even) King Ramses III.

Over Captives

Barbarians (H' š' tyw), whom his majesty took as living captives, 2,052. Slain in their place, 2,175.<sup>a</sup>

Over the King's Horses

Great first span of his majesty (named): "Beloved-of-Amon," of the great stable of Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III).

Over Officers

Charioteers — —<sup>b</sup> of his majesty, who are favorites of the Good God.

Scene<sup>c</sup>

107. Ramses in his chariot, supported by his chariotry, charges the discomfited Libyans. The Egyptians are supported by archers, who shoot the Libyans from the walls of two neighboring Egyptian fortresses.

The inscriptions, which are badly weathered and broken, are these:

Over the King

King . . . . . great in might, slaying the Meshwesh, smitten and overthrown before his horses . . . . .<sup>d</sup>

Over the Horses

Great first span of his majesty (named): "Victory-in-Thebes."

<sup>a</sup>These numbers are corroborated by § 111, where they are itemized.

<sup>b</sup>Determinative of men.

<sup>c</sup>East half of north wall, outside of first court, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>d</sup>The remainder (seven short lines) is badly weathered and not wholly legible on the photograph, but all that is clear consists solely of the conventional epithets of the Pharaoh.

Over Fortresses

— of the Meshwesh who came into Egypt [—] [before] . . . . .<sup>a</sup>

In One Fortress

Hatsho (H t-š c t<sup>b</sup>).

Scene<sup>c</sup>

108. Ramses III steps into his chariot, dragging Libyan captives, whom he grasps by the hair.

An inscription<sup>d</sup> over the horses reads:

The Good God, Set, when he appears . . . . . He hath — the hearts of the Meshwesh, their mighty men are —, [seized] —, pinioned before his horses. His terror [—] diffuses through their limbs, and his fear penetrates their members. Amon-Re is with him [against them], to lay them low, overthrown at the fame of him, (even) Ramses III.

Scene<sup>e</sup>

109. Ramses III, accompanied by two sunshade-bearers and an adjutant officer, inspects three lines of captives brought up by three Egyptian officers.

The inscriptions are these:

Before Middle Row

[Utterance of Pharaoh to the —], commander in chief of the army, king's-son: "Say to the vanquished chief of the Meshwesh: 'See how thy name is obliterated forever and ever. Thy mouth hath ceased con-

<sup>a</sup>The remainder (consisting of as much again) is broken by a joint in the masonry along which the horizontal line of text runs.

<sup>b</sup>See § 102. The determinative is a small circle, both here and in § 102; ignoring the t, which does not mean much in this period (other late examples of "sand" written with t are known), we should have a "House of Sand." It is evident that the Meshwesh invasion had reached and invested this fortress, which Ramses III is here pictured as relieving.

<sup>c</sup>East half of north wall, outside of first court, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>d</sup>Unpublished.

<sup>e</sup>East half of north wall, outside of first court, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had photograph by Weigall.

tradition at the mention of Egypt, by the might of my father, the lord of gods. . . . .”

Over Officer

“See how Pharaoh hath obliterated thy name forever. Thy mouth hath ceased contradiction at the mention of Egypt.”<sup>a</sup>

Scene<sup>b</sup>

110. King Ramses III, enthroned, with two sunshade-bearers behind him, addresses a prince of rank and his two viziers, the court and leaders of the army, while two lines of captive Meshwesh, preceded by the collected hands severed from the slain, are presented to him. Over the whole is the long inscription of fifty lines translated above (§§ 103-5). The other inscriptions are these:

Before the King

Utterance of his majesty to the hereditary prince, and the two viziers: “Behold ye, the many good things which Amon-Re, king of gods, has done for Pharaoh, L. P. H., his child, ——— [his] dues, his possessions, his cattle, the plunder which Egypt carried away, slaying — — — — —.” The Pharaoh [recorded<sup>1</sup>] them victoriously in his own handwriting.

Over the Viziers

Utterance of the hereditary prince and the two viziers who are in the presence of his majesty, praising this Good God, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III): “Thou art Re, shining like him. When thou risest, the people live. Thy strength is mighty, overthrowing the Nine Bows; kindly disposed toward Egypt, bringing victory. The might of Montu is mingled with thy limbs. Thy counsels abide, thy designs come to pass, for whom Amon finds — —, establishing the throne of Egypt, — — whom his heart loves, ruler, enduring in monuments — — he — for thee the kingdom. He hath made — — — as far as the Great Bend, beneath thy feet.”

<sup>a</sup>The officer, who is the king’s son, thus carries out the instructions of his father.

<sup>b</sup>First pylon, inside, facing first court, north tower. Published partially, but with the inscriptions complete, by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 26, 27).

Over the Hands

111. Total, 2,175<sup>a</sup> hands.

Over the Libyans

The captivity which the mighty sword of Pharaoh, L. P. H., carried away from the vanquished of the Meshwesh:

Chiefs of the Meshwesh	1 man <sup>b</sup>
Chieftains (c <sup>2</sup> ) of the — enemy	5 men
Meshwesh	1,20[5] <sup>c</sup> men
Youths	152
Boys	131
Total	1,494
Their wives	342 women
Maids ( njr t )	65
Girls	151
Total	558

(Total) of the mighty sword of Pharaoh, as living captives: 2,052<sup>d</sup> various persons.

Those whom his majesty slew in their place were 2,175.

Their possessions:

Cattle: bulls	119(+x)
Swords of 5 cubits (length)	115
Swords of 3 cubits (length)	124
Bows	603
Chariots	93 <sup>e</sup>
Quivers	2,310
Spears	92
Horses of the Meshwesh, and asses	183

<sup>a</sup>Corroborated by § 106, on the back of the first pylon, outside the first court.

<sup>b</sup>There is a reference to this "chief" (wr) in the inscription over the battle (§ 103, ll. 11, 12).

<sup>c</sup>The units are restored by calculating from the total given. The bulk of these prisoners, viz., 971, were enslaved, to care for herds in the vicinity of the battle (see Harris, 10, 8).

<sup>d</sup>This number is the correct sum-total of prisoners, male and female, above enumerated, and is corroborated by § 106.

<sup>e</sup>The units are uncertain, and may be increased; but 93 is a minimum, and 99 is a maximum.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

112. Ramses III, riding in his chariot, drives before him two lines of Libyan captives, and is greeted by a group of priests. Beside the horses trots the king's tame lion.

The inscriptions are the following:

By the King

Live the Good God, plenteous in valor, lord of might, confident in his strength . . . . .<sup>b</sup>

Over Upper Line

Utterance of the leaders of the land of Meshwesh, who are pinioned before his majesty: "Great is thy might, O victorious king, Sun of Egypt . . . . ."<sup>b</sup>

Over Lower Line

Utterance of the vanquished of Meshwesh, who are before his majesty: "Breath! Breath! O ruler, good and beautiful as king of Egypt."

Over Priests

Utterance of the prophets ———: ". . . . ."<sup>c</sup>

Scene<sup>d</sup>

113. Ramses III leads two lines of captive Libyans and presents them to Amon, who is seated in a chapel, with Mut standing behind him. The inscriptions before the divinities contain only the conventional promises usual in such scenes. The king boasts that in the strength of Amon, "the (singular) Meshwesh was overthrown." Over the prisoners are the words: "Utterance of the fallen of Meshwesh who are in the grasp of his majesty: . . . . ."<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>East half, north wall, outside of first court; lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>b</sup>Only similar epithets.

<sup>c</sup>The usual epithets, without a single specific allusion.

<sup>d</sup>East half of north wall, outside of second court, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>e</sup>The usual prayer.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

114. A line of seven kneeling chiefs (one lost), with arms pinioned behind them; they are recognizable in features and costume, and by accompanying inscriptions, as follows:

1. Negro.
The chief of Kush the wretched.
2. Lost.
3. Negro. Inscription lost.
4. Libyan.
The chief of Libya.
5. Negro.
The chief of Terses (Tw-r<sup>3</sup> -ss).
6. Libyan.
The chief of Meshwesh.
7. Negro.
The chief of Terew (Ty-r<sup>3</sup> y-w<sup>3</sup>).

V. THE SYRIAN WAR

115. The materials for this war are solely relief scenes, which are too meager to afford us more than a hint of its extent or character. The invasion from Asia Minor had broken the strength of the North-Syrian peoples. Ramses III therefore improved the opportunity to invade them. The reliefs show him storming no less than five strong cities. One of them is called "the city of Amor," with perhaps the name of the city lost at the end; two others are defended by Hittites; a fourth is surrounded by water, and is, therefore, thought to be Kadesh; the fifth stands on high ground, but offers no other characteristic by which it might be identified.

<sup>a</sup>Relief on the façade of the left wing of the pavilion; published by Champollion, Monuments, 202 = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 142 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 209, a; pendant to the similar relief on the other wing (§ 129).

116. It is clear that Ramses III pushed down the Orontes as far as the Hittite frontier, and Shabtuna just south of Kadesh is mentioned in his geographical list (§ 131). But he apparently made no permanent conquests, and the campaign was evidently little more than a plundering expedition, though it may have been necessary for the preservation of the Pharaoh's Syrian possessions. The question of the date of this campaign will be found discussed in §§ 132, 133.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

117. The king assaults a Syrian fortress on foot; he has left his chariot, and shoots with the bow as he advances; before him are his bodyguard and Sherden mercenaries. The fortress rises in four successive battlements to a lofty citadel or tower in the middle, from which waves a triangular banner. Here stands the chief and his companions. The walls are manned with bearded Semites, one of whom offers incense to Ramses from the lowest battlement.

Inscriptions<sup>b</sup>

In the city: "Amor" (𐎠-𐎎-𐎓 —); by a chief beseeching mercy: "Utterance of the chief of the city of Amor." By the king, only the conventional phrases descriptive of his valor.

Scene<sup>c</sup>

118. The king standing in his chariot with uplifted sword, charges the chariotry of the Syrian enemy; before him Egyptian archers and heavy Sherden infantry are assaulting a fortified city surrounded by water, evidently a moat. The scaling-ladders are up, and while some of the assaulting party attack the gate with axes, others have climbed the ladders, gained a footing on the ramparts, and are slaying the defenders. From the top of the wall an Egyptian trumpeter sounds the victory.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>First court, north wall, behind pillars, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt (German edition, 1897), 301. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>b</sup>Unpublished, except the name of the city and the title of the chief, by Müller (Asien und Europa, 226, from notes by Eisenlohr). In my photograph the inscription in the city is concealed by a pillar.

<sup>c</sup>East half of north wall, outside of first court, upper row; first scene from east end; published by Champollion, Monuments, 228; the city also by Müller, Asien und Europa, 226.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

119. The king, having left his chariot, charges the Syrian enemy on foot, spear in hand. Behind him follow the chariotry and heavy infantry. The enemy are defending a walled city, which stands upon a hill. The short inscription (mutilated and very incorrectly published) contains the usual epithets of the king. It refers to enemy as "Asiatics" (St'tyw).

Scene<sup>c</sup>

120. The king in his chariot, with drawn bow, storms two fortresses. Behind him are his bodyguard and adjutants. The defenders of the strongholds, who fall in numbers before his attack, are Hittites. The scene, therefore, commemorates the capture of at least two Hittite walled towns in Syria. The name of one of the fortresses is given as "Ereth" (ꜥ-rꜥ-tꜥ).<sup>d</sup> The inscription over the king contains only the customary epithets extolling the king's valor. The name of the chariot horses is recorded as "Victory-in-Thebes."

<sup>a</sup>The two short inscriptions contain the usual epithets of the king, but they are excessively incorrect as published, and also fragmentary.

<sup>b</sup>East half of north wall, outside of first court, upper row; second scene from east end; published by Champollion, Monuments, 227; the city also by Müller, Asien und Europa, 225.

<sup>c</sup>First pylon, rear (west) side of projection outside of north wall, upper row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>d</sup>So Daressy, Recueil, 19, 18; I could not discern the name on the photograph.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

121. The king, standing alone, receives three lines of Syrian (Semitic) prisoners, each headed by an Egyptian officer. The only inscription, that before the king, reads:

The king himself, he said to the hereditary prince, king's-scribe, commander in chief of the army, king's-son — —:<sup>b</sup> "Collect the captives whom the valor of Pharaoh, L. P. H., has taken, and place them [in] the offices in the house (pr) of Amon-Re, king of gods; (for) it was his hand which captured them."

Scene<sup>c</sup>

122. Riding in his chariot, with his tame lion trotting beside the horses, Ramses III drives before him two lines of Syrian (Semitic) captives. The inscriptions are these:

Over King

Good God, beautiful in his appearance, like Re, ———, coming in triumph — — —. His valor is mighty, he hath taken captive the lands of the Asiatics (St tyw). . . . .<sup>d</sup>

Over Captives

Utterance of the vanquished of every country who are before his majesty: "Breath from thee! O lord of Egypt, Sun of the Nine Bows! Thy father, Amon, hath put us beneath thy feet forever, that we may see and breathe the breath of life; that we may hail (brk n)<sup>e</sup> his temple. Thou art our lord forever, like thy father, Amon. Every land is beneath thy feet, like Re, forever, O Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon."

<sup>a</sup>North wall, east end, outside, first court, upper row, third scene from east end (Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303); unpublished. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>b</sup>Left vacant by the scribe; who was to be crown prince was not certain at this time!

<sup>c</sup>North wall, east end, outside first court, upper row, fourth scene from east end (Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 303); unpublished. I had a photograph by Weigall.

<sup>d</sup>Customary epithets of the king.

<sup>e</sup>See also § 127.

Scene<sup>a</sup>

123. "Triumphal return of the king in his chariot, followed by two sunshade-bearers and his bodyguard; he drives before him three rows of prisoners—Libyans, Syrians, Peleset, etc.—whom he holds by cords, and is received by the rejoicing Egyptian grandees." The inscription over the king refers to "the chiefs of the countries pinioned before him," but otherwise contains only the usual epithets. The horses are called: "Great first span of his majesty (called): 'Repulser-of-the-Nine-Bows,' of the great stable of Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III)."

Inscriptions over Grandees<sup>b</sup>

Utterance of the —, the nobles, and the [lead]ers: "[Come] in peace, victorious king, Horus, rich in years. Thou hast seized the lands, the Nine Bows are fettered before thy horses, for thy father, Amon, hath assigned to thee [all lands] beneath thy feet."

Scene<sup>c</sup>

124. "The king stands in a balcony;<sup>7</sup> behind him two sunshade-bearers, two fan-bearers, officers, and priests; Syrian captives are led before him in three rows," preceded by Egyptian officers and a group of nobles.

The inscriptions are these:

Before the King

Utterance of King Ramses III to the king's-children, magnates, [—] and attendants: "Hear ye my words, that I may cause you to know of the might of Amon, lord of eternity, since he crowned me as king, as

<sup>a</sup>First court, north wall, behind pillars, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt (German edition, 1897), 302. I had a photograph by Weigall, but the speech of the grandees was cut off by a pillar.

<sup>b</sup>Only this greeting of the grandees is published by de Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 127.

<sup>c</sup>First court, north wall, behind pillars, lower row; unpublished; Baedeker's Egypt (German edition, 1897), 301. I had a photograph by Weigall.

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon, lord of Thebes, to his son, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon: "Come thou in peace, O Good God, lord of might, captor of the Nine Bows, at thy return having crushed the countries. Thou hast slain their chiefs, who were beginning to trespass thy boundaries, they fell by thy blade. The countries that knew not Egypt come to thee, (with) their tribute upon their backs, from the victories which I have decreed to thee forever."

Before the King

The king himself, presenting the tribute to Amon from the great chiefs of every country, being: silver, gold, lapis lazuli, malachite, all (kinds of) costly stones without limit, from the booty which his majesty carried off, from that which his valiant sword captured; placed before (his) august father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, according as he gave to [him] all valor.

Over the Chiefs

127. Utterance of the wretched chief of Amor (<sup>2</sup>-m-r<sup>2</sup>), and the wretched, vanquished chief of Libya: "Breath! O Good ruler, strong-armed, great in might. Thou art verily the son of Amon, thy form is like him. He has assigned to thee every land, together overthrown beneath thy feet. Thou art like the sun, when he rises; men live at thy appearance. Give to us the breath, which thou givest, that we may hail<sup>a</sup> thy double serpent-diadem, that we may speak of thy might to our sons' sons. They are brought low through the fear of thee, of which we tell them; O thou Sun over Egypt, like the one which is in heaven, King Ramses III."

Scene<sup>b</sup>

128. "The king leads two rows of prisoners, before the Theban triad."

Inscription over King<sup>c</sup>

Utterance of the king, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon, before his father, Amon-Re, lord of heaven, ruler of gods: "I went upon thy way, I came at thy command, all thy designs come to pass, thou caust the — of the countries to — for fear<sup>a</sup> of me, overthrown in their place. I cut [them] down, slain at the fame of me. I carried off their people, all their possessions, all the splendid costly stone of their country; they are placed before thee, O lord of gods. Give to thy beloved, grant thou the participation of thy divine ennead in the might of thy sword.<sup>b</sup> I have carried them away: the males thereof to fill thy storehouse; their women to be subjects of thy temple. Thou causedst that I make my boundary as far as I desired. My hand was not repulsed; behold, the lands praised my might like a strong-armed one before them, by the might of thy sword, O my august father. Thy terror and thy — overthrew —.”

<sup>a</sup>B > -r > -k > =Semitic, כָּרַע, "bend the knee;" see Bondi, Lehnwörter, 40, 41. See also § 122.

<sup>b</sup>First court, north wall, behind pillars, lower row; Baedeker's Egypt (German edition, 1897), 302.

<sup>c</sup>Only the inscriptions over the king and prisoners are published; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 127, 128; letter by Piehl, Inscriptions, I, CXLVII, f. A.

Over Prisoners

Utterance of the chiefs of all countries who are in the grasp of his majesty: “Thou art Re. . . . .”<sup>c</sup>

Scene<sup>d</sup>

129. A line of seven captive chiefs kneeling with arms pinioned behind them. Their racial peculiarities are clearly depicted in features and costumes, and also indicated by accompanying inscriptions.

Inscriptions

1. Hittite.

The wretched chief of Kheta as living captive.

2. Amorite.

The wretched chief of Amor.

3. Asiatic.

Chieftain (ꜥꜣ) of the foe of Thekel (Tꜣ-kw-rꜣ).

<sup>a</sup>Or possibly: “because I was ready for battle.”

<sup>b</sup>The other gods are to receive only as much of the booty of Amon’s sword as he permits.

<sup>c</sup>Here follow the conventional epithets of praise.

<sup>d</sup>Relief on the façade of the right wing of the pavilion of Medinet Habu; published by Champollion, Monuments, 203 = Notices descriptives, I, 720, 721 (see also ibid., I, 709) = Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 143 = Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 209, b; Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 51; pendant to the similar relief on the other wing (§ 114).

4. Sherden.

Sherden ( $\check{S}^{\text{D}} - r^{\text{D}} - d^{\text{D}} - n^{\text{D}}$ ) of the sea.

5. Bedwi.<sup>a</sup>

Chieftain ( $^{\text{C}}^{\text{D}}$ ) of the foe of Sha[isu] ( $\check{S}^{\text{D}} - \text{---}$ ).

6. Teresh.

Teresh (Ty-w-r<sup>D</sup> -  $\check{S}^{\text{D}}$ ) of the sea.

7. Head lost.

Chieftain of the Pe[leset] (Pw ———).

Scene<sup>b</sup>

130. Amon standing at the right extends to the king the sword, and leads to him 126 captives of the conventional form, each bearing an oval containing the name of a conquered city or country. The king smites with the war-mace a group of the enemy, whom he holds by the hair.

The inscriptions are these:

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon-Re, lord of Thebes: "O my son, of my body, my beloved, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Meriamon, rich in years like Atum — overthrowing his enemies. Thou hast slain every land that began to trespass thy borders, in thy grasp. Thou hast taken every land. . . . Thou hast — him on the north of him; the great fame of thee, it has encompassed every land; the fear of thee, it has penetrated the countries. Thou art like Horus over the Two Lands, the son of the bow-peoples. I magnify<sup>c</sup> thy victories, I set the fear of thee in the hearts of the lands of Haunebu. Thy mighty blade is in their limbs, thy majesty strikes<sup>a</sup> them down, thy hands cut off the head of thy enemy. I make [thee] lord of —, the Sand-dwellers [I come], bowing down to thy name. Dreadful is thy serpent-crest among them; the war-mace in thy right hand, the — in thy left hand. Thou hast subdued the hearts of the rebels; the chiefs come to thee, bearing tribute —, every good product of their countries. I give to thee Egypt with good things, the bow-peoples as subjects of thy palace. The South comes to thee in fear, and the North bowing down to thy fame. I open for thee the ways of Punt, with myrrh and incense for thy serpent-diadem. I lead thee, and my strength is in thy limbs, to destroy the lands that invade thee. . . .”<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>See Müller, Asien und Europa, 139 and 393. This chieftain is therefore to be connected with the war against the Seirites (§ 404).

<sup>b</sup>First pylon, left hand (southern) tower, front, left half; published by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 11, 12), but with only the upper portion of the geographical list, and omitting the king's figure; list entire by Daressy (Recueil, XX, 116-119, and ibid., XXI, 30-39) and partially by Maspero (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1882, Pl. VI). A similar scene at Karnak shows Ramses III receiving from Amon the countries of "Retenu" and the "southern countries," while he "[cuts off] the heads of the rebels" before the god.

<sup>c</sup>Dümichen's lacuna is not in the text (photograph).

By the Victims

Smiting the chiefs of all countries.

131. The geographical names borne by the captives (who are alternately Semite and Hittite in features)<sup>c</sup> are largely taken from the list of Ramses II at Karnak. In the portions not so borrowed<sup>d</sup> such a name as Shabtuna (S<sup>3</sup> -bw-dw-n<sup>3</sup>, No. 75)<sup>e</sup> indicates the Amorite valley, as we should expect.<sup>f</sup> The insertion of such names as Carchemish, Mitanni, and Arrapachitis<sup>g</sup> shows clearly the decorative character of the list. The most interesting name is Levi-El (R<sup>3</sup> -wy-<sup>3</sup> -r<sup>3</sup>), which is parallel with Jacob-El and Joseph-El, which Daressy would identify with Shiloh.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Read the f as determinative, misunderstood from the hieratic. “Majesty” is perhaps to be read “mace.”

<sup>b</sup>The conclusion contains only the conventional promises.

<sup>c</sup>Except 8 (at the ends of the rows) who are Negroes; and the names they bear are taken from the list on the other pylon (§ 138).

<sup>d</sup>The entire list of Ramses II at Karnak is not yet excavated, or, if now excavated during the recent work at Karnak, is not yet published, so that the extent of the borrowing is not yet certain. See Daressy, Recueil, XX, 119.

<sup>e</sup>See III, 310, note.

<sup>f</sup>We might expect some places from the Edomite war (§ 404) also, but there is not space here for such discussion.

<sup>g</sup>See Müller, Asien und Europa, 227.

<sup>h</sup>See Daressy, Recueil, XXI, 37, 38; on the list as a whole, see Müller (Asien und Europa, 227 f.), who had only Dümichen's incomplete publication, and Sayce, Bulletin de la Société Khédiviale de Géographie, 1892, 661.

BLESSING OF PTAH<sup>a</sup>

132. This document is the pendant of the one of the year 11 (§§ 93-99). It is dated in the year 12, and the presence of the date would indicate that it records some specific occurrence; but it is difficult to determine what this occurrence was from our inscription, as it is copied from that of Ramses II at Abu Simbel (III, 394-414).

133. This brings up the whole question of the date of the Amorite war. The arrangement of the records in the Medinet Habu temple in chronological order from rear to front is so evident that the location of those reporting the Amorite war is of the first importance. We find them all (with one exception) on walls in front of—that is, later than—the second pylon (bearing records of the year 8), and among records of the Libyan war of the year 11. Had the Amorite campaign immediately followed the defeat of the sea-peoples in the year 8, it is certain that the very full records of that year would have contained some reference to it. But the long row of scenes depicting the campaign of the year 8 (outside north wall) contains nothing from the Amorite war, and the arrangement<sup>b</sup> of the whole wall clearly indicates that the Amorite war is at least as late as the year 11. But as the second Libyan war occurred in that year, the Amorite war would have probably been later. We have to remember, however, that on the treasury in the rear of the temple interior (that is, the oldest portion of the building) there is a relief (§§ 126, 127) showing the king of Amor as a captive. But he is here in company with a Libyan king, and as we cannot suppose that the Amorite war occurred as early as the year 5 (first Libyan war), it is evident that this Libyan king was taken in the Libyan war of year 11, when Ramses III actually did capture a Libyan king (§ 97), whereas no such capture is mentioned in the records of the year 5. Thus this relief on the treasury again connects the Amorite war with the Libyan war of year 11. They must thus have occurred close together, from the testimony of the reliefs.

<sup>a</sup>Inscription at Medinet Habu temple of Ramses III, cut into the front of the first pylon, on the south (left) tower, just at the left of the entrance. It exactly matches in form and size the inscription of year 11 (§§ 93-99) on the right of the entrance. Published: relief at top and list, by Champollion, Monuments, 204; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 123; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 209, c (see also, ibid., Text, III, 170); complete by Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 7-10); and Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, II, 131-38, but without the relief at the top). The geographical list at the top also, by Daressy (Recueil, XX, 120).

<sup>b</sup>The reliefs begin at the rear with three scenes from the war of year 5; proceed toward the front with seven scenes from the war of year 8; and conclude at the front with a group of scenes from the Libyan war of year 11, and the Amorite war.

134. Returning now to our monument, copied, as we have stated, from an Abu Simbel stela of Ramses II, we find that the slight changes in it, necessary to suit the times of Ramses III, are not in favor of the above conclusion. Especially is this true in one case, where Ramses II's stela refers to the Hittites thus, (Ptah speaks): "I have made for thee the land of Kheta into subjects of thy palace" (III, 410). Here Ramses III's redactor has changed "Kheta" into "every land;" although, according to the reliefs and the lists, Ramses III must have fought the Hittites. The relief at the top of our stela contains a list of names of three African and ten Syrian towns, accompanying thirteen Asiatic (sic!) prisoners, and Müller<sup>a</sup> refers the latter without hesitation to the Amorite war. The presence of the African names with Asiatic figures would lead one to suspect this list to be nothing more than decorative. Against this stela one must now weigh the evidence of the reliefs, which seems to me conclusive for dating the Amorite war in or shortly after the year 11. This conclusion is thus reached rather in spite of than because of our stela.

<sup>a</sup>Müller, Asien und Europa, 394 ("S. 227").

135. All changes in the version of Ramses II have been indicated in the footnotes to the translation of the Abu Simbel stela (III, 594-414), which may therefore serve in place of a repetition of the document here.

The relief at the top shows Ramses III, "smiting the chiefs of all countries" in the presence of Ptah-Tatenen, who presents to him a sword, and leads up thirteen Asiatic captives, represented in the conventional form with ovals, the first three of which contain the names of African places.

VI. THE NUBIAN WAR

136. The materials for this war, like those of the Amorite war, are solely relief scenes. These permit no definite conclusions regarding it. Nubia had now been so thoroughly Egyptianized that Ramses III's war or wars there were doubtless confined to quelling unimportant insurrections on the extreme southern frontier, or to expeditions against the outlying tribes on the east of Nubia.

Besides the material below, see also the Nubian chiefs represented with the Meshwesh chief captured in the year 11, on the pavilion (§ 114). There are also unpublished scenes from this war on the rear (west) side of the temple (Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 302).

SLAYING OF PRISONERS BEFORE AMON-RE<sup>a</sup>

137. This relief shows Ramses III "slaying the chiefs of all countries" in the presence of Amon-Re, who extends to him a sword at the same time leading to him a list of 124 captives, depicted in the usual form, each with an oval containing the name of each place or country symbolized.<sup>a</sup> Over the god is a poetic inscription of eighteen lines, taken from the similar scene among the Karnak reliefs (III, 116) of Seti I, who appropriated it from the Building Inscription of Amenhotep III (II, 891, 892). It had meantime been expanded by Seti I (III, 113-18); his version was now slightly elaborated by Ramses III.<sup>b</sup> His additions, however, contain nothing of historical importance. Under the god's arm is an inscription, which has now become stereotyped in this position. Each strophe begins: "I cause them to see thy majesty, etc.;" and the whole is taken from Thutmose III's Hymn of Victory (II, 658 ff.), following the example of Seti I and Ramses II.

<sup>a</sup>Relief scene on the façade of the Medinet Habu temple, right (northern) tower, front, first pylon; published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 725-28 (list partially); Dümichen (Historische Inschriften, I, 16-18, without king's figure, the victims and accompanying inscriptions) and Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 109, 110, with same omissions and without list). Rougé has incorrectly appended to the long inscription in this scene twelve lines, from the back of the same pylon-tower, belonging to the war of the eleventh year, ll. 19-30; Dümichen

138. The list of 124 geographical names is largely a compilation from the lists of Thutmose III, and other earlier sources, and therefore of little historical importance, save in restoring the earlier lists where they are fragmentary. They are chiefly African countries;<sup>c</sup> but some names repeated on the other pylon (§ 131) are evidently Asiatic.<sup>d</sup>

(Historische Inschriften, I, 22, 23); also by Lepsius (Denkmäler, III, 210, a; see also ibid., Text, III, 171). None of these publications has the complete geographical list, which has been published by Daressy (Recueil, XX, 113-16). I also had a good photograph by Schroeder & Cie., Zürich.

<sup>a</sup>An unpublished scene on the left (south) tower of the pavilion shows the king "presenting two rows of captives before Amon" (Baedeker's Egypt, 1902, 298). The lower row are Libyans, but, according to the inscriptions (Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 722 f.), they also include Nubians, for the king says: "Thou givest to me the land of Kush." Otherwise the inscriptions contain nothing of historical importance.

<sup>b</sup>The beginning of the same inscription is used again by Ramses III accompanying a duplicate of this scene in the great Karnak temple (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 207, d). The geographical list, however, is limited to fifteen names, chiefly the Nine Bows.

<sup>c</sup>The arrangement in Karnak places the southern countries on the southern pylon-tower; but this arrangement was not retained by Ramses III, who places this African list on the northern pylon-tower.

<sup>d</sup>The inscription over the god says: "I cause to come to thee the chiefs of the southern countries, with their tribute and their children upon their backs, every good product of their country." This would indicate that the list should be African; but see the further content of the poem (III, 116).

MEDINET HABU TEMPLE CALENDAR<sup>a</sup>

139. This, the most elaborate temple calendar which has survived from the pre-Ptolemaic age, contains a number of historic data of the greatest interest. It begins with a long speech<sup>b</sup> by Ramses III, addressed to Amon. The king offers the usual praise to the god, and continues with an enumeration of his own good works for him in Thebes. These are in general those which we have more in detail in Papyrus Harris. In mentioning the feasts it is evident that the Medinet Habu temple was their center rather than Karnak. Of the property of the Medinet Habu temple, the king says to Amon:

140. I have put its possessions into writing, that I might inclose them in thy grasp. I made for thee thy property lists, that they might be <sup>17</sup>forever and [ever] in thy name. I offered to thee the Two Lands as thy portion, according as thou gavest them to me since I was born.

141. This is followed by matters of historical importance:

I built strongholds (bhn w) in thy name in Egypt <sup>18</sup>and ["all"] lands, likewise the land of Asia. I taxed them for their impost every year, every town by its name, gathered together, bearing their tribute, to bring them [to] thy ka, O lord of gods <sup>19</sup>. . . . I made these things by my might, from that which my ka created,<sup>c</sup> from my captures <sup>20</sup>in the land of the Negroes, and in the land of Zahi (D<sup>2</sup>-hy). There was naught therein for any (other) god, but I gave them to thy ka, that thou mightest be satisfied therewith, for thou art my divine father, heir of eternity, traversing everlastingness as lord of gods. <sup>21</sup>Set me in thy heart at all times, let the land abide like Thebes, thine accustomed house. . . . <sup>22</sup>Let thy provision be brought into its midst and all plenty into the chapel . . . . multiplying its children, that they may be prophets and divine fathers for thee, to call ["for"] thee for thy food, <sup>23</sup>to praise thee;

<sup>a</sup>On the outside of the south wall; it has never been properly or exhaustively published; the publications will be found in the notes on §§ 139-45.

<sup>b</sup>Daressy, Recueil, XIX, 15-17.

<sup>c</sup>The "generations" or "classes" of youth and captives classified for service are constantly said to be "created" (shpr) by the king. So Papyrus Harris often. The exact meaning is often "brought up, trained, educated," and again, "organized."

others [for] the administration [of] the work, in order to supply all daily offerings. I have collected for the herds of all small cattle, fields, domains of high land <sup>24f</sup>— —] gardens of — — wild fowl descending into the pool; in order to make festive thy oblations, with plenty. . . I — all — the captivity of my sword. Every land overflowed <sup>25f</sup>————] gold, silver, and the possessions of all lands went into it, that my house might be for thee an august sanctuary, with thy majesty in the midst thereof — forever.

The king's speech then concludes with further praise and prayer.

142. Following this inscription is the act of establishment<sup>a</sup> of the festal offerings of the temple. It begins:

Year 12, first month of the third season (ninth month) [twenty-sixth<sup>b</sup> day, the day] of the king's [coronation] upon the Horus-throne, when he received the regalia of his father, Re.

143. The new calendar of feasts was thus introduced on the anniversary of the king's coronation in his twelfth year at the completion of the temple of Medinet Habu and the termination of his wars. The act mentions several new feasts founded by Ramses III, to one of which are appended the words:

Which Ramses III founded for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, from the [victories] which the — might of Pharaoh won, among the fallen of — in the year —,<sup>c</sup> third month of the third season (eleventh month) [day] —.

144. Now follows the great calendar<sup>d</sup> enumerating all

<sup>a</sup>So Daressy (Recueil, XIX, 17), but the act itself is very mutilated; he publishes only the opening line, as above, and the names of two feasts mentioned by the document.

<sup>b</sup>The day is known from the calendar following.

<sup>c</sup>Evidently the numeral 11 is to be inserted, as he was out on the campaign of that year in the eleventh month.

<sup>d</sup>Dümichen, Aegyptische Kalender-Inschriften, Taf. I-XXXIV; and Die kalendrischen Opferfestlisten im Tempel von Medinet Habu; Brugsch, Thesaurus, II, 364; Greene, Fouilles à Thèbes, IV-VI.

the old and new annual feasts of Amon, and to each feast is attached a list of the various offerings to be presented at that feast. These are so elaborate and extensive that they cover a large part of the southern wall of the temple. The particular treasury or source of income from which each offering or group of offerings shall be taken is also indicated. It begins with the daily offerings for each of the 365 days, followed by the eight "feasts of heaven," which were at monthly, half-monthly, or shorter intervals. This introduces the chief section of the calendar, the portion which treats of the annual feasts. As of prime importance to the king, the feast of his coronation on the twenty-sixth of Pakhons (ninth month) heads the list. It lasted one day, but was later lengthened by the king to no less than twenty days.<sup>a</sup> All the other annual feasts which now follow are in proper chronological order, beginning with the rising of Sirius on New Year's Day, and proceeding with the other three traditional feasts<sup>a</sup> of the first month. On the nineteenth of the second month (Paophi) began the next feast, that of Opet, the greatest in the Theban calendar. It continued under Ramses III till the twelfth of the third month, a total of twenty-four days.<sup>c</sup> The list is preserved only as far as the seventeenth or eighteenth of the fifth month, but, besides the above, it contains seventeen more annual feast days, making in all no less than forty-five annual feast days during the first 138 days of the year; that is, almost one annual feast every three days, or more than 120 in the year,

---

<sup>a</sup>See Papyrus Harris, § 237.

<sup>b</sup>Wag, Thoth, and the "Great Going Forth of Osiris."

<sup>c</sup>In Thutmose III's day it was eleven days long (see my remarks, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 37, 126), so that it has been prolonged thirteen days since his reign; in Papyrus Harris it is twenty-seven days long, so that it was extended at least three days by Ramses III.

at the same rate.<sup>a</sup> This is not including the minor “feasts of heaven” which were connected with each month.

145. Among the names of the new feasts there is one of historical importance in the fifth month (the day is not given), called: “Slaying-of-the-Meshwesh.”<sup>b</sup>

The lists of objects offered are precisely those enumerated in Papyrus Harris, and an exhaustive comparison would throw much light on the lists in the papyrus.

ACT OF ENDOWMENT OF THE TEMPLES OF KHNUM<sup>c</sup>

146. To Sethe's arguments that this document was issued by Ramses III, may be added the remark of de Rougé that the neighboring fragment,<sup>d</sup> containing the name of Ramses III, is of the same style. Sethe has shown<sup>e</sup> that the “field,” regularly referred to is the “dodekaschoinos,” the field of twelve schoinoi belonging to Khnum, which extended from Assuan to Takompo.<sup>f</sup> This land is by this document of <sup>a</sup>The rate for the remainder of the year is not likely to have decreased much, for Ramses III later prolonged the feast of his coronation to twenty days; it fell in the ninth month.

<sup>b</sup>Dümichen, Aegyptische Kalender-Inschriften, XXXIII.

<sup>c</sup>Blocks built into the quay on the island of Elephantine; published by de Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 256–58; de Morgan, Catalogues des monuments, I, 118, c, 119, d; see Spiegelberg, Studien und Materialien, 94–98; also translated by Sethe, Untersuchungen, II, 27, 28. I have mostly followed Sethe in the above translation, with some few additions from Rougé's copy, which was not used by Sethe.

<sup>d</sup>This fragment bearing the name of Ramses III (Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 258), records his command “to cleanse all the temples of the South from all abomination . . . to inspect the treasuries and granaries, to protect the people and herds, to double ———, to bring in truth and to banish falsehood, to cause lying to be an abomination; to build ———.”

<sup>e</sup>Sethe, Untersuchungen, II, 28.

<sup>f</sup>According to an inscription in Maharraka, found by Sethe in one of Lepsius' notebooks, Takompo must be at least as far south as the former town, so that Sethe's ably defended thesis confining the dodekaschoinos to the cataract between Assuan and Philæ is thus disproved for the Græco-Roman age at least, and probably also for the earlier time. See Sethe, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 41, 60, 62.

Ramses III conveyed for all time to Khnum. That this was a new gift the late copy of Zoser's donation of the same land shows to be impossible. Hence we here see Ramses III confirming an old possession of the god, which confirmation he, of course, viewed as a gift, precisely as we find him doing in Papyrus Harris (§ 222). The enactments of the document, making the land given, as well as its inhabitants and products, free from taxation by the crown, or any government requisition by the vizier, are most important. They confirm the statements in Genesis (47:21-26) that the priests were not taxed.

Date

147. 1----- . . . . .<sup>a</sup>

<sup>3</sup>Decree issued at the court on this day to the vizier, the princes, the companions, the courts of justice,<sup>b</sup> the mayors commanding settlements [and all royal officers; that the inhabitants of this <sup>4</sup>field be not taken for enforced labor<sup>1</sup>] by an officer of the royal estate or any people sent on a commission to the field; that their ships be not stopped by any patrol; that their ships be not taken by (lawful) seizure, in order to carry out any commission of the Pharaoh, by any people sent on a commission [to the field] ----- <sup>5</sup>----- [that there be not taken<sup>1</sup>] any 1-----<sup>c</sup> belonging to them by (lawful) seizure, by robbery, or 1-----, by any mayor, any inspector, any officer sent on a commission to the field. As for anyone who shall do it, the 1-----<sup>c</sup> which he took shall be collected from him ----- <sup>6</sup>-----.

148. [As for the] fishermen, fowlers, natron-gatherers, salt-gatherers, all who pursue their callings for the temples of the father<sup>d</sup> of all gods and goddesses, there shall be no 1procedure<sup>1</sup> against them by [any] one ----- <sup>7</sup>-----.

149. [As for] ----- [any] honey-collectors, any one belonging to a temple, against whom some one shall transgress, and he shall <sup>a</sup>That the lost beginning contained the date is evident from the mention of "this day" in l. 3.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "the courts that hear (cases)."

<sup>c</sup>Sethe suggests "Stück Vieh."

<sup>d</sup>Khnum.

say: "A certain inspector or a certain officer is the one who has transgressed against me," he shall [see to it] that the damage accruing shall be made good, that the first, which shall be secretly taken from the temple, shall be made good to the god. And there shall not be collected ——— 8 ——— [but there shall be taken<sup>1</sup>] all that they have, [besides] what they cultivate for themselves, for their divine offerings.<sup>a</sup>

150. And no overseer of cattle, nor any one shall take a beast of the-herd, to give it to another as [food] or by robbery ——— 9 ——— to [—] it from him secretly likewise [— —]. And no future vizier shall make requisition upon any prophet of these temples, for silver, gold, leather, clothing, ointment ——— 10 ——— but all people shall stand and abide in these temples, following their callings [for] their gods therein ———.

PAPYRUS HARRIS<sup>b</sup>

151. The invaluable treasure of facts and statistics preserved to us in this remarkable document has, with the exception of one section at the end, never been exhaustively studied until recently. The closing section, which is a short historical account of Ramses III's reign, has received much

<sup>a</sup>Temple income.

<sup>b</sup>Found by the natives at Thebes in 1855. It lay with four other rolls in a hole in the floor of a common cliff-tomb near Der el-Medineh, beneath a pile of mummies which filled the tomb. Together with some twenty other rolls, found by the Arabs at the same time, it was offered for sale to Mr. A. C. Harris, of Alexandria, who purchased it; hence its name. The other papyri, not purchased by him, seem to have belonged to the series of court records containing the prosecution of tomb-robbers under Ramses IX. Papyrus Harris is now in the British Museum, where it was admirably published by Birch, Facsimile of an Egyptian Hieratic Papyrus of the Reign of Ramses III, now in the British Museum (London, 1876). It is practically in a perfect state of preservation, there being only a small piece of three lines torn out of Pl. 1. The Dictionnaire du Papyrus Harris (Vienna, 1882), by Piehl, is invaluable as a concordance, to which I express my general obligation here.

[Since finishing my study of the Papyrus Harris, I have received Professor Erman's admirable essay, "Zur Erklärung des Papyrus Harris" (Sitzungsberichte der Königlichen Preussischen Akademie, der Wissenschaft, 1903, XXI, 456-74). Additional observations drawn from his study are severally acknowledged in the notes.]

attention, but the apparently uninteresting gifts and lists, which occupy 95 per cent. of the space in the document, have never, until recently, been carefully examined for historical purposes.<sup>a</sup> The following discussion and translation are not offered as an exhaustive monograph on the papyrus; they purpose no more than to enable the reader to employ the invaluable data furnished by the document, for historical purposes. The numerous metrological, botanical, and archæological questions<sup>b</sup> suggested by the lists do not fall within our province in the present treatise, and no attempt has been made to settle them.

152. This remarkable manuscript is the largest papyrus extant, being no less than 133 feet long, and containing 117 columns,<sup>c</sup> usually of twelve or thirteen lines. Written in a magnificent hand, it is the most sumptuous manuscript left us by ancient Egypt. The content of the document is not less remarkable than its external form. It is a detailed statement of Ramses III's benefactions to gods and men during his entire reign of over thirty-one years. It was compiled at his death by his son, to be placed in the king's tomb, and is distinctly mortuary in its character and pur-

<sup>a</sup>Professor Erman's essay, mentioned above (p. 87, n. b).

<sup>b</sup>For the metrology involved in the historical discussion, I have followed Griffith. For the reader's convenience, I append the following equivalents:

1 deben = about 1,404 grains, or 2.925 troy ounces.

1 kidet = about 140.4 grains ( $\frac{1}{10}$  of a deben).

1 sixteen fold heket = about 2.10 to 2.16 imp. bushels.

1 heket = about 292 to 300 cubic inches (1 bushel = about 7.39 to 7.59 heket).

1 hin = about 29.2 to 30 cubic inches.

1 stat = about  $\frac{2}{3}$  of an acre.

But most of the units of measure employed are unknown, and I have simply transliterated. Where I have translated botanical names, I have been dependent for the most part upon Loret's very useful investigations; but in cases of doubt I have usually transliterated the term without comment. As to the metals involved, this papyrus uses hm't for both bronze and copper, and unless the alloy is indicated, I have regularly rendered copper (see 14a, note).

<sup>c</sup>Published in seventy-nine plates.

pose. It was intended to secure to the departed Pharaoh the favor of all the gods in the hereafter, by showing them his numerous benefactions in all their temples, and his great deeds among men. Prayers for the king's well-being in the world beyond continually appeal to these good works as ground for the favor of the gods, on whose good-will the king's happiness after death depends. Ramses IV, the son to whom the document clearly owes its preparation, does not forget to put into his deceased father's mouth long prayers in his own (the son's) behalf, entreating for him from the gods, whose companion the departed king now is, a long and prosperous reign. So prominent are these prayers for Ramses IV that they must also have formed a strong motive for the preparation of the document by him.<sup>a</sup>

153. The document is dated on the day of the king's death,<sup>b</sup> as will be evident from the following considerations: The long lists of gifts cover thirty-one years; all annual traditional feasts of all the temples recorded were celebrated thirty-one times. It is thus evident that Ramses III died so early in the year 32 that the small fraction of gifts presented during the beginning of that year were not considered; nor did the king survive long enough in the year 32 to celebrate any of its feasts. To this last observation there is one exception: a certain feast founded by Ramses III himself was celebrated in the year 32. It began on the

---

<sup>a</sup>In precisely the same way the deceased Seti I prays for his son, Ramses II (III, 280); and we find the latter petitioning his deceased father to pray to the gods, whose companion he (the father) now is, for his (the son's) welfare (III, 279).

<sup>b</sup>This was long ago recognized by Birch (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1872, 119 ff.), although his data, as he took them from the papyrus, were seriously in error. But, this conclusion of Birch has since been entirely overlooked, and and it has been generally held that the papyrus was written and dated some time before the king's death, although it over and over again, with all the euphemisms known to the Egyptians, states that he was already dead. [Later: See also Erman on this point (op. cit.).]

twenty-sixth of Pakhons, and lasted twenty days. This feast must therefore have fallen early in the year 32, and the king lived at least twenty days of that year. Now, in Ramses III's calendar of feasts at Medinet Habu the feast of the anniversary of his coronation is recorded as beginning on the twenty-sixth of Pakhons<sup>a</sup> (ninth month), so that the twenty-day feast in our papyrus is the celebration of the coronation anniversary; its first day, the twenty-sixth of Pakhons, is the first day of each year of the reign. This feast, which began the year 32, the old king celebrated in that year; but no more. When the Feast of the Nile-god,<sup>b</sup> which fell just ninety-five days after the close of the Feast of Coronation, was celebrated, the Pharaoh had been gathered to his fathers, for the papyrus records this feast no later than the year 31. We have thus fixed the date of the king's death within ninety-five days, and the papyrus is dated on the sixth of Epiphi, which falls within that period.

154. When, furthermore, we remember that the papyrus continually represents the king as stating that he is deceased, it is evident that the date at the head of the document is that of the king's death, the last date which could be recorded in his reign. The papyrus thus furnishes us the exact length of his reign, thirty-one years and forty days, or more exactly, forty-one days, if we include the day of his death.<sup>c</sup>

<sup>a</sup>§§ 142, 143.

<sup>b</sup>The date of this feast is not given in the papyrus, but is to be found on Ramses III's stela at Silsileh (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 218, d, l. 15).

<sup>c</sup>That Ramses III ruled in round numbers thirty-one years is also shown by the Papyrus Mallet (Recueil, I, Pl. I, ll. 2, 3), which contains a statement of payments made "from year 31 to year 3, making 4 years." Had Ramses III ruled far into year 32, the above limits would have included more than four years; but the scribe ignores the forty days of year 32. There is no coregency with Ramses IV here (Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 480); and the dates as they stand are clear proof that there was never any coregency at all. Still less is there a shadow of proof that the coregency lasted four years (Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 481), making Ramses III reign thirty-six years. The document on which this

155. The document was evidently put together as rapidly as possible after the king's death, and the sections furnished by the three main temples—Thebes, Heliopolis, and Memphis—were written by three different scribes, as the varying hand and orthography clearly show.<sup>a</sup> The Theban scribe wrote also the general introduction, but a fourth scribe had to do with the records from the smaller temples, while a fifth furnished the concluding or historical section. One of these scribes was perhaps also the artist of the three vignettes. The haste with which the document was compiled is evident both from the fact that some of the greatest of the minor temples are entirely omitted, and from the numerous errors in the footings of the lists, as well as some glaring omissions. It is evident, also, that the scribes at Heliopolis and Memphis were unable to render as full reports as that of the Theban scribe; doubtless owing to the shorter time allowed them because of the delay involved in the journey from Thebes with their instructions, and the return thither with the finished report, before the day of the king's funeral. The entire omission of many of the more important smaller temples is probably to be accounted for in the same way; their reports failed to arrive in time.<sup>b</sup>

156. The material in the great papyrus is, in the main, very systematically arranged. To the three great gods of Egypt—Amon of Thebes, Re of Heliopolis, and Ptah of Memphis—the major portion of the space is naturally devoted. Besides these three great sections is another, of last conclusion is based contains an encomium of the reign of Ramses V, copied by a scribe in the year 4. Its attribution to Ramses IV (ibid., 481) is an oversight, for it was formerly correctly assigned by Maspero to Ramses V (Momies royales, 664).

---

<sup>a</sup>See Erman (Sitzungsberichte der Königlichen Preussischen Akademie, 1903, XXI, 459-62) for a table of these differences.

<sup>b</sup>This will not, however, explain the absence of such temples as Erment and Dendera, which were but a few miles away from Thebes.

general scope, devoted to the other temples, followed by a summary of all the temples of Egypt, and a concluding historical section, reciting the king's great deeds in war, commerce, and the like.

157. The following table will render this arrangement clear:<sup>a</sup>

- I. Introduction (1; §§ 182, 183).
- II. Theban Section (2-23; §§ 184-246).
- III. Heliopolitan Section (24-42; §§ 247-304).
- IV. Memphite Section (43-56; §§ 305-51).
- V. General Section (57-66*b*; §§ 352-82) (small temples).
- VI. Summary (67-74; §§ 383-96).
- VII. Historical Section (75-79; §§ 397-412).

Each of these sections, except the first and last, is arranged on the same general plan. At the beginning of each of the sections II, III, and IV is a vignette, showing the king worshipping the gods to whom the following section is devoted. The text of each section is then introduced by a prayer, which merges into a recital of the king's buildings and other benefactions for the god, concluding with an appeal to him, calling attention to the following lists. These lists contain six different classes of material: (1) the god's estate; (2) his income; (3) the king's new gifts to him; (4) grain for the old feasts; (5) offerings for new feasts founded by him; and (6) offerings to the Nile-god.

158. The statement that the first class of material constitutes the god's estate will need some demonstration. It is clear that the papyrus enumerates old income of the god merely confirmed to him by Ramses III, in the offerings of grain for the old annual feasts like that of Southern Opet at Thebes (16*b*, 13-15); for these are not only separated by a rubric from the new feasts founded by Ramses III (e. g., 17a-21b), but they refer distinctly to "that (income) which was before" (16b, 14), which is included in them. If this be true, we may expect to find old possessions of the god elsewhere in the lists. Thus among the king's gifts we find the statement that he "made" for Amon the great vineyard called "Kanekeme" (8, 5). Had we no other information regarding this vineyard, we must have supposed that it was a new possession of Amon, equipped and given him by Ramses III. But we know that it was in existence long before Ramses III's time, and in possession of Ramses II's mortuary temple, the Ramesseum, also a temple of Amon at Thebes.<sup>a</sup> We thus see that Ramses III enumerates as his own gifts, property long in the possession of the god before Ramses III was born, evidently viewing his confirmation of it to the god as the conveyance of a gift.<sup>b</sup> To us it is indifferent whether such confirmation really did constitute a gift; it is enough for us to know that all property so confirmed was an old possession belonging to the earlier estate of the god. With this fact in mind, let us see if such property as enumerated can be distinguished from the new donations actually given by Ramses III.

<sup>a</sup>Bold figures indicate the plates of the papyrus.

159. The first list in each of the Theban, Heliopolitan, and Memphite sections is headed thus:

List of things, cattle, gardens, lands, galleys, workshops, and towns, which Pharaoh<sup>c</sup> gave to the house (pr, estate) of the god X, as property forever and ever (10, 1 ff.; 31, 1 ff.; 51a, 1 ff.; 61a, 1 ff.).

160. The second section of the lists is clearly the god's annual income or a part of it; it is headed each time<sup>d</sup> thus:<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>See 8, 5, and note.

<sup>b</sup>He does the same in his Elephantine act of endowment (§§ 146-50).

<sup>c</sup>So Thebes; the rest use Ramses III's name.

<sup>d</sup>The scribe has omitted the heading by mistake in the general section.

<sup>e</sup>So the summary; the others give the various temples, etc., by name.

Things exacted, impost of the people and all the serf-laborers of the houses, temples, and estates which he gave to them as their yearly dues (12a, 1 ff.; 32a, 7 ff.; 51b, 3 ff.; 68b, 4 ff.).

Yet it is stated that Ramses III “gave” this income to the gods, although it is evident that it is income which they must long before have enjoyed.

161. The third section of the lists is five times so headed:

Gold, silver, etc.,<sup>a</sup> which Ramses III gave as gifts of the king, in order to provision the house of the god X, from the year 1<sup>b</sup> to the year 31.<sup>b</sup>

162. We see that these “gifts” are distributed through thirty-one years, while the “property”<sup>c</sup> of the first heading is, as far as the heading is concerned, each time merely once given, and is never called “gifts of the king.” On looking at the lists themselves, under the first and third headings, we find, for example at Heliopolis, lands under both; while at Thebes we find cattle under both. Why were these not put together? Evidently because some of the land was former “property” of the god, while the rest was a “gift of the king.” Now, the estate of the god, as Erman has noticed, is of course given as it was found at the king’s death, using the names then in vogue; hence we find the keepers of a herd named after Ramses III’s victory over the Meshwesh (10, 8) included in the estate. Evidently the 971 Meshwesh slaves who kept this herd were a gift of Ramses III, and other gifts of his, not discernible because not accidentally so distinguished, are thus, of course, included in the estate. This made no difference to Ramses

<sup>a</sup>Long series of portable property.

<sup>b</sup>The summary has for this phrase, “while he was king upon earth.”

<sup>c</sup>The word employed (ymy-pr) is the usual term, both for the document by which property is conveyed by mortmain, and for such property itself. The term is therefore of itself sufficient to determine the character of the property to which it is applied.

III, while claiming, as he did, to have given the whole estate to the god.

163. The important point for us is, that we have here an inventory of the whole estate, and that we can now determine from the great papyrus the total wealth held by the three great temples of Egypt—an economic datum till recently unknown in the study of ancient Egypt or of any other oriental country of the time. If we thus leave the total amount of Ramses III's new gifts somewhat uncertain, such uncertainty is of little importance, for it is evident in any case that the bulk of his alleged donations to the gods were old and traditional possessions, for a large share of which the priesthoods were doubtless indebted to the Eighteenth Dynasty.<sup>a</sup>

164. The classification of the property of the temples in the document is shown in the appended table (p. 96).

165. We can now proceed to determine what proportion of the wealth of the country was in possession of the temples of the land. To do this, we must compile a condensed summary of their property, taking first the temple estates (see table, p. 97).

166. With these data we can safely deal only in the case of people and land. The cattle are lumped together without showing what proportion of sheep, goats, etc., the numbers contain. We do not know the size of the gardens and groves, or towns; nor the size and value of the ships and workshops. But with the people belonging to the temples, and the lands, we can operate with tolerable precision, as compared with our former total lack of data. The population of Egypt up to within the last five or six years was reckoned at toward six millions, but the latest census places

---

<sup>a</sup>For example, Amon owns but nine Syrian towns, and we know that Thutmose III alone gave Amon three Syrian towns (II, 557).

CLASSIFICATION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE TEMPLES

	II. THEBAN SECTION	III. HELIOPOLITAN SECTION	IV. MEMPHITE SECTION	V. GENERAL SECTION (SMALL TEMPLES)	VI. SUMMARY
1. Introductory Vignette	2; § 184	24; § 247	43; § 305	None	None
2. Prayer to the God and Recital of the King's Benefactions in Buildings and Gifts	3-9; §§ 185-221	25-30; §§ 248-79	44-50; §§ 306-36	57-60; §§ 352-63	None
3. The God's Estate	10-11; §§ 222-26	31-32a, 6; §§ 280-82	51a-51b, 2; §§ 337-39	61a-62a, 10; §§ 364-70	67-68b, 3; §§ 383-85
4. The God's Income	12a-12b; §§ 227-30	32a, 7-32b; § 283	51b, 3-52a, 3; §§ 340, 341	62a, 11-13; § 371	68b, 4-70a, 2; §§ 386, 387
5. The King's Gifts to the God	13a-16b, 12; §§ 231-35	33a-34b, 5; §§ 284-88	52a, 4-53b, 11; §§ 342-45	62b-66a; §§ 372-81
6. Grain for the Old Feasts	16b, 13-15; § 236	34b, 6-9; § 289	53b, 12-54a, 1; § 346	None	70a, 3-74 §§ 388-96
7. Offerings for New Feasts Founded by Ramses III	17a-21b, 10; §§ 237-44	34b, 10-37a; §§ 290-95	None	None
8. Offerings for the Nile-god	None	37b-41b; §§ 296-303	54a, 2-56a; §§ 347-50	None
9. Private Statues of Amon	21b, 11-16; § 245	None	None	None	Above in the estates
10. <sup>a</sup> Concluding Prayer of Ramses III	22, 23; § 246	42; § 304	56b; § 351	66b; § 382	None

<sup>a</sup>These numbers do not wholly conform with those found in the translation, because of the absence of some of the heads in certain sections. Thus No. 8 of this table is wanting in the Theban section, and hence in the translation No. 9 has become No. 8.

TEMPLE ESTATES

	<sup>a</sup> THEBES	HELIOPOLIS	MEMPHIS	GENERAL (SMALL TEMPLES)	SUMMARY
People	86,486 <sup>b</sup>	12,364 <sup>c</sup>	3,079	5,686 <sup>d</sup>	107,615 <sup>e</sup>
Large and Small Cattle	421,362	45,544	10,047	13,433	490,386
Gardens and Groves	433	64	5	11	513 <sup>f</sup>
Lands	864,168 <sup>g</sup> stat	160,084 <sup>g</sup> stat	10,154 stat	36,012 stat	1,070,419 <sup>g</sup> stat
Ships	83	3	2	None	88
Workshops	46	5 <sup>h</sup> (sic!)	None	2	53 <sup>h</sup> (sic!)
Towns of Egypt	56	103	1	None	160
Towns of Syria and Kush	9	None	None	None	9
Total Towns	65	103	1	None	169

<sup>a</sup>To the fortune of Amon (Thebes) must also be added the 2,756 statues, of which the materials are enumerated (68a, 3-68b, 3).

<sup>b</sup>The papyrus gives the correct total in this case.

<sup>c</sup>The papyrus gives 12,963.

<sup>d</sup>The papyrus gives 5,811.

<sup>e</sup>The papyrus gives 113,433.

<sup>f</sup>The papyrus gives 514.

<sup>g</sup>The papyrus gives 1,071,780.

it above nine millions. It is much to be doubted whether in its ancient state the land could support as large a population as modern improved conditions have produced. Granting this, we see that one person in about eighty-five of the population was temple property; or, accepting the lower figure for the ancient population (Diodorus gives six million as the population in Roman times), one person in about fifty-five. But, remembering that the list of smaller temples is incomplete, we may say that one person in from fifty to eighty of the population belonged to the temples. In no case were more than 2 per cent. of the people temple property.

167. Turning to the consideration of the land, we find the temples in possession of a total of 1,070,419 stat, or about 722,533 acres. The archives of modern Egypt contain a registration of about five millions of acres,<sup>a</sup> whence it will be seen that the temples owned nearly one-seventh, or over 14½ per cent., of the land. Including the smaller temples<sup>b</sup> omitted by the papyrus, probably over 15 per cent. of the land belonged to the religious foundations. This was distributed as follows:

Thebes	583,313.57 acres
Heliopolis	108,057.2 "
Memphis	6,853.95 "
Small Temples }	24,308.1 "
Total	<hr/> 722,532.82 acres

168. The income of the temples is also very instructive when tabulated.

<sup>a</sup>Reports by His Majesty's Agent and Consul-General on . . . . Egypt and the Soudan, in 1902 (published April, 1903), 24, 25.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe does not itemize the land by temples (62a, 8), but as he does not include Khnum of Elephantine among the list of temple-slaves, he may be omitting the entire dodekaschoinos, which we know was the property of Khnum under Ramses III (§§ 146-50).

TEMPLE INCOMES FOR THIRTY-ONE YEARS

	THEBES	HELIOPOLIS	MEMPHIS	GENERAL (SMALL TEMPLES)	SUMMARY
Gold	569 d., <sup>a</sup> 6½ k. or 138.852 lb.	None	None	None	569 <sup>b</sup> d., 6½ k. or 138.852 lb.
Silver	10,964 d., 9 k. or 2,672.694 lb.	586 d., 3½ k. or 142.933 lb.	98 d., 3½ k. or 23.983 lb.	None	11,640 <sup>b</sup> d., 6½ k. or 2,839.61 lb.
Copper	26,320 d. or 5,279.04 lb.	1,260 d. or 252.72 lb.	None	None	27,580 d. or 5,531.76 lb.
Garments	3,722	1,019	133½	None	4,874½ <sup>c</sup>
Yarn	3,795 d. or 761.17 lb.	None	None	None	3,795 d. or 761.17 lb.
Incense, Honey, and Oil	1,047 various jars <sup>d</sup>	482 various jars	None	None	1,529 various jars
Shedet <sup>e</sup> and Wine	25,405 various jars <sup>d</sup>	2,385 various jars	390 various jars	None	28,180 <sup>f</sup> various jars
Silver received in Exchange for Objects of Impost Sold by the Temples	3,606 d., 1 k. or 878.987 lb.	456 d., 3½ k. or 111.235 lb.	141d., 3½ k. or 34.444 lb.	None	4203, d., 7½ k. g or 1,024.666 lb.

<sup>a</sup>d. stands for deben = about 1,404 grains (91 grammes); k. stands for kidet, which is ⅓ of a deben. Precious metals are in lbs. troy.

<sup>b</sup>These two numbers are totally wrong as given by the papyrus, see note 68b, 6.

<sup>c</sup>Papyrus has 4,575.

<sup>d</sup>Content unknown.

<sup>e</sup>Perhaps a wine of pomegranates, perhaps must.

<sup>f</sup>Papyrus has 28,080.

<sup>g</sup>Papyrus has 4,208 deben, 7½ kidet.

Q. C. P.

TEMPLE INCOMES FOR THIRTY-ONE YEARS—Continued

	THEBES	HELIOPOLIS	MEMPHIS	GENERAL (SMALL TEMPLES)	SUMMARY
Grain	399,950 <sup>a</sup> measures	77,100 <sup>a</sup> measures	37,400 <sup>a</sup> measures	73,250 <sup>a</sup> measures	497,700 <sup>b</sup> measures
Vegetables	24,650 bundles <sup>c</sup>	4,800 bundles <sup>c</sup>	600 bundles <sup>c</sup>	3,300 bundles <sup>c</sup>	33,350 <sup>d</sup> bundles
Flax	64,000 bales <sup>c</sup>	4,000 bales <sup>c</sup>	None	3,000 bales <sup>c</sup>	71,000 bales
Water-fowl	289,530	37,465	None	None	326,995 <sup>e</sup>
Cattle	866 head	98 head	15½ head	None	979½ <sup>f</sup>
Geese	744 head	540½ head	135 head	None	1,419½ <sup>g</sup>
Ships	82	8	None	None	90
Products of the Oasis	Numb'trs not given	Numb'trs not given	Numb'trs not given	None	Numb'trs not given
Products of God's-Land, Syria, and Ktish	Included above	Included above	Numb'trs not given	None	Numb'trs not given

<sup>a</sup>Sixteenfold heket.

<sup>b</sup>Papyrus has 460,900, having evidently omitted Memphis.

<sup>c</sup>Size unknown.

<sup>d</sup>Papyrus has 32,750.

<sup>e</sup>Papyrus has 100,000 more!

<sup>f</sup>Papyrus has 980.

<sup>g</sup>Papyrus has 1,920.

169. The above table shows the total income for thirty-one years, so that all numbers must be divided by thirty-one to obtain the annual income. Egypt's wealth has from the most ancient times consisted chiefly of grain and cattle, but especially the former. Yet of cattle the annual income of all temples was less than thirty-two head a year, and so great a temple as Memphis is charged with only half a beef each year. There is no gold in the income of either Heliopolis or Memphis, nor in that of the latter any incense, honey, oil, or flax. Other items are so small that it is impossible to believe that these lists contain the total income of any temple. The numbers would indicate that this entire list may be the income exclusively from Ramses III's new endowments.<sup>a</sup> Having already credited himself with giving the hereditary estate of each temple, when he comes to the income, he probably omits the annual receipts from the hereditary estate, which formed an old and standing income, and lists only the income from his own new endowments.

170. This income is annually as follows:

---

<sup>a</sup>Erman has also expressed his doubt as to the possibility that this list represents the entire income of the temple (op. cit., 471), but thinks them possibly "nur nebensächliche Steuern."

ANNUAL INCOME

	THEBES	HELIOPOLIS	MEMPHIS	GENERAL (SMALL TEMPLES)	SUMMARY
Gold	18 d., 3½ k. or 4.48 lb.	None	None	None	18 d., 3½ k. or 4.48 lb.
Silver	353 d., 7 k. or 86.214 lb.	18 d., 9½ k. or 4.612 lb.	3 d., 1½ k. or 0.775 lb.	None	375 d., 8 k. or 91.601 lb.
Copper	849 d. or 170.285 lb.	40 d., 6 k. or 8.143 lb.	None	None	889 d., 6 k. or 178.428 lb.
Garments	120	33	4	None	157
Yarn	122 d. or 24.47 lb.	None	None	None	122 d. or 24.47 lb.
Incense, Honey, and Oil	34 various jars	15 various jars	None	None	49 various jars
Shedeh and Wine	819 various jars	77 various jars	13 various jars	None	909 various jars
Silver received in Exchange for Objects of Impost Sold by the Temples	116 d., 3½ k. or 28.353 lb.	14 d., 7½ k. or 3.588 lb.	4 d., 5½ k. or 1.111 lb.	None	135 d., 6 k. or 33.052 lb.
Grain	9,998 measures	2,487 measures	1,207 measures	2,363 measures	16,055 measures
Vegetables	795 bundles	155 bundles	20 bundles	106 bundles	1,076 bundles
Flax	2,064 bales	129 bales	None	97 bales	2,290 bales
Water-fowl	9,340	1,208	None	None	10,548
Cattle	28	3	½	None	31½
Geese	24	17	4	None	45
Ships	About 8 every 3 years.	About 1 every 4 years.	None	None	3
Products of Oasis	No numbers	No numbers	No numbers	None	No numbers
Products of God's-Land, Syria, and Kush	Included above	Included above	No numbers	None	Uncertain

171. The political significance of these lists largely attaches to the question of Amon's share in them. The estate of the god embraced over 10 per cent. of the lands of Egypt,<sup>a</sup> and at most about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the population, or perhaps even a little less than 1 per cent. This meant a fortune in land of over five times that of Heliopolis, and over nine times that of Memphis, while in people the disproportion was still greater. That this disproportion was due solely to Ramses III is impossible. If we are correct in concluding that the above income was derived from Ramses III's new endowments, there is nothing in these figures which would indicate that Amon's vast wealth was due to Ramses III alone. Amon's annual income in gold, of which the other temples received none, is something less than 26,000 grains. Of other items Amon received roughly: 17 times as much silver; 21 times as much copper; 3 times as many garments; 2 times as much incense, honey, and oil; 9 times as much shedeh and wine;  $1\frac{2}{3}$  times as much grain; 10 times as much flax; 8 times as many waterfowl; 7 times as many cattle; about the same number of geese; 10 times as many ships; as all the other temples combined. This disproportion, if maintained through the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Dynasties, would account for the enormous wealth of Amon;<sup>b</sup> but that wealth was not the result of the donations of one reign.

172. At this point we must examine the list explicitly stated to contain Ramses III's gifts to the temples.

---

<sup>a</sup>See table, p. 98.

<sup>b</sup>It is to be supposed that the old fortune of Amon, if confiscated or depleted by Amenhotep IV, was restored by Harmhab.

RAMSES III'S GIFTS TO THE GODS DURING THIRTY-ONE YEARS

	THEBES	HELIOPOLIS	MEMPHIS	GENERAL (SMALL TEMPLES)	SUMMARY
Gold	183 d., 7 k. or 44,777 lb. <sup>a</sup>	1,479 d., 3½ k. or 360,583 lb.	265 d., 5½ k. or 64,728 lb.	1,719 d., 8½ k. or 419,207 lb.	3,648 d., 31½ k. or 889,295 lb.
Silver	827 d., 1¼ k. or 201,612 lb.	2,285 d., ½ k. or 549,668 lb.	516 d., 6 k. or 125,921 lb.	2,428 d., 5½ k. or 591,951 lb.	6,027 d., 21½ k. or 1,469,152 lb.
Lapis lazuli	14 d., ½ k. or 3,425 lb.	1 d., 1 k. or 0,268 lb.	3 d., 2 k. or 0,780 lb.	10 d., 6 k. or 2,583 lb.	28 d., 9½ k. or 7,056 lb.
Copper and Bronze	822 d. or 164,87 lb.	1,883 d., 7 k. or 377,816 lb.	2,018 d. or 494,753 lb.	14,130 d., 3 k. or 2,834,134 lb.	18,854 d. or 3,781,573 lb.
Myrrh	5,140 d. or 1,252,875 lb. 3 heket, 20 hin	1,787 d. or 435,581 lb. 2 heket	1,046 d. or 254,962 lb.		7,973 d. or 1,943,418 lb. 5 heket, 20 hin
Garments	9,116	18,793	7,026	2,947	37,882
Incense, Honey, Oil, and Fat	9,105 various jars	3,740 various jars	1,046 various jars	2,574 various jars	16,485 various jars
Shedeh and Wine	22,566 various jars	103,550 vari'us jars.	25,978 various jars	3,287 various jars	155,381 vari'us jars.
Grain	None	5 heket	40 heket	2,231 <sup>b</sup> measures	35,741 heket
Cattle	297	None	979	1,142	2,418
Geese	8,160	None	419	194	8,773
Water-fowl	126,300	None	576	2,973	128,949
Land	None	54½ stat and 2 gardens	None	1,361 stat and 4 gardens	1,415½ stat and 6 gardens

<sup>a</sup>All conversions are in lbs. troy except copper and bronze, which are avoirdupois.

<sup>b</sup>Sixteenfold heket.

173. This list shows immensely more gold, silver, copper, garments, cattle, grain, and land given to the other temples than to Amon, while it is only in a few less valuable commodities that Amon is in the lead. Even including Amon's income with the above gifts, Heliopolis was yearly receiving twice as much gold as Thebes from all sources. Amon's superiority is, however, in the aggregate decidedly maintained, as a combination of the income and the gifts shows. It is evident also that, while the gifts of land to other temples have been enumerated in this list, the lands given to Amon are not included here, but are counted in Amon's estate, as it was also clear from the names of the herds that the cattle given Amon were to some extent included in the estate. In using the list of gifts, therefore, it must not be forgotten that in the items of land and cattle it is incomplete, and that it is impossible to determine exactly the extent of Ramses III's gifts in these two forms of property. But, judging from those gifts of which we are able to determine the amount, the wealth of Amon in Ramses III's day, was not due to his donations, nor can we aver that the fortune of Amon of necessity constituted such a menace to the state as alone to threaten its overthrow—a conclusion now current, and everywhere accepted.

174. An important question suggested by these lists is the relation of income and expenditure. The following tables indicate the total income of three great temples in grain:

GRAIN FOR OLD FEASTS DURING THIRTY-ONE YEARS

Thebes	2,981,674	16-fold	heket
Heliopolis	1,097,624	“	“
Memphis	947,688	“	“
Small temples	Not given

The total annual income in grain was therefore as follows:

Thebes	{ For the old feasts	96,183	16-fold heket
	{ Income (from Ramses III)	9,998	“ “
	Total	106,181	“ “
Heliopolis	{ For the old feasts	35,407	“ “
	{ For the offerings to the Nile	3,598 <sup>a</sup>	“ “
	{ Income (from Ramses III)	2,487	“ “
	Total	41,492	“ “
Memphis	{ For the old feasts	30,570	“ “
	{ For the offerings to the Nile	1,211 <sup>b</sup>	“ “
	{ Income (from Ramses III)	1,207	“ “
	Total	32,988	“ “

175. From these figures it will be seen how far the income of Ramses III was from furnishing enough grain for the old feasts. They must have been drawn from the old income, which, in view of the vast extent of the temple lands, was greatly in excess of these amounts contributed to the offerings. Erman suggests that the surplus was used in building Ramses III's temples,<sup>c</sup> like that at Medinet Habu, Karnak, and other places. But the question arises whether it was not consumed in the maintenance of the other temples of the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Dynasties. We know that some of the Eighteenth Dynasty Theban temples, like that of Amenhotep III behind the Memnon colossi, had already perished at the vandal hands of the Nineteenth Dynasty kings. We can understand, too, how the mortuary temples, which were so largely the personal sanctuaries of earlier Pharaohs, might be desecrated. Yet, if their offerings were in some cases maintained, Ramses III would have been likely to include them in the totals given in the papyrus, without any remark as to their employment; for he does not itemize by temples the grain and other offerings given for the feasts.

<sup>a</sup>Only during the last seventeen years of the reign.

<sup>b</sup>Only during the last three years of the reign.

<sup>c</sup>Op. cit., 474.

176. This brings up the question: What Theban temples are known to the papyrus as sharing in Amon's income and Ramses III's bounty? They are referred to in three different places: the narrative of buildings and good works (§§ 189-214), the list of people (§§ 223, 224), and the income (§ 227); and they include six different temples:

No. 1. TEMPLES BUILT OR IMPROVED <sup>a</sup>	No. 2. PEOPLE ATTACHED TO	No. 3. INCOME
Medinet Habu temple.	Medinet Habu temple.	Medinet Habu temple.
Small Karnak temple.	Small Karnak temple.	Small Karnak temple.
Southern Karnak temple.	Luxor temple.	Luxor temple.
Great Karnak temple.	Southern Karnak temple.	Southern Karnak temple.
Khonsu-temple.		Khonsu-temple.

177. From this it is evident that the income and the people of the great Karnak temple must be included elsewhere. When we notice that the Medinet Habu temple is credited with 62,626 people (10, 3), or three-fourths of all the people belonging to Amon, it is evident where the people belonging to the Karnak temple are to be found. Again, when we see that the people attached to the Khonsu-temple are also included somewhere else, we are led to conclude that the fortunes of the different Amon-temples are not always kept apart by the papyrus; in other words, the fortunes of all might be comprehended under one head as the estate of Amon.

<sup>a</sup>The Luxor temple is omitted, and yet Ramses III built a chapel on the river side of this temple. The lower part of a sandstone stela (Recueil, 16, 55, 56), used in antiquity to prop a falling statue of Ramses II at Luxor, contains a record of building by Ramses III in the same temple: "Ramses III, doubling offerings in Luxor . . . . . maker of monuments, profitable to him that begat him . . . . . building a house in Luxor on the right of his august father, Amon-Re. . . . . It is like the horizon of heaven, made of fine sandstone; it shall endure as long as heaven endures, a place for the promenade of the lord of gods at his beautiful feast of Opet. . . . . He made (it) as [his] monument for his father, Amon-Re, presider over his Yp't; making for him a great and august chapel of the front, of marvelous great blocks." The omission of this building in the Theban section is another evidence of the hastiness with which the document was prepared, and the resulting incompleteness.

178. Indeed, this common estate is unequivocally mentioned, for we find the five herds belonging to the five temples of No. 3 spoken of as "the five herds made for this house" (12a, 3, 4). "This house," therefore, comprised the property of five different temples, and beyond doubt designates the estate of Amon, irrespective of the different temples among which it was divided. That other temples besides the five of No. 3 above may be included under one head is indicated by a record of restoration in the small Eighteenth Dynasty temple by Ramses III, which reads thus:<sup>a</sup>

179. He made it as a restoration of the monument of his father, "Amon-Re-of-Splendid-Seat,"<sup>b</sup> who rests in his temple in the precinct<sup>c</sup> of "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon-Possessed-of-Eternity-in-the-House-of-Amon"<sup>d</sup> on the west of Thebes, when his majesty found it beginning to fall to ruin.

180. This small Medinet Habu temple is nowhere mentioned in the inscriptions; yet it was clearly restored and maintained by Ramses III, and is here included in the precincts of Ramses III's great temple, which stood beside it. Its people were, of course, also included in the 62,626 people of the great temple. Clearly, Ramses III made

<sup>a</sup>Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 60; again, less accurately, Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 163. The inscription occurs twice with unimportant variants.

<sup>b</sup>This is the name of the Amon of the Eighteenth Dynasty temple of Medinet Habu. It literally reads: "Amon-Re-Splendid-of-Seat;" compare a similar Amon on a bronze axe in Alnwick Castle (Birch, Catalogue, Pl. B): "Amon-Splendid-of-Horizon," in the record of a foundation ceremony by Thutmose III.

<sup>c</sup>Mr.

<sup>d</sup>The name of Ramses III's Medinet Habu temple; see building inscriptions (§§ 1-20), where a shorter form is also in use.

his temple of Medinet Habu the administrative head of Amon's estate, and counted as belonging to it the property of the Karnak temple, that of the small Medinet Habu temple, and doubtless of others also, like that of Mut, who is mentioned in the headings, but whose fortune is nowhere listed. This fact once established for Thebes, the same may be true of Heliopolis and Memphis; and the vast income of these great sanctuaries, which we may compute from the temple lands, may have been distributed among far more temples than those mentioned in the papyrus. This distribution of income we cannot control (even if it were all counted in each case as income of the chief sanctuary alone), because the income lists evidently contain only a part of the income, as we have already shown; and the outgo covers only the maintenance of feasts, not the support of the great army of priests and officials.<sup>a</sup>

This discussion of the lists might be carried much farther, but doubtless the subject is above sufficiently introduced to make the importance and proper significance of the lists evident.

181. The historical section at the end furnishes a valuable supplement to the records of Ramses III's wars in his Medinet Habu temple. It is especially instructive, despite its obscurity, in its account of the anarchy preceding the rise of Ramses III's father. This paragraph, with its description of civil war and famine, reads like a chapter from the rule of the Mamlukes in Egypt. The section further furnishes accounts of an Edomite war, a new well in the Ayan desert, expeditions to Punt and the Sinaitic Peninsula,

---

<sup>a</sup>Certain things consumed by the priests are included in the great Medinet Habu Calendar, but only during feasts, like that of Opet, to the offerings of which is appended a list of the grain, beer, oil, etc., consumed by the priests during the twenty-four days of the feast. Such expenses may therefore be included in the lists of festal offerings in our papyrus, and evidently are so, e. g., in § 238, Pl. 17b.

besides new details regarding the wars already known to us from the Medinet Habu temple. It finally closes with a brief statement of Ramses III's philanthropic measures for his whole realm, followed by a prayer for the prosperity of his son, whom all are exhorted to obey.

I. INTRODUCTION

Pl. 1. Date and Introduction

182. <sup>1</sup>Year 32, third month of the third season (eleventh month), sixth day;<sup>a</sup> under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H.; Son of Re: Ramses (III), Ruler of Heliopolis, L. P. H., beloved of all gods and goddesses; <sup>2</sup>king, shining in the White Crown like Osiris; ruler, brightening the Nether World<sup>b</sup> like Atum; <sup>1</sup>ruler<sup>1</sup> of <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> of the great house in the midst of the cemetery, traversing eternity forever as king of the Nether World; King of Upper and Lower Egypt; Usermare-Meriamon; Son of Re: Ramses (III), Ruler of Heliopolis, L. P. H., the Great God.

Content and Purpose of the Document

183. <sup>3</sup>He tells, in praise, adoration, and laudation, the many benefactions and mighty deeds, which he did as king and as ruler on earth, for:

Gods of Thebes<sup>c</sup>

1. The house (pr) of his august father, Amon-Re, king of gods, <sup>4</sup>Mut, Khonsu, and all the gods of Thebes;

Gods of Heliopolis

2. The house (pr) of his august father, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis; Re-Harakhte; Saosis (Yws-<sup>c</sup>-st), mistress of Hotepet and all the gods of Heliopolis;

<sup>a</sup>All words in spaced type are in red in the original.

<sup>b</sup>Because he is dead, as this and the following phrases show.

<sup>c</sup>The following five paragraphs are the heads of the five great sections of the papyrus, II, III, IV, V (VI, a summary, is not noted), and VII.

Gods of Memphis

3. The house of his august father, <sup>5</sup>Ptah, the great, South-of-His-Wall, lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands;"<sup>a</sup> Sekhmet, the great, beloved of Ptah; Nefertem, defender of the Two Lands and all the gods of Memphis;

All Gods

4. The august fathers, all the gods and goddesses of South and North;

Men

5. As well as the good benefactions [which he did for] the people of the land of Egypt and every land, to unite them<sup>b</sup> all together; <sup>6</sup>in order to inform the fathers, all the gods and goddesses of South and North, and all [foreigners],<sup>c</sup> all citizens, all (common) folk, and all people, of the numerous benefactions and many mighty deeds, which he did upon earth as great ruler of Egypt.<sup>d</sup>

II. THEBAN SECTION

I. INTRODUCTORY VIGNETTE

Pl. 2. Vignette

184. Ramses III stands praying before Amon-Re, Mut, and Khonsu. The accompanying notes are:

Over Amon

Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of heaven, ruler of Thebes.

<sup>a</sup>Name of a sacred district in Memphis in which the chief Ptah-temple stood.

<sup>b</sup>Viz., his benefactions, etc., that is, to make a list of them, as contained in this document.

<sup>c</sup>This list is almost a repetition of that in 78, 13; hence it probably began, as that does, with foreigners. The whole list would then be: [k ʔ w y], p c' t, r h y' t, h n m m' t, and differs from 78, 13, only in the order of p c' t and r h y' t, which are there reversed. The exact meaning and relations of these different terms are unknown except of the first, and the above renderings are purely arbitrary. We only know that they are all commonly used, with no obvious distinctions in meaning, for the people of Egypt.

<sup>d</sup>This long sentence may be epitomized thus: In the year 32, etc., of Ramses III, deceased (ll. 1, 2), he tells the benefactions and mighty deeds which he did while king for the gods of Thebes, Heliopolis, Memphis, and of South and North, as well as for all men, in order to inform gods and men of these deeds (ll. 3-6). It will be seen that this introduction epitomizes the content of the entire papyrus.

Over Mut

Mut, the great, mistress of Ishru.

Over Khonsu

Khonsu in Thebes, beautiful rest.

Before the King

I tell the prayers, praises, adorations, laudations, mighty deeds and benefactions which I did for thee, in thy presence, O lord of gods.

2. PRAYER TO AMON,<sup>a</sup> AND RECITAL OF THE KING'S BENEFACIONS*Pl. 3. Introduction*

185. <sup>1</sup>Praises, prayers, brave deeds and benefactions which he did for the house (pr) of his august father, Amon-Re, king of gods; Mut, Khonsu, and all the gods of Thebes.

Prayer of Ramses III

186. <sup>2</sup>Said King Ramses III, L. P. H., the Great God, in praising this god, his august father, Amon-Re, king of gods, the primordial, who was at first, <sup>3</sup>the divine god, the self-begetter, who sustains the arm and exalts the etef-crown, maker of what is, creator of what exists, hiding himself from men and gods:

His Decease

187. Give to me thy ears, O lord of gods; <sup>4</sup>hear my prayers which I make to thee. Lo, I come to thee, to Thebes, thy mysterious city. Thou art divine among the gods who are in thy image. Thou hast gone to rest in "Lord-of-Life,"<sup>b</sup> thy glorious seat, <sup>5</sup>before the august front of thy court;<sup>c</sup> (so) I have mingled with the gods, the lords of the nether world, like my father, Osiris, lord of Tazoser. Let my soul (b<sup>2</sup>) be like the souls of the gods who rest at thy side <sup>6</sup>in the eternal <sup>a</sup>Although all three of the great gods of Thebes are mentioned in the introduction, the following prayer is really addressed to Amon only. In the other two sections (Heliopolis and Memphis) the same is true; that is, the prayer is actually addressed to the great god, although the other gods are mentioned in the beginning.

<sup>b</sup>Nb. <sup>c</sup>nḥ, a euphemism for the place of the dead, often applied to the west side at Thebes.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "forecourt," a metonymy for sanctuary, referring to Karnak, which faces west.

horizon. Give breath for my nostrils and water for my soul (b ʔ). Let me eat the oblations, the provisions of thy divine offerings. Make my majesty to be noble, abiding in thy presence ʔlike the great gods, the lords of the nether world. May I go in and go out in thy presence as they do. Command thou that my fame be like theirs against my enemies; establish my offerings presented to my ʔka, abiding daily unto eternity.

Retrospect

188. I was king upon earth, ruler of the living; thou settedst the crown upon my head, as thou didst; I was inducted in peace into the august palace; ʔI sat upon thy throne with joy of heart. Thou it was, who didst establish me upon the throne of my father, as thou didst for Horus on the throne of Osiris. I did not oppress, I did not deprive 1°another of his throne.<sup>a</sup> I did not transgress thy command, which was before me. Thou gavest peace and contentment of heart among my people (hnm̄m̄ t), and every land was in adoration before me. I know of the excellent things 11which thou didst as king, and I multiplied for thee many benefactions and mighty deeds.

Pl. 4. Medinet Habu Temple<sup>b</sup>

189. I made for thee an august house of millions of years, abiding upon the mountain of "Lord-of-Life,"<sup>c</sup> before thee, 1built of sandstone, gritstone, and black granite; the doors of electrum and copper in beaten work. Its towers were of stone, towering to heaven, 2adorned and carved with the graver's tool,<sup>d</sup> in the great name of thy majesty. I <sup>a</sup>I am not sure that this is correct. The difficulty is one of interpretation. He may merely mean: "I did not oppress, I did not plunder another in his place;" as the word "throne" may equally well mean "seat, place," as commonly. The above rendering, however, connects logically with the preceding. "Oppress" (ꜥꜣ-šꜣ-k) is Hebrew, פָּשַׁע.

<sup>b</sup>See Peuillet, Recueil, XVIII, 166 ff.; also Daressy, ibid., XX, 133 ff.

<sup>c</sup>A general name for the west, which was localized at Medinet Habu; it is opposite Karnak, Amon's great temple, hence "before thee." An inscription in the temple itself places it on the same mountain; Amon speaks of "the great house of Atum, established before me forever, upon the mountain of 'Lord-of-Life'" (Cham-pollion, Notices descriptives, I, 736). On the later name, see Maspero, Struggle of the Nations, 507, n. 3.

<sup>d</sup>See Brugsch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1876, 146-48; and for correct reading (bsn̄ t), Brugsch, Hieroglyphisch-demotisches Wörterbuch, Supplement, s. v.

built a wall around it, established with labor, having ramps and towers<sup>1a</sup> of sandstone. <sup>3</sup>I dug a lake before it, flooded with Nun,<sup>b</sup> planted with trees and vegetation like the Delta.<sup>c</sup>

Temple Endowment and Equipment

190. I filled its treasury<sup>d</sup> with the products of the lands of Egypt: <sup>4</sup>gold, silver, every costly stone by the hundred-thousand. Its granary was overflowing with barley and wheat; (its) lands, its herds, their multitudes were like the sand of the shore. I taxed for it the <sup>5</sup>Southland as well as the Northland. Nubia and Zahi [came]<sup>e</sup> to it, bearing their impost. It was filled with captives, which thou gavest to me among the Nine Bows, (and with) classes<sup>f</sup> which I trained by the tenthousand. <sup>6</sup>I fashioned thy great statue<sup>g</sup> resting in its midst; "Amon-Endowed-with-Eternity" was its august name; it was adorned with real costly stone like the horizon.<sup>h</sup> When it appeared, there was rejoicing to see it. <sup>7</sup>I made for it table-vessels, of fine gold; others of silver and copper, without number. I multiplied the divine offerings presented before thee, of bread, wine, beer, and fat geese; <sup>8</sup>numerous oxen, bullocks, calves, cows, white oryxes, and gazelles offered in his slaughter yard.

Accessory Monuments

191. I dragged great monuments like mountains of alabaster and hus stone,<sup>i</sup> <sup>9</sup>sculptured with labor, and resting on the right and the left of its portal,<sup>j</sup> carved with the great name of thy majesty forever;

<sup>a</sup>These words (כֹּרֶם -יָ and יָבֵן -רֶם) occur five times together in this papyrus, each time as the accessories of an inclosure wall. The first is the Hebrew עֲלִיָּה, and hence here an ascent or ramp; see Bondi, Lehnwörter, 36, 37. The second is perhaps a Hebrew סִנּוּר, as Bondi suggests (ibid., 88), and means inclosed towers or strong closures of the gates and windows.

<sup>b</sup>Celestial water; see II, 888, l. 20.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "Northland."

<sup>d</sup>See inscriptions in this treasury, which is still in a perfect state of preservation (§§ 25-34).

<sup>e</sup>The verb has clearly been omitted by error of the scribe.

<sup>f</sup>See 76, 5, 6, § 402.

<sup>g</sup>This is the cultus statue; as it was light enough to be carried in procession, the adjective "great" is only conventional.

<sup>h</sup>Or the horizon-god.

<sup>i</sup>Hws, an uncertain stone.

<sup>j</sup>These are the colossi which were placed on each side of a temple entrance. They have now disappeared at Medinet Habu.

other statues of granite and gritstone; <sup>10</sup>scarabs<sup>a</sup> of black granite, resting in its midst. I fashioned Ptah-Sokar,<sup>b</sup> Nefertem and all the gods of heaven and earth, resting in its chapel, wrought with fine gold, <sup>11</sup>and silver in beaten work, with inlay of real costly stones, beautified with labor.

Pavilion and Connected Buildings<sup>c</sup>

192. I made for thee an august palace of the king in its midst, like the great house of Atum which is in heaven. The columns, <sup>12</sup>door-posts, and doors were of electrum; the great balcony for the (royal) appearances was of fine gold.

Pl. 5. Temple Ships

193. I made for it<sup>d</sup> ships laden with barley and wheat for transport to <sup>13</sup>its granary without cessation. I made for it great treasure-ships upon the river, laden with a multitude of things for its august treasury.

Temple Lands

194. <sup>14</sup>It was surrounded with gardens and arbor-areas,<sup>e</sup> filled with fruit and flowers for the two serpent-goddesses. I built their <sup>15</sup>châteaux<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Like the colossal scarab in black stone, discovered in Constantinople and now in the British Museum.

<sup>b</sup>This statue doubtless stood in the first court by the first pylon, where there is a votive text to "Ptah, residing in 'The-House-Usermare-Meriamon-Possessed-of-Eternity-in-the-House-of-Amon' on the west of Thebes" (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 173).

<sup>c</sup>This is the palace connected with the Medinet Habu temple, of which the so-called "pavilion" formed the monumental entrance. The "pavilion" being of stone, has survived, but the bulk of the building, being of sun-dried brick, has perished. It ran at least as far back on the south side of the temple as the middle of the first court, with which its balcony was connected by a stairway still partially surviving. See Daressy (Recueil, XX, 81-83), who separates the pavilion from the building at its rear, to which the stairway belongs; but it is evident that the pavilion, the temple, and connected buildings formed one whole, designated by the same name; for the pavilion and the temple bear the same name (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 167): "The (h-t)-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon." having <sup>3</sup>windows<sup>3</sup>; I dug a lake before them, supplied with lotus flowers.

<sup>d</sup>This "it" (feminine in Egyptian) refers to the temple (fem.), and not to the palace (masc.).

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "places of chambers of trees;" cf. § 264.

<sup>f</sup>See III, 588, l. 49.

Small Karnak Temple

195. <sup>4</sup>I made for thee a mysterious horizon in thy city of Thebes over against thy forecourt,<sup>a</sup> O lord of gods, (named): "House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," abiding like the heavens bearing the sun. <sup>5</sup>I built it, I laid it in sandstone, having great doors of fine gold. I filled its treasury with the things which my hands carried off, to bring them <sup>6</sup>before thee every day.

Southern Karnak Temple

196. I adorned<sup>b</sup> for thee Southern Opet<sup>c</sup> with great monuments; I built for thee a house therein like the throne of the All-Lord (named): "Temple-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-<sup>7</sup>Possessed-of-Joy-in-Karnak."

---

<sup>a</sup>Used here by metonymy as often for sanctuary as a whole. This small temple is in front of the great Amon-temple of Karnak, and the later Bubastite extension inclosed it partially within the said temple. It is identified by Ramses III with the great Karnak temple, and bore the same name given above, as is shown by the following inscriptions in the first court of the small Karnak temple (Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 12-14; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 57, 1; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 207, c): "(Ramses III). He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods; making for him the 'House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis-in-the-House-of-Amon,' anew of fine white sandstone, established as an eternal work, 'wherein' [Amon] appears, to give a multitude — [to] King Ramses III." On the other side of the court it reads: "Ramses III, maker of the monument, establishing (it) for him that formed him, in the great and splendid seat, on the divine ground before Karnak, illuminating Thebes wherein Amon rests, his heart glad, and his great divine ennead follows him, rejoicing to see the beautiful pure monument of King Ramses III, beloved of Khonsu-Neferhotep." The great Karnak temple bore the same name as this small temple, as is seen by comparing 5, 7 and 6, 3 with above inscriptions in the small temple. The latter was already finished in his sixteenth year, as new offerings are recorded on the wall as founded in Pauni of that year (Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, I, Pl. 40; Champollion, Monuments descriptives, II, 15, 16).

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "made festive."

<sup>c</sup>Southern Opet is usually the name for Luxor, but the temple was counted as in Karnak (Yp't-ys'wt), as its name shows. It stood, however, on the south of the great temple, by the temple of Mut, and hence could be spoken of as in Southern Opet.

Works in Great Karnak Temple<sup>a</sup>

197. I again established thy monuments in "Victorious Thebes,"<sup>b</sup> the place of thy heart's rest, beside thy face (named): "House (pr)-of-Usermare-Meriamon-in-the-House-of-Amon,"<sup>8</sup> like the shrine of the All-Lord; built of stone, like a marvel established as an eternal work; the doorways upon them were of granite, doors and <sup>9</sup>doorposts of gold. I supplied it with classes which I trained, bearing offerings by the hundred-thousand.

Monolithic Shrine

198. <sup>10</sup>I made for thee a mysterious shrine in one block of fine granite;<sup>c</sup> the doors upon it were of copper in hammered work, engraved with thy divine name. <sup>11</sup>Thy great image rested in it, like Re in his horizon, established upon his throne unto eternity in thy great and august court.

Cultus Utensils

199. <sup>12</sup>I made for thee a great sacrificial tablet of silver in hammered work, mounted with fine gold, the inlay-figures being of Ketem<sup>d</sup>-gold, bearing statues of the king, L. P. H., of gold in hammered work, an offering-tablet bearing thy divine offerings, offered before thee.

Pl. 6

<sup>1</sup>I made for thee a great vase-stand,<sup>e</sup> for thy forecourt, mounted with fine gold, with inlay of stone; its vases were of gold, containing wine and beer, in order to present them before thee every morning.

<sup>a</sup>This temple is not said to have been built by him, but "beautified" (smnh, or "established"), which indicates embellishment. As to the name of the great Karnak temple under Ramses III, it must have contained his name, as above. The word "built" (in l. 8) is not finite, but a participle referring to the temple or the embellishments added. The work is also referred to (l. 8) as "them," showing clearly that accessory monuments of some sort are meant. Moreover, the following works are for the Karnak temple, as is shown by 6, 3. Ramses III, however, did some building, though not extensively, in the great Karnak temple.

<sup>b</sup>A name for the east side, or a part of the east side of Thebes, probably Karnak (see II, 329).

<sup>c</sup>Cf. Inscription of Ineni, l. 1 (II, 45; Recueil, XII, 106).

<sup>d</sup>The Hebrew 𐤀𐤍𐤏, "gold;" see Dümichen, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1872, 44 f.

<sup>e</sup>The gift of a similar stand is recorded in the Khonsu-temple, thus: "I made a great vase-stand of gold for thy oblations" (from a photograph by Borchardt).

Feast of the Appearance

200. <sup>2</sup>I made for thee a storehouse for the "Feast of the Appearance,"<sup>a</sup> with male and female slaves. I supplied them with bread, beer, oxen, fowl, wine, incense, fruit, vegetables, flowers, pure offerings before thee every day, being an increase of the daily offering which was before.

Ornaments of Cultus Statue, Etc.

201. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee a splendid amulet<sup>b</sup> of gold, with inlay; great collars and tassels of Ketem-gold complete, to bind them to thy body, every time thou appearest in thy great and splendid seat in Karnak. <sup>4</sup>I made for thee a statue of the king, of gold, in hammered work, resting in the place which he knows,<sup>c</sup> in thy august shrine.

Record Tablets

202. <sup>5</sup>I made for thee great tablets of gold, in beaten work, engraved with the great name of thy majesty, bearing my prayers. <sup>6</sup>I made for thee other tablets of silver, in beaten work, engraved with the great name of thy majesty, with the decrees of the house. <sup>7</sup>I made for thee great tablets<sup>d</sup> of silver, in beaten work, engraved with the great name of thy majesty, carved with the graver's tool, bearing the decrees and the inventories of the houses and temples which I made in Egypt, <sup>8</sup>during my reign on earth; in order to administer them in thy name forever and ever. Thou art their protector, answering for them.<sup>e</sup> <sup>9</sup>I made for thee other tablets of copper in beaten work, of a mixture of six

<sup>a</sup>A feast at which the god appeared and was carried in procession, as its name implies (wn-hr = lit., "opening or showing the face").

<sup>b</sup>In the form of the sacred eye (wꜥ).

<sup>c</sup>Only the king and the High Priest were admitted to the holy of holies, and "knew" it. Such statues of the king may be seen standing beside the cultus image of the god at Medinet Habu (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 212, a).

<sup>d</sup>This word (ꜥnw) is different from the one (ꜥwt) used in the two preceding cases, and was larger. It was upon an ꜥnw that Ramses II's treaty of peace with the Hittites was engraved. The golden tablets are not mentioned in the lists later on, but the silver tablets are mentioned (13b, 13, 14), and their weights given, showing that an ꜥwt weighed about 19½ deben, while an ꜥnw was over 143½ deben.

<sup>e</sup>The Karnak temple was thus the place of deposit for temple archives of all Egypt, and the sanctuary of Amon the ecclesiastical capital.

(parts),<sup>a</sup> of the color of gold, engraved and carved with the graver's tool with the great name of thy majesty, with the house-regulations of the temples; likewise <sup>10</sup>the many praises and adorations which I made for thy name. Thy heart was glad at hearing them, O lord of gods.

Cultus Sieve

203. <sup>11</sup>I made for thee a great vase of pure silver, its rim of gold, engraved with thy name. A sieve was upon it of beaten work, of pure silver, a great sifting-vessel of silver, having a sieve and feet.<sup>b</sup>

Golden Statues

204. <sup>12</sup>I wrought upon the portable images of Mut and Khonsu, fashioned and made anew in the gold-houses, made of fine gold in thick overlay, with inlay of every costly stone which Ptah made, having collars before and behind, <sup>13</sup>and tassels of Ketem-gold. They rest with heart satisfied at the mighty deeds which I did for them.

Pl. 7. Stele

205. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee great stelæ for thy portal, overlaid with fine gold, with inlay-figures of Ketem-gold; large bases were under them, overlaid with silver, bearing inlay-figures in gold, to the pavement line.

Grain

206. <sup>2</sup>I gave to thee ten ten-thousands of measures of grain, to provision thy divine offerings of every day, to convey<sup>c</sup> them to Thebes every year, in order to multiply thy granaries<sup>d</sup> with barley and wheat.

Foreign Revenues

207. <sup>3</sup>I brought to thee the captives of the Nine Bows, the gifts<sup>e</sup> of the lands and countries for thy court. I made the road to Thebes like a 'foot' to lead<sup>f</sup> before thee, bearing much provision.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "a mixture of a hexad," evidently referring to the proportions of the alloy; but the term is not clear. The weight of these tablets is given in the lists (14a, 3) as 205½ deben; there were four of them, weighing together 822 deben.

<sup>b</sup>The weight of these sieve-vases, etc., is given in 13b, 6-8 (§ 231).

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "row them."

<sup>d</sup>On the granaries of Amon, see § 9.

<sup>e</sup>B 3-7 k 3 = a Semitic כָּרַךְ, with the connected idea of kneeling in homage (Bondi, Lehnwörter, 41, 42).

<sup>f</sup>"Lead" lacks an object, and the whole passage is obscure.

Periodic Offerings

208. <sup>4</sup>I founded for thee oblations at the feasts of the beginnings of the seasons, to make offering before thee at thy every appearance. They were supplied with bread, beer, oxen, fowl, wine, incense, and fruit without number. They were levied anew upon the princes and inspectors as an increase of all the benefactions which I did for thy ka.

Sacred Barge

209. <sup>5</sup>I hewed for thee thy august ship "Userhet" of 130<sup>a</sup> cubits (length) upon the river, of great cedars of the (royal) domain, of remarkable size, overlaid with fine gold to the water line, like the barge of the Sun, when he comes from the east, and everyone lives at <sup>6</sup>the sight of him. A great shrine was in the midst of it, of fine gold, with inlay of every costly stone like a palace; rams' heads<sup>b</sup> of gold from front to rear, <sup>1</sup>fitted with uraeus-serpents wearing etef-crowns.

Products of Punt

210. <sup>7</sup>I led to thee Punt with myrrh, in order to encircle thy house every morning, I planted incense sycamores in thy court; they had not seen (it) before since the time of the god.

Mediterranean Fleet

211. <sup>8</sup>I made for thee transports, galleys, and barges, with archers equipped with their arms, upon the sea. I gave to them captains of archers and captains of galleys, manned with numerous crews, without number, in order to transport the products of the land of Zahi (D<sup>3</sup>-h) and the countries of the ends of the earth to thy great treasures in "Victorious Thebes."<sup>c</sup>

Cattle and Fowl

212. <sup>9</sup>I made for thee herds in the South and North containing large cattle, fowl,<sup>d</sup> and small cattle by the hundred-thousand, having <sup>a</sup>Nearly 224 feet. See II, 32, and p. 222, n. c.

<sup>b</sup>There is usually a ram's head at bow and stern of these barges, but here they were evidently also on the cabin shrine.

<sup>c</sup>See 5, 7, note.

<sup>d</sup>The word for "herd" (mmn) is more inclusive in Egyptian than English, and includes also fowl.

overseers of cattle, scribes, overseers of the horns,<sup>a</sup> inspectors, and numerous shepherds in charge<sup>b</sup> of them; having cattle-fodder; in order to offer them to thy ka at all thy feasts, that thy heart may be satisfied with them, O ruler of gods.

Vineyards, Trees, Etc.

213. <sup>10</sup>I made for thee wine-gardens in the Southern Oasis, and the Northern Oasis likewise without number; others in the South with numerous lists; they were multiplied in the Northland by the hundred-thousand. I manned them with gardeners from the captives of the countries; having lakes <sup>1</sup>of my digging<sup>1</sup>, <sup>11</sup>supplied with lotus flowers, and with shedeh (šdḥ)<sup>c</sup> and wine like drawing water,<sup>d</sup> in order to present them before thee in "Victorious Thebes." <sup>12</sup>I planted thy city, Thebes, with trees, vegetations, isi-plants, and menhet flowers for thy nostrils.

Khonsu-Temple

214. <sup>13</sup>I built a house<sup>e</sup> for thy son, Khonsu in Thebes, of good sandstone, red gritstone, and black stone (granite). I overlaid its doorposts and doors with gold, (with) inlay-figures of electrum, like the horizon of heaven. <sup>1</sup>I worked upon thy<sup>f</sup> statues in the gold-houses, with every splendid costly stone which my hands brought.

Pl. 8

Sanctuary in Residence City

215. <sup>2</sup>I made for thee an august quarter in the city of the Northland, established as thy property forever; "House (pr)-of-Ramses-

<sup>a</sup>See Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1885, 60, 61.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "behind them."

<sup>c</sup>An intoxicating drink of uncertain character. See p. 101, n. e.

<sup>d</sup>See II, 461, l. 5. Same figure again in 8, 6.

<sup>e</sup>This is Ramses III's well-known temple of Khonsu at Karnak. It was not completed by him, but was continued by his successors until the accession of the high priests of Amon. The dedication in the hypostyle reads: "He made (it) as his monument for Khonsu in Nejerhoteḥ (Thebes), making for him (the hall called): 'Exaltation-of-Brightness' for the first time of fine white sandstone, making high his great seat, with electrum, adorned with every splendid costly stone" (Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1310). But Brugsch does not give the name of the king, and the dedication may belong to Ramses IV, who also built in this hall.

<sup>f</sup>Doubtless referring to Khonsu, as the papyrus marks a paragraph at the end of l. 1, as we have indicated.

Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Great-in-Victory," it is called,<sup>a</sup> forever. <sup>3</sup>I conveyed to it Egypt with its<sup>b</sup> tribute; the people of every land were gathered in its midst. It was furnished with large gardens and places for walking about, with all sorts of date groves, bearing <sup>4</sup>their fruits, and a sacred<sup>c</sup> avenue, brightened with the flowers of every land,<sup>d</sup> isiplants, papyrus, and dedmet flowers, like sand.

Its Vineyard and Olive Garden

216. <sup>5</sup>I made for it Kanekeme,<sup>e</sup> inundated like the Two Lands, in the great olive-lands; bearing vines; surrounded by a wall around them by the iter;<sup>f</sup> planted with great trees <sup>6</sup>in all their many paths, wherein was oil more than the sand of the shore; in order to bring them to thy ka, to "Victorious Thebes;" wine like drawing water<sup>g</sup> without measure, <sup>7</sup>to present them before thee as a daily offering. <sup>8</sup>I built for thee thy temple in the midst of its ground,<sup>h</sup> established with labor, excellent in stone of Ayan (<sup>c</sup> yn). Its door and its doorposts were of gold, mounted with copper; the inlay-figures were of every costly stone, like the double doors of heaven.

Cultus Image<sup>i</sup>

217. <sup>9</sup>I fashioned thy august image, wherewith the "Appearance" is made,<sup>j</sup> like Re when he brightens the earth with his beams; "Amon-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis" was its great and august name. I filled its house with male and female slaves, whom I carried off from the lands of the Bedwin (Sty'w). <sup>10</sup>The lay priests of the temple were <sup>11</sup>— —<sup>k</sup> children of great men, whom I trained. Its treasury was overflowing with products of every land; its granaries approached

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "is said to it for a name."

<sup>b</sup>Text has "their," referring to Egypt as plural.

<sup>c</sup>The avenue leading up to the temple door.

<sup>d</sup>Compare the flowers of Syria, brought to Egypt by Thutmose III (II, 451).

<sup>e</sup>Name of an important vineyard of Amon in the Delta; it existed in the days of Ramses II, from whose cellars at the Ramesseum many sherds from broken wine-jars have been found, bearing the name of this vineyard (Wiedemann, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 33 ff.; Spiegelberg, Ostraca, Pls. XIX-XXXIV).

<sup>f</sup>See II, 965, note.

<sup>g</sup>See 7, 11.

<sup>h</sup>The ground of Kanekeme.

<sup>i</sup>This must have been the cultus image in the Tanis temple, the equipment of which he has above enumerated.

<sup>j</sup>With which the god appears in processions and feasts.

<sup>k</sup>T <sup>o</sup> -tkmw (or possibly mt <sup>o</sup> -tkmw) occurs also in the inscription, year 8 (§ 65, l. 21), where it applies to charioteers.

heaven, its herds <sup>11</sup>were multiplied more than the sand;<sup>a</sup> cattle yards, offered to his ka, (as) divine offerings daily, full and pure before him; fattening-houses containing fat geese; poultry yards containing wild fowl; <sup>12</sup>gardens with wine, provided with their fruit, vegetables and all kinds of flowers.

Temple in Nubia

218. <sup>13</sup>I made for thee an august house in Nubia (T <sup>2</sup> -pd <sup>1</sup> t), engraved with thy august name, the likeness of the heavens (named): "House-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Great-in-Victory," abiding, bearing thy name forever.

Pl. 9. Temple in Zahi

219. <sup>1</sup>I built for thee a mysterious house in the land of Zahi (D <sup>2</sup> -h <sup>2</sup>), like the horizon of heaven which is in the sky, (named): "The-House-(h <sup>1</sup> t)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-Pekanan,"<sup>b</sup> <sup>2</sup>as the property of thy name. I fashioned thy great statue resting in the midst of it (named): "Amon-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H." The Asiatics of Retenu (Rmw) came to it, <sup>3</sup>bearing their tribute before it, for it was divine.

Miscellaneous

220. I brought the earth, united for thee, bearing their imposts, to convey them to Thebes, thy mysterious city. <sup>4</sup>I made for thee statues in the districts of Egypt; they were for thee (<sup>1</sup>and<sup>1</sup>) the gods who preserve this land. I built for them temples, gardens containing their groves, <sup>5</sup>lands, small cattle, large cattle, many slaves; they are thine forever, thine eye is upon them, thou art their protector unto eternity. <sup>6</sup>I wrought upon thy great and grand statues which are in their districts in the lands of Egypt. I restored their temples <sup>7</sup>which were in ruin. I multiplied the divine offerings presented to their ka's as an increase of the daily offerings which were formerly.

Lists

221. <sup>8</sup>See, I have listed<sup>c</sup> all that I did before thee, O my august, divine father, lord of gods, that men and gods may know of my benefactions, <sup>9</sup>which I did for thee in might, while I was upon earth.

<sup>a</sup>From here to the end of the section the enumeration is simply a list without syntactical connection with the preceding.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "the Canaan."

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "collected;" the noun is the common word for list, as on the next plate (10, 1).

3. AMON'S ESTATE

Pl. 10

222. <sup>1</sup>List of things, cattle, gardens, lands, galleys, workshops, and towns, which Pharaoh, L. P. H., gave to the house (pr) of his august father, <sup>2</sup>Amon-Re, king of gods, Mut, Khonsu, and all the gods of Thebes, as property forever and ever:<sup>a</sup>

People Attached to Temples, Etc.Medinet Habu Temple

223. <sup>3</sup>"The-House (h't)-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon,"<sup>b</sup> in the South and North, under charge of the officials (sr) of the temples of this house (pr), equipped with all its things: heads 62,626

Small Karnak Temple

<sup>4</sup>"House (pr)-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," in the South and North, under charge of the officials, equipped with all its things: heads 970

Luxor Temple

<sup>5</sup>"House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," in the South and North, under charge of the officials, equipped with all its things: heads 2,623

Southern Karnak Temple

<sup>6</sup>"The House (h't)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Possessed-of-Joy-in-the-House-of-Amon," under charge of the High Priest; equipped with all its things: heads 49

<sup>a</sup>The list now follows, and the first series of items is a statement of the numbers of people ("heads") attached to the various temples, to herds, etc. This list of people runs to 11, 4.

<sup>b</sup>This name of the Medinet Habu temple is often found in the temple itself. Its full form there is: "House-of-Usermare-Meriamon-Possessed-of-Eternity-in-the-House-of-Amon-on-the-West-of-Thebes" (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 173); but "on-the-West-of-Thebes" is sometimes omitted (ibid., 179 and 185), as well as "Possessed-of-Eternity" (ibid., 182, 183, 184, 185).

Five Herds of the Theban Temples

224. <sup>7</sup>Herd<sup>a</sup> of "Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," which is (called): "Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-Captor-of-Rebels-is-a-Great-Nile:"<sup>b</sup> heads<sup>c</sup> 113
- <sup>8</sup>Herd (called): "Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-is-the-Conqueror-of-the-Meshwesh-at-the-Water-of-Re,"<sup>d</sup> under charge of the steward Pay (Py y); Meshwesh: heads 971
- <sup>9</sup>Herd (called): "Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon-is-a-Great-Nile:" heads 1,867
- <sup>10</sup>Herd (called): "Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon,<sup>e</sup> [—————]," under charge of the Vizier of the South: heads 34
- <sup>11</sup>Herd of "Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," under charge of the cattle-overseer Key (K y): heads 279

Royal Residence

225. <sup>12</sup>"House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Great-in-Victory," the city which the Pharaoh, L. P. H., made for thee in the North, in the ownership of

<sup>a</sup>The following five herds, as the names show, belonged one to each of the preceding four temples, and the Khonsu-temple, as is shown by 12a, 1-4, where they follow these five temples in a group.

<sup>b</sup>This herd still existed under Ramses IV; see Hammamat Inscription, l. 14 (§ 466).

<sup>c</sup>These are not "heads" of cattle, but the people in charge of the herd.

<sup>d</sup>This canal on which Ramses III defeated the Meshwesh in the year 11, can only have been in the western Delta. That it was so located is shown by its occurrence in a list of Delta localities just after Busiris, "the western river, the great river (Canopic branch), the 'Water of Re'" (Golénischeff Papyrus, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 40, 105). It is called the "western canal" in § 340 (see also § 370). It was the canal passing out of the Fayûm northward as the continuation of the Bahr Yusuf. It is mentioned in Saitic times on a stela in Berlin (No. 15393), recording the gift of a building by Apries (seventeenth year), located "on the west of the canal named 'North,' which is between the highlands and Memphis." In Ptolemaic times it connected Heracleopolis with Alexandria (see § 831, note).

<sup>e</sup>The rest of the name is uncertain; possibly: "Made: (=called)-the-People-Are-a-Great-Nile(?)."

the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, saying: "As thou art mighty, thou shalt cause it to abide forever and ever:"	heads	7,872
--	-------	-------

Khonsu-Temple

<sup>13</sup> House ( pr )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Khonsu:	heads	294
--	-------	-----

Ramses III's Gifts of People

<sup>14</sup> People whom he gave to the house of "Khonsu in Thebes, Beautiful Rest," Horus, lord of joy:	persons <sup>a</sup>	247
---	----------------------	-----

<sup>15</sup> Syrians, and Negroes of the captivity of his majesty, L. P. H., whom he gave to the house ( pr ) of Amon-Re, king of gods, the house ( pr ) of Mut, and the house ( pr ) of Khonsu:	persons <sup>a</sup>	2,607
--	----------------------	-------

<sup>16</sup> Bows <sup>b</sup> of "Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-Establisher-of-His-House-in-the-House-of-Amon;" whom he gave to this house:	heads	770
--	-------	-----

Pl. II. Private Statues in Great Karnak Temple

<sup>1</sup> The processional images, statues, and figures, to which the officials, standard-bearers, inspectors, and people of the land pay impost, <sup>2</sup> which the Pharaoh, L. P. H., gave; in the ownership of the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, to protect them and answer for them forever and ever;	heads	5,164
<sup>3</sup> 2,756 gods, <sup>c</sup> making:	heads	86,486
<sup>4</sup> Total	heads	86,486

Miscellaneous Property

226. <sup>5</sup> Large and small cattle, various	421,362
<sup>6</sup> Gardens and groves	433

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "times" (sp).

<sup>b</sup>Meaning foreign archers settled in a temple district.

<sup>c</sup>It is difficult to determine the exact nature of these statues; they appear here in the god's estate; the materials of which they were made (?) appear independently following the king's gifts (21b, 11-16); and finally in the general summary (68a, 3-68b, 3) they are again included in the sacred estates. Erman suggests votive statues of the god donated by the king's subjects.

<sup>7</sup> Lands, stat	864,168½
<sup>8</sup> Transports and galleys	83
<sup>9</sup> Workshops of cedar and acacia	46
<sup>10</sup> Towns of Egypt	56
<sup>11</sup> Towns of Syria ( H<sup>3</sup>-rw ) and Kush	9
Total	65

4. AMON'S INCOME

Pl. 12a

227. <sup>1</sup>Things exacted, the impost of all the people and serf-laborers of "The-House (h' t)-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon" (Medinet Habu temple), <sup>2</sup>in the South and North under charge of the officials; the "House (pr)-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon" (small Karnak temple), in the (residence) city; the "House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon" (Luxor temple); <sup>3</sup>the "House (h' t)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Possessed-of-Joy-in-the-House-of-Amon-of-Opet" (southern Karnak temple); the "House-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Khonsu" (Khonsu-temple); the five herds<sup>a</sup> <sup>4</sup>made for this house,<sup>b</sup> which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave to their treasuries, storehouses and granaries <sup>5</sup>as their yearly dues:

228. <sup>6</sup> Fine gold	217	deben,	5	kidet
<sup>7</sup> Gold of the mountain, of Coptos	61	"	3	"
<sup>8</sup> Gold of Kush	290	"	8½	"
<sup>9</sup> Total, fine gold, and gold of the mountain	569	"	6½	"
<sup>10</sup> Silver	10,964	"	9	"
<sup>11</sup> Total, gold and silver	11,546	"	8	"
<sup>12</sup> Copper	26,320	"

<sup>a</sup>These are the five herds enumerated in 10, ll. 7-11 (§ 224).

<sup>b</sup>"House" is here used, as frequently, in the sense of estate, and means the estate of Amon, divided among the five preceding temples, there being one herd for each of the five temples.

<sup>c</sup>Incorrect; correct total is 11,534 deben, 5½ kidet.

<sup>13</sup> Royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, colored southern linen, various garments	3,722
<sup>14</sup> Yarn, deben	3,795
<sup>15</sup> Incense, honey, oil, various jars (ꜥꜥ)	1,047

Pl. 12b

<sup>1</sup> Shedeh and wine, various jars (ꜥꜥꜥ)	25,405
<sup>2</sup> Silver, being things of the impost of the people ( rm t ) given for the divine offerings <sup>a</sup>	3,606 deben, 1 kidet
229. <sup>3</sup> Barley [—] of the impost of the peasants ( yhwtj ), 16-fold heket	309,950
<sup>4</sup> Vegetables, bundles	24,650
<sup>5</sup> Flax, bales	64,000
<sup>6</sup> Water-fowl from the impost of the fowlers and fishermen	289,530
<sup>7</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the bulls, heifers, calves, cows, cattle of [—], cattle of [—], of the herds of Egypt	847
<sup>8</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the nege-bulls, heifers, calves, cows, being impost of the lands of Syria ( Hꜥ-rw )	19
Total	866
<sup>9</sup> Live geese of the exactions	744
<sup>10</sup> Cedar: tow-boats and ferry-boats	11
<sup>11</sup> Acacia: tow-boats, [canal]-boats, boats for the transportation of cattle, warships, <sup>b</sup> and kara-boats:	71
<sup>12</sup> Total, cedar and acacia: boats	82
<sup>13</sup> Products of the Oasis <sup>c</sup> in many lists for the divine offerings.

5. THE KING'S GIFTS TO AMON

Pl. 13a

230. <sup>1</sup>Gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, every real costly stone, copper, garments of royal linen, mek-linen, <sup>2</sup>fine southern linen, southern linen, colored garments, jars, fowl, all the things which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave, <sup>3</sup>as gifts of the king, L. P. H., in order to provision the house of his august fathers (sic!), Amon-Re, king of gods, Mut, and Khonsu, from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years.

<sup>a</sup>Silver received from sale of articles delivered to the temples as taxes from the people.

<sup>b</sup>Tꜥ-rꜥ-ty; see Spiegelberg, Rechnungen, 35.

<sup>c</sup>The Northern Oasis (wt), see Karnak Inscription of Merneptah (III, 580, l. 20).

231. <sup>5</sup> Fine Ketem-gold; 42 [—] ( dmḏt ), making	21	deben
<sup>6</sup> Fine gold in [raised work] <sup>1</sup> ; <sup>a</sup> 22 finger rings, making	3	“	3 kidet
<sup>7</sup> Fine gold in inlay; 9 finger rings, making	1	“	3½ “
<sup>8</sup> Fine gold in [raised work] <sup>1</sup> , <sup>a</sup> and in inlay of every real, costly stone; a [ring] <sup>1</sup> of the column of Amon, making	22	“	5 “
<sup>9</sup> Fine gold in hammered work; a tablet, making	9	“	5½ “
<sup>10</sup> Total, fine gold in ornaments	57	“	5 <sup>b</sup> “
<sup>11</sup> Gold of two times; in [raised work] <sup>1</sup> , and in inlay; 42 finger rings, making	4	“	5½ “
<sup>12</sup> Gold of two times; 2 vases	30	“	5 “
	—		—
<sup>13</sup> Total, gold of two times	35	“	½ “
<sup>14</sup> White gold: 310 finger rings, making	16	“	3½ “

Pl. 13b

<sup>1</sup> White gold: 264 beads, making	48	“	4 “
<sup>2</sup> White gold in beaten work: 108 finger rings for the god, making	19	“	8 “
<sup>3</sup> White gold: 155 amulet cords, making	6	“	2 “
	—		—
<sup>4</sup> Total, white gold	90	“	7½ “
<sup>5</sup> Total, fine gold, gold of two times and white gold	183	“	5 <sup>c</sup> “
<sup>6</sup> Silver: a vase <sup>d</sup> (with) the rim of gold, in [raised work] <sup>1</sup> , making	112	“	5 “
<sup>7</sup> Silver: a sieve for the vase, making	12	“	3 “
<sup>8</sup> Silver: a sifting-vessel for the vase, making	27	“	7 “
<sup>9</sup> Silver: 4 vases, making	57	“	4½ “
<sup>10</sup> Silver: 31 large panniers with lids, making	105	“	4 “

<sup>a</sup>Š c ḥ c.

<sup>b</sup>There should be 7 kidet, an error of 2; but the correct total of 57 deben, 7 kidet was employed in obtaining the grand total (13b, l. 5).

<sup>c</sup>See preceding note.

<sup>d</sup>This and the following are the vases for the sieve, etc., mentioned in 6, 11.

<sup>11</sup> Silver: 31 caskets with lids, making	74 deben	4	kidet
<sup>12</sup> Silver: 6 measuring-vases ( <sup>c</sup> rḥ ), making	30	"	3 "
<sup>13</sup> Silver: in hammered work, a tablet ( <sup>c</sup> wl ), making	19	"	3½ "
<sup>14</sup> Silver: in hammered work, 2 tablets <sup>a</sup> ( <sup>c</sup> nw ), making	287	"	½ "
<sup>15</sup> Silver in scraps	100	"
<sup>16</sup> Total, silver in vessels and scraps	827 <sup>b</sup>	"	1½ "

Pl. 14a

<sup>1</sup> Total, gold and silver in vessels and scraps	1,010	"	6½ "
<sup>2</sup> Real lapis lazuli: 2 blocks, making	14	"	½ "
<sup>3</sup> Bronze, <sup>c</sup> in hammered work: 4 tablets ( <sup>c</sup> nw ), making	822	"
232. <sup>4</sup> Myrrh: deben			51,140
<sup>5</sup> Myrrh: heket			3
<sup>6</sup> Myrrh: hin			20
<sup>7</sup> Myrrh wood: logs			15
<sup>8</sup> Myrrh fruit in measures ( yp' t )			100
<sup>9</sup> Royal linen: garments ( dw )			37
<sup>10</sup> " " upper garments ( dw )			94
<sup>11</sup> " " hamen-garments			55
<sup>12</sup> " " mantles			11
<sup>13</sup> " " wrappings of Horus			2
<sup>14</sup> " " — <sup>d</sup> garments			1
<sup>15</sup> " " garments ( ydg ?)			690
<sup>16</sup> " " tunics			489
<sup>17</sup> " " garments for the august "statue" of Amon			4

Pl. 14b

<sup>1</sup> Total, royal linen, various garments			1,383
<sup>2</sup> Mek-linen: a robe			1

<sup>a</sup>These are mentioned in 6, 7.

<sup>b</sup>The exact total is 826 deben, 4½ kidet.

<sup>c</sup>These tablets are mentioned in 6, 9, showing that the material was bronze, though the designation both here and there is hmt, the usual word for copper.

<sup>d</sup>Reading unknown.

<sup>3</sup> Mek-linen: a mantle	1
4 " " in a 'cover' <sup>a</sup> : a garment for the august 'statue' of Amon	1
<sup>5</sup> Total, mek-linen: various garments	3
<sup>6</sup> Fine southern linen: garments ( dw )	2
7 " " " — <sup>b</sup> garments	4
8 " " " upper garments ( dw )	5
9 " " " garments ( ydg <sup>2</sup> )	31
10 " " " tunics	29
11 " " " kilts	4
<sup>12</sup> Total, fine southern linen, various garments	75
<sup>13</sup> Colored linen: mantles	876
14 " " tunics	6,779
<sup>15</sup> Total, colored linen, various garments	7,125 <sup>c</sup>
<sup>16</sup> Total, royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen, various garments	8,586 <sup>c</sup>

Pl. 15a

233. <sup>1</sup> White incense: ( mn )-jars	2,159
<sup>2</sup> White incense: ( mn )-jars <sup>d</sup>	12
<sup>3</sup> Honey: ( mn )-jars	1,065
<sup>4</sup> Oil of Egypt: ( mn )-jars	2,743
<sup>5</sup> Oil of Syria ( H <sup>2</sup> - rw ): ( m-s <sup>2</sup> - hy )-jars	53
<sup>6</sup> Oil of Syria ( H <sup>2</sup> - rw ): ( mn )-jars	1,757
<sup>7</sup> White fat: ( mn )-jars	911
<sup>8</sup> Goose fat: ( mn )-jars	385
<sup>9</sup> Butter: ( mn )-jars	20
<sup>10</sup> Total, filled jars (° ° °)	9,125 <sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>K <sup>2</sup> -t <sup>2</sup> -ty = 𓆎𓆏𓆑 (Bondi, Lehnwörter, 82, and 51).

<sup>b</sup>Same as 14a, 14.

<sup>c</sup>530 short.

<sup>d</sup>An uncertain hieratic sign after mn indicates that it is different from that of l. 1.

<sup>e</sup>The correct total is 9,105.

<sup>11</sup> Shedeh: colored ( mn )-jars	1,377
<sup>12</sup> Shedeh: ( k <sup>2</sup> -bw )-jars	1,111
<sup>13</sup> Wine: ( mn )-jars	20,078
<sup>14</sup> Total, shedeh and wine: jars ( mn and k <sup>2</sup> bw )	22,556 <sup>a</sup>
<sup>15</sup> Hirset ( hrst ) stone: sacred eye amulets	185
<sup>16</sup> Lapis lazuli: sacred eye amulets	217

Pl. 15b

<sup>1</sup> Red jasper: scarabs	62
<sup>2</sup> Malachite: scarabs	224
<sup>3</sup> Bronze and Minu ( mynw ) stone: scarabs	224
<sup>4</sup> Lapis lazuli: scarabs	62
<sup>5</sup> Various costly stones: sacred eye amulets	165
<sup>6</sup> Various costly stones: seals as pendants	62
<sup>7</sup> Rock-crystal: seals	1,550
<sup>8</sup> “ “ beads	155,000
<sup>9</sup> “ “ cut: hin-jars	155
234. <sup>10</sup> Wrought wood: seals <sup>b</sup>	31
<sup>11</sup> Alabaster: a block	1
<sup>12</sup> Cedar: bp <sup>2</sup> -ny-ny	6
<sup>13</sup> Cedar: tp <sup>2</sup> t	1
<sup>14</sup> Neybu ( N <sup>2</sup> y-bw ) wood: 3 logs, making (deben)	610
<sup>15</sup> Cassia wood: 1 log, making (deben)	800
<sup>16</sup> Reeds: bundles	17

Pl. 16a

<sup>1</sup> Cinnamon: measures ( msty )	246
<sup>2</sup> Cinnamon: bundles	82
<sup>3</sup> Grapes: measures ( msty )	52
<sup>4</sup> Rosemary <sup>1</sup> ( nkp <sup>2</sup> ty ): measures ( msty )	125
<sup>5</sup> Yufiti ( Yw-jy-ty )-plant: measures ( msty )	101
<sup>6</sup> Dom-palm fruit <sup>1</sup> of Mehay ( M-h <sup>2</sup> -yw ): measures ( msty )	26
<sup>7</sup> Fruit: heket	46
<sup>8</sup> Grapes: crates	1,809
<sup>9</sup> Grapes: bunches	1,869

<sup>a</sup>The correct total is 22,566.<sup>b</sup>Thebes, Heliopolis and Memphis each received one a year of these objects.

<sup>10</sup> ['Pomegranates': crates	375
<sup>11</sup> B <sup>2</sup> - k <sup>3</sup> - y <sup>4</sup> -plant, in measures ( yp' t )	1,668
235. <sup>12</sup> Various cattle	297
<sup>13</sup> Live geese	2,940
<sup>14</sup> Live turpu ( Tw-r-pw )-geese	5,200
<sup>15</sup> Live water-fowl	126,300

Pl. 16b

<sup>1</sup> Fat geese from the 'flocks'	20
<sup>2</sup> Natron: bricks	44,000
<sup>3</sup> Salt: bricks	44,000
<sup>4</sup> Palm-fiber: ropes	180
<sup>5</sup> Palm-fiber: loads	50
<sup>6</sup> Palm-fiber: [—]	77
<sup>7</sup> Palm-fiber: cords	2
<sup>8</sup> Sebkhet ( sbh' t )-plants	60
<sup>9</sup> Flax ( ps' t ): bekhen ( bhn )	1,150
<sup>10</sup> Ideninu ( Ydnynyw )	60
<sup>11</sup> Hezet ( hq' t )-plant: measures ( msty )	50
<sup>12</sup> Pure [—], deben	750

6. GRAIN FOR THE OLD FEASTS

236. <sup>13</sup>Clean grain for the divine offerings of the feasts of heaven,<sup>a</sup> and the feasts of the first of the seasons, which King Usermare-Meriamon L. P. H., the Great God, founded for <sup>14</sup>his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, Mut, Khonsu, and all the gods of Thebes, as an increase of the divine offerings,<sup>b</sup> as an increase of the daily offerings,<sup>b</sup> in order to multiply that which was before, <sup>15</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years: 2,981,674<sup>c</sup> 16-fold heket.

<sup>a</sup>The offerings for these and the following feasts of 6 and 7 are recorded likewise in the Great Calendar of Medinet Habu (§§ 139-45), from which the scribe could copy them, though with some changes. Thus for twenty-one years the Coronation feast was only one day long, as shown in the calendar (made in year 12), but in year 22 it was made 20 days long. Similarly in year 12 the calendar gives the Feast of Opet as 24 days long, but our papyrus treats it as 27 days long for 31 years! The scribe evidently reckoned with these changes, for his numbers are even multiples of 31, as so commonly with the other temples.

<sup>b</sup>These words are incorrectly repeated in the text by a dittography.

<sup>c</sup>This amounts to 6,360,908 bushels, or 205,190 bushels annually.

7. OFFERINGS FOR NEW FEASTS FOUNDED BY RAMSES III

Pl. 17a

237. <sup>1</sup>Oblations of the festivals which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded for his father, <sup>2</sup>Amon-Re, king of gods, Mut, Khonsu, and all the gods of Thebes, during the 20 days of offering, of the festival (called): <sup>3</sup>"Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-Making-Festive-Thebes-for-Amon," from the first month of the third season, (ninth month), day 26,<sup>a</sup> to the second month of the third season (tenth month), day 15; <sup>4</sup>making 20 days; from the year 22 to the year 32,<sup>b</sup> making 11 years; together with the oblations of the <sup>5</sup>feast of Southern Opet (Luxor), from the second month of the first season (second month), day 19, to the third month of the first season (third month), day 15, making 27 days;<sup>c</sup> <sup>6</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years.

238. <sup>7</sup> Fine bread: large oblation-loaves	1,057
<sup>8</sup> Fine bread: large loaves ( syd )	1,277
<sup>9</sup> " " large loaves ( bh )	1,277
<sup>10</sup> " " loaves ( ddmt-hr-t )	440
<sup>11</sup> Bread: large oblation-loaves	43,620
<sup>12</sup> Papyrus [rind] of the house of incense <sup>d</sup>	685
<sup>13</sup> Beer of the beer-cellar: 4,401 (jars), making	— <sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This is the coronation day of Ramses III, the twenty-sixth of Pakhons, being so recorded in the festival calendar on the south wall of the Medinet Habu temple (Greene, Fouilles, Pl. IV, ll. 9 and 10, twice): "The first month of the third season, day 26, the day of the royal coronation (h<sup>c</sup> stny) of King Ramses III." (See also § 153.) This feast was at first only one day long, but in the year 22 it was made twenty days long.

<sup>b</sup>As this feast fell within the 40 days during which Ramses III survived in his thirty-second year, it was, therefore, celebrated in that year also; but none of the old feasts, as he did not survive to celebrate them in the thirty-second year.

<sup>c</sup>This feast was not 27 days long, throughout the reign, but only 24 at first (see Breasted, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 37, 126, where this passage in Harris was not yet noted). Under Thutmose III it lasted only 11 days (ibid.); it was an old feast, but because Ramses III lengthened it he includes it among feasts founded by himself. As he lengthened it from 24 to 27 days, it is not likely that the lengthening from 11 to 24 days was also due to him. If lengthened further in later times, it was prolonged at the end, for in the Twenty-first Dynasty it still began on the nineteenth. (Inscriptions historiques de Pinodjem, l. 13, below.)

<sup>d</sup>The numeral must refer to the separate pieces.

<sup>e</sup>The scribe has omitted the amount in hins.

<sup>14</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahuṣu <sup>a</sup> ( r ʔ - hw-sw )-cakes: measures <sup>b</sup> ( htp ) for show	165
<sup>15</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahuṣu-cakes: measures <sup>c</sup> ( htp ) of gold	485

Pl. 17b

<sup>1</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahuṣu-cakes: measures ( htp ) for eating <sup>c</sup>	11,120
<sup>2</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahuṣu-cakes: measures ( t ʔ γ ) for the mouth of the eater <sup>c</sup>	9,845
<sup>3</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahuṣu-cakes: vases ( g ʔ γ ) of the prince	3,720
<sup>4</sup> Fine bread of the divine offerings: vases ( dnj ʔ) of gold, equipped	375
<sup>5</sup> Fine bread of the divine offerings: loaves ( by ʔ t )	62,540
<sup>6</sup> “ “ “ “ “ loaves ( pr-sn )	106,992
<sup>7</sup> “ “ “ “ “ white loaves	13,020
<sup>8</sup> Fine bread: large loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k ) for eating <sup>d</sup>	6,200
<sup>9</sup> “ “ sweet loaves ( s <sup>c</sup> b ) <sup>e</sup>	24,800
<sup>10</sup> “ “ loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k ) of the fire	16,665
<sup>11</sup> “ “ large loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k )	992,750
<sup>12</sup> “ “ loaves ( pw ʔ - <sup>c</sup> k ) of grain	17,340
<sup>13</sup> “ “ white oblation-loaves	572,000
<sup>14</sup> “ “ pyramidal loaves	46,500
<sup>15</sup> “ “ kylllestis-loaves	441,800

Pl. 18a

<sup>1</sup> “ “ loaves ( wdmw-nt )	127,400
<sup>2</sup> Kunek ( kwnk )-bread: white loaves ( t ʔ)	116,400
<sup>3</sup> Fine bread: loaves ( p <sup>c</sup> t )	262,000
<sup>4</sup> Total of fine bread: various loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k )	2,844,357 <sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Connected by Bondi (Lehnwörter, 62 and 86), with ברחשה, “pan.”

<sup>b</sup>Or: “baskets” or “vessels.”

<sup>c</sup>These phrases evidently apply only to the loaves, in any case “for eating” occurs often with loaves alone; see 17b, l. 8, and the lists in Spiegelberg’s “Geschäftsjournal” (Recueil, 17, 143 f.).

<sup>d</sup>Probably these terms indicate that these things were eaten at the feast. Thus in l. 3, each vessel or vase of food was eaten by a noble; the more plentiful supplies that follow were then eaten by the people.

<sup>e</sup>See Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1886, 80 ff.

<sup>f</sup>The real total is 2,806,407, not counting 25,710 “measures,” etc. (17a, 14–17b, 4). Even including the fine bread of 17a, ll. 7–10, which make 4,051 loaves, the scribe is still nearly 34,000 in excess of the real sum. The difference must lie in the “measures,” etc. (17a, 14–17b, 4).

<sup>5</sup> Rahusu-cakes: measures ( tm̄m )	344
<sup>6</sup> Cakes: measures ( yp̄ t )	48,420
<sup>7</sup> Rahusu ( R <sup>2</sup> - hw-sw ): measures ( yp̄ t )	28,200
<sup>8</sup> Flour: vessels (°)	3,130
239. <sup>9</sup> Shedeh: jars ( mn )	2,210
<sup>10</sup> Shedeh: jars ( k <sup>2</sup> - bw )	310
<sup>11</sup> Wine: jars ( mn )	39,510
<sup>12</sup> Total, shedeh and wine: jars ( mn and k <sup>2</sup> - bw )	42,030
<sup>13</sup> Beer: various jars	219,215
<sup>14</sup> Sweet oil: jars ( mn )	93
<sup>15</sup> Sweet oil: hin	1,100

Pl. 18b

<sup>1</sup> White incense: jars ( mn )	62
<sup>2</sup> Incense: various measures ( yp̄ t )	304,093 <sup>a</sup>
<sup>3</sup> Inflammable <sup>1</sup> incense: jars ( mn )	778
<sup>4</sup> Red oil ( bḳ ): jars ( mn )	31
<sup>5</sup> Oil ( nḥḥ ): jars ( mn )	93
<sup>6</sup> Oil ( nḥḥ ): hin	110,000
<sup>7</sup> Honey: jars ( mn )	310
<sup>8</sup> White fat: jars ( mn )	93
<sup>9</sup> Olives: jars ( mn )	62
<sup>10</sup> Southern linen: garments ( dw )	155
<sup>11</sup> Southern linen: garments ( rdw )	31
<sup>12</sup> Colored linen: garments ( yfd )	31
<sup>13</sup> Colored linen: tunics	44
Total	261
240. <sup>14</sup> Wax: deben	3,100
<sup>15</sup> All (kinds of) fine fruit: measures ( k <sup>2</sup> - bw-s <sup>2</sup> )	620
<sup>16</sup> All (kinds of) fine fruit: measures ( t <sup>2</sup> y )	620

Pl. 19a

<sup>1</sup> Fruit: measures ( ḥp )	559,500
<sup>2</sup> Fruit: measures ( dny t )	78,550

<sup>a</sup>The scribe has written "making" after this numeral, intending to add the weight in deben, but forgot it, as in 17a, 13.

<sup>3</sup> Figs of the impost: measures ( yp·t )	310
<sup>4</sup> “ “ “ weights ( mḥ·ḡ )	1,410
<sup>5</sup> “ “ “ measures ( msty )	55
<sup>6</sup> Figs: in measures ( yp·t )	15,500
<sup>7</sup> Figs: measures ( t·ḡ y )	310
<sup>8</sup> Mehiwet ( Mhywt ): <sup>a</sup> «cakes» ( s·ḡ -t·ḡ )	3,100
<sup>9</sup> Cinnamon: measures ( htp )	220
<sup>10</sup> Cinnamon: measures ( msty )	155
<sup>11</sup> Semu ( s·ḡ mw )-plant: measures ( htp )	1,550
<sup>12</sup> «Cabbage» ( Š·ḡ wt ): heket	620
<sup>13</sup> Khithana ( H y-t·ḡ -n·ḡ )-fruit: heket	310
<sup>14</sup> Khithana ( H y-t·ḡ -n·ḡ )-fruit: «bundles» ( ḥ nbw )	6,200
<sup>15</sup> Grapes: measures ( msty )	117
<sup>16</sup> Grapes: measures ( t·ḡ y )	1,550

Pl. 19b

<sup>1</sup> Southern fruit: heket	8,985
<sup>2</sup> Enbu ( ḥ nbw ): measures ( d·ḡ mw )	620
241. <sup>3</sup> Papyrus sandals: pairs	15,110
<sup>4</sup> Salt: 16-fold heket	1,515
<sup>5</sup> Salt: bricks	69,200
<sup>6</sup> Natron: bricks	75,400
<sup>7</sup> Thick stuff: garments ( dwt )	150
<sup>8</sup> Flax ( pš ): measures ( sbh·t )	265
<sup>9</sup> «Tamarisk» ( y·ḡ sr ): bundles	3,270
<sup>10</sup> Reed-grass: bundles	4,200
<sup>11</sup> Leather sandals: pairs	3,720
<sup>12</sup> «Dom-palm fruit» ( Hw-ḥw-ḥw ): in measures ( yp·t )	449,500
<sup>13</sup> «Pomegranates»: in measures ( yp·t )	15,500
<sup>14</sup> «Pomegranates»: crates ( pdr )	1,240
<sup>15</sup> Olives: jars ( g·ḡ y )	310
<sup>16</sup> Jars and vessels of the mouth of the Heliopolitan canal <sup>b</sup>	9,610

Pl. 20a

<sup>1</sup> Papyrus «rind»: measures ( yp·t )	3,782
<sup>2</sup> Nebdu ( nbdwt ): measures ( yp·t )	930

<sup>a</sup>Unknown fruit.<sup>b</sup>Perhaps the place of the workshop where the jars were made.

242. <sup>3</sup> Bulls	419
<sup>4</sup> Bullocks of the bulls	290
<sup>5</sup> Oxen ( ng <sup>2</sup> )	18
<sup>6</sup> Heifers	281
<sup>7</sup> Two-year-olds (cattle)	3
<sup>8</sup> Calves	740
<sup>9</sup> Bullocks ( Tpw )	19
<sup>10</sup> Cows	1,122
<sup>11</sup> Total, various cattle	2,892
<sup>12</sup> Male of the white oryx	1
<sup>13</sup> White oryxes	54
<sup>14</sup> Male gazelle <sup>1</sup> ( nr <sup>2</sup> w )	1
<sup>15</sup> Gazelles	81
<sup>16</sup> Total	137
<sup>17</sup> Total, various cattle ( y <sup>2</sup> t )	3,029
	Pl. 20b
<sup>1</sup> Live geese ( r <sup>2</sup> )	6,820
<sup>2</sup> " fowl ( ht - <sup>c</sup> )	1,410
<sup>3</sup> " turpu ( twrpw )-geese	1,534
<sup>4</sup> Cranes	150
<sup>5</sup> Live hatching-fowl	4,060
<sup>6</sup> Live water-fowl	25,020
<sup>7</sup> Pigeons ( mn y' t )	57,810
<sup>8</sup> Live pedet ( p <sup>c</sup> d' t )-birds	21,700
<sup>9</sup> Live sesha ( s <sup>2</sup> - c š <sup>2</sup> ) birds	1,240
<sup>10</sup> Doves	6,510
<sup>11</sup> Total, various fowl	126,250 <sup>a</sup>
243. <sup>12</sup> Jars [of the canal <sup>1</sup> filled with fish, having wooden [lids <sup>1</sup>	440
<sup>13</sup> White fish	2,200
<sup>14</sup> Dressed shene ( šn <sup>c</sup> )-fish	15,500
<sup>15</sup> Fish cut up	15,500
	Pl. 21a
<sup>1</sup> Fish, whole	441,000

<sup>a</sup>Lacking four of being correct.

244. <sup>2</sup> Blossoms <sup>a</sup> of the impost of flowers: sunshades <sup>b</sup>	124
<sup>3</sup> Blossoms: <sup>a</sup> tall bouquets	3,100
<sup>4</sup> Blossoms <sup>a</sup> of the impost of flowers: "garden fragrance" <sup>c</sup>	15,500
<sup>5</sup> Isi-plant: measures ( yp' t )	124,351
<sup>6</sup> Flowers: garlands	60,450
<sup>7</sup> Flowers: 'strings' <sup>1</sup> ( k' -r' -hw-ty )	620
<sup>8</sup> Blue flowers: ropes	12,400
<sup>9</sup> Flowers for the hand	46,500
<sup>10</sup> Flowers: measures ( ddm' t )	110
<sup>11</sup> Lotus flowers for the hand	144,720
<sup>12</sup> " " bouquets	3,410
<sup>13</sup> " " for the hand <sup>d</sup>	110,000
<sup>14</sup> Papyrus flowers: bouquets	68,200
<sup>15</sup> Papyrus: 'stems' <sup>1</sup> (°)	349,000

Pl. 21b

<sup>1</sup> Large bouquets of the impost of flowers	19,150
<sup>2</sup> Dates: measures ( md' yw )	65,480
<sup>3</sup> Dates: 'cut branches' <sup>1</sup>	3,100
<sup>4</sup> Vegetables: measures ( ddm' t )	2,170
<sup>5</sup> Vegetables: bundles	770,200
<sup>6</sup> Isi-plant for the hand	128,650
<sup>7</sup> Corn: bouquets	11,000
<sup>8</sup> Ears of grain for the hand	31,000
<sup>9</sup> Blossoms: bouquets	1,975,800
<sup>10</sup> Blossoms: measures ( htp )	1,975,800

8. PRIVATE STATUES OF AMON<sup>e</sup>

245. <sup>11</sup>The amount belonging to the 2,756 statues and figures which are above:<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Rnpy; it probably means blossoms or flowers here, but in some passages it may mean vegetables; see 37a, 8, 9.

<sup>b</sup>The sunshades were made of green plants and flowers.

<sup>c</sup>Name of a plant or kind of bouquet?

<sup>d</sup>L. 11 has sšn for lotus, while l. 13 has sšny, indicating some difference.

<sup>e</sup>See II, 1-3, and note.

<sup>f</sup>See II, 1-3. In the final summary (68a, 3-6) the proportions of gold and silver are given, viz., 7,205 deben, 1 kidet of gold, and 11,047 deben,  $\frac{1}{4}$  kidet of silver, being roughly two parts gold to three parts silver, the usual proportion for electrum, of which the statues were therefore probably made.

<sup>12</sup> Fine gold and silver	18,252 deben, 1½ kidet
<sup>13</sup> Real costly stones: various blocks	18,214 " 3 "
<sup>14</sup> Black copper, copper, lead, [tin]	112,132 "
<sup>15</sup> Cedar: various logs	328
<sup>16</sup> Mastic tree <sup>1</sup> (š <sup>3</sup> -w <sup>3</sup> -bw): various logs	4,415

9.<sup>a</sup> RAMSES' CONCLUDING PRAYER TO AMON*Pl. 22*

246. <sup>1</sup>How happy is he who depends upon thee! O god, Amon, Bull of his mother, ruler of Thebes. Grant thou that I may arrive in safety, landing in peace, <sup>2</sup>and resting in Tazoser like the gods. May I mingle with the excellent souls of Manu, who see thy radiance at early morning. <sup>3</sup>Hear my petition! O my father, my lord, I am alone among the gods who are at thy side. Crown my son as king upon the throne of Atum, establish him <sup>4</sup>as mighty Bull, lord, L. P. H., of the two shores, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare - Setepnamon, L. P. H.: Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H., emanation <sup>5</sup>that came forth from thy limbs. Thou art the one who didst designate him to be king, while he was a youth. Appoint thou him to be ruler, L. P. H., of the Two Lands over the people. Give to him a reign of millions of years, <sup>6</sup>his every limb being whole, in prosperity and health. Place thy crown upon his head, seated on thy throne; and may the serpent-goddess<sup>b</sup> alight upon his brows. Make him divine <sup>7</sup>more than any king, and great like thy reverence, as lord of the Nine Bows. Make his body to flourish and be youthful daily, while thou art a shield behind him <sup>8</sup>for every day. Put his sword and his war-mace over the heads of the Bedwin (Sṯ tyw); may they fall down in fear of him like Baal. Extend for him the boundaries as far as he desires; <sup>9</sup>may the lands and countries fear in terror of him. Grant for him that Egypt may rejoice, <sup>a</sup>This numbering does not conform with the scheme in the Heliopolitan section, where No. 8 is devoted to the offerings to the Nile-god, which were not given at Thebes. This is another evidence of the late origin of Theban power. The official offerings of the king to the Nile became a fixed custom in the days when Heliopolis was the seat of power and Thebes was an obscure village of Upper Egypt. The offerings to the Nile-god at Memphis were not old, but were founded by Ramses III in his twenty-ninth year.

<sup>b</sup>The uraeus serpent-crest.

ward off all evil, misfortune and destruction. <sup>10</sup>Give to him joy abiding in his heart, jubilation, singing and dancing before his beautiful face. Put love of him in the hearts of the gods and goddesses; his kindness and his terror <sup>11</sup>in the hearts of men. Complete the good things of which thou hast told me on earth for my son, who is upon my throne. Thou art the one who didst create him, confirm his <sup>12</sup>kingdom to the son of his son, thou being to them a protector, answering for them and they being to thee servants with their eyes upon thee doing benefactions for <sup>1</sup>thy ka, forever and ever. The things that thou ordainest, they come to pass, abiding and established; the things that thou sayest, they endure like gritstone. <sup>2</sup>Thou didst adjudge to me a reign of 200<sup>a</sup> years; establish them for my son who is (still) upon earth; make <sup>3</sup>his life longer than (that of) any king, in order to repay the benefactions which I have done for thy ka. Let him be king by reason of thy command; <sup>4</sup>even thine, who crownest him; let him not <sup>1</sup>reverse that which thou hast done<sup>1</sup>, O lord of gods. Give great and rich Niles in his time, in order <sup>5</sup>to supply his reign with plentiful food. Give to him the princes who have not known Egypt, with loads <sup>6</sup>upon their backs for his august palace, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H.; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H.

Pl. 23

III. HELIOPOLITAN SECTION

I. INTRODUCTORY VIGNETTE

Pl. 24. Vignette

247. Ramses III stands praying before Harakhte, Atum, Saosis, and Hathor. The accompanying notes are:

Over Harakhte

Harakhte, great god, lord of heaven.

Over Atum

Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis.

---

<sup>a</sup>This must refer to some priestly oracle, attributed to Amon, in which he had promised Ramses III a reign of 200 years. The deceased king prays for the fulfilment of this promise to his son.

Over Saosis

Saosis, mistress of Heliopolis.

Over Hathor

Hathor, mistress of Hetep (Htḫ).

Before the King

I tell the prayers, praises, adorations, and laudations, mighty deeds, benefactions, which I did for thee, in thy presence, O great prince.

2. PRAYER TO RE AND RECITAL OF THE KING'S BENEFUNCTIONS

Pl. 25. Introduction

248. <sup>1</sup>The prayers, praises, laudations, mighty deeds, and benefactions which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, did <sup>2</sup>for his father, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte, Saosis, the mistress of Hetep (Hathor), and all the gods of Heliopolis.

Prayer

249. Said the King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, <sup>3</sup>in praising his father, this august god, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte:

Praise to thee, Re-Atum, All-lord, creator of that which is, rising <sup>4</sup>in heaven, illuminating this land with his rays. The hidden ones, dwelling in the West,<sup>a</sup> turn their faces to thee; they rejoice to behold thy beauty. All people jubilate at <sup>5</sup>the sight of thee. Thou it is who madest heaven and earth; and thou didst appoint me to be king over the Two Lands, and Ruler, L. P. H., on thy great throne. Thou didst assign to me all the lands as far <sup>6</sup>as the circuit of the sun. They feared, and fell down to my name, as they do to thy name. I was diligent in pursuit of benefactions and numerous great deeds <sup>7</sup>for thy house

Buildings and Temple Gifts

250. I extended thy wall in the house of Re, I filled his treasury with the products of the lands of Egypt; I loaded his granaries with barley and spelt, <sup>8</sup>which had begun to stand (empty) since the (former) kings. I made great designs for thy [—],<sup>a</sup> I caused them to rest in the shrines of thy temple; I made the regulations for <sup>9</sup>the priests (w c b) in the house of Re. I made him more divine than formerly, <sup>10</sup>I cleansed Heliopolis for his divine ennead. I built his temples, which were gone to ruin, I fashioned their gods in their mysterious forms of gold, silver, and every costly stone, as everlasting works.

---

<sup>a</sup>The dead.

Sanctuary in the Heliopolis Temple

251. <sup>12</sup>I made for thee an august house in the midst of thy temple, like the heavens, abiding and bearing the sun, before thee, founded with gritstone, laid with limestone, established <sup>1</sup>with good work, enduring in thy name. It is the great and mysterious horizon of Harakhte, the "Great Seat" is of gold, the double doors of Ketem-gold, while thy mother rests <sup>2</sup>in the midst of it, rejoicing and satisfied at seeing it. I equipped it with the classes<sup>b</sup> which I trained, personal property, lands, and herds without number.

Pl. 26

Colossi in the Heliopolis Temple

252. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee great monuments in the house of Re, of gritstone, which Atum shaped into great images, sculptured with toil, dragged up, and <sup>4</sup>resting in their places forever and ever, in thy great, august and lovely forecourt, carved with thy divine name like the heavens.

Amulets for the Statue of Re

253. <sup>5</sup>I made for thee august amulets of fine gold, with inlay of real lapis lazuli and real malachite. I attached them to thy body in the great house of thy protection and thy magnificence, <sup>6</sup>in thy splendid seat, that they might protect the august limbs as [perennial] amulets for thy great, grand and lovely form.

---

<sup>a</sup>The word (rh nf) is plural, as shown by the possessive article; it must indicate divine statues, and literally translated means "that which he knows," perhaps an esoteric priestly term for statue. Compare a similar expression in 29, 4.

<sup>b</sup>"Classes" (d m), a word later meaning "generations," and here referring to the successive "classes" into which the youth were divided as they became of age liable to conscription for enforced service. See 76, 5, note, § 402.

Granite Shrine

254. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee a mysterious shrine of granite, wherein Atum and Tafnut rest. The double doors upon it were of copper, mounted <sup>2</sup>with gold, engraved with the great name of thy majesty, forever and ever.

Stelæ with Temple Regulations

255. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee great decrees for the administration of thy temple, recorded in the hall of writings of Egypt; stelæ were made, with outlined figures,<sup>a</sup> carved with the graver's tool, <sup>2</sup>abiding for thee forever, nor is there destruction for them.

Temple Balances

256. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee splendid balances of electrum;<sup>b</sup> the like of which had not been made since the time of the god. Thoth sat upon it as guardian of the balances, <sup>2</sup>being a great and august ape<sup>c</sup> of gold in beaten work. Thou weighest therein before thee, O my father, Re, when thou <sup>1</sup>measur<sup>est</sup> of gold and silver by the hundred-thousands, brought as tribute <sup>1</sup>before thee from their coffers, and given to thy august treasury in the house of Atum. I founded for it<sup>d</sup> daily divine offerings, in order to supply its altar at early morning.

Pl. 27

Storehouses for Feasts

257. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee a storehouse for the "Feast of the Appearance," being built upon pure ground, on the land of Heliopolis, divine in workmanship. I filled it with beautiful slaves of the choicest, and clean grain by the ten-thousand, in order to supply them.

Storehouse for Temple Income

258. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee a pure storehouse containing divine offerings more than were before me, since (former) kings. I equipped it with <sup>a</sup>The decrees were drawn with the pen upon stone stelæ, and then cut into the stone.

<sup>b</sup>The amount of gold and silver which went into these balances will be found in § 285.

<sup>c</sup>The ape was the sacred animal of Thoth, and a figure of this ape was regularly mounted upon the balances, of which Thoth was the presiding god.

<sup>d</sup>Namely, for the balances; evidently offerings were made to it.

everything, it suffered no lack; in order to supply thy offerings at early morning.

Special Oblation-Storehouse

259. <sup>4</sup>I made an oblation-storehouse for thy forecourt, filled with divine offerings, and plentiful food, and containing great oblations of gold and silver, in order to offer them to thy ka, O lord of gods. I equipped them, <sup>5</sup>I completed them with barley and wheat, filled with the spoil which I carried away from the Nine Bows. They were for thy ka, O sole lord, maker of heaven and earth, that the feasts of the first of the seasons might be doubled before thee.

Cattle and Poultry Yards

260. <sup>6</sup>I made thee cattle yards, equipped, containing bulls, and bullocks; fattening-houses anew, containing fat geese.

Cleansing of Sacred Lakes

261. <sup>7</sup>I cleansed the sacred<sup>a</sup> lakes of thy house, I removed all the filth that was in them, which had been the fashion of them formerly since the earth began. Thy divine ennead was satisfied in heart and rejoiced over them.

Vineyards and Shedeh Gardens

262. <sup>8</sup>I gave shedeh and wine as daily offerings, in order to present the land of Heliopolis in thy splendid and mysterious seat; groves, and verdure, with their plants anew. The lords of the land of life are satisfied therewith. <sup>9</sup>I made for thee great gardens, equipped, containing their groves, bearing shedeh and wine in the great house of Atum; and the divine ennead of Heliopolis rejoice in feasts to satisfy thy beauty daily.

Olive-Lands

263. <sup>10</sup>I made for thee olive-lands in thy city of Heliopolis, I equipped them with gardeners and numerous people, to make pure oil, the best of Egypt, in order to light<sup>b</sup> the flame in thy august house.

<sup>a</sup>Text has "goddesses" (ntry't), which would read "lakes of the goddesses of thy house," which is probably an error for (ntry) "sacred, divine."

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "send up."

Groves and Flower Gardens

264. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee groves and arbors,<sup>a</sup> containing date trees; lakes supplied with lotus flowers, papyrus flowers, isi flowers, the flowers of every land, dedmet flowers, myrrh, and sweet and fragrant woods for thy beautiful face.

New Temple Domains

265. <sup>2</sup>I made for thee domains anew, with pure barley; I doubled their lands which had been waste, in order to double the divine offerings in numerous lists, for thy great, august and lovely name. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee numerous lands in the New Isles, in the southern and northern districts, by the ten-thousand. There were made for them stelæ<sup>b</sup> engraved with thy name, abiding for thee, bearing decrees forever.

Pl. 28

<sup>4</sup>I made for thee a poultry yard<sup>c</sup> containing wild fowl; I conducted<sup>d</sup> the pools to thy city, Heliopolis, in order to present them to thy ka, O my father, conducted to thee and to thy divine ennead which follows thee.

Officials, Servants, and Slaves

266. <sup>5</sup>I appointed for thee archers and collectors of honey, bearing incense to deliver<sup>e</sup> their yearly impost into thy august treasury. <sup>6</sup>I appointed for thee hunting archers to capture white oryxes, in order to offer them to thy ka at all thy feasts. <sup>7</sup>I made for thee boatmen and tax-officials (m-š ʔ -k ʔ -bwy)<sup>f</sup> of the people, whom I created to collect the impost of the Two Lands, the taxes and the exactions, in order to transport them to thy treasury in the house of Re, in order to double thy divine offerings more than a million times. <sup>8</sup>I appointed slaves as watchmen of thy harbor, in order to watch the harbor of the Heliopolitan canal in thy splendid place.<sup>g</sup> <sup>9</sup>I made door-keepers of the slaves, <sup>a</sup>See § 1021 for the same phrase (c' t nt ht); also § 194.

<sup>b</sup>Boundary stelæ, demarking the lands.

<sup>c</sup>See Spiegelberg, Rechnungen, 34, 35.

<sup>d</sup>lit., "I caused that the pools should be drawn to thy city," not referring to water-supply, but meaning that the fowl of the pools were thus brought.

<sup>e</sup>F ʔ y. See Spiegelberg, Rechnungen, 53.

<sup>f</sup>See Spiegelberg, Recueil, XV, 143 f.

<sup>g</sup>This is the temple, so that the canal probably passed close by the temple inclosure.

manned with people, in order to watch and [protect] thy court. <sup>8</sup>I made slaves as watchmen of the canal-administration, and the watchmen of the pure barley, for thee likewise.

Granaries Restored

267. <sup>9</sup>I made for thee granaries filled with grain, which had begun to fall to waste, and they became millions.

Golden Statues

268. <sup>10</sup>I made for thee statues of gold in beaten work, kneeling upon the ground<sup>a</sup> before thee, bearing divine offerings. I made others likewise, of pure silver, in order to satisfy thy two serpent-goddesses at every time.

Vessels of the Temple Cult

269. <sup>11</sup>I made a great vase-stand in thy forecourt, bearing vases of gold and silver, containing shedeh, supplied with divine offerings in numerous lists, in order to offer to thy ka, O great prince. <sup>12</sup>I made for thee table-vessels without number, of silver and gold with inlay, engraved with thy name; a censer, nemset (nms' t)-vases, great denya (ḏnyʔ)-vases, enkhy (ḥny)-vases, hesy (ḥsywt)-vases, and numerous bowls (wy), in order to convey them into <sup>13</sup>thy presence with libations of wine; thy divine ennead was satisfied in heart and rejoiced over them.

Pl. 29. Temple-Ships

270. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee transports, and galleys manned with people, in order to transport the products of God's-Land to thy treasury and thy storehouse.

Restoration of Horus-Chapel and its Grove

271. <sup>2</sup>I restored the "House-of-Horus-Presider-over-Temples;" I built his walls, which were in ruins. <sup>3</sup>I made to grow the august grove, which was in its midst; I planted it with papyrus in the midst of the Delta marshes, (though) it had begun to decay<sup>b</sup> formerly.

<sup>a</sup>Such a statue is depicted in the Medinet Habu treasury (Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, 30), and described in § 26, note.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "to rest."

Temple Grove

272. 4I made to grow the pure grove of thy temple, I put it in its accustomed condition when it had gone to waste; I equipped it with gardeners to cultivate it, to make libations of shedeh in the "Place-Which-He-Knows."<sup>a</sup>

5I made for thee great festival oblations for thy court, as an increase of that which was done formerly since (former) kings, supplied with bulls, bullocks, mountain cattle,<sup>b</sup> oil, incense, honey, <sup>6</sup>shedeh, wine, gold, silver, royal linen, numerous garments, plants, and all flowers for thy beautiful face.

Offerings in Hapi Temple

273. 7I made for thee great festival oblations in the house of Hapi, and all the gods of Khereha (Hr-c h?) were in festivity.

Temple of Re North of Heliopolis

274. 8I made for thee an august house north of Heliopolis, established as an everlasting work, engraved with thy name, viz.: "The-House-(h t)-of-Millions-of-Years-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis-L.-P.-H.-in-the-House-of-Re-on-the-North-of-Heliopolis."<sup>c</sup> I equipped it with people and property, in order to convey into thy house gardens, containing flowers for thy forecourt.

Temple Herds

275. 9I made for thee a herd (called): "Doer-of-Benefactions," supplied with plentiful cattle without number, in order to present them to thy ka at all thy feasts. I doubled those who belonged to them in classes,<sup>d</sup> belonging to thy name. 10I made for thee another herd for thy august house, in order to supply thy temple with plentiful provisions (called): "Herd-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Doubling-Offerings-in-the-House-of-Re." I filled it with cattle, and herdmen likewise. They shall not pass away, forever, belonging to thy ka.

<sup>a</sup>A name for the place of the cultus. See also p. 143, n. a.

<sup>b</sup>Small cattle, goats, and the like.

<sup>c</sup>This is probably the beautiful incrustated temple at Tell-el-Yehudiyeh.

<sup>d</sup>See 26, 2, note.

Restorations

276. <sup>11</sup>I made thee works, with workmen, builders, and stonecutters, in order to fashion thy house, in order to restore thy house.

Temple of Re<sup>a</sup>

277. <sup>12</sup>I made for thee the "House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Re," equipped with people and property, like the sand.

Pl. 30. New Saosis Temple

278. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee an august house, west of the Heliopolitan canal, for thy mother, Saosis (Yws-c>s), mistress of Heliopolis.

Settlement of Foreign Captives

<sup>2</sup>I made for thee a pure settlement of numerous classes;<sup>b</sup> whose sons I brought into thy house (called): "Taking-of-the-Foreigners."

Sacred Bulls

<sup>3</sup>I raised the black cattle<sup>c</sup> and great bulls, purified from every evil in their fields.

Barge of Saosis

<sup>4</sup>I hewed a large barge for thy great daughter, Saosis, mistress of Hetep (called<sup>d</sup>): "Sep-in-Heliopolis;"<sup>d</sup> of cedars of <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup>, the best of the royal domain, which were covered with gold like the barge of millions of years.

Lists

279. <sup>6</sup>Behold, the list of them<sup>e</sup> is before thee, O my father, my lord, in order to inform thy divine ennead of my benefactions.

<sup>a</sup>This is evidently the chief temple at Heliopolis, to which Ramses III could have done no more than make some additions or restorations. It is probably the second in the list, 31, 4; as the first (31, 3) is called a H't, and this temple is a Pr.

<sup>b</sup>See 26, 2, note.

<sup>c</sup>See Spiegelberg, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1891, 81, 82.

<sup>d</sup>Or the barge may also have been for the god Sep, as a second object of the preposition.

<sup>e</sup>Ramses III's pious deeds.

3. RE'S ESTATE

Pl. 31

280. <sup>1</sup>List of things, cattle, gardens, groves, lands, galleys, workshops, and towns which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave to <sup>2</sup>his august father, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte, as property, forever and ever.

People Attached to Temples, Etc.

281. <sup>33</sup> "The-House ( h' t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Re," under charge of the "Great Seer" <sup>b</sup> and the officials, with all possessions:	heads	1,485
<sup>4</sup> People whom he gave to the house of Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte, who were in the ownership of the house, under his charge: (heads)		4,583
<sup>5</sup> Those belonging to "The-House-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Re-North-of-Heliopolis," under charge of the scribe, and chief inspector, Pehotep ( P<sup>3</sup> -R<sup>c</sup> -htp ), equipped with its possessions:	heads	2,177
<sup>6</sup> The 'château' of Pharaoh, L. P. H., which is in this place <sup>c</sup> under charge of the chief scribe, Thutmose and the officials:	heads	1,779
<sup>7</sup> "The [—] <sup>d</sup> -of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Sustaining-Alive-the-Two-Lands," under charge of the scribe, and chief inspector, Hori:	heads	247
<sup>8</sup> Orderlies, children of chiefs, nobles, epru ( c -pw-r<sup>2</sup> ), <sup>e</sup> and people of the settlement, <sup>f</sup> which is in this place:	heads	2,093
<sup>9</sup> Total	heads	<sup>g</sup> 12,963

<sup>a</sup>A list of people like that in 10, 3-11, 4, q. v.

<sup>b</sup>Title of the High Priest of Heliopolis.

<sup>c</sup>"This place" can only mean the temple just mentioned on the north of Heliopolis; on the château, see III, 588, l. 49. It must here have been attached to the Re-temple, as was the palace at Medinet Habu with the temple there; otherwise, the personnel would not have belonged to the god.

<sup>d</sup>M<sup>3</sup> wt, with the determinative of land, is perhaps some temple estate.

<sup>e</sup>These are the people supposed by Chabas to have been Hebrews, a theory long since exploded.

<sup>f</sup>See 30, 2.

<sup>g</sup>The correct total is 12,364.

Pl. 32a. Miscellaneous Property

<sup>1</sup> 282. Various cattle	45,544
<sup>2</sup> Gardens and groves	64
<sup>3</sup> Lands: stat	160,084½¼
<sup>4</sup> Workshops of cedar and acacia	5½ <sup>a</sup>
<sup>5</sup> Transports and galleys	3
<sup>6</sup> Towns of Egypt	103

4. RE'S INCOME

<sup>283.</sup> <sup>7</sup>Things exacted, impost of the people of "The-House (h' t)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Re;" <sup>8</sup>those of "The House (h' t)-of-Ramses Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Re-on-the-North-of-Heliopolis," the temples (r' -pr) and herds of this house (pr), <sup>9</sup>under charge of the officials, as their yearly dues:

<sup>10</sup>Silver 586 deben, 3¾¼ kidet

Pl. 32b

<sup>1</sup> Copper	1,260 deben
<sup>2</sup> Royal linen, mek-linen, double-fine southern linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen: various garments	1,019
<sup>3</sup> Incense, honey, oil: various jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	482
<sup>4</sup> Shedeh, wine: various jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,385
<sup>5</sup> Silver <sup>b</sup> from the things of the impost of the people for the divine offerings:	456 deben, 3½ kidet
<sup>6</sup> Clean grain of the impost of the peasants: 16-fold heket	77,100
<sup>7</sup> Vegetables: bundles	4,800
<sup>8</sup> Flax: bales	4,000
<sup>9</sup> Water-fowl from the impost of the fowlers and fishermen	37,465
<sup>10</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the bulls, heifers, calves, cows, cattle of ┌—┐, cattle <sup>c</sup> of ┌—┐ of the herds	98
<sup>11</sup> Live geese of the exactions	540½ (sic!)
<sup>12</sup> Cedar: a ferry-boat	1
<sup>13</sup> Acacia: transports and kara ( k' -r' )-boats	7
<sup>14</sup> Products of the oasis in numerous lists for the divine offerings.

<sup>a</sup>The fraction applied to such an object is quite inexplicable, unless the noun be read as singular and 5½ be measures of timber.

<sup>b</sup>See 12b, 2.

<sup>c</sup>Corrected from 12b, 7.

5. THE KING'S GIFTS TO RE

Pl. 33a

284. <sup>1</sup>Gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, every splendid, costly stone, black copper, garments, <sup>2</sup>of royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored garments, jars of everything, <sup>3</sup>which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave, as gifts of the king, L. P. H., [in order to provision the house of his august father], <sup>4</sup>Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte, <sup>5</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years:

285. <sup>5</sup> Fine mountain gold and gold for the balances <sup>b</sup>	1,278	deben,	9 $\frac{2}{3}$	kidet
<sup>6</sup> Fine gold, gold of two times, and white gold in vessels and ornaments:	198	"	3 $\frac{1}{2}$	"
<sup>7</sup> Total, gold	1,479	"	3 <sup>c</sup>	"
<sup>8</sup> Crude silver for the balances and silver in vessels	1,891 <sup>d</sup>	"	$\frac{1}{2}$	"
<sup>9</sup> Silver in beaten work: 1 tablet, making	394	"
<sup>10</sup> Total, silver	2,255 <sup>e</sup>	"	$\frac{1}{2}$	"
<sup>11</sup> Total, gold and silver	3,734	"	3 $\frac{1}{2}$	"
<sup>12</sup> Real lapis lazuli: 1 block, making	1	"	1	"
<sup>13</sup> Lapis lazuli and malachite: a great scarab			36	"
<sup>14</sup> Black copper for the balances	67	"	3	"
<sup>15</sup> Copper in beaten work: 2 tablets, making	400	"	3	"

Pl. 33b

<sup>1</sup> Copper in vessels	1,416	deben,	1	kidet
<sup>2</sup> Total copper	1,819	deben, --(sic!) <sup>f</sup>		kidet
286. <sup>3</sup> Royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen; various garments			18,793
<sup>4</sup> Myrrh: deben			1,787

<sup>a</sup>Something has fallen out here, by error of the scribe; the restoration is from the parallel passage 13a, 3.

<sup>b</sup>Meaning the balances above mentioned in 26, 11-27, 1 (§ 256). The gold amounts to some 311 $\frac{1}{2}$  pounds, troy.

<sup>c</sup>The fraction ( $\frac{1}{2}$ ) is ignored.

<sup>d</sup>Nearly 461 pounds, troy.

<sup>e</sup>Thirty short.

<sup>f</sup>The scribe has omitted the number; the real total is 1,883 deben, 7 kidet.

<sup>5</sup> Myrrh: heket	2
<sup>6</sup> Myrrh wood: logs	20
<sup>7</sup> Myrrh fruit in measures ( yp' t )	100
<sup>8</sup> Incense, oil, honey, fat: various jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	3,740
<sup>9</sup> Shedeh and wine: various jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	103,550
<sup>10</sup> Incense: kararuti ( k' -r' -rw-t'y ) <sup>a</sup>	530
<sup>11</sup> Incense: large measures ( yp' t )	62
<sup>12</sup> Good manna of Punt: deben	300
287. <sup>13</sup> Ubat ( wb' t ) stone: seals mounted in gold	11
<sup>14</sup> Hirset ( hrs ) stone: deben	50

Pl. 34a

<sup>1</sup> Green feldspar <sup>b</sup> : deben	50
<sup>2</sup> Red jasper: deben	200
<sup>3</sup> Marvelous <sup>c</sup> stone: offering-table	1
<sup>4</sup> Ubat ( wb' t ) stone: seals	200
<sup>5</sup> Rock-crystal, and costly stones: various pendants	2,195
<sup>6</sup> “ cut: hin	10
<sup>7</sup> “ beads	22,450
<sup>8</sup> Sticks <sup>d</sup> of cinnamon: measures ( msty )	17
<sup>9</sup> Reeds: <sup>e</sup> deben	2,000
<sup>10</sup> Syrian barley: heket	5
<sup>11</sup> Cumin: heket	5
288. <sup>12</sup> Wrought wood: seals	31
<sup>13</sup> Meru ( my ) wood, with ebony: a staff <sup>f</sup>	1
<sup>14</sup> Hewn wood: a block (for) the balances	1
<sup>15</sup> Carob wood: a log of 4 cubits (length) <sup>f</sup>	1

Pl. 34b

<sup>1</sup> Persea tree cut: (a log) of 2 cubits	1
<sup>2</sup> Mera ( mr' ) wood: a post for the balances of 3 cubits, 4 palms	1

<sup>a</sup>Probably a weight.<sup>b</sup>Nšm' t, see Catalogue Alnwick Castle, 230.<sup>c</sup>N-by' y' t, apparently not gritstone (by' y' t).<sup>d</sup>Lit., “reeds,” meaning the reedlike pieces of curled bark.<sup>e</sup>This is perhaps also some similar aromatic bark in curled sticks or reeds; otherwise it would not be weighed by the deben.<sup>f</sup>Probably for the beam of the balances, as we have the post in 34b, 2.

<sup>3</sup> Wood and bark: handle <sup>1</sup> of a r— <sup>1</sup>	1
<sup>4</sup> Olive land, equipped, one (grove), making	54½ stat
<sup>5</sup> Gardens of all (kinds of) trees, equipped	2

6. GRAIN FOR THE OLD FEASTS

The Old Feasts

289. <sup>6</sup>Clean grain of the divine offerings, of the feasts of heaven and the feasts of the beginnings of the seasons, which <sup>7</sup>King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded for his august father, Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte, <sup>8</sup>being an increase of the divine offerings, and an increase of the daily offerings, in order to double that which was before me, L. P. H., <sup>9</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years: 16-fold heket, 1,097,624.

7. OFFERINGS FOR NEW FEASTS FOUNDED BY RAMSES III

290. <sup>10</sup>Oblations of the festival offerings which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded for this house, <sup>11</sup>as an increase of the festival offerings of former time, year by year, from the year 9 to the year 31, making 23<sup>a</sup> years:

291. <sup>12</sup> Fine bread: large oblation-loaves of gold	460
<sup>13</sup> Fine bread: loaves ( bh )	4,600

Pl. 35a

<sup>1</sup> Fine bread: large oblation-loaves	23,000
<sup>2</sup> “ “ oblation-measures ( htp )	80,500
<sup>3</sup> “ “ loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k ) of the fire	920
<sup>4</sup> “ “ large loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k )	460,000
<sup>5</sup> “ “ tall white loaves	80,500
<sup>6</sup> “ “ white oblation-loaves	920,000
<sup>7</sup> “ “ white pyramidal loaves	103,500
<sup>8</sup> “ “ kyllestis-loaves	34,500
<sup>9</sup> “ “ loaves ( wdmw-nt )	80,500
<sup>10</sup> Kunek ( kwnk )-bread: white loaves	80,500
<sup>11</sup> Total, fine bread: various loaves ( <sup>c</sup> k )	2,760,420 <sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Hence the following quantities are all evenly divisible by 23. This division, carried through the entire list, furnishes a complete list of the annual offerings presented at this feast.

<sup>b</sup>Real total is 1,868,980.

<sup>12</sup> Cakes: 1—1	69,000
<sup>13</sup> Cakes: loaves ( by' t ):	11,500

Pl. 35b

<sup>1</sup> Rahusu ( r' -hw-sw )-cakes: round loaves	2,875
<sup>2</sup> Rahusu ( r' -hw-sw )-cakes: measures ( tm̄m )	46
292. <sup>3</sup> Beer: measures ( trf )	198,260
<sup>4</sup> Shedeh: colored jars ( mn )	1,380
<sup>5</sup> Shedeh: jars ( k' bw )	2,990
<sup>6</sup> Wine: jars ( mn )	16,100
<sup>7</sup> Total, shedeh and wine: jars ( mn and k' bw )	20,470
293. <sup>8</sup> Bulls	966
<sup>9</sup> Bullocks of the bulls	1,886
<sup>10</sup> Oxen ( ng' )	703
<sup>11</sup> Heifers	1,242
<sup>12</sup> Calves	1,242
<sup>13</sup> Cows	5,911
<sup>14</sup> Total, various cattle	11,960
<sup>15</sup> Males of the white oryx	230

Pl. 36a

<sup>1</sup> Live geese	1,150
<sup>2</sup> Live hatching-fowl	2,300
<sup>3</sup> Live water-fowl	13,800
<sup>4</sup> Total, live water-fowl	17,250
294. <sup>5</sup> Honey: jars ( g' y )	92
<sup>6</sup> Incense: jars ( k' -hr-k' )	9,200
<sup>7</sup> “ food-jars ( tbw )	4,600
<sup>8</sup> “ white loaves	1,150
<sup>9</sup> “ measures ( htp )	34,500
<sup>10</sup> “ measures ( dn y' t )	126,500
<sup>11</sup> “ jars ( ' c c bw )	26,500
<sup>12</sup> Papyrus grind <sup>1</sup> , worked into incense: various measures ( yp' t )	34,500
<sup>13</sup> Fruit: measures ( ddmt )	690
<sup>14</sup> “ “ ( t' y )	23,000
<sup>15</sup> “ “ ( htp hr' nmtt<sup>1</sup> )	34,500

Pl. 36b

<sup>1</sup> Fruit: various measures ( htp )	1,150,000
<sup>2</sup> “ measures ( dꜣ-wꜣ-rꜣ )	4,600
<sup>3</sup> “ measures ( dnꜣ )	23,000
<sup>4</sup> Papyrus <sup>1</sup> rind <sup>1</sup> : various measures ( ypꜣt )	23,000
<sup>5</sup> Dom-palm fruit <sup>1</sup> : measures ( htp )	4,600
<sup>6</sup> Figs: <sup>1</sup> pyramids <sup>1</sup> ( sfꜣtꜣ )	4,600
<sup>7</sup> Katha <sup>a</sup> fruit and katha flowers: heket	23,000
295. <sup>8</sup> Lotus flowers for the hand	46,000
<sup>9</sup> Isi-plant: various measures ( ypꜣt )	483,000
<sup>10</sup> Isi-plant: for the hand	231,500
<sup>11</sup> Flowers: garlands	46,000
<sup>12</sup> Papyrus (flowers): bouquets	483,000

Pl. 37a

<sup>1</sup> Papyrus: large pools <sup>b</sup>	6,900
<sup>2</sup> Flax <sup>1</sup> : measures ( dydy )	92,000
<sup>3</sup> Isi-plant: <sup>1</sup> measures <sup>1</sup> ( dydy )	69,000
<sup>4</sup> Menhet ( mnh )-plant in measures ( ypꜣt )	26,500
<sup>5</sup> Dates: measures ( mdꜣ )	241,500
<sup>6</sup> Milk: measures ( gs-rꜣ )	8,600
<sup>7</sup> Clusters of <sup>1</sup> berries <sup>1</sup> for the hand	92,000
<sup>8</sup> Blossoms: <sup>c</sup> bouquets	1,150,000
<sup>9</sup> Blossoms: <sup>c</sup> measures ( htp )	1,150,000
<sup>10</sup> Herbs: bundles ( htpꜣt )	4,600
<sup>11</sup> Sehetep ( shꜣp ) of carob-pods	92,000
<sup>12</sup> Fire wood: ( <sup>1</sup> logs <sup>1</sup> ) <sup>d</sup>	11,500
<sup>13</sup> Charcoal: measures ( gs-rꜣ )	2,300

8. OFFERINGS FOR THE NILE-GOD

Pl. 37b. Old Offerings

296. <sup>1</sup>Oblations for the “Books of the Nile-God,”<sup>e</sup> which he founded anew in the house of the Nile-god, father of gods; <sup>2</sup>together with the “Books of the Nile-God” which are presented in the Pool of

<sup>a</sup>Kꜣꜣꜣꜣ.<sup>b</sup>Perhaps papyrus-producing pools?<sup>c</sup>See 21a, 2-4.<sup>d</sup>Or some measure implied as a matter of course; cf. Maspero, Recueil, I, 59.<sup>e</sup>The “Books of the Nile-God” were lists of the offerings presented to him twice a year. The first record of such offerings is under Ramses II, who established a

Kebeh (Kbh) in the house of Re-Harakhte; <sup>3</sup>the "Books of the Nile-God," which are presented in the house of Anubis, lord of designs in Neru (Nr<sup>3</sup>w), being an increase of their (offerings) that were formerly, <sup>4</sup>year by year, from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years.

Offerings Founded by Ramses III

297. <sup>5</sup>"Books of the Nile-God," which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded 48 years, making 31 years:<sup>a</sup> <sup>6</sup>272 "Books of the Nile-God," making:

<sup>7</sup> Fine bread of the divine offerings: various loaves ( by<sup>3</sup>t )	470,000
<sup>8</sup> Fine bread of the divine offerings: persen ( pr-sn )-loaves, white loaves, and seshu ( sšw )-loaves	879,224
<sup>9</sup> Cakes: various measures ( yp<sup>3</sup>t )	106,910
<sup>10</sup> Kunek ( kwnk )-bread: loaves ( wdmw-nt )	46,568
<sup>11</sup> Beer: various jars	49,432
Making	<hr/> b
<sup>12</sup> Clean grain: 16-fold heket	61,172½
298. <sup>13</sup> Bulls	291
<sup>14</sup> Bullocks of the bulls	17

Pl. 38a

<sup>1</sup> Calves	51
<sup>2</sup> Cows	2,564
Total	<hr/> 2,923

semiannual feast of the Nile-god at Silsileh and recorded the fact, together with a fine hymn to the god, on the rocks at Silsileh (Stern, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1873, 129-35). These were renewed by Merneptah, and again by Ramses III, both of whom had duplicates of Ramses II's stela carved beside it. The "Books" were thrown into the stream, and doubtless also the offerings themselves, of which the "Books" contained the lists. Ramses III's stela is dated in Phamenoth of the sixth year, and, like Ramses II, he celebrated the two feasts on the fifteenth of Thoth and the fifteenth of Epiphi (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 218, d, l. 15).

<sup>a</sup>I am unable to explain this addition: "making 31 years," unless it is a dittography from the end of the l. 4. Evidently the 48 years is a total of annual offerings obtained by adding 31 years of old offerings and 17 years of Ramses' newly founded offerings, for the 272 books of l. 6 are exactly divisible by 17 (sixteen times). Hence the list beginning l. 6 refers to the 17 years of Ramses' new foundation, as all such lists in this papyrus refer to his new foundations, e. g., 34b, 10 ff. The items of the list following (37b, 7, to 41b, 6) are almost all even multiples of 17.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe has omitted the number of hins which these jars make.

<sup>3</sup> Goats	1,089
<sup>4</sup> Fat geese	192
<sup>5</sup> Live geese and fowl ( ht - c )	3,938
<sup>6</sup> Hatching-fowl	364
<sup>7</sup> Water-fowl	2,653
<sup>8</sup> Pigeons	68
<sup>9</sup> Sesha ( s - c )-birds	19,928
<sup>10</sup> Total, various fowl	27,143
299. <sup>11</sup> Shedeh: jars ( k - bw )	209
<sup>12</sup> Wine: jars ( mn )	7,154
<sup>13</sup> White fat: 3,513 jars ( c ), each one $\frac{1}{4}$ hin, making: hins	627 $\frac{1}{2}$ <sup>a</sup>
<sup>14</sup> Onions: measures ( c )	12,712

Pl. 38b

<sup>1</sup> Salt ( spr ): jars ( c )	12,712
<sup>2</sup> Natron: jars ( c )	12,712
<sup>3</sup> Dried dates: jars ( c )	11,872
<sup>4</sup> Dried myrrh: jars ( c )	11,872
<sup>5</sup> Uz ( w )-mineral: jars ( c )	11,872
<sup>6</sup> Eye-paint: jars ( c )	11,872
<sup>7</sup> Incense: censerfuls	848
<sup>8</sup> “ measures ( spr )	424
<sup>9</sup> “ 87,344 jars ( c ), making incense: deben	23,008
<sup>10</sup> “ measures ( dn y t )	6,420
<sup>11</sup> “ jars ( c )	2,568
<sup>12</sup> “ jars ( c - bw )	1,304
<sup>13</sup> White incense: hin	85
<sup>14</sup> Oil: hin	85
300. <sup>15</sup> Fruit: measures ( mh t )	254,240

Pl. 39

<sup>1</sup> Fruit: measures ( dn y t )	2,672
<sup>2</sup> Fruit: jars ( c )	154,672
<sup>3</sup> Berries: jars ( c )	11,872
<sup>4</sup> Raisins: <sup>b</sup> jars ( c )	11,872

<sup>a</sup>The scribe has made a bad miscalculation, 3,513 quarter-hin jars = 878 $\frac{1}{2}$  hin.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “raisin-berries,” meaning the individual grapes, plucked from the stem.

<sup>5</sup> Best fruit: jars ( g<sup>2</sup>y )	9,600
<sup>6</sup> Honey: 20,800 jars ( pw-g<sup>2</sup> ), each one $\frac{1}{4}$ hin, making: hin	5,200
<sup>7</sup> Honey: 1,040 jars ( mh<sup>2</sup>t ), each one 1 hin, making: hin	1,040
<sup>8</sup> Honey for cakes: hin	7,050, halves 25
<sup>9</sup> White fat for cakes: hin	1,419, halves 25
<sup>10</sup> Cinnamon: logs	3,036
<sup>11</sup> Best oil: 848 jars ( bp<sup>2</sup> ), each one $\frac{1}{2}$ hin, making: hin	424
<sup>12</sup> Best oil: 3,036 jars ( <sup>c</sup> ), each one $\frac{1}{4}$ hin, making: hin	758
301. <sup>13</sup> Shelled beans: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	11,998

Pl. 40a

<sup>1</sup> Raisins: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	11,872
<sup>2</sup> Raisins in measures ( yp<sup>2</sup>t )	106,000
<sup>3</sup> Carob-pods in measures ( yp<sup>2</sup>t )	106,000
<sup>4</sup> Herbs: <sup>a</sup> bundles ( hrš )	159,000
<sup>5</sup> Herbs: <sup>a</sup> bundles ( htp<sup>2</sup>t )	11,872
<sup>6</sup> Cyperus of the shore, for the hand	71,200
<sup>7</sup> Palm-fiber: measures ( msty )	43,900
<sup>8</sup> White fruit: jars ( g<sup>2</sup>y )	4,240
<sup>9</sup> Live "garden fragrance" <sup>b</sup>	106,000
<sup>10</sup> Seneb ( snb )-berries: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	11,872
<sup>11</sup> Butter: jars ( nms<sup>2</sup>t )	12,040
<sup>12</sup> Milk: jars ( nms<sup>2</sup>t )	12,040
<sup>13</sup> Milk: jars ( mhn )	198
<sup>14</sup> Pomegranates <sup>1</sup> in measures ( yp<sup>2</sup>t )	96,000
<sup>15</sup> Apples ( dph<sup>2</sup>t ): baskets ( k<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-hw-ty )	848

Pl. 40b

<sup>1</sup> Isi-plant: measures ( ddmt )	848
<sup>2</sup> Isi-plant: for the hand	8,480
<sup>3</sup> Flowers: garlands	43,640
<sup>4</sup> Clusters of grapes for the hand	74,000
<sup>5</sup> Blossoms: <sup>c</sup> bouquets	114,804
<sup>6</sup> Blossoms: <sup>c</sup> clusters ( htp<sup>2</sup>t )	114,804
302. <sup>7</sup> Gold: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws<sup>2</sup> )	6,784
<sup>8</sup> Silver: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws<sup>2</sup> )	6,784
<sup>9</sup> Real lapis lazuli: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws<sup>2</sup> )	6,784

<sup>a</sup>Or vegetables.<sup>b</sup>See 21a, 4.<sup>c</sup>See 21a, 2-4.

<sup>10</sup> Real malachite: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784
<sup>11</sup> Iron <sup>1</sup> : a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784
<sup>12</sup> Raised <sup>1</sup> copper: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784
<sup>13</sup> Lead: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784
<sup>14</sup> Tin <sup>1</sup> : <sup>a</sup> a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784
<sup>15</sup> Menit-uz ( mn'y t-wd ): <sup>b</sup> a statue of the Nile-god, nusa ( nws ?)	6,784

Pl. 41a

<sup>1</sup> Minu ( mynw ) stone: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>2</sup> Shesmet ( šsm' t ) stone: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>3</sup> Green feldspar ( nšm' t ): a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>4</sup> Alabaster: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>5</sup> Red jasper: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>6</sup> Hirset ( hrs' t ) stone: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>7</sup> Kenmet ( kmm' t ) stone: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>8</sup> Mesdemet ( msdm' t ) stone: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>9</sup> Seher ( shr ): a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>10</sup> Tur ( twr ): a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
<sup>11</sup> Bronze: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	6,784
303. <sup>12</sup> Various costly stones: a statue of the Nile-god, nusa	13,568
<sup>13</sup> Rock-crystal: seals	10,196
<sup>14</sup> “ “ bracelets	10,196
<sup>15</sup> “ “ armlets <sup>1</sup>	10,196

Pl. 41b

<sup>1</sup> Sycamore wood: statues of the Nile-god	5,096
<sup>2</sup> Sycamore wood: statues of the Nile-goddess	5,098
<sup>3</sup> Southern linen: kilts	10,196
<sup>4</sup> Stone: ubas ( wb ?)	31,650
<sup>5</sup> Fire wood: (logs) <sup>1</sup> <sup>c</sup>	510
<sup>6</sup> Charcoal: measures ( gs-r ?)	17

9. RAMSES' CONCLUDING PRAYER TO RE

Pl. 42. Ramses III's Prayer for His Son

304. <sup>1</sup>Complete thou for me the mighty deeds, which I did for thee, O father. I have reached the West<sup>d</sup> like Osiris; grant that I may

<sup>a</sup>See Brugsch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1892, 110 ff.

<sup>b</sup>Some unknown metal.

<sup>c</sup>See 37a, 12, note.

<sup>d</sup>The place of the dead (ymy wr' t).

receive offerings,<sup>a</sup> which come forth before thee; that I may smell <sup>2</sup>incense and myrrh like thy divine ennead. Grant that thy radiance may bathe<sup>b</sup> my head daily; that my soul may live, that he may behold thee at early morning. Do thou the <sup>3</sup>desire of my heart, O august father, for I was a benefactor of thy ka, while I was upon earth. Hear my petition, do that which I say, which gods as well as <sup>4</sup>men announce to thee. Establish my son to be king, as lord of the Two Regions, that he may rule the Two Lands, like thee, as sovereign, L. P. H., in Egypt: <sup>5</sup>Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H., whom thou hast chosen for thyself, to be heir, to magnify thy name. Set the white crown and the divine double crown upon his head, like as thou wert crowned <sup>6</sup>upon earth, as Horus, wearer of the double diadem. Make sound his every limb, make to flourish his bones and his eyes, flourishing in beholding the love of millions.<sup>c</sup> Make his duration <sup>7</sup>upon earth like the Pole Star; ready, like a mighty Bull, seizing the Two Lands. Give to him the Nine Bows, united under his two feet, saluting<sup>d</sup> <sup>8</sup>his name, while his sword is over them. Thou art the one who createdst him, when he was a child; thou didst appoint him to be hereditary prince upon the double throne of Keb; thou didst say: "Let him become king <sup>9</sup>upon the throne of him who begat him." The things which thou ordainest, they come to pass, abiding, and established. Give to him a great and prolonged reign, and jubilees great and mighty, like Tatenen; <sup>10</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H.; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H.

IV. MEMPHITE SECTION

I. INTRODUCTORY VIGNETTE

Pl. 43. Vignette

305. Ramses III stands praying before Ptah, Sekhmet, and Nefertem. The accompanying notes are these:

<sup>a</sup>The word (htp) is determined with a flower like the word htp'i, "bouquet, cluster," but htp, "offering," is meant. The same error is found in 44, 9.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "anoint."

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "millions of love."

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "in the posture of salâm to his name."

Over Ptah

Ptah the great, "South-of-His-Wall." lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands."

Over Sekhmet

Sekhmet the great, beloved of Ptah.

Over Nefertem

Nefertem, protector of the Two Lands.

Before the King

I tell the prayers, praises, adorations, laudations, mighty deeds, and benefactions, which I did for thee in thy presence, O Resi-inebef.<sup>a</sup>

2. PRAYER TO PTAH AND RECITAL OF THE KING'S BENEFACEMENTS

Pl. 44. Introduction

306. <sup>1</sup>The prayers, praises, adorations, laudations, mighty deeds and benefactions, which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, did for <sup>2</sup>his father, Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands;" Sekhmet, the great, beloved of Ptah; Nefertem, protector of the Two Lands; and all the gods of Memphis.

Prayer of Ramses III

307. Said King Usermare-Meriamon, the Great God, <sup>3</sup>to his father, this august god, Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," Tatenen, father of the gods, lofty-plumed, ready-horned, beautiful-faced, upon the great throne:

Praise of Ptah

308. "Hail to thee! Great art thou, revered art thou, <sup>4</sup>O Tatenen, father of the gods, great god of the first time, former of men, maker of gods, beginning that became the first primeval being, after whom happened all that came to pass, who made heaven after<sup>b</sup> the conception of his mind, <sup>5</sup>who suspended it by the elevation of the atmosphere,<sup>c</sup>

<sup>a</sup>The epithet of Ptah; "South-of-His-Wall."

<sup>b</sup>Or: "by."

<sup>c</sup>Šwt. It has the determinative of "heaven" (Piehl gives "ciel"), but the context demands "air or atmosphere," and I render it so, by connecting it with Šw, the air-god, who according to the myth crept between heaven and earth, separated them, and lifted the heavens.

who founded the earth by that which he himself did, who surrounded it with Nun,<sup>a</sup> and the sea; who made the nether world, who satisfied the dead, and caused the sun to come to prosper them, <sup>6</sup>as ruler of eternity, lord of everlastingness; lord of life, who fills the throat and gives breath to every nostril; who preserves alive all men by his sustenance. Lifetime, destiny and bringing up are under his authority, men live by that which comes out of his mouth; maker of <sup>7</sup>offerings for all the gods, in his form as Nun, the great; lord of eternity, everlastingness is under his authority; breath of life for all people; leading the king to his great throne in his name: King of the Two Lands. I am thy son whom thou hast installed as king <sup>8</sup>in the place of my father in peace. I <sup>9</sup>follow thee, thy plans are before me.

The King's Decease

309. Thou didst multiply good things for me, while I was upon earth, thou hast led me to rest by thy side in the western heavens like all the mysterious gods of the Nether World, and I am associated <sup>9</sup>with thy divine ennead in thy mysterious seat, like Apis, thy august son, who is by thy side. Grant that I may eat food<sup>b</sup> of thy divine offerings, of bread, incense, beer, shēdeh, and wine. Grant that <sup>1</sup>I may live again in Tazoser, seeing thee every day like thy divine ennead.

Pl. 45

The King's Benefactions

310. While I was ruler, L. P. H., upon earth as lord of Egypt, did I not incline my heart mightily to thee, <sup>2</sup>in order to seek all benefactions for thy august house, in order to present them before thee in thy city of Memphis?

New Ptah-Temple

311. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee a house<sup>c</sup> anew in thy court, the place of thy heart's rest at thy every appearance (called): "The-House (h' t)-of-

<sup>a</sup>The primeval ocean.

<sup>b</sup>See 42, 1.

<sup>c</sup>So little of Memphis has survived that this temple of Ramses III has disappeared. See a fragment in Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, I, Pl. IV, 2, 4; and another in Annales, III, 26, 27. A mortuary temple of Ramses III at Memphis called: "House-of-Ramses,-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-of-the-Temple-of-Memphis," in Ptolemaic times (British Museum Stela, Young, Hieroglyphics, 77, 78; Brugsch, Thesaurus, 908; the same temple on Berlin sarcophagus, No. 18, ibid., 910). On our passage, see Naville, Transactions of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, VII, 134 f.

Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Ptah," in the <sup>4</sup>great and mysterious court of "Him-Who-is-South-of-His-Wall,"<sup>a</sup> founded in granite, laid in limestone. Its great doorposts bore lintels of Elephantine granite; the doors upon it<sup>b</sup> were of copper in a mixture of six (parts).<sup>c</sup> The great doorways were of gold, with inlay of stone; the bolts<sup>d</sup> of black copper, overlaid with gold, bearing figures of Ketch-gold, with gold in inlay. Its monuments were sculptured and established with labor. Its towers were of stone, approaching <sup>7</sup>heaven. Its "Great Seat" was enlarged like a "Great House," having a door of gold like the double doors of heaven.

Divine Image

312. I wrought upon thy image, <sup>8</sup>resting in its shrine, in gold, silver, and real, costly stone, established with labor.

Endowment

313. I equipped it with serf-laborers in numerous lists, having lands and herds in South and North.

Pl. 46

<sup>1</sup>Its storehouses were overflowing with numerous possessions, naval archers, collectors of honey, delivering incense and delivering silver, <sup>2</sup>merchants without number, deliveries of clean grain by the ten-thousand; numerous gardens, plentiful in shedeh and wine; cattle yards, bulls, bullocks, and <sup>3</sup>fattening-houses; the products of Egypt, God's-Land, Syria and Kush. I made them more numerous than the sand, in its august storehouse, the magazine containing divine offerings, supplied <sup>4</sup>with food, without lack in any of its places. They were for thy ka, O sole lord, maker of what is, Ptah, "South-of-His-Wall," ruler of eternity. <sup>5</sup>I gave to thee 20,000 16-fold heket of grain, to convey them to thy house each year, in order to provision thy temple with divine offerings, in addition to the daily offerings which were before me.

<sup>a</sup>See § 305 (last word).

<sup>b</sup>Masculine, referring to the lintel, not to the temple, which is here feminine. The doors were mounted in lintel and threshold, and not from the doorposts.

<sup>c</sup>See 6, q. note.

<sup>d</sup>Or possibly all the mountings, including hinges.

Older Ptah-Temple

314. <sup>6</sup>I restored the house of Ptah, thy great seat, I caused it to be like the horizon, wherein Re is. I filled its storehouses with numerous possessions. I loaded its granaries with barley and spelt.

Cultus Image and its Portable Shrine

315. <sup>7</sup>I made a design for thy processional image, in the gold-house anew, of thy temple, wrought<sup>a</sup> of gold, native silver, real lapis lazuli, malachite, and every splendid costly stone. <sup>8</sup>I made its august shrine like the horizon of heaven, in<sup>b</sup> thy barque in the midst of it, resting upon it. I set up its great [—]. <sup>9</sup>The shrine was with a [roof], two columns, and an upper [cornice] of the [roof]; they were of gold in [raised work], in real, costly stone. I wrought upon its great carrying-poles, overlaid with fine gold, engraved with thy name. When thou appearest with glad heart in Ineb-Sebek (Ynb-Sbk)<sup>c</sup> in thy great and mysterious form of "Him-Who-is-South-of-His-Wall (Ptah)," thou fillest thy city of Memphis with the radiance of thy limbs, and the people rejoice to see thy beauty.

Pl. 47

Restoration of Hatkeptah

316. <sup>2</sup>I cleansed Hatkeptah,<sup>d</sup> thy splendid seat; I built its temples, which had gone to ruin; I fashioned its gods in their august forms, of gold, silver, every costly stone in the gold-houses.

Silver Tablets

317. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee great tablets of silver in hammered work, engraved and carved with the graver's tool, in the great name of thy majesty, with the adorations and prayers which I offered before thee, and bearing the decrees for the administration of thy house forever.

<sup>a</sup>Adjective, referring to the image.

<sup>b</sup>The shrine stood in the center of the model of a Nile boat, and the whole was borne on poles, supported on the shoulders of the priests.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "Wall-of-Sebek," a sanctuary in Memphis, whence the god is carried in the shrine, amid rejoicing multitudes.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "House-of-the-Ka-of-Ptah," an ancient name of the Ptah-temple of Memphis, frequently also applied to the city itself.

Bronze Tablets

318. 4I made for thee two tablets of a mixture of six (parts),<sup>a</sup> being of the color of fine mountain gold, engraved and adorned with thy name, carved with the graver's tool, with the excellent praises which I offered to thy ka.

Amulets

319. 5I made for thee august amulets for thy body, of fine Ketem-gold, and of silver, in beaten work, in raised work with inlay of real lapis lazuli, in order to put them upon thy limbs in thy "Great Seat," and all the gods of the house of Ptah were contented therewith.

Monolithic Shrine

320. I made for thee a mysterious shrine of Elephantine granite, established with work forever, of a single block, having double doors of bronze, of a mixture of six (parts),<sup>a</sup> engraved with thy august name, forever. 7Ptah, Sekhmet, and Nefertem rest in it, while statues<sup>b</sup> of the king are by their side, to present offerings before them. I founded for them divine offerings presented before them, enduring for thee forever, before thy beautiful face.

Temple Regulations

321. 8I made for thee great decrees with secret words, recorded in the hall of writings of Egypt, made into stelæ of stone engraved with the graver's tool, for the administration of thy august house, forever; and the administration of thy pure settlement of women. I brought their children who were forsaken, being people of the serf-laborers, (in) the hands of others. I put them for thee into the offices in the house of Ptah, and there were made for them decrees forever.

Storehouses for the Feasts

322. 10I made for thee storehouses for the "Feasts of the Appearance" in thy divine house. They were built upon the (temple) soil, and established with labor. I filled them with slaves whom I had carried off as captives, to serve for thy divine offerings, full and pure, in order

<sup>a</sup>Alloy of bronze, see 6, 9.

<sup>b</sup>Such statues are shown in the reliefs at Medinet Habu (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 212, a).

<sup>11</sup>to provision the house of Ptah with food and provisions, in order to double that which was before thee, O Resi-inbef (Ptah); and thy divine ennead was glad of heart, and rejoiced over them.

Pl. 48. Cattle and Poultry Yards

323. <sup>1</sup>I made for thee cattle yards, filled with bulls and bullocks; fattening-houses likewise, containing fat geese; poultry yards <sup>1</sup>of the exactions<sup>1</sup> containing wild fowl, in order to offer to thy ka every day.

Collectors

324. <sup>2</sup>I made for thee archers and collectors of honey, delivering incense; I established for them tax-officials (mš ʔ k ʔ bwy) to conduct them and to collect their annual impost for thy august storehouse, in order to fill the magazines of thy house with numerous possessions, in order to double thy divine offerings, for presentation to thy ka.

Granaries

325. <sup>3</sup>I made for thee granaries filled with barley and spelt, containing many grain-heaps, towering to heaven, in order to provision thy temple every day, before thy lovely face, O maker of heaven and earth.

Statues of the King

326. <sup>4</sup>I made for thee statues of the king, L. P. H., of gold in beaten work; others of pure silver in beaten work likewise, kneeling upon the ground before thee,<sup>a</sup> bearing a vase and an offering-tablet, containing divine offerings of bread and beer, in order to offer them before thee every day.

Cultus Implements

327. <sup>5</sup>I made for thee a great vase-stand for thy court, overlaid with fine gold, with labor; its vases were of gold and silver, carved with thy name, supplied with divine offerings and with every good thing, in order to offer (them) before thee at early morning.

Red Sea and Mediterranean Ships

328. <sup>6</sup>I made for thee transports and galleys<sup>b</sup> in the midst of the sea, manned with galley-crews in numerous lists, in order to transport the products of God's-Land, and the impost of the land of Zahi (D<sup>3</sup> -h<sup>2</sup>) to thy great storehouses in thy city of Memphis.

<sup>a</sup>See 28, 10, note.

<sup>b</sup>According to 51a, 13, there were but two ships: evidently one on the Mediterranean and one on the Red Sea.

Festival Oblations

329. <sup>7</sup>I made for thee great festival oblations as new foundations, in order to offer (them) to thy ka at each of thy appearances. They were supplied with bread, beer, oxen, fowl, incense, fruit, vegetables, shedeh, wine, royal linen, plentiful mek-linen, fine southern linen, <sup>8</sup>oil, incense, honey, dried myrrh, every good aromatic wood, sweet in fragrance, before thy lovely face, O lord of gods.

Feast of the "First-of-the-Flood"

330. <sup>9</sup>I made for thee a great festival oblation of the "First-of-the-Flood"<sup>a</sup> for thy great, august and lovely name, Ptah-Nun, the great, father of the gods. They were supplied with food like water in thy great and august court of Ineb-Sebek,<sup>b</sup> <sup>10</sup>for all thy images, and the gods of the deeps. They <sup>11</sup>were paid<sup>1</sup> dues and <sup>12</sup>—<sup>1</sup> from the storehouses, magazines, granaries, cattle yards, and poultry yards each year, in order to satisfy the great council of Nun, so that they are satisfied and rejoicing in the feast at the sight of them.

Sacred Barge

331. <sup>11</sup>I hewed thy august barge, O lord of eternity, of 130<sup>c</sup> cubits length upon the river; of great new<sup>d</sup> cedars, of the best of the royal domain. Its "Great House" was of gold, and of real costly stones, as far as the water; and of gold on each side of it. Its bow

Pl. 49

<sup>1</sup>bore a pair of hawks of fine gold, with inlay of every costly stone, more beautiful in work than the evening-barque. The stern was of fine gold, its two steering-oars <sup>1</sup>wrought<sup>1</sup> in fine gold. Ptah, the beautiful of face, South-of-His-Wall, appeared, <sup>2</sup>in order to rest in its "Great House," like the horizon-god, while his heart was satisfied and glad at

<sup>a</sup>A feast (tp-nwy) on the canal of Memphis. Compare the feast of the "First-of-the-River" (tp-yr) at Thebes, e. g., on the Lateran obelisk (II, 838).

<sup>b</sup>See 47, 1.

<sup>c</sup>About 217 feet.

<sup>d</sup>Text has "real" (m<sup>3</sup> w), which must be an error for the usual adjective, "new" (m<sup>3</sup> w).

the sight of it, making his beautiful voyage upon the flood, to his daughter, the mistress of the sycamore (Hathor), <sup>3</sup>on the south of Memphis. The people<sup>a</sup> rejoice at the sight of him, and there is jubilee before him to<sup>b</sup> his august house.

Sacred Cattle

332. <sup>4</sup>I protected the sacred cattle of Apis, male and female, which had been neglected in the herds of every house. I made them all more divine than their<sup>c</sup> sacred cattle. <sup>5</sup>I extended their boundaries to their accustomed places, which others had taken from them for fields. Their landmarks were set up, engraved with thy name; and there were made for them decrees for administering them on earth.

Supplies of Incense

333. <sup>6</sup>I brought to thee plentiful tribute of myrrh, in order to go around thy temple with the fragrance of Punt for thy august nostrils at early morning. <sup>7</sup>I planted incense and myrrh-sycamores in thy great and august court in Ineb-Sebek,<sup>d</sup> being those which my hands brought from the country of God's-Land, in order to satisfy thy two serpent-goddesses every morning.

Cultus Vessels

334. <sup>8</sup>I made for thee table-vessels for thy "Great Seat," being censers, vases (nms' t), altar-vessels bearing gen (gn)-vases, heset (hsyw' t)-vases, ekhu (' h'w)-vessels, enkhi (' nhy' w')-vases, and great altar-vessels for oblations, <sup>9</sup>bearing divine offerings. They were of fine gold and silver, in beaten work, with inlay of every costly stone without number, in order to present them to thy ka every day, O Ptah, father of gods, former of men.

First Jubilee

335. <sup>10</sup>I celebrated for thee the first jubilee (hb-s[d]) of my reign,<sup>e</sup> as a very great feast of Tatenen. I doubled for thee that which was done in the midst of the court, and there was offered to thee <sup>11</sup>a festival offering, consisting of numerous oblations of bread, wine, beer, shedeh, vegetables, bulls, bullocks, calves by the hundred-thousand, cows by <sup>a</sup>Original has two words for "people," rhy' t and hnm' t.

<sup>b</sup>Till he reaches his house.

<sup>d</sup>See 47, 1.

<sup>c</sup>To whom "their" refers is not evident.

<sup>e</sup>See §§ 413-15.

the ten-thousand, without number: the products of <sup>12</sup>the lands of Egypt like the sand of the shore. The gods of South and North were gathered in the midst of it.<sup>a</sup> I restored thy temple, the jubilee-houses

Pl. 50

<sup>1</sup>which were before in ruins, since the (former) kings. I wrought upon<sup>b</sup> thy divine ennead, the lords of the jubilee (hb-st), in gold, silver, and costly stones, as formerly. <sup>2</sup>I made for them clothing of royal linen and mek-linen; I mixed for them ointment for their serpent-crests. I founded divine offerings, <sup>3</sup>offered to their ka's, abiding as daily offerings for their ka's forever.

Lists

336. <sup>4</sup>Behold, I have, listed<sup>c</sup> the benefactions which I did before thee, O Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, lord of the White Wall (Memphis), that the gods of the house of Ptah may know of my benefactions.

3. PTAH'S ESTATE

Pl. 51a

337. <sup>1</sup>List of the things, cattle, gardens, lands, galleys, workshops, and towns, which <sup>2</sup>King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave to his august father, Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," as property forever and ever.

People Attached to Temples, Etc.

338. <sup>3</sup>"The-House (h't)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Ptah," under charge of the officials:

<sup>4</sup> "Herd-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House, of-Ptah," under charge of the overseer of herds, Huy:	09
heads	1,361
<sup>5</sup> "House ( pr )-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.," the town <sup>e</sup> upon the western road and western canal, under charge of the steward, Penithtowe ( Pn-ytt-t' wy ):	40
heads

<sup>a</sup>This exactly accords with the record of the vizier Ta's visit to the South, "to take the gods of the South" (§§ 413, 414).

<sup>b</sup>Upon their images.

<sup>c</sup>See 9, 8.

<sup>d</sup>See 10, 2, note.

<sup>e</sup>This is the town mentioned as the limit of the pursuit of the Libyans (§ 102). The "western canal" is probably the "Water of Re" (10, 8). It is mentioned again in § 340.

“House ( pr )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Ptah,” under charge of Huy, who is chief of the house	heads	16
<sup>7</sup> People whom he gave to the house of Ptah, the great, “South-of-His-Wall,” lord of “Life-of-the-Two-Lands,” who were on account of the house, under charge of the High Priest and the officials:	heads	841
<sup>8</sup> “Ptah - of - Ramses - Ruler - of - Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Finding-Place-in-the-House-of-Ptah,” <sup>a</sup> under charge of the deputy, Ptahmose:	heads	7
<sup>9</sup> Syrians and Negroes of the captivity of his majesty, L. P. H., whom he gave to the house of Ptah:	persons <sup>b</sup>	205
<sup>10</sup> Total, heads		3,079

Miscellaneous Property

339. <sup>11</sup> Various cattle		10,047
<sup>12</sup> Gardens and groves		5
<sup>13</sup> Transports and galleys <sup>c</sup>		2
	Pl. 51b
<sup>1</sup> Lands: stat		10,154
<sup>2</sup> Town		1

4. PTAH'S INCOME

340. <sup>3</sup>Things exacted, impost of the people of “The-House (h' t)-of - Ramses - Ruler - of - Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in - the - House - of - Ptah;” <sup>4</sup>“Herd - of - Ramses - Ruler - of - Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in - the - House - of - Ptah;” “House (pr)-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-the-Town-<sup>5</sup>on-the-Western-Canal;” “House (pr)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis-in-the-House-of-Ptah;” and the temples (r<sup>3</sup>-pr) of this house; which<sup>d</sup> was delivered into <sup>6</sup>their treasuries as their dues:

341. <sup>7</sup> Silver	98 deben, $3\frac{2}{3}$ $\frac{1}{4}$ kidet
<sup>8</sup> Fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen: various garments		133 $\frac{1}{2}$
<sup>9</sup> Wine: jars ( mn )		390

<sup>a</sup>The name of some particular statue of Ptah.

<sup>b</sup>See 10, 14 and 15.

<sup>c</sup>See 48, 6.

<sup>d</sup>The antecedent of this pronoun is “impost,” in l. 3.

<sup>10</sup> Silver, in things of the impost of the people, for the divine offerings:	141 deben, 31 $\frac{1}{10}$ kidet
<sup>11</sup> Clean grain of the impost of the peasants: 16-fold heket	37,400
<sup>12</sup> Vegetables: bundles	600
<sup>13</sup> Bulls, bullocks, calves, cows, cattle of [—], and cattle of [—] of the herds	15 $\frac{1}{2}$

Pl. 52a

<sup>1</sup> Live geese of the exactions	135
<sup>2</sup> Products of Egypt, products of God's-Land, products of Syria, products of Kush <sup>3</sup> and of the oasis, <sup>a</sup> for the divine offerings in numerous lists.

5. THE KING'S GIFTS TO PTAH

342. <sup>4</sup>Gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, every splendid, costly stone, copper, black copper, <sup>5</sup>garments of royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored garments, jars,<sup>b</sup> cattle, fowl, and everything, <sup>6</sup>which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave as gifts of the king, L. P. H., to <sup>7</sup>the house of Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," and (to) the temples in his ownership, from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years:

343. <sup>8</sup> Fine gold, gold of two times, white gold in vessels and ornaments	263 deben, 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ kidet
<sup>9</sup> Gold: ornaments of the prince	2 " "
<sup>10</sup> Silver in vessels and scraps	342 " 7 $\frac{1}{8}$ "
<sup>11</sup> Silver in beaten work: a great tablet of 1 cubit, 6 palms' length, 1 cubit, 1 palm, 3 fingers' width: 1, making	173 " 8 $\frac{3}{8}$ "
<sup>12</sup> Total, silver in vessels and ornaments	516 " 6 "

Pl. 52b

<sup>1</sup> Total, gold and silver in vessels, ornaments and scraps	780 deben, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ kidet
<sup>2</sup> Real lapis lazuli, mounted in gold and <sup>3</sup> fastened <sup>1</sup> with 2 strings of <sup>4</sup> beads <sup>1</sup> : 1, making	3 "

<sup>a</sup>See 12b, 13.<sup>b</sup>Jars of oil, wine, shedeh, honey, etc.

<sup>3</sup> Real lapis lazuli	3 deben, 2 kidet
<sup>4</sup> Real malachite	2 “
<sup>5</sup> Green feldspar ( nšm' t )	10 “
<sup>6</sup> Lapis lazuli, and real malachite: scarabs mounted and pivoted in gold	36
<sup>7</sup> Lapis lazuli: large scarabs	46
<sup>8</sup> Malachite: large scarabs	46
<sup>9</sup> Bronze in hammered work, of a mixture of 6 (parts <sup>1</sup> ): a great tablet, making	245 deben
<sup>10</sup> Bronze in beaten work, of a mixture of 6 (parts <sup>1</sup> ): a great tablet, making	65 “
<sup>11</sup> Bronze in vessels and scraps	1,708 “
<sup>12</sup> Total, bronze in vessels and scraps	2,018 “
344. <sup>13</sup> Royal linen, mek-linen, double-fine south- ern linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, and colored linen, various garments	7,026
<sup>14</sup> Myrrh: deben	1,034
<sup>15</sup> White incense, honey, oil, fat, butter: various jars (°cc)	1,046
<sup>16</sup> Shedeh, and wine: various jars (°cc)	25,978

Pl. 53a

<sup>1</sup> Total, various jars (°cc)	27,024
<sup>2</sup> Ivory: tusks	1
<sup>3</sup> Nenybu ( N-n-y-bw ) wood: deben	725
<sup>4</sup> Cassia: deben	894
<sup>5</sup> Cinnamon wood: bundles	45
<sup>6</sup> Sticks <sup>a</sup> of cinnamon: measures ( msty )	28
<sup>7</sup> Syrian barley: heket	40
<sup>8</sup> Rosemary <sup>1</sup> : measures ( msty )	40
<sup>9</sup> Yufiti ( Yw-fy-ty )-plant: measures ( msty )	80
<sup>10</sup> Semu ( s<sup>c</sup>mw )-plant: measures ( msty )	11
<sup>11</sup> Fruit: heket	14
345. <sup>12</sup> Cedar: planks	8
<sup>13</sup> Mesdemet ( msdm' t ) stone: deben	50
<sup>14</sup> Dedmet ( ddm' t ) flowers: measures ( dm<sup>3</sup>w )	50
<sup>15</sup> Natron: deben	14,400

<sup>a</sup>See 34a, 8.

Pl. 53b

<sup>1</sup> Rock-crystal: beads	31,000
<sup>2</sup> “ “ cut: hin	441
<sup>3</sup> “ “ seals	3,200
<sup>4</sup> Wrought wood: seals	31
<sup>5</sup> Bulls, bullocks, heifers, calves, and various cattle	979
<sup>6</sup> Live geese	269
<sup>7</sup> Live turpu ( twrp )-geese	150
<sup>8</sup> Live urdu ( wrdw )-birds with golden beaks	1,035
<sup>9</sup> Live urdu ( wrdw )-birds	41,980
<sup>10</sup> Live water-fowl	576
<sup>11</sup> Total, various fowl	44,010

6. GRAIN FOR THE OLD FEASTS

346. <sup>12</sup>Clean grain of the divine offerings of the feasts of heaven and the feasts of the beginnings of the seasons, which <sup>13</sup>King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded for his father, Ptah, the great, “South-of-His-Wall,” lord of “Life-of-the-Two-Lands,” <sup>14</sup>as increase of the divine offerings, and as increase of the daily offerings, doubling that which was before me, L. P. H.

Pl. 54a

<sup>15</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years: 16-fold heket: 947,688

7. OFFERINGS TO THE NILE-GOD

347. <sup>24</sup>“Books of the Nile-God,” which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, founded for his august father, <sup>3</sup>Ptah, the great, “South-of-His-Wall,” lord of “Life-of-the-Two-Lands,” from the year 29 to the year 31, making 3 years:

<sup>4</sup> Fine bread of the divine offerings: loaves ( by<sup>3</sup> t )	73,800
<sup>5</sup> “ “ “ “ “ loaves ( pr-sn )	191,142
<sup>6</sup> “ “ “ “ “ pyramidal loaves	6,150
<sup>7</sup> Cakes: pyramidal loaves	14,760
<sup>8</sup> Beer: jars ( ds )	1,396
<sup>9</sup> Dried dates: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,396
<sup>10</sup> Dates: measures ( md<sup>3</sup> ) 2,396, making	— <sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Omitted by the scribe.

<sup>11</sup> Clean grain [—]: 16-fold heket	3,633 $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{8}$
<sup>12</sup> Bulls	41
<sup>13</sup> Cows	164
Total	205

Pl. 54b

<sup>1</sup> Various goats	205
<sup>2</sup> Live geese	574
<sup>3</sup> Live fowl ( bt <sup>c</sup> )	84
<sup>4</sup> Live hatching-fowl	164
<sup>5</sup> Live water-fowl	287
<sup>6</sup> Sesha ( s <sup>2</sup> - c <sup>3</sup> )-birds	3,025
<sup>7</sup> Total, various fowl	4,339 <sup>a</sup>
348. <sup>8</sup> Wine: jars ( mn )	820
<sup>9</sup> Wine: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,366
<sup>10</sup> Onions: measures ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,366
<sup>11</sup> Salt ( spr ): measures ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,366
<sup>12</sup> Incense: censerfuls	164
<sup>13</sup> “ measures ( spr )	82
<sup>14</sup> “ jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	19,892
<sup>15</sup> “ deben	4,469

Pl. 55a

<sup>1</sup> Best oil: jars ( fbp <sup>2</sup> )	164
<sup>2</sup> Best oil: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	574
<sup>3</sup> Cinnamon: logs	574
<sup>4</sup> Myrrh: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,396
<sup>5</sup> Eye-paint: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,396
<sup>6</sup> Uz ( w d )-mineral: jars ( <sup>c</sup> )	2,396
349. <sup>7</sup> Gold: statues of the Nile-god	656
<sup>8</sup> Gold: nusa	656
<sup>9</sup> Gold: nusa <sup>b</sup>	656
<sup>10</sup> Silver: statues of the Nile-god	656

<sup>a</sup>The correct total is 4,134.

<sup>b</sup>This is evidently a dittography; for the silver statues are followed only by the same number of nusa of silver (l. 11), so that the repetition of the gold (l. 9) is superfluous.

<sup>11</sup> Silver: nusa	656
<sup>12</sup> Every real, costly stone: statues of the Nile-god	15,744
<sup>13</sup> Every real, costly stone: nusa	15,744
<sup>14</sup> Sycamore wood: statues of the Nile-god	984
<sup>15</sup> Sycamore wood: statues of the Nile-goddess	984
<sup>16</sup> Rock-crystal: bracelets	2,968
<sup>17</sup> Rock-crystal: seals	2,968

Pl. 55b

350. <sup>1</sup> Southern linen: kilts	2,968
<sup>2</sup> Honey for cakes: hin	66
<sup>3</sup> “ jars ( mht )	164
<sup>4</sup> “ jars ( pw-g <sup>2</sup> )	3,280
<sup>5</sup> White fat for cakes: hin	250
<sup>6</sup> White fat: jars (°)	574
<sup>7</sup> Shelled beans: jars (°)	2,396
<sup>8</sup> Natron: jars (°)	2,396
<sup>9</sup> Seneb ( snb )-berries: jars (°)	2,396
<sup>10</sup> Every fine fruit: jars (°)	22,960
<sup>11</sup> Milk: jars ( nms <sup>1</sup> )	2,396
<sup>12</sup> Butter: jars ( nms <sup>1</sup> )	2,396
<sup>13</sup> Best fruit: jars ( g <sup>2</sup> y )	2,396
<sup>14</sup> Fruit: jars ( g <sup>2</sup> y )	2,396
<sup>15</sup> Fruit: jars ( mht )	45,100

Pl. 56a

<sup>1</sup> Raisins in measures ( yp <sup>1</sup> t )	21,000
<sup>2</sup> Carob-pods in measures ( yp <sup>1</sup> t )	21,000
<sup>3</sup> Herbs: bundles ( htp )	2,396
<sup>4</sup> Cyperus of the shore, for the hand	14,350
<sup>5</sup> Pomegranates <sup>1</sup> in measures ( yp <sup>1</sup> t )	21,000
<sup>6</sup> Live “garden fragrance” <sup>a</sup>	21,000
<sup>7</sup> Isi-plant, for the hand	1,640
<sup>8</sup> Flowers: garlands	2,970
<sup>9</sup> Blossoms: <sup>b</sup> bouquets	21,000
<sup>10</sup> Blossoms: <sup>b</sup> clusters ( htp <sup>1</sup> t )	21,000
<sup>11</sup> Stone: uba ( wbp <sup>2</sup> )	15,150
<sup>12</sup> Palm-fiber: measures ( msty )	15,150

<sup>a</sup>See 21a, 4.<sup>b</sup>See 21a, 2.

8. CONCLUDING PRAYER OF RAMSES III

Pl. 56b

351. <sup>1</sup>Give to me thy eyes and thy ears, O lord, Ptah, father of fathers, former of the gods; and hear <sup>2</sup>my plea, which I make before thee. I am thy beloved son, great in benefactions. Install <sup>3</sup>my son to be king, establish him upon thy throne as ruler of every land over the people, Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H., the child <sup>4</sup>who came forth from thy limbs. Grant that he may be crowned upon earth like the son of Isis (Horus), when he took the etef-crown, bearing the <sup>5</sup>—<sup>7</sup>. Grant <sup>6</sup>that he may rest upon thy throne as king of the Two Lands, as Horus, the mighty Bull, beloved of Mat. Give to him my kingdom <sup>6</sup>according as thou makest his life happy upon earth, possessed of joy. Make his sword victorious, while the lands and countries fall <sup>7</sup>beneath his feet forever. Let him take possession of Egypt as ruler, L. P. H., of the Two Lands; let him be divine <sup>8</sup>before thee, possessed of thy favor. Extend for him the boundaries of the Nine Bows; let them come because of his might, that they may do obeisance to him. <sup>9</sup>Give satisfying life, united with his limbs, and health for his members at every season, <sup>10</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands; Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H., Son of Re, Lord of Diadems; Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H.

V. GENERAL SECTION

(SMALL TEMPLES)

I. PRAYER TO THE GODS AND RECITAL OF THE KING'S BENEFLECTIONS

Pl. 57. Introduction

352. <sup>1</sup>The praises, prayers, adorations, laudations, mighty deeds, and numerous benefactions, which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, did for his fathers (sic!), all the gods and goddesses of South and North.

Prayer of Ramses III

353. <sup>2</sup>Said King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, in praising and magnifying all the gods of South and North:

Praise of the Gods

<sup>3</sup>Hail to you, gods and goddesses, lords of heaven, earth, and the Nether World, great of foot in the barque of millions of years, by the side of your<sup>a</sup> father, Re. His heart is satisfied when he sees their beauty, in order to make prosperous the land of Egypt, bringing a Nile that overflows from their mouth, <sup>4</sup>leading it from their mouth, that the lords of eternity and everlastingness may eat. Under their charge is the breath of life, and the term of life is (under) their seal, which their father made, on coming forth from their mouth. He rejoices, and flourishes at the sight of them, the great in heaven, the mighty <sup>5</sup>in earth, giving breath to nostrils that were stopped up. I am your son whom your hands created, whom ye crowned as ruler, L. P. H., of every land. Ye wrought for me good things upon earth, that I might assume my office in peace.

Benefactions to the Gods

354. Was not my heart constant in seeking out mighty benefactions, <sup>6</sup>for your temples? I equipped them with great decrees, recorded in every hall of writings; with their people, their lands, their herds; with their galleys and ships upon the Nile. I restored their <sup>7</sup>temples which formerly were in ruin. I founded for you divine offerings, as an increase of that which was before you. I wrought for you in the gold-houses, in gold, silver, lapis lazuli, and malachite. I made plans for your storehouses. I completed them with numerous possessions. <sup>8</sup>I filled your granaries with barley and spelt, in heaps. I built for you houses and temples, carved with your name forever. I provided their serf-laborers, I filled them with numerous people. I did not take people as a tithe, <sup>9</sup>from the temples of any gods, since those kings;<sup>b</sup> doing it in order to appoint them to the infantry and chariotry. I made edicts for administering them upon earth, for the kings who shall be after me. I presented to you oblations before you, <sup>10</sup>supplied with every good thing. I made for you storehouses for the "Feast of the Appearance;" I filled them with plentiful food. I made for you table-vessels of gold, silver, and copper by the hundred-thousand. I hewed your barges upon the Nile, <sup>11</sup>bearing a "Great House,"<sup>c</sup> overlaid with gold.

<sup>a</sup>Original has "their," as usual in such constructions in Egyptian.

<sup>b</sup>He means that he did not levy upon the people presented to the temples by former kings, in order to secure troops.

<sup>c</sup>Shrine.

Temple of Onouris at Thinis

355. I made an august [house]<sup>a</sup> of stone of Ayan (<sup>c</sup>yn<sup>2</sup>) in the house of my father, Onouris-Shu, son of Re (called): "The-House (h' t)-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-the-Judge-in-the-House-of-Onouris." I filled it with people and slaves of the choicest. <sup>12</sup>Its storehouse contained plentiful possessions; the granaries contained grain. I founded for it daily divine offerings, in order to offer them to thy ka, O Shu, son of Re. I surrounded the house (pr) of Onouris with a wall, built with 20 [courses] in the ground foundation, and a height of 30 cubits; having <sup>13</sup>ramps, [towers]<sup>1, b</sup> and battlements on its every side. Its doorposts and lintels were of stone of Ayan (<sup>c</sup>yn<sup>2</sup>), bearing doors of cedar mounted with copper, excluding<sup>c</sup> the Asiatics and Tehenu who transgressed their limits of old.

Pl. 58. Temple of Thoth at Hermopolis

356. <sup>1</sup>I did numerous benefactions in Hesret (Hsr<sup>2</sup>) for my father Thoth, dwelling in Hermopolis. I built for him a house anew in his court; it was <sup>2</sup>a mysterious chapel for the All-Lord. I made for him another house as a dwelling-house; it was the horizon of heaven before him. When he appeared, he was contented in heart, to rest in them; <sup>3</sup>he rejoiced and was glad to see them. I supplied them with food and provisions, containing the products of every land; numerous slaves whom I brought into the offices over them. I doubled the divine offerings presented before him from the storehouse of the "Feast of the Appearance," containing provisions. I made for him festal offerings, and oblations of the feasts of the first of the seasons, in order to satisfy his two serpent-goddesses <sup>5</sup>at every season. I surrounded the house of Thoth with a wall, built with twenty [courses] in the ground foundation, and a height of 30 cubits, having ramps, [towers]<sup>1, b</sup> and battlements on its every side. <sup>6</sup>Its doorposts and lintels were of stone of Ayan (<sup>c</sup>yn<sup>2</sup>), bearing doors of cedar, mounted with copper, in order to exclude the Asiatics and Tehenu, who trod their limits from of old.

<sup>a</sup>Some similar word has been omitted by the scribe.

<sup>b</sup>See 4, 2.

<sup>c</sup>See 58, 6.

Temple of Osiris at Abydos<sup>a</sup>

357. <sup>7</sup>I restored Abydos, the district of Osiris, by benefactions<sup>b</sup> in Towêr. I built my house<sup>c</sup> of stone in the midst of his temple, like Atum's great house<sup>8</sup> of heaven. I settled it with people bearing numerous offices, rich and <sup>1</sup>poor<sup>1</sup> of all that exist. I made for it divine offerings, the gifts of its altar, O my father, <sup>9</sup>Osiris, lord of Tazoser. I made for him a statue of the king, L. P. H., presenting monuments and table vessels likewise, of gold and silver.<sup>d</sup> I surrounded the house (pr) of Osiris <sup>10</sup>and Harsiese with a great wall, towering like a mountain of gritstone, with <sup>1</sup>ramps<sup>1</sup> and <sup>1</sup>towers<sup>1</sup>;<sup>e</sup> bearing battlements, and having doorposts of stone and doors of cedar. <sup>11</sup>I hewed a great barge for Osiris, like the evening-barque which bears the sun.

Temple of Upwawet at Siut

358. <sup>12</sup>I restored the walls in the house of my father, Upwawet, of the South, lord of Siut (S<sup>3</sup> yw' t). I built my house therein, of stone of Ayan (ç yn<sup>3</sup>), inscribed and engraved with the graver's tool in his august name. <sup>1</sup>I completed it with the good things of every land. I assigned to it serf-laborers in numerous lists. I made for it a store-house anew containing divine offerings, in order to present them to his ka daily. I hewed for him <sup>2</sup>a great barge of the "First-of-the-River," like the morning-barque of Re which is in heaven. I walled about his house with a wall, established with labor, with twenty <sup>1</sup>courses<sup>1</sup> in the ground foundation, and with a height of 30 cubits; having ramps, <sup>3</sup>towers<sup>3</sup> and battlements in its whole circumference; great doorposts of stone, and doors of cedar, fitted with mountings (of bronze) of a mixture of six (<sup>1</sup>parts<sup>1</sup>),<sup>f</sup> engraved with the great name of thy majesty, forever.

Pl. 59

Temple of Sutekh at Ombos

359. <sup>4</sup>I restored the house of Sutekh, lord of Ombos; I built its walls which were in ruin, I equipped the house in its midst in his divine

<sup>a</sup>See Mariette, Abydos, I, 4, 5, 10, for the name of this temple, of which only fragments have survived.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "examples of benefaction."

<sup>c</sup>His palace, as at Medinet Habu.

<sup>d</sup>The statue bore sacrificial vessels, etc.

<sup>e</sup>See 4, 2.

<sup>f</sup>See 6, 9.

name, built with excellent work, <sup>5</sup>forever. "House-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Sutekh-of-Ombos," was its great name. I equipped it with slaves, the captives and people, whom I created. I made for him herds in the North, in order <sup>6</sup>to present them to his ka as a daily offering. I made for him divine offerings anew, being an increase of the daily offerings which were before him. I gave to him lands, high and low, and islands, in the South <sup>7</sup>and North, bearing barley and spelt. His treasury was supplied with the things which my hands brought, in order to double the feasts before him every day.

Temple of Horus at Athribis<sup>a</sup>

360. <sup>8</sup>I did numerous benefactions among the great sacred cattle before my father, Harkhentikhet. I restored the walls of his temple, built and made anew, smoothed and polished. The divine offerings were doubled for him as daily offerings before his lovely face every morning. I brought for him tribute of male and female slaves, silver, gold, royal linen, fine southern linen, oil, <sup>9</sup>incense, honey, bulls, and bullocks. I made for him a herd<sup>b</sup> anew with numerous cattle, in order to present (them) to his ka, the great prince. I arranged the administration of his august house on water and land; it was made <sup>10</sup>into great great decrees<sup>c</sup> in his name, forever. I set the prophets and inspectors of his house over them, to administer its serf-laborers, and to offer to his house.

Deposition of the Rebellious Vizier in Athribis

361. I cast out the vizier who had entered <sup>11</sup>into their midst, I took away all his people who were with him. I made it like the great temples in this land, protected and defended, forever and ever.<sup>d</sup> I brought (back again) all its people <sup>12</sup>who had been cast out, with every man and every inspector, appointed to carry on their administration in his august house.

Pl. 60

<sup>a</sup>See the rare titles of the priests of Athribis, Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1,414.

<sup>b</sup>See 62a, 4.

<sup>c</sup>The adjective would indicate that the stelæ containing the decrees are meant.

<sup>d</sup>Read hn c dt; so Piehl and others.

Temple<sup>a</sup> of Sutekh in the Residence City

362. <sup>1</sup>I made a great temple, enlarged with labor, in the house of "Sutekh - of - Ramses (II) - Meriamon, - L. - P. - H.," built, laid, smoothed, and inscribed with designs; having doorposts of <sup>3</sup>stone, and doors of cedar. "House-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis, - L. - P. - H., - in-the-House-of-Sutekh," its name was called forever. I assigned to it serf-laborers of the people whom I created, male and female slaves whom I carried off as captives of <sup>4</sup>my sword. I made for him divine offerings, full and pure, in order to offer them to his ka every day. I filled his treasury with possessions without number, with granaries of grain by the ten-thousand, herds with cattle <sup>5</sup>like the sand, in order to offer them to thy ka, O thou great in might.

Good Works for All Gods and Goddesses

363. <sup>6</sup>I did mighty deeds and benefactions, a numerous multitude, for the gods and goddesses of South and North. I wrought upon their images in the gold-houses, I built that which <sup>7</sup>had fallen to ruin in their temples. I made houses and temples in their courts; I planted for them groves; I dug for them lakes; I founded for them divine offerings of barley <sup>8</sup>and wheat, wine, incense, fruit, cattle, and fowl. I built the "Shadows of Re"<sup>b</sup> for their districts, abiding, with divine offerings for every day. I made great decrees for the administration of their temples, <sup>9</sup>recorded in the hall of writings forever. <sup>10</sup>Behold, the list is before you, O gods and goddesses, that ye may know of the benefactions which I did for your ka's.

2. THE GODS' ESTATES

Pl. 61a

364. <sup>1</sup>List of things, cattle, gardens, lands, galleys, workshops, towns, and everything, <sup>2</sup>which King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave<sup>c</sup> to his fathers (sic!), the gods and goddesses, the lords of South and North:

<sup>a</sup>This temple was in the residence city of Ramses II (as is shown by 62a, 3).

<sup>b</sup>See II, 1017, and my remarks in Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 40, 111.

<sup>c</sup>The designation "as property, etc.," which is found in the other headings (§§ 280, 337, etc.), is omitted here.

People Attached to the Temples, Etc.

365.	3“The-House ( h' t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-the-Judge-in-the-House-of-Onouris:”	heads	457
4	People whom he gave to the house of Onouris of the tall plumes, residing in Thinis:	heads	160
5	“The-House ( h' t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Osiris,” lord of Abydos:	heads	682
6	People whom he gave to the house of his august father, Osiris, lord of Abydos:	heads	162
7	“House ( p' r )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Sutekh-of-Ombos:”	heads	106
8	People whom he gave to the house of Min-Horus, Isis, and all the gods of Coptos:	heads	39
366.	9People whom he gave to the house of Hathor, mistress of Aphroditopolis:	heads	12
10	People whom he gave to the house of Sebek, lord of Neshit-Crocodilopolis:	heads	22
11	People whom he gave to the house of Min, Horus, Isis, and the gods of Panopolis: <sup>a</sup>	heads	38
12	“The-House ( h' t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis-in-the-House-of-Min,” lord of Panopolis, under charge of Inu-shefenu ( Ynw-šfnw ), who is a commander of the army:	heads	203
13	People whom he gave to the house of 'Zebui <sup>1</sup> , <sup>b</sup> lord of Aphroditopolis:	heads	38
14	People whom he gave to the house of Khnum, lord of Sheshotep ( Š' s-htp ):	heads	17
15	People whom he gave to the house of Upwawet, leader of the Two Lands:	heads	4

Pl. 61b

367.	1“The-House ( h' t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Appearing-at-the-Jubilee-in-the-House-of-Upwawet,” under charge of Thutemhab, who is a commander of the army:	heads	157
------	--	-------	-----

<sup>a</sup> Y p w.

<sup>b</sup> God of the Antæopolite nome. The reading (db c w y) is uncertain (see Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 889-91).

2	"The-House ( h t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,- in-This-House," under charge of Inushefenu ( Ynw-šfnw ), who is a commander of the army:	heads	122
3	"The-House ( h t )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,- in-the-House-of-Thoth," lord of Hermopolis:	heads	89
4	"House ( pr )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in- This-House:"		66
5	People whom he gave to this house:	persons <sup>a</sup>	484
6	People whom he gave to the house of Khnum Hatweret ( H t-wr t ):	heads	34
368.	7People whom he gave to the house of Amon-Re, lord of Yered ( Y r-d ):	heads	44
8	People whom he gave to the house of Thoth of Pauzy ( P r- wdy ):	heads	65
9	People whom he gave to the house of Amon of Mewetkhent ( M r-wt-hnty ):	heads	44
10	People whom he gave to the house of Sebek, lord of Mesha ( M š r ):	heads	38
11	People whom he gave to the house of Anubis, lord of Sep:	heads	78
12	People whom he gave to the house of Set, lord of Oxyrhyncus:	heads	99
13	People whom he gave to the house of Hrishefyt ( Hry-šfyw ), King of the Two Lands:	heads	103
369.	14People whom he gave to the house of Sebek of Shedet, Horus, dwelling in the Fayûm:	heads	146
15	People whom he gave to the house of Set of 'Sesu' ( Sssw ):	heads	35
16	People whom he gave to the house of Amon-Re, lord of "Thrones-of-the-Two-Lands," of the back-lands (Fayûm):	heads	62
17	People whom he gave to the house of Hathor, mistress of Aphroditopolis:	heads	124
Pl. 62a
18	"The-Herd-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-Doer-of- Benefactions-for-his-Mother-Bast:"	heads	1,533

<sup>a</sup>See 10, 14 and 15.

<sup>2</sup> People whom he gave to the house of Bast, mistress of Berset, on "The-Water-of-Re:" <sup>a</sup>	heads	169
<sup>3</sup> "House ( pr )-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the- House-of-Sutekh," in the "House <sup>b</sup> ( pr )-of-Ramses (II)- Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.:"	heads	106
<sup>4</sup> "The-Herd-of-Ramses-Ruler-of-Heliopolis,-L.-P.-H.,-the- Benefactor-of-His-Father-Harkhentikhet ( Hr-hnt-hty )-of- Athribis:"	heads	124
<sup>5</sup> People whom he gave to the house of Mut-Khent-ebui-enteru ( Hnt-c bwy-nrw ):	heads	24
<sup>6</sup> Total	heads	5,811 <sup>c</sup>

Miscellaneous Property

370. <sup>7</sup> Various cattle		13,433
<sup>8</sup> Lands: stat		36,012
<sup>9</sup> Gardens		11
<sup>10</sup> Workshops		2

3. THE GODS' INCOMES

371. <sup>11d</sup> Clean grain [—]: 16-fold heket		73,250
<sup>12</sup> Vegetables: bundles		3,300
<sup>13</sup> Flax: bales ( n c h )		3,000

4. THE KING'S GIFTS TO THE GODS

Pl. 62b

372. <sup>1</sup>Gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, every real, costly stone, <sup>2</sup>copper, garments of royal linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, and colored linen; myrrh, cattle, fowl, and everything <sup>3</sup>which

<sup>a</sup>Cf. 10, 8. Berset (Bp > -r > -ys t) has nothing to do with Belbeis.

<sup>b</sup>This means the city of Ramses (II).

<sup>c</sup>Real total is 5,686.

<sup>d</sup>That the following three items belong to the income will be seen by comparing the other lists, e. g., 32b, 7-9. Furthermore, they are in the proper place between the estate and the royal gifts; but the scribe has given them neither title nor rubric; and he has recorded no gold, silver, etc., which we find in the other sections (e. g., 32a, 7-32b). Erman (op. cit., 465) is certainly correct in inferring that the scribe's memoranda were too incomplete for him to insert here the usual rubric, as, e. g., 32a, 7.

King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, gave to them,<sup>a</sup> as gifts of the king, L. P. H., <sup>4</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31:

373. <sup>5</sup> Gold in vessels, ornaments and scraps	1,719 deben, 8½ kidet
<sup>6</sup> Silver in vessels and scraps	2,428 " 5½ "
<sup>7</sup> Total, gold and silver	4,148 deben, 3½ kidet
<sup>8</sup> Gold combined with rock-crystal: collars	4
<sup>9</sup> Gold combined with rock-crystal: tassels <sup>b</sup>	4
<sup>10</sup> Gold garlands for the head	1
<sup>11</sup> Silver overlaid with gold: a sacred eye amulet <sup>c</sup> for Thoth	1
<sup>12</sup> Real lapis lazuli	10 deben, 6 kidet
<sup>13</sup> Real malachite	— <sup>d</sup> " ½ ⅛ "
<sup>14</sup> Timhy ( Tymhy ) stone of Wawat	3 "
<sup>15</sup> Black copper overlaid with gold: [corselets]	2
<sup>16</sup> Black copper	260 deben, 6 kidet

Pl. 63a

<sup>1</sup> Copper in vessels and scraps	14,130 deben, 3 kidet
<sup>2</sup> Lead	2,130 "
<sup>3</sup> Incense	782 "
374. <sup>4</sup> Royal linen: garments ( dw )	17
<sup>5</sup> Royal linen: upper garments ( dw )	25
<sup>6</sup> " " wrappings of Horus	3
<sup>7</sup> " " mantles	5
<sup>8</sup> " " — <sup>e</sup> garments	30
<sup>9</sup> " " garments ( hny )	2
<sup>10</sup> " " garments ( yd[g?] )	179
<sup>11</sup> " " tunics	168
<sup>12</sup> " " various garments	10
<sup>13</sup> Total, royal linen : various garments	439
<sup>14</sup> Fine southern linen: upper garments ( dw )	2
<sup>15</sup> " " " large tunics	2
<sup>16</sup> " " " garments ( dw )	234
<sup>17</sup> " " " — <sup>e</sup> garments	29

<sup>a</sup>The gods.

<sup>b</sup>Hung down the back as counterpoises for the four collars.

<sup>c</sup>See 68b, 10.

<sup>d</sup>Number omitted by the scribe.

<sup>e</sup>See 14a, 14.

Pl. 63b

<sup>1</sup> Fine southern linen: garments ( yd[ḡ] )	428
<sup>2</sup> “ “ “ garments ( h<sup>3</sup> w-mn )	1
<sup>3</sup> “ “ “ tunics	399
<sup>4</sup> “ “ “ kilts	37
<sup>5</sup> “ “ “ various garments	44
	<hr/>
<sup>6</sup> Total, fine southern linen, various garments	1,216 <sup>a</sup>
375. <sup>7</sup> Southern linen: mantles	23
<sup>8</sup> Southern linen: — <sup>b</sup> garments	1
<sup>9</sup> “ “ garments ( dw )	218
<sup>10</sup> “ “ garments ( yd[ḡ] )	181
<sup>11</sup> “ “ tunics	43
<sup>12</sup> “ “ garments ( k<sup>3</sup> -ḡ<sup>3</sup> -m-r<sup>3</sup> )	49
<sup>13</sup> “ “ kilts	23
<sup>14</sup> “ “ garments ( yjd )	40
	<hr/>
<sup>15</sup> Total, southern linen, various garments	556 <sup>c</sup>
<sup>16</sup> Colored linen: mantles	60
<sup>17</sup> Colored linen: — <sup>a</sup> garments	12

Pl. 63c

<sup>1</sup> Colored linen: garments ( dw )	1
<sup>2</sup> “ “ garments ( yjd )	4
<sup>3</sup> “ “ tunics	567
<sup>4</sup> “ “ various garments	92
	<hr/>
<sup>5</sup> Total, colored linen: various garments	736
	<hr/>
<sup>6</sup> Total, royal linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen: various garments	3,047 <sup>d</sup>
<sup>7</sup> Yarn: deben	900
<sup>8</sup> Yarn: various hanks	19
376. <sup>9</sup> White incense: jars ( mn )	601
<sup>10</sup> Honey: jars ( mn )	567
<sup>11</sup> Oil ( nḥh ) of Egypt: jars ( mn )	513

<sup>a</sup>Real total, 1,176.<sup>c</sup>Real total, 578.<sup>b</sup>See 14a, 14.<sup>d</sup>One hundred and eighteen too much.

<sup>12</sup> Oil ( nḥḥ ) of Syria: jars ( mn )	542
<sup>13</sup> Oil ( bḥ ): jars ( mn )	1
<sup>14</sup> Red oil ( bḥ ): jars ( mn )	1
<sup>15</sup> White fat: jars ( mn )	273
<sup>16</sup> Goose fat: jars ( mn )	44
<sup>17</sup> Butter: jars ( mn )	31

Pl. 64a

<sup>1</sup> Oil ( sḥt ): jars ( mn )	1
<sup>2</sup> Total, filled jars	2,688 <sup>a</sup>
<sup>3</sup> Shedeh: jars ( mn )	134
<sup>4</sup> Shedeh: jars ( ḥ<sup>3</sup>-bw )	287
<sup>5</sup> Wine: jars ( m<sup>3</sup> dydy )	2
<sup>6</sup> Wine: jars ( m<sup>3</sup>sw<sup>1</sup> and mn )	2,864
<sup>7</sup> Total, shedeh and wine: various jars ( ḥ<sup>3</sup>cc )	3,247 <sup>b</sup>
<sup>8</sup> Total, various jars	4,975
377. <sup>9</sup> Babay ( b<sup>3</sup>-b<sup>3</sup>-y<sup>3</sup> ): 'rings' mounted in gold	124
<sup>10</sup> Various costly stones: sacred eye amulets	5,673
<sup>11</sup> “ “ “ scarabs	1,562
<sup>12</sup> “ “ “ seals as pendants	1,643
<sup>13</sup> “ “ “ images of the king, L. P. H.	557
<sup>14</sup> “ “ “ 'naophors' <sup>c</sup>	62
<sup>15</sup> Malachite: finger rings	331
<sup>16</sup> Ubat ( wb<sup>3</sup>-t ) stone: seals	6,278

Pl. 64b

<sup>1</sup> Rock-crystal: bracelets	62
<sup>2</sup> “ “ seals	4,185
<sup>3</sup> “ “ scarabs	930
<sup>4</sup> “ “ sacred eye amulets	6,583
<sup>5</sup> “ “ beads	825,840
<sup>6</sup> “ “ beads: clusters	31
<sup>7</sup> “ “ finger rings	4,247

<sup>a</sup>Real total, 2,574.<sup>b</sup>Real total, 3,287.<sup>c</sup>Lit., "bearers of the house of the arm."

<sup>8a</sup> Sparkling <sup>1</sup> lapis lazuli	73 deben, 3 kidet
<sup>9</sup> Sparkling <sup>1</sup> malachite	34 “ 3 “
<sup>10</sup> Red jasper: finger rings	31
<sup>11</sup> “ “ scarabs	93
<sup>12</sup> “ “ deben	19
<sup>13</sup> Uz ( wḏ )-mineral: deben	17
<sup>14</sup> Irer ( Yrr ) stone: semdets ( smd' t )	35
<sup>15</sup> Rock-crystal: semdets	136
<sup>16</sup> Hirset ( hrs' t ) stone: semdets	28
<sup>17</sup> Red jasper: semdets	7

Pl. 64c

<sup>1</sup> Hukamu ( hw-k' -m' -mw ) stone: semdets	160
<sup>2</sup> All costly stones: semdets	160
378. <sup>3</sup> Meru ( mry ) wood: baskets and measures ( t' y )	496
<sup>4</sup> Reeds: measures ( msty )	3
<sup>5</sup> Cinnamon: measures ( msty )	30
<sup>6</sup> Cinnamon: bundles	37
<sup>7</sup> Yufiti ( ywfyty )-plant: measures ( msty )	2
<sup>8</sup> Rosemary <sup>1</sup> : measures ( msty )	2
<sup>9</sup> Semu ( s' mw )-plant: measures ( msty )	4
<sup>10</sup> Incense: measures ( k' -t' -rw-ty )	100
<sup>11</sup> Mehiwet <sup>b</sup> ( mhywt ): 'cakes' <sup>1</sup> ( s' -t' )	100
<sup>12</sup> Manna: measures ( msty )	10
<sup>13</sup> Grapes: measures ( msty )	22
<sup>14</sup> Various fruit: heket	212
<sup>15</sup> Ibenu ( ybnw ): measures ( msty )	3

Pl. 65a

<sup>1</sup> Gums: heket	2
<sup>2</sup> Minium <sup>1</sup> : jars ( mn )	3
<sup>3</sup> Khenti ( hnty ): jars ( sn y )	380
<sup>4</sup> Shesa ( šs' ): measures ( msty )	72
<sup>5</sup> Shesa ( šs' ): deben	32,500
<sup>6</sup> Dom-palm <sup>1</sup> fruit: 'clusters' <sup>1</sup>	2,548
<sup>7</sup> Palm leaves: bundles	46,040
<sup>8</sup> Palm leaves: measures ( ps' )	320

<sup>a</sup>See Annals, year 31, l. 15 (II, 473).<sup>b</sup>See 19a, 8.

<sup>9</sup> Banu ( b<sup>3</sup> mw ): 'in <sup>1</sup> cubes ( s<sup>3</sup> s )	351
<sup>10</sup> Clean grain '—': 16-fold heket	2,231
<sup>11</sup> Fruit of the South: 16-fold heket	95
379. <sup>12</sup> Various cattle	1,142
<sup>13</sup> Cow-hides	37
<sup>14</sup> Cedar wood: various logs	336
<sup>15</sup> Mera ( mr<sup>3</sup> ) wood: poles	2
<sup>16</sup> Cassia wood: deben	100

Pl. 65b

<sup>1</sup> Natron: bricks	3,842
<sup>2</sup> Natron: 16-fold heket	62
<sup>3</sup> Salt: bricks	4,242
<sup>4</sup> Salt: 16-fold heket	166
<sup>5</sup> Olive: heket	1,352
<sup>6</sup> Dedmet ( ddm' t ) flowers: measures ( dm<sup>3</sup> mw )	97
<sup>7</sup> Enbu ( c nbw )-plant: measures ( dm<sup>3</sup> mw )	99
<sup>8</sup> Grapes: crates	253
<sup>9</sup> Grapes: garlands	80
<sup>10</sup> Pomegranates <sup>1</sup> : crates	66
<sup>11</sup> Fruit: heket	87½
<sup>12</sup> Flax ( pš ): measures ( sbh' t )	93
<sup>13</sup> Ideninu ( ydnymw )-plants	118
<sup>14</sup> Flax ( pš ): bekhen	198
<sup>15</sup> Tamarisk: bundles	390

Pl. 65c

<sup>1</sup> Southern flax: measures ( htp )	46
<sup>2</sup> Palm-fiber: ropes	37
380. <sup>3</sup> Fat geese from the 'flocks <sup>1</sup>	4
<sup>4</sup> Live geese	190
<sup>5</sup> Live water-fowl	153
<sup>6</sup> Water-fowl, cut up	1,920
<sup>7</sup> Fish, cut up	6,500
<sup>8</sup> Fish, whole	13,100
<sup>9</sup> Beni ( b<sup>c</sup> ny )-plant in measures ( yp' t )	2,300
<sup>10</sup> Date-palm fiber <sup>a</sup>	2,300

<sup>a</sup>Unit of measure?

<sup>11</sup> Fire wood: (logs)	200
<sup>12</sup> Charcoal: measures ( gsr ?)	50
<sup>13</sup> Vine gardens	2
<sup>14</sup> Sycamore gardens	2
<sup>15</sup> House, equipped with timbers ( hty ) <sup>a</sup>	1
<sup>16</sup> Lands: stat	1,361

Pl. 66a

381. <sup>1</sup>Clean grain, [—] for the divine offerings of the feasts of heaven <sup>2</sup>and the feasts of the first of the seasons, which he gave to them<sup>b</sup> as increase of <sup>3</sup>the divine offerings, and as increase of the daily offerings, in order to double that which was before, <sup>4</sup>from the year 1 to the year 31, making 31 years: 16-fold heket: 250,326.

5. CONCLUDING PRAYER OF RAMSES III

Pl. 66b

382. <sup>1</sup>Hear ye, O great divine ennead, ye gods and goddesses! Put in your hearts the benefactions which I did, while I was king upon earth <sup>2</sup>as ruler of the living; grant that I may be divine like one of the divine ennead, that I may go in and out among you in Tazoser, <sup>3</sup>that I may proceed, while I am with you, before Re, that I may behold the radiance of his disk every morning. Grant that I may breathe the <sup>4</sup>air like you, that I may receive bread upon the offerings before Osiris. Let my heart be glad, hear that which I say, <sup>5</sup>establish my son as king on the throne of Horus, he being ruler, L. P. H., on the earth as Lord of the Two Lands, set the diadem upon his head like the All-Lord, <sup>6</sup>join to him the uraeus like Atum. Let him celebrate jubilees like Tatenen, having a reign as long as the Beautiful-Faced (Ptah). <sup>7</sup>May his sword be victorious against all lands, may they come for fear of him, bearing their tribute. Put the love of him <sup>8</sup>in the hearts of the people, may the whole land acclaim over him at the sight of him, may Egypt rejoice over him <sup>9</sup>with jubilation, united under his feet, forever; (even) the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands; Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H., <sup>10</sup>Son of Re, Lord of Diadems, like Amon: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H.

<sup>a</sup>Compare hty in the building inscription of the High Priest, Amenhotep (§ 489, l. 8).

<sup>b</sup>The gods and goddesses in general.

VI. SUMMARY

I. TOTAL OF THE GODS' ESTATES

Pl. 67

383. <sup>1</sup>List of the things of the gods and men:<sup>a</sup> gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, all real, costly stones, <sup>2</sup>cattle, gardens, lands, galleys, workshops, towns, festal offerings,<sup>b</sup> oblations, "Books of the Nile-God," and all the things, which <sup>3</sup>King Usermare-Meriamon, L. P. H., the Great God, did for his august father, Amon-Re, king of gods; Atum, lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, Re-Harakhte; <sup>4</sup>Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," and all the gods and goddesses of South and North; while he was king upon earth:

384. <sup>5</sup>The processional images, statues, and figures of Amon-Re, king of gods: being 2,756 gods:<sup>c</sup>

	<sup>6</sup> heads	113,433 <sup>d</sup>
<sup>7</sup> Various cattle		490,386
<sup>8</sup> Lands: stat		1,071,780
<sup>9</sup> Gardens and groves		514
<sup>10</sup> Transports and galleys		88

Pl. 68a

<sup>1</sup> Towns of Egypt	160
<sup>2</sup> Towns of Syria <sup>e</sup>	9
Total	169

385. <sup>3</sup>The amount belonging to the 2,756 statues<sup>f</sup> and figures:

<sup>4</sup> Fine gold	7,205 deben, 1 kidet
<sup>5</sup> Silver	11,047 " $\frac{1}{4}$ "
<sup>6</sup> Total, gold and silver	18,252 " $1\frac{1}{4}$ "

<sup>a</sup>The portion referring to men is the narrative in Pls. 75-79, q. v.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe has here incorrectly inserted some of the income in this heading, but he has properly not included any of such items in the list following.

<sup>c</sup>The scribe has here inserted one of the minor items from the Amon-temple, where he should have given a general head, as the number following is the total of all people held by all the temples recorded in the papyrus. His total should be 108,338, not correcting earlier errors.

<sup>d</sup>For the correct numbers in the summary, see the table on p. 97.

<sup>e</sup>These all belonged to Amon, and are given (11, 11), as also in Kush.

<sup>f</sup>See 21b, 11, note, and 11, 1-3.

7Real lapis lazuli	47 deben, 6 kidet
8Black copper	10,001 “ 8 “
9Copper in vessels and scraps	97,148 “ 3 “
10Lead	4,896 “
11[Tin]	95 “

Pl. 68b

1Various costly stones [—] <sup>a</sup>	18,168 [deben], <sup>b</sup> 1 kidet
2Cedar: various logs	328
3Persea: various logs	4,415

2. TOTAL OF THE GODS' INCOMES

386. 4Things exacted, impost of the people and all the serf-laborers of the houses, temples, and estates, 5which he gave to them as their yearly dues:

6Fine mountain gold and gold of two times in vessels, ornaments, and scraps	2,289 deben, 4½ kidet <sup>c</sup>
7Silver [in] vessels and scraps	14,050 “ ½ “
8Total, silver and gold in vessels, ornaments, and scraps	16,339 “ 6½ “
9Gold combined with costly stones: collars, tassels, and cords	9
10Silver overlaid with gold: sacred eye amulet of Thoth	1
11Copper: deben	27,580
387. 12Royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen: various garments	4,575

<sup>a</sup>Yp·t.<sup>b</sup>Omitted by the scribe, or else he has incorrectly inserted yp·t for dbn.<sup>c</sup>The only temple with gold in the income was Thebes, which received yearly 569 deben, 6½ kidet. Hence this total is incorrect by over 1,700 deben. As a mistake in addition is impossible where only one item is concerned, the scribe has added items which do not belong here in the income. Adding the 1,719 deben, 8¼ kidet, from the king's gifts to the small temples (62b, 5), we obtain the scribe's total of gold here. Hence he has incorrectly inserted here in the income the gold and silver of the king's gifts to small temples. So also ll. 9 and 10, which are taken from 62b, 9-11. The copper is correct.

Pl. 69

<sup>1</sup> Yarn: deben	3,795
<sup>2</sup> Incense, honey, oil: full jars (ꜥꜥꜥ)	1,529
<sup>3</sup> Shedeh and wine: various jars (ꜥꜥꜥ)	28,080
<sup>4</sup> Silver in things of the impost of the people 4,208 deben, $7\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{10}$ kidet
<sup>5</sup> Clean grain of the impost of the peasants: 16-fold heket	460,900
<sup>6</sup> Vegetables: bundles	32,750
<sup>7</sup> Flax: bales	71,000
<sup>8</sup> Water-fowl of the impost of the fowlers and fishermen	426,995
<sup>9</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the bulls, heifers, calves, cows, cattle of [—] cattle of [—] of the herd: (cattle) of Egypt	961
<sup>10</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the bulls, oxen, heifers, calves, and cows of the impost of the lands of Syria	19
Total	980
<sup>11</sup> Live geese of the exactions	1,920
<sup>12</sup> Cedar: tow-boats and ferry-boats	12
<sup>13</sup> Acacia: tow-boats, [canal]-boats, boats for the transportation of cattle, warships, <sup>a</sup> and kara ( kꜥ-ꜥꜥ )-boats	78

Pl. 70a

<sup>1</sup> Total, cedar and acacia: boats	90
<sup>2</sup> Products of Egypt, products of God's-Land, products of Syria, Kush and the Oasis, for the divine offerings in numerous lists.

3. TOTAL OF THE KING'S GIFTS TO ALL GODS<sup>b</sup>

388. <sup>3</sup>Gold, silver, real lapis lazuli, real malachite, all real, costly stones, copper, garments of <sup>4</sup>royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, garments of colored linen, jars,<sup>c</sup> fowl, and everything which he gave to them, <sup>5</sup>as gifts of the king, L. P. H.; festal offerings, oblations, and "Books of the Nile-God," while he was king upon earth:

<sup>a</sup>See 12b, 11.

<sup>b</sup>This section includes also the offerings, as the scribe was unable to separate them. The totals contain the most incredible errors in addition, which can be controlled for the most important items by comparing with table of the king's gifts, § 172.

<sup>c</sup>This means the wine, oil, incense, etc., which were put into jars.

389. <sup>6</sup> Fine gold, gold of two times, and white gold in vessels, ornaments, and scraps	1,663	deben
<sup>7</sup> Silver in vessels and scraps	3,598	“	8	kidet
<sup>8</sup> Total, gold and silver in vessels and scraps	5,261	“	8	“
<sup>9</sup> Real lapis lazuli, real malachite, real green feldspar ( nšm·t ) stone	30	“	9½	“
<sup>10</sup> Real lapis lazuli, real malachite: scarabs				72
<sup>11</sup> Timhy ( Tymhy ) stone of Wawat				3 kidet

Pl. 70b

<sup>1</sup> Black copper	327	deben, 9	kidet
<sup>2</sup> Black copper overlaid with gold: corselets			2
<sup>3</sup> Copper in vessels and scraps	18,786	deben, 7	kidet
<sup>4</sup> Lead: deben			2,130
390. <sup>5</sup> Myrrh: deben			7,709
<sup>6</sup> Myrrh: heket			5½
<sup>7</sup> Wood of the myrrh tree: (logs)			1,059
<sup>8</sup> Fruit of the myrrh in measures			200
<sup>9</sup> Royal linen, mek-linen, fine southern linen, southern linen, colored linen: various garments			50,877
<sup>10</sup> Incense, honey, oil ( nḥḥ ), oil ( bḥ? ); various jars ( <sup>2</sup> cc) and measures ( yp·t )			331,702
<sup>11</sup> Incense: [—] in measures ( yp·t )			35,130
<sup>12</sup> Incense: large measures ( yp·t )			62
<sup>13</sup> Shedeh and wine: jars ( mn and k<sup>2</sup> bw )			228,380
<sup>14</sup> Fine manna of Punt: deben			300
<sup>15</sup> Manna: measures ( msty )			10
<sup>16</sup> All costly stones: sacred eye amulets, scarabs, and seals of various measures			1,075,635

Pl. 71a

<sup>1</sup> Alabaster: a block			1
<sup>2</sup> Yarn: deben			700
<sup>3</sup> Yarn: hanks			19
391. <sup>4</sup> Wrought wood: cases and seals			92
<sup>5</sup> Meru ( mry ) wood and ebony: [staves]			497
<sup>6</sup> Wrought wood: block for the scales			1
<sup>7</sup> Carob wood: a log			1

<sup>8</sup> Persea, a log of 2 cubits	1
<sup>9</sup> Mera ( mr <sup>2</sup> ) wood: post for the scales	1
<sup>10</sup> Mera ( mr <sup>2</sup> ) wood: poles	2
<sup>11</sup> Cedar: various logs	351
<sup>12</sup> Nenybu ( N-n-y-bw ) and cassia: deben	3,129
<sup>13</sup> Reeds: bundles and measures ( msty )	37
<sup>14</sup> Cinnamon: 843 measures ( msty ) and bundles: deben	2,000

Pl. 71b

<sup>1</sup> Barley of Syria: heket	45
<sup>2</sup> Ivory: a tusk	1
<sup>3</sup> Eye-paint: deben	50
392. <sup>4</sup> Rosemary <sup>1</sup> : measures ( msty )	167
<sup>5</sup> Yufiti ( Ywfyty )-plant: measures ( msty )	183
<sup>6</sup> Mehiwet ( Mhywt ): <sup>a</sup> 'cakes' ( s <sup>2</sup> - t <sup>2</sup> )	3,100
<sup>7</sup> Semu ( s <sup>c</sup> mw )-plant: measures ( htp )	1,664
<sup>8</sup> Dom-palm <sup>1</sup> fruit, grapes, figs, 'pomegranates <sup>1</sup> and various fruit: crates of various measure ( yp·t )	2,382,650
<sup>9</sup> Bulls, bullocks of the bulls, oxen, heifers, calves, cows, goats,	20,602
<sup>10</sup> White oryxes, 'male gazelles <sup>1</sup> , gazelles	367
<sup>11</sup> Fat geese, live geese, various water-fowl	353,919
<sup>12</sup> Salt and natron: 16-fold heket	1,843
<sup>13</sup> Salt and natron: bricks	355,084
<sup>14</sup> Palm-fiber: various ropes	345
<sup>15</sup> Sebkhet ( sbh·t )-plant, flax ( ps ) and ideninu ( ydnyw ): 16-fold heket	1,944

Pl. 72

<sup>1</sup> Tamarisk and reed-grass: bundles	7,860
<sup>2</sup> Southern flax: measures ( htp )	46
393. <sup>3</sup> Fine bread: large oblation-loaves, syd -loaves, and bh -loaves of various measures	161,287
<sup>4</sup> Fine bread, meat, rahu ( r <sup>2</sup> - hw-sw )-cakes: large measures ( htp ) of the 'court <sup>1</sup> ( m <sup>2</sup> ), measures ( htp ) of gold, measures ( htp ) for eating, and measures ( t <sup>2</sup> y ) for the mouth of the eater <sup>b</sup>	25,335

<sup>a</sup>See 19a, 8.<sup>b</sup>See 17b, 1 and 2, note.

<sup>5</sup> Fine bread: large loaves (° k) for eating, 'sweet' loaves (° k), and loaves of every size	6,272,421
<sup>6</sup> Rahusu-cakes of every baking, measures (yp' t)	285,385
<sup>7</sup> Beer: various vessels (hnw)	468,303
<sup>8</sup> Olives: jars (mn and g' y)	1,726
<sup>9</sup> Wax: deben	3,100
<sup>10</sup> Cabbage <sup>1</sup> , khithana-fruit, southern fruit, measures (yp' t), and 'bundles' (° nbw)	390,215
<sup>11</sup> Dedmet flowers and enbu (° nbw): measures (d' c mw)	866
<sup>12</sup> Papyrus sandals: pairs	15,110
<sup>13</sup> Papyrus rind: measures (yp' t)	26,782
<sup>14</sup> Storea: measures (yp' t)	930
394. <sup>15</sup> Thick stuff: garments (dw)	150

Pl. 73

<sup>1</sup> Leather sandals: pairs	3,720
<sup>2</sup> Jars and vessels of the mouth of the Heliopolitan canal <sup>a</sup>	9,610
<sup>3</sup> Various fish	494,800
<sup>4</sup> Jars 'of the canal' filled with fish, having wooden 'lids' <sup>b</sup>	440
<sup>5</sup> Blossoms, flowers, isi-plant, papyrus, and herbs: measures (ddm' t), bouquets, and for the hand	10,130,032
<sup>6</sup> Olive-lands equipped: 1, making, stat	53½
<sup>7</sup> Gardens of all (kinds of) trees, equipped	6
<sup>8</sup> House equipped with timbers <sup>c</sup>	1
<sup>9</sup> Fire wood: ('logs')	3,260
<sup>10</sup> Charcoal: measures (gsr')	3,367
<sup>11</sup> Incense, honey, oil (nhh), best oil, fat, fruit, every costly stone, cinnamon, vegetables, and milk: measures (°) of various capacity	2,933,766
395. <sup>12</sup> Gold, silver, every real costly stone: statues of the Nile-god: nusa	48,236
<sup>13</sup> Real lapis lazuli, real malachite, every costly stone, copper, lead, 'sparkling' costly stone: statues of the Nile-god	193,370
<sup>14</sup> Sycamore wood: statues of the Nile-god, and statues of the Nile-goddess	12,158
<sup>15</sup> Stone: uba (wb')	31,650
<sup>16</sup> Ibenu (ybnw): measures (mst y)	60

<sup>a</sup>See 19b, 16, and note.<sup>b</sup>From 20b, 12.<sup>c</sup>See 65c, 15.

Pl. 74

<sup>1</sup> Minium <sup>1</sup> : jars ( mn' t )	3
<sup>2</sup> Khenti ( Hnty ): jars ( sn y )	380
<sup>3</sup> Shesa ( šs ʔ ): measures ( mst y )	72
<sup>4</sup> Shesa ( šs ʔ ): deben	32,500
<sup>5</sup> Palm leaves: bundles	46,040
<sup>6</sup> Palm leaves: pesa ( ps ʔ )	310
<sup>7</sup> Banu ( b ʔ nw ): cubes ( s ʔ s )	351
<sup>8</sup> Cow-hides	37
<sup>9</sup> Beni ( b c ny )-plant	23,000
<sup>10</sup> Date-palm fiber	23,000
396. <sup>11</sup> Clean grain, [—] for the divine offerings of the feasts of heaven and the feasts of the first of the seasons, which he gave to these gods, <sup>12</sup> as an increase of the divine offerings, and as an increase of the daily offerings, in order to double that which was before me:
16-fold heket	5,279,552

VII. HISTORICAL SECTION

Pl. 75. Introduction

397. <sup>1</sup>Said King Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III), L. P. H., the Great God, to the princes, and leaders of the land, the infantry and chariotry, the Sherden (š ʔ -r ʔ -d ʔ -n ʔ), the numerous archers, <sup>2</sup>and all the citizens<sup>a</sup> of the land of Egypt:

Former Anarchy

398. Hear ye,<sup>b</sup> that I may inform you of my benefactions which I did while I was king of the people (rhy' t). The land of <sup>3</sup>Egypt was <sup>4</sup>overthrown<sup>c</sup> from without<sup>1</sup>, and every man was (<sup>5</sup>thrown<sup>1</sup> out) of his right; they had no chief mouth (r ʔ -hr) for many years formerly until other times. The land of Egypt was <sup>6</sup>in the hands of chiefs<sup>d</sup> and of

<sup>a</sup>(ʔ nh' w). These are the same as the "c nh' w of the army," e. g., already in the Middle Kingdom (I, 681), and in the Eighteenth Dynasty, especially in the Decree of Harmhab (III, 45-67).

<sup>b</sup>Text has "we !" which is, of course, an error.

<sup>c</sup>H' c ʔ; on the meaning "banish," see Brugsch, Oase, 85; same usage in Recueil, XVII, 147, ll. 13, 14?

<sup>d</sup>The hieratic sign is that for "chief" (wr), not "prince" (sr), which occurs quite differently written in l. 1 of this same plate.

rulers of towns; one slew his neighbor, great and small. Other times having come after it, with empty years, Yarsu,<sup>a</sup> a certain Syrian (H<sup>3</sup> -rw)<sup>5</sup> was with them as chief.<sup>b</sup> He set the whole land tributary before him together; he united his companions and plundered their<sup>c</sup> possessions. They made the gods like men, and no offerings were presented in the temples.

Rule of Setnakht

399. <sup>6</sup>But when the gods inclined themselves to peace, to set the land (inl)<sup>d</sup> its right according to its accustomed manner, <sup>7</sup>they established their son, who came forth from their limbs, to be Ruler, L. P. H., of every land, upon their great throne, (even) Userkhare-Setepnere-Meriamon, L. P. H., Son of Re, Setnakht-Mererre-Meriamon, L. P. H. <sup>8</sup>He was Khepri-Set, when he is enraged; he set in order the entire land, which had been rebellious; he slew the rebels who were in the land of Egypt; he cleansed <sup>9</sup>the great throne of Egypt; he was Ruler, L. P. H., of the Two Lands, on the throne of Atum. He gave <sup>1</sup>ready faces, which had been turned away<sup>1.e</sup>. Every man knew his brother who had been walled in.<sup>f</sup> <sup>10</sup>He established the temples in possession of divine offerings, to offer to the gods (psd<sup>3</sup> t) according to their customary stipulations.

Rise of Ramses III and Death of Setnakht

400. He appointed me to be hereditary prince in the place of Keb, I was the great chief mouth (r<sup>3</sup> -hr)<sup>g</sup> of the lands of Egypt, and com-

<sup>a</sup>The words (3 yr-sw), read as a proper name, of which Arisu or Arsu have become current forms, means "made himself." Hence Spiegelberg has proposed to render them so, explaining the foreign determinative which follows them by supposing that the name of the Syrian, to whom the determinative belongs, has fallen out. We should then render: "X, a certain Syrian with them, made himself chief." The preposition before "chief" fits this rendering well (see Spiegelberg, Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, II, 263-65).

<sup>b</sup>Not "prince," but "chief," as in l. 4; see above, note a.

<sup>c</sup>The Egyptians.

<sup>d</sup>The preposition (hr in rdy hr c k<sup>3</sup>) seems to have fallen out.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "turned back;" perhaps meaning that those who had formerly been in hiding now came forth, and accepted service with him, that is, were "ready of face;" see inscription of Amenemhet (Ameni) l. 10 (I, p. 251, n. d).

<sup>f</sup>Staying within fortified walls during the previous hostilities, when each town was against its neighbor.

<sup>g</sup>The same office as that also claimed by Ramses II as crown prince, in the Kubbân Stela, l. 17 (III, 288).

Pl. 76

mander (šḥn) of <sup>1</sup>the whole land united in one. He went to rest in his horizon,<sup>a</sup> like the gods; there was done for him that which was done for Osiris; he was rowed in his king's-barge upon the river,<sup>b</sup> <sup>2</sup>and rested in his eternal house west of Thebes.<sup>c</sup>

Accession of Ramses III

401. Then my father, Amon-Re, lord of gods, Re-Atum, and Ptah, beautiful of face,<sup>d</sup> crowned me as Lord of the Two Lands on the throne of him who begat me; I received the office of my father <sup>3</sup>with joy; the land rested and rejoiced in possession of peace, being joyful at seeing me as ruler, L. P. H., of the Two Lands, like Horus when he was called to rule the Two Lands on the throne of Osiris. I was crowned <sup>4</sup>with the etef-crown bearing the uraeus; I assumed the double-plumed diadem, like Tatenen. I sat upon the throne (intꜣꜣt) of Harakhte. I was clad in the regalia, like Atum.

Internal Organization

402. <sup>5</sup>I made<sup>e</sup> Egypt into many classes,<sup>f</sup> consisting of: butlers of the palace, great princes, numerous infantry, and chariotry, by the hundred-thousand; Sherden (šꜣꜣ-rꜣꜣ-dꜣꜣ-nꜣꜣ), <sup>6</sup>and Kehek (ḲḲḲ), without number; attendants by the ten-thousand; and serf-laborers of Egypt.

<sup>a</sup>Poetic for the death of the king; cf. similar phrases for the death of Thutmose I and of Thutmose II in the inscription of Ineni (II, 108, and 118, l. 16), and of Thutmose III in the inscription of Amenemhab (II, 592, ll. 35-37).

<sup>b</sup>The funeral procession crosses the river.

<sup>c</sup>His tomb in the Valley of the Kings' Tombs, No. 14 (Baedeker's Egypt, 270). He appropriated it from Queen Tewosret, wife of King Siptah. It had already been appropriated by Seti II, who finally had not used it. Setnakht took it, and enlarged it for his purpose (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 209-14; Mémoires de la mission française au Caire, III, 137 ff.). He had been unable to finish his own tomb (No. 11, Baedeker's Egypt, 268), which was then taken over and completed by his son, Ramses III.

<sup>d</sup>The three great gods and the three great priesthoods, viz., of Thebes, Heliopolis, and Memphis, are here introduced. "Father" ought to be in the plural.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "I trained" (šḥpr).

<sup>f</sup>Not classes in the sense of castes of society, but classes for successive service in the army or civil offices, or state works or royal estates; with which meaning this word (dꜣꜣmꜣw, Coptic, "generations") is common in the historical texts. See also 26, 2, note.

War with Northern Asiatics

403. I extended all the boundaries of Egypt; I overthrew those who invaded them from<sup>a</sup> their lands. I slew the Denyen (D<sup>3</sup>-yn-yw-n<sup>3</sup>) in<sup>b</sup> their isles, the Thekel (T<sup>3</sup>-k-r<sup>3</sup>) and the Peleset (Pw-r<sup>3</sup>-s<sup>3</sup>-ty) were made ashes. The Sherden and the Weshesh (W<sup>3</sup>-š-š) of the sea, <sup>8</sup>they were made as those that exist not, taken captive at one time, brought as captives to Egypt, like the sand of the shore. I settled them in strongholds, bound in my name. Numerous <sup>9</sup>were their classes like hundred-thousands. I taxed them all, in clothing and grain from the storehouses and granaries each year.

Edomite War

404. I destroyed the people of Seir (S<sup>3</sup>-c<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>3</sup>), of the tribes of <sup>10</sup>the Shasu (Š<sup>3</sup>-sw);<sup>c</sup> I plundered their tents of their people, their possessions, their cattle likewise, without number. They were pinioned and brought as captive, as tribute of Egypt. <sup>11</sup>I gave them to the gods, as slaves into their house[s].

Libyan Wars<sup>d</sup>

405. Behold, I will inform you of other things, done in Egypt since my reign. The Libyans <sup>1</sup>and the Meshwesh (M-š<sup>3</sup>-w<sup>3</sup>-š<sup>3</sup>) were dwelling<sup>e</sup> in Egypt, having plundered the cities of the western shore,<sup>f</sup> from Memphis to Kerben (K<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>3</sup>-b<sup>3</sup>-n<sup>3</sup>).<sup>g</sup> They had reached

Pl. 77

<sup>a</sup>Or: "in."

<sup>b</sup>Meaning "who are in;" not that the victory took place in their isles.

<sup>c</sup>See the Bedwi chief as prisoner on the front of the pavilion (§ 129) with the chiefs of Asia Minor.

<sup>d</sup>The Libyan aggressions are here naturally treated as one subject, and the long continuance of the struggle to expel them, extending through two wars, must be drawn from the other sources.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "sitting" (snđm).

<sup>f</sup>Merneptah also makes use of the same rare word (rwd), "shore," in his Libyan campaign (Karnak Inscription, l. 30, III, 583).

<sup>g</sup>Identified by Brugsch, with some probability, as the place near Abukir, called by the Greeks, Heracleum (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 854 ff.). It is the place called Karbaniti in the annals of Ashurbanipal, to which Tirhaka marched from Memphis.

the great river<sup>a</sup> on both its banks.<sup>b</sup> <sup>2</sup>They it was who plundered the cities of Egwowe (G-wt-wt)<sup>c</sup> during very many years, while they were in Egypt. Behold, I destroyed them, slain at one time. I laid low <sup>3</sup>the Meshwesh, the Libyans, the Esbet (ʿ-sʿ-bʿ-tʿ),<sup>d</sup> the Keykesh (Kʿ-y-kʿ-šʿ), the Shai (Šʿ-y),<sup>e</sup> the Hes (Hʿ-sʿ) and the Beken (Bʿ-kʿ-nʿ); they were overthrown in their blood and made heaps. I turned them back <sup>4</sup>from trampling the border of Egypt. I carried away those whom my sword spared, as numerous captives, pinioned like birds before my horses,<sup>f</sup> their wives and their children by the tenthousand, <sup>5</sup>their cattle in number like hundred-thousands. I settled their leaders in strongholds in my name. I gave to them captains (hry w) of archers, and chief men of the tribes, branded and made into <sup>6</sup>slaves, impressed with my name; their wives and their children were made likewise.<sup>g</sup> I led their cattle into the house (pr) of Amon; they were made for him into herds<sup>h</sup> forever.

Well in Ayan

406. I made a very great well <sup>7</sup>in the country of Ayan (ʿ ynʿ). It was surrounded by a wall like a mountain of gritstone, with 20

<sup>a</sup>The μέγας ποταμός of Ptolemy, called by Strabo the Canopic branch of the Nile (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 856). See occurrence in exactly same connection in Merneptah's Libyan war (III, 580, l. 19).

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "on its every side" (rwytʿ); this word is used by Ramses II for the bank or side of the Orontes (III, 311, l. 21).

<sup>c</sup>This is possibly Canopus (Pr-g-wʿ-ty), as Brugsch thinks (Dictionnaire géographique, 820 ff.).

<sup>d</sup>Possibly to be read M-sʿ-bʿ-tʿ; this and the following are Libyan tribes of uncertain location. Petrie has attempted to find these names among the place-names still surviving in north Africa (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXVI, 40, 41).

<sup>e</sup>Or: Šʿ-y-tpʿ?

<sup>f</sup>Compare the reliefs of the return from the Libyan wars (§§ 56 and 112).

<sup>g</sup>A further indication of the occupation and employment of these captives is contained in an inscription behind Medinet Habu, referring to various negroes, Peleset(?), and Shekelesh (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 218, c): "He causes that they cross the river, brought to Egypt, they are placed in strongholds of the king ———. When they reach the district of the king they are made chariot-drivers, charioteers, attendants, sunshade-bearers, attending the king."

<sup>h</sup>It is doubtless one of these herds which is mentioned in 10, 8, and given a name commemorating the victory over the Meshwesh.

courses<sup>1</sup> in the ground foundation, and a height of 30 cubits, having battlements. Its doorposts and doors<sup>8</sup> were hewn of cedar, their bolts were of copper, with mountings.

Punt Expedition

407. I hewed great galleys with barges before them, manned with numerous crews, and attendants in great number; their<sup>9</sup> captains of marines<sup>a</sup> were with them, with inspectors and petty officers, to command them. They were laden with the products of Egypt without number, being in every number<sup>b</sup> like ten-thousands. They were sent forth into the great sea of<sup>10</sup> the inverted water,<sup>c</sup> they arrived at the countries of Punt, no mishap overtook them, safe and bearing terror.<sup>d</sup> The galleys and the barges were laden with the products of God's-Land, <sup>11</sup>consisting of all the strange marvels of their country: plentiful myrrh of Punt,<sup>e</sup> laden by ten-thousands, without number. Their chief's children of God's-Land went before their tribute <sup>12</sup>advancing to Egypt. They arrived in safety at the highland of Coptos;<sup>f</sup> they landed in safety, bearing the things which they brought. They were loaded, on the land-journey, upon asses and upon men; and loaded into <sup>13</sup>vessels upon the Nile, (at) the haven of Coptos. They were sent forward down-stream<sup>g</sup> and arrived amid festivity, and brought (some) of the tribute into the (royal) presence like marvels. Their chief's

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "galley-archers."

<sup>b</sup>Probably meaning that "every number" in the lists was a large one.

<sup>c</sup>"The inverted water" is the Euphrates (see Tombos Stela, l. 13, II, 73); hence "the great sea of the inverted water" is the Indian Ocean, of which the Persian Gulf (into which the Euphrates flows) is a part. The Egyptians doubtless counted the Red Sea as a part of this "great sea of the inverted water," for the antique maps even far down into Arab times show the vaguest knowledge of the proper relations of these waters. It is possible to infer from this passage that Punt extended beyond the straits of Bab el-Mendeb.

<sup>d</sup>For all who might oppose them; it is a military expression, meaning that they were in efficient condition.

<sup>e</sup>See the trees of Punt in the Medinet Habu treasury, § 29.

<sup>f</sup>The "highland or desert of Coptos" here refers to the Red Sea end of the Coptos route, where the cargoes are unloaded from the vessels, and the land transport to the Nile begins.

<sup>g</sup>Showing that Ramses III did not live at Thebes (which is up-stream from Coptos), but in the north, in the Delta.

Pl. 78

children were in adoration before me, <sup>1</sup>kissing the earth, prostrate before me. I gave them to all the gods of this land, to satisfy the two serpent-goddesses every morning.

Expedition to Atika

408. I sent forth my messengers <sup>2</sup>to the country of the Atika (<sup>c</sup>-ty-ka),<sup>a</sup> to the great copper mines which are in this place. Their galleys carried them;<sup>b</sup> others on the land-journey were upon their <sup>3</sup>asses. It has not been heard before, since kings reign.<sup>c</sup> Their mines were found abounding in copper; it was loaded by ten-thousands into their galleys. <sup>4</sup>They<sup>d</sup> were sent forward to Egypt, and arrived safely. It was carried and made into a heap under the balcony,<sup>e</sup> in many bars<sup>f</sup> of copper, like hundred-thousands, being of the color of <sup>5</sup>gold of three times. I allowed all the people to see them, like wonders.

Sinai Expedition

409. I sent forth butlers and officials to the malachite-country, to my mother, Hathor, mistress of the malachite. There were brought for her silver, gold, royal linen, mek-linen, and many things <sup>7</sup>into her presence, like the sand. There were brought for me wonders of real malachite in numerous sacks, brought forward into my presence. They had not been seen before, <sup>8</sup>since kings reign.

Ramses III's Good Works at Home

410. I planted the whole land with trees and verdure, and I made the people dwell in their shade. I made <sup>9</sup>the woman of Egypt to go <sup>10</sup>to the place she desired, (for) no stranger nor any one upon the

<sup>a</sup>Uncertain region, accessible both by sea and land from Egypt, hence probably in the Sinaitic Peninsula, where so much copper was obtained. See Müller, Asien und Europa, 133 and 393.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "were laden with them;" meaning, of course, the messengers.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "since the reign;" viz., "since the reign of kings began."

<sup>d</sup>Or: "it," the copper.

<sup>e</sup>The copper is piled up under the palace balcony.

<sup>f</sup>Lit., "bricks."

<sup>g</sup>The two words literally mean: "her ears being extended," but the significance of this statement is obscure. It may refer to the fact that her head and ears were uncovered; compare the similar statement in the inscription of the year 5, l. 73 (§ 47).

road molested her. I made the infantry and chariotry to dwell (at home) <sup>10</sup>in my time; the Sherden ( $\text{Š}^{\text{3}} - r^{\text{3}} - d^{\text{3}} - n^{\text{3}}$ ) and Kehek ( $\text{K}^{\text{3}} h k^{\text{3}}$ ) were in their towns, lying the <sup>11</sup>length<sup>a</sup> of their backs; they had no fear, (for) there was no enemy <sup>12</sup>from Kush, (nor) foe from Syria. Their bows and their weapons reposed in their magazines, while they were satisfied and drunk with joy. <sup>13</sup>Their wives were with them, their children at their side; they looked not behind them,<sup>b</sup> (but) their hearts were confident, (for) I was with them as the defense and protection of their limbs. <sup>14</sup>I sustained alive the whole land, whether foreigners, (common) folk, citizens, or people, male or female.<sup>c</sup> I took a man out of his misfortune and I gave to him breath; <sup>15</sup>I rescued him from the oppressor, who was of more account than he.<sup>d</sup> I set each man in his security, in their towns; I sustained alive others in the hall of petition.<sup>e</sup> <sup>16</sup>I equipped the land in the place where it was laid waste. The land was well satisfied in my reign. I did good to the gods, as well as the men, <sup>17</sup>and I had nothing at all belonging to any (other) people. I exercised my sovereignty over the land as ruler of the Two Lands, while ye were my servants under my feet, without <sup>18</sup>—I. Ye were <sup>19</sup>well pleasing to my heart, for ye did excellently, and ye were zealous for my commands<sup>f</sup> and my commissions.

Pl. 79

Ramses III's Death

411. Behold, I have gone to rest in the Nether World, like (my) father Re, <sup>1</sup>I have mingled with the great gods in heaven, earth and, the Nether World. Amon-Re has established my son on my throne; he has taken my office in peace, as ruler of the Two Lands, sitting on the throne <sup>2</sup>of Horus as lord of the two shores. He has assumed the

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "the height of their backs."

<sup>b</sup>In fear.

<sup>c</sup>An enumeration which seems to begin at the bottom;  $k^{\text{3}} w y, r h y^{\text{3}} t, p^{\text{3}} c^{\text{3}} t, h n m m^{\text{3}} t$ ; but see Pl. I, 6, note.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "the mighty who was weightier (or heavier) than he;" compare the Hebrew, קל and כבד.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "the hall of the Nether World" ( $d w^{\text{3}} t$ ); referring to his mortuary oblations?

<sup>f</sup>Lit., "Ye were filled with my commands, etc."

etef-crown, like Tatenen, as: Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H., first-born son of Re, the self-begetter: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon; <sup>7</sup>the child, son of Amon, who came forth from his limbs, shining as Lord of the Two Lands; he is like a true son, praised for his father's sake.

Faithfulness to Ramses IV Urged

412. Be ye attached to his sandals, <sup>8</sup>kiss the earth in his presence, bow down to him, follow him at all times, adore him, praise him, magnify his beauty as ye do <sup>9</sup>to Re every morning. Present to him your tribute (in) his august palace, bring to him the gifts<sup>a</sup> of the lands and countries. Be ye zealous for his commissions, <sup>10</sup>the commands which are spoken among you. <sup>1</sup>Obey<sup>1</sup> his behests, that ye may prosper under him. Labor for him as one man in every work; drag for him monuments, dig for him <sup>11</sup>canals, do ye for him the work of your hands, that ye may enjoy his favor, in possession of his provision every day. Amon has decreed to him his reign upon earth; he has doubled to him his lifetime <sup>12</sup>more than (to) any king; (even) the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands; Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H.; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (IV)-Hekma-Meriamon, L. P. H., given life forever:

RECORD OF THE ROYAL JUBILEE

413. Ramses III commissioned his vizier, Ta, to take charge of the jubilee in the year 29, and it perhaps took place in that year. In that case he was made crown prince a year<sup>b</sup> before his father Setnakht's death.<sup>c</sup> Accepting this, it could not have been long before the celebration that the vizier left the capital (Tanis?) and went south to make preparations for it, as the following paragraph<sup>d</sup> shows:

Year 29, month [one] of the third season, day 28. The vizier Ta sailed north, after he had come to take the gods of the South for the Sed Jubilee.

<sup>a</sup>See § 207.

<sup>b</sup>See § 400 on Ramses III's relations with his father.

<sup>c</sup>This accords with the only date of Setnakht's reign, "year 1" (Papyrus Sallier, I, 6).

<sup>d</sup>Spiegelberg, Recueil, 68, 69; from Papyrus Turin 44, 18 f.

414. At El Kab the High Priest of Nekhbet, Setau, recorded in his tomb, as one of the great events of his life, the visit of the vizier on the occasion of the latter's southern voyage (as above) and his visit there, as follows:<sup>a</sup>

[Year 29] under the majesty] of King Ramses III; first occurrence of the Sed Jubilee. His majesty commanded to commission the governor of the (residence) city, the vizier, Ta, to carry out the customary regulations<sup>b</sup> in the houses of the Sed Jubilee, to go to the "House-of-Ramses-Meriamon (Ramses II),-the-[Good-God]." Reception of the bow of the barque of the Divine<sup>c</sup> Hand by the king himself, when he<sup>1</sup> was [in] the Southern City.<sup>d</sup>

415. This same Setau, in whose tomb the above occurs, was still High Priest of Nekhbet at El Kab in the year 4 of Ramses IX, when his tomb was decorated;<sup>e</sup> so that one man's tenure of a high office (attained, at the earliest, in middle life) includes the period from year 29 of Ramses III to year 4 of Ramses IX. Accepting thirty years for Setau's tenure of the office we have left, after deduction of the known dates of other kings, some fifteen years for the three Ramses, VI, VII, and VIII.<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, II, Pl. 72, No. 2 (attributed to Ramses II); Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1129 (properly attributed); Champollion, Notices descriptives, I, 271; Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, IV, 49.

<sup>b</sup>There is a feminine singular possessive with this word, "her regulations," but the Sed Jubilee is masculine.

<sup>c</sup>Same as Divine Votress, a kind of high priestess of Amon.

<sup>d</sup>This disconnected conclusion is preserved only by Champollion, and it reads as if it surmounted a scene depicting the king receiving the barque.

<sup>e</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, IV, Text, 50; Spiegelberg, Recueil, 24, 185; Maspero's date for the construction of this tomb, as under Ramses III (Momies royales, 667), must be modified in accord with this new datum.

<sup>f</sup> Remainder of Ramses III's reign	2 years.
Ramses IV	6 years.
Ramses V	4 + x years.
Ramses IX (last date in Setau's term)	4 years.

Total	16 years.
-------	-----------

Leaving some fifteen years to insert between Ramses IV and Ramses IX.

RECORDS OF THE HAREM CONSPIRACY<sup>a</sup>

416. Fragmentary and brief as these documents are, they afford a glimpse into the court intrigues and conspiracies of the Orient three thousand and two hundred years ago, which is as picturesque and interesting as it is important. Here are all the materials for a novel or a drama, with the full dramatis personae all present. The first question which arises is: Against whom was the conspiracy, here unfolded, directed? The king who empowers the prosecuting court to try the conspirators is called "ruler of Heliopolis" (§ 423), a term applied to several kings, but especially to Ramses III. One of the conspirators, in the course of their machinations, secured a "magic roll of Ramses III . . . his lord." It is clear, then, that the conspiracy was directed against this king, and, as we shall see, toward the close of his reign. One of his queens,<sup>b</sup> named Tiy, plots to make way with the old king and to place her son Pentewere<sup>c</sup> upon the throne.

<sup>a</sup>These records are contained in two documents: (a) the Judicial Papyrus of Turin; and (b) Papyrus Lee and Papyrus Rollin, both parts of one document. The Judicial Papyrus of Turin is a magnificent document, containing six columns, the first being but a mere fragment of the ends of all the lines. The papyrus roll is about twenty inches high, the letters about an inch and a quarter high, and the horizontal lines are two inches apart. It was published, and for that time well treated, by Devéria in the Journal asiatique, in 1865-68, (but see Chabas' valuable corrections, Mélanges d'archéologie égyptienne, 3<sup>me</sup> sér., Tome I, 5-47), and again revised by the author, as a "tirage à part" in 1868. The last was republished in the author's collected works (Bibliothèque égyptologique, V). Papyrus Lee contains the lower part of two columns, published by Sharpe (Egyptian Inscriptions, II, 47, 48) in 1855; shortly after by Lee (Hartwell House Catalogue, Pl. II); by Chabas, Papyrus Magique, Harris, 169-74; and Mélanges d'archéologie égyptienne, I, 9, 10; by Devéria, op. cit.; and by Newberry (Amherst Papyri, Pl. II and III, and pp. 19-22); Papyrus Rollin (No. 1888) in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris contains one short but complete column, published by Chabas, op. cit., by Devéria, op. cit., and by Pleyte, Les Papyrus Rollin, Pl. XVI.

<sup>b</sup>She may have been the mother or stepmother of Ramses III; see Erman, Aegypten, 87 (Mariette, Catalogue général d'Abydos, 1170).

<sup>c</sup>This was not his name, but a name given him in the court records, which call him "Pentewere, who bore that other name." The chief conspirators are given assumed names by the records, as we shall see.

The "chief of the chamber," Pebekkamen, and a royal butler, named Mesedsure, were her chief coadjutors. The former procured from the overseer of the royal herds, Penhuibin, a number of magic wax figures of gods and men, which were able, in the belief of the owner, to disable or enfeeble the limbs of people. Two other men furnished similar materials, which were smuggled into the harem, and by such agencies the conspirators were empowered, as they thought, to disable or evade the people of the guard, who might otherwise have discovered and betrayed the plot.

417. Pebekkamen and Mesedsure secured the co-operation of ten harem officials of various ranks, four royal butlers, an overseer of the treasury named Pere, a captain of archers in Nubia named Binemwese, who was inveigled by the influence of a sister of his in the harem; Peyes, a commander of the army, three royal scribes in various offices, Pebekkamen's assistant, and several subordinate officials. As most of these people were in the personal service of the Pharaoh, the dangerous character of the complot is evident. Six wives of the officers of the harem-gate were used in securing the transmission of messages, and outside relatives of the inmates, not mentioned by name, are clearly implicated. Binemwese's sister sent him a letter urging him to incite the people to hostility against the king, and such was the purport of all the messages which left the harem. Evidently a revolution outside of the palace was intended to accompany their own coup within it. That the latter involved the assassination of the king is nowhere stated, but is self-evident.

418. Before their plans could be carried out, the conspirators were, in some way, betrayed, and ample evidence of their guilt was obtainable. The king ordered their prosecution, but before they came to trial he died.<sup>a</sup> It would almost appear that he knew his days were numbered when he gave instructions for the prosecution of the conspirators, for at the close of the commission constituting the special court therefor, he uses the remarkable words: (Go on with the prosecution, etc.), “while I am protected and defended forever, while I am [among] the just kings who are before Amon-Re . . . . and before Osiris, ruler of eternity;” that is, while I am among my deceased fathers. That the plot went so far that the king was injured, and survived his injuries only long enough to direct the prosecution of his assassins, is improbable, in view of a remark in the records, that Re did not permit the hostile plans to succeed;<sup>b</sup> but we may easily believe that it hastened the old king’s end, even if he escaped unscathed.

419. The court commissioned to try the conspirators received its instructions directly from the king, and was given not only full discretion as to the verdict, but also final power to execute punishment, which was otherwise usually fixed by the Pharaoh after trial (§ 541). At the same time Ramses cautioned the judges to be certain of guilt, by the usual procedure in every case, and to punish none but the guilty. The court, thus constituted with such unusual powers, consisted of fourteen officials, viz., two overseers of the treasury, two standard-bearers of the army, seven royal butlers, a royal herald, and two scribes. Among them were a Libyan, a Lycian, a Syrian named Maharbaal (“Baal hastens”), and another foreigner, Kedendenna by name, of uncertain nationality. The unhealthy character of the conditions at the court of Ramses III are thus patent. Foreign stewards and butlers, whose fidelity is purchased, are now the reliance of the Pharaoh. Their flaccid character and the dangerous persistence of the conspirators are shown by the fact that two of the judges, the butler Pebes and the scribe Mai, after their<sup>a</sup> appointment, together with two officers having the prisoners in charge, received in their dwelling some of the women conspirators and the general Peyes, with whom they caroused. These two judges, together with the two officers and another judge, Hori, the standard-bearer, were immediately put on trial for their indiscretion, and the first four were condemned to lose their noses and ears. On the execution of the sentence, Pebes committed suicide; Hori was found to be innocent.

<sup>a</sup>He is called “the Great God” in the records of the trial, a term applied at this time only to deceased kings. See Papyrus Lee, col. 1, l. 3 (§ 455).

<sup>b</sup>Rollin, l. 3, § 454; but see note.

420. The fate of the queen, Tiy, is unknown, as the records preserved do not contain her trial. The records of four different prosecutions are preserved. The judges were not all present at these four prosecutions. Six of them carried on the first, and condemned twenty-two persons, including the arch-conspirators Pebekkamen and Mesedsure, Bin-emwese, the captain of archers in Nubia, and Pere, overseer of the treasury; besides the six wives of the officers of the harem-gate. The penalty is not defined, but it was certainly death. The second prosecution, the judges for which are not mentioned, resulted in the condemnation of six persons, including Peyes, the army commander. All were permitted to commit suicide without leaving the court. Three butlers alone conducted the prosecution of the third group of four conspirators, among whom was the guilty young prince Pentewere. All four were found guilty, and were allowed to take their own lives. These three prosecutions disposed of the capital cases.<sup>a</sup> The fourth prosecution was that of the indiscreet judges and their two companions.

---

<sup>a</sup>That their indiscretion occurred only after their appointment is, of course, evident. They never would have been appointed had their intimacy with the conspirators occurred before. The object of Peyes and the women could only have been the corruption of the judges in their own interest.

421. In the documents containing the above facts, the chief conspirators are given fictitious names, indicative of the abhorrence in which they were held. Thus Mesedsure means "Re hates him," and Binemwese is "Wicked in Thebes." Pentewere, the name applied to the guilty prince, who was in all probability only an unfortunate tool, is not a term of opprobrium, but is not his real name (Col. V, l. 7, § 447).

422. As to the character of the following records, the first document (Turin) omits the evidence, and is, therefore, not a full record of the trials, but forms merely an abstract of the proceedings, evidently for filing in the royal archives. The second document (Lee and Rollin), far less imposing in appearance, is fuller, and may have been part of the original scribal record of the prosecution.

I. APPOINTMENT OF THE COURT.

Col. 1. Introduction

423. 1. ——— Ruler of Heliopolis ———<sup>b</sup> 2. ——— t[he] wh[ole] land ——— 3. ——— the whole land ——— 4. ——— their cattle ——— 5. ——— to bring them ——— 6. ——— all — before them ——— 7. ——— for them; the — are ———

Col. 2.

8. ——— people saying ——— 9. ——— they are <sup>1</sup>the abhorred of the land.

Commission of the Court

I commission:

The overseer of the White House, Mentemtowe (Mntw-m-t<sup>2</sup> wy);

<sup>a</sup>For the three people tried and executed for practicing magic, whose names are lost in the full account of their trial (§§ 454-56), are probably included in the list of capital prosecutions without designation of their crime as magic. "Collusion" is a quite sufficient definition of their guilt in the abstract (Turin).

<sup>b</sup>The loss at the ends of the lines is of uncertain length; the last line joins Col. 2 without break, but it is perhaps a short line.

The overseer of the White House, Pefroi ( $P^{\circ} yj-r^{\circ} wy$ );

<sup>2</sup>The standard-bearer, Kara ( $K^{\circ} -r^{\circ}$ );

The butler, Pebes ( $P^{\circ} y-B^{\circ} -s^{\circ}$ );

The butler, Kedendenna ( $Kdndnn^{\circ}$ );

The butler, Maharbaal<sup>a</sup> ( $M-h^{\circ} -r^{\circ} -b-^{\circ} c-^{\circ} r^{\circ}$ );

<sup>3</sup>The butler, Payernu ( $P^{\circ} -yr-nw$ );

The butler, Thutrehnefer ( $D\dot{h}wt y-r\dot{h}-[n]r$ );

The king's-herald, Penrenut ( $Pn-rnw$ );

The scribe, Mai ( $My$ );

<sup>4</sup>The scribe of the archives, Peremhab ( $P^{\circ} -R^{\circ} -m-hb$ );

The standard-bearer of the infantry, Hori; <sup>5</sup>saying:

Instructions to the Court

424. "As for the words which the people have spoken, I know them not. Go ye and examine them. <sup>6</sup>When they<sup>b</sup> go out, and they<sup>b</sup> examine them, they<sup>b</sup> shall cause to die by their own hand, those who should die, <sup>7</sup>without [my] knowing it. They shall execute the punishment [upon] the others, likewise without my knowing it. When [ye<sup>l</sup>] <sup>l</sup>go<sup>l</sup> [<sup>l</sup>see to<sup>l</sup> it] that ye give heed, and have a care lest ye execute punishment <sup>9</sup>upon — — — — unjustly<sup>c</sup> [<sup>l</sup>— — —<sup>l</sup>]. Now, I say to you<sup>d</sup> in very truth, <sup>1</sup>as for all that has been done, and those who have done it, let all that they have done fall upon their (own) heads; <sup>3</sup>while I am protected and defended<sup>e</sup> forever, <sup>4</sup>while I am <sup>l</sup>among<sup>l</sup><sup>f</sup> the just kings, who are before <sup>5</sup>Amon-Re, king of gods, and before Osiris, ruler of eternity."

Col. 3

II. THE CONDEMNED OF THE FIRST PROSECUTION

Col. 4. First Prosecution

425. <sup>1</sup>Persons brought in because of the great crimes which they had committed, and placed in the court<sup>g</sup> of examination before the great nobles of the court of examination, that they might be examined by:

<sup>a</sup>מֵהָר בְּעַלֵּי

<sup>b</sup>We should expect "ye."

<sup>c</sup>Gwš, "to bend, crook, break;" it has also been thought to refer to torture.

<sup>d</sup>Text has "them."

<sup>e</sup>See same phrase, I, 768, and IV, 528, l. 7.

<sup>f</sup>Hr, "under," local.

<sup>g</sup>Lit., "seat or place of examination."

Composition of the Court

426. The overseer of the White House, Mentemtowe;
 The overseer of the White House, Pefroi;
 The standard-bearer, Kara;
 The butler, Pebes;
 The scribe of the archives, Mai;
 The standard-bearer, Hori.

They examined them; they found them guilty; they brought their punishment upon them; their crimes seized them.

The Condemned and Their Crimes

427. <sup>2</sup>The great criminal,<sup>a</sup> Pebekkamen (P<sup>3</sup> y-b<sup>3</sup> ky-k<sup>3</sup> mn), formerly chief of the chamber.

He was brought in because of his collusion with Tiy and the women of the harem. He made common cause with them, and began bringing out their words to their mothers and their brothers who were there, saying: "Stir up the people! Incite enemies to hostility against their lord." He was placed before the great nobles of the court of examination; they examined his crimes; they found that he had committed them. His crimes seized him; the nobles who examined him brought his punishment upon him.

428. <sup>3</sup>The great criminal, Mesedsure (Msd-sw-R<sup>c</sup>),<sup>b</sup> formerly butler.

He was brought in because of his collusion [with] Pebekkamen, formerly chief of the chamber, and with the women, to stir up enemies to hostility against their lord. He was placed before the great nobles of the court of examination; they examined his crimes; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

429. <sup>4</sup>The great criminal, Peynok (P<sup>3</sup> -ynywk),<sup>c</sup> formerly overseer of the king's [—] of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>d</sup>

He was brought in because of his making common cause with Pebekkamen and Mesedsure, to commit hostility against their lord.

<sup>a</sup>This word (ḥrw) literally means "fallen, miserable," and is the term regularly applied to rebels, foreign foes, and criminals. Chabas' objections (Mélanges d'archéologie égyptienne, 3<sup>me</sup> sér., I, 14) to translating "criminal" seem to me rather pedantic and unfair to Devéria.

<sup>b</sup>Meaning "Re hates him;" see introduction, § 421.

<sup>c</sup>"The serpent."

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "while following" (the king?).

He was placed before the great nobles of the court of examination; they examined his crimes; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

430. <sup>5</sup>The great criminal, Pendua (P-n-dw<sup>3</sup> w), formerly scribe of the king's [—], of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

He was brought in because of his making common cause with Pebekkamen and Mesedsure, the other criminal, formerly overseer of the king's [—], and the women of the harem, to make a conspiracy with them, to commit hostility against their lord. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they examined his crimes; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

431. <sup>6</sup>The great criminal, Petewnteamon (P<sup>3</sup> -t<sup>3</sup> w-mdy-Ymn), formerly inspector of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

He was brought in because of his hearing the words which the people discussed with the women of the harem, without reporting them. He was placed before the great nobles of the court of examination; they examined his crimes; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

432. <sup>7</sup>The great criminal, Kerpes (K<sup>3</sup> -r<sup>3</sup> -pw-s<sup>3</sup>), formerly inspector of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

He was brought in because of the words which he had heard and had concealed. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination. They found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

433. <sup>8</sup>The great criminal, Khamopet (H<sup>c</sup> -m-yp<sup>3</sup> t), formerly inspector of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

He was brought in because of the words which he had heard and had concealed. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination. They found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

434. <sup>9</sup>The great criminal, Khammale (H<sup>c</sup> -m-m<sup>33</sup> -n-r<sup>3</sup>), formerly inspector of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

He was brought in because of the words which he had heard and had concealed. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

435. <sup>10</sup>The great criminal, Setimperthoth (Sty-m-pr-Dhwty), formerly inspector of the harem, [in the suite].<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "while following" (the king?).

He was brought in because of the words which he had heard and had concealed. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

436. <sup>11</sup>The great criminal, Setimperamon (Sety-m-pr-Ymn), formerly inspector of the harem, in the suite<sup>1</sup>.

He was brought in because of the words which he had heard and had concealed. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

437. <sup>12</sup>The great criminal, Weren (W<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>3</sup>-n<sup>3</sup>), who was butler.

He was brought in because of his hearing the words from the chief of the chamber, and when he had withdrawn from<sup>1</sup> him, he concealed them and did not report them. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

438. <sup>13</sup>The great criminal, Eshehebsed (ḥ<sup>3</sup>-ḥb-šd), formerly assistant of Pebekkamen.

He was brought in because of his hearing the words from Pebekkamen; and when he had left him, he did not report them. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

439. <sup>14</sup>The great criminal, Peluka (P<sup>3</sup>-rw-k<sup>3</sup>),<sup>a</sup> formerly butler and scribe of the White House.

He was brought in because of his collusion with Pebekkamen, having heard the words from him, without reporting them. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

440. <sup>15</sup>The great criminal, the Libyan, Yenini (Y-ny-ny), formerly butler.

He was brought in because of his collusion with Pebekkamen, having heard the words from him, without reporting them. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

Col. 5

441. <sup>1</sup>Wives of the people of the harem-gate, who united with the men, when the things were discussed; who were placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found them guilty; they brought their punishment upon them: six women.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "the Lycian."

442. <sup>2</sup>The great criminal, Pere (P<sup>3</sup> y-yry), son of Ruma (Rw-m<sup>3</sup>), formerly overseer of the White House.

He was brought in because of his collusion with the great criminal, Penhuibin (Pn-hwy-byu), making common cause with him to stir up enemies to hostility against their lord. He was placed before the nobles of the court of examination; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

443. <sup>3</sup>The great criminal, Binemwese (Byu-m-W<sup>3</sup> s't),<sup>a</sup> formerly captain of archers in<sup>b</sup> Nubia.

He was brought in because of the letter, which his sister, who was in the harem, [in the suite], had written to him, saying: "Incite the people to hostility! And come thou to begin hostility against thy lord." He was placed before Kedendenna,<sup>c</sup> Maharbaal,<sup>c</sup> Pirsun (P<sup>3</sup> -yr-swu), and Thutrehnefer,<sup>d</sup> they examined him; they found him guilty; they brought his punishment upon him.

III. THE CONDEMNED OF THE SECOND PROSECUTION

444. <sup>4</sup>Persons brought in because of their crimes and because of their collusion with Pebeekamen, Peyes (P<sup>3</sup> y-yš), and Pentewere (Pn-t<sup>3</sup> -wr). They were placed before the nobles of the court of examination in order to examine them; they found them guilty; they<sup>e</sup> left them in their<sup>f</sup> own hands in the court of examination; they<sup>f</sup> took their<sup>f</sup> own lives; and no punishment was executed upon them.

445. <sup>5</sup>The great criminal, Peyes, formerly commander of the army.

The great criminal, Messui (Ms-swy), formerly scribe of the house of sacred writings.

The great criminal, Perekamenef (P<sup>3</sup> -R<sup>c</sup> -k<sup>3</sup> mn·f), formerly chief.

The great criminal, Iroi (Yy-r<sup>3</sup> y), formerly overseer of the [—] of Sekhmet.

<sup>a</sup>Meaning: "Wicked in Thebes."

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "of Nubia;" he was probably in Nubia at the time. The phrase, "of Nubia," may possibly belong to "archers," but such a rendering is against the usual custom.

<sup>c</sup>See col. 2, l. 2.

<sup>e</sup>The judges.

<sup>d</sup>Ibid., l. 3.

<sup>f</sup>The condemned.

The great criminal, Nebzefai (Nb-ḏj<sup>ḏ</sup> w), formerly butler.

The great criminal, Shedmeszer (Š<sup>c</sup> ḏ-msḏr), formerly scribe of the house of sacred writings.

Total, 6.

IV. THE CONDEMNED OF THE THIRD PROSECUTION

446. <sup>6</sup>Persons who were brought in, because of their crimes, to the court of examination, before Kedendenna, Maharbaal, Pirsun, Thutrehnefer, and Mertusamon (Mrt-y-ws-y-Ymn).<sup>a</sup> They examined them concerning their crimes; they found them guilty; they left them in their place; they took their own lives.

447. <sup>7</sup>Pentewere, who bore that other name.

He was brought in because of his collusion [with] Tiy, his mother, when she discussed the words with the women of the harem, being hostile against his lord. He was placed before the butlers, in order to examine him; they found him guilty; they left him in his place; he took his own life.

448. <sup>8</sup>The great criminal, Henutenamon (H<sup>ḏ</sup> n-wtn-Ymn), formerly butler.

He was brought in because of the crimes of the women of the harem; having been among them and having heard (them), without reporting them. He was placed before the butlers, in order to examine him; they found him guilty; they left him in his place; he took his own life.

449. <sup>9</sup>The great criminal, Amenkha (Ymn-ḥ<sup>c</sup> w), formerly deputy of the harem, [in the suite].

He was brought in because of the crimes of the women of the harem; having been among them, and having heard (them), without reporting them. He was placed before the butlers, in order to examine him; they found him guilty; they left him in his place; he took his own life.

450. <sup>10</sup>The great criminal, Pere, formerly scribe of the king's [—] of the harem, [in the suite].

He was brought in because of the crimes of the women of the harem; having been among them, and having heard (them), without reporting them. He was placed before the butlers, in order to examine him; they found him guilty; they left him in his place; he took his own life.

<sup>a</sup>According to l. 7, these are all butlers.

V. THE CONDEMNED OF THE FOURTH PROSECUTION

Col. 6

451. <sup>1</sup>Persons upon whom punishment was executed by cutting off their noses and their ears, because of their forsaking the good testimony<sup>a</sup> delivered to them. The women had gone; had arrived at their<sup>b</sup> place of abode, and had there caroused<sup>c</sup> with them and with Peyes. Their crime seized them.<sup>d</sup>

452. <sup>2</sup>This great criminal, Pebes (P <sup>2</sup> y-b <sup>2</sup> -s <sup>2</sup>), formerly butler. This punishment<sup>e</sup> was executed upon him; he was left (alone); he took his own life.

<sup>3</sup>The great criminal, Mai, formerly scribe of the archives.

<sup>4</sup>The great criminal, Teynakhte (T <sup>2</sup> y-nht <sup>2</sup> t), formerly officer<sup>f</sup> of infantry.

<sup>5</sup>The great criminal, Oneney (c <sup>2</sup> -n <sup>2</sup> -n <sup>2</sup> y), formerly captain<sup>f</sup> of police.

VI. THE ACQUITTED

453. <sup>6</sup>Person<sup>g</sup> who had been connected with them; they had contended with him, with evil and violent words; he was dismissed; punishment was not executed upon him:

<sup>7</sup>The great criminal,<sup>h</sup> Hori, who was standard-bearer of the infantry.

<sup>a</sup>The king's instructions.

<sup>b</sup>The condemned.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "made a beer-hall" (c <sup>2</sup> t-hk <sup>2</sup> t); the same word in Piankhi, l. 134 (§ 880).

<sup>d</sup>The constitution of the court is not given.

<sup>e</sup>Cutting off nose and ears; mentioned in l. 1; afterward in despair he kills himself. The others lived and endured the disgrace. Pebes and Mai, the following prisoners, were judges appointed on this trial by the king.

<sup>f</sup>The question arises why these men (not judges) are implicated. The analogy of the case of the two judges shows that they must have had something to do with the trial. Looking at their titles, one a military officer and the other a captain of police, it becomes exceeding probable that we have in them the explanation of another difficulty. How could Peyes and the women, already in custody and awaiting trial, gain their freedom to go to the dwelling of one of their judges? The two officers Teynakhte and Oneney must have been in charge of them; and they secretly went with their charges to the judge's house. They were thus equally guilty with the two judges.

<sup>g</sup>As the rubric shows, this is the title of the following list, consisting of one person.

<sup>h</sup>So-called, although innocent, his name being here cited from the court docket where it appeared with the above words before it. He bears the same name and title as one of the judges (col. 2, l. 4). If he be the same man, then we may doubtless understand the language of l. 6 above as indicating an altercation in court, in which the prisoners had attempted to implicate one of the judges, an attempt which was thwarted by putting him on trial, and acquitting him.

VII. THE PRACTICERS OF MAGIC

First Case of Magic

454. <sup>a</sup>He began to make magic rolls for <sup>1</sup>hindering<sup>1</sup> and terrifying, and to make some gods of wax, and some people, for enfeebling the limbs of people; <sup>2</sup>and gave them into the hand of Pebekkamen, whom Re made not to be chief of the chamber, and the other great criminals, saying: "Take them in;" and they took <sup>3</sup>them in. Now, when he set himself to do the evil (deeds) which he did, in which Re did not permit that he should succeed,<sup>b</sup> he was examined. Truth was found in every crime <sup>4</sup>and in every evil (deed), which his heart had devised to do. There was truth therein, he had done them all, together with all the other great criminals. They were great crimes <sup>5</sup>of death, the great abominations of the land, the things which he had done. Now, when he learned<sup>c</sup> of the great crimes of death which he had committed, he took his own life.

Col. 1. Second Case of Magic

455. <sup>d</sup>"——— <sup>1</sup>the king, L. P. H., for provisioning <sup>1</sup>———<sup>1</sup> ——— <sup>2</sup>any — of my place of abode, to any person in the world." Now, when Penhuibin (Pn-hwy-byn), formerly overseer of herds, said to him: "Give to me a roll for enduing me with strength and might," <sup>3</sup>he gave to him a magic roll of Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III), L. P. H., the Great God,<sup>e</sup> his lord, L. P. H., and he began to

<sup>a</sup>Papyrus Rollin begins here, but the beginning of the case is lost, so that the name and office of the accused are unknown.

<sup>b</sup>It is not quite certain whether this remark refers to the failure of the whole conspiracy or only to this man's part in it. The former is more probable.

<sup>c</sup>That is, when he learned of what crimes he was charged with. The pronoun is sw, which is possibly for se, "they," viz., the judges; though the papyrus does not contain another example of such an error.

<sup>d</sup>Here Papyrus Lee begins; the beginning (top of the column) of the report is lost, and it is uncertain who is speaking. The name and office of the accused are also unknown.

<sup>e</sup>"The Great God" is applied at this time only to deceased kings, though it is used in the Old Kingdom of living kings. It regularly designates the deceased king in Papyrus Harris (passim), but is never applied to him in the vast inscriptions of Medinet Habu made during his life. In Papyrus Abbot, of the same age, the term always designates a deceased king; see also § 471 and commonly. A living king as presiding god of a distinct region or temple may receive the words "great god" in his formal cultus titulary (e. g., II, 894), but not otherwise. At the time

<sup>a</sup>employ the magic powers of a god<sup>1a</sup> upon people. He arrived at the side <sup>4</sup>of the harem, this other large, deep place.<sup>b</sup> He began to make people of wax, inscribed,<sup>c</sup> in order that they might be taken in by the inspector, Errem (<sup>7</sup>-ry-m),<sup>d</sup> <sup>5</sup>hindering<sup>1</sup> one troop and bewitching the others, that a few words<sup>e</sup> might be taken in, and others brought out. Now, when he was examined <sup>6</sup>concerning them, truth was found in every crime and in every evil (deed), which his heart had devised to do. There was truth therein, he had done them all, together with the <sup>7</sup>other great criminals, the abomination of every god and every goddess all together. The great punishments of death were executed upon him, of which the gods have said: "Execute them upon him."

Col. 2. Third Case of Magic

456. <sup>f</sup>1 ————— in the — — upon the measure. He went away ————— his hand enfeebled<sup>g</sup> — —. Now, when <sup>2</sup>[he was examined concerning] them, truth was found in every crime and in [every] evil (deed), which his heart had devised to do. There was truth <sup>3</sup>[therein, he had done them all, together with the othe]r great criminals, the abomination of every god and every goddess all together. They were great crimes of death, the great abominations of <sup>4</sup>[the land, the things which he had done. Now, when he<sup>h</sup> learned of the] great [crim]es of death, which he had committed, he took his own life. Now, when the nobles, who examined him, learned that he had taken his own life <sup>5</sup>————— Re, altogether, of which the sacred writings say: "Execute it upon him."

—————
this court record was made, then, the king was dead; but at the time when the roll was procured he was still living; hence the addition "his lord," meaning "his then lord." The king therefore lived to give the instructions for these prosecutions.

<sup>a</sup>While the rendering is doubtful in details, there is no doubt about the meaning in general, that he began to use the charms in the book.

<sup>b</sup>Some retired place by the wall of the harem, mentioned before in the lost portion of the papyrus, as the demonstrative shows.

<sup>c</sup>With the names of the persons represented, and the necessary charms.

<sup>d</sup>אל-רם.

<sup>e</sup>He evidently was thought to have bewitched the watch, that the intercourse with the harem might not be discovered.

<sup>f</sup>The second column of Papyrus Lee begins here; the name and office of the accused are lost with the missing top of the column.

<sup>g</sup>This is some official who has been the victim of the magical arts of the condemned; see Papyrus Rollin, l. 1 (§ 454).

<sup>h</sup>See § 454, l. 5.

REIGN OF RAMSES IV

HAMMAMAT STELA

457. These records on the rocks in the Wadi Hammamat bring us knowledge of the only considerable achievement of Ramses IV known to us.

I. THE FIRST STELA

In the first stela<sup>a</sup> the king narrates how, by direct revelation of the god, he has been guided in a personal visit to the quarries of the Wadi Hammamat, which lie three days' journey from the Nile, on the road from Coptos to the Red Sea. In commemoration of this visit the first stela was then cut in the rocks. Its date shows that the king undertook this arduous desert journey only a little over a year and three months after his accession. The document is as follows:

458. At the top is a relief, in two fields, showing Ramses IV offering an image of Mat, the goddess of truth, to "Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, lord of the highlands and mountains;" "Min, lord of the highlands;" and "Isis, mistress of heaven." Behind him stands Mat. Below this, in the second field, the king appears, making the same offering to Onouris, Osiris of Coptos, Isis, and Harsiese. Behind him is Thoth, writing.

459. Below the reliefs is the following inscription:

<sup>1</sup>Year 2, second month of the first season (second month), day 12<sup>b</sup> under the majesty of . . . . .<sup>c</sup> <sup>2</sup>King Ramses IV. . . . .
. . . . .<sup>d</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 223, e.

<sup>b</sup>He succeeded his father on the sixth of the eleventh month (§ 182), just 1 year, 3 months, and 11 days before this date.

<sup>c</sup>Full fivefold titulary; see following stela (§ 463).

<sup>d</sup>I have omitted the usual epithets following the king's titulary, as they contain purely conventional reference to the Pharaoh's power, mentioning Retenu and the Asiatics (c' mw).

460. Lo, this Good God, excellent in wisdom, like Thoth, he has entered into the annals [—<sup>12</sup>—], he has perceived the records of the house of sacred writings, his divine heart does excellent things for the lord of gods, his understanding conceives pleasing things like [—],<sup>13</sup> which Re has repeated to him in his heart, that he might find the place of truth, (‘where’)<sup>a</sup> this monument is founded, forever, hereafter.<sup>b</sup> He gave command to the king’s-companions, those who enter in<sup>c</sup> to his majesty, the princes, <sup>14</sup>and the great authorities of the South and North, all of them; the scribes and wise men of the house of [sacred writings], to make this monument for the place of eternity in this mountain of Bekhen, <sup>15</sup>before God’s-Land. King Ramses IV, beloved of Amon-Re, Harakhte, Min, lord of the desert, Horus, son of Osiris, and Eswere (Isis, the great); given life.

II. THE SECOND STELA<sup>d</sup>

461. The king’s personal investigation of the quarries early in the year 2 was followed by an expedition of his officers thither, over a year and nine months later, toward the close of the year 3. The second stela was erected by this expedition which, according to the statements of the stela, was the second largest expedition of the kind in ancient Egypt, of which we have any knowledge.<sup>e</sup> It contained no less than 8,362 men, not including 900 who died from the hardships incident to such a desert journey, and the labor of the quarry in the fierce heat of the desert.

462. After the date and introduction (§ 463) the stela naturally reverts to the king’s visit (§ 464) and the preliminary search for suitable monumental blocks (§ 465). It then records in full the personnel of the expedition. It was led

<sup>a</sup>Or: “the true place of this monument, founded, etc.”

<sup>b</sup>To mark the place.

<sup>c</sup>k hr, lit., “enter upon;” compare Arabic دجل على. It probably is not connected with k hr, Sethe, Untersuchungen, I, 46, note 1.

<sup>d</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 219, e.

<sup>e</sup>The largest expedition was that of Mentuhotep IV (I, 442).

by the High Priest of Amon, Ramsesnakht, whose son Amenhotep succeeded to the same great office (§§ 486 ff.). He had under him 9 civil and military officers of rank (Nos. 2-10), 362 subordinate officers (Nos. 11-16, 18, and 21), 10 trained artificers and artists (Nos. 23, 24, 26, and 27), 130 quarrymen and stonecutters (No. 25), 50 gendarmes as police and overseers (No. 22), 2,000 slaves (No. 20), 5,000 infantry (No. 17), who, of course, assisted in the work, and 800 men of Ayan (No. 19). Their supplies were brought from Egypt by a train of ten carts and many pack-bearers.

Date and Introduction

463. The relief at the top shows Ramses IV offering Mat to the Theban triad and Bast. Behind him stand Min, Harsiese, and Isis. Below are the following twenty-two lines:

<sup>1</sup>Year 3, second month of the third season (tenth month), day 27, under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, Living Truth, Lord of Jubilees, like his father, Ptah; Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Protector of Egypt, Binder of the Nine Bows; Golden Horus: Rich in Years, Great in Victory, Sovereign, Born of the Gods, <sup>2</sup>Creator of the Two Lands; King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Ruler of the Nine Bows, Lord of the Two Lands, Lord of Might: Hekmare<sup>a</sup>-Setepnamon; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (IV)-Meriamon, beloved of Amon-Re, king of gods, Harakhte, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall, lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," Mut, Khonsu, Min, and Harsiese; given life. . . . .<sup>8</sup> . . . . .<sup>b</sup>

His heart is vigilant in the pursuit of benefactions for his father, the creator of his body, who opens for him <sup>9</sup>the way to God's-Land. No one who lived (lit., was) before knew it, (for) its way is far before the <sup>1</sup>people<sup>1</sup>, and they had no desire to enter it.

<sup>a</sup>The first half of this name is usually Usermare, as regularly in Papyrus Harris.

<sup>b</sup>The omitted portion (ll. 3 to beginning of 8) contains only conventional epithets in praise of the king. It is highly improbable that any of these refer to specific occurrences, as stated by Brugsch (Geschichte, 620). This praise merges gradually (l. 8) into specific reference to the Hammamat expedition.

King's Journey

464. Lo, his majesty took account in his heart like his father Harsiese, and he led<sup>a</sup> the way to the place he desired. <sup>10</sup>He went around the august mountain, in order to make marvelous monuments for his father<sup>b</sup> and his fathers, all the gods and goddesses of Egypt. He set up a stela<sup>c</sup> upon this mountain, engraved with the great name of King Ramses IV,<sup>d</sup> given life like Re.

Preliminary Search<sup>e</sup>

465. <sup>11</sup>Lo, his majesty gave command to the scribe of the house of sacred writings, Ramses-eshehab (R<sup>c</sup>-ms-sw-<sup>c</sup>š<sup>o</sup>-hb); the scribe of [crown possessions], Hori; the prophet of the house of Min-Harsiese in Coptos, Usermare-nakht, to seek the [—] for <sup>12</sup>the "Place of Truth,"<sup>f</sup> in the mountain of Bekhen (Bhn), after — — — which were very good, being great and marvelous monuments.

The Expedition

466. Then his majesty commanded to commission: 1. the first prophet of Amon, the chief of works, <sup>13</sup>Ramses-nakht, triumphant, to bring them to Egypt. The butlers and nobles who were with him, were:<sup>g</sup>

2. The king's-butler, Usermare-sekhepersu.
3. The butler, Nakhtamon.
4. The deputy of the army, Khamtir (H<sup>c</sup>-m-ty-r<sup>o</sup>).

<sup>a</sup>Or: "that he might lead, etc." The rendering of Brugsch: "how he might lay out a road, etc." (Geschichte, 621), cannot be gotten out of the text.

<sup>b</sup>Either Amon or Horus (Harsiese) of Coptos.

<sup>c</sup>This is probably the stela of the year 2 above (§§ 459, 460).

<sup>d</sup>Double name.

<sup>e</sup>It is probable that this search took place on the first expedition at the time of the king's visit.

<sup>f</sup>A common name of the Theban cemetery, where the building for which the materials were intended may have been located. But the reference in the stela of the year 2 (above, § 460, l. 13) would indicate that the phrase is rather a designation of some spot in the mountain at Hammamat. The uncertain word (wḥ) preceding the phrase occurs in the same connection in a short inscription left by the same expedition near our stela (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 222, v): "Year 3, second month of the third season (tenth month); his majesty commanded to bring the unknown [—] of the 'Place of Truth,' King Ramses IV."

<sup>g</sup>On the following list, see Brugsch, Aegyptologie, 228 ff.

5. The overseer of the White House, Khamtir. <sup>a</sup>
6. <sup>14</sup> The chief of the quarry-service, mayor, Amonmose, of the city (Thebes). <sup>b</sup>
7. The chief of the quarry-service, overseer of herds of "The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon," <sup>c</sup> Beknekhonsu.
8. The charioteer of the court, Nakhtamon.
9. The scribe of the army-lists, Sule ( Sw-n-r ).
10. <sup>15</sup> The scribe of the deputy of the army, Ramses-nakht.
11. Scribes of the army	20 men
12. Chiefs of the court stables	20 men
13. The chief of the commandants of the army, Kha-male ( H<sup>3</sup>-m-m<sup>33</sup>-n-r<sup>3</sup> )	(1 man)
14. Commandants of the infantry	20 men
15. Charioteers <sup>16</sup> of the chariotry	50 men
16. Chiefs of prophets, overseers of herds, prophets, scribes, inspectors	50 men
17. People of the infantry	5,000 men
18. Officers of the divisions of the court fishermen	<sup>17</sup> 200 men
19. Eper ( <sup>c</sup> pr ) of the foreigners of Ayan ( <sup>c</sup> nw )	800 men
20. People of the crown possessions <sup>1d</sup> of the house of Pharaoh	2,000 men
21. A chief deputy	1 man
22. Mazoi gendarmes ( Md<sup>3</sup> y )	50 men
23. Chief artificer, Nakhtamon	(1 man)
24. Master workmen of the works of the <sup>18</sup> quarrymen	3 men
25. Quarrymen and stonecutters	130 men
26. Draughtsmen	2 men
27. Sculptors	4 men
28. The dead who are excluded from this list <sup>e</sup>	900
Total	8,368 <sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This treasurer is mentioned also in a letter in Papyrus Mallet (Recueil, I, 51, Planches V, l. 5) from the fourth year of Ramses IV.

<sup>b</sup>Whether it is meant that he was mayor of Thebes, or merely belonged in Thebes, is not to be determined from the text; but there probably was not a mayor of all Thebes, which had a city governor, a mayor of the east, and a mayor of the west.

<sup>c</sup>This is the temple of Ramses III at Medinet Habu; the herd is mentioned in Papyrus Harris, 10, 7.

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch, Aegyptologie, 230, note; it is possible to render "temples."

<sup>e</sup>See Spiegelberg, Recueil, XXI, 49.

<sup>f</sup>The correct total, including the ten important officials at the head (the leader

Supplies

467. <sup>19</sup>There were transported for them supplies<sup>a</sup> from Egypt in ten carts, there being six yoke of oxen to (each) cart, drawing (them) from Egypt to the mountain of Bekhen. <sup>20</sup>[There were] many colporteurs laden with bread, meat, and cakes, without number.

Offerings

468. There were (also) brought the oblations for the satisfaction of the gods of heaven and earth from the Southern City (Thebes). They were pure with great purity, they were [—] <sup>21</sup> — — — [commanded] the chief<sup>b</sup> [that the priests might] give [—]. Bulls were slaughtered; calves were smitten; incense, it [streamed] to heaven; shedeh and wine, like a flood; beer [overflowed]<sup>c</sup> in this place; the ritual priest, his voice [presented] the pure offering to Min, Horus, Isis, <sup>22</sup>[Amon, Mut, Khonsu]<sup>d</sup> and all the gods of<sup>e</sup> this mountain. Their hearts were glad, they received the oblations, that they might requite with myriads of jubilees, for their beloved son, King Ramses IV, given life forever.

ABYDOS STELA<sup>f</sup>

469. This document, while it contains no important historical facts from the reign of Ramses IV, is of great psychological interest, and gives us, furthermore, one invaluable and 9 subordinates), is 8,362. The 900 dead, as stated in the monument, are not included in this total. The scribe has made an error of 6 in the addition. Spiegelberg makes the discrepancy only 4 (Recueil, XXI, 49), but this is due to an error of 3 which has crept into his figures; viz., he inserts among the items two 3's, whereas there is but one 3 in the entire list. He also excludes the leader, which reduces his error to 2, making his discrepancy 4 instead of 6.

<sup>a</sup>Whether this word (hr t) refers to food supplies or equipment in tools and the like is not evident. The colporteurs may have carried the food, and the ox carts the heavy tools.

<sup>b</sup>Chief (mt) of a priestly order or phyle (s). <sup>c</sup>B c h ?

<sup>d</sup>Restored from the relief at the top of the stela; so also Brugsch (Geschichte, 623).

<sup>e</sup>Brugsch emends so, or reads from a better copy; Lepsius' text is quite unintelligible.

<sup>f</sup>Stela now in Cairo, found by Mariette in Abydos; Mariette, Abydos, II, Pls. 34, 35 = Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 156 ff. The stela is badly weathered, and the copy of Mariette is excessively inaccurate and incomplete; Rougé is much better. I had a collation of the original by Schaefer, which he kindly placed at my disposal.

datum, the length of Ramses II's reign, sixty-seven years. The petition of Ramses IV is that he may reign as long as did Ramses II, and the manner in which he reasons with Osiris regarding his desire is of unique interest.

470. <sup>1</sup>Year 4, third month of the first season (first month), day 10, under the majesty of King Ramses IV<sup>a</sup> . . . . .<sup>b</sup> <sup>15</sup>And thou shalt give to me health, life, long existence, a prolonged reign, endurance to my every member, sight to my eyes, hearing to my ears, pleasure to my heart daily. <sup>16</sup>And thou shalt give me to eat until I am satisfied; and thou shalt give me to drink until I am drunk; and thou shalt establish my issue (as) kings in the land, forever and ever. <sup>17</sup>And thou shalt grant me contentment every day, and thou shalt hear my voice in every saying, when I shall tell them to thee, and thou shalt give them to me with a loving heart. And thou shalt give to me <sup>18</sup>high and plenteous Niles, in order to supply thy divine offerings, and to supply the divine offerings of all the gods and goddesses of South and North; in order to preserve alive the <sup>19</sup>divine bulls;<sup>c</sup> in order to preserve alive the people of all thy lands, their cattle and their groves, which thy hand has made. <sup>20</sup>For thou art he who has made all, and thou canst not forsake them to carry out other designs with them; (for) that is not right.

471. And thou shalt be pleased with the land of Egypt, t[hy] <sup>21</sup>land, in my time; and thou shalt double for me the long duration, the prolonged reign of King Ramses II, the Great God; for more are the [mighty] <sup>22</sup>deeds, and the benefactions which I do for thy house in order to supply thy divine offerings, in order to seek every excellent thing, every sort of benefaction to do them for thy sanctuary <sup>23</sup>daily during these four years,<sup>d</sup> than those things which King Ramses II, the Great God, did for thee in his sixty-seven years. And thou shalt give to me the long existence <sup>24</sup>with the prolonged reign which thou gavest [him] as

<sup>a</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

<sup>b</sup>The remainder of the first fourteen lines contains only conventional prayers of mortuary character, addressed to Osiris.

<sup>c</sup>Of Athribis (kmr [sic!] wr ntry); see Spiegelberg, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1891, and Papyrus Harris, 30, 3 (§ 278).

<sup>d</sup>The four years which he has thus far reigned.

[‘king’] — — upon — his<sup>a</sup> child<sup>b</sup> — while I sit upon his throne. For thou art he, who hast said it with <sup>25</sup>thy own mouth, and it shall not be reversed ———.<sup>c</sup> For thou art the great lord of Heliopolis, for thou art the <sup>26</sup>great lord of Thebes, for thou art the great lord of Memphis. Thou art he in whom is might, and that which thou doest is that which shall come to pass. Give to me <sup>27</sup>the reward of the great deeds which I have done for thee, even life, prosperity and health, long existence, and a [prolonged] reign; and thou shalt make — the limbs and preserve the members, <sup>28</sup>being with me as my good guardian and excellent protector. And thou shalt ‘give to’ me every [‘land’] and every [‘country’] — — — — — that I may present their tribute to thy ka and to thy name.

BUILDING INSCRIPTION OF THE KHONSU-TEMPLE

472. Ramses III left the Khonsu-temple at Karnak, for the most part, incomplete. The chambers in the rear were then finished by Ramses IV,<sup>d</sup> including the smaller hypostyles, which contain the following dedication:<sup>e</sup>

Lord of the Two Lands: Hekmare-Setepnamon; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses-Meriamon (Ramsés IV); he made (it) as his monument for his father, Khonsu; making for him a temple, excellent, beautiful, enduring forever.

<sup>a</sup>Mariette has “thy;” Rougé, “his.”

<sup>b</sup>This passage is now lost as far as “sit,” inclusive.

<sup>c</sup>Traces.

<sup>d</sup>See Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III.

<sup>e</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 239; ceiling in the “galerie de droite” of the inner hypostyle. The remains of a sandstone obelisk found in Cairo, and now in the museum there, contain a dedication by Ramses IV, as follows: “He made (it) as a monument for his father, Re, making for him a great obelisk, the name of which is ‘Ramses-is-a-Child-of-the-Gods’” (Daressy, Annales, IV).

REIGN OF RAMSES V

TOMB DEDICATION

473. Of the nine Ramessids who ruled after Ramses III the tombs of six<sup>a</sup> in the Valley of the Kings' Tombs are known. As a specimen of the dedication inscriptions the following of Ramses V may serve:<sup>b</sup>

Live Horus: Mighty Bull, Great in Victory, Sustaining Alive the Two Lands; Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Mighty in Strength, Repulser of Millions; Golden Horus: Rich in Years, like Tatenen (Ptah), Sovereign, Lord of Sed Jubilees, Protector of Egypt, Filling Every Land with Great Monuments in His Name; King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Nibmare-Meriamon; Son of Re, of His Body, His Beloved, Lord of Diadems: Amonhirkhepeshef-Ramses (V)-Neterhekon, given life, like Re, forever. He made (it) as his monument for his fathers, the gods of the Nether World, making for them a new title,<sup>c</sup> in order that their names might be renewed; that they may give very many jubilees upon the Horus-throne of the living, every country beneath his feet, like Re, forever.

---

<sup>a</sup>According to Baedeker (1902), these are numbered as follows: Ramses IV (Hekmare), No. 2; Ramses VI (Nibmare), No. 9; Ramses IX (Neferkere), No. 6; Ramses X (Yetamon-Neterhekon), No. 1; Ramses XI (Khepermare), No. 18; Ramses XII (Menmare), No. 4. In Baedeker's list the name of Ramses XII (given as Neferkere) is to be corrected to Menmare.

<sup>b</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III.

<sup>c</sup>Syph't (see I, 178), meaning a title to land.

REIGN OF RAMSES VI

TOMB OF PENNO<sup>a</sup>

474. This official of the Pharaoh lived at Derr in Nubia, where there was a temple to Re or Horus built by Ramses II.

Penno was “deputy of Wawat,” as his chief office; but he was also “chief of the quarry-service, steward of Horus, lord of Miam” (My<sup>c</sup>-t),<sup>b</sup> so that he had charge of the quarry operations in Wawat, as well as the administration of the property of the Horus-temple at Derr, called at that time Miam (My<sup>c</sup> m).

His relatives filled important local offices at Ibrim: two of them were “treasurer of the Lord of the Two Lands in Miam (Ibrim),”<sup>c</sup> another was “scribe of the White House and mayor of Ibrim.”<sup>c</sup> They thus had charge in the local administration of the treasury, which we see was organized in Nubia just as in Egypt at this period. The inscriptions in the tomb furnish a valuable glimpse of the life of the local Egyptian official in Nubia, as well as of the organization of the country and the conditions under Egyptian rule.

475. Penno had erected a statue of Ramses VI, which stood in the temple of Ramses II at Derr; and as a reward the Pharaoh sent him two vessels of silver. This great distinction is portrayed by Penno in his tomb.<sup>d</sup> He shows there, not merely his own reception of the two vessels from the viceroy of Kush, but the latter also, in the act of receiving the vessels from the Pharaoh, to be conveyed to Nubia.

---

<sup>a</sup>Hewn in the cliff at Ibrim, in Nubia; published by Lepsius, as indicated below. I am also indebted to Steindorff for a collation of Lepsius' plates with the original.

<sup>b</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 229, b.

<sup>c</sup>Ibid., 231, a.

<sup>d</sup>Ibid., 230.

Relief Scenes

476. Before Ramses VI enthroned, stands the king's-son of Kush, and the accompanying inscriptions record the the following:

Inscriptions

Said his majesty to the king's-son of Kush: "Give the two silver vessels (tbw) of ointment of gums, to the deputy."

To which the king's-son of Kush replies:

"I will do (so); lo, the happy day shall be celebrated in every land."

Relief Scene

477. We now see the viceroy, after his arrival in Ibrim, presenting the two vases to Penno. The viceroy stands before the statue of Ramses VI, of which Penno has charge. Behind him is his steward, bearing a roll of papyrus. Penno, accompanied by two priests, stands before them, bearing in his uplifted hands two bowls containing cakes of ointment, which must be the vessels referred to in the inscriptions. The viceroy addresses Penno as follows:

Inscriptions

May Amon-Re, king of gods, favor thee! May Montu, lord of Hermonthis, favor thee! May the ka of Pharaoh, L. P. H., thy good lord, favor thee, who caused thee to fashion the statue of Ramses VI, son of Amon, lovely like Horus, lord of Miam (My<sup>c</sup>m) ———.<sup>a</sup>

Hearken, O deputy of Wawat, Penno, to Amon in Karnak. These things were spoken in the court of Pharaoh, thy good lord: "May Amon-Re, king of gods, favor thee! May Harakhte favor thee! May Montu favor thee! May the ka of Pharaoh, L. P. H., thy good lord, favor thee, who is satisfied with that which thou doest in the countries of the Negroes<sup>b</sup> and in the country of Akati (ʿ-kʿ-ty). Thou causest

<sup>a</sup>Here the artist has neglected to engrave the signs of nearly an entire line, leaving them only painted. They have now disappeared, leaving at the bottom of the line the isolated words: "he slays the rebellious."

<sup>b</sup>Nky.

to bring them as captives before Pharaoh, L. P. H., thy good lord, in giving thy payment [—].” Behold, I give to thee thy two vessels (tbw) of silver, that thou mayest anoint thyself with gums. Increase thou [— — —] in the land of Pharaoh, L. P. H., wherein thou art.

478. The response of Penno, which is very brief, is badly preserved, but contained only a greeting “for Pharaoh, L. P. H., my good lord.”

The lands furnishing the income for the maintenance of the offerings presented to Ramses VI's statue were also recorded by Penno in his tomb, the inscription<sup>a</sup> doubtless being a copy of the official records regarding them. The lands comprised five different parcels, each of which is carefully demarked by four boundaries, enumerated as East, South, North, and West.

Title

479. <sup>1</sup>Domain of the statue of Ramses VI,<sup>b</sup> which rests in Miam (My<sup>c</sup>t).<sup>c</sup>

First District

District north of “Ramses-Meriamon-<sup>2</sup>in-the-House-of-Re,”<sup>d</sup> the town; opposite the house of Re, lord of the eastern bend.<sup>e</sup>

Boundaries

The South is the lands of the domain of the <sup>3</sup>King's-Wife, Nefretiri, which rests in Miam (My<sup>c</sup>t).

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 229, c; I was able to control Lepsius' copy and to fill up some of the lacunæ from a photograph by Graf Grünau, but it was too small to establish a final text in badly preserved places.

<sup>b</sup>Full name given is: “Amonhirkhepeshef-Ramses-Nuter-Ruler-of-Heliopolis.”

<sup>c</sup>Unquestionably identical with the form My<sup>c</sup>m (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 115, tomb of Huy; cf. II, 1037). See also Brugsch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1882, 31.

<sup>d</sup>This is the name of Ramses II's temple at Derr (see III, 503, and Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 247); the words, “the town,” are added to distinguish it from the temple. The scribe means the town, and not the temple.

<sup>e</sup>The Nile makes an immense bend to the east just below Derr; the “House-of-Re” may be the temple of I. 1, or some small, now vanished chapel of the local Re.

The East is the desert.
 The North is the flax fields of Pharaoh, L. P. H.
 The West is the Nile.

Area

Three khet.

Second District

480. <sup>4</sup>District of the [—] behind the land of Miyu (M y-yw) in the lands of the deputy of Wawat.<sup>a</sup>

Boundaries

The South is the lands <sup>5</sup>of the domain of the statue under charge of the first prophet, Amenemopet.

The East is the great mountain.

The North is the flax fields <sup>6</sup>of Pharaoh, L. P. H., which are in the lands of the deputy of Wawat.

The West is the Nile.

Area

Two khet.

Third District

481. <sup>7</sup>District of the house of the goddess, east of the lands which are [—], and east of the great mountain.<sup>b</sup>

Boundaries

The South is the lands <sup>8</sup>of the domain of the statue under charge of the deputy of Wawat, Meri.

The East is the great mountain.

The North is the lands <sup>9</sup>of the herdman, Bahu (B<sup>7</sup>-hw).

The West is the Nile.

Area

Four khet.

Fourth District

482. District of the domain of Tehenut (Tyhmwt) <sup>10</sup>at the western limit of the nome of Tehenut, in the flax fields of Pharaoh, L. P. H., together with <sup>11</sup>the lands which are [—].

<sup>a</sup>Meaning among the lands rented by or under charge of the deputy; the same in l. 6.

<sup>b</sup>This datum seems a contradiction of the one in l. 8, that the mountain was the eastern boundary of the land.

Boundaries

The East is the great mountain.

The South is the flax fields of Pharaoh, L. P. H., east <sup>12</sup>of the great mountain.

The North is the field of the Arasa (<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-s<sup>2</sup>).

The West is the Nile.

Area

Six khet.

Summary

Total lands <sup>13</sup>given <sup>1</sup>to<sup>1</sup> it:<sup>a</sup> fifteen khet,<sup>b</sup> which makes <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> upper fields. The scribe <sup>1</sup>of<sup>1</sup> its domain, the deputy, Penno (Pn-nw't), <sup>14</sup>son of Herunofor (Hrw-njr) of Wawat, has <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> (them), as fields <sup>1</sup>rented<sup>1</sup> to him, to pay<sup>c</sup> <sup>15</sup>to it one ox, slaughtered yearly.

Fifth District

483. District in the <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> fields which are under control of <sup>16</sup>the deputy of Wawat, not on the roll (above).

Boundaries

Its West is in <sup>1</sup>front<sup>1d</sup> of the gravelly ground of the deputy, Penno.

<sup>17</sup>The South is the gravelly ground of the deputy, Penno.

The North is the <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> fields which are in the <sup>1</sup>domain<sup>1</sup> of the Pharaoh, L. P. H.

<sup>18</sup>The East is in front of the gravelly [ground] of the deputy, Penno.

Area

<sup>1</sup>Eight<sup>1</sup> khet.

Curse on Violator

As for anyone who <sup>19</sup>shall disregard it, Amon, king of gods, shall pursue him, Mut shall pursue his wife, Khonsu shall pursue <sup>20</sup>his children; he shall hunger, he shall thirst, he shall faint and sicken.

<sup>a</sup>The statue.

<sup>b</sup>Mr. Griffith's statement (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 14, 418), that the "spaces between the notches" are to be counted, seems to be an oversight, for the total amounts to 19 by so counting. The notches themselves, however, amount to 15.

<sup>c</sup>On j, "pay," see Spiegelberg, Rechnungen, 53.

<sup>d</sup>Steindorff has a sign like grg, which may be h<sup>2</sup>t, "front."

REIGN OF RAMSES VII

STELA OF HORI<sup>a</sup>

484. This little stela records a commission intrusted by this almost unknown Pharaoh to Hori, his personal scribe, who is dispatched from Busiris to Abydos to pray at the great temple of Osiris, that the king may be given a long reign.

Above is a mortuary prayer in the name of Osiris of Abydos, Onouris of Thinis, Osiris of Busiris, Harendotes, and Eswere on behalf of King Usermare-Ikhnamon, Ramses (VII)-Menthirkhepeshef-Meriamon, who is also represented offering in a relief at the top. Then follows Hori's statement.

485. The scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., Hori, triumphant; he says: "I am a servant of thy<sup>b</sup> city (nw' t), Busiris, thy city (dm y), which is in the Northland (Delta). I am the son of a servant of thy house, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., the favorite of Abydos, Pakauti (P? - k? wtyw), son of Seny (Sny), thy servant. I have been brought from my city of the Northland to thy city, Abydos, being a messenger of Pharaoh, L. P. H., your<sup>c</sup> servant. I have come to worship before you<sup>c</sup> and to beseech for him jubilees. Ye will hear his prayers, according as he is profitable to your ka's, and ye will accept me from the hand of Pharaoh, L. P. H., and my lord, L. P. H., and ye will give to me favor before him daily. 'Make your designs, I will cherish (them)'. It is said: 'Who can reverse your plans?' Ye are the lords of heaven, earth, and the Nether World, and men do as ye say. And ye will give mortuary offerings of bread and beer, and a sweet north wind for my father, Pakauti, and his son, the scribe of Pharaoh, Hori, triumphant."<sup>d</sup>

---

<sup>a</sup>Unpublished stela in the Berlin Museum, No. 2081 (Ausführliches Verzeichnis des Berliner Museums, 133). I had my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>Meaning Osiris, whom he addresses.

<sup>c</sup>Plural.

<sup>d</sup>Names of other relatives follow.

REIGN OF RAMSES IX

INSCRIPTIONS OF THE HIGH PRIEST OF AMON AMENHOTEP

486. The high priests of Amon continued to extend their power and influence under Ramses IX. This process was sometimes accompanied by violence and insurrection. A woman testifying in a case which occurred in this reign, and desirous of dating a theft in her father's house, refers very significantly to the occasion when the theft took place:

<sup>a</sup>Examination: the Theban woman, Mutemuya, the wife of the sacred scribe, Nesuamon, was brought in; the oath of the king, L. P. H., not to lie, was administered to her. She was asked: "What hast thou to say?" She said: "When the revolt of the High Priest of Amon took place, this man stole some things of my father."

487. This may have been our High Priest Amenhotep, or possibly the affair belongs before his time. The records left by this powerful official significantly continue those of the High Priest of Amon, Roy, at the close of the Nineteenth Dynasty (III, 618-29). No connection can be traced between Roy and the high priests of the Twentieth Dynasty, unless we find it in the fact that the second prophet, who accompanies Roy on the Karnak wall, was named Beknekhonsu (§ 620), while the High Priest of Amon under Ramses III was also a Beknekhonsu.<sup>b</sup> The latter must have been succeeded by Ramsesnakht, whose father, Meribast, was not High Priest, and must have belonged to a collateral branch of the family. Ramsesnakht was the father of our High Priest Amenhotep (§ 489, ll. 23, 24). He lived under Ramses III and IV, appearing as High Priest in year 3 of Ramses IV (§ 466), and was succeeded in the high priesthood by his son Nesuamon, whose brother, our Amenhotep, a second son of Ramsesnakht, followed Nesuamon in the great office.<sup>a</sup>

---

<sup>a</sup>Papyrus, British Museum, No. 10053; Spiegelberg, Recueil, 19, 91.

<sup>b</sup>See his statue found in the Mut-temple (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 343-47).

I. BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS

488. In continuance of the privilege already gained by the high priests of Amon under the Pharaohs of the end of the Nineteenth Dynasty, Amenhotep, High Priest under Ramses IX, undertook the rebuilding of the High Priest's dwelling, connected with the Karnak temple of Amon. It had been erected by Sesostris I, some eight hundred years earlier. The kitchen, or refectory, had been solidly rebuilt by Roy, nearly a hundred years before, but the dwelling itself was now in a ruinous state. It stood on the south of the sacred lake (l. 7), east of the southern pylons, and its scanty remains were found there by Mariette.<sup>b</sup> At the east end of the neighboring pylon (VIII), by the similar record of Roy (III, 619-26), Amenhotep inscribed the following record<sup>c</sup> of his building:

<sup>a</sup>See Legrain, Recueil, 27, 71.

<sup>b</sup>See Mariette, Karnak, 11. This must be the strange building south of the lake (Mariette's plan, Pl. 2, R), the purpose of which was left uncertain by Mariette. He afterward (op. cit., 62, 63) suggests this building as the one meant in our inscription, but strangely states that our inscription furnishes no indication of the location of the building, although it clearly states that the building overlooked the southern lake (l. 7). See also the following note, and Maspero's remarks (Momies royales, 670, 671).

<sup>c</sup>Mariette, Karnak, Pl. 40; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 202, 203; Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1322-24; Maspero, Momies royales, 669, 670 (partially); the inscription is on the inside (west) of the wall connecting pylons VII and VIII, at the point marked h on Mariette's plan (Karnak, Pl. 2). Other references to the High Priest Amenhotep's buildings have recently been discovered (by Legrain, Annales, V, 21) in which he refers to "bringing artificers in every great work, that I might build the great place south of the [lake] —. I built this [—] (determina-

489. <sup>1</sup>The assistant<sup>a</sup> whom his majesty taught, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amenhotep, triumphant, made it; to wit: I found this pure dwelling of the high priests <sup>2</sup>of Amon of former time, which is in the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, beginning to fall to ruin, while that which had been made in the time of King <sup>3</sup>Kheperkere, Son of Re, Sesostris (I), was <sup>4</sup>(still) complete<sup>1</sup>. <sup>5</sup>Then I<sup>1</sup> built it anew with fine work and excellent workmanship. <sup>6</sup>I made thick its walls from its rear to its front. I built thoroughly upon it, I made its columns <sup>7</sup>and doorposts of great stones of excellent workmanship. I set up great doors of cedar, bound. I built thoroughly upon its <sup>8</sup>great lintel of stone which looks <sup>9</sup>outward<sup>1</sup>, built — <sup>10</sup>high —<sup>1</sup> the High Priest of Amon, who is<sup>b</sup> in the house of Amon. I <sup>11</sup>mounted<sup>1</sup> its great door of —, <sup>12</sup>with bolts of copper and inlay-figures of fine gold and <sup>13</sup>[silver<sup>1</sup>] — —. I built its great <sup>14</sup>courses<sup>1c</sup> (ḍ ḍ w) of stone, which opens toward the southern lake, upon the pure — <sup>15</sup>of the house of Amon. I surrounded <sup>16</sup>[it with a wall<sup>1</sup>] of brick. I erected its great <sup>17</sup>carvings<sup>1d</sup> of stone <sup>18</sup>at the doorposts<sup>1</sup> — <sup>19</sup>doors of cedar. I — — — of great stones, dragged and cut as <sup>20</sup>— — —<sup>1</sup> — with <sup>21</sup>the royal titulary in the great name of Pharaoh, my [lord. I] built a treasury of <sup>22</sup>brick<sup>1</sup> anew in the great hall, the name of which is — — — <sup>23</sup>columns of stone, and doors of cedar, inscribed with <sup>24</sup>— — —<sup>1</sup> <sup>25</sup>his majesty; it was the rear of the storehouse of the dues of Amon — — — <sup>26</sup>the great and august court, each High Priest of Amon — — — <sup>27</sup>every[thing] good and pure. I appointed its chiefs — — — <sup>28</sup>— — —<sup>1</sup> <sup>29</sup>taking the — — —<sup>e</sup> <sup>30</sup>of stone, doors of cedar. I — — — <sup>31</sup>Ishru, they were <sup>32</sup>[planted with<sup>1</sup>] trees — — — <sup>33</sup>Pharaoh, my lord, to cause them to be given to Mut, the great, the —, that she might receive them, — — — <sup>34</sup>as benefactions for Amon-Re, king of gods, my lord. I know that he is great, that he <sup>35</sup>teaches tive, two houses) of the House of Amon anew; I made its double doors, wrought of meru wood, the inlay-figures of fine gold — — —.” The “great place” must be the refectory, and its location is probably indicated as south of the lake.

<sup>a</sup>See the same phrase, II, 28.

<sup>c</sup>See § 355, l. 12.

<sup>b</sup>Or: “shall be.”

<sup>d</sup>Hty; see § 380, l. 15.

<sup>e</sup>Three lines are here lacking, not noted by Mariette (Maspero, Momies royales, 670, n. 1); but according to Rougé four lines are here lost (Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 203); for convenience I have retained Mariette's numbering.

— —<sup>1</sup> saying: "Thou art the Lord of the Two Lands, Lord of [Diamens] [Ramses (IX)], L. P. H., a long term of life [—] for King Ramses IX, and may he grant to me life, health, a long term of life, <sup>23</sup>an old age of favor before Pharaoh, my lord. The High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amen-<sup>24</sup>hotep, son of the High Priest of Amon, Ramses-nakht, made (it)."

490. Another building inscription,<sup>a</sup> which almost certainly belongs to our High Priest, records works in the mortuary temples of the Ramessids, especially those of Ramses III and Ramses VI. Fragmentary as the inscription is, it shows that the High Priest's title, "chief of all the works of the king," gave him full charge of the building connected with the old temples.

491. <sup>1</sup> — his way, doing excellent things in the house [of Amon] his [father] <sup>2</sup> — myriads of — after old age [—] <sup>3</sup> — Amon-Re, king of gods — of "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Ramses VI" <sup>4</sup> — ["The-House-of-Millions-of-Years]-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III)-in-the-House-of-Amon" — — — — repeating <sup>5</sup> — ["The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King] — in-the-House-of-Amon-on-the-West-of-Thebes." His majesty repeated — — — — <sup>6</sup> — the [place] of rest which my father made on the west of Thebes in — — — — of Pharaoh <sup>7</sup> — within of fine gold, genuine lapis lazuli and malachite — — — — marvels <sup>8</sup> — great and august amulets which I made for Amon-Re, king of gods, the <sup>9</sup> — likewise, in the name of Amon-Re, king of gods, correct [— —] <sup>10</sup> — great [works] which I made, established<sup>b</sup> in — forever <sup>11</sup> — [I] am he who gives [oil], incense, honey, — garlands <sup>12</sup> — giving [—] to his [every temple storehouse] — — — — <sup>13</sup> — [— —] I [finish] it, praise [to] Re — — — — <sup>14</sup> — . It is for the gold-house of Amon-Re, king of gods, in order to give — — — — <sup>15</sup> — which they made. The high priests of Amon-[Re, king of gods] have not [done the like<sup>1</sup>] — — — <sup>16</sup>——— [which I have<sup>1</sup> done during five years that Amon-Re, king of gods, my lord, might give to me, life, health, long existence, and a good old age <sup>17</sup> [as reward for<sup>1</sup>] the many benefactions and [—<sup>1</sup>] fatigues which I have made for him in his house <sup>18</sup>——— it. He spends eight months of days therein, while I [carry<sup>1</sup>] it [around<sup>1</sup>], bearing him excellently —. I <sup>19</sup>——— [Thou art my<sup>1</sup>] lord, I am thy servant, while I endure fatigues for thee — — — <sup>20</sup>——— Amon-Re, king of gods, hear my voice [draw near<sup>1</sup>], let him not turn back — [—] <sup>21</sup>——— the transgressor,<sup>a</sup> I will report to Pharaoh, my lord, [who<sup>1</sup>] will give <sup>22</sup>——— [“The-House-of]-King —<sup>b</sup>-in-the-House-of-Amon,” “The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III)-in-the-House-of-Amon-on-the-West-of-Thebes,” — — the place <sup>23</sup>——— the high priests of Amon who shall come after me. Do not do this <sup>c24</sup>——— transgressing against it, the transgressor who shall come, he shall not hinder <sup>25</sup>——— many generations in his house [—] — — — <sup>26</sup> —<sup>30</sup>. . . . . <sup>31</sup>——— of the gods of Ramses (II)-Meriamon [in] Memphis, king’s-scribe, steward — [—] — —.

<sup>a</sup>Found by Mariette in the chapel of the high priests, east of the sacred lake at Karnak (g on his plan, Karnak, Pl. 2); published by Mariette, Karnak, Pl. 39; corrections by Maspero, Momies royales, 668.

<sup>b</sup>Smnh is probable from the photograph.

II. RECORDS OF REWARDS<sup>d</sup>

492. As a reward for his pious work of rebuilding in the Karnak temple, Amenhotep was summoned by the king to the temple court, where, at the hands of the nobles and the chief treasurer, by the personal orders of the king, he was decorated with gold collars in the conventional manner. Splendid vessels of gold and silver, costly unguents, food and drink were also given him. In the king’s address of praise

<sup>a</sup>Or: “he (him) who transgresses against me.”

<sup>b</sup>The vertical cartouche shows an n at the bottom.

<sup>c</sup>Or: “who shall come after me in doing these things” (the duties of the office).

<sup>d</sup>Karnak temple, wall scene by Pylon VIII, on east side of wall, connecting east ends of Pylons VII and VIII; published by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, Pl. 42; the inscriptions alone; Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 200, 201; Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1318, 1319. None of the publications shows the lower portions, only recently excavated. For these I had a photograph by Borchardt (Berlin, No. 5461), which was on too small a scale to insure certain readings, but enabled me to trace the drift of the newly uncovered portion.

to the first prophet, certain dues formerly paid to the palace are now to be paid to the High Priest. Unfortunately this, the most important portion of the document, is so obscurely worded that it is difficult to discern its exact purport. But it probably refers to the portion of the royal impost which, when collected by the king's officers and paid into his treasury, had then formerly been paid to Amon. Such impost is now placed directly in the hands of the High Priest, who can collect it from the people into the temple treasury, without its passing through the royal treasury. This enactment was either twice recorded, or it was repeated and made more sweeping in its scope; for Amenhotep has twice represented the scene of his royal rewards on the temple walls, each time accompanied by this enactment of the king, though in varying language.<sup>a</sup> In both scenes, contrary to the immemorial custom that the representations of the king should show him of heroic stature, towering far above his court and officers; the High Priest is here represented with the same heroic figure as the king. The high priests are gradually rising to equal the power and state of the Pharaoh. In keeping with this is the special mention by Amenhotep, in both scenes, of the fact that he inherited his office from his father, Ramsesnakht.

Scene

493. King Ramses IX<sup>b</sup> stands, scepter in hand, addressing two officials, who are supposed to be hanging golden collars upon the neck of the High Priest of Amon, Amenhotep.

---

<sup>a</sup>I have not given the duplicate separate treatment, but the variants from it have been inserted in the notes indicated by "variant." The inscriptions are published by Brugsch, Thesaurus, 1319 f. For the lower portions, not accessible in Brugsch's day, I had a photograph (Berlin, No. 5462), which was too small to insure certain readings everywhere.

<sup>b</sup>His throne-name, Nfr-k R c -Stp-n-R c, is engraved over his head.

The latter is represented, however, with the same heroic stature as the king,<sup>a</sup> and is, therefore, so tall that the two officials are able to reach but a short way above his waist. Before the king are six stands, bearing sacks of gold, metal vessels, collars, etc. The inscriptions are these:

Before the King

494. <sup>1</sup>The king himself, he said to the princes and companions who were at his side: <sup>b</sup>"Give many favors and numerous rewards of fine gold, silver, <sup>2</sup>and myriads of all good things, to the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amenhotep, triumphant, because of the many excellent monuments which he has made in the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, in (hr) the great name of the Good God."<sup>c</sup>

By the High Priest

495. Hereditary prince,<sup>d</sup> count, High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amenhotep, triumphant, is in the place of his father, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, in Karnak, Ramsesnakht, triumphant.

Over the High Priest

<sup>1</sup>Year 10, third month of the first season (third month), nineteenth day, in the house of Amon-Re, king of gods. The High Priest of Amon, king of gods, Amenhotep, triumphant, was conducted to<sup>e</sup> the great forecourt of <sup>2</sup>Amon, called: "One-Tells-His-Praise,"<sup>f</sup> in order to praise him with goodly and choice speech.<sup>g</sup> The nobles who came forth to praise him were:<sup>h</sup>

The treasurer of Pharaoh, <sup>3</sup>the king's-butler, Amenhotep, triumphant.

<sup>a</sup>Dümichen wrongly represents him as smaller than the king.

<sup>b</sup>Variant inserts: "May Amon-Re, king of gods, favor thee."

<sup>c</sup>The concluding words were not read by Brugsch in the first relief, but Dümichen has as above. The variant confirms it, as the photograph shows "his majesty."

<sup>d</sup>The second relief inserts: "favorite of his lord."

<sup>e</sup>Hr; variant, r. <sup>f</sup>Hrtw hsw' t-j; Brugsch's hrtw-j is incorrect.

<sup>g</sup>Variant connects the preceding and the following, and had a different list of persons, thus: "——— goodly and choice [speech], by the scribe, Khonsu ———."

<sup>h</sup>These are the same officials whom we find in Papyrus Abbott (§ 511).

The king's-butler, Nesuamon.

The scribe of Pharaoh, the king's-butler, Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, 4the herald of Pharaoh.

496. The things said to him as favor and praise on this day, in the great court of 5Amon-Re, king of gods, saying:

"May Montu favor thee! May the ka of Amon-Re, king of gods, Pere-Harakhte, 6Ptah, the great, "South-of-His-Wall," lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," Thoth, lord of divine words, the gods of the heaven, and the gods of the earth favor thee! 7May the ka of Ramses IX favor thee, the great ruler of Egypt, the beloved child 8of all the gods,<sup>a</sup> because of the 9completion of every work!"

497. <sup>b</sup>"The harvests, the exactions of the impost 9of the people of the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, shall be under thy charge, and thine shall be the tribute in full according to their sums.<sup>c</sup> Thou shalt give<sup>d</sup> 10their —, causing that they should form 11part<sup>e</sup> of the court of the treasuries, storehouses, and granaries of the house 12of Amon-Re, king of gods; thus from the tribute of the heads and hands 13shall be<sup>f</sup> the sustenance of Amon-Re, king of gods, 14which thou didst (formerly) cause to be delivered to<sup>f</sup> Pharaoh, thy lord, the deed of a good servant, profitable 15to Pharaoh, his lord; he being mighty to do benefactions for Amon-Re, king of gods, 16the great god; and to do benefactions

<sup>a</sup>From here on, variant was evidently quite different. It has: "——— the beloved child of [all] the [gods] ——— gold, the vessels ——— gold, the ——— the deed of a [good] servant ———" cf. l. 12 below); while in the context of l. 12 (below) were the words: "——— thy completion ———." The praise in l. 8 has, in the variant, been partially transferred to l. 12; and that in l. 12 has, in the variant, been partially transferred to l. 8.

<sup>b</sup>Variant, "The harvests and exactions of the house of Amon ———."

<sup>c</sup>Or: "heaps."

<sup>d</sup>The variant of this passage was not uncovered in Brugsch's day; the photograph is very indistinct, but it will be seen that the variant shows important divergencies here; and has transferred this passage to the end. It has: "——— He fills the 1breweries with all his things, 2he being the lord of 3heaps of things, together with the gifts — — — 4which 5Pharaoh, thy lord, makes in the house of the 6great 7god — —. Thus from the tribute of [the heads and hands] 8shall be 9the sustenance, which thou didst (formerly) cause 10to be delivered into the halls of the king's-house. The many, mighty deeds, the many, many benefactions, which thou doest in the house of the great god 11— — — 12."

<sup>e</sup>The uncertain word represents two in the original, viz., "the side;" their connection here is quite obscure.

<sup>f</sup>Variant, "——— Pharaoh, for his treasuries and storehouses ———."

for Pharaoh, his lord — <sup>15</sup>— which thou doest. Now, behold, command has been given to the overseer of the White House, the butler of Pharaoh,<sup>a</sup> <sup>16</sup>and all [the princes],<sup>b</sup> to give to thee praise, to anoint thee with sweet oil of gums, and to give [to thee] the [vessels] of gold and silver, [the reward of] the servant of Pharaoh, thy lord, given to him as a favor [of the king's-presence] — the — of Amon on this day ———.

Below the Scene<sup>c</sup>

498. Given as a favor of the king's-presence to the great favorite of the Lord of the Two Lands, the High Priest of Amon, king of gods, Amenhotep, triumphant:

Fine gold in ———	—
Total, fine gold	—
Sweet beer [—] — [jars]	40
Sweet oil of gums: hin	2

That which was said to him: one (viz., the king) spake to cause the Pharaoh's scribe of rolls to come forth. One spake [to] the overseers of the granaries of Pharaoh ——— in — of this — by Amenhotep, triumphant, — — —.

THE RECORDS OF THE ROYAL TOMB-ROBBERIES

499. The papyrus records which inform us of the robberies among the royal tombs of this period, while they are strictly legal documents, afford so many valuable glimpses into the historical conditions under the later Ramessids that they cannot be omitted from this historical series. The riches lying in the royal tombs, in the form of splendid regalia adorning the dead, rich coffins, and elaborate furniture, which had been accumulating for five hundred years, furnished an irresistible motive for the violation of such tombs. How far the corrupt officials, by indirect connivance, may have been involved in such robberies we cannot now determine. In our first document there are indications that all was not as it should have been among the officials of the government. Their apparent helplessness, and total inability properly to protect the necropolis, however interpreted, are clear evidence of the decadence in government now in progress. A coffin in the British Museum, doubtless of this age, furnishes significant evidence of the conditions in the Theban necropolis, as shown by the following remark,<sup>a</sup> recorded upon it by a scribe:

<sup>a</sup>Here follow two lines below the uplifted arm of the High Priest, of which Brugsch saw only the first three words, now appearing at the end of his copy, in the wrong place.

<sup>b</sup>The legs of the figure for "prince" (sr) are probable in the photograph. "Thy lord" (following "Pharaoh") is impossible, owing to lack of determinative after it (nb), as regularly in this inscription.

<sup>c</sup>This inscription of three lines is unpublished. It is badly mutilated, and from the small-scale photograph little can be made of it. The variant also shows three similar lines below the scene, which contain a list of the gifts; but it is badly mutilated and not readable in the photograph. It begins quite differently from the above list.

Year 3, fourth month of the first season, day 15; day of renewing the burial of Osiris, Tesitnakht (T<sup>3</sup>-s<sup>3</sup>-t-nht); after it had been found, the children of the cemetery having taken its coffins and violated the name thereof. They were restored again.

500. While Thebes as a whole was under the vizier as its governor, the main city, on the east side, was under a mayor; at this time a noble, named Peser. The west side was, likewise, under the control of a second mayor, who was also responsible for the necropolis. Under Ramses IX he was a certain Pewero. Peser, mayor of the east side, had in some way gained information of robberies among the royal tombs and he promptly handed in his information to the vizier, as was his duty. The duty was probably not an unwelcome one, for he seems to have had no love for his rival, Pewero, whose administration of the necropolis he was thus able to compromise.

<sup>a</sup>British Museum coffin, No. 15659; Budge, Catalogue of the Egyptian Collection in the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge, 1893, 18. An inspection of a file of court documents recording prosecution of tomb-robbers took place in year 6, of an unknown king, and the scribe's report on the inspection of the two jars containing the file is preserved in a papyrus in Vienna (Brugsch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1876, Taf. 1; Erman, Aegypten, 167).

501. Pursuant to this information, the vizier sent a commission to inspect the cemetery, on the eighteenth of Hathor, in the sixteenth year of Ramses IX. Their report covered ten royal tombs, four tombs of the singing-women of the Amon-temples, and a number of tombs of the nobles and people, the exact number of which is not stated. The last were all found to have been plundered; two of the four tombs of the singing-women were in the same condition; but of the royal tombs, only one, that of Sebekemsaf, had been robbed, although two had been unsuccessfully mined into by the robbers. The part of the royal cemetery visited was the district of Draḥ abu-'n-Neggah, on the northern margin of the western plain of Thebes, and the royal tombs inspected were those of the Eleventh, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, and early Eighteenth Dynasties. The report on them, besides being historically valuable, affords a most interesting glimpse into the royal cemetery at this time. Perhaps the most remarkable reference in it is the description of the stela of Intef I's pyramid, bearing in relief the figure of the king, with his hound Behka between his feet (§ 514, ll. 9-11). This very stela was found by Mariette still bearing the figure of the king, and the hound with the name Behka inscribed beside it (I, 421 ff.), as described in the report of three thousand years ago.

502. Luckily for Pewero, he was able to locate the thieves, in any case he handed in to the vizier a list of their names. The next day, the nineteenth of Hathor, the vizier, Khamwese, and the Pharaoh's secretary, Nesuamon, examined the eight men accused of robbing the tomb of Sebekemsaf.

They confessed, and their story of the robbery is one of the most remarkable documents surviving from ancient Egypt (§ 538). To make the matter certain, the vizier and the Pharaoh's secretary crossed the river with them and made them show where the tomb of Sebekemsaf was located (§ 517). A similar test applied to a coppersmith who had confessed to robbing the tomb of Queen Isis, wife of Ramses III, indicated that the man knew nothing of this queen's tomb, and had evidently confessed that he might be momentarily relieved of the torture. As a matter of fact, the tomb of Queen Isis had been robbed by eight thieves, who can hardly be any other than the eight robbers of Sebekemsaf's tomb, although this fact was not discovered until the next year (§§ 542, 543). Then followed an inspection of "The Place of Beauty," a portion of the cemetery where the families of the Pharaohs were buried; they were found to be uninjured. Regarding the royal tombs as the most important, the officials of the necropolis considered the fact that nine of the ten reported robbed were found uninjured, as a great victory for the administration of the necropolis. They therefore sent the whole body of the necropolis employees over to the east side as an embassy of triumph. Some of these rejoicing subordinates went to the house of the mayor of the east side, Peser, who had furnished the information against them to the vizier, and loudly exulted before his door. Meeting three of them in the streets in the evening, Peser was unable to control his anger and, in the presence of witnesses, quarreled with them, told them their inspection of the necropolis was a farce, and accused them vaguely in grave charges, of which he said he was about to send notice to the Pharaoh. This was irregular, as all such charges could legally be reported only to the vizier.

503. Hearing of his enemy's charges immediately, Pewero was quick to see the opportunity of again humiliating Peser. He reported the whole affair in a long letter to the vizier, dated the next day, the twentieth of Hathor. The vizier called the case the following morning, the twenty-first of Hathor, and, incensed at Peser's reflections upon an inspection which had been sent out from his office and partially conducted by him, the vizier quickly brought the proceedings to a close by summoning the three coppersmiths whom Peser had accused of robbing the ten royal tombs, and placed them at the disposition of the court; at the same time introducing the evidence of his own personal knowledge, gained on his visit to the necropolis. The unhappy Peser, who was himself a judge, and sitting on the bench with his colleagues in this case, was obliged to see the coppersmiths acquitted in their examination, which now followed. Whether he suffered any penalty for his indiscretion is not evident, but his allegations regarding the cemetery were all declared untrue, while the vague charges which he had threatened to make to the Pharaoh were ignored, as they had no legal status at all, unless presented in writing before the vizier.

504. It is clear that the state of affairs in the cemetery was sufficiently bad to justify charges against the officials of the necropolis, and although all the tombs indicated by Peser had not been robbed, the investigation had overlooked the robbery of at least one tomb, that of Queen Isis, so that the action of the vizier in completely exonerating Pewero was not justifiable, and arouses the suspicion that there was some reason for such action not apparent on the surface. It certainly was not calculated to preserve the royal burials from similar depredations in the future.

505. The results were, therefore, what might have been anticipated. Three years later, in the nineteenth year of Ramses IX, just after he had associated with himself his son Ramses X as coregent, Pewero, the mayor of the West, who had learned wisdom, handed in to the vizier a list of sixteen people to be tried for robbery in the necropolis; while less than two months later he reported twenty-nine more, whom we find on the docket. Twenty days later six<sup>a</sup> of these men were convicted of robbing the tombs of Seti I and Ramses II. This robbery, therefore, carries us for the first time<sup>b</sup> from the western plain of Thebes to the Valley of the King's Tombs behind the western cliffs. The robberies were, therefore, spreading from the modest pyramids of the kings just before and after the Twelfth Dynasty in the plain, to the magnificent and, of course, more richly equipped cliff-tombs of the great emperors in the valley behind. Five more men were tried two days later and found innocent.

506. Eight months now elapsed without apparent disturbance among the royal tombs; but the usual contingent of tomb-robbers then appears on the court docket, this time numbering twenty-two persons (two women), who had robbed "the tomb of Pharaoh." Which royal tomb is thus designated we do not know, but a thief, whose confession follows the above list of names, states that he robbed the tomb of a Queen Nesimut, and also that of Queen Bekurel, wife of Seti I. Twenty-seven days later a long list of robbers, the wives of eleven of whom were also implicated, and imprisoned, fills the docket, and a fragmentary record of uncertain date refers to the robbery of the tomb of Amenhotep III.

507. It is evident from these facts that not only the mortuary furniture, but also the very bodies of the greatest kings of Egypt were threatened with destruction. The robberies had demonstrably now been going on for more than five years at least, and probably much longer. When Pharaohs like Ramses II and Merneptah were guilty of wholesale appropriation of the mortuary equipment of their great ancestors, the officials were naturally not above conniving at similar robberies for their own profit. The occasional prosecution and conviction of the "small fry" were, therefore, of no avail. Such were the conditions under the last three Ramessids in the royal cemetery at Thebes. The pious, and evidently sincere, efforts put forth on behalf of the royal bodies at the close of the Twentieth and the beginning of the Twenty-first Dynasties (§§ 595 ff., 636 ff.) saved them from destruction only after they had been bereft of their splendid furniture and stripped of their rich regalia, by the thieves whose prosecution is narrated in the following documents. So persistent and thorough was their work of plunder that of all the Pharaohs buried at Thebes, only one, Amenhotep II, has been found still in his sarcophagus in his own tomb. But his body had, in ancient times, already been stripped of all valuables. The tomb was securely closed with an iron grating and locked door by the modern government of Egypt, and the body of the great king left undisturbed in its ancient resting-place, where it had slept 3,400 years.

---

<sup>a</sup>Mayer Papyri (§§ 544 ff.), from which all the following is taken.

<sup>b</sup>But see III, §§ 32A-32C.

508. Hearing rumors of fabulous wealth on the person of their great ancestor, the tomb-robbers of modern Thebes, doubtless with the connivance of the necropolis guard, forced the tomb door, entered, and subjected the body of Amenhotep II, after an interval of three thousand years, to a second rifling, which was to all appearances entirely fruitless. Perhaps we shall be inclined to judge more charitably the government of Ramses IX and his successors, when it is added that Mr. Howard Carter, the efficient inspector of the government, after having identified and arrested the guilty parties by tireless zeal in their pursuit, was unable to secure their conviction and punishment at the hands of the modern government. Mr. Carter's official report<sup>a</sup> on the whole matter is a striking modern commentary on the ancient conditions exposed in the following documents, and forms the last chapter in the long and dramatic history of the royal tombs at Thebes.

I. PAPYRUS ABBOTT<sup>b</sup>

509. This document is really the vizier's abstract, taken from his files, recording the case between the two mayors, Peser and Pewero, as narrated above (§§ 499-504). The condition of the royal necropolis is, therefore, only incidental to the demonstration of the truth or falsity of Peser's charges against the necropolis administration. The whole case is concluded with the defeat of Peser, recorded at the end. The conditions in the necropolis, revealed in the document, led the scribe to consult it again after it had been lying for three years in the vizier's files, and on this occasion he recorded upon the back of the roll a list of tomb-robbers then awaiting trial, which had been handed in by Pewero, the mayor of the West. Nearly two months later he took down this same roll, to record a similar list beside the first (§ 535).

Pl. 1. Date

510. 1[Year 16,<sup>c</sup> third month of the first season, day 18], under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, the Lord of the <sup>a</sup>Annales.

<sup>b</sup>A papyrus found at Thebes (?), and acquired by the British Museum in 1857 by purchase from Dr. Abbott, of Cairo. The roll is 17 inches high, and contains on the recto 7 columns from 10 to 14 inches wide. Two columns on the verso (8 and 9), containing only hastily written lists of thieves, are 6 to 7 inches wide. It is published in facsimile by the British Museum authorities in Select Papyri (London, 1860), Part II, Pls. I-VIII.

<sup>c</sup>All spaced words are rubrics.

Two Lands: Neferkere-Setepnere, L. P. H., Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: <sup>2</sup>[Ramses (IX)-]Meriamon, L. P. H., beloved of [Amon]-Re, king of gods, and of Harakhte; given life forever and ever.

First Commission of Inspection

511. <sup>3</sup>[There were sent] the inspectors of the great and august necropolis, the scribe of the vizier and the scribe of the overseer of the White House of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>4</sup>[in order to inspect the] sepulchers of former kings, the tombs and resting-places of the nobles, <sup>5</sup>[located on] the west of the city; by: (1) the governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese; (2) the king's-butler, Nesuamon ([Ns-sw-] Ymn), the scribe of <sup>6</sup>[Pharaoh]; (3) the major-domo of the house of the Divine Votress, L. P. H., of Amon-Re, king of gods, king's-butler, Neferkere-em-Per-Amon,<sup>a</sup> the herald of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>7</sup>[because of the] thieves [on] the west of the city, concerning whom the mayor, the chief of police of the great and august necropolis <sup>8</sup>[of] Pharaoh [on] the west of Thebes, Pewero (P<sup>o</sup>-wr-<sup>o</sup>c), had reported to the vizier, the nobles and butlers of Pharaoh, L. P. H.

List of Members of the Commission

512. <sup>9</sup>[People] sent on this day:

The mayor and chief of police of the necropolis, Pewero;

<sup>10b</sup>[Chief of polic]e of this house, Beknurel (Bk-n-Wr-n-r<sup>o</sup>).

<sup>11a</sup>_____ of the [necropolis].<sup>b</sup>

<sup>12a</sup>_____ of this house.

<sup>13a</sup>_____ of this house.

<sup>14a</sup>_____ -amon.

<sup>10b</sup>Chief of police of this house, Menthirkhepeshef (Mntw-[hr]-h<sup>o</sup>p<sup>o</sup>-f).

<sup>11b</sup>The scribe of the vizier, Penebik (P<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>-n-bywk).<sup>c</sup>

<sup>12b</sup>Chief scribe of the magazine of the overseer of the White House, Paynofer (P<sup>o</sup>y-nfr).

<sup>13b</sup>Prophet of the House of (King) Amenhotep, L. P. H., Pe<sup>o</sup> enkhew (P<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>n-h<sup>c</sup>w).

<sup>a</sup>This official and Nesuamon (No. 2 above) also figure in the relief scene showing the reward of the High Priest Amenhotep (§ 495).

<sup>b</sup>Determinative preserved. N. B.—Letters a and b with line numbers are not to be confused with letters of footnotes.

<sup>c</sup>This man's name means "the claw of the hawk."

<sup>14b</sup>Prophet of the wine-cellar of the house of Amon, Uramon (Wr-Ymn).

<sup>15</sup>The police of the cemetery, who were with them.

Pl. 2. List of Tombs Inspected

513. <sup>1</sup>The pyramids, sepulchers, and tombs, investigated on this day, by the inspectors:

Tomb of Amenhotep I

<sup>2</sup>The eternal horizon of King Zeserkere, L. P. H., son of Re, Amenhotep (I), L. P. H., which is 120 cubits <sup>3</sup>deep<sup>a</sup> (measured) from its superstructure, which is called: "The-High-<sup>1</sup>Ascent<sup>1</sup>," north of the "House<sup>b</sup>-of-Amenhotep,-L.-P.-H.,-of-<sup>4</sup>the-Garden," concerning which the mayor of the city, Peser (P<sup>2</sup>-sr), had reported to the governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese; <sup>5</sup>the king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, major-domo of the house of the Divine Votress, L. P. H., of Amon-Re, king of gods; <sup>6</sup>the king's-butler, Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, the herald of Pharaoh, L. P. H., and the great nobles, saying: "The thieves have broken into it." Inspected on this day; it was found uninjured by the inspectors.

Pyramid of King Intef I

514. <sup>8</sup>The pyramid of the king, the son of Re, Intefo (Yn-[tj-] c<sup>2</sup>), L. P. H., which is on the north of the "House-of-Amenhotep,-L.-P.-H.,-of-the-Court (wb<sup>2</sup>)," <sup>9</sup>upon which the pyramid is destroyed, before which

<sup>a</sup>This can only be the depth of the passage into the mountain, measured from the building at its front. This passage has never been found, but its entrance was certainly located on the plain, by the tombs of the Eleventh and Thirteenth Dynasties here investigated. A temple of Amenhotep I was found here by Spiegelberg (Zwei Beiträge, 1-5). The tomb of Amenhotep I was the last to be located on the front of the western cliffs; his successor, Thutmose I, excavated his tomb in the valley behind, thus for the first time separating sepulcher and chapel. Hatshepsut's terraced temple, piercing into the cliff, brought her temple and her tomb behind it again close together; but those of following kings were again widely separated.

<sup>b</sup>This is not the mortuary temple of Amenhotep I, which was called "House-of-Zeserkere (Amenhotep I)-on-the-West-of-Thebes" (Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 238). With "Amenhotep-of-the-Garden" compare "Amenhotep,-the-Image-upon-Γ—" (mt) (ibid., 282), and "Amenhotep-of-the-Court," in II, 8, of our document. These are doubtless all different Amenhoteps. See Sethe (Götting'sche Gelehrte Anzeigen) and Spiegelberg (Zwei Beiträge, 3).

its stela (still) stands; the <sup>10</sup>figure of the king stands<sup>a</sup> upon this stela, his hound being between his feet, <sup>11</sup>named<sup>b</sup> Behka (Bh-hw-k). It was inspected on this day; it was found uninjured.

Pyramid of King Nubkheprure-Intef<sup>c</sup>

515. <sup>12</sup>The pyramid of King Nubkheperre (Nb-hpr-R<sup>c</sup>), L. P. H., Son of Re, Intef, L. P. H., it was found in course of <sup>13</sup>being tunneled into by the thieves; they had tunneled  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cubits into its <sup>14</sup>masonry<sup>1</sup> (drw), 1 cubit (distant) <sup>14</sup>from the outer chamber of the tomb of the chief of the oblation-bearers of the House of Amon, Yuroi (Yw-r<sup>2</sup>-y), which is in ruins. It was uninjured; the thieves had not been able to enter it.

Pyramid of King Sekhemre-Intef

516. <sup>16</sup>The pyramid of King Sekhemre-Upmat (Shm-R<sup>c</sup>-Wp-m<sup>2</sup>c·t), L. P. H.; Son of Re, Intefo (Yntw·f<sup>-c</sup>2), L. P. H. It was found <sup>17</sup>in course of being tunneled into by the thieves, at the place where its stela of its pyramid was set up. <sup>18</sup>Inspected on this day; it was found uninjured; the thieves had been unable to enter it.

Pl. 3. Pyramid of King Sebekemsaf

517. <sup>19</sup>The pyramid of King Sekhemre-Shedtowe (Shm-R<sup>c</sup>-Šd-t<sup>2</sup>wy), L. P. H., Son of Re, Sebekemsaf (Sbk-m-s<sup>2</sup>·f), <sup>20</sup>It was found, that the thieves had broken into it by mining work through the base<sup>d</sup> of its pyramid, from the outer chamber of the tomb of the overseer of the granary of King Menkheperre (Thutmose III), L. P. H., Nebamon. The burial-place of the king was found void of its lord, L. P. H., as well as the burial-place of the great king's-wife, <sup>21</sup>Nubkhas (Nb-h<sup>c</sup>s), L. P. H., his royal wife; the thieves having laid their hand upon them. The vizier, <sup>22</sup>the nobles, and the inspectors made an examination of it, and the manner in which the thieves had laid their hands <sup>23</sup>upon this king and his royal wife, was ascertained.

<sup>a</sup>Engraved in relief upon the stela, which still survives (I, 421 ff.), showing not only this dog with name as above, but also five others, which the scribe has not taken time to note.

<sup>b</sup>The name of the dog; the disconnected order of words is also in the original.

<sup>c</sup>Of the Thirteenth Dynasty; see I, 773 ff.

<sup>d</sup>Njrw; see Petrie, Medum, Pl. VIII.

Pyramid of King Sekenenre-Tao

518. <sup>8</sup>The pyramid of King Sekenenre (Sḫn(y)·n-R<sup>c</sup>), L. P. H., Son of Re, Tao (T<sup>o</sup>·c<sup>o</sup>), L. P. H. Inspected on this day <sup>9</sup>by the inspectors; it was found uninjured.

Pyramid of King Sekenenre-Taoo

<sup>10</sup>The pyramid of King Sekenenre, L. P. H., Son of Re, Taoo (T<sup>o</sup>·c<sup>o</sup>·c<sup>o</sup>), L. P. H., the second King Tao, L. P. H., II. <sup>11</sup>Inspected on this day by the inspectors; it was found uninjured.

Pyramid of King Kemose

519. <sup>12</sup>The pyramid of King Uzkheperre (W<sup>o</sup>ḏ-ḥḫr-R<sup>c</sup>), L. P. H., Son of Re, Kemose (K<sup>o</sup>-ms), L. P. H. Inspected on this day; it was uninjured.

Pyramid of King Ahmose-Sepir

<sup>13</sup>The pyramid of King Ahmose-Sepir (Y<sup>c</sup> ḥ-ms-s<sup>o</sup>-p<sup>o</sup>-yr), L. P. H. Inspected; found uninjured.

Pyramid of Mentuhotep II

520. <sup>14</sup>The pyramid of King Nibhepetre (Nb-ḥḫ·t<sup>a</sup>R<sup>c</sup>), L. P. H., Son of Re, Mentuhotep (II), L. P. H., which is in Zeseret (Ḍsr-tt); it was uninjured.<sup>b</sup>

Summary

<sup>15</sup>Total of pyramids of the former kings, inspected on this day by the inspectors:

Found uninjured	9 pyramids
Found broken into	1
	—
Total	10

<sup>a</sup>This is now known to be the reading of this word, formerly read ḥrw (see Naville and Hall, and Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 1905).

<sup>b</sup>On a Mentuhotep tomb at Thebes, see Carter, Annales, II, 201 ff. The tomb designated in our document was, of course, connected with the mortuary temple of Mentuhotep III, found by Naville and Hall at Der el-Bahri (Egypt Exploration Fund Archaeological Report, 1903-4, 1 ff.); and Hall, Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXVII, 173-83. Its name was y<sup>c</sup> ḥw-yḥ·t (or yḥ·wt). Zeseret was the name of the immediate locality in the Theban cemetery.

Tombs of Queens and Noble Families

521. <sup>17</sup>The tombs of the singing-women of the house of the Divine Votress, L. P. H., of Amon-Re, king of gods:

Found uninjured	2
Found broken into by the thieves	2
	—
Total	4

Pl. 4

<sup>1</sup>These are the tombs and sepulchers in which the nobles, the <sup>1</sup>—, the Theban women, and the people of the land rest, <sup>2</sup>on the west of the city; it was found that the thieves had broken into them all, that they had pulled out their occupants <sup>3</sup>from their coverings and coffins, they (the occupants) being thrown upon the ground; and that they had stolen their articles of house-furniture, which <sup>4</sup>had been given them, together with the gold, the silver, and the ornaments which were in their coverings.<sup>a</sup>

Report of the Commission

522. <sup>5</sup>The mayor and chief of police of the great and august necropolis, Pewero, together with the chiefs of police, and <sup>6</sup>the inspectors of the necropolis, the scribe of the vizier, and the scribe of the overseer of the White House, who were with them, made a report upon them (the tombs) to:

<sup>7</sup>The governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese;

The king's-butler, Nesuamon;

The scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., the major-domo of the house of the Divine Votress, L. P. H., of <sup>8</sup>Amon-Re, king of gods, king's-butler, Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, the herald of Pharaoh, L. P. H.;

And the great nobles. <sup>9</sup>The mayor of the West, chief of police of the necropolis, Pewero, handed in the names of the thieves in writing <sup>10</sup>before the vizier, the nobles and butlers. They were seized and imprisoned; they were examined, and confessed the facts.

Vizier's Inspection

523. <sup>11</sup>Year 16, third month of the first season, day 19; day on which there went to inspect the great seats<sup>b</sup> of the king's-children, <sup>a</sup>Evidently the scribe has forgotten the statement of the number, as given at the close of the preceding paragraph.

<sup>b</sup>Tombs.

the king's-wives, <sup>12</sup>and the king's-mothers, which are in "The-Place-of-Beauty:"<sup>a</sup>

The governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese; and the king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>13</sup>after the copper-smith,<sup>b</sup> Pekharu,<sup>c</sup> of the west of the city, son of Kharu, his mother, being Mitshere<sup>d</sup> (My't-šry), a serf of <sup>14</sup>"The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III),-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," under charge of the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amenhotep, (being) the man<sup>e</sup> who was found there <sup>15</sup>and arrested, while he was with the three people of the (said) temple, beside the tombs, whom the vizier, Nibmare-nakht, had <sup>16</sup>examined<sup>f</sup> in the year 14, had told, saying: "I was in the tomb of the king's-wife, Isis,<sup>g</sup> L. P. H., of King Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III), L. P. H.; I carried off a few <sup>17</sup>things from it; I took possession of them."

Examination of the Coppersmith

524. Then the vizier and the butler had the coppersmith taken before them to <sup>1</sup>the tomb, while he was blindfolded as a man [— —]. He was permitted to see<sup>h</sup> (again), when he had reached them.<sup>i</sup> The officials<sup>j</sup> <sup>2</sup>said to him: "Go before us to the tomb, from which you said: 'I carried away the things.'" The coppersmith went before the nobles<sup>3</sup> to one of the [— —] tombs of the king's-children of King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), L. P. H., the Great God, in which no one was buried, which was left open, <sup>4</sup>and (to) the hut of the workman of

Pl. 5

<sup>a</sup>The name of a part of the necropolis.

<sup>b</sup>"The coppersmith" is the subject of the verb "had told" (l. 16). All that follows "the coppersmith" is merely the usual identification of such a serf, as found in the invoices of temple property.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "The Syrian;" a very common name from the Eighteenth Dynasty on.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "Little Cat."

<sup>e</sup>Apposition with "the coppersmith."

<sup>f</sup>He was therefore an old criminal, who had been tried ("examined") two years before, under a different vizier, the predecessor of Khamwese.

<sup>g</sup>It is highly probable that this tomb, although unknown to the coppersmith, had been robbed by the eight thieves of Sebekemsa's tomb (see §§ 538, 539).

<sup>h</sup>Lit., "his eye was given to him."

<sup>i</sup>The tombs.

<sup>j</sup>The vizier and the butler.

the necropolis, Amenemyenet (Ymn-m-yn·t), son of Huy, which was in this place, saying: "Behold, the tombs in which I was." The nobles examined the coppersmith with a <sup>1a</sup>severe examination in the great valley, (but) he was not <sup>6</sup>found to know any place there, except the two places upon which he had laid his hand. He took an oath<sup>b</sup> of the king, L. P. H., that he should be mutilated (by cutting off) his nose <sup>7</sup>and his ears and placed upon the rack (if he lied), saying: "I know not any place here among these tombs, except this tomb which is open, <sup>8</sup>together with the hut upon which I have laid your hands."

Conclusion of Inspection

525. The officials examined the tombs of the great seats which are in "The-Place-of-Beauty," in which the king's-children, king's-wives, king's-mothers, the goodly fathers and mothers of Pharaoh, L. P. H., rest. They were found uninjured. The great officials caused the inspectors, the administrators,<sup>c</sup> the workmen of the necropolis, the chiefs <sup>11</sup>of police, the police, and all the serf-laborers of the necropolis of the west of the city to go around as a great deputation<sup>d</sup> to the city.

The Indiscretion of the Mayor of the City (East Side)

526. <sup>12</sup>Year 16, third month of the first season, day 19; on this day, at the time of evening, beside the House of Ptah, lord of Thebes there came along the king's-butler, <sup>13</sup>Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H.; and the mayor of the city, Peser; and they came upon the chief workman, Userkhepesh (Wsr-ḥpš); the scribe, Amennakht; <sup>14</sup>and the workman of the necropolis, Amenhotep. The mayor of the city spoke to the people of<sup>e</sup> the necropolis in the presence of the (said) butler of Pharaoh, <sup>15</sup>saying: "As for this deputation which ye have <sup>a</sup>The bastinado, or some form of torture, is certainly meant; compare the examinations in Papyrus Mayer (§§ 544-557).

<sup>b</sup>Involving the name of the king, and hence the royal salutation.

<sup>c</sup>This is probably the same word (ḥwt-yw) which occurs in the long inscription of Paynozem II (§ 671, l. 8), and the stela of Sheshonk (§ 676, l. 3), where it applies to dishonest necropolis officials.

<sup>d</sup>To celebrate the triumph of the mayor of the west side.

<sup>e</sup>This shows that the first designation "of the necropolis" (in l. 14) belongs to all three of the preceding names.

made this day, it is no deputation at all.<sup>a</sup> It is (only) your jubilation, which <sup>16</sup>ye have made?" So spake he to them. He took an oath of the king, L. P. H., in the presence of the (said) butler of Pharaoh, L. P. H., saying: "The scribe of the necropolis,<sup>b</sup> Horishere (Hry-šry), son of Amennakht, <sup>17</sup>and the scribe of the necropolis, Pebes, have told me five very serious accusations worthy of death against you. <sup>18</sup>Yea, I am writing concerning them to Pharaoh, L. P. H., my lord, L. P. H., that a man of Pharaoh, L. P. H., may be sent to take you all in charge." So spake he.

Pewero's Letter of Complaint

527. <sup>19</sup>Year 16, third month of the first season, day 20. Copy of the letter which the mayor of the west of the city, the chief of police of the necropolis, Pewero, sent to the vizier, <sup>20</sup>concerning the words, which the mayor of the city, Peser, spoke to the people of the necropolis, in the presence of the butler of Pharaoh, L. P. H., and of the scribe of the overseer of the treasury, Paynozem.

528. <sup>21</sup>That which the mayor of the west of the city, Pewero, said, to wit:

<sup>c</sup>"The king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., happened by, when the mayor of the city, Peser, <sup>22</sup>was with him, while he (the mayor) stood quarreling with the people of the necropolis, beside the House of Ptah, lord of Thebes. The mayor of the city spoke to the people <sup>1</sup>of the necropolis, saying: 'Ye exult over me at the door of my house! Oh, indeed! Although I am the mayor who makes report<sup>d</sup> to <sup>2</sup>the ruler, L. P. H., and ye therefore exult over him. Ye were there; it<sup>e</sup> was inspected; ye found it uninjured! Broken into

Pl. 6

<sup>a</sup>Here and on § 528, l. 8, see Gardiner, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 41, 131.

<sup>b</sup>This necropolis is given a special designation (n-hny-hny), and is therefore distinguished from the ordinary necropolis to which the second scribe is attached.

<sup>c</sup>All the titles and conventional forms regularly introducing such a letter are here omitted and only the actual facts communicated are quoted by the recording scribe.

<sup>d</sup>Perhaps meaning that he only did his duty in reporting the robberies in the cemetery.

<sup>e</sup>The necropolis.

were (the tomb of) <sup>3</sup>Sekhemre-Shedtowe, L. P. H., Son of Re, Sebekemsaf, L. P. H., and (that of) Nubkhas, L. P. H., his royal wife; one great ruler, L. P. H., while he <sup>4</sup>makes ten reports. (I invoke) the <sup>5</sup>severity of Amon-Re, king of gods, this great god, on behalf of his monuments, standing in his hall this day.<sup>a</sup> <sup>5</sup>Then spake the workman, Userkhepesh, who is under the hand of the chief workman of the necropolis, Nakhtemhet, saying: 'But all the kings, together with their <sup>6</sup>king's-wives, king's-mothers, and king's-children, who rest in the necropolis, together with those who rest in "The-Place-of-Beauty," they are uninjured, <sup>7</sup>they are protected and defended forever.<sup>b</sup> It is the goodly designs of Pharaoh, L. P. H., their son, which protect them and examine them <sup>8</sup>closely.<sup>1</sup>' The mayor of the city spake to him, saying: 'Are thy deeds as great as thy speech?' For this is indeed no little word which this <sup>9</sup>mayor of the city spake.

529. "This mayor of the city spake to him again, a second word, saying: 'The scribe of the necropolis,<sup>c</sup> Horishere, son of Amennakht, <sup>10</sup>came to the chief side<sup>d</sup> of the city, to my place of abode, and he told me three very serious accusations. <sup>11</sup>My scribe and the scribe of the two districts of the city put them in writing. Moreover, the scribe of the necropolis, Pebes, told me two other <sup>12</sup>matters; in all five. They were put in writing likewise. He that hath them cannot keep silence. Forbid, for they are great and capital crimes, <sup>13</sup>worthy of bringing to the block, and of executing every penalty because of them. Now, I shall write concerning them to Pharaoh, my lord, L. P. H., <sup>14</sup>that a man of Pharaoh, L. P. H., may be sent to take you all in charge.' So spake he to them, this mayor of the city. He made ten oaths of the king, L. P. H., saying: <sup>15</sup>'So will I do.'

530. "I heard these words which the mayor of the city spoke to the people of the great and august necropolis of millions of years, of <sup>16</sup>Pharaoh, L. P. H., on the west of Thebes; and I report them to my lord, for it were a crime for one like me <sup>17</sup>to hear (such) words and conceal them. But I was not able to apprehend<sup>f</sup> the very serious words which <sup>a</sup>The meaning of this last sentence is very uncertain. It may be that he calls upon Amon to protect the other monuments of Sebekemsaf, thus indicating the danger in which he thinks they are.

<sup>b</sup>The same words used of a cemetery in I, 768.

<sup>c</sup>Again defined as above.

<sup>e</sup>"I" is Pewero, the writer of the letter.

<sup>d</sup>That is, the east side.

<sup>f</sup>For myself.

the mayor of the city spoke; <sup>18</sup>the scribes of the necropolis<sup>a</sup> who stood among the people told me them, (but) my <sup>19</sup>feet were not present with them. I report them to my lord, that my lord may bring in one who apprehended<sup>b</sup> the words, which the mayor of the city spake, <sup>20</sup>and the scribes of the necropolis told me. 'I am writing of them to Pharaoh, L. P. H.,' said he. This is a crime <sup>21</sup>of these two scribes of the necropolis, that they should have applied to this mayor of the city, to report to him; for their fathers did not report to him, <sup>22</sup>but they reported to the vizier when he was in the South. When he was in the North, however, the necropolis-police of the suite of <sup>23</sup>his majesty, L. P. H., went North to the place where the vizier was, bearing their writings. 'I have<sup>1</sup> made (this) deposition in the year 16, third month of the first season, day 20, <sup>24</sup>of the words which I have heard from the mayor of the city. I put them in writing before my lord, that those who apprehended them may be summoned for tomorrow.'<sup>c</sup>

Pl. 7. Hearing of Peser's Accusations

531. <sup>1</sup>Year 16, third month of the first season, day 21; on this day in the great court<sup>d</sup> of the city, beside the two stelæ of — — the forecourt of Amon in the gate (called): "Praise."

Composition of the Court

<sup>2</sup>People and nobles who sat in the great court of the city on this day:

1. <sup>3</sup>Governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese.
2. The High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Amenhotep.
3. The prophet of Amon-Re, king of gods, <sup>1</sup>scribe<sup>1</sup> of "The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-<sup>4</sup>of-King-Neferkere-Setepnere,-L.-P.-H.," Nesuamon.
4. The king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H.
5. The major-domo of the house of the Divine Votress, L. P. H., of Amon-Re, king of gods, <sup>5</sup>king's-butler, Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, the herald of Pharaoh, L. P. H.

<sup>a</sup>Hr-n-hny

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "one who reached (ph) the words."

<sup>c</sup>Conclusion of Pewero's letter to the vizier. The closing greetings, etc., are omitted. As will be seen by the following date, the case really came on the next day.

<sup>d</sup>Of justice (knb-t c>-t).

6. The deputy of 1—1, Hori.
7. The standard-bearer of 6the marines, Hori.
8. The mayor of the city, Peser.<sup>a</sup>

532. The governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese, had brought in the coppersmith, Pekharu, son of Kharu; 7the coppersmith, Tharoy (T<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-y), son of Khamopet; and the coppersmith, Pekamen, son of Tharoy, of "The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III),-L.-P.-H.," under charge of the High Priest of Amon.

533. <sup>8</sup>Said the vizier to the great nobles of the great court of the city: "This mayor of the city said a few words to the <sup>9</sup>inspectors and workmen of the necropolis, in the year 16, third month of the first season, day 19, in the presence of the king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>10</sup>delivering himself of slanders concerning the great seats,<sup>b</sup> which are in 'The-Place-of-Beauty.' Now, I, the vizier of the land, have been there, <sup>11</sup>with the king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H. We inspected the tombs, where the mayor of the city said that the coppersmiths <sup>12</sup>of 'The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III),-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon,' had been. We found them uninjured; and all that he<sup>c</sup> said was found to be untrue. Now, behold, <sup>13</sup>the coppersmiths stand before you; let them tell all that has occurred." They were examined. It was found that the people <sup>14</sup>did not know any place in the seat<sup>d</sup> of Pharaoh, L. P. H., of which the mayor had spoken the words. He was found wrong<sup>e</sup> therein.

534. <sup>15</sup>The great nobles granted life to the coppersmiths of "The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-[in-the-House-of]-Amon." They were reassigned to the High Priest of Amon-Re [king of gods], <sup>16</sup>Amenhotep, on this day.

The documents thereof are: one roll; it is deposited in the office of the vizier's archives.

Later Dockets

Pl. 8

535. <sup>1</sup>Year 1, first month of the first season, day 2, corresponding to the year 19. Copy of the records of the necropolis-thieves, <sup>2</sup>the

<sup>a</sup>The mayor thus belonged to the court which was to try his case.

<sup>b</sup>Tombs.

<sup>c</sup>The mayor of the city.

<sup>d</sup>The necropolis.

<sup>e</sup>Both here and above (l. 12) the word used (< g >) literally means "guilty," in a criminal case, and in a suit "defeated."

thieves of the tombs, which was placed before Pharaoh, L. P. H., by the mayor of the west of the city, Pewero:

Here follow the names of sixteen people, forming the list of thieves, of which the above is the title.

<sup>19</sup>Year 1, second month of the first season, day 25, corresponding to the year 19. Copy of the records of the necropolis-thieves, <sup>20</sup>which was laid before the vizier, Nibmare-nakht,<sup>a</sup> by the mayor of the west of the city, Pewero:

Here follow the names of twenty-nine people, forming the list of which the above is the title.

II. PAPYRUS, AMHERST<sup>b</sup>

536. This fragment, unlike the Abbott papyrus, is part of the court record of the prosecution of the tomb-robbers guilty of the robbery of the tombs on which Peser had reported. It contains the remarkable confession of the eight men who robbed the tomb of Sebekemsaf and his queen, Nubkhas, and the record of their identification of the tomb, on being conducted to it, in the presence of the vizier. All this is omitted in Papyrus Abbott, and only the trial of the innocent coppersmiths is there recorded. A list of prisoners awaiting trial is also appended.

537. Column 1 is too fragmentary to yield any connected content; but it would appear that someone is mentioning

<sup>a</sup>This vizier is mentioned as having been in office in the fourteenth year of Ramses IX (Abbott, 4, 15), while in the year 16 we have the vizier Khamwese. Here we find Nibmarenakht as vizier again in the nineteenth year, and he appears also in Papyrus Mayer in the same year. We must either suppose that there were two viziers of the South, or that Nibmarenakht's term of office was interrupted for a time.

<sup>b</sup>Part of a roll containing three columns and part of a fourth, now in the collection of Lord Amherst of Hackney. Published by Chabas (Mélanges d'archéologie égyptienne, 3<sup>me</sup> sér., Tome II, Pls. I-IV), and by Newberry, The Amherst Papyri (London, 1899), Pls. IV-VII.

“thieves ———— with thee,” perhaps admonishing one of the culprits to confess the names of his companions; for we next find someone speaking in the first person, referring to people of the High Priest of Amon (l. 3), and especially to “quarrymen ———— who were with me when I was———.” The next two lines continue the mention of people who are known to be implicated in the robbery: Hapi and Setnakht, and reference is made to the “year 13,” perhaps the date of some earlier theft.

538. In the next column (2) the common confession of all is in progress, having begun in the lost upper portion. It is as follows:

Col. 2

ar“ ———— King's-Wife, Nubkhas, L. P. H., his royal wife in the place of <sup>2</sup>his —, it<sup>b</sup> being protected — its — with mortar, covered with blocks. We penetrated them <sup>1</sup>all, we found her <sup>3</sup>resting likewise. We opened their coffins and their coverings in which they were. We found this <sup>4</sup>august mummy of this king <sup>1</sup>— — —<sup>1</sup>. There was a numerous list of amulets and ornaments of gold at its throat; <sup>5</sup>its head had a <sup>1</sup>mask<sup>1</sup> of gold upon it; the august mummy of this king was overlaid with gold throughout. Its <sup>6</sup>coverings were wrought with gold and silver, within and without; inlaid with every splendid costly stone. We stripped off the gold, which <sup>7</sup>we found on the august mummy of this god, and its amulets and ornaments which were at its throat, and the coverings wherein it rested. <sup>8</sup>[We] found the King's-Wife likewise; we stripped off all that we found on her likewise. We set fire to their coverings. <sup>9</sup>We stole their furniture, which we found with them, being vases of gold, silver, and bronze. We divided, <sup>10</sup>and made the gold which we found on these two gods, on their mummies, and the amulets, ornaments and coverings, into eight parts.”

---

<sup>a</sup>The number of lines lost above is uncertain, but, judging from the next column, there were at least four.

<sup>b</sup>The place.

Col. 3. List of Thieves

539. <sup>a1</sup>[List of the thieves]:

<sup>2</sup>———— (Lost name, etc.)

<sup>3</sup>———— (Lost name, etc.)

<sup>4</sup>———— (Lost name, etc.)

<sup>5</sup>The stonecutter of the "House-of-Amon-Re,-King-of-Gods," Hapi, under charge of the High Priest of Amon.

<sup>6</sup>The artisan of the "House-of-Amon-Re,-King-of-Gods," Iramon, of the master of the hunt, Nesuamon.

<sup>7</sup>The peasant, Amenemhab, of the house of Amenopet, who administers in the district of Amenopet, under charge of the High Priest of Amon.

<sup>8</sup>The water-carrier, Kemwese (K<sup>2</sup>-m-W<sup>2</sup>s<sup>2</sup>t) of the shrine of King Menkheprure (Thutmose IV), L. P. H., under charge of ————. <sup>b</sup>

<sup>9</sup>Ehenefer (h<sup>2</sup>-nfr), son of Nakhtemmut (Nht-m-Mwt), formerly in the hand of Telamon (Ty-n-r<sup>2</sup>-Ymn), the negro slave of the High Priest of Amon.

<sup>10</sup>Total of the people who were in the pyramid of this great god: eight men.

Examination of the Robbers

540. Their examination was held, by beating with a double rod, smiting their feet <sup>11</sup>and their hands. They told the same story. The governor of the city and vizier, Khamwese; the king's-butler, Nesuamon, the scribe of Pharaoh, L. P. H., caused the thieves to be taken before them, <sup>12</sup>to the west of the city, in the year 16, third month of the first season, day 19; <sup>c</sup> and that the thieves should put hand upon the pyramid of this god, in whose sepulcher-chamber they had been. Their examination and their [—] were put into writing; and the vizier, the butler, the herald, and the mayor of the city reported to Pharaoh concerning it.

<sup>a</sup>The confession of the thieves is perhaps concluded here. If so, the next column began with a list of the thieves, of which the title occupied one line, and the three lost names, three more lines (each name with its titles occupying a line), making a total loss, at the top of the column, of four lines at least.

<sup>b</sup>Omitted by the scribe.

<sup>c</sup>This is the date of the expedition of the vizier and Nesuamon, as also related in Papyrus Abbott (col. 4, ll. 11, 12, above § 523); but no mention is there made of bringing out the robbers of Sebekemsaf's tomb, to make them identify it.

Col. 4

a _____
_____	3 men
Thief [_____]	1 man
Total	4

Thieves Awaiting Punishment

541. Thieves of this pyramid of this god, who took to flight,<sup>b</sup> having been delivered to the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, to have them taken and placed among the prisoners at the gate of the "House-of-Amon-Re-King-of-Gods," with their companions secretly,<sup>c</sup> that Pharaoh might determine their punishment:

The artisan of "The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III),-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," Setnakht, son of Penanuket, under charge of the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, the sem priest of "The-House-of-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.,-in-the-House-of-Amon," Nesuamon.

III. TURIN FRAGMENT<sup>d</sup>

542. The coppersmith Pekharu, accused of robbing the tomb of Queen Isis (§§ 523, 524) was found to know nothing about it. It was hence supposed to be uninjured. But in the year 17 our fragment shows that it was found to have been robbed by eight thieves. These can hardly have been any other than the eight thieves of Sebekemsaf's tomb, who must have robbed the tomb of Isis before their arrest in the year 16. Hence it had been robbed when the vizier's inspection was made (§ 523), but he failed to discover the fact. Hence it would appear that Peser's charges against Pewero

<sup>a</sup>The number of lines lost is uncertain, but at least three-fourths of the page is lost.

<sup>b</sup>Whether this flight took place before the trial, or some of them escaped afterward, is uncertain.

<sup>c</sup>n t̄ > wt for m t̄ > wt.

<sup>d</sup>A fragment of hieratic papyrus in the Turin Museum, published in transcription by Spiegelberg, with translation (Zwei Beiträge, 12, 13).

were later gradually being verified, and that further examination was being made.

543. Year 17, third month of the second season, day 22. The workmen of the necropolis ceased work, and the butler, governor of the city, and vizier, Khamwese; the workmen of the necropolis and their overseers, went up to the 'place' of the (female) singers,<sup>a</sup> to inspect (the tomb of) the king's-daughter, king's-wife, Isis, L. P. H. They opened her tomb, they found the granite block,<sup>b</sup> the eight thieves having done damage in the '—'. They had wrought evil destruction on all that was therein; and they had damaged [its] owner.<sup>c</sup>

IV. MAYER PAPYRI<sup>d</sup>

544. These two documents are the court records of the prosecution of the tomb-robbers, whose names are recorded on the back of the Papyrus Abbott, in the first year of Ramses X (nineteenth of Ramses IX), and of others in the next year, eight months later. The contents of the document will be found sufficiently indicated above (§§ 505 ff.) without further summary here.

Trial of Robbers of Ramses II and Seti I's Tombs

545. Year 1, of Uhem-mesut (Whm-mš'wt),<sup>e</sup> fourth month of the third season, day 15. On this day occurred the examination of the

<sup>a</sup>Queens.

<sup>b</sup>The sarcophagus, as Spiegelberg has seen.

<sup>c</sup>The mummy.

<sup>d</sup>These two documents are in the Free Public Library Museum of Liverpool, in the Mayer collection. They are called Mayer A and Mayer B. Mayer A has twelve columns varying from 20 to 27 lines; B has but one column (in a different hand) of 14 lines. Many years ago Goodwin published some notes on the two (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1873, 39 ff.; ibid., 1874, 63 ff.), but both are still unpublished. I was unable to use them when I visited the Mayer collection, as they were then in London; hence I owe a great debt to Spiegelberg, who without reserve placed his transcription of the original at my disposal. Spiegelberg has also published a translation of the documents (Free Public Library Museum, Mayer Collection, . . . Liverpool, Museum Report, No. 5. Mayer Collection Report, No. 1. Translation of Hieratic Papyri Mayer A and B, Liverpool, 1891), which I found very useful.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "Repeating birth," and meaning "Born again," a name often applied to the king, as Goodwin already saw. It is here Ramses X who is meant.

thieves of the tomb<sup>a</sup> of King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), L. P. H., the great god; and the tomb<sup>b</sup> of King Menmare, L. P. H., Seti (I), L. P. H., which are recorded<sup>1</sup> in the treasury of <sup>3</sup>“The-House-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III),-L.-P.-H.,” concerning whom the chief of police, Nesuamon, had reported, in this roll of names; for he was there, standing with the thieves, when they laid their hands upon the tombs; <sup>5</sup>who were tortured at the examination on their feet and their hands, to make them tell the way they had done exactly.

Composition of the Court

546. <sup>6</sup>By the governor of the city and vizier, Nibmarenakht;
 Overseer of the White House and overseer of the granary, Menmare-nakht;
 Steward and king's-butler, Ini<sup>1</sup>, the herald<sup>1</sup> of Pharaoh, L. P. H.;
<sup>7</sup>Steward of the court, king's-butler, Pameriamon (P<sup>2</sup>-mry-Ymn), the scribe of Pharaoh.

Testimony of the Prisoner, Paykamen

547. <sup>8</sup>Examination. The X,<sup>c</sup> Paykamen (P<sup>2</sup> y-k<sup>2</sup> mn), under charge of the overseer of the cattle of Amon, was brought in; the oath of the king, L. P. H., was administered to him, not to tell <sup>9</sup>a lie. He was asked: “What was the manner of thy going with the people who were with thee, <sup>10</sup>when ye robbed the tombs of the kings which are recorded<sup>1</sup> in the treasury of ‘The-House-of-King-Usermare-Meriamon,-L.-P.-H.?’” <sup>11</sup>He said: “I went with the priest Teshere (T<sup>2</sup>-šry), son of the divine father, Zedi, of ‘The House;’ Beki, son of Nesuamon, of this house; <sup>12</sup>the X, Nesumontu of the house of Montu, lord of Erment; the X, Paynehsi of the vizier, formerly prophet of Sebek of Peronekh (Pr -<sup>c</sup> nh); Teti (T<sup>2</sup>-ty) [—<sup>1</sup> <sup>13</sup>who belonged to Paynehsi, of the vizier, formerly prophet of Sebek of Peronekh; in all six.”<sup>d</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “house of the corridor.”

<sup>b</sup>Judging from the connection, this word must mean “tomb,” but it is otherwise unknown to me; it is written with the gs-sign and the determinative for a building or tomb.

<sup>c</sup>This is a title (<sup>2</sup><sup>c</sup>) common among the people of the necropolis, and often occurring in these prosecutions. We have no hint as to its meaning, and I indicate it by X.

<sup>d</sup>Counting the speaker.

Testimony of the Chief of Police

548. The chief of police, Nesuamon, was brought in. <sup>14</sup>He was asked: "How didst thou find these men?" He said: "I heard that these men had gone to <sup>15</sup>rob this tomb. I went and found these six men. That which the thief, Paykamen, has said is <sup>16</sup>correct. I took testimony from them on that day . . . . . <sup>17</sup>The examination of the watchman of the house of Amon, the thief, Paykamen, under charge of the overseer of the cattle of Amon, was held by beating with a rod, <sup>18</sup>the bastinade was applied to his feet. An oath was administered to him that he might be executed if he told a lie; he said: 'That which I did is <sup>19</sup>exactly what I have said.' He confirmed it with his mouth, saying: 'As for me, that which I did is what [they] did; I was w[ith the]se six men, I stole <sup>20a</sup>a piece of copper<sup>a</sup> therefrom, and I took possession of it.'"

Testimony of the Prisoner, Nesumontu

549. <sup>21</sup>The X, the thief, Nesumontu, was brought in; the examination was held by beating with a rod; the bastinade was applied on (his) feet and his hand(s); <sup>22</sup>the oath of the king, L. P. H., was administered to him, that he might be executed if he told a lie. He was asked: "What was the manner of thy going to rob <sup>23</sup>in the tomb with thy companions?" He said: "I went and found these people; I was the sixth. I stole a <sup>24</sup>piece of copper<sup>b</sup> therefrom, I took possession of it."

Col. 2. Testimony of Karu

550. <sup>1</sup>The watchman of the house of Amon, the X, Karu ( $\overline{K}^{\circ} -rw$ ), was brought in; he was examined with the rod, the bastinade was applied to his feet and his hands; <sup>2</sup>the oath of the king, L. P. H., was administered to him, that he might be executed if he told a lie. He was asked: "What was the manner of thy going <sup>3</sup>with the (sic!) companions when ye robbed in the tomb?" He said: "The thief, <sup>4</sup>the X, Pehenui, he made me take some grain. I seized a sack of grain, and <sup>5</sup>when I began to go down, I hearb the voice of the men who were in this storehouse. I <sup>6</sup>put my eye to the passage, and I saw Paybek and Teshere, who were within. I <sup>7</sup>called to him, saying, 'Come!' and he came out to me, having two pieces of copper in his hand. He <sup>8</sup>gave them to me, and I gave to him 1½ measures of spelt to pay for them. I took one of them, and I gave the other to the X, Enefsu (c n f-sw).

<sup>a</sup> $M^{\circ} y w$ , with determinative of metal.

<sup>b</sup>Same as in l. 20.

Testimony of Nesuamon

551. <sup>10</sup>The priest, Nesuamon, son of Paybek, was brought in, because of his father. He was examined by beating with the rod. <sup>11</sup>They said to him: "Tell the manner of thy father's going with the men who were with him." He said: "My father was truly there. I was (only) a little child, and I know not how he did it." <sup>13</sup>On being (further) examined, he said: "I saw the workman, Ehatinofer (c h t y-njr), while he was in the place where the tomb is, <sup>14</sup>with the watchman, Nofer, son of Merwer (Mr-wr)<sup>1</sup>, and the artisan, [—], in all three (men). They are the ones I saw <sup>15</sup>distinctly. Indeed, gold was taken, and they are the ones whom I know." On being (further) examined with a rod, he said: "These three men are the ones I saw distinctly."

Testimony of Wenpehti

552. <sup>17</sup>The weaver of "The House," Wenpehti (Wn-phty), son of [—], was brought in. He was examined by beating with a rod, the bastinade was applied to his feet and his hands. <sup>18</sup>The oath of the king, L. P. H., was administered, not to tell a lie. They said to him: "Tell what was the manner of thy father's going, <sup>19</sup>when he committed theft in the tomb with his companions." He said: "My father was killed when I was a child. <sup>20</sup>My mother told me: 'The chief of police, Nesuamon, gave some chisels of copper to thy father; then the captains of the archers and the X <sup>21</sup>slew thy father.' They [held] the examination, and Nesuamon took the copper and gave it to [me]. It remains [in the possession of] my mother."

Col. 3. Testimony of Enroy

553. <sup>1</sup>A Theban woman, Enroy (Yn-n-r-y), the mistress of the priest, Teshere, son of Zedi, was brought in. She was examined <sup>2</sup>by beating with a rod; the bastinade was applied to her feet and her hands. The oath of the king, <sup>3</sup>L. P. H., not to tell a lie, was administered to her; she was asked: "What was the manner of thy husband's going <sup>4</sup>when he broke into the tomb and carried away the copper from it?" She said: "He carried away some <sup>5</sup>copper belonging to this tomb; we sold it and devoured it."

Second Trial

554. <sup>6</sup>Fourth month of the third season, day 17; was held the examination of certain of the thieves of the cemetery.

Here follows the trial of five men, with the usual formulæ, only slightly varied from those used above. The tomb which they were accused of robbing is not mentioned. All five were found innocent. The prosecutions which follow (Columns 5-6), do not refer to any particular tombs, but they are followed in turn by a list (Col. 7), headed: "Year 2, first month of the first season, day 13; the names of the robbers of the tomb of Pharaoh." This list contains the names of twenty-two persons (two women), among whom are some of those above prosecuted.

555. After a gap of a few lines Column 8 proceeds with an important trial, of which the beginning is lost in the gap.

Col. 8

He was again examined by beating with a rod. <sup>2</sup>They said to him: "Tell what were the other places which thou didst break into." He said: "I broke into the tomb of the King's-<sup>3</sup>Wife, Nesimut." He said: "It was I who broke into the tomb of the King's-Wife, Bekurel (Bk-wr-n-r), wife of <sup>4</sup>King Menmare (Seti I), L. P. H., in all, three (tombs)."

556. After enumerating some of the things stolen, in response to a question of the vizier, the examination of the next man shows him to have been innocent. The fisherman who carried the thieves over to the west side is next examined (Column 9) and discharged; and of the three men whose trial follows, one was innocent. A list of twenty-five thieves fills the next column (10) which is headed: "The thieves of the cemetery whose examination was held, concerning whom it was found that they had been in the tombs." Column 11 contains a similar list entitled: "The thieves of the tomb, in the second month, tenth day," while the margin bears a list of "the women who were imprisoned," being eleven of the wives of the thieves. The document then closes with proceedings in which some of the accused in the first trial reappear.

The second document (Papyrus Mayer B) is in a different hand, but records proceedings of the same sort. In a connection which is not entirely clear, the tomb of "Amen-hotep III, the Great God," is mentioned, and it is evident that it had been robbed.

REIGN OF RAMSES XII

THE REPORT OF WENAMON<sup>a</sup>

557. This unique document is our most important source for the position of Egypt in Syria at the close of the Twentieth Dynasty. It belongs to the fifth year of the last of the Ramessids, when he is but the shadow of a king. Hrihor, the High Priest of Amon, although not called king, is in control at Thebes, and Nesubenebded (Smendes), afterward the first king of the Twenty-first Dynasty, living at Tanis, rules the Delta. Under these circumstances Hrihor dispatches one of his officials, named Wenamon, to procure cedar from the Lebanon forests, for the construction of a new sacred barge for Amon. In accordance with an oracle of Amon, the messenger was intrusted with a certain image of the god called "Amon-of-the-Way," which he was to take with him as an embassy to the prince of Byblos. As the envoy met with extraordinary difficulties in the execution of his commission, he made out an elaborate report<sup>b</sup> on his return home to explain the long series of accidents which had interfered with the success of his mission. Although a large fragment is lacking from the middle of the first column, and the loss of another fragment at the end leaves the narrative unfinished, yet this report is, nevertheless, one of the most interesting and important documents yet discovered in Egypt.

---

<sup>a</sup>Papyrus found in 1891 by fellahin at el Khibeh, opposite Feshn in Upper Egypt, now in the possession of M. W. Golénischeff, of St. Petersburg. It consists of a part of one column, and another almost complete. It was published in transcription by M. Golénischeff in a collection of essays in honor of Baron V. de Rosen's jubilee, with a facsimile of the first twenty-one lines; and again by Golénischeff in revised transcription (Recueil, XXI), with translation. It was translated without alteration of Golénischeff's arrangement of the fragments, by W. M. Müller (Mittheilungen der Deutschen Vorderasiatischen Gesellschaft, 1900, 1); and by Erman (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 38, 1-14) with a rearrangement of the fragments which seems to me unquestionably correct. The following translation, based largely on Erman, I published first in the American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literatures, 1905.

<sup>b</sup>That our document is Wenamon's authentic report there seems to me, after a study of its characteristics, not the slightest doubt; but there is not space here to discuss the question. See Erman (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 38, 2), who reaches the same conclusion.

558. On the sixteenth of the eleventh month, in the fifth year, probably of Ramses XII, Wenamon left Thebes and, presenting his credentials to Nesubenebbed at Tanis, he was kindly received. Fifteen days after leaving Thebes (on the first of the twelfth month), he sailed from Tanis (?) into the Mediterranean in a merchant ship, commanded by a Syrian. Arrived at Dor, the gold and silver which he had brought with him as payment for the timber was stolen from him. Dor was now a petty kingdom of the Thekel, who, with the Peleset-Philistines, had begun entering Syria under Ramses III seventy-five or eighty years before. They had constantly pushed southward after their defeat by Ramses III in his eighth year, and had settled along the eastern coast of the Mediterranean as subjects of the Pharaoh. After the death of Ramses III they must have soon gained their independence. The Thekel chief of Dor gives Wenamon little satisfaction for the loss of his valuables, and after waiting nine days he sails northward to Tyre.

559. The account of the voyage from Dor to Tyre is lost in a lacuna. On the way from Tyre to Byblos he in some way met some of the Thekel with a bag (?) of silver. It weighed thirty deben, and, as he had lost thirty-one<sup>a</sup> deben of silver, he seized it as security. He arrived at Byblos four months and twelve days after his departure from Thebes, but, as he came in an ordinary merchant ship, and not in a special ship of Nesubenedded, and was without rich gifts and the customary externals of former Egyptian envoys, Zakar-Baal, the prince of Byblos, would not receive him, and ordered him to leave. After nineteen days, one of the noble youths in attendance upon the prince fell into a prophetic frenzy and demanded that Wenamon and his god, "Amon-of-the-Way," be summoned and honorably treated.

---

<sup>a</sup>About 7½ lbs., troy.

560. About to return to Egypt, Wenamon was summoned to Zakar-Baal's palace, but, being without money and without credentials, which he had foolishly left with Nesubenedded at Tanis—having only the above-mentioned image of Amon, supposed to confer "life and health," but not likely to impress the Syrian—he was treated with scant respect. The claims of Hrihor and of Amon upon the Lebanon were scouted, and Zakar-Baal proved from his records that his fathers had been paid for their timber. Wenamon therefore sends to Nesubenedded for money, and the prince shows his good-will by dispatching to Egypt at once the heavy timbers of the hull. The messenger returned from Nesubenedded within forty-eight days (perhaps only nineteen or twenty days) with partial payment of the timber desired, whereupon Zakar-Baal sent three hundred men and three hundred oxen to fell and bring the rest of the timber.

561. Some eight months after Wenamon left Thebes the timber was ready. Zakar-Baal delivers it to him, and with grim humor tells him that he has been better treated than the last envoys from Egypt, who were detained at Byblos seventeen years and died there. The prince charges an attendant to conduct Wenamon to their tomb and show it to him. But Wenamon demurs and takes his leave, promising to see that the balance due on the timber is paid. As he is about to sail, a number of Thekel ships appear, for the purpose of arresting him, doubtless for his seizure of the silver. The unlucky Wenamon sits down upon the beach and weeps, while Zakar-Baal, hearing of his plight, sends him reassuring messages, with food, drink, and a female singer. In the morning the prince interviews the Thekel and sends Wenamon to sea. In some way he evades the Thekel, but is driven by a contrary wind to Cyprus (Alasa), where he is about to be killed by the Cyprians, when he finds someone who speaks Egyptian, succeeds in gaining the favor of the Cyprian queen, and is spared.

562. Here the remarkable report is broken off, and how Wenamon reached Egypt we do not know. It will be seen that in the Lebanon region, once conquered and controlled by the Pharaohs, they are no longer feared. Thus, at the close of the Twentieth Dynasty Egypt, while respected as a source of civilization (§ 579), cannot secure even ordinary protection and civility for her messengers in Syria, and this state of affairs had already existed, probably as early as the reign of Ramses IX, a generation earlier.

Besides the earliest known instance of prophetic ecstasy known to us, the document contains also another significant datum, viz., the princes of Byblos had, for two generations, been keeping their daily business records in a book or roll (<sup>c</sup>r). Moreover, among the gifts brought to the prince of Byblos from the Delta were five hundred rolls of papyrus paper. Of course, the Phœnician did not write cuneiform with pen and ink upon these rolls; for a script worse suited to such writing materials than cuneiform can hardly be imagined. It is evident that he wrote upon papyrus the hieratic hand customarily written upon it in Egypt, the only method of writing then known which contained alphabetic signs for the whole alphabet. It thus becomes clear that by 1100 B. C. the cuneiform had been displaced in Phœnicia, and before the tenth century the Phœnician scribes, discarding the innumerable syllabic signs of the Egyptian hieratic, had accustomed themselves to employ only its alphabetic signs.

Pl. I. Departure from Thebes

563. <sup>1</sup>Year five,<sup>a</sup> third month of the third season (eleventh month), day 16, day of the departure of the “eldest of the hall,” of the house of Amon, <sup>2</sup>[the lord of the] lands, Wenamon, to bring the timber for the great and august barge of Amon-Re, king of gods, which is on [the river] — — — (called): “Userhet”<sup>b</sup> of Amon.

Arrival at Tanis

564. On the day of my arrival at Tanis (D<sup>c</sup> n), at the <sup>4</sup>place of abode of Nesubenebbed (Ns-sw-b<sup>2</sup> -nb-dd)<sup>c</sup> and Tentamon, I gave to them the writings of Amon-Re, king of gods, which they <sup>5</sup>caused to be read in their presence; and they said: “I will do (it), I will do (it) according to that which Amon-Re, king of gods, our <sup>6</sup>lord, saith.” I abode until the fourth month of the third season,<sup>d</sup> being in Tanis.

Voyage to Dor

565. Nesubenebbed and <sup>7</sup>Tentamon sent me with the ship-captain, Mengebet (M-n-g-b-ty), and I descended into <sup>8</sup>the great Syrian (H<sup>2</sup> -rw) sea, in the fourth month of the third season, on the first day. I arrived at Dor, a city of <sup>9</sup>Thekel (T<sup>2</sup> -k<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup>), and Bedel (B<sup>2</sup> -dy-r<sup>2</sup>), its king, caused to be brought for me much bread, a jar of wine, <sup>10</sup>and a joint of beef.

The Robbery at Dor

566. Then a man of my ship fled, having stolen:

— <sup>e</sup> [vessels] of gold, <sup>11</sup> [amounting to]	5 deben
4 vessels of silver, amounting to	20 deben
A sack of silver	11 deben
<sup>12</sup> [Total of what] he [stole]	5 deben of gold
	31 deben of silver <sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>That this date must refer to Ramses XII was shown by Erman (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 38, 2).

<sup>b</sup>The name of the barge of Amon; see, e. g., Papyrus Harris (§ 209).

<sup>c</sup>Greek Smendes; part of the name is here broken out, and the reading is taken from l. 6.

<sup>d</sup>Fourteen days after his departure from Thebes.

<sup>e</sup>The names of the articles of gold are broken out.

<sup>f</sup>About 1½ lbs. of gold and about 7½ lbs. of silver.

In the morning then I rose and went to <sup>13</sup>the abode of the prince, and I said to him: "I have been robbed in thy harbor. Since thou art the king of this land, <sup>14</sup>thou art therefore its investigator, who should search for my money. For the money belongs to Amon-Re, <sup>15</sup>king of gods, the lord of the lands; it belongs to Nesubenebbed, and it belongs to Hrihor, my lord, and the other <sup>16</sup>magnates of Egypt; it belongs also to Weret (W<sup>3</sup> rty), and to Mekmel<sup>a</sup> (M-k<sup>3</sup> -m-rw), and to Zakar-<sup>17</sup>Baal (T<sup>3</sup> -k<sup>3</sup> -rw-B-<sup>c</sup> -r<sup>3</sup>),<sup>b</sup> the prince of Byblos,"<sup>c</sup> He said to me: <sup>d</sup>"To thy honor and thy excellence! but, behold, I know nothing <sup>18</sup>of this complaint which thou hast lodged with me. If the thief belonged to my land, he who went on board<sup>e</sup> <sup>19</sup>thy ship, that he might steal thy treasure, I would repay it to thee from my treasury till they <sup>20</sup>find thy thief by name; but the thief who robbed thee belongs to <sup>21</sup>thy ship. Tarry a few days here with me, and I will seek him." When I had spent nine days, moored <sup>22</sup>in his harbor, I went to him, and said to him: "Behold, thou hast not found my money <sup>23</sup>["therefore let me depart<sup>1</sup>] with 'the<sup>1</sup> ship-captain, and with those who go — — — —."<sup>f</sup>

—————<sup>g</sup>

Pl. 3

1———— the sea. He said to me, "Be silent. . . . ."<sup>h</sup>

Departure from Tyre for Byblos

567. 5———— the harbor ———— 6— — — [I arrived at<sup>1</sup>] Tyre.<sup>i</sup> I went forth from Tyre at early dawn ———— 7— — — — Zakar-Baal (T<sup>3</sup> -k<sup>3</sup> -r<sup>3</sup> -B-<sup>c</sup> -r), the prince of Byblos<sup>j</sup> ————.

<sup>a</sup>We have here given first the Egyptians who sent the valuables, and then the Syrians, to whom it was to be paid.

<sup>b</sup>זכר-בעל, as Müller and Erman have noted.

<sup>c</sup>This indicates the locality where Wenamon expects to purchase the timber.

<sup>d</sup>Something like "I am beholden to" is to be understood.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "descended into."

<sup>f</sup>Four lines are lost here and an uncertain amount more.

<sup>g</sup>The total loss between the two parts of Pl. 1 is some twenty-three lines. The bulk of this loss precedes Pl. 3, and only a small portion follows it.

<sup>h</sup>Three lines containing but a few broken words; among them a reference to searching for the thieves, which shows that Fragment 3 belongs in this place. The journey from Dor to Tyre is somewhere in these lacunæ.

<sup>i</sup>Only the r of Tyre is preserved, but as he is just leaving there, it can hardly be the r of Dor.

<sup>j</sup>This is not the arrival, but merely the mention of his intended destination.

Seizure of Security from Thekel Travelers

568. ———— <sup>8</sup>the — — — I found 30 deben of silver therein. I seized [it, <sup>1</sup>saying to them: “I will take<sup>1</sup>] <sup>9</sup>your money, and it shall remain with me until ye find [my money. <sup>1</sup>Was it not a man of Thekel<sup>1</sup>] <sup>10</sup>who stole it, and no thief [of ours<sup>1</sup>? I will take it ————.”<sup>a</sup> <sup>11</sup>They went away, while I <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> — <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> —.

Arrival at Byblos

569. [I] arrived — — — — the harbor of Byblos. [I made a place of concealment, <sup>12</sup>I hid<sup>1</sup>] “Amon-of-the-Way,” and I placed his things in it. The prince of Byblos sent to me, saying: “Be[take thyself] (from) <sup>13</sup>my harbor.” I sent to him, saying: “———. <sup>x+1</sup>———<sup>b</sup> if they sail, let them take <sup>1</sup>me<sup>1</sup> to Egypt.” — — I spent nineteen days in his [harbor], and he continually sent to me daily, saying: “Betake thyself away from my harbor.”

A Prophet of Byblos

570. Now, when he sacrificed to his gods —, the god seized one of his noble youths (<sup>c</sup>ḏd), making him frenzied, so that he said: “Bring [the god] hither!<sup>c</sup> Bring the messenger of Amon who hath him. <sup>x+5</sup>Send him, and let him go.”

Wenamons Departure Prevented

571. Now, while the frenzied (youth) continued in frenzy during this night, I found a ship bound for Egypt, and I loaded in all my belongings into it. I waited for the darkness, saying: “When it descends I will embark the god also, in order that no other eye may see him.”

Wenamons Summoned

572. The harbor-master came to me, saying: “Remain until morning by the prince.” I said to him: “Art not thou he who continually came to me daily, saying: ‘Betake thyself away from my harbor’?”

<sup>a</sup>A few fragments of words for about one-third line.

<sup>b</sup>The lacuna here doubtless includes several lines, but it is not so large as the one before Pl. 3; see notes, p. 279. Of the uncertain line numbering I have inserted only every five lines for this fragment.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., “up.” In ecstasy the youth demands the summoning of Wenamon and his image of Amon, and that they be honorably treated and dismissed.

Dost thou not say, 'Remain in the [land?]', <sup>x+10</sup>in order to let depart the ship that I have found? that thou mayest come and say again, 'Away!?' He went and told it to the prince, and the prince sent to the captain of the ship, saying: "Remain until morning by the king."

Wenamon Visits Zakar-Baal

573. When morning came he sent and had me brought up, when the divine offering occurred in the fortress wherein he was, on the shore of the sea. I found him sitting in his upper chamber, leaning his back against a window, while the waves of the great Syrian sea beat against the — <sup>x+15</sup>behind him. I said to him: "Kindness<sup>1</sup> of Amon!" He said to me: "How long is it until this day since thou camest (away) from the abode of Amon?" I said: "Five months and one day until now."<sup>a</sup>

Zakar-Baal Demands Wenamon's Papers

574. He said to me: "Behold, if thou art true, where is the writing of Amon, which is in thy hand? Where is the letter of the High Priest of Amon, which is in thy hand?" I said to him: "I gave them to Nesubenedbed and Tentamon." Then he was very wroth, and he said to me: "Now, behold, the writing and the letter are not in thy hand! Where is the ship of cedar, which Nesubenedbed gave to thee? Where is <sup>x+20</sup>its Syrian crew? He would not deliver thy business to this ship-captain [— ] to have thee killed, that they might cast thee into the sea. From whom would they have sought the god then? And thee, from whom would they have sought thee then?" So spake he to me. I said to him: "There are indeed Egyptian ships and Egyptian crews who sail under Nesubenedbed, (but) he hath no Syrian crews." He said to me: "There are surely twenty ships here in my harbor, which are in connection with Nesubenedbed; and at this Sidon, <sup>1</sup>whither thou also [wouldst go], there are indeed 10,000 ships also which are in connection <sup>2</sup>with Berket-el<sup>b</sup> (W<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-k<sup>2</sup>-ty-r<sup>2</sup>) and sail to his house."

Pl. I

<sup>a</sup>This would be the twelfth of the fourth month.

<sup>b</sup>Erman thinks this must be some great Phœnician merchant resident in Tanis, and the parallelism certainly points clearly to someone in Tanis.

Wenamou Declares His Business

575. Then I was silent in this great hour. <sup>3</sup>He answered and said to me: "On what business hast thou come hither?" I said to him: "I have come <sup>4</sup>after the timber for the great and august barge of Amon-Re, king of gods. Thy father did it, <sup>5</sup>thy grandfather did it, and thou wilt also do it." So spake I to him.

Zakar-Baal Demands Payment as of Old

576. He said to me: "They did it, truly. <sup>6</sup>If thou give me (something) for doing it, I will do it. Indeed, my agents transacted the business; <sup>7</sup>the Pharaoh, L. P. H., sent six ships, laden with the products of Egypt, and they were unloaded into their <sup>8</sup>storehouses. And thou also shalt bring something for me." He had the journal of his fathers brought in, <sup>9</sup>and he had them read it before me. They found 1,000 deben of every (kind of) silver, which was in his book.

Zakar-Baal Declares His Independence

577. <sup>10</sup>He said to me: "If the ruler of Egypt were the owner of my property, and I were also his servant, <sup>11</sup>he would not send silver and gold, saying: 'Do the command of Amon.' It was not the payment <sup>12</sup>of tribute<sup>1a</sup> which they exacted of my father. As for me, I am myself neither thy <sup>13</sup>servant nor am I the servant of him that sent thee. If I cry out to the <sup>14</sup>Lebanon, the heavens open, and the logs lie here on the shore of the sea."

Wenamou has no Equipment

578. "Give <sup>15</sup>me the sails which thou hast brought to propel thy ships which bear thy logs to [Egypt]. <sup>16</sup>Give me the cordage [which thou hast brought to bind<sup>1</sup>] the trees which I fell, in order to make them [fast] for thee <sup>17</sup>—— I make them for thee [into<sup>3</sup>] the sails of thy <sup>18</sup>ships, and the tops are (too) heavy and they break, and thou die in the midst of the sea <sup>19</sup>when Amon thunders in heaven, and puts Sutekh in his time."

Egypt the Home of Civilization

579. "For Amon <sup>20</sup>equips all lands; he equips them, having first equipped the land of Egypt, whence thou comest. <sup>21</sup>For artisanship came forth from it, to reach my place of abode; and teaching came forth <sup>22</sup>from it, to reach my place of abode. What (then) are these miserable journeys which they have had thee make?"

<sup>a</sup>Mrk for brk? F > = "pay" is common. Erman suggests that mrk is connected with melek, "king," but f > seems to me, to make this interpretation difficult.

Wenamom Claims Lebanon for Amon

580. I said to him: <sup>23</sup>"O guilty one! They are no miserable journeys on which I am. There is no ship upon the river, <sup>24</sup>which Amon does not own. For his is the sea, and his is Lebanon of which thou sayest, 'It is mine.' It <sup>a</sup><sup>25</sup>grows for 'Userhet' (the barge) of Amon, the lord of every ship. Yea, so spake Amon-Re, king of gods, saying to <sup>26</sup>Hrihor, my lord: 'Send me,' and he made me go, bearing this great god. But, behold, thou hast let <sup>27</sup>this great god wait twenty-nine<sup>b</sup> days, when he had landed [in] thy harbor, although thou didst certainly know he was here. He is indeed (still) what <sup>28</sup>he (once) was, while thou standest and bargainest for the Lebanon with Amon, its lord. As for what thou sayest, that the <sup>29</sup>former kings sent silver and gold, if they had given life and health, they would not have sent the valuables; <sup>30</sup>(but) they sent the valuables [to] thy fathers instead of life and health. Now, as for Amon-Re, king of gods, he is the <sup>31</sup>lord of life and health, and he was the lord of thy fathers, who spent their lifetime offering <sup>32</sup>to Amon.<sup>c</sup> And thou also, thou art the servant of Amon. If thou sayest to Amon, 'I will do (it), I will do (it),' and thou executest his <sup>33</sup>command, thou shalt live, and thou shalt be prosperous, and thou shalt be healthy, and thou shalt be pleasant to thy whole land and thy people. Wish not <sup>34</sup>for thyself a thing belonging to Amon-Re, [king of] gods. Yea, the lion loves his own."

Wenamom will Secure Payment

581. "Let my scribe be brought to me, that I may send <sup>35</sup>him to Nesubenedbed and Tentamon, the rulers whom Amon hath given to the North of his land, <sup>36</sup>and they will send all that of which I shall write to them, saying: 'Let it be brought;' until I return to the South and <sup>37</sup>send thee all, all thy trifles again." So spake I to him.

<sup>a</sup>Lebanon.

<sup>b</sup>This was four months and twelve days after leaving Thebes; he must therefore have reached Byblos three months and thirteen days after leaving Thebes.

<sup>c</sup>Ramses III built a temple of Amon in Syria (§ 219); Thutmose III gave three cities of the southern Lebanon district to Amon (II, 557); Zakar-Baal had a butler named Penamon, and there is no doubt that Wenamom's statement was correct.

Timber is Shipped; Messenger Brings Payment

582. He gave my letter into the hand of his messenger. He loaded in the 'keel',<sup>a</sup> <sup>38</sup>the head of the bow and the head of the stern, with four other hewn timbers, together seven; and he had them taken to Egypt. <sup>39</sup>His messenger went to Egypt, and returned to me, to Syria in the first month of the second season.<sup>b</sup> Nesubenedbed and Tentamon sent:

<sup>40</sup>Gold: 4 Tb-vessels, 1 K <sup>3</sup>k-mn-vessel;
 Silver: 5 Tb-vessels;
 Royal linen: 10 garments, 10 'hm-hrd';
 Papyrus: <sup>41</sup>500 rolls;
 Ox-hides: 500;
 Rope: 500 (coils);
 Lentils: 20 measures;
 Fish: 30 measures (mst <sup>3</sup>);
 She<sup>c</sup> sent me:
 Linen: <sup>42</sup>5 '—', 5 'hm-hrd';
 Lentils: 1 measure;
 Fish: 5 measures (mst <sup>3</sup>).

More Timber Felled

583. The prince rejoiced, and detailed <sup>43</sup>300 men and 300 oxen, placing overseers over them, to have the trees felled. They spent the second season therewith <sup>44</sup>'—'. In the third month of the second season<sup>d</sup> (seventh month) they dragged them [to] the shore of the sea. The prince came forth and stood by them.

Timber Delivered to Wenamon

584. He sent to me, <sup>45</sup>saying: "Come." Now, when I had presented myself before him, the shadow of his sunshade fell upon me. Penamon, <sup>46</sup>a butler, he stepped between me, saying: "The shadow of <sup>a</sup>Ppyt, determined with a piece of wood. The three principal timbers of the ship are undoubtedly mentioned here.

<sup>b</sup>Within forty-eight days of the date of his departure (twelfth of the fourth month).

<sup>c</sup>Tentamon sent him a personal present.

<sup>d</sup>Some eight months after he left Thebes.

Pharaoh, L. P. H., thy lord, falls upon thee." He<sup>a</sup> was angry <sup>47</sup>with him, saying: "Let him alone!" I presented myself before him, and he answered and said to me: "Behold, the command which my <sup>48</sup>fathers formerly executed, I have executed, although thou for thy part hast not done for me that which thy fathers did for me. Behold, there has arrived <sup>49</sup>the last of thy timber, and there it lies. Do according to my desire and come to load it, for they will indeed give it to thee."

Fate of a Former Embassy

585. <sup>50</sup>"Come not to contemplate the terror of the sea, (but) if thou dost contemplate the terror of the sea, thou shalt (also) contemplate <sup>51</sup>my own. Indeed, I have not done to thee that which they did to the messengers of Khamwese,<sup>b</sup> when they spent seventeen years <sup>52</sup>in this land. They died in their place."<sup>c</sup> He said to his butler: "Take him, and let him see their tomb, wherein they <sup>53</sup>sleep."

Zakar-Baal's Great Distinction

586. I said to him: "Let me not see it! As for Khamwese, (mere) people were the messengers whom he sent to thee; but people <sup>54</sup>— — there was no [god among] his messengers. And yet thou sayest, 'Go and see thy companions.' Lo, art thou not glad? <sup>55</sup>and dost thou not have made for thee a tablet, whereon thou sayest: 'Amon-Re, king of gods, sent to me "Amon-of-the-Way," his <sup>56</sup>[divine] messenger, and Wenamon, his human messenger, after the timber for the great and august barge of Amon-Re, king of gods? I felled it, <sup>57</sup>I loaded it, I supplied him (with) my ships and my crews, I brought them to Egypt, to beseech for me <sup>58</sup>10,000 years of life from Amon, more than my ordained (life), and it came to pass.' Then in future days when a messenger comes

---

<sup>a</sup>The chief of Byblos.

<sup>b</sup>Who this Khamwese was is not entirely certain. Erman recalls the occurrence of Khamwese as part of the name in the cartouche of Ramses IX, and it is not improbable that he is meant, for as the messengers have been some time dead, and this document is dated in the fifth year of Ramses XII, they must have left Egypt some twenty-five years earlier, which would certainly carry us back into the reign of Ramses IX.

<sup>c</sup>This phrase "in their place" in connection with dying must have some particular meaning. It is frequently so used in the inscriptions of Ramses III, and of the conspirators against him, who committed suicide; but its idiomatic force is not clear.

<sup>59</sup>from the land of Egypt, who is able to write, and reads thy name upon the stela, thou shalt receive water in the West, like the gods who are <sup>60</sup>there." He said to me: "It is a great testimony which thou tellest me."

Payment of Balance Promised

587. I said to him: "As for the many things which thou hast said to me, when I reach <sup>61</sup>the place of abode of the High Priest of Amon, and he shall see thy command in thy command,<sup>a</sup> [he] will have something delivered to thee."

Thekel Ships Lie in Wait

588. <sup>62</sup>I went to the shore of the sea, to the place where the timbers lay; I spied eleven ships <sup>63</sup>coming from the sea, belonging to the Thekel, saying:<sup>b</sup> "Arrest him! Let not a ship <sup>64</sup>of his (pass) to Egypt!" I sat down and began to weep. The letter-scribe of the prince came out to me, <sup>65</sup>and said to me: "What is the matter with thee?" I said to him: "Surely thou seest these birds which twice descend upon Egypt. <sup>66</sup>Behold them! They come to the pool, and how long<sup>c</sup> shall I be here, forsaken? For thou seest surely those who come <sup>67</sup>to arrest me again."<sup>d</sup>

Zakar-Baal Reassures Wenamon

589. He went and told it to the prince. The prince began to weep at the evil words which they spoke to him. <sup>68</sup>He sent out his letter-scribe to me, he brought me two jars of wine and a ram. He sent <sup>69</sup>to me Tentno (Tynt-nw't), an Egyptian singer (feminine), who was with him, saying: "Sing for him; let not his heart feel apprehension." He sent to me, <sup>70</sup>saying: "Eat, drink, and let not thy heart feel apprehension. Thou shalt hear all that I have to say in the morning."

Interview with the Thekel

590. Morning <sup>71</sup>came, he had (the Thekel) called into his [—], he stood in their midst and said to the Thekel: "Why have ye come?"

<sup>a</sup>The text is translated verbatim; but it is perhaps corrupt.

<sup>b</sup>The report, otherwise, so full, abbreviates here; he means that they were under orders, of which he introduces the purport by the word "saying."

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "until what comes."

<sup>d</sup>This word points to earlier trouble with the Thekel, and doubtless explains the "twice" above.

<sup>72</sup>They said to him: "We have come after the stove-up ships which thou sendest to Egypt with our [—] comrades." <sup>73</sup>He said to them: "I cannot arrest the messenger of Amon in my land. Let me send him away, and ye shall pursue him, <sup>74</sup>to arrest him."

Escape to Alasa

591. He loaded me on board, he sent me away — to the harbor of the sea. The wind drove me to the land of <sup>75</sup>Alasa (<sup>2</sup>-<sup>r</sup><sup>2</sup>-<sup>s</sup>); those of the city came forth to me to slay me. I was brought among them to the abode of Heteb (<sup>H</sup><sup>2</sup>-<sup>ty</sup>-<sup>b</sup>), <sup>76</sup>the queen of the city. I found her as she was going forth from one of her houses and entering into her other. I <sup>77</sup>saluted her, I asked the people who stood about her: "There is surely one among you who understands Egyptian?" One <sup>78</sup>among them said: "I understand (it)." I said to him: "Say to my mistress: 'I have heard as far as Thebes, the abode of Amon, that <sup>79</sup>in every city injustice is done, but that justice is done in the land of Alasa; (but), lo, injustice is done every day here.'" She said: "Indeed! What is <sup>80</sup>this that thou sayest?" I said to her: "If the sea raged and the wind drove me to the land where I am, <sup>81</sup>thou wilt not let them take [advantage of] me to slay me; I being a messenger of Amon. I am one for whom they will seek <sup>82</sup>unceasingly. As for the crew of the prince of Byblos whom they sought to kill, their lord will surely find <sup>83</sup>ten crews of thine, and he will slay them, on his part." She had the people called and stationed (before her); she said to me: "Pass the night ———."

---

RECORDS OF THE RESTORATION OF THE ROYAL MUMMIES

592. We have already seen (§ 545) that the tombs of Ramses II and Seti I had been broken into in the first year of Ramses X (the nineteenth of Ramses IX). Under Ramses XII, in his sixth year, the High Priest of Amon, Hrihor, sent some of his people to restore the bodies, and to place them again in their coffins and sarcophagi. They left a record of this pious work on the coffins:

Coffin of Seti I

593. <sup>a</sup>Year 6, second month of the first season, day 7, day when the vizier, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Hrihor, sent [to renew the burjial of King Menmare, L. P. H.; Son of Re: Menmare (sic!), L. P. H.; Son of Re: Seti (I)-Merneptah; by the hand of the inspector, Hirmamonpene (Hr-m-Ymn-pn<sup>c</sup>), and the officer (mnh) Perepewyot (P<sup>o</sup>-R<sup>c</sup>-p<sup>o</sup> yw-yt).

Coffin of Ramses II

594. <sup>b</sup>Year 6, third month of the second season, day 15, day when the noble of — — the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Hrihor, — sent ———.

LETTER TO THE VICEROY OF KUSH<sup>c</sup>

595. This letter, the content of which is in itself of slight consequence, is important because of the person to whom it is addressed, the viceroy of Kush. Already in the Nineteenth Dynasty the gold-lands of Nubia had passed into the hands of Amon, though they were administered by the viceroy of Kush (III, 640). The next step was the administration of these Nubian gold-lands and the assumption of the office of viceroy of Nubia by the High Priest of Amon. This was done by Hrihor (§ 615), but the following letter shows that he had not yet done so in Ramses XII's seventeenth year, at which time the king still exercises his authority over the viceroy, and sends him after a tardy butler, who needs prodding in the execution of the king's commission to collect building materials, and to finish a shrine.

Titulary

596. <sup>1</sup>[Horus: Mighty Bull, Beloved of Re; Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Mighty in Strength], Repulsing Hundreds of Thousands;

<sup>a</sup>Written with black ink in hieratic on the lid of the coffin; published: Maspero, Momies royales, Pls. XI A, XII; p. 553.

<sup>b</sup>Like the preceding; published by Maspero, Momies royales, Pl. XI B; 557.

<sup>c</sup>Turin papyrus, Pleyte et Rossi, Pls. 66, 67.

Golden Horus: Great in Strength, Making the Two Lands to Live, <sup>2</sup>Sovereign, L. P. H., Satisfied in Heart, Just, Pleasing the Two Lands; King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: <sup>3</sup>Menmare-Setepneptah, L. P. H.; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Ramses (XII)-Khamwese-Meriamon-Nuterhekon, L. P. H.

Introduction

597. <sup>4</sup>Royal command to the king's-son of Kush, king's-scribe of the army, overseer of the granary, Paynehsi, the leader of <sup>5</sup>the archers of Pharaoh, L. P. H.; saying: "This royal command is brought to thee, to wit:

The Butler

598. "Go forth [— after<sup>1</sup> <sup>6</sup>the major-domo, the butler of Pharaoh, L. P. H., and cause him to proceed with the business of Pharaoh, L. P. H., his lord, <sup>7</sup>which he was sent to do, in the southern region. When the writing<sup>a</sup> of Pharaoh, thy lord, reaches thee, <sup>8</sup>thou shalt join thyself to him, to cause that he do the business of Pharaoh, L. P. H., <sup>9</sup>his lord, whereon he was sent."

The Shrine

599. "And thou shalt look to this portable shrine of this great goddess, <sup>10</sup>and thou shalt [complete<sup>1</sup> it, and thou shalt bear it to the ship, and thou shalt have it brought before him to my place of abode."<sup>b</sup>

Artisans' Supplies

600. <sup>11</sup>"And thou shalt have brought [for<sup>1</sup> it khenmet stone, inkhu (yn-n-hw) stone, [emory<sup>1</sup> (ys-m<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>), flowers of the katha-plant, <sup>12</sup>and many blue flowers, — to my place of abode; in order to fill the hand of <sup>13</sup>the artisans therewith. Do not neglect this business which I send to thee. <sup>14</sup>Behold, I write for thy testimony.<sup>c</sup> It is a letter to inform thee<sup>d</sup> of the king's well-being.

<sup>15</sup>"Year 17, fourth month of the first season, day 15."

<sup>a</sup>The present letter.

<sup>b</sup>Tanis?

<sup>c</sup>A formula used to indicate to the recipient that the matter is in writing, to serve as his testimony in case of future misunderstanding.

<sup>d</sup>Among other things.

BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS IN THE TEMPLE OF KHONSU<sup>a</sup>

601. The temple of Khonsu is the only monument in which we can clearly trace the fall of the last Ramessid and the succession of the High Priest of Amon, Hrihor. This transition will be found briefly discussed in connection with Hrihor's inscriptions (§ 608). The dedications occupying the official place on the architraves of the hypostyle are all in the name of Ramses XII, as if he were in full enjoyment of the usual powers of the Pharaoh; while those around the base of the wall in the same hall (§§ 609, 610) contain but the scantiest reference to the king. On the rôle played by the king in the wall scenes in the same hall, see §§ 611-13.

The architrave dedications are as follows:

602. <sup>b</sup>Live Horus: . . . . .<sup>c</sup> Ramses XII; he made (it) as his monument for his father, "Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest," which Ramses XII made for him.

<sup>d</sup>Live the Good God, maker of monuments in the house of his father, Khonsu, lord of Thebes, builder of his temple as an eternal work in fine white sandstone, increasing — — — —.<sup>e</sup>

<sup>f</sup>Live Horus: . . . . .<sup>c</sup> Ramses XII; he made (it) as his monument for his father, "Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest," making for him (the hall called) "Wearer-of-Diadems" for the first time, of fine white sandstone, making splendid his temple as a beautiful monument,<sup>g</sup> forever, which the Son of Re, Ramses XII, made for him.

603. <sup>h</sup>. . . . . Ramses XII, mighty king, great in monuments in

---

<sup>a</sup>Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 233-35; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 238, d, Text, III, 65; Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 59, 3-5.

<sup>b</sup>Architraves on both sides of central aisle of hypostyle, on sides facing aisle.

<sup>c</sup>Partial titular

<sup>d</sup>Architraves on right of central aisle, side facing small columns.

<sup>e</sup>"Lacune de quelques signes et légende royale du même" (as above).

<sup>f</sup>Architraves over small columns on the right.

<sup>g</sup>Or: "with beautiful monuments."

<sup>h</sup>Begins the same as the preceding.

the house of his father, Khonsu, lord of Thebes, building for him his house, made for the first time as an excellent, eternal work; the great gods are satisfied in heart over his monument, which the Son of Re, Ramses XII, made for him.

<sup>a</sup>Live the Good God, doing benefactions, the monument-builder, plentiful in wonders, whose every design comes to pass 'immediately' like his father, Ptah-South-of-His-Wall. He has illuminated Thebes with great monuments 'of' the king, which King Ramses XII, beloved of Khonsu, made for him.

---

<sup>a</sup>Only Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, 59, 3.

THE TWENTY-FIRST DYNASTY

THE TWENTY-FIRST DYNASTY

604. While these volumes are not intended to furnish discussions and reconstructions of the dynasties, the Twenty-first Dynasty is, nevertheless, so unusual in character, that it is impossible to classify the brief and fragmentary documents which it has left us, without some indication of its peculiarities.

605. Already under the last Ramessid (before his fifth year) we have seen, in the report of Wenamon, that a local dynast of Tanis, Nesubenedbed, had assumed the sovereignty of the Delta. When Ramses XII died and the Twentieth Dynasty was ended, Nesubenedbed became king of Lower Egypt, and the founder of the Twenty-first Dynasty of Manetho. At Thebes, the High Priest of Amon, Hrihor, became king of Upper Egypt. Of the Tanite kings we know next to nothing; but we are at least able to follow the high priests at Thebes from generation to generation without a break. They form the only connected thread along which we can trace the course of the dynasty. At Hrihor's death they were not able to maintain their royalty, and Nesubenedbed ruled the whole country for a time. Hrihor's grandson, Paynozem I, having, while High Priest, married Makere, the daughter<sup>a</sup> of Pesibkhenno I of Tanis, likewise became sole king for a long reign. Otherwise the Tanites were dominant; but probably not on hostile terms with the high priests, who remained powerful princes, more or less independent, and boasting many of the titles of royalty.

606. Possessing only a few names of Tanite kings in northern monuments of their own, we are obliged to turn to Thebes for the materials with which to reconstruct the dynasty. The difficulty with these materials is that they frequently, indeed prevailingly, record royal dates with only the year, omitting the name of the Tanite king to whom the year belongs. From such documents<sup>a</sup> it is now possible to reconstruct the following table of the dynasty.<sup>b</sup> Space and the purpose of these volumes do not permit its discussion here, but some explanations will be found with the inscriptions upon which it is based. An asterisk with a number indicates that the king's name accompanies it in the original document; and the dagger, that the name of the High Priest occurs with it. It will be seen that there are only three dates with both. The numbers show that the Twenty-first Dynasty lasted  $134 + 6x$  years. As one  $x$  is the entire reign of Hrihor (Nesubeneded), we must credit it with not less than 145 years.

---

<sup>a</sup>See Maspero, Momies royales, 692-98.

607. PHARAOHS <sup>c</sup>	YEARS	HIGH PRIESTS
Nesubeneded	}	} Hrihor (high priest and king) } Payonekh (his son)
Akheperre-Setepna-	6†	} Paynozem I (his son)
mon-Pesibkhenno I	9†
17 years + $x$	10†
	13†
	17†

<sup>a</sup>They will be found, with one exception, in the following translations (§§ 608-92).

<sup>b</sup>The former discussions, as well as an exhaustive treatment of the Twenty-first Dynasty, will be found in Maspero's Momies royales (Mémoires de la mission française au Caire, I, 640-730). A modification of Maspero's reconstruction was proposed by Petrie, who proved that Hrihor and Siamon were distinct (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XVIII, 59, 60). New material found on the priestly mummies discovered in 1891 confirmed this conclusion. This material was published by Daressy (Revue archéologique, 28, 75-78), who furnished further modifications of Maspero's reconstruction, but did not employ all the available material. Another modification was proposed by Torr (Revue archéologique, 28, 296-98), who added a new High Priest. The above table agrees in the main with Daressy, but employs all the material and adds some corrections. No comparison with the data of Manetho is here necessary, as his account of the dynasty is almost worthless.

<sup>c</sup>The order of these kings is certain, but the connections between them are very loose, so that there is room for an ephemeral king who may be inserted somewhere in the second half (especially between Amenemopet and Siamon or Siamon and Pesibkhenno II), to make up the seven kings given by Manetho in this dynasty.

PHARAOHS <sup>a</sup>	YEARS	HIGH PRIESTS
Paynozem I 40 years + x	7	} Zekhonsafonekh (son of King Paynozem) <sup>b</sup>
	8*
	16†	} Masaheret (son of King Paynozem)
	25†	} Menkheperre-Pesibkhenno <sup>c</sup> (son of King Paynozem)
40†
Amenemopet 49 years + x	6†	} Nesubenedded (his son)
	7†
	22(?)*†	} Paynozem II (son of Menkheperre)
	49*
1†
2†
Siamon 16 <sup>d</sup> years + x	3†	}
	5†
	7*†
	8*
	9†
	10†
	13 <sup>e</sup>
14*† <sup>f</sup>
	16†

<sup>a</sup>See note c, p. 296.

<sup>b</sup>Noticed by Mr. Cecil Torr on a now missing coffin, on which the deceased calls himself: "son of the High Priest Zekhonsafonekh, son of King Paynozem" (Revue archéologique, 1896, 28, 298). His position above is not quite certain, but as we do not know who was High Priest in Paynozem I's seventh and eighth years, he may well fall in that gap.

<sup>c</sup>As Torr (Revue archéologique, 1896, 28, 296 ff.) has noticed, Paynozem II as High Priest under King Amenemopet calls himself in several places both son of the High Priest Menkheperre and son of King Pesibkhenno, showing that both the latter names belong to the same man. As Menkheperre occurs in a cartouche, e. g. (Revue archéologique, 28, 75), and likewise Pesibkhenno in a cartouche is once called High Priest, there is no doubt that Torr is correct in supposing that Menkheperre is the premen of Pesibkhenno. He thus assumed royal honors, and may possibly have ruled for a while alone. As he would not assume the throne-name till he had gained the throne, that is, until after Paynozem I's death, the High Priest Pesibkhenno whom we find in a fourth and twelfth year must be a different man. Hence I cannot agree with Torr that this Pesibkhenno is the same as Menkheperre, whose father regularly has the cartouche, while this Pesibkhenno is called simply son of Paynozem (without cartouche).

<sup>d</sup>A graffito at Karnak records year 17 of a king Siamon who may be our above king (Recueil, 22, 51 ff., No. 3 B).

<sup>e</sup>Maspero, Mummies royales, 725.

<sup>f</sup>Recueil, 22, 61, No. 33; a graffito at Karnak; the king's name is almost broken away. It began with Amon, and, as it can hardly be Amenemopet, it must be Siamon.

PHARAOKS <sup>a</sup>	YEARS	HIGH PRIESTS
Pesibkhenno II <sup>b</sup> 12 years + x	{ 4† 5 10 12†	} Pesibkhenno (his son)
<hr style="width: 20%; margin-left: 0;"/> TWENTY-SECOND DYNASTY
Reign of Sheshonk I	{ 5*† 10*† 11*† etc.	} Yewepet (son of Sheshonk I)

The following inscriptions are arranged, for the most part, under the High Priest in whose term of office they fall, as this is, in the majority of cases, stated in the document.

<sup>a</sup>See note c, p. 296.

<sup>b</sup>Menkheperre-Pesibkhenno may never have governed all Egypt; hence I do not put him in the Pharaonic line, but number the last Pesibkhenno as II. Manetho is our only evidence for his position here.

REIGN OF HRIHOR

INSCRIPTIONS OF THE TEMPLE OF KHONSU

608. The inscriptions and reliefs in the temple of Khonsu at Karnak form the chief source for tracing the rise of Hrihor as High Priest of Amon, until his usurpation of the kingship, and they clearly establish the early contentions of Rougé,<sup>a</sup> so ably supplemented by Maspero,<sup>b</sup> as against those of Lepsius, regarding the close of the Twentieth and the beginning of the Twenty-first Dynasty. The adytum and rear-most chambers of the temple were built by Ramses III and his immediate successors (§§ 214, 472). The hypostyle, the court before it, and the pylon were the work of Ramses XII and Hrihor, the hypostyle having been built by them both in common, and the court and pylon by Hrihor alone. Hence, in passing from the hypostyle outward to the court, the political change can be traced on the walls as one goes. We have seen the dedications of Ramses XII on the architraves of the hypostyle (§§ 601-3). The dedications around the base of the wall, however, as well as the scenes in the same hall, show the dominant position held by Hrihor and the subordinate rôle played by the king.

Dedication<sup>c</sup>

609. High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the armies of South and North, the leader, Hrihor, triumphant; he made it as his monument for "House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest;"

---

<sup>a</sup>Etude sur une stèle égyptienne appartenant à la Bibliothèque impériale, 195-202.

<sup>b</sup>Momies royales, 646 ff.

<sup>c</sup>Occupies the base of the wall (inside), and evidently extends around the right side of the hypostyle, from the door in front to the door in the rear; published by Maspero, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 76-77; and again, Momies royales, 652.

making for him a temple for the first time<sup>a</sup> in the likeness of the horizon of heaven, extending his temple as an eternal work, enlarging his monument (more than) before.<sup>b</sup> He increased the daily offerings, he doubled that which was before, while the gods of Thebes are possessed of joy, and the great house is in festival, the house of Khonsu, (†because†) he repeated the august things, being great and beautiful monuments ——— Lord of the Two Lands: Menmare-Setepneptah; Lord of Diadems: Ramses (XII)-Khamwese-Mereramou-Nuterhekon, given life. Lo, the desire of his majesty was to enlarge the house of his father, “House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest,” in order that his shrine might be covered, by doing benefactions for his ka; that<sup>c</sup> which the Son of Re, Ramses XII, beloved of Khonsu, made for him.

Dedication<sup>d</sup>

610. High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Hrihor, triumphant. He made (it) as his monument for “House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest;” making for him (the hall called): “Wearer-of-Diadems,” for the first time, of fine white sandstone, exalting his Great Place, with electrum, adorned with every splendid costly stone, enlarging his house forever with labor, making it to be like the horizon of the great gods at the feast when he appears born again; an august [house] of fine gold and every genuine costly stone, like the [†horizon of] Re when he is born again. — — many offering-tables of silver and gold, in order to satisfy thy ka, every day.

Scene<sup>e</sup>

611. The great barque or sacred shrine<sup>f</sup> of Amon is borne by the priests into the temple of Khonsu (as the inscriptions

<sup>a</sup>Or merely “anew”?

<sup>b</sup>Or: “which was before.”

<sup>c</sup>The antecedent is the building (understood), as commonly.

<sup>d</sup>In the hypostyle, around the base of the wall of the left side, being the pendant of the preceding. It is published by Rougé, Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 204; see also Maspero, Momies royales, 652 (where Rougé's publication is, however, not referred to).

<sup>e</sup>In hypostyle (Lepsius E) immediately behind court, at right of door h below; published, without reliefs, by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 230, 231; Maspero, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 75, 76; and again, Momies royales, 651.

<sup>f</sup>It is followed by two others, doubtless those of Mut and Khonsu; the same is true of the following scene.

show). Walking backward before it, the High Priest Hrihor offers incense to it. The inscriptions are significant:

General

It is the procession of Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of —, to the “House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest,” to behold the beauty of his son (Khonsu).

Over Hrihor

Offering incense before this god, [Amon-Re], king of gods, by the companion, [who presents] the Two Lands to the lord of gods, the High Priest of [Amon-Re], king of gods, Hrihor, triumphant.

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon . . . .:<sup>a</sup> O my son, Lord of the Two Lands: Menmare-Setepneptah (Ramses XII), I have seen this beautiful, pure and excellent monument which thou hast made for me; the reward thereof is all life and prosperity, all health, like Re, forever.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

612. The same sacred barque has been deposited upon its base, doubtless in the temple court. Hrihor offers incense and a libation before it. The accompanying inscriptions are:

Over Hrihor

Offering of incense and a libation to Amon . . . . ,<sup>a</sup> that thou (sic!) mayest grant long life, beholding thy [—], and a good old age in thy city, Thebes; by the hereditary prince, over the Two Lands, great noble<sup>c</sup> in the whole land, High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army of the North and South, the leader, Hrihor, triumphant.

<sup>a</sup>Titles of the god.

<sup>b</sup>On the left of the door h, as pendant to the preceding scene; published Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1883, 76; and Momies royales, 651.

<sup>c</sup>Possibly: “companion (smr), great noble (wr c 3),” the last being the designation common in the Twenty-second Dynasty.

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon . . . : O my son, of my body, my beloved, Menmare-Setepneptah (Ramses XII), my heart is glad, rejoicing — [in] thy monument, etc. . . . .

613. In other scenes which follow, Hrihor officiates while the name of Ramses XII appears behind him. The High Priest thus performs the official religious functions in which hitherto only the Pharaoh has been portrayed on temple walls, while the name of the Pharaoh, and the promises of the god to him, usual on such occasions, are still inserted.

614. The door leading out from this hypostyle to the court in front shows the power of Hrihor still increasing; he has become overseer of the granaries, the source of Egypt's greatest wealth, and viceroy of Kush. These titles appear side by side beneath the name of Ramses XII, in a date (unfortunately now lost) at the head of a very interesting, but fragmentary, inscription which narrated a prodigy in favor of Hrihor, doubtless connected with his advance in power. He appeared before Khonsu with a petition for "life, prosperity, health, and many good things," the blessings usually desired; but it is evident that some great event in Hrihor's favor was to take place within a year; though it is not clear what that event was. Khonsu's approval was expressed by numerous nods of the god's head, and news of this was taken to Amon, who also nodded violently in approval, adding the audible promise that he assured Hrihor twenty years, meaning, of course, twenty years' more of power; but whether as king or High Priest is not stated in the scanty fragments preserved. However, it is highly probable that this is the narrative of the divine oracle declaring Hrihor king. In any case, he was very anxious to make the whole event a matter of record, and immediately secured Amon's approval of recording the prodigy "upon stone." The place where the incident is recorded on the door, between the portion of the temple erected by Hrihor in conjunction with Ramses XII, and the court erected by Hrihor alone, suggests that in it we have the divine sanction of the transition which takes place at that point. The record<sup>a</sup> is as follows:

Date

615. 1———— Ramses XII,<sup>b</sup> beloved of Amon-Re, king of gods, given life forever.

Hrihor before Khonsu

2———— High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, king's-son of Kush,<sup>c</sup> overseer of the granaries 3————. Then the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, repeated to him: 4“———— [Thebes], thy city.” Then the god nodded with his head. 5“———— of Thebes, thy city.” Then the god nodded — 6———— 7“———— 8honor to me, life, prosperity, health, and many good things in Thebes, thy city 9———— which thou givest, and thou shalt give them to me.” Then nodded the 10[god] ————— within a year, the space that thou givest to me; those who are in 11———— within the year which thou givest me, which thou spendest to give them to me, besides the — 12———— Hrihor ([Hry]-Hr), triumphant.

Amon's Confirmation

616. The city went forth as messengers [to] him to tell that which Khonsu said 13———— [Amon-Re], king of gods, turning his face northward to Karnak. Then he arrived at the — 14———— Amon-

<sup>a</sup>Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, Pl. XXI; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 248, b; see also Text, III, 64. Lepsius, Denkmäler, is hardly readable; Brugsch is much better. See also Maspero, Momies royales, 671. The inscription is on the doorpost of the door leading from Hrihor's court to the hypostyle; it is marked g in Lepsius' plan (Text). Only the ends of twenty-eight horizontal lines are preserved.

<sup>b</sup>So read by Brugsch, by Lepsius (Text) and by Maspero (Momies royales, 671).

<sup>c</sup>There is not the slightest doubt that these titles belonged to Hrihor. He is the only High Priest of Amon known under Ramses XII, and his name occurs in this inscription below as the chief actor. From now on, the high priests during their ascendancy, are also viceroys of Kush; see, among other examples, a statue recently found by Legrain at Karnak (Annales, IV, 9). We are therefore to supply the name of Hrihor in the above lacunæ following the titles.

Re, king of gods, the 'father' — — <sup>15</sup> ——— [Then the god nodded his head] exceedingly, exceedingly, saying: "A space<sup>1</sup> of 20 years is [that which] Amon-Re, king of gods, [gives] to thee <sup>16</sup> ——— [because of] the good deeds which thou hast done for Mut, Khonsu, and [her] children formerly <sup>17</sup> ———."

Record of the Prodigy

617. Then the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Hrihor, triumphant, repeated it to him, saying: "O my good lord <sup>18</sup> ——— [Shall we record<sup>1</sup> these] marvels upon stone?" The god nodded (his) head exceedingly, exceedingly. Then repeated to him <sup>19</sup> [the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Hrihor, saying]: " ——— [Khonsu-in-Thebes]-Beautiful-Rest, thy saying; grant that they make a stela — <sup>20</sup> ——— [Khonsu-in]-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest, which he made." The god nodded (his) head exceedingly, exceedingly.

Hrihor's Gratitude

618. <sup>21</sup> ——— eternity shall come to thee, and millions of years shall be in — — <sup>22</sup> ——— generations shall come to talk of these marvels of — <sup>23</sup> ——— generations, [children] shall make — <sup>24</sup> ——— the words [which] came, [shall be] <sup>25</sup> ——— [which] thou sayest to me, that givest to me the space<sup>a</sup> of twenty years <sup>26</sup> ———." [The god] nodded (his) head exceedingly, exceedingly — — — <sup>27</sup> ———. Then Hrihor gave [command to erect this stela] — — — <sup>28</sup> ——— in putting it, a copy — — — —.

619. With the outer court, then, begins the sole rule of Hrihor, the divine approval of which is doubtless narrated in the preceding document, recorded on the door where we leave Ramses XII behind. Here only Hrihor's name appears, and here he only is the recipient of the blessings of the gods, which up to this time, and in the hypostyle behind, were always accorded the Pharaoh alone. Hence in the relief scenes in the court, Khonsu addresses Hrihor thus:<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Read c h c, as in l. 10.

<sup>b</sup>Maspero, Momies royales, 653.

620. "I give to thee very many jubilees, like thy father, Re; I give to thee every land together; while the Nine Bows fall down to thy power."

Utterance of "Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest:" "O my son, my beloved, Lord of the Two Lands, Siamon-<sup>a</sup>Hrihor; how beautiful is this beautiful, pure, and excellent monument which thou hast made for me! My heart is satisfied in seeing them (sic!), and I give to thee reward for them, even life, stability, satisfaction, and the kingdom of the Two Lands in peace, like Re."

621. As king, therefore, Hrihor built the forecourt and the pylon before it, as is amply borne out by the following dedications on the architraves and the pylon, giving him the full Pharaonic titulary. In this he boldly published his real office, putting the title "High Priest of Amon" into the first cartouche, as if it were his given name, before he gained the throne.

622. <sup>b</sup>Live Horus: Mighty Bull, Son of Amon, Maker of Monuments, Establishing for Him Who Begat Him, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Great Ruler of Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: High Priest of Amon. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, making for him a colonnade, for the first time; it is made like the beauty of the horizon; all people are in joy at seeing it, the lord<sup>c</sup> of silver and mistress<sup>c</sup> of gold, comprehending<sup>c</sup> every splendid, costly stone; the deed of a son in love of him who [placed] him on his throne, giving to him eternity as King of the Two Lands, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: High Priest of Amon, beloved of Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of heaven, ruler of the gods; that he might be given life forever.

623. <sup>2</sup>Live the Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Satisfying the Gods, Building their House, Furnishing the Satisfaction of their ka's; Son of Re, Amiable Lord of the Palace, Lord of Diadems: Siamon-Hrihor,<sup>d</sup> divine seed of the lord of gods, his splendid emanation, whom <sup>a</sup>"Son of Amon;" both the names are now inclosed in a cartouche.

<sup>b</sup>Court, architrave over western colonnade; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 243, a = Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 222, 223.

<sup>c</sup>Epithets of the temple.

<sup>d</sup>In cartouche.

Mut bore to be ruler of the circuit of the sun. All lands are under his authority, doing that which his ka wills. The chiefs of Retenu do obeisance to his fame every day, while he sits upon the Horus-throne, which all the living magnify for him, the Son of Re, of His Body, Lord of Diadems: Siamon-Hrihor, beloved of Mut the great, mistress of Ishru; given life like Re.

624. <sup>3</sup>Live Golden Horus: Doing Benefactions in Karnak for his father, Amon, Creator of his Beauty, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Beloved of the Great Divine Ennead, Lord of the Two Lands: High Priest of Amon; king amiable, like Re, making festive Karnak, protecting it for the gods, setting the lords of Thebes to rejoicing, their hearts glad, when they see the "House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest," like the horizon in heaven. All people, they praise its beauty, they acclaim [to] heaven. King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Beloved, Lord of the Two Lands: High Priest of Amon, beloved of Khonsu-Re; that he may be given life.

625. <sup>a1</sup>. . . . . He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, making for him a broad-hall (called): "Hall-of-the-High-Priest-of-Amon,-Siamon-Hrihor,-Great-in-Love-in-the-House-of-Khonsu;" for the first time, of fine white sandstone, as [a work] of eternity by the hand of Ptah, who furnished the plan.

Scene<sup>b</sup>

626. Relief represents the pylon of the Khonsu-temple, with four flagstaves on either side of the portal. The inscriptions under the architrave and beside the flagstaves, though fragmentary, show the name of Hrihor.<sup>c</sup> Above the pylon is the following:

---

<sup>a</sup>First court, eastern architrave. Three lines corresponding to the triple dedication on the western architrave, translated above (§§ 622-24). The titles at the beginning of the line I have omitted; also the other two lines which add nothing. Published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 223 (partially); Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 244, a; Text, III, 61.

<sup>b</sup>In the court, right (east) colonnade; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 243, b; Text, III, 61.

<sup>c</sup>These are the dedications in the usual form taken from the actual pylon, Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 248, i, h.

Inscription<sup>a</sup>

Horus: Mighty Bull, Son of Amon, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: <sup>b</sup>High Priest of Amon; <sup>b</sup>Son of Re, of his Body: <sup>b</sup>Siamon-Hrihor.<sup>b</sup> He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, king of gods, restoring for him, and making Thebes to shine anew (for him), whose name is hidden in [—], establishing for him the “House-of-Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest,” for eternity.

---

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 243, b; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 226.

<sup>b</sup>In cartouche.

REIGN OF NESUBENEDED

GEBELËN INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

627. This, the only surviving inscription of King Nesubenedded (Smendes), the founder of the Twenty-first Dynasty, narrates some catastrophe at Thebes, due to the partial collapse of a wall around the Luxor temple, built by Thutmose III. Exactly what happened is not, however, certain. The king sent his officials with 3,000 men to the quarry at Gebelên, to secure stone for repairing the damage, and one reference (l. 16) may indicate that the king himself finally came.

The document shows that Nesubenedded ruled at Thebes, and, of course, controlled all Egypt. Hrihor must, therefore, have died before the close of Nesubenedded's reign.

628. <sup>b</sup>Lo, his majesty was in the city of Memphis, his august residence of might and victory, like Re ——— [Ptah], <sup>4</sup>lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," Sekhmet the great, beloved of Ptah, — —, Montu and the great gods residing in Memphis. Lo, his majesty sat, in the hall [of his palace, when there came messengers, informing<sup>1</sup>] <sup>5</sup>his majesty, that the canal-wall, forming the limits of Luxor, which King Menkheperre (Thutmose III) had built, had begun [to fall to ruin] ——— <sup>6</sup>forming a great flood, and a powerful <sup>1</sup>current<sup>1</sup> therein, on the great <sup>1</sup>pavement<sup>1</sup> of the house of the temple. It encircled <sup>1</sup>the front<sup>1</sup> ——— [Said his majesty] <sup>7</sup>to them: "As for this matter reported to me, there has been nothing in the time of my majesty from of old, like it. . . . ."

---

<sup>a</sup>Engraved on a pillar in the quarry at Gebelên; over one-third of a line is lost at the beginning of each line; published by Daressy, Recueil, X, 136, 137. The portion preserved is often so uncertain, and has been so inaccurately published, that some omissions have been necessary.

<sup>b</sup>I have omitted the titulary.

629. His majesty [‘‘dispatched master-build<sup>1</sup>’]ers, and 3,000 men with them, of the choicest of the people of his majesty. The command of his majesty to them: ‘‘Hasten to ————<sup>10</sup>the mountain — people<sup>a</sup> of his majesty as the companions of (his) feet [— — —] ————<sup>12</sup>[—] — [— —] this quarry, from the time of the ancestors to the present day, Gebelên ————<sup>13</sup>. . . . .’’

630. They engraved this decree, which perpetuates his majesty [forever] ————<sup>14</sup>. . . . . His command arrived to beautify the work on the stela . . . . . [Never] <sup>16</sup>was done the like of it in the time of the ancestors. Lo, his majesty passed by, in excellent virtues like Thoth ————<sup>17</sup>. . . . . The reward therefor is might and victory, and to appear upon the Horus-throne [of the living, forever] ————.

<sup>a</sup>Hnty, evidently the same class as are mentioned in the Paynozem II inscription (§ 671, l. 8).

REIGN OF THE HIGH PRIEST AND KING
PAYNOZEM I

I. PAYNOZEM I AS HIGH PRIEST
BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS

631. On Hrihor's death his family were unable to maintain their royalty. His eldest son, Payonekh, followed him as High Priest of Amon, but evidently died soon after gaining the office. Hrihor's second son, Paynozem, succeeded to the high priesthood, but, as we have said, not immediately to the throne. He continued the unfinished portions of the Khonsu-temple, especially the pylon of his father, as recorded in the following building inscriptions:

632. <sup>a</sup>Live the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of offering, Paynozem, triumphant, son of the High Priest of Amon. . . . . Payonekh, triumphant. He made (it) as his monument for his father, "Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest," making for him a great and august pylon, over against his temple. The great flagstaves approach heaven, their [tops] are of electrum; all people rejoice when they see (it). . . . .

<sup>b</sup>. . . . . making for him a very great pylon anew, in the likeness of his horizon in heaven. The great gods are possessed of joy and satisfaction of heart, because of what he has made in the great house. They give millions of years of satisfying life, to the High Priest, etc. . . .<sup>c</sup>

<sup>d</sup>Live, the Horus: Mighty Bull, Son of Amon; King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Satisfying the Gods, Doing Benefactions for their ka's;

---

<sup>a</sup>Pylon; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, a; another broken dedication on the pylon (Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 220; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 248, i=Text, III, 57) also attributes it to him.

<sup>b</sup>As in the preceding; it is also on the pylon; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, b; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 215, 216.

<sup>c</sup>Usual name and parentage.

<sup>d</sup>On door of first pylon, Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, Pl. 57, 2.

High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, triumphant, son of Payonekh, triumphant. He made (it) as his monument for his father, Khonsu, making for him a pylon anew. ———

Scene<sup>a</sup>

633. A priest stands before Amon, presenting flowers. The inscriptions are these:

Over Priest

Presentation of all beautiful flowers by [the High Priest] of Amon-Re, king of gods, doing benefactions — — —, Paynozem, triumphant, son of the High Priest of Amon, Payonekh, triumphant; doing the pleasure of his ka, building [the temples] of all gods, fashioning (statues of) their majesties of 'electrum'<sup>1</sup>; he supplies their offerings ———.

Over Amon

Utterance of Amon . . . . "O my son, of my body, my beloved, Lord of the Two Lands, Paynozem,<sup>b</sup> triumphant, I have seen the monuments which thou hast made for me; my heart is satisfied because of them. Thou makest festive my house anew, thou buildest a 'dwelling'<sup>1</sup> of electrum, thou increasest the daily offering, thou multiplieth that which was formerly. The reward therefore is the satisfying life of Horus."

634. Paynozem also restored the Eighteenth Dynasty temple of Medinet Habu, and left the following record of his work there:

<sup>c</sup>Live, the Good God, son of Amon, who came forth from his loins, to equip the Two Lands, whom Mut nourished, to fashion (statues of) the gods, to build their adyta; doing benefactions for all the gods of Thebes; while they are satisfied in heart [because of]<sup>d</sup> what he has

<sup>a</sup>Entrance of pylon, Khonsu-temple; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 250, a. Behind Amon are Mut and Khonsu, and a figure of the "divine votress Make," inserted by Queen Hentowe.

<sup>b</sup>Not in cartouche.

<sup>c</sup>East side of Eighteenth Dynasty Medinet Habu temple, under similar restoration record of Ramses III; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, e-g; better, Text, III, 164.

<sup>d</sup>The preposition (hr) has dropped out; see Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, b, for the same phrase.

done, and their hearts are glad; High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, governor of the city, vizier, commander of the army,<sup>a</sup> satisfying [—], Paynozem, triumphant, son of the High Priest of Amon . . . . Payonekh, triumphant. He restored the monument of his father, "Amon-Re-of-the-Splendid-Throne," when he came to see the house of his father, and found it beginning to fall to ruin ———— in order to restore his temple and his wall anew, in order to satisfy the heart of all the gods and goddesses, in order to shelter — — the divine — of the region of Themet (T<sup>o</sup>-mw' t),<sup>b</sup> in order to cause the palace to be like the horizon of heaven. . . . .<sup>c</sup>

635. To work in Karnak he refers vaguely in the following record, repeated on the rams of Ramses II:

<sup>d</sup>High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, lord of offering, Paynozem, triumphant, son of Payonekh, triumphant; he says: "I am great in monuments and mighty in marvels in Karnak, victorious lord. I have enlarged monuments greater than (for) any gods. I made for him very great monuments in silver and gold, engraved with my name forever."

RECORDS ON THE ROYAL MUMMIES

636. As High Priest Paynozem gave much attention to the restoration and preservation of the violated royal mummies. His successive efforts to this end are recorded on the coffins and wrappings. These records are all dated, and such dates, while not mentioning the name of the king, evidently belong to the reign of Pesibkhenno I, the successor of Nesubenedded in Tanis. Of these, perhaps, the most important is the note of the year 17, recording the transfer of Ramses II's body to the tomb of Seti I.

<sup>a</sup>Another short inscription near by (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, d) contains only the usual restoration formula, but it gives him the title: "Commander in chief of the armies of the South and North."

<sup>b</sup>Name of Medinet Habu region; Coptic, Dshême.

<sup>c</sup>Here follows a prayer of no historical content.

<sup>d</sup>On the rams of Ramses II connecting the front of the Karnak temple with the river; Recueil, XIV, 30.

Mummy of Thutmose II

637. <sup>a</sup>Year 6, third month of the second season, day 7. On this day, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, son of the High Priest of Amon, Payonekh, sent the chief overseer of the White House, Payneferhir, to reinter King Okhepernere (<sup>c</sup>-[hpr]-n-R;<sup>b</sup> Thutmose II).

Mummy of Amenhotep I

638. <sup>c</sup>Year 6, fourth month of the second season, day 5. On this day the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, son of the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem,<sup>d</sup> son of Payonekh, sent to reinter<sup>e</sup> King Zeserkere, Son of Re, Amenhotep (I), L. P. H., by the hand of the overseer of the treasury, Pay————.

Mummy of Seti I

639. <sup>f</sup>Linen, which the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, triumphant, son of Payonekh, triumphant, made for his father, Khonsu, in the year 10.

Mummy of Ramses III

640. <sup>g</sup>Year 13, second month of the third season, day 27. On this day the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, son of the High Priest of Amon, Payonekh, sent: the scribe of the temple, Zoser-sukhonsu, and the scribe in the Theban necropolis, Butehamon, to give a place to King Usermare-Meriamon (Ramses III), L. P. H., established and abiding forever.

Mummy of Ramses III

<sup>h</sup>High priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, triumphant, son of Payonekh, triumphant [made] (it) for his father, Amon, in the year 9.

<sup>a</sup>On the breast of the mummy; Maspero, Momies royales, 545, 546.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe in his hasty note has omitted the hpr-sign.

<sup>c</sup>On the breast of the mummy; op. cit., 536.

<sup>d</sup>This is a dittography, as shown by the preceding docket, which records similar work by the same official about a month earlier under Paynozem, son of Payonekh.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "to repeat the burial of."

<sup>f</sup>On inner wrappings renewed by Twenty-first Dynasty; op. cit., 555. The date, year 10, when this linen was made, is of course not necessarily the year when it was used.

<sup>g</sup>On the wrappings; op. cit., 564.

Mummy of Ramses III

641. <sup>a</sup>The — matron, singer of Amon-Re, king of gods, Fetonemut (F t-c t-nt-Mwt), triumphant, daughter of the High Priest of Amon, Payonekh, triumphant, made and brought (it) for her lord, "Amon-Possessed-of-Eternity,"<sup>b</sup> residing in the temple; in order to crave life, prosperity and health from him.

Mummy of Ramses II

642. <sup>c</sup>Year 17, third month of the second season, day 6, day of bringing Osiris, King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), L. P. H., to bury him again, (in) the tomb of Osiris, King Menmare-Seti (I), L. P. H.: by the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem.

II. PAYNOZEM I AS KING

643. On succeeding Pesibkhenno I as king, Paynozem I continued his pious works in the royal necropolis. The dates accompanying the records now refer to the reign of Paynozem I himself; and in the year 16 the care of the necropolis was assumed by his son, Masaheret, then High Priest of Amon.

Mummy of Sitkamose

644. <sup>d</sup>Year 7, fourth month of the first season, day 8. On this day a place was given to the king's-daughter, great king's-wife, Ahmose-Sitkamose, who liveth.

Mummy of Ahmose I

645. <sup>e</sup>Year 8, third month of the second season, day 29. The majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Kheperkhare-Setepnamon, Paynozem-Meriamon, L. P. H., sent to give a place to King Nebpehtire (Ahmose I).

<sup>a</sup>On the wrappings; op. cit., 565.

<sup>b</sup>This is evidently the temple of Medinet Habu (see its name, §§ 5 ff.); it was the Amon of Ramses III's temple whom she thought to propitiate by making the shroud for Ramses III. He himself is also shown on the wrappings offering to the same god.

<sup>c</sup>On one of the bandages near the outside; op. cit., 560.

<sup>d</sup>On the breast of the mummy; op. cit., 541; probably by the same hand as the next record on wrappings of Ahmose I (op. cit., 534) from year 8 of Paynozem I.

<sup>e</sup>Across the breast of the mummy; op. cit., 534.

Mummy of King's-Son, Siamon

646. <sup>a</sup>Year 8, month 3, of the second season, day 29. His majesty, L. P. H., sent to give a place to the king's-son, Siamon.

Mummy of Amenhotep I

647. <sup>b</sup>Year 16, fourth month of the second season, day 11. The High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Masaheret, son of King Paynozem, L. P. H., sent to reinter this god, by the hand of the scribe of the White House, scribe of the temple, Penamon, son of Sutimose.

BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS

648. Paynozem I, as king, continued in the Khonsu-temple at Karnak the works which he had begun as High Priest, although only one record of them is preserved. His queen, Henttowe, also left a record of the removal of older sculptured rams to the Khonsu-temple.

649. <sup>c</sup>——— temple anew of fine white sandstone, as an excellent eternal work, even that which a son does who does benefactions for his father, who placed him upon his throne; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Kheperkhare-Setepnamon;<sup>d</sup> Son of Re, of his body, his beloved: Paynozem-Meriamon.<sup>d</sup>

<sup>e</sup>Mistress of the Two Lands, Henttowe; she made (it) as her monument for her mother, Mut, when the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Kheperkhare-Setepnamon, brought the rams to the house of Amon.

<sup>a</sup>Op. cit., 538.

<sup>b</sup>On the breast of the mummy; op. cit., 536, 537.

<sup>c</sup>Frieze outside west wall: Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 230, 231; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 251, c.

<sup>d</sup>In cartouche.

<sup>e</sup>On the back of a sphinx belonging to Amenhotep III (according to Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 263, 264, "léontocéphales") in the Khonsu-temple; published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 264; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 249 f.; Maspero, Momies royales, 687.

HIGH PRIESTHOOD OF MENKHEPERRE

STELA<sup>a</sup> OF THE BANISHMENT

650. Masaheret, Paynozem I's son, whom we find restoring the royal mummies as High Priest of Amon, in his father's sixteenth year (§ 647), must have died before the king's twenty-fifth year, when, according to our present document, the king's son, Menkheperre, was High Priest of Amon. Another son of Paynozem I, Zekhonsafonekh, must have held the high priesthood, and died also before the twenty-fifth year. But it is yet impossible to determine certainly the order of these two sons.

We find Menkheperre coming from the north, supposedly from Tanis, to Thebes in Paynozem I's twenty-fifth year, and the remarkable errand which brought him thither is intentionally narrated in such veiled language that it is impossible to determine exactly what its nature was. He came to put down certain unknown enemies, and to restore affairs in Thebes to their ancient status (ll. 6 and 7). This probably indicates a rising of some sort among the Thebans. When this had been quelled Menkheperre appeared before Amon, and with the usual prodigies, customary, at least since the time of Hrihor, he secured an oracle from the god permitting the return to Egypt of all those who had been banished to the Southern Oasis. Furthermore, he also obtained the god's consent to a decree forever forbidding such banishment in the future, and our stela is the permanent record of that decree. The interview with Amon closed with the god's consent that all murderers should be slain.

---

<sup>a</sup>The Maunier stela, now in the Louvre; I was unable to secure the number. It is a black granite stela, very difficult to read; published by Brugsch, Recueil de monuments, I, Pl. XXII, 39 f.; and again, Reise nach der Grossen Oase, Pl. XXII (much better). I had my own copy made from the original, which I then collated with a squeeze.

651. The interesting question as to the identity of the banished, who are thus pardoned, is one on which our document is studiously silent. Were they Thebans, on whose behalf the city had risen in insurrection (ll. 6 and 7)? And were they recalled to appease and quiet the turbulent city? And is the last grim enactment of the god a reminder to the violent of what they might expect in case of further insurrection?

Date and Introduction

652. Year 25, third month of the third season, day 29, corresponding to the feast of Amon-Re, king of gods, at his [beautiful] feast<sup>a</sup>

————— <sup>2</sup>Nesuhor<sup>b</sup> in their increase thereof. The majesty of this august god was ————— <sup>3</sup>Thebes. Then he took (his) way to the scribes, inspectors, people —————.

Departure for Thebes

<sup>4</sup>Year 25, first month of the — [season, day] —. 'Then spake his majesty<sup>1</sup> to the people: "Amon-[Re], lord of Thebes ————— <sup>5</sup>their heart is firm — — — their multitude ——— the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army, Menkheperre,<sup>c</sup> triumphant, son of King Paynozem-Meriamon ————— <sup>6</sup>his — — — — companion of his footsteps, while their hearts rejoiced because he had

<sup>a</sup>This cannot be the Feast of Opet, as restored by Brugsch (Geschichte, 645), for that feast took place in the second month. About two-thirds of a line are lost here, and the same is true of ll. 2-4.

<sup>b</sup>This man's connection with the events narrated is entirely obscure.

<sup>c</sup>This is the first mention of Menkheperre in the inscription, and he here bears his title of High Priest. Hence there seems to me no support for the supposition that he was nominated as High Priest on this visit to Thebes.

desired to come to the South in might and victory, in order to make satisfied the heart of the land, and to expel his enemies, that he might give ——— [as] 7they were in the time of Re.

Arrival at Thebes

653. He arrived at the city (Thebes) with a glad heart; the youth of Thebes received him, making jubilee, with an embassy before him. The majesty of this august god, lord of gods, Amon-Re, [lord of] Thebes, appeared (in procession) — — — <sup>8</sup>that he might [—] him very greatly, very greatly, and establish him upon the throne of his father, as High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the armies of the South and North. He (the god) decreed to him many gracious wonders, (such as) had never been seen since the time of Re.

New Year's Feast

654. [Now, after] <sup>9</sup>the fourth month of the third season, on the fifth<sup>a</sup> day of the (feast), "Birth of Isis," corresponding to the feast of Amon at the New Year, the majesty of this august god, lord of gods, Amon-Re, king of gods, appeared (in procession), came to the great halls of the house of Amon, and rested before the [inclosure wall]<sup>b</sup> of Amon. <sup>10</sup>The High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army, Menkheperre, triumphant, went to him and praised him exceedingly, exceedingly, many times, and he founded [for him] his offering, even [every] good thing<sup>1</sup>.

Recall of the Banished

655. Then the High Priest of Amon, Menkheperre, triumphant, recounted to him, saying:

"O my good lord, (when) there is a matter, shall one recount it — ?"
<sup>11</sup>Then the great god nodded exceedingly, exceedingly. Then he went again to the great god, saying: "O my good lord, (it is) the matter of these servants, against whom thou art wroth, who are in the oasis, whither they<sup>c</sup> are banished." Then the great god <sup>12</sup>nodded exceedingly, while this commander of the army, with his hands uplifted was praising his lord, as a father<sup>a</sup> talks with his own son: "Hail to thee, [maker] of all [that is], creator of all that exists, father of the gods, fashioner of goddesses; who equips them in the cities and districts; begetter <sup>13</sup>of men, and fashioner of women, maker of the life of all men. He is Khnum, building excellently, [giving] the breath of life; the north wind — —. Men live from his provision, who supplies the necessities of gods and men; the sun by day, the moon by night, sailing the heavens without <sup>14</sup>ceasing. Great in fame, he is mightier than Sekhmet, like fire — — — — for him that prays to him; he is healthy to heal the sick, when the people look [to him] [————] <sup>15</sup>[————],<sup>b</sup> Thou shalt hearken to my voice on this day, and thou shalt [relent] toward the servants, whom thou hast banished <sup>16</sup>to the oasis, and they shall be brought (back) to Egypt." The great god nodded exceedingly.

<sup>a</sup>The fifth intercalary day is of course meant.

<sup>b</sup>D > d > w, the word which I have rendered "courses" in Papyrus Harris.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "one" (impersonal), meaning: to which people are customarily banished.

Abolishment of Banishment

656. Then he (the High Priest) spake again, saying: "[O my good lord], as for any writing which any [—] makes, in order to bring it, let it be said — — —." Then the great god nodded exceedingly. Then he went <sup>17</sup>again to the great god, saying: "O my good lord, thou shalt make a great<sup>c</sup> decree in thy name, that no people of the land shall be [banished] to the distant region of the oasis, nor — — — — from this day on." <sup>18</sup>Then the great god nodded exceedingly. He spake again, saying: "Thou shalt say that it shall be made into a decree upon a stela — — — — in thy [—],<sup>d</sup> abiding and fixed forever."

Thanksgiving to Amon

657. Then the High Priest of Amon, Menkheperre, triumphant, spake again, saying: "O my good lord, then my [—] is [for] myriads of times, and the command is for father and mother in every family. My every word shall please the heart in [thy] presence, I am thy faithful servant, profitable to thy ka. <sup>20</sup>I was a youth in thy city, I produced thy provision and thy [—], while I was in the womb, when thou didst

<sup>a</sup>The inversion of the members of the comparison is in the original.

<sup>b</sup>Very much broken; it is only general praise, and the particular petition begins with the following.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "good," the reading is uncertain.

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch read here: "and be set up in thy cities," but this is no longer visible on the stone.

form (me) in the egg, when thou didst bring me forth 'to the great joy' of thy people. Grant that I may spend a happy life 'as a follower of thy ka. There is purity and health wherever thou tarriest. Set my feet in thy way, and direct me on thy path. Incline my heart '— —' to do —. 'Grant that I may pass a happy 'old age' in peace, while I am established, living in thy august house, like every favorite '— — —'."

Slaying of Murderers

658. 'Then the High Priest of Amon, Menkheperre, triumphant, went to the great god, saying: "As for any person, of whom they shall report before thee, saying, 'A slayer of living people '— —' (is he);' thou shalt destroy him, thou shalt slay him.'" Then the great god nodded exceedingly, exceedingly.

RECORD OF RESTORATION<sup>a</sup>

659. Menkheperre was the author of works extending over a wide territory,<sup>b</sup> but they are accompanied only by his name and titles. A restoration in the temple of Luxor is, however, recorded as follows:

Restoration of the monument, which the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Menkheperre, triumphant, son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Meriamon-Paynozem I, made, in the house of his father, Amon of Luxor.

KARNAK GRAFFITO

660. This is a record of an inspection of the Karnak temples by Menkheperre in the year 40, which must still be of the reign of Paynozem I, his father.

<sup>c</sup>Year 40, third month of the third season, day of inspection of the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, the house of Amen[em]opet (Luxor),

<sup>a</sup>On a wall in the Luxor temple; Maspero, Momies royales, 702.

<sup>b</sup>See Maspero, ibid.

<sup>c</sup>Fallen granite pillar, Middle Kingdom portion of Karnak Amon-temple; Recueil, 22, 53, No. 3 A.

the house of Mut, the house of Khonsu, the house of Ptah, "South-of-His-Wall-in-Thebes," the house of Montu, lord of Thebes, and the house of Mat; by the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Menkheperre, son of King Paynozem-Meriamon, when command was given to the fourth prophet of Amon-Re, king of gods, prophet of Montu-Re, lord of Thebes, chief censer-bearer, Hetamenthenofer ( $\overline{H} \cdot t \cdot Ymn \cdot t \cdot n/r$ ), triumphant, son of the fourth prophet of Amon, prophet of Montu, lord of Thebes, Nesupehernemut ( $\overline{N} s \cdot s y \cdot p \cdot h r \cdot n \cdot M w \cdot t$ ), triumphant,

_____.<sup>a</sup>

RECORDS ON THE ROYAL MUMMIES

66r. Menkheperre continued the care of the royal necropolis, and we find him renewing the wrappings of Seti I in the seventh year of a king not mentioned, who can only be the successor of his father, Paynozem I, Amenemopet of Tanis. It was probably in the interim between the two reigns that he gained royal privileges and the throne-name Pesibkhenno, which he never employed in his father's time. We are unable to determine whether he ever reigned alone or not.

Mummy of Seti I

<sup>b</sup>Year 7, second month of the second season, day 26; day of entombing King Menmare (Seti I), L. P. H.

<sup>c</sup>Linen, which the High Priest of Amon-Re, Menkheperre, made for his father, Amon, (in the) year 6.

<sup>a</sup>Amount of loss is uncertain.

<sup>b</sup>On inner wrappings, just under the outside wrappings renewed by the Twenty-first Dynasty; Mummies royales, 555.

<sup>c</sup>On inner wrappings renewed by Twenty-first Dynasty.

HIGH PRIESTHOOD OF PAYNOZEM II

RECORDS ON THE PRIESTLY MUMMIES<sup>a</sup>

662. The 153 mummies of the priests of Amon, found at Thebes in 1891 bore a few inscriptions of historical value. They show that Menkheperre was succeeded in the high priesthood by a certain Nesubenebde, who is known from the Karnak decree to be a son of Menkheperre.<sup>b</sup> Nesubenebde was early succeeded by another son of Menkheperre named Paynozem, the second of the name, in the high priesthood of Amon, which he entered upon under the Tanite king Amenemopet, probably before that king's twenty-second year, as the following records show. They likewise carry his administration at Thebes to the year 10<sup>c</sup> of Siamon.

663. <sup>d</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Usermare-Setepnamon (Amenemopet). Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem, son of Menkheperre, made for his father, Amon, in the year —.

<sup>e</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Meriamon-Amenemopet. Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem, son of Menkheperre, made for his lord, Amon, in the year 22.<sup>f</sup>

<sup>g</sup>King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Amenemopet, year 49.

<sup>h</sup>Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem, son of Menkheperre, made for his lord, Khonsu, in the year 3.

---

<sup>a</sup>On the straps, bandages, and linen; Daressy, Revue archéologique, 28 (4-7 of the tirage à part). The numbers used in my notes are those of the mummies.

<sup>b</sup>Daressy, op. cit., 28 (9, 10, of the tirage à part).

<sup>c</sup>A graffito at Karnak (Legrain, Recueil, 22, 61, No. 33) gives the year 14 of a king whose name is lost. It began with Amen, and may therefore be either Amenemopet or Siamon, very probably the latter.

<sup>d</sup>No. 17.

<sup>e</sup>No. 134.

<sup>f</sup>Daressy adds (?) to this numeral without indicating how much of it is affected by the uncertainty.

<sup>g</sup>Loose piece of linen, detached.

<sup>h</sup>No. 143.

<sup>a</sup>Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem, son of Menkheperre, made for his mistress, Mut, year 7 of King Siamon.

<sup>b</sup>————— Mut, year 8 of King Siamon.

<sup>c</sup>Linen which the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, son of Menkheperre, made for his lord, Amon, in the year 10.

---

RECORDS ON THE ROYAL MUMMIES

664. These rough notes, hurriedly recorded on the royal mummies, offer graphic testimony to the insecurity of the times at Thebes.

In Paynozem II's time, though his name is not mentioned in the records on the coffins, the bodies of Ramses II and Ramses I, which had been removed to the tomb of Seti I, as well as that of Seti I himself, were again transferred and deposited for safety in the tomb of Queen Inhapi. This was done in the sixteenth year of the Tanite king Siamon.

Coffin of Ramses II

665. <sup>d</sup>Year 16, fourth month of the second season, day 17, day of bringing King Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II), the Great God, out from the tomb of King Menmare-Seti-Merneptah (Seti I), in order to bring him into the tomb (k<sup>3</sup> y) of (Queen) Inhapi which is (in) the "Great Place,"<sup>e</sup> by the hand of the prophet of Amon-Re, king of gods, Enkhofnamon, son of Beki; the divine father of Amon-Re, king of gods, third prophet of "Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest,"<sup>f</sup> scribe of the administration of the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, servant of

---

<sup>a</sup>No. 16. Another piece from the Amon-temple bears the same year without the king's name.

<sup>b</sup>No. 134. The lost beginning was, of course, like the preceding.

<sup>c</sup>No. 134.

<sup>d</sup>On the lid of the coffin; op. cit., 558.

<sup>e</sup>A particular part of the necropolis.

<sup>f</sup>Njr htp, which Maspero reads as the man's name; but this phrase is the usual one after Thebes in Khonsu's-title, and the determinative is the divine person in all three texts. Hence, however long the man's titles, they do not stop here.

“The-House-of-King-Usermare-Setepnere (Ramses II)-in-the-House-of-Amon,” chief treasurer of the necropolis, Merithoth; the scribe, and chief inspector, Nesupekeshuti, son of Beknekhonsu; after Mut, the guardian goddess of the Great Place, had said:

“That which is in good condition before me, no harm shall befall it, through my<sup>a</sup> bringing them (sic!) out from the tomb in which they rest, and they shall be taken into the tomb (kʿ y) of (Queen) Inhapi, which is in the ‘Great Place,’ wherein King Amenhotep rests.”

Coffin of Seti I

666. <sup>b</sup>Year 16, fourth month of the second season, day 17, of King Siamon, the day of bringing King Menmare-Seti (I)-Merneptah, L. P. H., out from his tomb, in order to bring him into the tomb (kʿ y) of Inhapi, which is (in) the “Great Place;” by the hand of, etc. . . .

Here follows a list of the same men as on the coffins of Ramses I and Ramses II (q. v.).

Coffin of Ramses I

667. <sup>c</sup>[Year 16, fourth month of the second season, day 17<sup>d</sup>] of King Siamon, [day of bringing King Men]pehti[re] (Ramses I) out from the [tomb of King Menmare]-Seti (II)-Merneptah, <sup>e</sup>in order to<sup>1</sup> [bring him into the tomb (kʿ y) of Inhapi, which is in the “Great Place,” wherein King Amenhotep rests; by the hand of the prophet of Amon-[Re, king of] gods, Enkhofnamon, son of Beki, etc.

Here follows the same list of men as on Seti I’s and Ramses II’s coffins.

RECORD OF PAYNOZEM II’S BURIAL

668. I have included the preceding documents under the high priesthood of Paynozem II, although he was evidently lying dead in the hands of the embalmers when they were written; for three days later he was buried in the rough

<sup>a</sup>Or: “their.”

<sup>b</sup>On the lid of the coffin; op. cit., Pl. XII.

<sup>c</sup>On the lid of the coffin; op. cit., Pl. X A; 551.

<sup>d</sup>Maspero’s restoration (op. cit., 551), giving the first season and the thirteenth day, must be an inadvertence; the parallel texts have it as above.

receptacle excavated in the cliffs of Der el-Bahri, which had served as the tomb of Amenhotep I. The place was sealed up, and the following record was written with the pen on the doorpost by one of the accompanying scribes. The date of year 16 is the highest which we have from the reign of the Tanite Siamon.

<sup>a1</sup>Year 16, fourth month of the second season, day 20, day of the burial <sup>2</sup>of the Osiris, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, governor [of the city]<sup>b</sup> and vizier, prince and leader [—], Paynozem <sup>3</sup>by the divine father of Amon, overseer of the White House, Zekhonsefonekh; the divine father of Amon, scribe of the vizier, the inspector, Nesupekeshuti; the [—] of Amon — — — —; <sup>4</sup>the divine father of Amon, Wennofer; the king's-scribe of the Theban necropolis (ys't-m<sup>2</sup>c't), Bek; the chief of workmen, Pediamon.

<sup>c</sup>Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Paynozem II [son of] Menkheperre, made for [his] lord, Khonsu, in the year 9.

STELA OF THE "GREAT CHIEF OF ME," SHESHONK<sup>d</sup>

669. In this document we gain our first glimpse of the Libyan ancestors of the great family of the Twenty-second Dynasty. Sheshonk, the grandfather<sup>e</sup> of Sheshonk I, the

<sup>a</sup>On the left doorpost, at the bottom of the Der el-Bahri shaft; Maspero, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1882, 134; better, Momies royales, 523.

<sup>b</sup>Omitted, either in the publication or by the ancient scribe.

<sup>c</sup>On wrappings of the mummy; op. cit., 572. The same records for years 1, 3, and 7 were found on the wrappings.

<sup>d</sup>A red granite stela, 1.20 by 1.50 m., found by Mariette "southward from the western entrance gate of the Kum-es-Sultan in Abydos" (Brugsch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1871, 85 f.). He states that it was left by him in situ, although Wiedemann (Wiedemann, Ägyptische Geschichte, 543), places it in the Boulak Museum ("Salle historique de l'est, No. 93"), and seems to have copied it. Published by Mariette, Abydos, II, 36, 37; Mariette, Catalogue général d'Abydos, No. 1225. The upper portion is wanting, and an unknown amount of the inscription is lost. The copy of Mariette is very incomplete and inaccurate; a better copy was impossible, as the present location of the stone is unknown.

<sup>e</sup>See the long genealogy on the Serapeum stela, § 787, where the Sheshonk, with his wife Mehetnusekhet, is unquestionably the Sheshonk of our inscription, whose wife is also Mehetnusekhet.

first king of the Twenty-second Dynasty, was a powerful chief of the Meshwesh<sup>a</sup> who had achieved place and influence in Egypt. His great-grandfather, Musen, had gained control at Heracleopolis (§ 787, No. 2), and five generations later the family had seized the throne, as the Twenty-second Dynasty. The family retained their old native titles or an Egyptian rendering of them, but our Sheshonk was so thoroughly Egyptianized that he buried his deceased son, Namlot, in Abydos, with all the accompaniments of Egyptian mortuary belief. He later found that the officials in charge of his son's mortuary endowment had been appropriating the income. He went to Thebes, under the jurisdiction of which the crime fell, and from some unnamed king, who must have been either Amenemopet or Siamon, he obtained redress. The case, like all other matters of the kind in this period, was carried before Amon, and the stela, of which the first lines are lost, begins the middle of an address to the god by the king. As it continues, the god renders an oracle condemning the guilty officials to death. Sheshonk then conveyed his son's statue to Abydos, where full record of his son's mortuary endowment was entered in the temple archives, with their value in silver, furnishing useful data for determining the ancient values of various property in modern standards.<sup>b</sup>

670. The decree of Amon in this criminal case is of the greatest interest, and characteristic of the time. The case of those banished to the oasis, who are pardoned by the god at the High Priest Menkheperre's request (§§ 650-58), is more or less political, but such is not the character of this case. A similar case, also under the high priesthood of

---

<sup>a</sup>Abbreviated, as frequently in the inscriptions of this time, to Me.

<sup>b</sup>The data from our document have never been so employed; see Spiegelberg, Rechnungen, Text, 87 ff., for the data from the earlier documents.

Paynozem II, is that of certain temple officials who were slain for dishonesty in the temple accounts. Recorded with it is the remarkable acquittal of a certain major-domo named Thutmose, the method of whose trial is sufficiently evident from the following translation,<sup>a</sup> without further explanation.

Appearance of Amon

671. ———<sup>b</sup> <sup>1</sup>On this day in the house of Amon-Re, king of gods, on the sixth day of the month, appeared the august god, <sup>2</sup>the lord of gods, Amon-Re, king of gods; Mut the great, mistress of Ishru; and “Khonsu-in-<sup>3</sup>Thebes-Beautiful-Rest;” on the silver pavement of the house of Amon — —. The High Priest of Amon-Re, <sup>4</sup>king of gods commander in chief of the army, Paynozem, triumphant, son of Men-[kheper]re [triumphant], took counsel of the affairs of <sup>5</sup>this land, before the great god.

Condemnation of the Guilty

In the second month, on the sixth day, — the great god <sup>6</sup>who is far from injustice, had not (yet) been taken up to Opet at [the Feast of] <sup>7</sup>Opet in this year. <sup>7</sup>Lo, this great god determined [that] which the scribes, <sup>8</sup>inspectors and administrators had done, who committed <sup>9</sup>fraudulent acts in Thebes, his city. <sup>10</sup>Then the great god condemned the scribes, <sup>11</sup>inspectors, and administrators, because of the acts of <sup>12</sup>fraud which they had committed.

The Two Writings

672. This great god appeared upon the pavement of silver in the house of Amon at the morning hour. The High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, triumphant, came <sup>13</sup>before this great god.

<sup>a</sup>This inscription, of which only the first part is translated above, was found on one of the southern pylons at Karnak in Maspero's excavations there in 1881. It was published and treated by Naville, Inscriptions historiques de Pinodjem III (our Paynozem II), Paris, 1883. See Maspero, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1882, 135.

<sup>b</sup>Naville numbers this line 1; at least one line, containing the date, is lost before it. In the long inscription below it, oracles of the god in the years 2 (ll. 8 and 10), 3 (l. 12), and 5 (l. 13) are recorded; hence this date will not be less than year 5.

<sup>c</sup>So also Naville; this was not long before the beginning of the Feast of Opet (see note on Papyrus Harris, § 237).

This great god saluted violently. He placed two tablets of writing before the great god; one writing said: <sup>14</sup>“O Amon-Re, king of gods, my good lord; it is said that there are matters which should be investigated<sup>a</sup> in the case of Thutmose, triumphant, son of Suidiamon (Swdy-Ymn), triumphant, the major-domo;” the other writing [said: “O Amon-Re, king of gods], my good lord; it is said that there are no matters which should <sup>16</sup>be investigated in the case of Thutmose, triumphant, the son of Suidiamon, triumphant, the major-domo.” The [High Priest] of Amon-Re, king of gods, Paynozem, triumphant, repeated before this great god, saying: “O <sup>17</sup>my good lord, thou shalt judge — — —, thou prosperest beyond all wonders.” [The] great god saluted violently.

The Acquittal

673. <sup>18</sup>These two tablets of writing were placed before the [great god]. The great god took the writing<sup>b</sup> which said: “O Amon-Re, my good lord; <sup>19</sup>it is said that there are no matters [which should] be investigated in the case of Thutmose, triumphant, son of Suidiamon, triumphant, the major-domo.” The great god <sup>20</sup>[rejected] the other writing which said: “O Amon-Re, king of gods], my good lord; it is said that there are matters which should be investigated in the case of <sup>21</sup>[Thutmose, triumphant, son of Suidiamon, triumphant, the major-domo.]”

[Then the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, went again] to this great, great god, to put his two tablets of writing the second time before the great god. [The great god<sup>c</sup>] took <sup>22</sup>[the same writing as before] ————. They bore witness, saying: “There are no matters which should be investigated <sup>23</sup>[in the case of Thutmose, triumphant, son of Suidiamon, triumphant, the<sup>d</sup>] major-domo.”<sup>e</sup>

674. The legal functions assumed by Amon at this period will be sufficiently illustrated by this and the following ex-

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “which should be sought for with Thutmose.”

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “the one writing.”

<sup>c</sup>Omitted by the ancient scribe or in the publication.

<sup>d</sup>These words hardly fill the lacuna.

<sup>e</sup>Some 8 lines are here lost; below these follows a long series of legal decisions by Amon, which lead to the acquittal above recounted.

ample. Even the wills and the property conveyances of the numerous relatives of the high priests are issued as oracles and decrees of the god. They form a remarkable class of legal documents by themselves, which will be treated later in this series.<sup>a</sup> We can understand, therefore, why the case of the Libyan chief Sheshonk was brought by the king before Amon. It is as follows:

Speech to Amon

675. "———<sup>b</sup>great chief of chiefs, Sheshonk, triumphant, his<sup>c</sup> son in the glorious place by his father, Osiris, that he might<sup>1</sup> lay his beauty to rest<sup>1</sup> in the city of Abydos (Nj-wr), over against ——. Thou wilt let him survive to attain old age, while his heart<sup>2</sup> — — —<sup>1</sup>. Thou wilt let him join the feasts of his majesty, receiving full victory." This great god saluted exceedingly.

Amon Condemns the Thieves

676. Then his majesty spake again before this great god: "O my great lord, thou shalt slay the <sup>3</sup>—<sup>1</sup>,<sup>d</sup> the administrator, the scribe, the inspector, every one who was sent on any commission to the field, of those who stole of his things<sup>1</sup> from the offering-table of the Osiris, the great chief of Me, Namlot, triumphant, son of Mehetnusekhet, who is in Abydos; <sup>4</sup>all the people who plundered from his divine offerings, his people, his cattle, his garden, his every oblation and all his excellent things. Thou wilt do according to thy great spirit throughout; fill them up and fill up (the number of) the women <sup>5</sup>and their children." The great god saluted exceedingly.

Final Prayer to Amon

677. His majesty smelled the earth before him; his majesty said; "Make to triumph, Sheshonk, triumphant, the great chief of Me, chief

<sup>a</sup>In the volume devoted to legal documents.

<sup>b</sup>In the lost portion of uncertain length preceding this, there was doubtless some verb of which Sheshonk was the subject and "his son" the object.

<sup>c</sup>This shows that the Sheshonk of the inscription is the father, not the son, of Namlot, as Wiedemann concludes (Wiedemann, Aegyptische Geschichte, 543, 544).

<sup>d</sup>A military officer.

of chiefs, the great [—], and all who are [before thee], <sup>6</sup>all the troops ———.” [Said to] him, Amon-Re, king of gods: “[—] I will do [—] for thee, thou shalt attain old age, abiding on earth; thy heir shall be upon thy throne forever.”

Statue of Namlot Sent to Abydos

678. His majesty sent the statue of Osiris, the great chief of <sup>7</sup>Me, great chief of chiefs, Namlot, triumphant, northward to Abydos. There were — — — — a great army, in order to protect it, having [numerous] ships, — — without number, and the messengers of the great chief of Me, in order to deposit<sup>a</sup> it in the august palace, <sup>8</sup>the sanctuary of the right eye of the sun, in order to make his offerings belonging in Abydos, according to the stipulations for making his offerings, incense [— —] in the hall of petition.

Records of Endowment

679. His contract was recorded <sup>9</sup>in the hall of writings,<sup>b</sup> according to that which the lord of gods (Amon) had said. A stela was erected for him of granite of Elephantine,<sup>c</sup> bearing the decree — in his name, in order to deposit it in the divine sanctuary to the end of eternity, (even) forever. Then was established the offering-table of Osiris, the great chief of Me, <sup>10</sup>Namlot, triumphant, son of Mehetnusekhet, who is in Abydos.

People of Endowment

680. There were brought the [people] of the — of the great chief of Me, who came with the statue: a Syrian servant (named) Ikhamon [—],<sup>d</sup> <sup>11</sup>a Syrian (named) Ekptah; [the price of the first] was 14 deben of silver; his majesty gave [for the second] 20 deben of silver; total, 35<sup>e</sup> deben of silver, the tale thereof.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “cause it to rest.”

<sup>b</sup>Temple archives.

<sup>c</sup>Only one letter (b) of this word (ḥbw) with the determinative, is preserved, but as the stela is of red Elephantine granite, there can be no doubt of the rendering. Brugsch's “in der Schrift des Landes Ba[bel]” is pure imagination. The text has: “of stone of — b —” (foreign determinative). Wiedemann reads “Ba-sut” (adding “so ist auf dem monumente zu lesen”), and says the material is porphyry (Wiedemann, Aegyptische Geschichte, 544).

<sup>d</sup>The end of the name is uncertain.

<sup>e</sup>The first number is doubtless misread by Mariette. These two numbers, making a total of 35, must be the prices of the two slaves.

Lands of Endowment

681. That which was paid for 50 stat (of land) which are in the high district south of Abydos, called, "Eternity-<sup>12</sup>of-the-Kingdom:" 5<sup>a</sup> deben of silver.

That which is in [— —] of the pool which is in Abydos, (viz.,) 50 stat of land; amounting to 5 deben of silver.

Total of citizen-lands [—] two places being: the high district south of Abydos, and the high district <sup>13</sup>north of Abydos: 100 [stat], amounting to 10 deben of silver.

List of Men

682. His [slave], Pewer, son of —f; his slave, Ebek<sup>b</sup> (<sup>2</sup>-bk); his slave, Bupenamunkha (Bw-pn-Ymn-h<sup>2c</sup>); his slave, Neshenumeh (N<sup>2</sup> y-šnw-mh);<sup>c</sup> his slave, Dene (Dn<sup>2</sup>); total <sup>14</sup>of slaves: 6; amounting (fat) 3<sup>1</sup> deben, 1 kidet of silver [for each], to 1[8] deben [6 kidet] of silver.

Children

The child of — — son of Harsiese, triumphant; amounting to 4<sup>2</sup> kidet of silver.

Garden

The garden which is in the high district [—]<sup>d</sup> of Abydos, amounting to 2 deben of silver.

Gardeners

The gardener, Harmose, triumphant, son of Pen —; <sup>15</sup>amounting to —<sup>2</sup> kidet of silver; Pene —, triumphant, his —, Harnepe—r—, triumphant, [amounting to] 6<sup>2</sup> kidet of silver.

Men and Women

[—] Nesitetat, triumphant, whose mother is Tedimut, the female slave, Tediese, daughter of Nebethapi; her mother, Ero — <sup>16</sup>ekh; [the female slave], [Tepiramenef], daughter of Paynehsi, triumphant;

<sup>a</sup>Mariette has 6, but Brugsch has 5 (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1871, 86), which is in agreement with the second 50 stat for 5 deben of silver; 10 stat (=6<sup>2</sup> acres) of land were thus worth 1 deben (1,404 grains) of silver.

<sup>b</sup>Brugsch: "Ari-bek."

<sup>c</sup>Meaning: "The Full Trees."

<sup>d</sup>Brugsch: "north."

———— for each one;  $5\frac{2}{3}$  kidet of silver being the price of the man; amounting to  $3\frac{2}{3}$  deben.<sup>a</sup>

List of Supplies

683. Honey; [an expenditure amounting to — deben of silver]<sup>b</sup> payable to the treasury, for a hin of honey issued from the treasury <sup>17</sup>of Osiris [for the divine offerings of Osiris], the [great] chief [of Me], great chief [of chiefs, Namlot], son of the [great] chief of [Me, Sheshonk] — — — — —. The money therefor has been made payable to the treasury of Osiris, no more, no less.

684. Incense; <sup>18</sup>[an expenditure amounting to] 4 deben of silver, payable to the treasury of Osiris, for 4 kidet of incense, issued from the treasury of Osiris daily, for the divine offerings of Osiris, the great chief of Me, Namlot, triumphant, whose mother is Mehetnusekhet, forever and ever <sup>19</sup>[from that which is issued from] the — — incense. The money therefor is payable to the treasury of Osiris, no more, no less.

685. Myrrh; [an expenditure] amounting to  $5\frac{2}{3}$  kidet of silver, payable to the treasury of Osiris, for <sup>20</sup> $\frac{2}{3}$  kidet of [myrrh], issued from the treasury of Osiris daily, for the censer of Osiris, the great chief of Me, Namlot, triumphant, whose mother is Mehetnusekhet, forever and ever; from that which is issued, of the myrrh — —. The money therefor has been made payable to the treasury of Osiris, no more, <sup>21</sup>[no less].

686. [Grain] — — per man — — per man, an expenditure amounting to <sup>1</sup> $3\frac{1}{3}$  kidet of silver — with 1 kidet of silver, payable to the treasury of Osiris, for this grain of the field<sup>c</sup> that is issued daily from — — — — — <sup>22</sup>[from] the treasury of Osiris and the — of Osiris, for the altar of Osiris; the great chief of Me, Namlot, triumphant, whose mother is Mehetnusekhet, forever and ever; from the impost of the — — of the cake-baking <sup>1</sup>—1. The money therefor is made payable to the treasury of Osiris, <sup>23</sup>the treasury of the grain of the field <sup>1</sup>— —1. [The money therefor is payable to the treasury<sup>1</sup>] of Osiris — —, no more, no less.

<sup>a</sup>I am uncertain whether this total is to be connected with the preceding or the following paragraph. It is similar in form to the beginnings of the following paragraphs. There is evident confusion in the copy, and probably an omission.

<sup>b</sup>This is the formula which should introduce this paragraph; but see preceding note.

<sup>c</sup>See l. 23.

Summary

687. Total of the silver of these people, which is payable to the treasury of Osiris <sup>24</sup>— — — — 13<sup>a</sup> men ——— issued from — — to the [—] of Osiris, the great chief of Me, chief of chiefs, Namlot, triumphant, son of Sheshonk, triumphant, whose mother is Mehetnusekhet; in order to give <sup>25</sup>— — — — to Osiris, the great chief of Me, Namlot, triumphant, son of Mehetnusekhet, who is in Abydos:

Lands	100 stat
Men and women	25
Garden	1
Silver	100 <sup>b</sup> [deben]

Abydos ———.

<sup>a</sup>The number is not certain.

<sup>b</sup>And probably more, but how much is uncertain.

HIGH PRIESTHOOD OF PESIBKHENNO

RECORDS ON MUMMY-WRAPPINGS

688. We have no records of this High Priest beyond the usual note on the temple linen used in swathing the bodies of the Amon priests found in 1891. These show that he was a son of Paynozem II, and that he was in office at least from the year 4 to the year 12 of a king who must be Pesibkhenno II, under whose predecessor, Siamon, he must have succeeded his father, on the latter's death in Siamon's sixteenth year (§ 668).

<sup>a</sup>Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Pesibkhenno, son of Paynozem (II), made for his lord, Amon, in the year 4.

Linen which the High Priest of Amon, Pesibkhenno, son of Paynozem (II), made for his lord, Amon, in the year 12.

---

BURIAL OF NESIKHONSU

689. Nesikhonsu, wife of Paynozem II, died in the fifth year of a king, who must be Pesibkhenno II of Tanis. Her husband's tomb, originally that of Amenhotep I, was opened, and she was likewise buried there. When the door was sealed again, one of the scribes recorded the burial on the doorpost. It contains the names of some of the same officials who had buried her husband, not less than five years before.

---

<sup>a</sup>Mummy No. 17 of the cache of priests' mummies discovered at Der el-Bahri in 1891; published by Daressy (Revue archéologique, 28, p. 6 (of the tirage à part)).

Nesikhonsu

<sup>a1</sup>Year 5, fourth month of the third season (twelfth month), day 21, <sup>2</sup>day of the burial of the chief of favorites, Nesikhonsu, <sup>3</sup>by the divine father of Amon, overseer of the White House, Zekhonsafonekh, <sup>4</sup>together with <sup>1b</sup>Paynozem, <sup>4</sup>the prophet of Amon-Re, king of gods, Enkhofamon (<sup>c</sup> nh·j·Ymn); <sup>5</sup>————— Nesipai — —; <sup>6</sup>the divine father of Amon, the chief treasurer, Nesupekeshuti (Ns-sw-p<sup>2</sup>-k<sup>2</sup>-swty). The seals which are upon <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> of this place <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup>; <sup>c</sup> the seals of the overseer of the White House, Zekhonsafonekh; the seals of the scribe of the White House, Nesu—————.

RECORDS ON THE ROYAL MUMMIES

690. With these two records the history of the royal mummies in ancient times, so far as we know it, closes. The bodies of Seti I and Ramses II were taken from the tomb of Queen Inhapi in the tenth year of Pesibkhenno II, and deposited in the great cache at Der el-Bahri, in the tomb of Amenhotep I, where Nesikhonsu had been buried five years earlier. In all probability the other royal mummies were brought to the same place at this time also. The door was sealed up for the last time, not earlier than the eleventh year of Sheshonk I (§ 699); the shaft leading to it was soon filled with detritus from the cliffs above, and all knowledge of the place was lost. Thus the great kings of Egypt at last found undisturbed rest for three thousand years. Then, some time in the early seventies of last century, they were discovered by the native tomb-robbers of modern Thebes, the descendants of those who were prosecuted under Ramses IX and X (§§ 499 ff.) Under pressure of much the same legal methods as those employed by their ancestors, not forgetting the bastinade, they finally revealed the place which they had been plundering, and the ancient rulers of Egypt were, in 1881, again brought to the light of day.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>At the bottom of the entrance shaft leading to the great cache of royal mummies, on the right door-jamb; it is written in ink in hieratic; Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1882, 134; better, Momies royales, 520.

<sup>b</sup>Or: "son of."

<sup>c</sup>Maspero reads the numeral 40 here, but this seems to me improbable. He found fragments of these seals among the rubbish around the door, and among them one with the title "High Priest of Amon" in a cartouche.

Coffin of Seti I

691. <sup>b</sup>Year 10, fourth month of the second season, day 20, the day of bringing in the god into his place, in order to cause him to rest [in] the eternal house of Amenhotep<sup>c</sup> — — — —; by the hand of the divine father of Amon, overseer of the White House, Zekhons-efonekh; divine father of Amon, [—]; divine father of Amon, third prophet of Khonsu —.

Coffin of Ramses II

692. <sup>d</sup>Year 10, fourth month of the second season, day 20, day of bringing in the god into his place, to cause him to rest in the eternal house of Amenhotep, the [— of Amon], in life, prosperity, and health; by the hand of the divine father of Amon, overseer of the White House, Zekhonsefonekh; the divine father of Amon, third prophet of [Khonsu],<sup>e</sup> Efnamon, son of Nesupekeshuti; the divine father of Amon, Wennofer, son of Mentem[wese]; the divine father of Amon, —.

<sup>a</sup>On the discovery and rescue of the royal mummies, see Maspero, Momies royales, 511, 516.

<sup>b</sup>On the lid of the coffin; op. cit., 554, and Pl. XII.

<sup>c</sup>This can hardly be anything else than the tomb of Amenhotep I; on the construction of the whole place, see Maspero, op. cit., 517, 518.

<sup>d</sup>On the lid of the coffin; op. cit. 559.

<sup>e</sup>From duplicate; text has f.

THE TWENTY-SECOND DYNASTY

RECORDS OF NILE-LEVELS AT KARNAK<sup>a</sup>

693. These records are of primary importance in the history of the Nile and its inundations. Further than this, the records of successive reigns furnish valuable data for the chronology and history of the dark period from the Twenty-second to the Twenty-sixth Dynasty.<sup>b</sup> From these and other contemporary documents, especially the Apis stelæ, the Twenty-second Dynasty may now be reconstructed as follows:

Sheshonk I	21 <sup>c</sup> years (+x)
Osorkon I	36 <sup>d</sup> “ “
Takelot I	23 <sup>e</sup> “ “
Osorkon II	30 <sup>f</sup> “ “
Sheshonk II	∞ “ “

(Died during coregency with Osorkon II)

---

<sup>a</sup>Engraved on the quai of the great Karnak temple; published by Legrain, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1896, 111 ff. Unfortunately, Legrain says nothing about the order in which the records are arranged. When I have rearranged to introduce chronological sequence, I have added Legrain's number in parenthesis.

<sup>b</sup>For convenience, the records of the other dynasties have not been added here. They will be found in their chronological places later.

<sup>c</sup>§ 706.

<sup>d</sup>Petrie, History, III, 241.

<sup>e</sup>§ 695, No. 4; has year 6; the next higher known date is year 7 (Recueil, XVIII, 5=Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 258, c); but he would have reigned at least 8 years for his son, Osorkon II, celebrated his 30-years' jubilee in his twenty-second year. But Daressy has perceived that a stela at Florence (Catalogue, No. 1806; see Recueil, XV, 174, 175), dated in the year 23, belongs to Takelot I. Legrain's omission of a Takelot at this point in the dynasty (Recueil, 27, 76) is, of course, an error, as shown by the genealogy of Harpeson (§ 792).

<sup>f</sup>§ 696, No. 15. The High Priest Harsiese, son of the High Priest Sheshonk, and grandson of Osorkon I (§ 739), assumed royal honors as vassal king under Osorkon II (Legrain, Recueil, 27, 76). He must have died or been supplanted when Sheshonk II was made coregent.

Takelot II	25 <sup>a</sup> years (+x)
(Seven years, coregency with Osorkon II)
Sheshonk III	52 <sup>b</sup> years
Pemou <sup>c</sup>	6 <sup>d</sup> " (+x)
Sheshonk IV	37 <sup>e</sup> " "
Total	230 years (+6x) or deducting 30 years of possible coregencies,<sup>f</sup> the total is 200 + 6x years.

694. The dynasty thus reigned not less than 200 years in round numbers. But it should be noted that between the twenty-first year of Sheshonk I and the eleventh year of Takelot II, or a period of 93 years according to the above table, there ruled seven high priests of Amon. This is giving about 13 years to each, and would indicate that the table is within the truth for this period. The second half of the dynasty is nearly certain as to length; the period from the accession of Sheshonk III to that of Pemou is exactly known, and the uncertainty chiefly concerns the last two kings, especially Pemou. It should be noted that from the reign of Osorkon II (probably toward its end), to the year 37 of Sheshonk IV, there were six generations of high priests at Heracleopolis (§ 787, Nos.

<sup>a</sup>§ 755. There is no year 29 of Takelot II as given by Maspero (Empires, 165, note 2); the year 29 belongs to Sheshonk III, as correctly seen by Maspero formerly (Momies royales, 741).

<sup>b</sup>§ 778.

<sup>c</sup>This name means "the cat," as is shown by the determinative of a cat in the case of a private individual (e. g., Ser. stela No. 276, noticed by Lepsius, Zwei- undzwanzigste Dynastie, 290, although transliterated: Pexi). Hence I give it the vowels of the Coptic form, rather than perpetuate the impossible forms: Pimai, Paymi, Pimi, etc.

<sup>d</sup>§ 698, No. 24; not quite certain

<sup>e</sup>§ 791.

<sup>f</sup>Petrie, History, III, 227.

11-16), who thus correspond to four generations of kings. The reigns of Pemou and Sheshonk IV, especially the former, may thus have been much longer, notwithstanding the long reign of Sheshonk III. The descent from father to son is certain from the beginning, only down to and including Takelot II.

The omission in the publication of all indication of the relative positions of the following records on the wall, precludes some of the important conclusions which might otherwise be drawn from them:

Reign of Sheshonk I

695. 1. (3) The Nile. Year 5 of King Sheshonk I.<sup>a</sup>
2. (1) The Nile. Year 6 of King Sheshonk I.<sup>a</sup>

Reign of Osorkon I

3. (2) The Nile. Year 12 of King Osorkon I.

Reign of Takelot I

4. The Nile. Year 6 of King Takelot I; his mother, Tentsey (Tnt-s<sup>3</sup> y).

Reign of Osorkon II

696. 5. The Nile. Year 3<sup>b</sup> of King Osorkon II; his mother, the Great King's-Wife ——— (cartouche).
6. The Nile. Year 5 of King Osorkon II; his mother, Great King's-Wife, Keromem (Mr-Mw' t-K<sup>3</sup>-m<sup>3</sup>-m<sup>3</sup> sic!).
7. Same, year 6.
8. The Nile. Year 12<sup>c</sup> of King Osorkon II.
9. The Nile. Year 12 (sic!)<sup>c</sup> of King Osorkon II.
10. The Nile. Year [11]<sub>3</sub> of King Osorkon II.
11. The Nile. Year 20 of King Osorkon II.

<sup>a</sup>This name is out of place as published, as it follows Osorkon I; it may also be Takelot II, who would also be out of place.

<sup>b</sup>This is the year of the high water recorded at Luxor (§§ 742-744); it was 62 cm. deep on the temple pavement at Luxor.

<sup>c</sup>At different levels.

697. 12. The Nile. Year 22 of King Osorkon II.
 13. The Nile. Year 28 of King Osorkon II, the god, ruler of Thebes; which is the year 5<sup>f</sup> of his<sup>1a</sup> son Takelot (II), the god, ruler of Thebes, living forever.
 14. The Nile. Year 29 of King Osorkon II.
 15. [The Nile. Year 30 (+x) of King] Osorkon II.<sup>b</sup>

Reign of Sheshonk III

698. 16. (23) The Nile. Year 6 of King Usermare-Setepnamon, Son of Re, Meriamon-Sheshonk (III). Time of the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Harsiese.<sup>c</sup>
 17. (22) The Nile. Year 39 of King Sheshonk III. Time of the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Osorkon.

Reign of Pemou?

18. (24) The Nile. Year 12,<sup>d</sup> which is year 6 of King Usermare-

<sup>a</sup>Reading the n as a genitive and the f as a possessive. It can hardly be doubted that Takelot II was the son of Osorkon II. The ephemeral reign of Osorkon II's son Sheshonk (II) was thus a coregency with the father, followed, on Sheshonk II's death, by a second coregency of the father (Osorkon II) and the deceased Sheshonk II's brother, Takelot II, which perhaps lasted at least 7 years (No. 15).

<sup>b</sup>The traces that remain make the name of Osorkon II certain. The year is, of course, not less than 30, if Legrain's arrangement be correct.

<sup>c</sup>We know that Takelot II's son, Osorkon, was High Priest of Amon in the years 11, 12, and 15 of Takelot II, and 22, 26, 28, 29, and 39 of Sheshonk III (§§ 756 ff.). Hence the High Priest Harsiese must have displaced Osorkon for a time, as explained below (§ 758). The occurrence of a Harsiese in the sixth year of Pemou (No. 24) is uncertain. If accepted, it must either be another Harsiese, or his term was interrupted at least from the year 22 to the year 39 of Sheshonk III.

<sup>d</sup>This cannot be a year of Sheshonk III, as it would involve a coregency with Pemou of some 46 years; nor can it be year 12 of the High Priest Harsiese, if he be the same as the Harsiese of Sheshonk III's sixth year (No. 22). Hence I am inclined to doubt the reading of Harsiese here which Legrain himself questions. If, however, we accept it, then there must be another king between Sheshonk III and Pemou—the Sheshonk with the new prenomen, of No. 25? This would not increase the length of the dynasty, as we know from the Apis stela (§ 778) that there were 26 years from the twenty-eighth year of Sheshonk III to the second year of Pemou. Thus, according to No. 25, the new Sheshonk would have reigned at least 6 years, and the Sheshonk III not more than 46 years (the highest recorded date of Sheshonk III is year 39, § 777); or if No. 24 belongs to the new Sheshonk, he reigned at least 12 years, and Sheshonk III not more than 40 years

Setepnamon, Meriamon-Siese-<sup>f</sup>Pemou<sup>1a</sup> High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, <sup>f</sup>Harsiese<sup>1</sup>.

Reign of Sheshonk IV?

19. (25) The Nile. Year 6 of King Usermare-Meriamon, Son of Re, Meriamon-Sheshonk (<sup>f</sup>IV<sup>1</sup>).<sup>b</sup> Time of the High Priest of Amon, Takehot.

---

<sup>a</sup>Legrain is not certain of this name; the prenomen agrees, but unfortunately coincides with one form (No. 22) of Sheshonk III's prenomen. If Harsiese were certain, Wreszinski's remark (Die Hohenpriester des Amon, p. 35, note) would prove the king to be Pemou.

<sup>b</sup>If this name be considered a variant of Sheshonk III, we then have two Niles of the year 6, of very different levels, with two different high priests! We are therefore certainly dealing with a Sheshonk to be distinguished from Sheshonk III. His name differs greatly from that of Sheshonk IV.

REIGN OF SHESHONK I

RECORDS ON MUMMY-BANDAGES OF ZEPTAHEFONEKH<sup>a</sup>

699. The Der el-Bahri cache of royal mummies was opened for the last time, in so far as we know, not earlier than the year 11 of Sheshonk I, to insert the body of the “third prophet of Amon, chief of a district (<sup>c</sup> -n-k <sup>c</sup> h<sup>b</sup>), king's-son of Ramses, Zeptahefonekh.” The dedications on the temple linen, used for his bandages, are of importance, as they show that Sheshonk I was in control at Thebes in his fifth year, when he had already installed his son Yewepet as High Priest of Amon, thus at last interrupting the hereditary succession to that office, and securing the control of the priestly principality of Thebes for his own family.

700. Fine linen which the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Kheperhezre-Setepnere; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems, Meriamon-Sheshonk I, made for his father, Amon, year 10. Fine linen which the High Priest of Amon-Re, commander in chief of the army, Yewepet, triumphant, king's-son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Sheshonk (I), made for his father, Amon, year 10.

Another bandage has the same inscription of year 11 and a third of the year 5.<sup>c</sup>

---

BUILDING INSCRIPTION<sup>d</sup>

701. The great temple at Karnak had received no essential additions since the close of the Nineteenth Dynasty, the Ramessids of the Twentieth, and the priests of the Twenty-

---

<sup>a</sup>Maspero, Mummies royales, 573.

<sup>b</sup>Doubtless miscopied in the publication.

<sup>c</sup>The name of the High Priest is lost; but as it was introduced by exactly the same formula, it is undoubtedly also to be attributed to Yewepet.

<sup>d</sup>Cut in the walls of the sandstone quarry at Silsileh; published by Champollion, first Dynasty having given their attention to the temple of Khonsu. Sheshonk I, when he had ruled twenty years and firmly established his dynasty, determined to adorn the Karnak temple with a worthy memorial of his family. He therefore built a triumphal gate between the small Amon-temple of Ramses III and the then front of the Karnak temple, the present second pylon. It formed a westward extension of the south wall of the great hypostyle hall, and it covered up historical reliefs of Ramses II on the west end of that wall, as well as on the south end of the second pylon, which are still covered. This gate, commonly called the Bubastite gate, bears the records of the Bubastite family in Thebes. It immediately received the triumphal relief commemorating Sheshonk I's campaign in Palestine (§§ 709 ff.), and the high-priestly sons of the dynasty recorded their temple annals upon it. The designation of Sheshonk I's projected building in the Silsileh inscription (§ 707) is such as to show clearly that he planned also the entire first court at Karnak, including the first pylon before it.<sup>a</sup>

702. The priestly chief of works, Haremsaf, whom Sheshonk dispatched to Silsileh to procure the stone for the new gate, left in the quarry a stela recording his work there, and its purpose. While the king is credited with the initiation of the enterprise, his son Yewepet, High Priest of Amon, is given almost as prominent a place on the stela as the king himself; while his titles increase the impression that he enjoyed the power of a semi-independent ruler of Upper Egypt. At the top is the king led by Mut into the presence

Monuments, II, 122 bis; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 254, c, and partially Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1242. I had also a collation of the Berlin squeeze, by Mr. Alan Gardiner, which he kindly placed at my disposal. From this I published the building portion (§ 706) of the inscription, in the American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literatures, XXI, 24.

<sup>a</sup>See my remarks, ibid., 25.

of Amon, Harakhte, and Ptah. Behind the king, his son, the High Priest of Amon, Yewepet, represented with the same stature as the king, offers incense. His titles in the side columns occupy as much room as those of his father. Below the relief is an inscription (§§ 703-5) attributing the opening of this part<sup>a</sup> of the quarry to the king, and again in the same words to Yewepet. Below all, Haremsaf has had his own kneeling figure depicted, before which is an inscription (§§ 706-8) recording his commission and its execution.

Royal Titulary

703. <sup>1</sup>Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Shining-in-the-Double-Crown-like-Horus-Son-of-Isis, Satisfying-the-Gods-with-Truth; Golden Horus; Mighty-in-Strength, Smiting-the-Nine-Bows, Great-in-Victory; Good God, Re in his form, shape of the likeness of Harakhte, whom Amon placed upon his throne, to establish that which he had begun, to set in order Egypt anew; <sup>2</sup>the king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Kheperhezre-Setepnere.

Sheshonk I, Opener of the Quarry

704. <sup>3</sup>He made the opening of the quarry anew, as a beginning of the work, which the Son of Re, Meriamon-Sheshonk (I) made; who makes monuments for his father Amon-Re, lord of Thebes; that he may celebrate the jubilees of Re, and (pass) <sup>4</sup>the years of Atum, living forever. "O my good lord, mayest thou cause those who come during myriads of years, to say: 'Excellent is that which has been done for Amon!' Mayest thou bear witness that I have reigned a great reign."

Yewepet, Opener of the Quarry

705. He made the opening of the quarry anew, as a beginning of the work, <sup>5</sup>which the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army, Yewepet (Yw-w<sup>2</sup>-p-ty), triumphant, who is leader of the great army of the whole South, the royal son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Meriamon-Sheshonk (I), made for his lord, for Amon-Re, king of gods; that he may obtain life, prosperity, health, long life, might, victory, and advanced old age<sup>a</sup> in Thebes, "O my good lord, mayest thou cause those who come during myriads of years, to say: 'Excellent is that which has been done for Amon!' Mayest thou bear witness that I have done a great deed."

---

<sup>a</sup>The part in which the stela is.

Dispatch of Haremsaf

706. <sup>1</sup>Year 21, second month of the third season, — —.<sup>b</sup> On this day his majesty was in the house of Isis (named): "The-Great-Ka-of-Harakhte." <sup>2</sup>His majesty commanded that command be <sup>3</sup>given to the divine father of Amon-Re, king of gods, master of 'secret things' <sup>4</sup>of the house of Harakhte, chief of works of the Lord of the Two Lands, Haremsaf (Hr-m-s ʿ), <sup>5</sup>triumphant, to conduct every work '— —' <sup>6</sup>the choicest — of Silsileh, to make very great monuments for the house of his august father, <sup>7</sup>Amon-Re, lord of Thebes.

Plans for Bubastite Gate

707. His majesty gave stipulations for <sup>8</sup>building a very great pylon<sup>c</sup> of '—', in order to brighten Thebes; <sup>9</sup>erecting its double doors of myriads of cubits (in height), in order to make a jubilee-court<sup>d</sup> <sup>10</sup>for the house of his father, Amon-Re, king of gods; and to surround it with a colonnade.

Return of Haremsaf

708. <sup>11</sup>There returned in safety to the Southern City (Thebes), to the place where his majesty was, the divine father of Amon-Re, <sup>12</sup>king of gods, master of 'secret things' of the house of Harakhte, chief of works in "House-of-Kheperhezre-Setepnere-in-Thebes,"<sup>e</sup> <sup>13</sup>great in the love of his lord, the king, Haremsaf, <sup>14</sup>triumphant. He said: "All that thou didst say has come to pass, O <sup>15</sup>my good lord; none sleeping at night, nor slumbering by day, but building the eternal work without <sup>17</sup>ceasing."

Reward of Haremsaf

The favors of the king's-presence were given him, his reward was things of <sup>18</sup>silver and gold. . . . .<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Not "(as) a great chief;" see Recueil, 15, 84, l. 6.

<sup>b</sup>Not a lacuna; the day has been omitted by the scribe.

<sup>c</sup>Written as a clearly made representation of a pylon.

<sup>d</sup>Wsh-hb-sd.

<sup>e</sup>The name of the great Karnak temple under Sheshonk I.

<sup>f</sup>The conclusion of fifteen words is unintelligible.

GREAT KARNAK RELIEF<sup>a</sup>

709. The campaign of Sheshonk in Palestine in the fifth year of Rehoboam of Judah (1 Kings 14:25), probably about 926 B. C., must have taken place in the latter half of the reign of the founder of the new dynasty. He possessed no monument in Thebes, upon which he might record the achievement until his twenty-first year (about 924 B. C.), when he built the Bubastite gate in the Karnak temple and the first court to which it leads (§§ 701-8). Its wall then received a victorious relief of the conventional character, the inscriptions in which are made up of stereotyped phrases drawn from earlier monuments of the same kind, which are, therefore, too vague, general, and indecisive to furnish any solid basis for a study of Sheshonk's campaign. Had we not the brief reference in the Old Testament to his sack of Jerusalem, we should hardly have been able to surmise that the relief was the memorial of a specific campaign. However, as it is the only monumental record of the campaign<sup>b</sup> which we possess, it has been given in full below.

<sup>a</sup>On the outside of the south wall of the great Karnak temple, between the Bubastite gate and the south wall of the hypostyle, adjoining the reliefs of Ramses II. It is published by Champollion, Monuments, 284, 285; Rosellini, Monumenti Storici, 148; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 252, 253, a; Mariette, Voyage dans la haute Egypte, II, 42. Besides these, the list alone has been published: Brugsch, Geographische Inschriften, II, XXIV; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 113-19; and a collation by Maspero, Recueil, VII, 100, 101. I had also several photographs. The list is rapidly perishing; four names in the seventh row (Nos. 105-8) long ago fell out and are in Berlin; No. 27, Megiddo, has either fallen out or been removed; many names once legible are no longer so. And yet this priceless monument has never been exhaustively copied and published, in such a manner as a classical monument of its character would be. The best of the publications (apart from Mariette's photograph in Voyage) is Lepsius'.

<sup>b</sup>There are two other monumental references to the campaign. (1) the record of Syrian tribute at Karnak (§§ 723, 724); (2) the title attached to the name of an official of the time: "[fellow]er of the king on his campaigns in the countries of Retenu" (fragment of coffin from the Ramesseum; Petrie, Ramesseum, Pl. XXX a, No. 1; Müller, Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, IV, 280-82). There is some question as to the date of the second reference; nor is it the only reference to the Asiatic war of this period, as stated by Müller (ibid., 281).

710. Fortunately for us, the relief is accompanied by a list of the towns and localities plundered by Sheshonk, and as this list is our sole source for determining the limits of his campaign, we must briefly note the extent of territory which it involves. It enables us to control the statement of Amon in the relief (§ 722, l. 19), crediting Sheshonk with having captured Mitanni. No towns so far north can be found on the list. The reference to Mitanni is unquestionably drawn from older inscriptions, and the Egyptian scribes of this period probably knew little more of the vanished Euphrates kingdom than the authors of the Bentresh stela (III, §§ 429 ff.), a little later, knew of the same distant region.

711. The list<sup>a</sup> is introduced as usual by the Nine Bows, and the names which follow are unquestionably arranged in two main groups: first, the towns of Israel, and second, those of Judah. The main line of cleavage is probably somewhere between Nos. 50 and 60 or 65, but that this line is exclusive, or that the groups themselves are exclusive, is by no means certain. Roughly stated, the list devoted between fifty and sixty names to Israel, and about a hundred to Judah. Of the total of seventy-five or so that are preserved, only seventeen can be located with certainty, and two more with probability.<sup>b</sup> Fourteen of these belong to Israel; they are mostly important towns; while the remaining five in Judah are, with one exception, obscure villages. This may be an accident of preservation. The southernmost town captured is Arad, in southern Judah, and the northernmost is possibly Beth Anath, in northern Galilee, which, with Adamah, west of the Sea of Galilee, would stand alone, well north of the group of towns in the Kishon valley, which are more likely to mark the limit of Sheshonk's northern advance.

---

<sup>a</sup>On its arrangement and extent, see the description of the relief (§ 718).

<sup>b</sup>Of these nineteen, sixteen are found in the Old Testament.

712. Let us now notice the names in the list which may be identified and located.<sup>a</sup> Leaving the Nine Bows, which introduce the list, the following three names (10-12)<sup>b</sup> are mutilated and unrecognizable, the list then proceeds with towns of Israel in the Kishon valley and vicinity: No. 13, Rabbith (Rw-b <sup>ᵛ</sup> -ty = רַבִּיִּת); No. 14, Taanach (T <sup>ᵛ</sup> -c -n-k <sup>ᵛ</sup> = תַּעֲנַח); No. 15, Shunem (š <sup>ᵛ</sup> -n-m <sup>ᵛ</sup> = שֻׁנַּם);<sup>c</sup> No. 16, Bethshean (B <sup>ᵛ</sup> -ty-š <sup>ᵛ</sup> -n-r <sup>ᵛ</sup> = בֵּית־שֵׁאֵן);<sup>d</sup> No. 17, Rehob (Rw-h <sup>ᵛ</sup> -b <sup>ᵛ</sup> -ᵛ = רְחוֹב);<sup>e</sup> No. 18, Hapharaim (h <sup>ᵛ</sup> -pw-rw-m <sup>ᵛ</sup> = חַפְרַיִם);<sup>f</sup> No. 22, Machanaim (M-h <sup>ᵛ</sup> -n-m = מַחֲנַיִם);<sup>g</sup> No. 23, Gibeon (k-b <sup>ᵛ</sup> -c <sup>ᵛ</sup> -n <sup>ᵛ</sup> = גִּבְעוֹן);<sup>h</sup> No. 24, Beth-

<sup>a</sup>A number of important names in the list had already been identified by Champollion; many are due to Brugsch (Geographische Inschriften, II, 56-71); a study by Maspero Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1880, 44 ff.), a useful treatment by Müller (Asien und Europa, 166-72), and another fuller essay by Maspero, in Transactions of the Victoria Institute, 27, 63-122, followed by a discussion by Conder, 123-30). The following numbers all refer to Lepsius, Denkmäler; Champollion, Notices descriptives, has inserted a lost oval between 41 and 45, omitted two between 48 and 51, omitted one between 59 and 61, and misplaced 65 behind 68. The second and last of these errors were noted by Maspero in collating the original (Recueil, VII, 100), but his study (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1880, 44 ff.) employs the hopelessly confused numbering of Champollion, Notices descriptives, which makes it difficult to follow. Much could still be done with the list by a thorough Semitist. I have treated only those names calculated to elucidate the list as a whole, or those which can be geographically placed. The customary juggling with Semitic roots, taken from a Hebrew dictionary, may be made to fill many pages, but is, historically, totally valueless.

<sup>b</sup>The identification of two of them, as Gaza and Megiddo, is a guess; the occurrence of Megiddo later (27) shows that we cannot look for it here.

<sup>c</sup>These three all in Issachar.

<sup>d</sup>Manasseh; n-r = n, as commonly.

<sup>e</sup>Probably not Rehob by the Sea of Galilee; see Müller, Asien und Europa, 153.

<sup>f</sup>Issachar. No. 19, ᵛ-d-rw-m <sup>ᵛ</sup> -m, that is, אֲדָרִים, is perhaps אֲדָרִים, Adaroim in Judah. We should then necessarily conclude that the list has mixed the towns of the two kingdoms. No. 20 is lost, and No. 21 (š <sup>ᵛ</sup> -w <sup>ᵛ</sup> -d) is unknown.

<sup>g</sup>East of Jordan, Gad.

<sup>h</sup>Benjamin.

horon ( $B^{\circ} -ty-h-w^{\circ} -rw-n =$  בית הורון);<sup>a</sup> No. 26, Ajalon ( $^{\circ} -yw-rw-n =$  אילון);<sup>b</sup> No. 27, Megiddo ( $M-k-d-yw =$  מגידו).<sup>c</sup>

713. Next follows the much-discussed  $Yw-d-h-m-rw-k$  or ידהמלק (No. 29), which is, of course, not to be rendered "the king or kingdom of Judah."<sup>d</sup> With No. 32,<sup>e</sup>  $^{\circ} -r^{\circ} -n^{\circ}$ , ערן, we are again in the vicinity of southern Carmel; for this place is the Aruna, passed by Thutmose III on his march to Megiddo (II, 425). No. 34,<sup>f</sup>  $d^{\circ} -d-p-t-t-rw$ , דפתאל or צדפתל, was probably a city of central Palestine,<sup>g</sup> while the next recognizable name,<sup>h</sup> No. 38,  $S^{\circ} -yw-k^{\circ}$ , is phonetically exactly equivalent to Socoh (שכח),<sup>i</sup> and it would carry us into Judah.

<sup>a</sup>Ephraim; No. 25,  $k^{\circ} -d-t-m$ , is unknown.

<sup>b</sup>Dan, but in Israel.

<sup>c</sup>Issachar (though held by Manasseh). No. 28,  $^{\circ} -d-rw =$  אדר (or אדל) agrees phonetically exactly with אדר in Judah (Josh. 15:3; Numb. 34:4), but, again we should have a long leap from Israel into Judah; and Addar is well reproduced in No. 100, certainly in Judah.

<sup>d</sup>The impossibility of this rendering was long ago shown by Brugsch (Geographische Inschriften, II, 62, 63). He also proposed rendering  $h$  as the article; so also Müller (Asien und Europa, 167; Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, X, 81), who proposed "Hand of the King." The difficulty is that this involves the transliteration of the Semitic article by the Egyptian scribe, whereas in the lists regularly, and in this list everywhere, the article is translated (see Nos. 71, 77, 87, 90, 92, 94, etc.). The location of the place is unknown.

<sup>e</sup>No. 30 is lost; and No. 31,  $H^{\circ} -y^{\circ} -n-m$ , חיים or האנם, is unknown.

<sup>f</sup>No. 33,  $B^{\circ} -rw-m^{\circ} -m$ , בלמם, is unknown.

<sup>g</sup>It is not known from the Old Testament, but it is mentioned in Papyrus Anastasi, I, 22, 5, where it appears to be between northern Israel and Benjamin (see Müller, Asien und Europa, 167).

<sup>h</sup>No. 35 is too broken for use; No. 36,  $B^{\circ} -ty-t^{\circ} -rw-m^{\circ} m$  ( $m^{\circ} m = m$  in this list), or בית התלם, "House of the furrow," is unknown. In the collation (Recueil, VII, 100, No. 36), the  $ty$  has been overlooked, but it is perfectly clear on the photograph. Hence the long paragraph on the word (Transactions of the Victoria Institute, 27, 102, 103) falls away. No. 37,  $K^{\circ} -k^{\circ} -rw-y$ , perhaps a כקר (with  $q$  in the middle for  $כ$ ?), is unknown.

<sup>i</sup>There are two cities of this name in Judah, one in the valley of Elah toward the Shephelah, and the other in the highlands southwest of Hebron. See the objections of Müller (Asien und Europa, 161).

714. The entire next row (40-52) is lost,<sup>a</sup> except the first name, which began with an Abel, "meadow;" and the next row (53-65) is in little better condition. It contains three familiar names, No. 56,  $\text{ד}^{\text{ד}}\text{-m-}^{\text{ד}}$  or אַדְמִיָּה, perhaps Edom;<sup>b</sup> and No. 57,  $\text{ד}^{\text{ד}}\text{-rw-m}^{\text{ד}}\text{ m}$  (read m?) or צִוְרִים, "Rocks," which, however, are of slight geographical value; and No. 59,  $\text{Y-rw-d}^{\text{ד}}\text{-}^{\text{ד}}$ , Yeraza<sup>c</sup> of the Annals (II, 326, l. 12), in north-western Judah.

715. Nos. 65, 66,  $\text{P}^{\text{ד}}\text{-}^{\text{ד}}\text{-m-k}^{\text{ד}}\text{-}^{\text{ד}}\text{-y}^{\text{ד}}\text{-d-}^{\text{ד}}$ ,<sup>d</sup> "The<sup>e</sup> Valley of עִזָּה, or עֵצָה," form the first example of a long series of compound names (each occupying two rings), of which the first member is a well-known Semitic word, like שֶׁבֶלֶת, "Stream" (73 and 75), נֶגֶב, "South-country" (84, 90, 92), and הַקֵּל, "Field" (68, 71, 77, 87, 94, 96, 101, 107). But, unfortunately, these names, while often capable of translation, cannot be geographically located. The most interesting is (Nos. 71, 72)  $\text{P}^{\text{ד}}\text{-}^{\text{ד}}\text{-h-w-k-rw-}^{\text{ד}}\text{-}^{\text{ד}}\text{-b}^{\text{ד}}\text{-r}^{\text{ד}}\text{-m}$ , or הַקֵּל<sup>f</sup>

<sup>a</sup>A few fragments in Maspero's collation.

<sup>b</sup>But names of countries do not appear in this list. There was an אֲדָמָה in Naphtali, and Müller proposes "Edumia-Dôme" in eastern Ephraim (Müller, Asien und Europa, 168).

<sup>c</sup>See Müller, Asien und Europa, 152, note 1.

<sup>d</sup>There is no m at the end according to Maspero's collation (Recueil, VII, 100, No. 63, confirmed by photograph); hence there was no basis for the identification with עִזָּמִוֶן in Judah (Müller, Asien und Europa, 168). Why it is still read with m by Maspero (Transactions of the Victoria Institute, 27, 108, 109) in 1892, I do not know.

<sup>e</sup> $\text{P}^{\text{ד}}$  is the Egyptian article.

<sup>f</sup>Even if this word be Aramaic, it would not militate against the identification of the second part of the name with Abram. But its frequent occurrence in this list, quite justifies Bondi's conclusion that, although not found in the Old Testament, הַקֵּל is an old Canaanite word. The strange ending  $\text{ד}$  in which Müller would see the Aramaic status emphaticus, is of no significance here, for it is added to many names in the list, which we know existed in Palestine many centuries before the Aramaizing of the Palestinian dialects began. It is not unlikely that it is a feminine ending (for the undoubted feminine termination ם exists in the list only in those words in which it is still preserved in Hebrew. The ם elsewhere was therefore lost between the time of Thutmose III and Sheshonk I). That the ending <sup>2</sup> is a feminine ending in this list is indicated by the fact that this very word חקל, while four times written with the ending <sup>2</sup>, is once written with no ending, and once with t and the land-determinative. Such a t was at this time, exactly as in modern Arabic, not pronounced, but indicated merely the vowel ā or ē, the connection between the lost feminine t and the word to which it belonged. Finally it should be noticed that the plural of the word in this list is חקלם (107), which I need hardly state is a Hebrew and not an Aramaic plural. While masculine, it may still belong to a feminine noun like שנה, pl., שנים.

אברם,<sup>a</sup> which can be nothing else than “The Field of Abram.”<sup>b</sup> That the name of the traditional ancestor of the Hebrews should be found among the towns of southern Palestine, while of great interest, is not remarkable. We already have the name of Jacob in the lists of Thutmose III, and probably also that of Joseph. We might, therefore, expect to find the name of Abram, especially at this time, when we know that the traditions of their ancestors were especially cherished and daily current among the Hebrews, and were beginning at last to take permanent form. But the narratives of Genesis are all later than this list of She-shonk; hence this is the earliest mention of Abram’s name in an historical document—his first appearance in history.

716. The remainder of the list, as we have stated, offers very little which can be geographically determined. No. 100, <sup>2</sup>-d-r<sup>2</sup>-<sup>2</sup>,<sup>c</sup> is doubtless אֶרֶר in Judah, while of two

---

<sup>a</sup>This word is explained by Maspero (Transactions of the Victoria Institute, 27, 83) as a plural of אָבֵל, which he gives as “אָבֵלִים.” This equivalence is phonetically perfect, but nevertheless impossible. This plural is given its vowel-points as if it were an existent form, but the plural of אָבֵל, “meadow,” does not occur. The word is used in Hebrew only as the first member of an annexion in geographical names, e. g., אָבֵל קָרְמִים, and never occurs in any other combination. This is also its use in all of the other names in which it occurs in our list. Moreover, if this were not so, we must demand for the second number some specific term, name, or epithet.

<sup>b</sup>On showing this identification to Erman, he looked up his own studies on this list, and to his own surprise he found in his manuscript that he had made the same identification in 1888. It was also made independently by Schaefer.

<sup>c</sup>Repeated in No. 117.

Arads (Nos. 108, 110, <sup>c</sup>rw-d-<sup>2</sup>), one must be ערד in the desert of Judah. No. 124 is possibly to be emended to Beth Anoth,<sup>a</sup> and No. 125 is probably Sharuhēn of southern Judah.<sup>b</sup> We look in vain for Jerusalem, which (according to 1 Kings 14:25) was also plundered by Sheshonk. It must have been lost in one of the lacunæ.

Professor Sayce has kindly sent me the following note on the list:

“In the newly recovered portion of the list, Legrain has discovered the name of Jordan (Yw-r-d-n), and after Raphia and L-b-a-n we have <sup>c</sup>n-p-rw-n, עין-פרך (see Gen. 21:19, 21), and finally H-<sup>2</sup>-m (as in the list of Thothmes III).” He doubtless refers to readings in the bottom lines, which are not yet published.

717. The historical conclusions to be drawn from the peculiarities in the language and writing of the list seem to me to have been misunderstood. The alleged Aramaisms are very doubtful; but even if they be admitted, their use by the hieroglyphic scribe is so utterly opposed to the usage of Aramaic that they would prove only the personal peculiarity of an Egyptian scribe, slightly acquainted with Aramaic, and absolutely nothing as to the pronunciation of the name of a given town current in Palestine. The conclusion that this list shows that Aramaic had already become the leading language of Syria, therefore, seems to me, to be without basis.

<sup>a</sup>BethAnath (Josh. 19:38; Judg. 1:33) is in Naphtali; we may equally well read, with Müller, BethAnoth (Josh. 15:59), which was in Judah (modern Bêt-<sup>c</sup> Anân?).

<sup>b</sup>No. 118, P<sup>2</sup>-b<sup>2</sup>-y<sup>2</sup>, should be compared with the land B<sup>2</sup> which Schaefer tells me occurs on Seti I's stela at Tell-esh-Shehab in the Hauran. From the squeeze he read: “Mut, mistress of B<sup>2</sup> (nb' t-B<sup>2</sup>, with b<sup>2</sup>-bird and hill-country).” If BethAnath of Naphtali occurs in the second half of the list, a place in the Hauran might also be there.

The arrangement and content of the famous relief and its inscriptions will be found in the following description.

Scene

718. The king<sup>a</sup> on the right gathers in his left hand the hair of a group of kneeling Asiatics, who raise their hands appealing for mercy, as he brandishes his war-mace over their heads. On the left, Amon approaches, extending to the Pharaoh a sword, and leading to him by cords five lines of sixty-five captives. Below these are five lines more, containing ninety-one captives, led by the presiding goddess of Thebes. There are thus one hundred and fifty-six captives, each symbolizing a Palestinian town, the name of which is inclosed in a crenelated oval, above which appear the shoulders and head of the captive in each case.<sup>b</sup> Of these names, the fourth and tenth rows have almost entirely perished, involving the loss of thirty-one names; while twelve more, in different places, have also disappeared. Omitting badly mutilated examples, allowing for at least fifteen names which occupy two ovals each, and eliminating the Nine Bows, some seventy-five names of ancient Palestinian cities have here survived.

719. The accompanying inscriptions are the following:

Over the Kneeling Captives

Smiting the chiefs of the Nubian Troglodytes, of all inaccessible countries, all the lands of the Fenkhu, the countries — —.

---

<sup>a</sup>This figure has now totally disappeared, as it evidently was only painted and never hewn in relief. From similar scenes we are able to restore the conventional figure of the Pharaoh, as above described.

<sup>b</sup>Compare the similar lists of earlier times; Thutmose III (II, 402, 403); Seti I (III, 113, 114); Ramses III (IV, 130, 131).

Before the King

Sheshonk I,<sup>a</sup> king, great in fame, smiting the countries that assail him, achieving with his sword, that the Two Lands may know that he has smitten the chiefs of all countries.

With Amon

720. <sup>1</sup>Welcome! my beloved son, Sheshonk,<sup>b</sup> — — mighty in strength. Thou hast smitten the lands and the countries, <sup>2</sup>thou hast crushed the Nubian Troglodytes, [thy] sword was mighty among the Asiatics; they were made fragments every moment. Thy victorious fame — all lands. <sup>3</sup>Thou wentest forth in victory, and thou hast returned in might; <sup>4</sup>thou hast united<sup>c</sup> —; I have <sup>5</sup>—<sup>d</sup> for thee the countries that knew not Egypt, that had begun to invade [thy] boundaries, in order to cut off their heads. <sup>6</sup>Victory is given into thy hands, all lands and all countries are united — —, the fear of thee is as far as the four pillars [of heaven], the terror<sup>e</sup> of thy majesty is among the Nine Bows: thou hast <sup>7</sup>— the hearts of the countries. Thou art Horus over the Two Lands, <sup>8</sup>thou art <sup>9</sup>— against thy enemies, when thou hast smitten the foe. Take thou my victorious sword,<sup>f</sup> thou whose war-mace has smitten the chiefs of the countries.

721. <sup>6</sup>Utterance of Amon-Re. . . . .<sup>g</sup> <sup>7</sup>“My heart is very glad, when I see thy victories, <sup>8-11</sup>my son, Meriamon-Sheshonk, my beloved, who camest forth from me, in order to be my champion. I have seen the excellence of thy plans; which thou hast executed, the — of my temple, which thou hast established [for] me, in Thebes, the great seat to which my heart [inclines]. <sup>12</sup>Thou hast begun to make monuments in Southern Heliopolis, Northern Heliopolis, and every city — — thereof for the <sup>13</sup>sole<sup>1</sup> god of its district. Thou hast made my temple of millions

<sup>a</sup>Threefold titulary.

<sup>b</sup>Some epithets omitted in translation.

<sup>c</sup>Sm > ? Or: “thou hast explored” (wb > ?).

<sup>d</sup>The p before the s, given by Lepsius, is probably an accidental fracture or chisel mark (photograph); but it may be the wsh-vessel, although wsh, “extended, enlarged,” does not fit the context.

<sup>e</sup>Nhm, “battle-cry?”

<sup>f</sup>Referring, of course, to the sword which he is represented as extending to the king.

<sup>g</sup>Titles of the god.

of years, — — of electrum, wherein I —. <sup>13</sup>Thy heart is satisfied over [————] ————. Thou hast — <sup>14</sup>more than any king of them all.
 Thou hast smitten every land, my mighty sword was the source of the victories which I have given — — — — all the Asiatics <sup>15</sup>(Mnyw-Stt).
 Thy fire raged as a flame behind them, it fought against every land, which thou didst gather together, which thy majesty gave to it, (being) Montu <sup>16</sup>the mighty overwhelming his enemies. Thy war-mace, it struck down thy foes, the Asiatics of distant countries; thy serpent-crest was mighty among them.”

722. “I made thy boundaries <sup>17</sup>as far as thou desiredst; I made the Southerners come in obeisance to thee, and the Northerners to the greatness of thy fame. Thou hast made a great slaughter among them without number, <sup>18</sup>falling in their valleys, being multitudes, annihilated and perishing afterward, like those who have never been born. All the countries that came — [—]; <sup>19</sup>thy majesty has destroyed them in the space of a moment. I have trampled for thee them that rebelled against thee, overthrowing [for] thee the Asiatics of the army of Mitanni (M-t-n); <sup>20</sup>I have humbled them [—] beneath thy feet. I am thy father, the lord of gods, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, sole leader, whose remnant<sup>a</sup> escapes not, that I may cause thy valor to be [remembered] in the future<sup>b</sup> through all eternity.”

---

PRESENTATION OF TRIBUTE<sup>c</sup>

723. This fragmentary inscription in all likelihood accompanied a relief depicting the presentation of tribute to Amon; for it represents Sheshonk addressing Amon, and delivering to him the tribute of Syria (h<sup>3</sup> rw) and Nubia. The date is unfortunately lost, but it is, of course, after the Palestinian campaign. Sheshonk evidently controlled lower Nubia,

<sup>a</sup>The remnant whom he has not slain.

<sup>b</sup>Text has m nh (with the legs); but we must read either m ht or n m ht, that is, “hereafter,” or “for the hereafter.”

<sup>c</sup>Wall inscription in great temple of Karnak, in a chamber immediately on the northwest of the sanctuary (Champollion, “Cour U”); published: Champol-lion, Notices descriptives, II, 142-44; Lepsius, Denkmaler, III, 255, c (royal name only).

as the tribute of that country is too specifically enumerated to be considered as a conventional boast. This fact is in harmony with the claim in the great relief, that Sheshonk I smote Nubia (§ 720, l. 2).

724. [Year] — under the majesty of King Sheshonk<sup>a</sup> (I) ——— [in] “The-House-of-Millions-of-Years-of-King-Kheperhezre-Setepnere- (Hpr-hd-R<sup>c</sup> Stp-n-R<sup>c</sup>), -Son-of-Re,-Meriamon-Sheshonk (Š<sup>ḏ</sup> -š<sup>ḏ</sup> -n-k)-I,-Which-is-in-Memphis (H<sup>ḏ</sup> t-k<sup>ḏ</sup> -Pth)” ——— O Amon, thou maker of the land of the Negro ———<sup>b</sup> tribute of the land of Syria (H<sup>ḏ</sup> -rw) ——— I bring it to thee from the land of the Negro ——— red cattle, thy firstlings<sup>c</sup> ——— thy gazelles, thy panther-skins.

KARNAK STELA<sup>d</sup>

724A. On this stela Sheshonk I recorded a very interesting account of his Asiatic campaign, but it is now in such a fragmentary state that very little can be discerned beyond the fact that some incident, possibly a battle of the campaign, occurred on the shores of the Bitter Lakes in the Isthmus of Suez. At the top of the stela Sheshonk I and his son Yewepet are shown in a relief offering wine to Amon-Re. Of the inscription below them, only the following fragments are intelligible:

——— Said his majesty to the court: “——— the evil things which they have done.” Said they: —— his horses after him, while they knew (it) not. Lo —— His majesty made a great slaughter among them —— he ——ed them upon the ‘dyke’ of the shore of Kemwer<sup>e</sup> (Km-wr). He it was ——.

<sup>a</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

<sup>b</sup>The length of the lacuna is uncertain.

<sup>c</sup>With determinative of cattle.

<sup>d</sup>Fragments of a stela of gritstone, found by Legrain, in hall K, at Karnak; Annales, V, 38, 39.

<sup>e</sup>See I, 493, l. 21, and note.

DAKHEL STELA<sup>a</sup>

725. This monument is dated under a Sheshonk whose prenomen is not given. As his nineteenth year is mentioned he cannot be Sheshonk II; so that the uncertainty lies between Sheshonk I and Sheshonk III. Of the two, Sheshonk I seems to me the more probable, as the document mentions a revolt in the oasis, and a reorganization, which would be especially likely to occur at the advent of a new dynasty, and we find Dakhel under the control of Sheshonk I's successor, Osorkon I.

The document is really the record of the successful claim of a certain priest of the Southern Oasis, Nesubast, to a well alleged to belong to his family. The case is tried before Khonsu, the god of the oasis, and a legal decision sought from him, in the manner customary since the Twenty-first Dynasty. As a legal document it will be taken up in a later volume of this series, devoted exclusively to such documents. The stela interests us here, because Nesubast presented his claim on the arrival of the new governor of the oasis, Wayeheset,<sup>b</sup> a priest of Diospolis Parva, whom Sheshonk sent to reorganize the oasis, then in a state of rebellion, and probably plundered and wasted. The oasis was used as a place of banishment for political exiles, and such an outbreak, as we have stated, might be expected at the accession of a new dynasty.

The name of the new governor is Libyan, like the new dynasty he served, and the stela, both in its form and language, plainly betrays its half-barbarous origin at the hands of partly Egyptianized Libyans, in the distant oasis.

---

<sup>a</sup>Limestone stela, 37 inches high, 26 inches wide, 4½ inches thick, with inscription of 20 lines in hieratic; found by Captain H. G. Lyons, in 1894, at the village of Mut, in the oasis of Dakhel. Published by Spiegelberg, Recueil, 21, 12-21, with an excellent pioneer study, and transcription, upon which my own treatment is essentially based.

<sup>b</sup>A relief at the top of the stela shows the governor and Nesubast praying, probably before one of the wells involved. Two women, probably their wives, appear with them.

Date

726. Year 5, fourth month of the second season, day 16, of the king, the Pharaoh, L. P. H., Sheshonk, L. P. H., beloved of Amon-Re.

Arrival of Wayeheset

On this day 'went up' the son of the chief (ms) of the Me; <sup>2</sup>chief (<sup>c</sup>) of a district (k c h);<sup>a</sup> prophet of Hathor of Diospolis Parva; prophet of Horus 'of the South', lord of Perzoz (Pr-ḏ ḏ), prophet of Sutekh, lord of the oasis; chief of irrigation, <sup>3</sup>overseer of '—';<sup>b</sup> the chief of the two lands<sup>c</sup> of the oasis, and the two towns<sup>d</sup> of the oasis, Wayeheset (W ḏ -yw-h ḏ -s ḏ -t ḏ); when Pharaoh, L. P. H., sent him to organize the land of the oasis, <sup>4</sup>after it had been found to be in a state of rebellion, and desolate, on the day of arrival to inspect the wells and cisterns <sup>5</sup>which are behind the oasis (nty s ḏ wt), hbs-wells, and ww-wells, which 'lie behind, and look eastward', (even) the cisterns and wells, <sup>6</sup>when the prophet of Sutekh, Nesubast (Ns-sw-b ḏ -ys t), son of Peheti (P ḏ h ḏ ty), spake before him, saying:

Claim of Nesubast

727. "Behold, a 'flowing' spring, lying here toward the east ('named'): 'Rising-of-Re,' which this '[cistern]'<sup>e</sup> of Re sees, before which thou art; it is a citizen's-cistern belonging to Tewhenut (T ḏ yw-hnw t), whose mother is Henutenter (Hnw t-ntrw), my mother." The prophet and chief Wayeheset; he said: "Stand before Sutekh <sup>8</sup>[and tell] it, this day, when the prophet brings out in procession this august [god], Sutekh, the great in strength, son of Nut, the great god, in the year 5, fourth month of the second season, day 25, at his beautiful feast of Urshu (Wršw)."

<sup>a</sup>Besides the will of Yewelot (§ 741, l. 23), this title is found on the coffin of Zeptahefonekh (Maspero, Mummies royales, 573), also of the Twenty-second Dynasty.

<sup>b</sup>Agriculture or gardening of some sort is indicated by the word (št ḏ y).

<sup>c</sup>Viz., el-Khargeh and Dakhel, which together form the Southern Oasis, known to the ancients as Oasis Major; see Spiegelberg, loc. cit., 18.

<sup>d</sup>Viz., el-Hibe and Dakhel; see Spiegelberg, ibid.

<sup>e</sup>Restored from l. 9.

Claim Referred to Sutekh

728. The chief Wayeheset stood in the presence (of the god), saying: "O Sutekh, thou great god! If it be true as to Nesubast, son of Peheti, that the northwestern spring of this well, the cistern (called): 'Rising-of-Re,' this cistern of Re, which is behind the oasis, belongs to Tewhenut, his mother, <sup>10</sup>(then) confirm thou it to him this day."

The remainder of the text is of a purely legal character, narrating how, after this first interview with the god, the decision was not rendered by him for fourteen years, during which the suit must have continued. Then, in the year 19, the god confirmed Nesubast's title to the well (ll. 11 ff.).

REIGN OF OSORKON I

RECORD OF TEMPLE GIFTS<sup>a</sup>

729. In his fourth year Osorkon I, for some reason, compiled a record of all the statues, images, vessels, utensils, and the like, which he had presented to the temples of Egypt. The amounts of gold and silver involved are sufficiently large to be of economic importance. The smaller items of gold amount to 20,538 deben, or about 5,005 pounds troy; and those of silver reach a total of 72,870 deben, or over 17,762 pounds, troy. The weight of many articles is, however, not indicated. On the fragments we find mentioned 2,000,000 deben, or about 487,180 pounds troy, of silver, and again 2,300,000 deben, or about 560,297 pounds troy, of gold and silver. How far these last amounts include the others, of which they might be the totals, is not determinable. That such sums could be given to the temples, evidently in addition to their fixed incomes, is important evidence of the great wealth and prosperity of the Twenty-second Dynasty kings. These records also show that Osorkon I controlled the oases of Dakhel and Khargeh (l. 5) and hence, of course, the other oases also.

Address to the King<sup>b</sup>

730. <sup>1</sup>———— their bodies repose in all their favorite places; <sup>2</sup>there is none hostile toward them —<sup>1</sup>, since the time of former kings;

---

<sup>a</sup>Found by Naville in a small temple beyond the outskirts of the tell of Bubastis, dating from the time of Ramses II. The inscriptions are engraved on four sides of a red granite pillar, now in twenty-nine small fragments, of which two may be put together, giving the beginnings (from one-fourth to two-thirds of the line) of six lines. Now in Cairo Museum, No. 675 (Guide, 177, without name of king). They are published by Naville (Bubastis, I, Pls. 51, 52), from drawings by Madame Naville, made from squeezes.

<sup>b</sup>It is not clear who is here speaking to the king.

there is none like thee in this land. Every god abides upon his throne, and enters his abode with glad heart, 'since' thou art installed<sup>a</sup> to be 'king' ——— thee, building their houses, and multiplying their vessels of gold, silver, and every genuine costly stone, for which his majesty 'gave' instructions, in his capacity as Thoth (Hnty-hsr t).

Heading of List

731. List of monuments which the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands [Osorkon I]<sup>b</sup> made<sup>3</sup> [for all the gods and goddesses of]<sup>c</sup> all the cities of the South and North; from the year [1], first (month) of the [second season],<sup>d</sup> day 7, to the year 4,<sup>e</sup> fourth month of the third season, day 25; which makes 3 years, 3 months, and 16 days.

Re-Harakhte

732. His majesty gave to the house of his father, Re-Harakhte:
Beaten gold: an august chapel of Atum-Khepri, lord of Heliopolis.

Hammered gold	a sphinx
Real lapis lazuli	10 sphinxes <sup>f</sup>
Amounting to: gold	15,345 deben
silver	14,150 deben
genuine lapis lazuli	4,000 (+x) [deben]

— vessel, amounting to 100,000 deben, presented before Re-Harakhte-Atum, begetter of his two fledgelings.

A shg-vessel, amounting to:

Gold	5,010 deben
Silver	30,720 “
Genuine lapis lazuli	1,600 “
Black copper	5,000 “

<sup>a</sup>[yw-tw hr] bs k.

<sup>b</sup>Restored from other fragments, where the name several times occurs.

<sup>c</sup>The amount lost is probably not great, and the restoration is almost certain.

<sup>d</sup>Restored by computing from the total of three years, etc. There is a discrepancy of two days, which is undoubtedly due to the modern copy.

<sup>e</sup>Another fragment (Pl. 52, C 1) bears the date: “year 4, second month of the second season, day 10 (+x).”

<sup>f</sup>Both of these statues may be figures of the king on one knee with the other limb extended behind; but the drawing is too imperfect to determine.

<sup>g</sup>Mistake in the copy; the same word is written with s and the vessel (?) a little farther on in this line. It looks like the hn-sign; should we read shn? Models of this object were presented by the king to the god; see e. g., Naville, Festival Hall of Osorkon II, Pl. XI.

Hathor

733. A chapel, amounting to 100,000 deben, presented before Hathor, mistress of Hotep-em-hotep.

Mut

Gold and silver: a sh-vessel<sup>1</sup>, presented before Mut, the sistrum-bearer.

Harsaphes

Gold and silver: a sh-vessel<sup>1</sup>.

Beaten silver: a chapel presented before<sup>a</sup> Harsaphes, lord of Heliopolis.

Thoth

Gold and silver: a sh-vessel<sup>1</sup>, presented before Thoth, lord of Hermopolis.

Bast

734. Gold and silver: a sh-vessel<sup>1</sup> presented before Bast, mistress of Bubastis.

Thoth

Gold: a sh-vessel<sup>1</sup> presented before Thoth, residing in [—].

Gold and silver: <sup>5</sup>—————

Uncertain God

————— [amounting to:]

Gold	— —
Silver	9,000 deben
Black copper	30,000 “

His<sup>b</sup> tribute is (the oases of) Dakhel and Khargeh, being wine<sup>c</sup> and shedeh; Hemy wine, and Syene<sup>d</sup> wine likewise, in order to maintain [—] his house according to the word thereof.

<sup>a</sup>Of course, the copy is here wrong; read rdy-t m b h as elsewhere passim; a Harsaphes of Heliopolis is not otherwise known, as far as I have observed.

<sup>b</sup>What god is meant is unfortunately uncertain, owing to the lacuna at the beginning of the line.

<sup>c</sup>On the wines of these two oases, see Brugsch, Reise nach der Grossen Oase, 79–81. Brugsch's remark (ibid., 92) that the wines of these two oases are not mentioned before Græco-Roman times was made before our inscription was discovered. See also Dümichen, Oasen, 25, 26.

<sup>d</sup>Not to be confused with Syene at the first cataract. These two cities (Hmy and Swny, misread Nwny by Naville) were in the western Delta, the former in the vicinity of Lake Mareotis, the latter also probably not far from it. See Brugsch, op. cit., 91, Nos. 2 and 5.

Re

735. His majesty gave to the house of Re and his divine ennead:

Silver:	3 candelabras <sup>a</sup>
Gold:	1—1.
Silver:	<table> <tr><td>3 dw-vessels.</td></tr> <tr><td>3 offering-tablets.</td></tr> <tr><td>17 small altars.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 flat dish ('dd' t)</td></tr> <tr><td>1 cartouche-vessel.</td></tr> <tr><td>2 bowls.</td></tr> <tr><td>10 altars.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 'hin<sup>1</sup>-vessel.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 spouted vessel.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 pitcher.</td></tr> </table>	3 dw -vessels.	3 offering-tablets.	17 small altars.	1 flat dish ( 'dd' t )	1 cartouche-vessel.	2 bowls.	10 altars.	1 'hin <sup>1</sup> -vessel.	1 spouted vessel.	1 pitcher.
3 dw -vessels.
3 offering-tablets.
17 small altars.
1 flat dish ( 'dd' t )
1 cartouche-vessel.
2 bowls.
10 altars.
1 'hin <sup>1</sup> -vessel.
1 spouted vessel.
1 pitcher.
Gold:	<table> <tr><td>3 dw-altars.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 pitcher.</td></tr> <tr><td>2 Thoth-apes.</td></tr> <tr><td>2 large censers.</td></tr> <tr><td>6 altars.</td></tr> <tr><td>_____.</td></tr> <tr><td>1 fourfold censer.</td></tr> </table>	3 dw -altars.	1 pitcher.	2 Thoth -apes.	2 large censers.	6 altars.	_____.	1 fourfold censer.
3 dw -altars.
1 pitcher.
2 Thoth -apes.
2 large censers.
6 altars.
_____.
1 fourfold censer.
Gold:	_____.
Lapis lazuli	_____.
<sup>6</sup> _____	332,000 deben.
¶In all¶	594,300 deben.

Amon-Re

736. His majesty gave to the house of Amon-Re, king of gods:<sup>b</sup>

His majesty wrought a standing statue offering incense ¶ — — ¶, its body was of gold and silver in beaten work, amounting to:

Gold	183 <sup>c</sup> deben
Silver	19,000 <sup>d</sup> “
Black copper	_____ “
Gold <sup>e</sup>	a ¶ — — — ¶

its chapel, a censer ¶of¶ gold of —.

<sup>a</sup>Hry-sd' t, lit., “fire-bearer;” it occurs elsewhere only in the Stela of Nastesen, l. 49 (ed. Schaefer, 126).

<sup>b</sup>The introductory formulary, ordinarily followed by a series of nouns, is here followed by a verb.

<sup>c</sup>Possibly 184 or 185.

<sup>d</sup>The hundreds, tens, and units are lost.

<sup>e</sup>It is uncertain whether this continues the description of the statue or begins a new article.

Silver: an altar.

「————」.

————.

737. The remaining fragments contain little available material, but they have preserved several data of importance. Among these are: “4 chapels, 3 altars of silver, a processional image of Amon of fine gold;”<sup>a</sup> “2,000,000 (+x) deben of silver;”<sup>b</sup> “2,300,000 (+x) deben of gold and silver.”<sup>c</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Op. cit., Pl. 52, M 1.

<sup>b</sup>Ibid., C 2.

<sup>c</sup>Ibid., I 2.

REIGN OF TAKELOT I

STATUE OF THE NILE-GOD DEDICATED BY THE HIGH PRIEST SHESHONK<sup>a</sup>

738. Maspero's surprise<sup>b</sup> that this monument should formerly have been so strangely misunderstood, was well grounded. The monument is one of a common class, dedicated to a god, for the sake of the well-being of the donor, which he craves from the god in a prayer inscribed upon it. The character of the donor, his origin, and his prayer are, in the case of this statue, of great historical importance. He is the High Priest of Amon, Meriamon-Sheshonk, son of Osorkon I. As his mother, Makere, is stated to be the daughter of King Pesibkenno, this king can be no other than the second of that name, the last king of the Twenty-first Dynasty.

739. It thus appears that Sheshonk I strengthened his dynasty by an alliance with the old ruling house, the Twenty-first Dynasty of Tanis, by marrying his son, Osorkon I, to the daughter of Pesibkhenno II. As High Priest of Amon at Thebes, the son of this marriage, Sheshonk, assumed royal honors, placed his name in a cartouche, and commanded all the military of Egypt. Characteristic of the turbulent conditions of the time is his prayer for "all valiant might, to take captive his land." His power again shows how truly Thebes had become a semi-independent principality. He finally shook off the power of the north sufficiently to make his own son his successor at Thebes.<sup>a</sup>

---

<sup>a</sup>British Museum; published: Yorke and Leake, Les principaux monuments Egyptiens du Musée Britannique, Londres, 1827, Pl. I, Fig. 3 (translated from Royal Society of Literature, I; statue and cartouches only); Arundale and Bonomi, Gallery of Antiquities, Pl. XIII; Lepsius, Auswahl der wichtigsten Urkunden, XV, a-g; Maspero, Momies royales, 734-36.

<sup>b</sup>Op. cit., 734.

740.<sup>b</sup> Made it the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Meriamon-Sheshonk, for his lord, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, presider over Karnak, in order to crave life, prosperity, health, long life, an advanced and happy old age, might and victory over every land and every country, [—] — —, all valiant might, to take captive his land; lord of South and North, the leader, Meriamon-Sheshonk, who is great leader of the army of all Egypt, king's-son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Lord of Offering, Meriamon-Osorkon (I); his mother being Makere, king's-daughter of the Lord of the Two Lands, Meriamon-Horus-Pesibkhenno (II), given life, stability, satisfaction, like Re, forever.

---

<sup>a</sup>Ibid., § 44.

<sup>b</sup>One section number (741) is intentionally omitted.

REIGN OF OSORKON II

FLOOD INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

742. As in the days of Nesubnebded, some two hundred years earlier, the inundation again flooded the temple of Luxor in the third year of Osorkon II, and the water rose to a depth of over two feet<sup>b</sup> on the temple pavement. “All the temples of Thebes were like marshes.” Amon was brought forth from the temple in his sacred barque, and the priests prayed that he might abate the flood.

743. <sup>1</sup>Year 3, first month of the second season, day 12,<sup>c</sup> under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnamon, L. P. H.; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems, <sup>2</sup>Osorkon (II)-Siese-Meriamon, given life forever.

The flood<sup>d</sup> came on, in this whole land; <sup>3</sup>it invaded the two shores as in the beginning. This land was in his power like the sea, there was no dyke<sup>e</sup> of <sup>4</sup>the people to withstand its fury. All the people were like birds upon its <sup>1</sup>—, the tempest — his —, suspended — like the heavens. <sup>5</sup>All the temples of Thebes were like marshes.

On this day Amon caused to appear in Opet, the [barque] of his (portable) image —; <sup>6</sup>when he had entered the “Great House”<sup>f</sup> of his barque of this temple.

744. Then one of the prophets of Amon addressed to the

---

<sup>a</sup>Hieratic inscription on the inner wall, in the northwest corner of the hypostyle of the Luxor temple. Published, in transcription only, by Daressy, Recueil, 18, 181–84.

<sup>b</sup>Exactly 62 cm.; Daressy, Recueil, 20, 80, CLIX. Its height is determined by the record on the quai at Karnak (§ 696, No. 5).

<sup>c</sup>This calendar date for the high level of the inundation does not at all correspond to the place of the calendar in the seasons at this time as fixed by well-authenticated dates in other periods. Hieratic dates are usually very cursive, and there is little doubt that the transliteration is here incorrect.

<sup>d</sup>Nw or nwn.

<sup>e</sup>Or: “canal” (c -mw).

<sup>f</sup>This is the shrine which occupies the middle of the sacred barque, the whole being borne on the shoulders of priests.

god a long hymn of forty-two lines, consisting mainly of conventional phrases common in such compositions, but it contained, of course, an appeal to moderate the inundation, which is, however, too fragmentary to be intelligible.

---

STATUE INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

745. This inscription contains only a prayer of the king, but the blessings for which he prays are of great political significance. He desires that his descendants may rule over the high priests of Amon, the chiefs of the Meshwesh, and the prophets of Harsaphes. The power of the last is evident from the long genealogy of Harpeson, whose ancestor, Namlot, a son of Osorkon II, was appointed by this king as High Priest of Harsaphes at Heracleopolis and governor of the South, with military command (§ 787, No. 11).<sup>b</sup>

746. The distribution of territory among these nobles was evidently thus: Thebes controlled at least from lower Nubia to Siut;<sup>c</sup> Heracleopolis, probably from Siut to the Delta; and the Meshwesh chieftains held the Delta cities, as formerly. Egypt was thus clearly divided at this time into feudal principalities, more or less responsible to the Bubastite Pharaoh. It is for the control of this tottering state by his descendants, that Osorkon II prays as follows:

---

<sup>a</sup>Granite stela, held by a kneeling statue of Osorkon II, at Tanis, doubtless the one published by Petrie (Tanis, XIV, No. 3; VI, 41, A.C.D.), as Daressy has noticed (Recueil, 18, 49); although Petrie thought the statue was one of Ramses II usurped by Osorkon II (op. cit., 25). It was seen and copied by de Rougé (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 71, 72), and published again by Daressy (loc. cit.).

<sup>b</sup>The same Namlot was High Priest of Amon, and thus ruled at Thebes also (§ 789).

<sup>c</sup>The northern boundary is fixed by the will of Yewelot (§ 741); the southern is probable from the mention of "gold of Khenhennofer" given by the High Priest of Amon, Osorkon (§ 770), although this gold might have been secured in trade. For Heracleopolis we have no data as to its boundaries, except that it probably began control where that of Thebes ended, viz., at Siut.

747. May my issue —, the seed that has come forth from my limbs, rule<sup>a</sup> — <sup>8</sup>the great — of Egypt, the hereditary princes:<sup>b</sup> the high priests of Amon-Re, king of gods, the great chiefs of Me and — <sup>9</sup>— —,<sup>c</sup> the prophets of Harsaphes, king of South and North, while I command that his servant come down to — —, <sup>10</sup>and he inclines their hearts toward the Son of Re, Meriamon-Sibast-Osorkon (II); may he put them — <sup>11</sup>— [—]. Thou shalt establish my children in the [offices] <sup>12</sup>which I have given to them; let not the heart of brother be exalted [against] his brother. [As <sup>13</sup>for] Queen Kerome, may he grant that she stand before me at these <sup>14</sup>my<sup>1</sup> feasts. [May he <sup>14</sup>grant] that her male children and her —<sup>d</sup> may live, <sup>15</sup>that they may go at the head of the army, and that they bring back to me [their] report <sup>16</sup>[concerning] the —.<sup>e</sup>

JUBILEE INSCRIPTIONS<sup>f</sup>

748. In his twenty-second year Osorkon II celebrated his first jubilee. At Bubastis the king erected a hall in the temple for the celebration of this feast, which he therefore called the “jubilee-hall.” One of the surviving blocks carries the following record<sup>g</sup> of the erection of the building:

Appearance<sup>h</sup> of the majesty of this august god, beginning the way, to rest in the jubilee-house, which his majesty made anew,<sup>i</sup> of — —; all its walls are of electrum, the columns — —.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “command” (ts).

<sup>b</sup>I take it that, in apposition with the preceding, three classes are enumerated: (1) high priests of Amon; (2) chiefs of the Meshwesh and ——— (?); (3) prophets of Heracleopolis.

<sup>c</sup>According to Daressy, this word ends in tyw and has the determinative of foreigners; but Rougé gives it the ending kʿ, with the same determinative. It may therefore be the Libyan Kehek (khk).

<sup>d</sup>One would expect “female children” in the lacuna, but there is hardly room, and the restoration would not fit the following context.

<sup>e</sup>A name of foreigners ending in ywd! The fragments of the remaining five lines I do not understand.

<sup>f</sup>Blocks from the jubilee-hall of the great temple at Bubastis, published by Naville, The Festival Hall of Osorkon II (London).

<sup>g</sup>Naville, op. cit., Pl. VI.

<sup>h</sup>The appearance of the procession bearing Amon in his shrine; this was depicted in a relief which the inscription accompanied.

<sup>i</sup>Or possibly: “for the first time.”

749. The walls of this building bore a long series of reliefs depicting the elaborate ceremonies accompanying the celebration of the jubilee. These are almost all of religious significance and connection; but one of the ceremonies is of great historical importance. It was, perhaps, the opening rite of the jubilee, for it commemorated the assumption of power by the king. He is shown in a relief<sup>a</sup> seated on a portable throne, of the greatest simplicity, and borne on the shoulders of his servants. The scene is accompanied by the words:

Carrying the king, sitting upon the portable throne; procession of the king to the palace.

Beneath the throne are inscribed the words:

All lands, all countries, Upper Retenu, Lower Retenu, all inaccessible countries are under the feet of this Good God.<sup>b</sup>

750. Above the scene is an inscription which indicates clearly the nature of the particular event commemorated, viz., the assumption by the king of the responsibility for the protection of the land. That this was a characteristic, if not the chief, ceremony of the jubilee (hb-sd) is shown by the words of the conquered Hermopolitans to Piankhi: "Celebrate for us a jubilee (hb-sd), even as thou hast protected the Hare nome" (§ 848, l. 61). It is not evident why the ministering women of the Theban temple should be given so much attention. The prominence of Amon, who dominates the ceremony, is noteworthy. Probably the most important fact furnished by the inscription is the statement that Thebes is exempt from inspection by the royal fiscal officers, who do not even go thither. It would thus appear that Thebes was not taxed by the Bubastites, at least not by Osorkon II. This conclusion is substantiated by the long list of offerings to Amon, recorded by the High Priest of Amon, Osorkon, in his own name, under Takelot II and Sheshonk III (§§ 756 ff.).

<sup>a</sup>Ibid.

<sup>b</sup>The identification of Osorkon II, because of this inscription, with Zerah the Ethiopian, who, according to 2 Chron. 14:8, invaded Judah in Asa's time, hardly needs any refutation.

751. The inscription is as follows:

Assumption of Government

Year 22, fourth month of the first season (occurred) the appearance of the king in the temple (h' t-ntr) of Amon, which is in the jubilee-hall, resting on the portable throne; and the assumption of the protection of the Two Lands by the king, the protection of the sacred women of the house of Amon, and the protection of all the women of his city, who have been maid-servants since the time of the fathers, even the maid-servants in every house,<sup>a</sup> who are assessed for their service yearly.

Royal Offerings

Lo, his majesty sought great benefactions for his father, Amon-Re, when he (Amon) decreed the first jubilee for his son, who rests upon his throne, that he might decree for him a great multitude (of jubilees) in Thebes, mistress of the Nine Bows.

Exemption of Thebes

Said the king in the presence of his father, Amon: "I have protected Thebes in her height and in her breadth, pure, delivered to her lord. No inspectors of the king's-house (pr-stny) journey to her; her people are protected forever,<sup>b</sup> in the great name of the Good God."

---

<sup>a</sup>Temple.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "two sixty-year periods."

REIGN OF TAKELOT II

GRAFFITO OF HARSIESE<sup>a</sup>

752. This document, while furnishing some data of importance regarding hereditary claims among the priests of Amon, is valuable also for its confirmation of the arrival of Osorkon as High Priest at Thebes in the eleventh year of Takelot II. It is dated four months and eleven days after the date of the beginning of his annals (§ 760), and furnishes us the exact day of his arrival in Thebes.<sup>b</sup> The occasion is the feast of Khonsu, and a priest in the Karnak temple of Thutmose III, probably named Harsiese, improved the opportunity of the new High Priest's presence to present a family claim. The document is as follows:

Date

753. Year 11 under the majesty of the king, the Lord of the Two Lands, Meriamon-Siese-Takelot (II), given life forever; the first month of the third season, day 11.

Arrival of the High Priest

On this day there arrived at Thebes, the victorious, the eye of Re, mistress of temples, bright dwelling of Amon of the hidden name, his city of r—1, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army, Osorkon, triumphant, royal son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Takelot II, living forever; at his beautiful feast<sup>c</sup> of the first (month) of the third season.

---

<sup>a</sup>Cut on one of the roofing-blocks of the rear of the great Karnak temple built by Thutmose III. Now in the Louvre; published: Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 162-64; Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 255, i; Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1071-73. I had also my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>As the bulk of his term of office fell in the reign of Sheshonk III, the five years of his annals falling under Takelot II are herein placed with the reign of Sheshonk III (§§ 756-70).

<sup>c</sup>The Feast of Khonsu, after whom the month is named.

Claim of Harsiese

There came the great priest (w<sup>c</sup> b) of the house of Amon, serving his month in "Glorious-in-Monuments,"<sup>a</sup> in the third phyle, Harsi[fese] — — — — —<sup>b</sup> triumphant, before the governor of the South, saying: "I am the c k-priest of Karnak, I am the son of the great prophets of Amon, through my mother."

754. Harsiese then presents some hereditary claim, the nature of which is not entirely clear, but probably he claimed the hereditary right to cleanse the temple, its utensils, or the wardrobe of the god. The High Priest granted him his claim; whereupon he immediately exercised his family privilege, and, to prevent any further question as to his rights, he engraved the above record of the facts on the roof of the great Karnak temple.

STELA OF KEROME<sup>c</sup>

755. This monument is primarily important because it furnishes the highest known date of Takelot II's reign, year 25. It records the gift of 35 stat of land to a princess, and singer of the temple of Amon, Kerome; but whether for her tomb or for her support in the temple, does not appear. A relief at the top shows Amon and Khonsu on the left, before whom, emerging from a chapel or possibly a sarcophagus on the right, appears Kerome, holding a roll of papyrus, and praying to the said gods. The roll is probably to be considered as the deed for the land. Below is the following:

<sup>a</sup>y<sup>o</sup> h<sup>w</sup> mnw; evidently a designation of the Amon-temple; the same building is mentioned on a mummy of the Twenty-first Dynasty (Daressy, Annales, IV, 10 of tirage à part); and as early as Haremhab the goddess Amonet (feminine of Amon) is once called "Resident in 'Glorious-in-Monuments'" (Recueil, 23, 64) on her statue found in the great temple of Karnak. The place of our inscription on the roof of the hall of Thutmose III shows what part of the temple was so called. The name is therefore clearly the one which he gave it, shortened by the omission of his name at the beginning. See II, p. 237, n. f., and II, 560.

<sup>b</sup>The name and titles of his father filled the lacuna.

<sup>c</sup>Found in an Osiris-chapel by the pylon of Thutmose I at Karnak, by Legrain in 1902; published by him in Annales, IV, but without data as to size and material.

Year 25 of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Takelot (II),<sup>a</sup> living forever; the High Priest of Amon, Osorkon.

On this day were confirmed the 35 stat of citizen-lands, to the singer of the temple of Amon, the king's-daughter, Kerome.

---

<sup>a</sup>The name as written contains no indication by which we can determine which of the two Takelots is meant; but as there is no known High Priest of Amon, Osorkon, under Takelot I, it is evident that we are dealing with Takelot II, under whom we know from other monuments (§§ 752 ff.) that there was a high priest Osorkon. Legrain's statement that this High Priest Osorkon became King Osorkon II, is thus an error.

REIGN OF SHESHONK III

ANNALS OF THE HIGH PRIEST OF AMON, OSORKON<sup>a</sup>

756. This High Priest is better known to us than any of the princes of the Bubastite family who held that office, although the remarkable records which he left, owing to their mutilated condition, have never been studied or understood in their entirety. He began his term in the eleventh year of Takelot II, and was still in office in the thirty-ninth year of Sheshonk III (§ 698, No. 17); he thus served at least fifty-four years. He left a series of temple records in the great Karnak temple, which may be fairly termed his annals.<sup>b</sup> They cover fifteen years of Takelot II's reign, and much of the following reign of Sheshonk III; but they cannot be conveniently divided, and are, therefore, treated here under the reign of Sheshonk III. They begin with Osorkon's appointment to the office of High Priest of Amon; or, if not his appointment, at least some significant date (the first of Tybi), four months and eleven days before his arrival at Thebes to take up the duties of his office (§ 753). This took place at the Feast of Khonsu, in his father's eleventh year, and was accompanied by rich offerings, many signs of the god's favor, and the acclamations of all Thebes. In response to the flattery of the priests, he introduces a new calendar of offerings.

---

<sup>a</sup>These records are the longest inscriptions on the Bubastite gate. They are all on the inside (north side) of the gate on both sides of the door, and begin at the east side of the door (year 11), jump to the west wall at right angles to the door-wall west of the door (years 12-15), and, turning the corner, proceed on the door-wall, west of the door (year 11 of Takelot II to 29 of Sheshonk III). The vertical lines of the inscriptions are surmounted by a relief on each side of the door. The inscriptions are in a frightfully mutilated state, and no modern copy from the original has been published. The publications and materials at my disposal will be found with the translations.

<sup>b</sup>They are in such a fragmentary condition and so insufficiently published that of many parts only a summary could be given, in the following translations. Closer study would bring out some facts not noted in the following sketch.

757. In the year 15 there occurred a remarkable prodigy of uncertain nature, but in some way connected with the moon. This natural phenomenon was accompanied by a long and serious civil war. Osorkon left Thebes and, as we afterward find him with his father's courtiers, we might suppose that he went to Bubastis, but for the fact that his return journey to Thebes was northward. With some of his father's court, therefore, he withdrew to the south. One of his sisters, Shepnesopdet, had married Zekhonsefonekh, a great noble of Thebes, who bore all the titles of power except those of the king and the High Priest,<sup>a</sup> and the presence of such a son-in-law of the king at Thebes would be a fruitful source of jealousy and friction. Years of hostility between the former followers of Osorkon's father passed; Osorkon's part in these events is not entirely clear, but he at last constrains his father's followers to peace, and some compromise with his enemies must have been effected. The unhappy events passed are attributed to the displeasure of the god, Osorkon orders his people to prepare a great propitiatory offering, and with many ships and a numerous following he returns amid great rejoicing to Thebes.

758. Here he consults Amon, as the offering is presented, regarding the god's purposes toward Thebes. Osorkon's question, "Dost thou do to Thebes as thou hast done to them?" shows that not only other revolters, already punished, but also Thebes had been implicated in the hostility against himself. It is evident that the compromise involved the exemption of the Thebans from punishment, for, in response to Osorkon's question, the god delivered an oracle in their favor; whereupon the Thebans broke out in praise of their magnanimous High Priest. Although not recorded in his annals, Osorkon's struggles to maintain himself were not yet passed; for in the sixth year of Sheshonk III we find another High Priest named Harsiese at Thebes (§ 698, No. 16). How and when Osorkon regained his power at Thebes the second time<sup>a</sup> it is not possible to determine.

---

<sup>a</sup>See the genealogy and connections of this powerful family, Legrain, Recueil, 27, 75-78, especially 77-78.

759. Osorkon's annals pass on from his first return to a long list of offerings to the Theban temples, beginning in the eleventh year of Takelot II, and continuing to the twenty-eighth year of Sheshonk III. A final line adds those of the year 29. This table is important, for it shows that the temples of Thebes were supported at this time by the High Priest, and his offerings were recorded in his name alone, with no reference to the Bubastite king. From a graffito in the temple (§ 753), as already stated, we know that Osorkon ruled at least ten years longer at Thebes. That is, until the thirty-ninth year of Sheshonk III.

I. EAST OF DOOR<sup>b</sup>

760. A relief in duplicate at the top shows Takelot II, accompanied by his son, the High Priest of Amon, Osorkon, before Amon. The accompanying inscriptions, containing

---

<sup>a</sup>Should it turn out that the stela of Kerome of year 25 (§ 755) belongs to Takelot I, and not to Takelot II (which would give us another high priest Osorkon under Takelot I), then the civil war and Osorkon's withdrawal from Thebes in the year 15 were caused by the death of Takelot II, and the intervening rule of the other high priest, Harsiese, till year 6 of Sheshonk III, is an incident in the same series of events. In that case Osorkon was expelled but once from Thebes.

<sup>b</sup>Published: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 257, a; Lepsius, Auswahl der wichtigsten Urkunden, 15; Champollion, Monuments, 277, 1; Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 20, 21 (last three containing only reliefs or accompanying inscriptions, "Beischriften").

the titles of those depicted, add nothing to the content of the inscription below, which is as follows:

Appointment of Osorkon

<sup>1</sup>Year 11, first month of the second season, day 1, under the majesty of King Takelot II ———. . . . .<sup>a</sup> [went<sup>1</sup> the High Priest of Amon-]Re, commander in chief of the whole army, the leader, Osorkon, born of the hereditary princess, great in favor, great king's-wife [Kerome], ———.

Here follows the same long series of epithets of praise, belonging to the High Priest Osorkon, as in the inscription of the year 12 (§ 762). These merge into the acclamations of Thebes, as in l. 5: "Thebes betakes herself to thee." Osorkon then apparently entered the city and offered sacrifice to Amon (l. 6). Then, probably on a second appointed day, he entered the temple (l. 8), and performed the ritual of Amon, at the same time presenting an offering (l. 9), which was the first installment of a new and richer calendar of offerings (l. 10).

761. The god then appeared in procession (l. 11), and the High Priest in his capacity as "Pillar-of-his-Mother" (yn-mw·t·f) presented himself (l. 11). The god visibly expressed his satisfaction, as when a father receives marks of affection from a son (l. 12), whereupon the whole priesthood of the temple, of all ranks, came forward (l. 12), and all together, with one accord, joined in praising Osorkon as him whom Amon had appointed to his high office (l. 13). Their speech continues probably to l. 17, and apparently contained no more than the phraseology usual on such occasions. In l. 18 Osorkon is speaking, and announcing the new and rich calendar of offerings, which he is founding. The content of his further address (ll. 18-25?) is uncertain, but it probably concludes with an exhortation to the officers of the temple faithfully to administer his foundations. He then enumerates the lists of the new calendar of offerings (ll. 26-35), which is very fragmentary, but shows the usual items where preserved. It concluded with the customary curse:

---

<sup>a</sup>Epithets of the king.

As for him who shall injure this stela, which I have made, he shall fall under the blade of Amon-Re.

II. WEST OF DOOR<sup>a</sup>

762. A relief at the top showing Osorkon offering before Amon, surmounts the following inscription:

Date

<sup>1</sup>Year 12, first month of the first season, day 9, under the majesty of Horus: Mighty Bull, [Shining] in Thebes, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Lord of Offering: Kheperhezre-Setepnere; Son of Re, of his body: Meriamon-Siese-Takelot (II). . . . . ———. Lo, his eldest son was 'in the land' [the High Priest of Amon-Re], king of gods, commander in chief of the army, Osorkon — — —.

Lines 2-5 then proceed with a series of conventional epithets of praise and laudation, usually applied to kings, which, owing to the mention of the High Priest Osorkon at the end of l. 1, must refer to him.<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>On the arrangement of this inscription, see § 756, note; published: Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 256, a, 258, a, b; Brugsch, Thésaurus, V, 1225-30 (only upper ends of lines). The passage regarding the alleged eclipse, is in confusion in Lepsius, Denkmäler, two sheets of the squeeze having exchanged places. This error was corrected by Goodwin (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1868, 25 ff.) from the rough copy in Young's Hieroglyphics. I had a collation of the Berlin squeezes by Mr. Alan Gardiner, who kindly placed it at my disposal; it covered the first half of the monument (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 256, a).

<sup>b</sup>The same occur in the corresponding place in the inscription of year 11 (§ 760, ll. 2-5). Mr. Gardiner noticed that they express Osorkon's favor and power with the king, in successive phrases, taking up the latter's titles in the order of the fivefold titulary.

Arrival of Osorkon

763. Then l. 6 narrates that

He came in our time, in the year [1]1,<sup>a</sup> [— —] bearing her<sup>b</sup> festal offerings, that he might set her in festivity ———. They rejoiced at seeing him, making festive her offerings, and supplying her altars with every good, pure, and pleasant [thing], in order to increase the daily offerings.

Civil War

764. <sup>7</sup>Now, afterward, in the year 15, fourth month of the third season, day 25, under the majesty of his august father,<sup>c</sup> the divine ruler of Thebes, before heaven devoured the moon,<sup>d</sup> [great]<sup>e</sup> wrath arose in this land like — — the [hated]<sup>f</sup> and the rebels. They set warfare in the South and North ——— not ceasing to fight against those who were therein and those who<sup>f</sup> followed his father; while years passed<sup>g</sup> [in] hostility (hsj-ꜥ) (each) one seizing upon his neighbor, [not]<sup>h</sup> remem-

<sup>a</sup>There is no doubt about this restoration, which corresponds with the statement of the graffito (§ 753), that the High Priest Osorkon came to Thebes in the year 11. The restoration also fits the space in the lacuna exactly; but it should be said that this space on the squeeze shows no trace of 10.

<sup>b</sup>Referring to Thebes.

<sup>c</sup>See the passage as read from the squeeze by Lepsius (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1868, 29, note). The long discussions regarding the king here meant might have been avoided, had the consecutive narrative ever been worked out. The adverb “afterward” is of itself sufficient to show that the date must be later than the last preceding date, which as we have seen, is year 11. “His august father” is therefore clearly the High Priest Osorkon’s father, Takelot II, the then reigning king.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., “heaven not having devoured the moon.” There is no word or phrase in Egyptian for “not yet;” see my New Chapter, 11, (5). This is the famous passage supposed by Brugsch to record an eclipse of the moon. This seems to me possible only on the basis of the rendering I have adopted, according to which the meaning may be: “just before new moon;” or possibly: “just before an eclipse of the moon.” The controversy on the subject will be found in Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1868 (Goodwin, 25 ff.; Brugsch, 29 ff.; Chabas, 49 ff.); but the above rendering was not there discussed.

<sup>e</sup>The squeeze shows n and a papyrus roll; the frequency of the phrase, nšn ꜥꜥ, suggested to Chabas the emendation of our nšn n (which is grammatically impossible), and the emendation is probably correct.

<sup>f</sup>Read nty m ht, as at the beginning of l. 12.

<sup>g</sup>Gardiner’s collation.

bering his 'son'<sup>a</sup> to 'protect' him who came forth from him. He<sup>b</sup> was satisfied in his heart, leading excellent — to his every beautiful hall.

Osorkon's Address to the Court

765. Said this governor<sup>c</sup> of the South to his nobles, the companions 'of' his father who were by his side: ". . . . ."

The details of this speech are totally obscure, but it is evident that Osorkon is exhorting them to peace.<sup>d</sup> He appeals (l. 9) to his authority in Thebes,<sup>e</sup> and apparently attributes the disturbance to Re, who must be appeased with offerings.

Fidelity of the Court

766. "[Now,]<sup>f</sup> when he had finished speaking these words to his hearers, their hearts ['rejoiced'].<sup>g</sup>" They assured him: "All thy [designs], they come to pass. Now, when we offer to the god, he will 'restore' the land." The remainder of the speech is again uncertain, but the fragments show that they were faithful to him (l. 11).

Return to Thebes

767. Then said to them this governor of the South: "— — ['gather'] this army into one place, that we may build for him a 'colonnade'.<sup>f</sup>"

<sup>a</sup>Gardiner's collation. This son may be the heir to the throne at Bubastis, or Osorkon, the High Priest.

<sup>b</sup>From here to the close of the paragraph I have no idea of the connection or meaning.

<sup>c</sup>The High Priest, Osorkon.

<sup>d</sup>I can make out: "Ye were (wn'fn) the counselors of him who begat me — ye shall not fight '————'" (l. 8).

<sup>e</sup>He says: "I found not a way of knowing her welfare."

<sup>f</sup>Mr. Gardiner read the determinative as the legs; but after the verb "build," "colonnade" is the only noun that can possibly be rendered for the consonants wdy't. One naturally thinks of the Bubastite colonnade at the gate bearing this inscription, but its architraves bear the name of Sheshonk I. Its continuation, however, on the same side of the forecourt, and the entire opposite side, are uninscribed. The remainder of our inscription, moreover, does not refer to the collection of building material, but the gathering and bringing of offerings. But it must be remembered that much of the inscription is lost.

Then it was done according to that which [he] had said. They brought their — to the ships, even all his things that were numbered as his property. [Then came] <sup>12</sup>those who followed him, both men and women, the court of his father,<sup>a</sup> the troops of his following, without number. Moreover, there were many ships, every one thereof [bearing] their offerings.

All these people brought their gifts and came with <sup>13</sup>“heart rejoicing, because he was justified in their hearts like the son of Osiris.”

Arrival at Thebes

768. “Then he stationed people before his advance and behind him, rejoicing to heaven.” They proceeded on the voyage toward Thebes in festivity, like Horus sailing north<sup>b</sup> at the Feast of Rekeh (Rkh) . . . . . <sup>14</sup>— —<sup>1</sup> his troops were like a flock of wild fowl. He arrived at the time of verdure, they came before him, with a heart of love to his victorious [city]. Then they found Thebes rejoicing and Karnak in [jubilee] — — because of the arrival in her ————— in Southern Heliopolis.

Presentation of the Offering

Then he made a great oblation ————— <sup>15</sup>bulls, gazelles, antelopes, oryxes, fattened geese in tens of thousands and thousands ————— . . . . . ————— a flood of wine —————, flowers, honey, and shedeh likewise, — measures (ddmt) of incense. Then he presented — these [things to] the great god in Thebes. . . . . <sup>16</sup>. . . . . This august god was brought forth in procession, to adorn this his oblation, while his divine enead, with rejoicing heart, were receiving it.

Amon Pardons Thebans

769. “The High Priest of Amon, Osorkon, spake to the great god, and his army spake in praising [him]: ‘. . . . .’” They now address appealing questions to the god, among which can be discerned: <sup>17</sup>“Dost thou do to Thebes as thou hast done to them?”<sup>a</sup> But the following three lines (18–20), containing but a few scattered signs, fail to reveal the nature of their further address. Their appeal was successful, for the god responded (l. 1)<sup>b</sup> with the usual signs of favor and acquiescence. Thebes was thus spared, and the Thebans joined in praise of Osorkon and Amon, promising the god the most plentiful offerings (ll. 2–4).

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “of him that begat him,” as in l. 8 (§ 765).

<sup>b</sup>This evidently indicates the direction of Osorkon's voyage, not that of Horus only.

Summary of Osorkon's Offerings

770. The narrative now passes over a long period and begins a retrospect of Osorkon's benefactions from the beginning of his rule at Thebes, which Osorkon himself states as a “list of all the benefactions which I did for them for the first time, from the year 11 under [the majesty of Takelot II]<sup>c</sup> to the year 28, under the majesty of Sheshonk III.”

After a list of myrrh, incense, honey, and oil (l. 7) follows a statement of precious metals given to Amon, Mut, and Khonsu, among which “fine gold of Khenthennofer” twice appears (ll. 8 and 9). Later are offerings of “the High <sup>a</sup>Meaning: “wilt thou punish Thebes as thou hast punished them?” for the preposition is r, lit., “against.” Who is meant by “them” is uncertain, but it would appear that other revolters had been severely punished, and that Thebes, being implicated, appeals to Amon for mercy.

<sup>b</sup>The inscription now passes from the west to the south wall, and Lepsius begins a new numbering of lines (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 258, a, b = Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 1227–30); but he knew that the inscription of the south wall was the continuation of that of the west wall (Text, III, 11).

<sup>c</sup>As we know that Osorkon arrived in Thebes in the year 11 of Takelot II, and that he made his first offering calendar in that year (§ 753), there can be no doubt about the restoration. Osorkon's term of office at that time, from year 11 of Takelot II to year 28 of Sheshonk III, thus rests on better evidence than that heretofore drawn from this inscription (Maspero, Momies royales, 741, 742). Of course, the interruption by the civil war just narrated is taken for granted, and not referred to in giving the chronological limits of his term of office, at the time when the record was made.

Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Osorkon, from the year 22<sup>a</sup> to the year 26<sup>b</sup> (l. 12), among which appears the income of the goddess Mat (l. 15); after which the income of Amon in the year 25 is itemized (l. 17), followed by that of Mut (l. 17). The last line (22), perhaps added later, contains the income of Amon and Hathor in the year 29.<sup>c</sup>

FIRST SERAPEUM STELA OF PEDIESE<sup>d</sup>

771. This Libyan commander was a great-grandson of Osorkon II, who lived in the time of Sheshonk III, in whose twenty-eighth year he erected, in the Serapeum, the votive stela under discussion. He gives his genealogy, which is as follows (adding his two sons):

<sup>a</sup>It is not evident why he should begin a subsection with the year 22. This is his earliest date under Sheshonk III. Does it mark the beginning of Osorkon's restoration to office after the rule of Harsiese, who was High Priest in his absence?

<sup>b</sup>So Lepsius and Maspero, Momies royales, 741 (collation of original); Brugsch has 28.

<sup>c</sup>The mention of Sheshonk III in l. 7 shows clearly that this date belongs to his reign. Maspero's attribution of it to Takelot II (Empires, 165, note 2) is therefore an inadvertence. He attributed it correctly, Momies royales, 741.

<sup>d</sup>Found by Mariette in the Serapeum; now in the Louvre (No. 18); published by Mariette, Fouilles, Pl. 36 (not seen); Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 24; Chassinat, Recueil, 22, 9, 10. I had also my own copy of the original.

<sup>e</sup>Not on our stela, but on another of the second year of Pemou (§ 781), as noticed by Lepsius, Zweiundzwanzigste Dynastie, 276, note.

772. As the Sheshonk mentioned (No. 2) is distinctly called "great first hereditary prince," it can hardly be doubted that he is the prince who became Sheshonk II; but as his name is not inclosed in a cartouche, we may regard this as another evidence that he was never more than coregent, as indicated by the quai-records at Karnak (§ 696, No. 13). His son Takelot cannot be Takelot II; otherwise we should expect him to be called king. The above quai-record, furthermore, calls Takelot II son of Osorkon II.

773. The burial of an Apis in the twenty-eighth year of Sheshonk III having given Pediese opportunity to erect this stela, he took part in the search for the new Apis in the same year, and conducted its burial twenty-six years later in the second year of Pemou, when he erected a second stela (§§ 778-81).

774. The first stela is as follows:

Year 28, King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Usermare-Setepnamon; Son [of Re], Lord of Diadems: Meriamon - Sibast - Sheshonk (III)- Nuterhekon.

Below, three men are praying before the sacred bull. They are accompanied by the following inscriptions,<sup>a</sup> showing them to be father and two sons:

1. His beloved favorite, the great chief of Me, Pediese, triumphant, son of the great chief of Me, Takelot, triumphant; his mother was Theseperebast (Ts-B>s-t-pr-t), triumphant; son of the great first hereditary prince of his majesty, Sheshonk,<sup>b</sup> triumphant, royal son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Usermare-Setepnamon (Osorkon II),<sup>c</sup> given life like Re.

2. His beloved favorite, High Priest of Ptah, Pefnefdibast, triumphant, son of the great chief of Me, Pediese, triumphant; his mother was Tere (T<sup>3</sup>-ȝȝ), triumphant, daughter of the great chief of Me, Takelot,<sup>a</sup> triumphant.

<sup>a</sup>These are repeated in horizontal lines below the figures. Both versions are combined in the translation.

<sup>b</sup>Who became coregent as Sheshonk II.

<sup>c</sup>The prenomen does not differ from that of Sheshonk III, but the variant gives Osorkon.

3. His beloved favorite, sem priest of Ptah, Takelot, triumphant, son of the great chief of Me, Pediese, triumphant.

Heretibsuten, triumphant, made it.

---

RECORD OF INSTALLATION<sup>b</sup>

775. This brief document is a graffito such as the officials of this age were wont to cut upon the walls at Karnak, in commemoration of their installation or promotion in office. It bears the latest surviving date of the High Priest Osorkon, and also informs us that his brother, Bekneptah, was commander at Heracleopolis in the year 39 of Sheshonk III. Bekneptah must, therefore, have interrupted the succession of Harpeson's family in that office at Heracleopolis.<sup>c</sup> Osorkon and Bekneptah are here making common cause, "overthrowing all who fought against them."

776. This can hardly be a reminiscence of the trouble which interrupted Osorkon's rule at Thebes (§ 758). The interim in the power of the ruling family at Heracleopolis, by the installation of Osorkon's brother, Bekneptah, doubtless explains the origin of the trouble referred to. Osorkon and Bekneptah, sons of Takelot II, probably expelled from Heracleopolis the line established there by Osorkon II. This offers an interesting parallel to the expulsion from Thebes of the High Priest Osorkon himself, and suggests, at least, that he may have owed his expulsion to the Heracleopolitans, on whom he has now retaliated. Did their recov-

---

<sup>a</sup>Hence his mother was both sister and wife of his father.

<sup>b</sup>Graffito on one of the Middle Kingdom blocks behind the sanctuary of the great temple of Karnak; published by Legrain, Recueil, 22, 55, No. 7.

<sup>c</sup>He would fall in the generations Nos. 12-14 or thereabout (§ 787).

ery of Heracleopolis then bring Osorkon's long career at Thebes to a close?

777. Year 39, — month of the third season, day 26, under the majesty of King Sheshonk III, living forever.

Behold, the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, governor of the South, the chief Osorkon, [son of King] Takelot II, living forever, was in Thebes, celebrating the feast of Amon with a single heart, with his brother, chief commander of the army of Heracleopolis, Bekneptah, ———— overthrowing all who fought against them. On this day was installed the chief judge, governor of the city, and vizier, —hor—<sup>a</sup> . . . in the great and august throne of Amon . . . . .<sup>b</sup>

---

<sup>a</sup>The man's name, of which beginning and end are lost; his parentage followed.

<sup>b</sup>The remainder is an address of the installed official, mostly unintelligible as published.

REIGN OF PEMOU

SECOND SERAPEUM STELA OF PEDIESE<sup>a</sup>

778. Pediese, who had erected a stela at the burial of an Apis in the twenty-eighth year of Sheshonk III (§§ 771-74), records the successful search for another in the same year, and the death of the sacred animal twenty-six years later, in the second year of Pemou. Pediese has, meantime, become High Priest of Ptah; as such he conducted the burial of this Apis, and recorded the whole in this second stela. The length of life of the animal, given as twenty-six years, enables us to establish the length of Sheshonk III's reign, thus:

Apis born in year 28 of Sheshonk III.

Apis died in year 2 of Pemou.

Apis lived 26 years.

Length of Sheshonk III's reign, 52 years.<sup>b</sup>

779. The stela is surmounted by a relief showing the Apis in human form, with head of a bull, accompanied by the goddess of the west. Three people, praying before them, are designated as:

1. Great chief of the Me, Pediese, triumphant, son of the great chief of the Meshwesh,<sup>c</sup> Takelot, triumphant.

---

<sup>a</sup>Found by Mariette in the Serapeum; now in the Louvre (No. 34); published by Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 26; Brugsch, Thesaurus, 967; Chassinat, Recueil; I had also my own copy of the original. The monument exists in duplicate; the second (Louvre, No. 36): Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 27. Two other stela, of value in corroborating the dates, commemorate this Apis: Louvre, No. 35; Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 28; and Louvre, No. 276, not published by Mariette.

<sup>b</sup>For the possibility of another Sheshonk, between Sheshonk III and Pemou, thus shortening the reign of Sheshonk III (though without lengthening the dynasty), see quai-records (§ 698, No. 18, n. d).

<sup>c</sup>This proves that Me is an abbreviation for Meshwesh, for this Takelot, the father of Pediese, occurs as "chief of Me," on the preceding stela (§ 774).

2. Sem priest of Ptah, Harsiese ———.

3. ———.

780. Below them is the following inscription:

[Year] 2,<sup>a</sup> second month of the second season, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Usermare-Setepnamon, given life; Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Meriamon-Pemou,<sup>b</sup> given life, stability, satisfaction, like Re, forever, beloved of Apis, son of First of the Westerners, the great god.

On this day the god was conducted in peace to the beautiful west, (to) his burial in the cemetery, to lay him to rest in the eternal house, in his everlasting seat. Now, he was born in the year 28 in the time of the majesty of King Sheshonk III, triumphant. They sought his beauty in every place of the Northland, and he was found at the temple of Shedebod<sup>c</sup> (Šd-ybd), after three months, when they had gone around the regions of the Delta, and every district of the Northland.

781. He was conducted to Memphis, to his father, "Ptah-South-of-his-Wall," by the High Priest of Ptah, sem priest in the house of Ptah, great chief of the Meshwesh, Pediese, son of the High Priest of Ptah, sem priest, [great chief of] the Meshwesh, Takelot, born of the king's-daughter, of his body, his beloved Thesperebast; in the year 28, second month of the first season. The beautiful life<sup>d</sup> of this god was 26 years.

<sup>a</sup>I read a fragmentary first stroke immediately following the lacuna, making three; but another stela (No. 276, my own copy) gives the date as "year 2, second month of the second season, day 1." The two other stelæ relating the burial of this Apis have lost still more, and do not aid in restoring the number.

<sup>b</sup>The first half of this part of the name is broken out, but is perfectly preserved on one of the duplicates (No. 35).

<sup>c</sup>Unknown place.

<sup>d</sup>Corrected from Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 27, l. 7 (c k c n/r).

REIGN OF SHESHONK IV

STELA OF WESHTEHET<sup>a</sup>

782. This interesting stela records Weshtehet's gift of land to the temple of Hathor in an unknown town, probably in the western Delta, called Pesebek. The importance of the monument lies in Weshtehet's office as chief caravaner of Pharaoh, controlling the intercourse with the oases of the Libyan desert; and that of his immediate superior, who was the great chief of Libya, Hetihenker, the Pharaoh's governor of a portion of the western Delta, and, perhaps, some uncertain extent of Libyan country also, including the oases. These arrangements are doubtless only the continuation of the organization of Sheshonk I. The barbarous names borne by these men are, of course, Libyan, but the chief caravaner's mother bore a name of Egyptian formation, and he himself conveyed an endowment of land to the Hathor of the town, which doubtless lay at the Egyptian terminus of his caravan route to the oases.

783. A relief at the top of the stela shows two scenes: on the left a man praying before Hathor, with the inscription: "May she give life, prosperity, health, to the great chief of Libya (R-b<sup>3</sup>);" on the right a similar scene, with the inscription: "May she give life, prosperity, health, to the chief caravaner of Pharaoh." These two men are the donator of the land, and his superior, as shown in the following inscription:

---

<sup>a</sup>Rough limestone stela, with round top broken off, 53 by 31 cm., in possession of Daninos Pacha; published from a squeeze by Maspero, Recueil, XV, 84, 85.

Date

784. <sup>1</sup>Year 19, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Okheperre (<sup>c</sup> -hpr-R<sup>c</sup>, Sheshonk IV), given life.

Donation

The chief caravaner <sup>2</sup>of Pharaoh, Weshtehet (W<sup>2</sup> -š<sup>2</sup> -ty-h<sup>2</sup> -t<sup>2</sup>), son of Newsetrekenye (N-w<sup>2</sup> -s<sup>2</sup> -ty-rw-k<sup>2</sup> -n<sup>2</sup> -yw), <sup>3</sup>whose mother is Tentseherye (Tynt-S<sup>2</sup> -h<sup>2</sup> -rw-yw), has presented five stat of land to the house of Hathor, <sup>4</sup>mistress of Malachite, under charge<sup>a</sup> of the chief of the door-keepers, Pese<sup>2</sup> eke (P<sup>2</sup> -s<sup>2</sup> -c-k<sup>2</sup>), son of <sup>5</sup>Pekenu (P<sup>2</sup> -knw), whose mother is the divine votress of Soped, Hernofer (Hr-nfr); in order to crave for him life, prosperity, health, long life, <sup>6</sup>and an advanced and happy old age, under the favor of his lord, the great chief of Libya (R-b), great chief of Me, Hetihenker (H<sup>2</sup> -ty-ḥn<sup>2</sup> -k-r); in the house of Hathor, mistress of Malachite, abiding and permanent, forever.

Curse

As for any man, or <sup>8</sup>any scribe who is sent on a commission to the district of the town of Pesebek (P<sup>2</sup> -šbk), who shall injure <sup>9</sup>this stela; they shall come under the blade of Hathor. (But) the name of him who shall establish it shall abide.

SERAPEUM STELA OF HARPESON<sup>b</sup>

785. This remarkable stela, while of the usual form of votive stela in the Serapeum, contains facts of fundamental importance in the study of the origin and internal affairs of the Twenty-second Dynasty. It was erected by one Harpeson, the military commander and High Priest of Harsaphes at Heracleopolis in the thirty-seventh year of Sheshonk IV; that is, practically at the close of the Twenty-second Dynasty.

<sup>a</sup>This is undoubtedly the rendering here, although the determinative of the preposition (r ht) is not usually the legs. To render it "after" (m ht) and connect it with the verb "crave" (dbk), ignoring the preposition, "in order to" (r), as the editor of the text has done, is not a solution of the difficulty which need be discussed.

<sup>b</sup>Discovered by Mariette in the Serapeum, now in the Louvre (No. 278); published by Lepsius, Die Zweiundzwanzigste ägyptische Königsdynastie, 267-69; Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 31. I had also my own copy of the original.

786. After recording, in the usual manner, the interment of an Apis-bull in that year, Harpeson appends the customary prayer on his own behalf, adding to his name his genealogy, ascending through fifteen generations. We thus have enumerated sixteen generations of an important family, extending from the close of the Twenty-second Dynasty back through the entire dynasty (ten generations), and six generations preceding it. The ten generations of this family thus correspond in length to the nine kings of the Twenty-second Dynasty. More important than this, however, is the fact that with the sixth generation back of Harpeson, his genealogy merges with the royal line in the person of Osorkon II. This will be clearer from the following table:<sup>a</sup>

---

<sup>a</sup>The names of kings are in spaced capitals.

- 787.
1. The Libyan, Buyuwawa
  2. Divine father of Harsaphes, great chief, Musen
  3. Divine father of Harsaphes, great chief, Nebneshi
  4. Divine father of Harsaphes, great chief, Pethut
  5. Divine father of Harsaphes, great chief, Sheshonk—king's-mother, Mehetnuskhet
  6. Divine father of Harsaphes, great chief, Namlot—Divine mother, Tentsepeh
  7. KING SHESHONK I—Divine mother, Kerome
  8. KING OSORKON I—Divine mother, Temehkhonsu
  9. KING TAKELOT I—Divine mother, Kepes
  10. KING OSORKON II—Uzmutenkhos
  11. Count, governor of the South, High Priest of Heracleopolis, commander of the army, Namlot—Priestess of Harsaphes, Tentsepeh
  12. (Same titles), Uzptahenkho—King's-daughter, Tentsepeh
  13. (Same titles), Henptah—Priestess of Harsaphes, Thenekemet
  14. (Same titles), Harpeson—Priestess of Harsaphes, Petpetdedes
  15. (Same titles), Henptah—Prophetess of Hathor, Ireteru
  16. (Same titles), Harpeson (year 37 of Sheshonk IV)

788. Back of Osorkon II, therefore, the genealogy of Harpeson becomes that of the Twenty-second Dynasty, and the Libyan, Buyuwawa, the father of his line is, therefore, the ancestor of the Twenty-second Dynasty. His immediate descendants (Nos. 2-5) also bear Libyan names, and among them is that chief of the Meshwesh, Sheshonk (No. 5), whom we found endowing his deceased son Namlot's (No. 6)<sup>a</sup> tomb at Abydos (§§ 669 ff.). Their ancestor, Buyuwawa, bears no Egyptian title, but his son, Musen, became priest of Harsaphes at Heracleopolis, and was a "great chief," of course, of the Meshwesh, like his great-grandson, Sheshonk<sup>b</sup> (No. 5). These warlike chiefs of the Libyan mercenaries so husbanded their power that after five generations at Heracleopolis they seized the throne. There is no intimation in this document of any connection with Bubastis.<sup>c</sup>

789. It is evident, therefore, that for at least a hundred years before the Twenty-second Dynasty, Heracleopolis had been the seat of a powerful family. Of the fortunes of its rulers during the first three reigns of the dynasty we learn nothing; but our genealogy shows Osorkon II appointing his son Namlot as High Priest and military commander there, with the title of governor of the South, like the High Priest of Amon. Indeed, this Namlot became also High Priest

---

<sup>a</sup>As the name of Namlot's mother, Mehetnusekhet, and the name of his father, Sheshonk, are the same in our genealogy and in the Abydos stela, there can be no question about their identity.

<sup>b</sup>On the Abydos stela, § 677.

<sup>c</sup>We can only suppose that during the Twenty-first Dynasty the family had gained control of Bubastis, and that Sheshonk I, perceiving the necessity of a stronghold in the eastern Delta, took up his residence there, thus gaining for his family the name Bubastites; but the family was clearly not of Bubastite origin.

of Amon, as Lepsius long ago saw.<sup>a</sup> The principality of Thebes, added to that of Heracleopolis, gave to one man the control of all Upper Egypt, from the Delta into Nubia, creating a dangerous rival of the royal house. How long Namlot held both principalities is uncertain,<sup>b</sup> but the family held possession of Heracleopolis for five generations more, six in all (§ 787, Nos. 11 and 16).

790. But in the thirty-ninth year of Sheshonk III, Bekneptah, a son of Takelot II, not appearing in our genealogy, was in control at Heracleopolis (§§ 775, 776) and making common cause with Osorkon, High Priest at Thebes. Namlot's descendants<sup>c</sup> must therefore have lost and recovered control at Heracleopolis. The support of their enemy, Bekneptah, by the High Priest of Amon at Thebes, suggests earlier hostility between the two principalities, and is evidently only one example of the petty wars in which the dynasts of Egypt were now constantly embroiled. Thus, while Thebes did not succeed in maintaining a dynasty under the Bubastites, that of Heracleopolis, beginning early in the Twenty-first Dynasty, continued for fifteen generations, interrupted for four generations by the accession of the line to the throne as the Twenty-second Dynasty, and by the probably short usurpation of Bekneptah (see §§ 745, 746). The power and importance of Heracleopolis continued through the Ethiopian and Saitic periods. It is mentioned in the annals of Ashurbanipal and Isaiah saw the envoys of Judah going to Tanis and Heracleopolis (אֲנַס, Isaiah 30:4) for assistance.

<sup>a</sup>Zweiundzwanzigste Dynastie, Pl. I.

<sup>b</sup>Evidently not into the reign of Takelot II; see Wreszinski's list (Die Hohenpriester des Amon, § 47), where a high priest of Amon, Amenhotep, is between Namlot and the High Priest Osorkon, who was appointed in year 11 of Takelot II (§ 760).

<sup>c</sup>About Nos. 12-14.

Apis Record

791. <sup>1</sup>This god was introduced to his father, Ptah, in the year 12,<sup>a</sup> fourth month of the second season, fourth day, of King Okheperre, <sup>2</sup>Son of Re, Sheshonk (IV), given life. He was born in the year 11 of his majesty; he rested in his place <sup>3</sup>in Tazoser (the cemetery) in the year 37, third month of the first season, day 27, of his majesty.

Sixteenth Generation

792. May he grant life, prosperity, health, and joy of heart to <sup>4</sup>his beloved son, the prophet of Neit, Harpeson;

Fifteenth Generation

Son of the count, governor of the South, chief prophet in Heracleopolis, commander of <sup>5</sup>the army, Henptah; born of the prophetess of Hathor of Heracleopolis, his sister, the matron, Ireteru (Yr' t-rw);

Fourteenth Generation

<sup>7</sup>Son<sup>b</sup> of the like,<sup>c</sup> Harpeson; born of the chief sistrum-bearer of Harsaphes, king of the Two Lands, ruler of the two shores, <sup>8</sup>Petpetdedes;

Thirteenth Generation

Son of the like, Henptah; born of the like, Thenekemet (T' n-km' t);

Twelfth Generation

Son of the like, <sup>9</sup>Uzphatenkhof (Wd-Pth-<sup>c</sup> nhf); born of the prophetess of Hathor of Heracleopolis, king's-daughter, the matron, Tentseph (Tnt-sph);

Eleventh Generation

Son of the like, Namlot, <sup>10</sup>born of the chief sistrum-bearer of Harsaphes, king of the Two Lands, ruler of the two shores, Tentseph;

Tenth Generation

Son of the Lord of the Two Lands: Osorkon (II), born of Uzmutenkhos;

Ninth Generation

Son of King Takelot (I), <sup>11</sup>and the divine mother, Kepes;

<sup>a</sup>His predecessor was buried in the year 11, the twenty-eighth of Paophi (Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, Pl. 30).

<sup>b</sup>The genealogy ascends from father to grandfather here; I have indicated each generation by a paragraph.

<sup>c</sup>Meaning that the father bore the same titles and filled the same offices as the son. "The like" may also be applied to the females of the line, as in l. 8.

Eighth Generation

Son of King Osorkon (I) and the divine mother, Temehkhonsu;

Seventh Generation

Son of King Sheshonk (I) and the divine mother, <sup>12</sup>Kerome;

Sixth Generation

<sup>a</sup>The divine father, the great chief, Namlot, and the divine mother, Tentsepeh;

Fifth Generation

Son of the like, Sheshonk, born of the king's-mother, Mehetnusekhet;

Fourth Generation

Son of the like, Pethut (P<sup>2</sup> -twt);

Third Generation

Son of the like, Nebneshi (Nbnšy);

Second Generation

Son of the like, Musen (M<sup>2</sup> w<sup>2</sup> sn);

First Generation

Son of the Libyan (Tyhn), Buyuwawa (Bw-yw-w<sup>2</sup> -w<sup>2</sup>).

Abiding, abiding, remaining, remaining, enduring, enduring, flourishing, flourishing, in the temple of Harsaphes, king of the Two Lands, ruler of the two shores, one man the son of another man, without perishing, forever and ever, forever and ever, in Heracleopolis.

<sup>a</sup>The omission of "Son of" is noticeable, but might easily happen in such a long series. Petrie (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, XXVI, 284) thinks this couple the same as that of the eleventh generation, so that the genealogy stops at the seventh and goes back to begin again with the eleventh (= sixth) and carries it back (6 to 1) parallel with 11 to 7; 11 to 7 being the ancestry of Namlot, and 6 to 1 the ancestry of his wife Tentsepeh. To this reconstruction there are three fatal objections: (1) If 6-1 is the genealogy of Tentsepeh alone, why has her husband's name been inserted before hers in 6? (2) If 6-1 is the genealogy of a woman, why does it proceed (fifth generation) with "son" and not daughter? (3) The titles in 6 and 11 are not the same, but in 6 we have the old Libyan title of Namlot, whereas in 11 (carried back from 15) we have the Egyptian titles which we should expect after the Egyptianization of the family. It is unfortunate that the above possibility of evading the Libyan origin of the Twenty-second Dynasty should be used as an argument for the Assyrian origin of that dynasty; although we have proof positive that at the rise of the Twenty-second Dynasty, Assyria was in a state of decline, and had absolutely no power in the west.

THE TWENTY-THIRD DYNASTY

RECORDS OF NILE - LEVELS AT KARNAK<sup>a</sup>

793. These records, continuing those of the Twenty-second Dynasty (§§ 695-98), are of great importance. They show that the new Twenty-third Dynasty controlled Thebes, probably from its accession (about 745 B. C.), but at least twenty-three years thereafter. Its conquest by Piankhi must, therefore, fall after this period and after the reign of Pedibast, which concluded those twenty-three years. The interruption of the Twenty-third Dynasty at Thebes by Piankhi was, therefore, not earlier than 722 B. C., and his campaign not earlier than about 720 B. C. (see §§ 812, 813). The remainder of the Twenty-third Dynasty will be found discussed in the notes and introduction to the Piankhi Stela (§§ 811-13). The question whether it may have been parallel with the Twenty-second Dynasty is also taken up there (§ 813). See also Appended Remark, p. 404.

Reign of Pedibast

794. 1. (26)<sup>b</sup> The Nile. Year 16 of King Meriamon-Pedibast, which is year 2 of King Meriamon-Yewepet (Yw-[p]<sup>c</sup>-ty).

2. (27) The Nile. Year 19 of King Meriamon-Pedibast; time of the High Priest of Amon, [Harsiese], triumphant.

3. (28) The Nile. Year 19 (sic!) of King Meriamon-Pedibast; time of the High Priest of Amon, [Harsi]ese.

4. (29) The Nile. Year 23 of King Meriamon-Pedibast; time of the High Priest of Amon, TakeLOT.

---

<sup>a</sup>On the quai of the great Karnak temple; published by Legrain, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1896, 113 f.

<sup>b</sup>Legrain's number.

<sup>c</sup>The p has, of course, been omitted in the publication. This Yewepet is the same as the Yewepet mentioned in the Piankhi inscription, §§ 830, 878.

Reign of Osorkon III

5. (16) The Nile. Year 5.<sup>a</sup> High Priest of Amon, Yewelot (Yw-w<sup>3</sup>-r<sup>3</sup>-t), triumphant, son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Osorkon III.

6. (17) The Nile. Year 8. High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Nesube[neb]ded, triumphant, king's-son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Osorkon III.

7. (18) The Nile. Year 14. High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, Nesubenedded, triumphant, son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Osorkon III.

8. (19) The Nile. Year — (same as 18).

9. (20) [The Nile. Year] ——— triumphant, king's-son of the Lord of the Two Lands, Osorkon III.

10. (21) [The Nile. Year] ——— (conclusion like 20).

APPENDED REMARK

After these pages were in type, and as they go to press, I have received from Mons. Legrain, a letter in which he has had the great kindness to review the evidence from his brilliant excavations at Karnak, relating to the chronology of the Twenty-third Dynasty. He concludes from this evidence that the Twenty-third Dynasty was contemporary with the end of the Twenty-second. I wish to thank him very cordially here for the labor and time which he has so kindly devoted to this valuable letter, and to congratulate him upon the remarkable success of his work at Karnak, although I am as yet unable to see that the evidence adduced proves the alleged contemporaneity.

<sup>a</sup>The following records (Nos. 5-21) cannot belong to Osorkon I, whose second name is Meriamon-Osorkon, as here; nor are they of Osorkon II, whose second name is Meriamon-Sibast-Osorkon. Hence they evidently belong to Osorkon III, whose second name was likewise Meriamon-Osorkon, as here. This also relieves us of an impossible series of otherwise unknown High Priests of Amon, who cannot be made sons of Osorkon I.

REIGN OF OSORKON III

WILL OF YEWELOT<sup>a</sup>

795. The introduction to this will contains historical facts, too important to be omitted here, even though this series is not designed to include legal documents. I have, therefore, given below the introduction and the conclusion which furnish the framework of the document. According to the custom since the Twenty-first Dynasty, at least, all such legal instruments are decrees of Amon. Yewelot, son of Osorkon III and High Priest of Amon at Thebes, had founded a landed estate there in his youth, in the tenth year of his father's reign. He wills this estate to his son, Khamwese. In the introduction he indicates the northern limit of his military command as Siut.

<sup>1</sup>Said Amon-Re, king of gods, the great god, great in the beginning of being: "As for the landed estate, which the High Priest of Amon-Re, king of gods, commander in chief of the army, who is at the head of the great army of <sup>2</sup>the South as far as the region of Siut, Yewelot, triumphant, founded; which lies in the district of the highland northwest of [Thebes], and is called 'Beautiful Region;' while he was a youth in the time of his father, King Meriamon-Osorkon (III), <sup>3</sup>in the year 10, fourth month of the third season, last day . . . . . <sup>22</sup>. . . in all 556 [stat] of various land, and 35 men and women, their dykes, their <sup>23</sup>trees, their large and small cattle; I confirm them to the prophet of Amon-Re, king of gods, the chief of a district, <sup>b</sup>Khamwese, triumphant, his son, whom the daughter of a king's-daughter, <sup>24</sup>Tedenetnebast (T<sup>o</sup> dn' t-n-B<sup>o</sup> s' t), bore to him, forever."

<sup>a</sup>Red granite stela, round top, 2.67 m. high, 1.25 m. wide, 38 cm. thick, discovered by Legrain in the great Karnak temple; published by him, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 13-16, and translated by Erman, ibid., 19-24. A relief at the top in two parts shows: on the right a priest with panther-skin offering a statuette of Truth to Amon and Khonsu; on the left, the same person in the same ceremony before Amon and Mut. Below is the text in thirty-two horizontal lines.

<sup>b</sup>See Dakhel Stela (§ 726, l. 2) for the same title.

REIGN OF PIANKHI

THE PIANKHI STELA<sup>a</sup>

796. This stela is the most instructive surviving document in respect of the internal political condition of Egypt in a time when no strong central power and no aggressive monarch controlled the whole country. The conditions pictured in this record are undoubtedly typical of similar periods throughout the historic age in Egypt, and in reading it the student clearly perceives why certain epochs in the history of the Nile-dwellers have left us no monuments. That we consequently know almost nothing of such periods is, in view of the revelations of the Piankhi Stela, probably no great loss, as far as political conditions are concerned. We may safely picture them to ourselves as essentially like this period first revealed to us by our great stela.

The Piankhi Stela discloses the Nubian kingdom

---

<sup>a</sup>Large and splendid stela of pink granite, with rounded top, 180 cm. high, 184 cm. wide, and 43 cm. thick; in the Museum of Cairo (No. 160, Guide, 111, b). It was discovered in the temple at Gebel Barkal (Napata) by a native Egyptian officer of the Sudanese government in 1862, and a rude copy made by him was used by de Rougé for his essay on the stone in 1863 (Revue archéologique, 1863, 2 n. s. VIII, 94 ff.). The original having arrived in Cairo in 1864, a copy was made by Devéria, and published in 1867 (Fouilles exécutées en Egypte, en Nubie et au Soudan, d'après les ordres de son Altesse le Vice-Roi d'Egypte, par Auguste Mariette-Bey; folio; Paris: Franck, 1867; I (texte), 1-2; II (planches), Pls. 1-14). This work was for some reason withdrawn from sale a few days after publication, and only the few copies sold now exist. It was then published from the copies of Devéria in Rougé's Chrestomathie, fasc. IV (1876), and in Mariette, Monuments divers, Pls. I-VI. The publications are very good; I had also a collation of the original by Schaefer, and my own collation of the Berlin squeeze, from both of which sources a few corrections have been inserted. The best and most recent translation is that of Griffith (A Library of the World's Best Literature, 5275-95). See bibliography of older treatments, by Maspero (Mariette, Monuments divers, 1, 2, and Maspero, The Passing of the Empires, p. 166, n. 6). The geographical notes which I have appended are chiefly drawn from Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique.

already in existence as a full-fledged power. King Piankhi must have come to the throne in Napata about 741 B. C., but his records offer no hint of the development of the kingdom which must have preceded him. Its character as an Amonite theocracy or hierarchy sufficiently indicates its Theban origin. When, moreover, we remember that the Nubian "gold-country of Amon," with its own governor, already existed toward the close of the Nineteenth Dynasty;<sup>a</sup> that the Theban High Priest of Amon became viceroy of Kush at the end of the Twentieth Dynasty;<sup>b</sup> and, finally, that the sacerdotal princess of Thebes in the Twenty-first Dynasty was "viceroys of Kush, and governor of the Southern Countries,"<sup>c</sup> it will be seen that over four hundred years before Piankhi's reign the Theban hierarchy had a strong hold on Nubia, and that some two hundred years later this had strengthened into full possession of the country.

797. The transfer of the Pharaonic seat of power to the Delta and the prominence of Ptah in the family of the Twenty-second Dynasty, had alienated the Amon priests from the northern dynasties. What was the specific occasion of the priests' withdrawal and the foundation of a new government at Napata, the old Eighteenth Dynasty seat of Amon worship by the fourth cataract, we do not know. As the later generations of the Twenty-second Dynasty weakened, petty dynasts arose throughout the Delta and as far south as Hermopolis. The Twenty-third Dynasty, at Bubastis,<sup>d</sup> although acknowledged for at least twenty-three years at Thebes during the reign of its first king, Pedibast (§§ 793,

<sup>a</sup>III, 640.

<sup>b</sup>§ 615.

<sup>c</sup>E. g., on the Canopic jars and stela of Nesikhonsu, A. B. Edwards, Recueil IV, 80-85, and Maspero, Momies royales, 712.

<sup>d</sup>Although Manetho gives the twenty-third as a Tanitic dynasty, it is clearly Bubastite, according to the Piankhi inscription.

794), brought no order out of the chaos; for, as the Nubian kingdom now (about 722 B. C.)<sup>a</sup> suddenly emerges upon our view, we find it in possession of Thebes and Upper Egypt, as far north as Heracleopolis just south of the mouth of the Fayûm.<sup>b</sup>

798. The occasion of the Nubian conquest of the farther North, narrated in our document, was a disturbance in the situation just described, occasioned by the aggressiveness and rapid rise of Tefnakhte, a local dynast of Sais in the western Delta, whose career at this point illustrates that of almost every founder of a Pharaonic dynasty. Had the Nubian conquest not put an end to his brilliant career, he, too, like Ahmose of Thebes, and Sheshonk of Heracleopolis (later Bubastis), would have headed a dynasty of Pharaohs. In Piankhi's twenty-first<sup>c</sup> year, in the first month of the calendar year, his vassals in Upper Egypt reported to him that Tefnakhte had defeated the dynasts of the entire western Delta, and of both shores of the Nile above the Delta, almost as far south as the vicinity of Benihasan. Besides these, he had also gained control of all the eastern and middle Delta princes (l. 19), so that he was practically king of all lower Egypt, and of the lower portion of Upper

---

<sup>a</sup>Or possibly a little later. The reasons why Thebes could not have fallen much later will be found at the close of this discussion, § 813. The correctness of this dating of Piankhi's appearance in Lower Egypt some fifty years later than has been heretofore done by other historians, is not only rendered certain by the chronological data of the preceding period (dead reckoning from accession of Eighteenth Dynasty), but also by the fact that Piankhi was the father of Taharka, who began to reign in 690 or 691 B. C.; the fact that Bocchoris, the son of Tefnakhte, Piankhi's enemy, was the opponent of Shabaka; so that Piankhi and Shabaka cannot have been far apart.

<sup>b</sup>The Ethiopian period in Egypt thus includes Dynasties 23 (excepting the first reign), 24, and 25, the last of which only, is called Ethiopian by Manetho, because it was not until the overthrow of the ephemeral Twenty-fourth Dynasty, in the Delta that the Ethiopians established themselves permanently there.

<sup>c</sup>As he must have been holding Upper Egypt for some time before this, we must place his occupation of Thebes a year at least before these reports.

Egypt. Only Heracleopolis was holding out against him, and was suffering a siege at his hands, all his vassal princes lending him aid against it.

799. The wily Piankhi, desirous of drawing his enemy far southward, away from the safety of the impenetrable Delta swamps, quietly awaited developments. A second appeal from the north (§ 819) then informed Piankhi of the submission of Namlot, king of Hermopolis, to Tefnakhte (§ 820). Piankhi thereupon sent his commanders, with the troops then in Egypt, northward to check Tefnakhte's further southern advance, and besiege Hermopolis (§ 821). This they did, while Piankhi was, at the same time, dispatching from Nubia a second army for their support (§ 822). Having left Thebes, the second army met Tefnakhte's fleet coming up, and defeated it, capturing many ships and prisoners (§ 825). Continuing northward, probably down the Bahr Yusuf,<sup>a</sup> they struck Tefnakhte's army, which was besieging Heracleopolis, with the assistance of the Delta dynasts, as we have already stated. The northerners were defeated, both by land and water, and fled to the west side of the Bahr Yusuf (§ 831), whither they were pursued by the Nubians the next morning, again discomfited and forced to retreat toward the Delta.

800. Namlot, king of Hermopolis, escaped from the disaster, and returned southward to protect his own city, Hermopolis, which had not yet surrendered; whereupon the Nubian commanders returned up the Bahr Yusuf to Hermopolis which they closely beset (§ 833).

801. On receiving reports of these operations, Piankhi was enraged that the northern army had been allowed to escape to the Delta. It was now late in the calendar year, and Piankhi determined, after the celebration of the New Year at home, to proceed to Thebes to celebrate there the great Feast of Opet in the third month, and then to lead the campaign against the North in person (§§ 835, 836). Meanwhile, his commanders in Egypt captured Oxyrhynchus, Tetehen, and Hatbenu (§§ 837-39), although Hermopolis still held out against them.

---

<sup>a</sup>See p. 424, n. f.

802. Piankhi then proceeded northward early in the calendar year, celebrated the Feast of Opet at Thebes in the third month, and went on to assume charge of the siege of Hermopolis, which had now been going on for certainly four, and probably five months (§ 840). He pressed the siege so vigorously that the city was soon at his mercy, and Namlot, finding that gifts, even his own royal crown, availed nothing with Piankhi, sent out his queen to plead with Piankhi's women that they might intercede with him in Namlot's behalf (§§ 842-44). This move was successful and, assured of his life, Namlot surrendered and turned over all his wealth to Piankhi, who immediately entered the city (§§ 845-50). One of the most remarkable touches in this remarkable inscription is the wrath of Piankhi as he visits Namlot's stables and finds that the horses have suffered hunger (§ 850). All of Namlot's wealth was assigned to the royal treasury of Piankhi and the sacred fortune of Amon (§ 851).

803. Heracleopolis, being already exhausted after a siege at the hands of Tefnakhte, its king, Pefnefdibast, now came to greet Piankhi and praise him for his deliverance (§ 852). The advance to the Delta, sailing down the Bahr Yusuf, was then begun, and all the chief towns of the West surrendered one after another on seeing Piankhi's force, except Crocodilopolis, in the Fayûm, which would have carried him too far from his course by Illahun. On the other hand, he did not touch Aphroditopolis, which lay on the east side of the river, equally far removed from his route, past Medûm and Ithtowe to Memphis (§§ 853-57). Piankhi offered sacrifice to the gods in all the cities which he passed, and took possession of the available property for his own treasury and the estate of Amon.

804. On reaching Memphis, it was found to be very strongly fortified and, in answer to Piankhi's demand to surrender, the Memphites closed the gates and made a sortie, which was evidently not very effective (§§ 857, 858). Under cover of night, Tefnakhte entered the city, and exhorted the garrison to rely on their strong walls, their plentiful supplies, and the high water which protected the east side from attack, while he himself rode away north for reinforcements (§§ 859, 860). Having landed on the north of the city, Piankhi was surprised at the strength of the place. Some of his people favored a siege, others desired to storm the walls upon embankments and causeways raised for the purpose (§ 861). Piankhi decided to storm, devising a shrewd plan of assault which speaks highly for his skill as a leader.

805. The lofty walls on the west side of the city had been recently raised still higher, and it was evident that the east side, protected by high waters (artificially raised?), was being neglected. Here was the harbor, where the ships now floated so high that their bow-ropes were fastened among the houses of the city. Piankhi sent his fleet against the harbor, and quickly captured all the shipping. Then, taking command in person, he rapidly ranged the captured craft and his own fleet along the eastern walls, thus furnishing footing for his assaulting lines, which he immediately sent over the ramparts and captured the city before its eastern defenses could be strengthened against him (§§ 862-65). A great slaughter ensued, but the sanctuaries were, of course, respected and protected, and Ptah recognized Piankhi as king (§§ 865, 866).

806. The entire region of Memphis then submitted (§ 867), whereupon the Delta dynasts also came to Memphis with gifts for Piankhi, and signified their submission (§ 868). After dividing the wealth of Memphis between the treasuries of Amon and of Ptah, Piankhi crossed the river, worshiped in the ancient sanctuary of Khereha-Babylon, and followed the old sacred road thence to Heliopolis, where he camped by the harbor. Among the important religious ceremonies here was his entrance alone into the holy of holies of the Re-temple, that he might view the god and be recognized by him as king, according to the immemorial custom<sup>a</sup> (§ 871).

807. Before he left Heliopolis, King Osorkon III of Bubastis surrendered and visited Piankhi. Having moved his camp to a point just east of Athribis, by a town called Keheni, he there received the submission of all the petty kings, princelets, chiefs, and dynasts of the Delta (§§ 872, 873). Among these, Pediese of Athribis showed himself especially loyal to Piankhi and invited him thither, placing all his wealth at the Nubian's disposal. Piankhi, therefore, entered Athribis, received the gifts of Pediese, and, in order to choose for himself the best horses, especially entered the stables, which the shrewd Athribite, observing his love of horses, had particularly invited him to do. Fifteen Delta dynasts were here dismissed, at their own request, that they might go back to their cities and return to Piankhi with further gifts, in emulation of Pediese (§§ 873-76).

808. Meantime the desperate Tefnakhte had garrisoned

---

<sup>a</sup>See II, §§ 134, 221 ff.

Mesed, a town of uncertain location, but probably somewhere on his frontier. Rather than have them captured by Piankhi, he burned the ships and supplies which he could not save. Piankhi then sent a body of troops against Mesed, and they slew the garrison. Tefnakhte had, meanwhile, taken refuge on one of the remote islands in the western mouths of the Nile. The season was far advanced; many miles of vast Delta morass, and a network of irrigation canals, separated Piankhi from the fugitive. It would have been a hazardous undertaking to have dispatched an army into such a region. When, therefore, Tefnakhte sent gifts and a humble message of submission, requesting that Piankhi send a messenger with whom he might go to the neighboring temple and take the oath of allegiance to Piankhi, the Nubian king was very ready to accept the proposal (§ 880). In this less humiliating, not to say much less dangerous manner, Tefnakhte then accepted the suzerainty of Piankhi, and when the two kings of the Fayûm and Aphroditopolis, whom he had not molested on his way northward, appeared with their gifts (§ 882), a Nubian Pharaoh was lord of all Egypt.

809. The vassals, having paid Piankhi a last visit, he loaded his vessels with the wealth of the North and sailed away for his southern capital, amid the acclamations of the people. Arrived at Napata, he had erected in the temple of Amon our magnificent granite stela, recording how he, the son of Amon, had humiliated the rivals of that god in the North. The language of the inscription is good, and clear Egyptian in the narrative portions; but in the speeches, especially those of Piankhi himself, it is in places quite unintelligible, and produces the impression of a composition by one not perfectly familiar with the language. Apart from the Annals of Thutmose III, and possibly the documents of Ramses II on the Battle of Kadesh, the inscription of Piankhi is the clearest and most rational account of a campaign which has survived from ancient Egypt. It displays a good deal of literary skill, and an appreciation of dramatic situations which is notable, while the vivacious touches found here and there quite relieve it of the arid tone usual in such hieroglyphic documents. The imagination endues the personages appearing here more easily with life than those of any other similar historical narrative of Egypt; and the humane Piankhi especially, the lover of horses, remains a man, far removed from the conventional companion and equal of the gods, who inevitably occupies the exalted throne of the Pharaohs in all other such records, except, possibly, the Annals of Thutmose III.

810. Tefnakhte, while he had nominally submitted to Piankhi, only awaited the withdrawal of the Ethiopian to resume his designs. He eventually assumed the Pharaonic titles; and a gift of land near Sais by a priest of Neit, to this goddess, is dated in Tefnakhte's eighth year as Pharaoh.<sup>a</sup> He must have greatly increased the power and prestige of Sais, for his son Bocchoris<sup>b</sup> was the founder of the Twenty-fourth Dynasty (about 719-713 B. C.).

811. In Upper Egypt, Piankhi's rule continued for an uncertain but brief period. In the temple of Mut, at Thebes, he left a relief<sup>c</sup> representing a festal voyage of his ships, perhaps his return from the North. Among the ships appears

---

<sup>a</sup>Stela in hieratic in the museum of Athens, first noticed and partially published by Mallet (Recueil, 18, 4 ff.); then fully by Spiegelberg in transcription (ibid., 25, 190-93); the relief at the top by Maspero (Empires, 181).

<sup>b</sup>Diodorus, I, 45.

<sup>c</sup>Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, Pls. XX-XXII, and pp. 370-79. These blocks may belong to some other Piankhi.

the state barge<sup>a</sup> of Sais, of course captured from Tefnakhte's fleet in the northern war. Osorkon III of Bubastis finally recovered Thebes, perhaps about 720 B. C., and together with an otherwise unknown Takelot (III) ruled there for a few years.<sup>b</sup> Some years later<sup>c</sup> Tefnakhte's son Bocchoris (W <sup>ḥ</sup> k <sup>ḥ</sup> R <sup>c</sup>) ascended the throne as the first and, as far as we know, the sole king of the Twenty-fourth Dynasty (see following table).

---

<sup>a</sup>The Somtu-tefnakhte, who appears here as a naval commander of Piankhi and prince of Heracleopolis, cannot possibly be the same as the Saite Tefnakhte, who, besides the difference in the name, was not prince of Heracleopolis.

<sup>b</sup>See note, § 872, l. 106.

<sup>c</sup>Who ruled at Thebes during these years we do not know. Osorkon III's, coregent, Takelot III, may have continued there. As Osorkon III's successor Africanus and Syncellus give a certain Psammus, with ten years, and Africanus follows Psammus with one Zet (thirty-one years); but neither of these two kings has been found on the monuments.

812.

		ETHIOPIANS	SAITES	BUBASTITES Twenty-third Dynasty
Piankhi	741	Accession in Napata	726 Ruled at least 8 years as Prince of Sais and Memphis and as King in Western Delta	745
	722	Control of Thebes and Lower Egypt		Tefnakhte
	720	Campaign	718
	717	Thebes probably lost		Bocchoris
Uncertain	712	Beginning of Twenty-fifth Dynasty	712	End of Twenty-third Dynasty
	Shabaka 700	Beginning of Twenty-fifth Dynasty	End of Twenty-fourth Dynasty

700

813. The preceding table will show how the complicated history of the time is probably to be restored. The Twenty-third Dynasty ruler, Osorkon III, is a Bubastite, and not a Tanite, as Manetho states.<sup>a</sup> Hence the Twenty-third Dynasty, being clearly Bubastite, could not have been parallel with the close of the Bubastite Twenty-second Dynasty, but must have followed it. Again, both Pedibast and Osorkon III of the Twenty-third Dynasty, controlled Thebes (§§ 793, 794) as did all the later kings of the Twenty-second Dynasty. Hence they could not have been contemporary.<sup>b</sup> There are two other possible parallels: first, the last few years of the Twenty-third Dynasty, with the reign of Bocchoris,<sup>c</sup> but Bocchoris could not have been regarded as the founder and sole king of a new dynasty, if he had not ruled the country as a whole for a time; second, the early years of Shabaka may have been parallel with the close of Bocchoris's reign. The whole period involved by these two parallels could not have been more than ten years, and was probably less, if it existed at all.

814. Returning now to the Piankhi Stela, it is crowned by a relief, showing Amon of Napata<sup>d</sup> enthroned, with Mut standing behind him. Before the divinities stands Piankhi. Approaching him a king, wearing upon his forehead the royal serpent-crest (uraeus), leads a horse with the left hand, and in the right hand carries a sistrum; above him the words: "King Namlot." This incident is afterward

<sup>a</sup>On the position of Osorkon III and his relation to Thebes and Piankhi, see § 872, l. 106, note; and § 941.

<sup>b</sup>The new materials found by Legrain in the great cache at Karnak (Recueil, 27, 78, 79) have led him to think that the old conclusion of the contemporaneity of the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Dynasties is supported by them. In so far as published, they do not prove this conclusion. [Later: See Appended Note, p. 404.]

<sup>c</sup>On date of Bocchoris, see § 884.

<sup>d</sup>The fragmentary words inscribed beside him, refer to the "pure mountain," or Gebel Barkal, by Napata.

described in the great inscription (l. 58). A woman, standing with uplifted right hand, preceding Namlot, represents "the king's-wives," the women of Namlot, who appeared before Piankhi in the palace at Hermopolis (ll. 62-64). Three kings, with the royal uraeus upon their foreheads, are kissing the earth at Piankhi's feet. They are designated as: (1) King Osorkon; (2) King Yewepet; (3) King Pejnešdibast.

815. Five other princes approach Piankhi, of whom one, without the uraeus, but wearing the sidelock of youth, was "[Prince] Teti." The other four, who are also without the uraeus, but wear the feather plume on the head, are:

(1) The prince ( $h^{\circ} ty^{-c}$ ),<sup>a</sup> Pethenef ( $P^{\circ} -tnfy$ ); (2) The prince ( $h^{\circ} ty^{-c}$ ), Pemou ( $P^{\circ} -m^{\circ}$ ); (3) Great chief of Me, Akenesh ( $^{\circ} -k^{\circ} -n-š^{\circ}$ ); (4) Great chief of Me, Zeamamefonekh.

The words of these conquered dynasts, or at least of Namlot, inscribed before them, are too fragmentary for restoration, but they began: "Be appeased, Horus, lord of [the palace]," in which we recognize the opening words of Namlot's speech before Piankhi (ll. 55, 56). The figure of Piankhi has been chiseled away by his political enemies.

Beneath the relief the great inscription then follows, as translated below:

Date

816. <sup>1</sup>Year 21,<sup>b</sup> first month of the first season, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Meriamon-Piankhi<sup>c</sup> ( $P^{-c} nh^y$ ), living forever.

<sup>a</sup>The old "counts" have now become practically independent "princes," and the old title,  $h^{\circ} ty^{-c}$ , should generally be so rendered in this age.

<sup>b</sup>This date may be either that of the first events in the following record, or that of the return of Piankhi and the erection of the stela. Piankhi, having celebrated the New Year's feast at Napata, departed for Thebes, which in turn he left in the third month, for his campaign in the north. The above date, nine months later, would allow enough for his campaign and the return to Napata. Again, if it be the date of the first report of Tefnakhte's aggressions, Piankhi's departure was a year later (his commanders operating in Egypt meanwhile), so that his departure and campaign fell in the year 22.

<sup>c</sup>For this name I have retained the traditional spelling, although it is evident

Introduction

817. Command which my majesty speaks: "Hear of what I did, more than the ancestors. I am a king, divine emanation, living image of Atum, who came forth from the womb, adorned as a ruler, of whom those greater than he were afraid; whose father knew, <sup>2</sup>and whose mother recognized that he would rule in the egg, the Good God, beloved of the gods, achieving with his hands, Meriamon-Piankhi."

Announcement of Tefnakhte's Advance

818. One came to say to his majesty: "A chief of the west, the great prince in Neter, <sup>a</sup>Tefnakhte (T<sup>3</sup> j-nht t)<sup>b</sup> is in the nome of —, <sup>c</sup>in the nome of Xoïs, in Hapi (H<sup>c</sup> p),<sup>d</sup> in — <sup>3</sup>in Ayan, <sup>e</sup>in Pernub,<sup>f</sup> and in Memphis. He has seized the whole west from the back-lands to Ithtowe, coming southward with a numerous army, while the Two Lands are united behind him, and the princes and rulers of walled towns are as dogs at his heels. No stronghold has closed [its doors<sup>1</sup> in] <sup>4</sup>the nomes of the South: Mer-Atum (Medûm), Per-Sekhemkheperre,<sup>g</sup>

---

from the two reed-leaves at the end that the vowel followed the h. The p or py is certainly the demonstrative "pay." The name of Hrihor's son, Payonekh, owing to the lack of the y at the end, evidently had nothing to do with Piankhi. Hence the political connection between Thebes and Napata, however probable on other grounds, cannot be based on the supposed identity of these two names, as is commonly done.

<sup>a</sup>A region in the central Delta near modern Behbeit, the Iseum or Isidis oppidum of classic geographers; see also § 878, No. 5, note.

<sup>b</sup>This name is an abbreviation, the full form being: X (divine name)-t<sup>3</sup> j-nht t = tefnakhte, "(the god) X is his Strength." See Schaefer, Festschrift für Georg Ebers, 93, note 2. The full form occurs on the Theban blocks of Piankhi (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 375). Feminine form X-tesnakhte (§ 918).

<sup>c</sup>The sign above the nome standard is omitted in the original.

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "Nile," a Nilopolis supposed by Brugsch to be somewhere in the western Delta.

<sup>e</sup>Uncertain.

<sup>f</sup>There was a Per-Nub near Sais (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 325) in the western Delta. The following generalization, "the whole west, etc.," shows that all these places are to be distributed in the western Delta from Memphis to the coast. Ithtowe was between Medûm and Memphis.

<sup>g</sup>Lit., "House of Osorkon I;" the place was therefore a foundation of this king. Its exact site is no longer known, but it must have been near Illahûn at the mouth of the Fayûm.

the temple of Sebek,<sup>a</sup> Permezed,<sup>b</sup> Theknesh<sup>c</sup> (T-k<sup>2</sup>-n-š); and every city of the west,<sup>d</sup> they have opened the doors for fear of him. He turned to the east, they opened to him likewise: Hatbenu,<sup>e</sup> Tozi<sup>f</sup> (T<sup>2</sup> yw<sup>2</sup> t), Hatseteni<sup>g</sup> (H<sup>2</sup> t-stny), Pernebtpeh<sup>h</sup> (Pr-nb-tp-yh). Behold, <sup>s</sup>[he] besieges Heracleopolis, he has completely invested it,<sup>i</sup> not letting the comers-out come out, and not letting the goers-in go in, fighting every day. He measured it off in its whole circuit, every prince knows his wall;<sup>j</sup> he stations every man of the princes and rulers of walled towns over his (respective) portion.”

Piankhi's Indifference

819. Then [his majesty] heard [the message] <sup>6</sup>with courageous heart, laughing, and joyous of heart.

Second Appeal of the North

These princes and commanders of the army who were in their cities sent to his majesty daily, saying: “Wilt thou be silent, even to forgetting the Southland, the nomes of the <sup>1</sup>court<sup>1</sup>?<sup>k</sup> While Tefnakhte advances his conquest and finds none to repel his arm.”

<sup>a</sup>Crocodilopolis, capital of the Fayûm.

<sup>b</sup>Oxyrhyncus-Behnesa, capital of the nineteenth nome of Upper Egypt.

<sup>c</sup>Coptic Takinash of the nome of Pemdshē (Oxyrhyncus); see Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 669.

<sup>d</sup>This means the west side of the Nile, above the Delta.

<sup>e</sup>The capital of the eighteenth nome of Upper Egypt, perhaps the Hipponon of the classic times. It literally means: “House of the Phoenix” (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 670-96).

<sup>f</sup>A town in the nineteenth nome of Upper Egypt, perhaps the Coptic Tôdshi (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 182).

<sup>g</sup>A town of the eighteenth nome of Upper Egypt, probably the classic Alabastropolis. It was “Horus, lord of Hatseteni,” who conducted Harmhab to Thebes for his coronation (III, 27). See Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 669-71.

<sup>h</sup>Atfih (Aphroditopolis) of the twenty-second nome of Upper Egypt; and as we find this city (called Metenu) surrendering to Piankhi later (l. 145), it is evident that Tefnakhte had taken it.

<sup>i</sup>A remarkable expression, literally meaning: “He has made himself into a tail-in-the-mouth,” viz., he lay around the city like a serpent with its tail in its mouth.

<sup>j</sup>The section of wall assigned to him by Tefnakhte.

<sup>k</sup>Or: “the nomes of the court of the Southland,” like “Elephantine of the South (tp ršy).”

Submission of Hermopolis to Tefnakhte

820. "Namlot<sup>a</sup> — —, 7prince of Hatweret<sup>b</sup> (H·t-wr·[t]), he has overthrown the wall of Nefrus<sup>c</sup> (Njrus), he has demolished his own city, for fear of him who might take it from him,<sup>d</sup> in order to besiege another city. Behold, he goes to follow at his (Tefnakhte's) heels,<sup>e</sup> having cast off allegiance to his majesty<sup>f</sup> (Piankhi). He carries with him (Tefnakhte) like one of [his vassals in] <sup>g</sup>the nome of Oxyrhyncus, and gives to him (Tefnakhte) gifts, as much as he desires, of everything that he has found."

Piankhi Commands the Capture of the Hare Nome

821. Then his majesty sent to the princes and commanders (mr) of the army who were in Egypt: the commander (tš), Purem<sup>g</sup> (P·w·r·m·c); and the commander (tš), Lemersekeny (Rw·c·mr·s·k·n·y);<sup>h</sup> and every commander (tš) of his majesty who was in Egypt (saying): "Hasten into battle line, engage in battle, surround —, 9capture its people, its cattle, its ships upon the river. Let not the peasants go forth to the field, let not the plowmen plow, beset the frontier of the Hare nome, fight against it daily." Then they did so.

Piankhi Sends His Army; His Instructions

822. Then his majesty sent an army to Egypt, charging them earnestly: "[Delay] not [day nor] 10night, as at a game of draughts;<sup>i</sup> (but) fight ye on sight. Force battle upon him from afar.<sup>j</sup> If he says

<sup>a</sup>In cartouche.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "Great House," a designation of a town in the sixteenth nome of Upper Egypt, perhaps the same as Hebenu (Hbnw; cf. Harris, 61b, 6, § 367).

<sup>c</sup>Town in the same nome as Hatweret.

<sup>d</sup>Or: "for fear that he (Tefnakhte) might take it." As he submitted to Tefnakhte immediately afterward, the motive for the act is not clear in either case.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "to be the companion of his feet," the figure of the dog, as above in l. 3. It is a common figure applied to followers of a king.

<sup>f</sup>Piankhi's rule had thus extended as far north as Hermopolis.

<sup>g</sup>Lit., "The Negro," from a Nubian word "urum" = "black" and the Egyptian article.

<sup>h</sup>Or Lesmersekeni (Rw·c·s·mr·s·k·n·y).

<sup>i</sup>Perhaps a reference to the slowness of the game.

<sup>j</sup>Judging from the context, this certainly means, not that they are to fight at long range, avoiding close quarters, but that they are to seek battle at the earliest opportunity, and begin the attack from afar.

to the infantry and chariotry of another city, 'Hasten;' (then) ye shall abide until his army comes, that ye may fight as he says. But if his allies be in another city, <sup>11</sup>(then) let one hasten to them;<sup>a</sup> these princes, whom he has brought for his support: Libyans (Tḥmw) and favorite soldiers, force battle upon them <sup>1</sup>first!<sup>b</sup> Say, 'We know not what he cries in mustering troops.<sup>c</sup> Yoke the war horses, the best of thy stable; <sup>12</sup>draw up the line of battle! Thou knowest that Amon is the god who has sent us.'"

Instructions as to Thebes

823. "When ye arrive at Thebes, before Karnak, ye shall enter into the water, ye shall bathe in the river, ye shall dress in <sup>1</sup>fine linen<sup>1</sup>; unstring the bow, loosen the arrow. Let not the chief boast <sup>13</sup>as a mighty man; there is no strength to the mighty without him (Amon). He maketh the weak-armed into the strong-armed, so that multitudes flee from the feeble, and one alone taketh a thousand men. Sprinkle yourselves with the water of his altars, sniff the ground before him. Say <sup>14</sup>ye to him, 'Give to us the way, that we may fight in the shadow of thy sword. (As for) the generation<sup>d</sup> whom thou hast sent out, when its attack occurs, multitudes flee before it.'"

Reply of the Army

824. Then they threw themselves upon their bellies before his majesty (saying): "It is thy name which endues us with might, and thy counsel is the mooring-post of thy army; thy bread is in our bellies on every march, thy beer <sup>15</sup>quenches our thirst. It is thy valor that giveth us might, and there is strength at the remembrance of thy name; (for) no army prevails whose commander is a coward. Who is thy equal therein? Thou art a victorious king, achieving with his hands, chief of the work of war."

<sup>a</sup>If Tefnakhte should send his allies to fight them, they are to await the attack; but if the allies remain in some city, Piankhi's forces are to seek them.

<sup>b</sup>Tḥy-ꜥ, evidently parallel with m w ("from afar") in l. 10.

<sup>c</sup>The meaning is uncertain; possibly: we are indifferent to his battle-cry, in encouraging his troops. The remainder is a defiance to Tefnakhte, to be spoken by Piankhi's army.

<sup>d</sup>D > m, lit., "young men," or, in the military organization of the country, a "class," as they successively fall due for military service (see § 402).

Advance to Thebes

825. They sailed <sup>16</sup>down-stream, they arrived at Thebes, they did according to all that his majesty had said.

Battle on the River

They sailed down-stream upon the river;<sup>a</sup> they found many ships coming up-stream bearing soldiers, sailors, and commanders;<sup>b</sup> every valiant man of the Northland, equipped with weapons of war, <sup>17</sup>to fight against the army of his majesty. Then there was made a great slaughter among them, (whose) number was unknown. Their troops and their ships were captured, and brought as living captives (sic!) to the place where his majesty was.<sup>c</sup>

Arrival at Heracleopolis

They went to the <sup>18</sup>frontier<sup>d</sup> of Heracleopolis, demanding battle.

List of the Northern Enemy

830.<sup>e</sup> List of the princes and kings of the Northland,<sup>f</sup> namely:

1. King Namlot and
2. <sup>18</sup>King Yewepet (Yw-w<sup>3</sup>-p-t).<sup>g</sup>
3. Chief of Me, Sheshonk,<sup>h</sup> of Per-Osiris (Busiris), lord of Ded.

<sup>a</sup>The addition is significant; the advance through Nubia had been largely by land. The exact place of the battle is uncertain; but as Piankhi's commanders were already besieging Hermopolis, it could hardly have been south of that city.

<sup>b</sup>Or perhaps "troops" (ts-t). <sup>c</sup>Napata.

<sup>d</sup>The meaning of this word (hn-t) is here uncertain; it is possibly "houn" (of ehoun), "into." As the troops of Tefnakhte were besieging Heracleopolis, the battle which now took place must have been by the city far from the Nile; and the capture of ships would indicate that the Nubians had descended the Bahr Yusuf, as Schaefer has suggested to me. See § 831 and note.

<sup>e</sup>Omission of Nos. 826-29 in the section numbering is intentional.

<sup>f</sup>The term is loosely used here, for Namlot, the first king, was king of Hermopolis, the second nome south of the Fayûm. A fuller list of the Delta dynasts is given later (§§ 878, ll. 114-17).

<sup>g</sup>See § 794; p. 437, n. d; and § 878.

<sup>h</sup>This mercenary commander from Busiris is subordinate to Pemou, prince of that city (l. 116). They are contemporary, and neither bears royal titles; hence they cannot have been identical with Pemou and Sheshonk IV, the last kings of the Twenty-second Dynasty. Moreover, both Pemou and Sheshonk IV held Memphis to the end of their reigns, but Memphis has now long been held by Tefnakhte, who was sem priest of Ptah there.

4. Great chief of Me, Zeamonefonekh, of Per-Beneded (Mendes), together with

5. His eldest son,<sup>a</sup> who was commander of the army of Per-Thutup-rehui (Pr-Dhwtj-Wp-rhwy).<sup>b</sup>

6. The army of the hereditary prince, Beknef (Bk-nfy), together with

7. His eldest son, chief of Me,<sup>19</sup> Nesked<sup>c</sup> (Ns-n<sup>3</sup>-k<sup>3</sup>y, sic!) in the nome of Hesebka (Hsb-k<sup>3</sup>).<sup>d</sup>

8. Every chief wearing a feather who was in the Northland;<sup>e</sup> together with

9. King Osorkon, who was in Per-Bast (Bubastis) and the district of Ranof<sup>r</sup> (R<sup>c</sup>-nfr).

10. Every prince, the rulers of the walled towns in the West, in the East, (and) the islands in the midst, were united of one mind as followers of the great chief of the West, ruler of the walled towns of the Northland, prophet of Neit, mistress of Sais, <sup>20</sup>sem priest of Ptah, Tefnakhte.

Battle Opposite Heracleopolis

831. They went forth against them; then they made a great slaughter among them, greater than anything. Their ships were captured upon the river.<sup>f</sup> The remnant crossed over and landed on the west side before Per-Peg.<sup>g</sup>

<sup>a</sup>His name, Enekhhor, will be found in the other list (§ 878, No. 4).

<sup>b</sup>Hermopolis Parva, in the western Delta.

<sup>c</sup>L. 116 has Ns-n<sup>3</sup>-kd-y.

<sup>d</sup>Eleventh nome of Lower Egypt.

<sup>e</sup>How many names this term may include is uncertain, but doubtless the chiefs of Me, enumerated in the second list, are meant.

<sup>f</sup>This word (ytr) has a common plural, referring to the canals of Egypt, and does not necessarily designate the Nile. Schaefer suggested to me that the Bahr Yusuf is meant here. It then occurred to me that all the cities taken by Piankhi as he went north, were far from the Nile, on the west side, until he reached Khereha-Babylon, and that he left the Fayûm on one side and Atfih-Aphroditopolis on the other side untouched, passing north between them, as is shown by the later surrender of their kings (l. 145, note). This would have been almost impossible in the case of Atfih, had Piankhi been descending the Nile. He probably reached the river again below Atfih by the ancient connection between Heracleopolis and Alexandria (Wilcken, Archiv für Papyrusforschung, II, 317; see also Papyrus Harris, § 224, note), of which we do not know the exact course. See also l. 76 (§ 853, n. a), which is the main proof of this hypothesis.

<sup>g</sup>This town is uncertain; but seeing that the Nubians had already reached

Battle at Per-Peg

832. When the land brightened early in the morning, the army of his majesty crossed over <sup>21</sup>against them. Army mingled with army; they slew a multitude of people among them; horses of unknown number; a rout<sup>a</sup> ensued among the remnant. They fled to the Northland, from the blow, great and evil beyond everything.

List of the slaughter made among them:

People: —<sup>b</sup> men.

Hermopolis Besieged

833. <sup>22</sup>King Namlot fled up-stream southward, when it was told him: "Hermopolis (Hmnw) is in the midst of the foe from the army of his majesty, who capture its people and its cattle." Then he entered into Hermopolis (Wnw), while the army of his majesty was upon the river, in the harbor <sup>23</sup>of the Hare nome.<sup>c</sup> Then they heard of it, and they surrounded the Hare nome<sup>c</sup> on its four<sup>d</sup> sides, not letting the comers-out come out, and not letting the goers-in go in.

Report to Piankhi

834. They sent to report to the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Meriamon-Piankhi, given life, on every conflict which they had fought, and on every victory of his majesty.

Piankhi Determines to go to Egypt Himself

835. Then his majesty was enraged thereat like a panther (saying): "Have they allowed <sup>24</sup>a remnant of the army of the Northland to remain? allowing him that went forth of them to go forth, to tell of his campaign?"

---

the vicinity of Heracleopolis (l. 17), it must have been on the west side of Bahr Yusuf close to that city, and almost certainly further north. Maspero's identification with الفقاعي hardly seems phonetically possible, and hardly fits the conditions (Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, 20, 123-25).

<sup>a</sup>See Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1887, 124 f.

<sup>b</sup>The sculptor has omitted the numeral, although he left room for it.

<sup>c</sup>The nome names are commonly used in this inscription as here, for the chief city of the nome. The harbor was evidently on the Bahr Yusuf, on the east side of which Heracleopolis lies (see Schaefer's plan, Archiv für Papyrusforschung, II). They must therefore have returned up the Bahr Yusuf.

<sup>d</sup>Text has five.

not causing their death, in order to destroy the last of them? I swear: as Re loves me! As my father Amon favors me! I will myself go northward, that I may destroy <sup>25</sup>that which he has done, that I may make him turn back from fighting, forever.”

Piankhi Would Visit Thebes

836. “Now, afterward when the ceremonies of the New Year are celebrated, I will offer to my father, Amon,<sup>a</sup> at his beautiful feast, when he makes his beautiful appearance of the New Year, that he may send me forth in peace, to behold Amon<sup>b</sup> at the beautiful Feast of Opet; that I may bring his image<sup>c</sup> forth in procession <sup>26</sup>to Luxor at his beautiful feast (called): “Night of the Feast of Opet,” and at the feast (called): “Abiding in Thebes,” which Re made for him in the beginning; and that I may bring him in procession to his house, resting upon his throne, on the “Day of Bringing in the God,” in the third month of the first season, second day;<sup>d</sup> that I may make the Northland taste the taste of my fingers.”

Capture of Oxyrhyncus

837. Then the army, which was there in <sup>27</sup>Egypt, heard of the wrath which his majesty felt toward them. Then they fought against Per-Mezed<sup>e</sup> of the Oxyrhynchite nome, they took it like a flood of water, and they sent to his majesty; (but) his heart was not satisfied therewith.

Capture of Teteheh

838. Then they fought against Teteheh,<sup>f</sup> great in might. They found it filled <sup>28</sup>with soldiers, with every valiant man of the Northland. Then the battering-ram was employed against it, its wall was overthrown, and a great slaughter was made among them, of unknown number; also the son of the chief of Me, Tefnakhte. Then they sent to his majesty concerning it, (but) his heart was not satisfied therewith.

Capture of Hatbenu

839. <sup>29</sup>Then they fought against Hatbenu (H t-Bnw), its interior was breached, the army of his majesty entered into it. Then they sent to his majesty, (but) his heart was not satisfied therewith.

<sup>a</sup>Of Napata.      <sup>b</sup>Of Thebes.      <sup>c</sup>Lit., “him as (or in) his image.”

<sup>d</sup>This is one of the days of the long “Feast of Opet;” see § 237, note; and de Rougé, Mélange d'archéologie égyptienne et assyrienne, I, 133.

<sup>e</sup>Oxyrhyncus.

<sup>f</sup>Modern Tehneh.

Piankhi Goes to Hermopolis

840. First month of the first season, ninth day; his majesty went northward to Thebes, and completed the Feast of Amon at the Feast of Opet. His majesty sailed <sup>3</sup>northward to the city of the Hare nome (Hermopolis); his majesty came forth from the cabin of the ship, the horses were yoked up, the chariot was mounted, the terror of his majesty reached to the end of the Asiatics, every heart was heavy with the fear of him.

Piankhi Rebukes His Army

841. Then his majesty went forth [— —] to <sup>3</sup>hate his soldiers, enraged at them like a panther (saying): "Is the steadfastness<sup>a</sup> of your fighting this slackness in my affairs? Has the year reached its end, when the fear of me has been inspired in the Northland? A great and evil blow shall be smitten them."

Siege of Hermopolis

842. He set up for himself the camp on the southwest of Hermopolis (Hmnw), and besieged it <sup>3</sup>daily. An embankment was made, to inclose the wall; a tower<sup>b</sup> was raised to elevate the archers while shooting, and the slingers while slinging stones, and slaying people among them daily.

The City Pleads for Mercy

843. Days passed,<sup>c</sup> and Hermopolis (Wnw) was foul to the nose, without her (usual) <sup>3</sup>fragrance. Then Hermopolis (Wnw) threw herself upon her belly, and plead before the king. Messengers came forth and descended bearing everything beautiful to behold: gold, every splendid costly stone, clothing in a chest, and the diadem which was upon his<sup>d</sup> head, the uraeus which inspired the fear of him; <sup>e</sup>without ceasing during many days,<sup>e</sup> pleading with his<sup>f</sup> diadem.

<sup>a</sup>Read mn and the roll, for mn and s.

<sup>b</sup>The determinative shows that a wooden construction of some sort is meant by the word (bk).

<sup>c</sup>The city had already been besieged many months: three months in the new year, and long enough in the old year for news of it to reach Piankhi at Napata before the New Year's feast (l. 25). Five months is therefore not improbable as the length of the siege.

<sup>d</sup>Namlot's.

<sup>e</sup>These adverbs belong to "came forth and descended."

<sup>f</sup>Piankhi's? Or do they use Namlot's diadem as a ransom or bribe?

Namlot's Queen Intercedes

844. Then they sent <sup>34</sup>his<sup>a</sup> wife, the kings'-wife, and king's-daughter, Nestent (Nsnt), to plead with the king's-wives, king's-concubines, king's-daughters, and king's-sisters, to throw herself upon her belly in the harem,<sup>b</sup> before the king's-wives (saying): "We come to you, O king's-wives, king's-daughters, and king's-sisters, that ye may appease Horus,<sup>c</sup> lord of the palace, whose fame is great and his triumph mighty. Grant <sup>35</sup>that he — — — me; lo, he — — — <sup>36</sup>him. Lo, [— —] — — — [Speak] <sup>37</sup>to him, that he may incline to the one that praises him — — — <sup>38</sup> [— —] — — —<sup>d</sup>.

Piankhi Addresses Namlot<sup>e</sup>

845. <sup>51</sup>"Lo, who has led thee? who has led thee? Who, then, has led thee? Who has led thee? — — <sup>52</sup>thou didst [forsake] the way of life. Did heaven rain with arrows? I am [content] <sup>53</sup>when the Southerners do obeisance and the Northerners (say): 'Put us in thy shadow.' Lo, it is evil [— —] — — <sup>54</sup>bearing his food. The heart is a steering-oar; it capsizes its owner through that which is from the god. It seeth flame as coolness [in] the heart<sup>f</sup> — — . <sup>55</sup>There is no old man, [— —] — — . Thy nomes are full of youths."

Namlot's Reply to Piankhi

846. He threw himself upon his belly before his majesty (saying): "[Be appeased],<sup>g</sup> <sup>56</sup>Horus, lord of the palace, it is thy might which has done it. I am one of the king's slaves, paying impost into the treasury [— <sup>57</sup>—] their impost. I have brought for thee more than they."

<sup>a</sup>Namlot's.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., "house of women (pr-hm'wt)."

<sup>c</sup>The king.

<sup>d</sup>Four signs are legible in l. 39; ll. 40-49 are entirely lost, and three signs are clear in l. 50. Beginning with l. 35, we pass to the short lines of the left edge, or thickness of the stela.

<sup>e</sup>The plea of Namlot's wife must have been successful; the surrender was accepted by Piankhi, and Namlot has presented himself before him. All this is lost in the long lacuna, and the narrative resumes with Piankhi's obscure address to Namlot.

<sup>f</sup>Or: "The flame seemeth to it as coolness [in] the heart," the heart itself being so hot?

<sup>g</sup>Restored from the relief, where the utterance of Namlot is also partially recorded (§ 814).

Namlot's Gifts

847. Then he presented much silver, gold, lapis lazuli, malachite, bronze, and all costly stones. <sup>58</sup>Then he filled the treasury with this tribute; he brought a horse in the right hand and a sistrum in the left hand,<sup>a</sup> of gold and lapis lazuli.

Piankhi's Triumphant Entry into Hermopolis

848. Then his [majesty] appeared in splendor <sup>59</sup>in his palace,<sup>b</sup> proceeded to the house of Thoth, lord of Hermopolis (Hmnw), and he slew bulls, calves, and fowl for his father, lord of Hermopolis (Hmnw), and the eight gods in the house of <sup>60</sup>the eight gods. The army of the Hare nome acclaimed and rejoiced, saying: "How beautiful is Horus, resting in <sup>61</sup>his city, the Son of Re, Piankhi! Celebrate for us a jubilee (hb-sd), even as thou hast protected the Hare nome."<sup>c</sup>

Piankhi Visits Namlot's Palace

849. His majesty proceeded to <sup>62</sup>the house of King Namlot, he entered every chamber of the king's-house, his treasury and his magazines. He caused that there be brought to him; <sup>63</sup>the king's-wives and king's-daughters; they saluted his majesty in the fashion of women,<sup>d</sup> (but) his majesty turned not his face to <sup>64</sup>them.

Piankhi Visits Namlot's Stables

850. His majesty proceeded to the stable of the horses and the quarters of the foals. When he saw that <sup>65</sup>they had suffered hunger, he said: "I swear, as Re loves me, and as my nostrils are rejuvenated with life, it is more grievous in my heart <sup>66</sup>that my horses have suffered hunger, than any evil deed that thou hast done, in the prosecution of thy desire. It has borne witness of thee to me, the fear of thy associates for thee. <sup>67</sup>Didst thou not know that the god's shadow is over me? and that my fortune never perishes because of him? Would that another had done it to me! <sup>68</sup>I could not but [condemn] him on account of it. When I was being fashioned in the womb, and created in the divine egg <sup>69</sup>the

<sup>a</sup>The relief shows the horse led by the left hand and the sistrum in the right (§ 814).

<sup>b</sup>This must mean Piankhi's tent, for he does not reach Namlot's palace until later (ll. 61, 62).

<sup>c</sup>See §§ 750, 751

<sup>d</sup>Lit., "with the things of women."

seed of the god was in me. By his ka, I do nothing without him; he it is who commands me to do it."

Disposal of Namlot's Property

851. Then his<sup>a</sup> possessions were assigned to the treasury, <sup>70</sup>and his granary to the divine offerings<sup>b</sup> of Amon in Karnak.

Loyalty of Heracleopolis

852. The ruler of Heracleopolis Pefnefdibast<sup>c</sup> (Pf-nj-dyy-B<sup>3</sup> s't) came, bearing tribute <sup>71</sup>to the palace: gold, silver, every costly stone, and horses of the choicest of the stable. He threw himself upon his belly before his majesty; he said: "Hail to thee, Horus, <sup>72</sup>mighty king, Bull subduer of Bulls! The Nether World<sup>d</sup> had seized me, and I was submerged in darkness, <sup>73</sup>upon which the light has (now) shone. I found not a friend in the evil day, who was steadfast in the day of battle; but thou, O mighty king, thou hast expelled <sup>74</sup>the darkness from me. I will labor together with (thy) subjects, and Heracleopolis shall pay taxes <sup>75</sup>into thy treasury, thou likeness of Harakhte, chief of the imperishable stars.<sup>e</sup> As he was, so art thou king; as he perishes not <sup>76</sup>so thou shalt not perish, O King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Piankhi, living forever.

<sup>a</sup>Namlot's.

<sup>b</sup>Temple income (htp ntr).

<sup>c</sup>A fragment of a wooden coffin belonging to a great-granddaughter of this king (Lepsius, Denkmäler, III, 284, a) was found at Thebes by Lepsius. It is now in Berlin (No. 2100, Ausführliches Verzeichniss des Berliner Museums, 238). Combined with an inscription found by Daressy at Medinet Habu (Recueil, 19, 20), we may construct the following genealogy of Pefnefdibast's great-granddaughter, whom we call X, as her name is lost:

The Heracleopolitan house and the fallen house of Bubastis, were thus later connected by marriage.

<sup>d</sup>The following description refers to the struggle of his city with Tefnakhte, and the relief brought by Piankhi.

<sup>e</sup>Lit., "those which cannot perish (yhm w-sk)," an epithet applied to the stars of the northern heavens (Brugsch, Aegyptologie, 321).

Per-Sekhemkheperre is Summoned to Surrender

853. His majesty sailed north to the opening of the canal<sup>a</sup> beside <sup>b77</sup>Illahun (R<sup>o</sup> -hn t); he found Per-Sekhemkheperre<sup>c</sup> with its wall raised, and its stronghold (hm) closed, filled with every valiant man of the Northland. Then his majesty sent to them, saying: "Ye living in death! Ye living in death! Ye insignificant <sup>78</sup>— and miserable ones! Ye living in death! If an hour passes without opening to me, behold, ye are of the number of the fallen; and that is 'painful'<sup>d</sup> to the king. Close not the gates of your life, to be brought to the block this day. Love not death, nor hate life <sup>79</sup>— — <sup>79</sup> before the whole land."

Surrender of Per-Sekhemkheperre

854. Then they sent to his majesty, saying: "Lo, the shadow of the god is over thee; the son of Nut, he gives to thee his two arms; the thought of thy heart comes to pass immediately, like that which comes forth from the mouth of a god. Lo, thou art fashioned as the face of a god; we see by the decree of thy hands. Lo, thy city, his stronghold; <sup>80</sup>[do] thy [pleasure] therewith. Let the goers-in go in there, and the comers-out come out. Let his majesty do what he will." Then they came out, with the son of the chief of Me, Tefnakhte. The army of his majesty entered into it, without slaying one of all the people. He found <sup>81</sup>— —<sup>e</sup> and treasurers to seal his possessions. His treasures were assigned to the Treasury, and his granaries to the divine offerings of his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes.

Surrender of Medûm

855. His majesty sailed northward; he found that Mer-Atum (Medûm), the house of Sokar, lord of Sehez, had been closed, and was inaccessible. It had set fighting in its heart, taking <sup>82</sup>— — Fear [seized] them; terror sealed their mouth. Then his majesty sent to <sup>a</sup>I read mr, "canal," on the squeeze in place of Mariette's  $\xi$  (so also Schaefer), "lake." The irrigation canal leading into the Fayûm is meant, and the "opening" is the gap in the hills, through which it still flows. It would have been impossible for him to "sail north" to this gap, unless he was descending the Bahr Yusuf.

<sup>b</sup>The text here passes to the back of the stela, and the lines increase in length.

<sup>c</sup>The name means "House of Osorkon I," who must therefore have built a town in the vicinity of Illahun.

<sup>d</sup>The same word occurs in l. 131, where I render "wretched."

<sup>e</sup>The determinative shows that some other class of officers preceded.

them, saying: "Behold, two ways are before you; choose ye as ye will: open, and ye shall live; close, and ye shall die. My majesty will not pass by a closed city." Then they opened immediately; his majesty entered into this city, and offered <sup>83</sup>— —<sup>a</sup> [to] Menhy of Sehez. His treasury was assigned [to the Treasury],<sup>b</sup> his granaries to the divine offerings of Amon of Karnak.

Surrender of Ithtowe

856. His majesty sailed north to Ithtowe (Yty-t' wy); he found the rampart closed, and the walls filled with the valiant troops of the Northland. Then they opened the stronghold, and threw themselves upon [their] bellies <sup>84</sup>[before] his majesty (saying): "Thy father has assigned to thee his inheritance. Thine are the Two Lands, thine is what is therein, thine is all that is on earth." His majesty entered to cause a great oblation to be offered to the gods residing in this city, consisting of bulls, calves, fowl, and everything good and pure. Then his treasury was assigned to the Treasury, and his granaries to the divine offerings <sup>85</sup>[of Amon].

Piankhi Demands the Surrender of Memphis

857. [His majesty sailed north to] Memphis; then he sent to them, saying: "Shut not up, fight not, thou abode of Shu in the beginning. As for him that would go in, let him go in; as for him that would come out, let him come out; and let not them that would leave be hindered. I would offer an oblation to Ptah and to the gods dwelling in Memphis (Ynbw hđ), I would sacrifice to Sokar in the mysterious place (Št' t), I would behold 'Him-Who-is-South-of-His-Wall,' that I may sail north in peace. <sup>86</sup>[The people] of Memphis [shall be] safe and sound; not (even) a child shall weep. Look ye to the nomes of the South (Tp-ršy); not a single one has been slain therein, except the enemies who blasphemed against the god, who were dispatched as rebels."

Memphis Resists and Makes a Sortie

858. Then they closed their stronghold; they sent forth an army against some of the soldiers of his majesty, being artisans, chief builders and sailors <sup>87</sup>— — — the harbor of Memphis.

<sup>a</sup>The lacuna contained either the objects offered, or possibly "to Sokar," the other god mentioned at Sehez (l. 81).

<sup>b</sup>Omitted in original.

Tefnakhte Enters Memphis

859. Lo, that chief of Sais (Tefnakhte) arrived at Memphis in the night, charging his infantry and his sailors, all the best of his army, a total of 8,000 men, charging them very earnestly: "Behold, Memphis is filled with troops of all the best of the Northland; (with) barley and spelt and all kinds of grain, the granaries are running over; (with) all weapons of <sup>88</sup>[war. ¶It is fortified with] a wall; a great battlement has been built, executed with skilful workmanship. The river flows around the east side, and no (opportunity of) attack is found there.<sup>a</sup> Cattle yards are there, filled with oxen; the treasury is supplied with everything: silver, gold, copper, clothing, incense, honey, oil."

Tefnakhte Goes for Reinforcements

860. "I will go, and I will give something to the chiefs of the North, and I will open to them their nomes.<sup>b</sup> I will be <sup>89</sup>— — [¶There will be but a few] days<sup>c</sup> until I return." He mounted upon a horse, he asked not for his chariot, he went north in fear of his majesty.

Plans for Taking Memphis

861. When day broke, at early morning, his majesty reached Memphis. When he had landed on the north of it, he found that the water had approached to the walls, the ships mooring at <sup>90</sup>[the walls of] Memphis. Then his majesty saw that it was strong, and that the wall was raised by a new rampart, and battlements manned with mighty men. There was found no way of attacking it. Every man told his opinion among the army of his majesty, according to every rule of war. Every man said: "Let us besiege <sup>91</sup>[it] —; lo, its troops are numerous."<sup>d</sup> Others said: "Let a causeway be made against it;<sup>e</sup> let us elevate the ground to its walls. Let us bind together a tower;<sup>f</sup> let us erect masts <sup>a</sup>The alleged mention of this fact by Tefnakhte is one of the numerous rhetorical devices of the author of the inscription; for it was on this very side that Piankhi stormed the city (ll. 95, 96).

<sup>b</sup>Tefnakhte intends to marshal reinforcements among the Delta chiefs. What he means by opening their nomes is not clear; Griffith suggests that he means: relinquish his claims upon them as suzerain.

<sup>c</sup>Possibly three days.

<sup>d</sup>So numerous that the city could not be assaulted, but, in the opinion of these men, it should be besieged.

<sup>e</sup>Or: "to it."

<sup>f</sup>Bk, the same device employed at Hermopolis (l. 32).

and make the spars into a bridge to it. We will divide it on this (plan) on every side of it, on the high ground and <sup>92</sup>— on the north of it, in order to elevate the ground at its walls, that we may find a way for our feet.”<sup>a</sup>

Piankhi Decides to Assault

862. Then his majesty was enraged against it like a panther; he said: “I swear, as Re loves me, as my father, Amon [‘who fashioned me], favors me, this shall befall it, according to the command of Amon. This is what men say: <sup>93</sup>[‘The Northland’] and the nomes of the South, they opened to him from afar, they did not set Amon in their heart, they knew not what he commanded. He (Amon) made him (Piankhi) to show forth his fame, to cause his might to be seen.’ I will take it like a flood of water. I have commanded <sup>94</sup>— — —.”

Harbor of Memphis Captured

863. Then he sent forth his fleet and his army to assault the harbor of Memphis; they brought to him every ferry-boat, every [‘cargo’]-boat, every [‘transport’],<sup>b</sup> and the ships, as many as there were, which had moored in the harbor of Memphis, with the bow-rope fastened among its houses. <sup>95</sup>[There was not] a citizen (nds) who wept, among all the soldiers of his majesty.<sup>c</sup>

Piankhi Orders Assault of Memphis

864. His majesty himself came to line up<sup>d</sup> the ships, as many as there were. His majesty commanded his army (saying): “Forward against it! Mount the walls! Penetrate the houses over the river. If one of you gets through upon the wall, let him not halt before it, <sup>96</sup>[so that] the (hostile) troops may not repulse you.<sup>e</sup> It were vile that <sup>a</sup>The second party therefore desired to assault the city, as against the first who desired to besiege it.

<sup>b</sup>The exact character of these two kinds of boat (mhn and shry) is unknown.

<sup>c</sup>Either all were considered in the distribution of the spoil, or no man was injured in the assault.

<sup>d</sup>This word (sk), used of ranging troops in line of battle, is here applied to lining up ships. The king in person ranged the captured ships, and his own fleet under the walls on the inundated (east) side of the city. This arrangement gave his troops footing for the assault. The nature of the attack is quite evident.

<sup>e</sup>They are not to stop on the wall, but to press over it immediately into the city.

we should close up the South, should land [in] the North and lay siege in 'Balances of the Two Lands.'"<sup>a</sup>

Capture of Memphis

865. Then Memphis was taken as (by) a flood of water, a multitude of people were slain therein, and brought as living captives to the place where his majesty was.

Protection of Memphis

Now, afterward, <sup>97</sup>when it dawned, and the second day came, his majesty sent people into it, protecting the temples of the god. He<sup>b</sup> [—] the holy of holies of the gods, offered to the community of gods of Hatkeptah (Memphis), cleansed Memphis with natron and incense, installed the priests in their places.

Piankhi's Recognition by Ptah

866. His majesty proceeded to the house of <sup>98</sup>[Ptah], his purification was performed in the Dewat-chamber, and every custom that is practised upon a king was fulfilled upon him. He entered into the temple, and a great oblation was made for his father, "Ptah-South-of-His-Wall" (Ršy-ymb'f), consisting of bulls, calves, fowl, and everything good. His majesty proceeded to his house.<sup>c</sup>

Region of Memphis Surrenders

867. Then all the nomes which were in the district of Memphis, heard (of it): Herypedemy,<sup>d</sup> Penineywe (Pny-<sup>99</sup>n<sup>2</sup> yw<sup>c</sup>), the Tower of Beyew (Byw), the Oasis of Bit; they opened the strongholds, and fled away; none knew the place whither they had gone.

<sup>a</sup>Evidently a name for the locality dividing Upper from Lower Egypt, where Piankhi now was. The same phrase (mḥ<sup>2</sup> t<sup>2</sup> wy) occurs in a hymn to Amon (Berlin Papyrus, 3048, Band II, Taf. 45, l. 6), where the god is called: "One whose word is the balances of the Two Lands." I owe the reference to Schaefer. Piankhi means that, having cut off the South from Tefnakhte, it would be humiliating, after reaching the North, to sit down for a siege on its threshold.

<sup>b</sup>The text is not in order here.

<sup>c</sup>Evidently a palace in Memphis, now taken possession of by Piankhi.

<sup>d</sup>Or: "Hery the city." These places in the region of Memphis, cannot be exactly placed at the present day.

Submission of Delta Dynasts

868. King Yewepet came, and the chief of Me, Akenesh (<sup>2</sup>-k<sup>2</sup>-n-šw), and the hereditary prince, Pediese, <sup>100</sup>together with all the princes of the Northland, bearing their tribute, to behold the beauty of his majesty.

Wealth of Memphis Assigned

Then the treasuries and granaries of Memphis were assigned to the divine offerings of Amon, of Ptah, and of the gods dwelling in Hatke-ptah (Memphis).

Piankhi Worships in Khereha

869. When the land brightened, very early in the morning, his majesty proceeded eastward, and an offering was made for Atum in Khereha, <sup>101</sup>the divine ennead in the house of the ennead, the cavern and the gods dwelling in it; consisting of bulls, calves, and fowl; that they might give life, prosperity, and health to the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Piankhi, living forever.

Piankhi Goes to Heliopolis

870. His majesty proceeded to Heliopolis (Ynw), upon that mount of Khereha, on the highway of (the god) Sep to Khereha. His majesty proceeded to the camp, which was on the west of Eti.<sup>a</sup> His purification was performed, and he was cleansed in <sup>102</sup>the pool of Kebeh, and he bathed his face in the river of Nun, in which Re bathes his face.

Ceremonies in Heliopolis: the "Sand-hill"

Proceeding to the Sand-hill in Heliopolis, a great oblation was made upon the Sand-hill in Heliopolis, in the presence of Re, at his rising, consisting of white oxen, milk, myrrh, incense, and <sup>103</sup>every sweet-smelling wood.

Temple of Re

871. He came, proceeding to the house of Re, and entered into the temple with great praise. The chief ritual priest praised the god, that rebels might be repelled from the king. The Dewat-chamber was visited, that the sedeb-garment might be fastened on; he was purified with incense and libations; garlands for the pyramidion-house were presented to him, and flowers were brought to him. He ascended <sup>104</sup>the steps to the great window,<sup>a</sup> to behold Re in the pyramidion-house. The king himself stood alone, he broke through<sup>b</sup> the bolts, opened the double doors, and beheld his father, Re, in the glorious pyramidion-house, the Morning-Barque of Re, and the Evening-Barque of Atum.<sup>c</sup> He closed the double doors, applied the clay, and sealed (them) <sup>105</sup>with the king's own seal. He charged the priests: "I have proved the seal; no other shall enter therein, of all the kings who shall arise." They threw themselves upon their bellies before his majesty, saying: "To abide, to endure, without perishing, O Horus, beloved of Heliopolis."

<sup>a</sup>This is the name of the Heliopolitan canal; it here has the determinative of a city, and probably the settlement on the harbor of Heliopolis is meant; see Harris 28, 6 (§ 266).

Temple of Atum

872. He came and entered into the house of Atum, following the image <sup>106</sup>of his father, Atum-Khepri the Great, of Heliopolis.

Submission of Osorkon

King Osorkon<sup>d</sup> came to see the beauty of his majesty.

Piankhi Camps near Athribis

873. When the land brightened, very early in the morning, his majesty proceeded to the harbor, and the <sup>1</sup>best<sup>1</sup> of his ships crossed over to the harbor of the nome of Athribis (K<sup>2</sup>-km). The camp of his

<sup>a</sup>The front of the god's shrine is compared with the balcony-like window (ššd) of the palace, where the king shows himself.

<sup>b</sup>Meaning the seal upon the bolts.

<sup>c</sup>See Wiedemann, Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, VI, No. 2, 49 ff.

<sup>d</sup>This Osorkon can be no other than Osorkon III of the Twenty-third Dynasty. For the invasion of Piankhi was later than Pedibast. Another connection is: that King Yewepet, one of the Delta kings who submitted to Piankhi, is mentioned as coregent with Pedibast at Thebes. Yewepet must therefore have survived Pedibast. Osorkon III survived the conquest of Piankhi, and together with an otherwise unknown Takelot (III) recovered Thebes, where they built an Osiris chapel together, the remains of which were found by Legrain at Karnak (Recueil, 22, 128-34). That their control of Thebes did not begin at the death of Pedibast and precede the invasion of Piankhi, is evident from the fact that Yewepet, who ruled in Thebes with Pedibast, survived him, and would have continued there. Osorkon III must therefore have ruled several years, a conclusion corroborated by the dates of the Nile-levels at Karnak in the years 5, 8, and 14 of his reign. It is evident, then, that the whole occupation of Lower Egypt by Piankhi must fall within the reign of Osorkon III.

majesty was set up on the south of Keheni<sup>a</sup> (K<sup>3</sup>-h-ny), on the east<sup>107</sup> of the nome of Athribis (K<sup>3</sup>-km).

Submission of Delta Dynasts

Then came those kings and princes of the Northland, all the chiefs who wore the feather, every vizier, all chiefs, and every king's-confidant, from the west, from the east, and from the islands in the midst, to see the beauty of his majesty.

Piankhi is Invited to Athribis

874. The hereditary prince, Pediese, threw himself upon his belly<sup>108</sup> before his majesty, and said: "Come to Athribis (K<sup>3</sup>-km),<sup>b</sup> that thou mayest see Khentikhet (Hnt-hty), that thou mayest worship Khuyet<sup>c</sup> (Hwy't), that thou mayest offer an oblation to Horus in his house, consisting of: bulls, calves, and fowl; and that thou mayest enter my house. My treasury is open to thee, to [—] thyself with my paternal possessions. I will give to thee gold, as much as thou desirest; <sup>109</sup>malachite shall be heaped up before thee; many horses of the best of the stable, and the first of the stall."

Piankhi in Athribis

875. His majesty proceeded to the house of Harkhentikhet, and there were offered bulls, calves, and fowl to his father, Harkhentikhet, lord of Kemwer (Km-wr). His majesty went to the house of the hereditary prince, Pediese; he (Pediese) presented to him silver, gold, <sup>110</sup>lapis lazuli, and malachite, a great heap of everything; clothing of royal linen of every number;<sup>d</sup> couches laid with fine linen; myrrh and ointment in jars (hbb); horses, both stallions and mares, of all the best of his stable.

Speech of Pediese of Athribis

876. He (Pediese) purified himself by a divine oath, before these kings and great chiefs of <sup>111</sup>the Northland (saying): "Every one of

<sup>a</sup>A town midway between Cairo and Benha bears the name Kaha, which is suggested by Daressy (Recueil, 20, 85, CLXIII) as possibly our Keheni, but it does not suit the location "east" of Athribis.

<sup>b</sup>It is evident that the city is meant here, and probably also above (l. 106).

<sup>c</sup>A goddess.

<sup>d</sup>As Griffith suggests, this is doubtless a reference to the fineness determined by the number of threads in a given measure.

them, if he conceals his horses and hides his obligation shall die the death of his father. So be it to me, till ye<sup>a</sup> bear witness of the servant there,<sup>b</sup> in all that ye know of me; say ye, (whether) I have concealed (aught) from his majesty, of all the possessions <sup>112</sup>of my father's house: [of] gold, silver; of costly stone; of all kinds of vessels, [—]; of golden bracelets, of necklaces, and collars wrought with costly stones; amulets for every limb, chaplets for the head, ~~earrings~~ rings for the ears: all the adornments of a king; all the vessels of the king's purification, in gold and — all costly stones. All these I have presented <sup>113</sup>in the (royal) presence: garments of royal linen by thousands of all the best of my house, where-with I knew thou wouldst be pleased. Go to the stable that thou mayest choose as thou desirest, of all the horses that thou wilt." Then his majesty did so.

Delta Dynasts Dismissed

877. Said these kings and princes to his majesty: "Dismiss us to our cities, that we may open <sup>114</sup>our treasuries, that we may choose as much as thy heart desires, that we may bring to thee the best of our stables, the first of our horses." Then his majesty did so.

List of Delta Dynasts

878. List of names belonging thereto:

1. King<sup>c</sup> Osorkon in Bubastis, the district of Ranofer (R<sup>c</sup> -n/r).
2. King<sup>d</sup> Yewepet in Tentremu (T<sup>nt</sup>-rmw) and Tayan (T<sup>o</sup> - c yn).<sup>e</sup>
3. The prince (h<sup>o</sup> ty- c), Zeamonefonekh <sup>115</sup>in "The Granary<sup>f</sup> of Re," of Per-Benedded (Mendes).

<sup>a</sup>He addresses the Delta princes.

<sup>b</sup>A circumlocution for "me," or "thy servant."

<sup>c</sup>On this Osorkon, see above, l. 106, § 872.

<sup>d</sup>This king had ruled in Thebes together with the now deceased Pedibast, beginning with the latter's sixteenth and his own second year (§ 794). He had thus been ruling some eleven or twelve years at this time, and, as he survived Pedibast, he had probably continued in Thebes, and was expelled by Piankhi about 722 B. C.

<sup>e</sup>The reading of c yn is not quite certain; both these places are of uncertain location. In the case of c yn, I am inclined to identify it with Ayan of l. 3. Brugsch identifies with "Daneon Portus" of Pliny (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 124).

<sup>f</sup>Identified by Foucart (Recueil, 20, 163 f.) with a modern Shuneh Yusuf, about 16 kilometers from Tell Tmai (Mendes), though he does not consider his identification as certain.

4. His eldest son, commander of the army, in Per-Thutuprehui (Pr-Dḥwtj-wp-rḥwy), Enekkhor.
5. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), Akenesh ( $ʔ-k^2 -n-š$ ) in Sebennytos, (Tb-ntr), in Per-heby<sup>a</sup> (Pr-ḥby), and in Samhudet<sup>b</sup> (Sm^2 -ḥwd).
6. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), chief of Me, Pethenef ( $P^2 -tnf$ ), in Per-Soped<sup>c</sup> and in “Granary<sup>d</sup> of Memphis.”
7. <sup>116</sup>The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), chief of Me, Pemou<sup>e</sup> ( $P^2 -m^2$ ), in Per-Osiris (Busiris), lord of Ded.
8. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), chief of Me, Nesnekedy<sup>f</sup> ( $Ns-n^2 -kdy$ ) in the nome of Hesebka<sup>g</sup> (Hsb-k^2).
9. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), chief of Me, Nekhtharneshenu (Nḥt-Ḥr-n^2 -šnw) in Per-Gerer<sup>h</sup> (Pr-G-rw-rw).
10. The chief of Me, Pentewere.
11. The chief of Me, Pentibekhenet (Pnty-Bḥn^2 t).
12. The prophet of Horus, lord of Letopolis (Šḥm), <sup>117</sup>Pediharsomtous ( $P^2 -dy-Ḥr-sm^2 -t^2 wy$ ).
13. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ), Hurabes (Ḥw-r^2 -b^2 -s) in the house of Sekhmet, mistress of Sais ( $S^2$ ), and the house of Sekhmet, mistress of Rehesu<sup>i</sup> (Rḥš^2 wy).
14. The prince ( $h^2 ty^c$ ) Zedkhiyu (Dd-ḥy-yw) in Khentnofer<sup>j</sup> (Ḥnt-njr).

<sup>a</sup>This place is identified by Brugsch (Dictionnaire géographique, 489) with Iseum, modern Behbeit, which is probably correct. But in that case, Neter, the home of Tefnakhte (l. 2) cannot also be wholly identified with Iseum, for it is here held by Prince Akenesh.

<sup>b</sup>See II, 935.

<sup>c</sup>The name of this well-known city of the eastern Delta (Arabian nome) is not preserved by the classic geographers, but occurs in the annals of Ashurbanipal as Pi-saptu.

<sup>d</sup>The reading, although uncertain on the original, is rendered certain by a stela found at el Awasgeh, district of Sawaleh, in the region of Saft-el-Henneh (Per-Soped), on which “Granary of Memphis” (Šnw^2 t Ynbw ḥd) twice occurs. See Daressy, Recueil, 10, 142, IV.

<sup>e</sup>See note on his subordinate, Sheshonk, l. 18 (§ 830).

<sup>f</sup>See I, 19.

<sup>g</sup>Eleventh nome of Lower Egypt.

<sup>h</sup>Probably the Phagroriopolis of Strabo, as Brugsch has shown (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 858). It was in the region near the northern terminus of the Gulf of Suez.

<sup>i</sup>A city near Letopolis (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 660).

<sup>j</sup>Entirely uncertain: Brugsch's suggestion (Brugsch, Dictionnaire géographique, 612) does not seem probable.

15. The prince ( $h^2 ty-c$ ) Pebes ( $P^2-B^2-f$ ) in Khreha ( $Hr-c h^2$ ) in Per-Hapi ( $Pr-h^c p$ ).

Bearing all their good tribute: <sup>a118</sup>gold, silver, — —, couches laid with fine linen, myrrh in <sup>119</sup>jars ( $hbhb$ ), — — —, as goodly dues; horses <sup>120</sup>of ———.

Revolt of Mesed

879. [Many days<sup>1</sup> after] this, came one to say <sup>121</sup>to his majesty: "The — — army — — — — his wall <sup>122</sup>for fear<sup>1</sup> of thee; he has set fire to [his] treasury [and to the ships]<sup>b</sup> upon the river. He has garrisoned Mesed<sup>c</sup> ( $Msd$ ) <sup>123</sup>with soldiers and — — —. Then his majesty caused his warriors to go <sup>124</sup>and see what had happened there, among the force<sup>d</sup> of the hereditary prince, Pediese. One came to report <sup>125</sup>to his majesty, saying: "We have slain every man whom we found there." His majesty gave it as a reward <sup>126</sup>to the hereditary prince, Pediese.

Tefnakhte's Message of Submission

880. Then the chief of Me, Tefnakhte, heard of it<sup>e</sup> and caused <sup>127</sup>a messenger to come to the place where his majesty was, with flattery, saying: "Be thou appeased! I have not beheld thy face for <sup>128</sup>shame;<sup>f</sup> I cannot stand before thy flame, I tremble at thy might. Lo, thou art Nubti, presiding over the Southland, Montu, <sup>129</sup>the Bull of mighty arm. To whatsoever city thou hast turned thy face, thou hast not found the servant there,<sup>g</sup> until<sup>h</sup> I reached the islands <sup>130</sup>of the sea, trembling before thy might, and saying, 'His flame is hostile to me.' Is not <sup>131</sup>the

<sup>a</sup>The text here proceeds from the back to the right edge or thickness of the stela, the last of the four inscribed surfaces.

<sup>b</sup>Restored from the same phrase, l. 9.

<sup>c</sup>The place is unknown, but in view of the effect of its fall on Tefnakhte, it must have been on his frontier in the western Delta.

<sup>d</sup>Either there was a force of Pediese's at Mesed, or the troops dispatched by Piankhi were taken from Pediese's forces, according as "among" is construed with "happened" or with "warriors."

<sup>e</sup>Judging from this, the preceding incident is the last hostile enterprise of Tefnakhte.

<sup>f</sup>Lit., "because of occasions of shame" ( $m sp n šp$ ), meaning that he has been ashamed to appear before Piankhi.

<sup>g</sup>See above, l. 111, note.

<sup>h</sup>He fled from place to place, as Piankhi advanced, "until" he reached the sea.

heart of thy majesty appeased,<sup>a</sup> with these things that thou hast done to me? For I am verily a wretched man. Thou shouldst not smite me according to the measure of the crime; weighing with <sup>132</sup>the balances, knowing with the kidet-weights. Thou increasest it to me threefold; leave the seed that thou mayest <sup>133</sup>spare<sup>1</sup> it in <sup>134</sup>time<sup>1</sup>; do not hew down <sup>133</sup>the grove to its <sup>135</sup>root<sup>1</sup>. By thy ka, the terror of thee is in my body, and the fear of thee in my bones. I have not sat in <sup>134</sup>the beer-hall,<sup>b</sup> nor has the harp been played for me; but I have eaten bread in hunger, and I have drunk water in <sup>135</sup>thirst,<sup>c</sup> since that day when thou heardest my name. <sup>136</sup>Disease<sup>1</sup> is in my bones, my head is bare, my clothing <sup>136</sup>is rags, till Neit is appeased toward me. Long is the course which thou hast brought to me; <sup>137</sup>thy face is against me — <sup>137</sup>the year has undone me<sup>1</sup>. Cleanse (thy) servant of his fault, let my possessions be received into the Treasury, of <sup>138</sup>gold and every costly stone, and the best of the horses, (even) <sup>139</sup>payment<sup>d</sup> for<sup>1</sup> everything. Send to me <sup>139</sup>a messenger quickly, that he may expel fear from my heart. Let me go forth before him to the temple, that I may cleanse myself with a divine oath.”

Tefnakhte Takes Oath of Allegiance

881. <sup>140</sup>His majesty dispatched the chief ritual priest, PEDIAMENESTOWE (P<sup>o</sup> dy-Ymn-ns' t-t<sup>o</sup> wy), and the commander of the army, PURME (P-w<sup>o</sup> -r-m<sup>o</sup>). <sup>141</sup>He<sup>e</sup> presented him with silver and gold, clothing and every splendid, costly stone. He went forth to the temple, he worshiped the god, <sup>142</sup>he cleansed himself with a divine oath, saying: “I will not transgress the command of the king, I will not overstep <sup>143</sup>that which the king saith. I will not do a hostile act against a prince (h<sup>o</sup> ty-<sup>o</sup>)

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “cooled.”

<sup>b</sup>See § 451, note.

<sup>c</sup>There is probably a reminiscence of this in Diodorus (I, 45), where it is related that Tefnakhte was on a campaign, eis τὴν Ἀραβίαν, and, being without supplies, was obliged to resort to the coarsest food from the hands of common people. Upon finding it very appetizing, he cursed Menes (who had introduced luxury) and thereafter ate only simple food.

<sup>d</sup>Db<sup>o</sup>; the same word means “to clothe,” but, so far as I know, it applies only to people, or gods; hence “accoutered with everything” (Griffith) is also uncertain.

<sup>e</sup>The uncertainty in the pronouns is equally bad in the original; the most probable interpretation, in view of the situation, is that Tefnakhte made presents to Piankhi.

without thy knowledge; I will do according to that which <sup>144</sup>the king says, and I will not transgress that which he has commanded." Then his majesty was satisfied therewith.

Submission of the Fayûm, Atfih, and the Last Kings of the Delta

882. One came to say <sup>145</sup>to his majesty: "The temple of Sebek,<sup>a</sup> they have opened its stronghold, Metenu<sup>b</sup> (Mtnw) throws itself upon its belly, there is not <sup>146</sup>a nome closed against his majesty of the nomes of the South and North; the west, the east, and the islands in the midst are upon their bellies in fear of him, <sup>147</sup>causing that their possessions be presented at the place where his majesty is, like subjects of the palace." When the land brightened, very early in <sup>148</sup>the morning these two<sup>c</sup> rulers of the South and two rulers of the North, with serpent-crests (uraei), came to sniff the ground before the fame <sup>149</sup>of his majesty, while, as for these kings and princes of the Northland who came to behold the beauty of his majesty, their legs <sup>150</sup>were as the legs of women. They entered not into the king's-house, because they were unclean<sup>d</sup> <sup>151</sup>and eaters of fish; which is an abomination for the palace. Lo, King Namlot, he entered <sup>152</sup>into the king's-house, because he was pure, and he ate not fish. There stood three <sup>153</sup>upon their feet, (but only) one entered the king's-house.

Piankhi's Return to the South

883. Then the ships were laden with silver, gold, copper, <sup>154</sup>clothing, and everything of the Northland, every product of Syria (H<sup>3</sup> -rw), and all sweet woods of God's-Land. <sup>155</sup>His majesty sailed up-stream, with

<sup>a</sup>The Fayûm, mentioned in l. 4 as having submitted to Tefnakhte.

<sup>b</sup>Aphroditopolis (Atfih), the capital of the twenty-second nome of Upper Egypt. Its surrender to Tefnakhte is probably mentioned in l. 4. As Piankhi passed northward along the western side of the Nile valley between the Fayûm on the west and Aphroditopolis on the east, neither of these was then touched by him. Hence they both come in and surrender of themselves afterward.

<sup>c</sup>As Namlot is one of the two kings of the South (l. 151), the Fayûm king or the king of Atfih must be the other. Who the two kings of the North were is not indicated.

<sup>d</sup>M<sup>c</sup> m<sup>c</sup> with determinative of a phallus; sometimes rendered "uncircumcised."

glad heart, the shores on his either side were jubilating. West and east, they seized the [—], <sup>156</sup>jubilating in the presence of his majesty; singing and jubilating as they said: "O mighty, mighty Ruler, <sup>157</sup>Piankhi, O mighty Ruler; thou comest, having gained the dominion of the Northland. Thou makest bulls <sup>158</sup>into women. Happy the heart of the mother who bore thee, and the man who begat thee. Those who are in the valley give to her praise, the cow <sup>159</sup>that hath borne a bull. Thou art unto eternity, thy might endureth, O Ruler, beloved of Thebes."

THE TWENTY-FOURTH DYNASTY

REIGN OF BOCCHORIS

SERAPEUM STELÆ

884. Bocchoris, the only king of the Twenty-fourth Dynasty, the son of Tefnakhte,<sup>a</sup> has left only a few Serapeum stelæ,<sup>b</sup> and a wall inscription, which record the burial of an Apis in his sixth year. It was interred in the same chamber as the one which died in the thirty-seventh year of Sheshonk IV. These documents give his name as: King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Wokere<sup>c</sup> ( $W^{\text{3}} h-k-^{\text{3}} R^{\text{c}}$ ), Son of Re, Bekneranej. As Africanus also gives his reign as six years,<sup>d</sup> he probably did not reign longer. Counting back from 663, the beginning of the Twenty-sixth Dynasty, his accession was about 718 B. C.

---

<sup>a</sup>Diodorus, I, 45.

<sup>b</sup>Louvre, 298, 299; Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, Pl. 34.

<sup>c</sup>This is the origin of the classic form Βόκχορις (Diodorus, I, 45, 65).

<sup>d</sup>Syncellus has 44.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH DYNASTY

RECORDS OF NILE-LEVELS AT KARNAK<sup>a</sup>

885. Like those of the preceding dynasties, these records of the Twenty-fifth Dynasty are of great chronological value. They enable us, for the first time, to arrange the kings of the Ethiopian dynasty in order of succession, the position of Shabaka having heretofore been uncertain. The record here (No. 4) shows that Shabataka's third year was near 700 B. C., and, as it is impossible in that case to insert Shabaka between Shabataka and Taharka, the only other possible order is: Shabaka, Shabataka, Taharka—an order which is confirmed by the datum of Manetho, that Shabaka overthrew the Twenty-fourth Dynasty, having defeated and slain Bocchoris. If Shabataka's third year was near 700 B. C., and he was the predecessor of Taharka, whose accession was in 688 B. C.,<sup>b</sup> then Shabataka must have begun to reign, at the latest, about 700, and his reign lasted some twelve years, which is exactly what Syncellus gives him. The whole dynasty may then be restored thus:

Shabaka	$12^c + x$ years	712-700 B. C.
Shabataka	12 years	700-688 “
Takarka	26 years	688-663 <sup>d</sup> “
—
Total	50 years

---

<sup>a</sup>Engraved on the quai before the great Karnak temple; published by Legrain, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1896, 114-16.

<sup>b</sup>§ 959 ff.

<sup>c</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 1, e; Syncellus also gives him twelve years.

<sup>d</sup>§ 1026.

Reign of Shabaka

886. 1. <sup>a</sup>(30) <sup>b</sup>Year 2, under the majesty of Horus: Sebektowe (Šbk-tꜣwy); Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Sebektowe; Golden Horus: Sebektowe; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Neferkere; Son of Re: [Shabaka], living forever, beloved of Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, beloved of Montu-Re, lord of Thebes. The Nile, father of gods, was 20 cubits, 1 palm, 1 finger.

2. (31) [The Nile] Year — [under] the majesty of King Shabaka

3. (32) [Year] — [under] the majesty of King Shabaka ———.

Reign of Shabataka

887. 4. (33) Year 3, first month<sup>c</sup> of the third season, day 5, under the majesty of King Shabataka.<sup>d</sup> When his majesty was crowned as king in the house of Amon, he granted him that he should splendidly appear as Favorite of the Two Goddesses, like Horus upon the throne of Re. (The Nile) which his father Amon the great, Hapi the great, great in Niles, granted him in his time: 20 (cubits), 2 palms.

Reign of Taharka

888. 5. (34) Year 6 of King Taharka (Tꜣ-h-rw-k), beloved of Amon the great.

6. (35) The Nile. Year 6 under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Nefertem-Khure (Nfr-tm, Hw-Rꜣ); Son of Re: Taharka, living forever, beloved of Nun the great, Amon the great, the Nile, father<sup>e</sup> of gods, and the (divine) community upon the flood. (The Nile), which his father, Amon, gave to him, that his time might be made prosperous.

<sup>a</sup>The numbers in parenthesis are those of Legrain's publication.

<sup>b</sup>The latest preceding date is the fourteenth year of Osorkon III.

<sup>c</sup>Meyer has shown that this date for the highest point of the inundation must have fallen somewhere about 700 B. C. (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 40, 124 f.; and 41, 93).

<sup>d</sup>The scribe attempted to give the full titulary of the king, but it is very confused.

<sup>e</sup>The whole series is perhaps one composite god; see, e. g., No. 36 (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 34, 116).

7. (36) The Nile. Year 7 under the majesty of King Taharka, living forever, beloved of Nun the great, Amon the great, the Nile, father of gods, and the divine (community) upon the flood. (The Nile) which his father, Amon, gave to him, that his time might be made prosperous.

8. (37) The Nile. Year 7 (sic!) under the majesty of King Taharka.
.....<sup>a</sup>

9. (38) The Nile. Year 9<sup>b</sup> of King Taharka, living forever, beloved of Nun the great, and Amon the great.

---

<sup>a</sup>Like No. 7, except the height, which is different. The year is doubtless an error for 8, as it is preceded by 7 and followed by 9.

<sup>b</sup>Followed by year 10 of Psamtik.

REIGN OF SHABAKA

BUILDING INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

889. As a memorial of his rule in Thebes, Shabaka left the following record of a restoration by him on the fourth pylon of the Karnak temple:

[King Shabaka; he made (it) as his monument for his father], Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, presider over Karnak, restoring the great and august gate<sup>b</sup> (šb ʿ): “Amon-Re-is-Mighty-in-Strength,” making for it a great overlay of fine gold, which the majesty of King Shabaka,<sup>c</sup> living forever, brought from the victories, which his father, Amon, decreed to him; the great hall<sup>d</sup> (hy ʿt) being overlaid with fine gold, the south column and the north column<sup>e</sup> being wrought with gold, the two lower lips being of pure silver, made ———.

---

<sup>a</sup>On the north side of the door of the fourth pylon of the great Karnak temple; published by Champollion, Notices descriptives, II, 129, 130; Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 1, b; Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1316; see Lepsius, Denkmäler, Text, III, 152.

<sup>b</sup>This is, of course, the main door or gate of the pylon (IV) in which the inscription is. See the name again, Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1315.

<sup>c</sup>Double name.

<sup>d</sup>This is the colonnaded hall of Thutmose I, behind Pylon IV.

<sup>e</sup>This pair must have been like the two beautiful pillars of Thutmose III, a little farther back, just in front of the sanctuary. “The two lower lips” are perhaps the two bases or their edges.

REIGN OF TAHARKA

TANIS STELA<sup>a</sup>

892.<sup>b</sup> This unfortunately fragmentary stela was erected by Taharka at Tanis to commemorate the coming of his mother thither from Napata, after his coronation in Lower Egypt. He narrates how he came north from Nubia as a youth of twenty years with some king. This would have been on the invasion of Lower Egypt by Shabaka. Many years then elapsed before he became king, during which he did not see his mother, and must, therefore, have spent these years in the north. As a son of Piankhi, he must have occupied a prominent position. When it is recollected that the Hebrew records (2 Kings 19:9) state that the enemy of Sennacherib at Altaqû in 701 B. C. (some thirteen years before Taharka's accession) was Taharka, the conclusion cannot be resisted that Shabaka sent Taharka in command of the Egyptian and Ethiopian forces, against the Assyrians. It is evident, therefore, that the Hebrew writer, reporting the matter at a later date, long after Taharka's reign, supposes him to have been already king in 701.<sup>c</sup>

893. The beginning of the stela is too fragmentary for

---

<sup>a</sup>Fragmentary stela in two parts, left lying as found in the ruins of Tanis. The lower fragment, containing 19 lines, was first seen and copied by de Rouge, (Inscriptions hiéroglyphiques, 73; and "Etudes sur des monuments du règne de Taharka," Mélanges d'archéologie égyptienne et assyrienne, I, 21-23); again published by Birch, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1880, 22 ff. Petrie then found the upper part, and published both parts in his Tanis (II, Pl. IX, No. 136). It was first understood historically by Schaefer (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1900, 51, 52).

<sup>b</sup>The omission of two in numbering the sections is intentional.

<sup>c</sup>See also Griffith, Stories of the High Priests, 10, 11.

translation, but it is evident that someone, of course the king, gave the young Taharka, who narrates it all in the first person, a fine field (l. 1), which the gods protected against grasshoppers (l. 2), so that Taharka reaped (<sup>c</sup> w<sup>3</sup>) from it (l. 3) a plentiful yield of all grain and fruit of the ground. Meanwhile he was brought up among the royal children (l. 5) and someone, again of course the king, loved him more than the royal children (l. 6). Taharka then says:

My father, Amon, [vouchsafed] to me to place all lands under my feet <sup>10</sup>——— [the east as far as<sup>1</sup>] the rising of Re, and the west <sup>11</sup> [as far as his setting<sup>1</sup>].

894. Whether the restorations are correct or not it is evident that Taharka is here relating his accession in the conventional terms, which always make such a usurpation an act of the gods. Immediately thereupon, Taharka narrates the coming of his mother from Napata, which leads him to revert to the long separation from her, caused by his departure for the North years before. He says:

895. <sup>a</sup> [The queen-mother<sup>1</sup>] was in Napata<sup>b</sup> as King's-Sister, amiable in love, King's-Mother <sup>12</sup>———. Now, I had been separated from her as a youth (hwn) of twenty years, <sup>13</sup> [accompanying his majesty<sup>1</sup>] when he<sup>c</sup> came to the Northland (Delta). Then she went north to <sup>14</sup> [the Northland where I was<sup>1</sup>] after a long period (hnty) of years, and she found me crowned <sup>15</sup> [as king upon the throne of Horus<sup>1</sup>]. I had taken the diadems of Re, and I had assumed the double serpent-crest, as <sup>16</sup>——— as the protection of my limbs. She rejoiced greatly <sup>17</sup> [when she saw] the beauty of his majesty,<sup>d</sup> as Isis saw her son, Horus, crowned upon the throne <sup>18</sup>——— while he was a youth in the marsh of <sup>19</sup>——— all countries. They bowed to the ground to this King's-

<sup>a</sup>This would connect directly with the above beginning of l. 11.

<sup>b</sup>This reading, first noticed by Schaefer (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1900, 51, 52), is certain.

<sup>c</sup>This "he" can only refer to the king under whom the youth Taharka was serving, when separated from his mother; see Schaefer, loc. cit.

<sup>d</sup>Taharka.

Mother, while she <sup>20</sup>——— 'greatly'. Their old as well as their young ones <sup>21</sup>[[gave praise to] this King's-Mother, saying: "Isis hath received <sup>22</sup>———, she hath — her son, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Taharka, living forever <sup>23</sup>———.

896. Here follow four lines of conventional praise addressed to Taharka, closing with a comparison of his kindness toward his mother with that of Horus to his mother, Isis:

<sup>26</sup>——— for his mother, Isis, when thou wast crowned upon the throne.

BUILDING INSCRIPTION IN LARGE CLIFF-TEMPLE OF NAPATA

897. The following dedications in the larger temple at Napata record Taharka's building activity there:

<sup>a</sup>Taharka, living forever; he made (it) as his monument for his mother, Mut of Napata; he built for her a temple anew, of fine white sandstone, his majesty having found this temple built of stone,<sup>b</sup> by the ancestors, of bad workmanship. His majesty caused that this temple should be built of excellent workmanship, forever.

898. The same hall as the above conclusion has:

<sup>c</sup>He made (it) as his monument for his mother, Mut, mistress of heaven, queen of Nubia (T<sup>2</sup> pd' t); he built her house, he enlarged her temple anew, of fine white sandstone.

899. A cella beside the main adytum has:

<sup>d</sup>He made (it) as his monument for [his] mother, Mut, Eye of Re, Mistress of Heaven, queen of gods, residing in Napata; building her house of fine white sandstone.

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 5: frieze inscription in the first hall.

<sup>b</sup>The inscription as published stops abruptly here, and the frieze inscription of the next hall as published (Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 7, a) begins with equal abruptness, and fits the inscription of the first hall exactly. Whether this is an accident of preservation, or was originally intended, is immaterial.

<sup>c</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 7, c.

<sup>d</sup>Ibid., 12, a.

900. An altar in the Amon-temple bears the dedication:<sup>a</sup>

He made (it) as his monument for his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes (Nswt-t<sup>3</sup> wy), great god, residing in Nubia (T<sup>3</sup>-pd<sup>3</sup>t); (of) granite [—], in order to offer upon it in his palace (<sup>c</sup> h<sup>c</sup>). Never happened the like.

INSCRIPTION OF MENTEMHET<sup>b</sup>

901. The history of the principality of Thebes after the middle of the Twenty-second Dynasty, until the latter part of the Ethiopian period is almost entirely unknown. We see it in the possession of Piankhi toward the end of the Twenty-third Dynasty, but its local history is still totally obscure until the reign of Taharka, when we find a certain “prophet of Amon, prince of Thebes, Nesuptah,”<sup>c</sup> ruling there. His son Mentemhet succeeded him, and evidently maintained himself during Taharka’s reign in power and wealth.<sup>d</sup> His titles are of importance. Although he was prince of the Theban principality, he was only fourth prophet of Amon. At the same time, he was “chief of the prophets

<sup>a</sup>Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 13, b, d.

<sup>b</sup>In a niche-like chamber of the temple of Mut at Karnak. It had contained a statue of Mentemhet (Mariette, Karnak, Texte, 64), probably one of those found by Miss Benson (Recueil, XX, 188–92; Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 261–63, Pl. XXIII–XXIV, 350–57). Our inscription is published by Dümichen, Historische Inschriften, II, 48 (without relief), and Mariette, Karnak, 42–44; both are very inaccurate, and an exhaustive publication is much needed.

<sup>c</sup>Krall, Studien, III, 77 A. The genealogy of the family is carried back four generations beyond Nesuptah by the statues in the great Karnak cache. See Legrain, Recueil, 27, 80; but he does not indicate whether or not these four generations were already princes of Thebes.

<sup>d</sup>Besides those above referred to, numerous monuments of this man are known. His tomb in the Assasf at Thebes was excavated by Eisenlohr (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1885, 55), and its inscriptions (only titles and family) were published by Krall (Studien, III, 76–80). Two neighboring tombs of his family were found beside it, and the inscriptions bearing on Mentemhet also published by Krall (ibid., 80–82). A list of his smaller monuments is given by Wiedemann (Recueil, VIII, 69) and by Newberry (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 356, 357).

of all gods of South and North."<sup>a</sup> He, therefore, held the sacerdotal primacy of Egypt without being High Priest of Amon. The High Priest of Amon had, therefore, been deprived of his temporal power as prince of the Thebaid, as well as of his sacerdotal supremacy. This is confirmed by the relative position of Mentemhet and the High Priest of Amon in the Adoption Stela (§§ 949-52).<sup>b</sup> As Mentemhet's father was prince of Thebes before him, these changes may have taken place at the advent of the Ethiopian dynasty under Shabaka.

902. The activity of Mentemhet in the building and restoration of the monuments under Taharka at Thebes renders his rule there notable. This work was all done before Taharka's death, and the renewal of so many costly cultus images of the gods, besides references to the purification of all the temples in the South, and vague allusions to a great catastrophe, make it extremely probable that the mooted capture and sack of Thebes (667 B. C.) in Ashurbanipal's first campaign, although not certain from his confused records, actually took place. The restoration recorded by Mentemhet must have been done, therefore, between 667 and 661 B. C. The wealth which he was able to devote to restoring his plundered city must have been considerable; but it all fell a prey to the Assyrians at the second capture of the city by Ashurbanipal in 661 B. C., when it was frightfully laid waste. Of any attempted restoration by Mentemhet after this we hear nothing. He continued as ruler of the Thebaid, survived the rise of the Twenty-sixth Dynasty, and maintained his position into the reign of Psamtik I (§ 945). But his son Nesuptah did not succeed him,<sup>a</sup> and the family cannot be traced any farther.

---

<sup>a</sup>Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 356.

<sup>b</sup>For the current and widespread conclusion that the high priesthood of Amon was now held by the Ethiopian kings themselves, I find no support. It is evident from the Adoption Stela that the High Priest of Amon had been stripped of his power; and this fully explains why we have no records of him at this time.

903. Mentemhet's record consists of a relief on the rear wall of the temple chamber, and an inscription occupying the two side walls. The relief shows Taharka worshiping the goddess Mut, while behind him are Mentemhet, the latter's father Nesuptah, and son Nesuptah. Above these figures are depicted the statues and images replaced or restored by Mentemhet. On the right of the relief his narrative begins thus:

Titles of Mentemhet

904. <sup>1</sup>———— all gods, fourth prophet of Amon, prince of Thebes, governor of [the Southland], Mentemhet, son of the prophet of Amon, prince of Thebes, Nesu[ptah];<sup>b</sup> he saith:

Sacred Barge

I fashioned <sup>2</sup>[the sacred barge of 'Amon'] of 80 cubits in its length, of new cedar of the best of the terraces. The "Great House" was of electrum, inlaid with every genuine costly stone — — 'of the last day'<sup>1</sup> — equipped <sup>3</sup>————.

Purification of Temples

905. I purified all the temples in the nomes of all Patoris, according as one should purify [violated] temples, — after there had been <sup>4</sup>[an invasion of unclean foreigners in] the Southland. [— — —] — [—] all these things which I have brought before you, there is no [lying] speech therein, no contradiction <sup>5</sup>———— deceit. There is no lie in the place of my mouth.

<sup>a</sup>A relief in Abydos (Mariette, Abydos, I, Pl. 2, b) shows Psamtik I before Orisis and Horus. He is accompanied by the "Divine Votress, Nitocris," and "the prince (h>ty-c) of Thebes, governor of the South, — , chief steward of the Divine Votress, Pedihor." It is thus clear that Nesuptah did not succeed his father, Mentemhet, although it is barely possible also that Pedihor was another son, and that Nesuptah had died.

<sup>b</sup>The name of the father is preserved in the relief.

Prosperity and Plentiful Offerings

906. My mistress is satisfied with all that I have done <sup>1</sup>for <sup>1</sup>Thebes, [the Horizon of] him of the hidden name, Eye of Re, Mistress <sup>6</sup>[of temples]<sup>a</sup> ——— I satisfied her lord with the things of his desire, bulls of the largest, and calves of the best. I gave — — my lord, of good things <sup>7</sup>——— satisfied with food, and divine offerings, like that which he receives at the beginning of all the seasons, at th[eir] times, — — I multiplied the amount <sup>8</sup>———. His granaries swelled with the first fruits<sup>b</sup> [which came to] him down-stream in their season, and up-stream in their time. They made festive <sup>9</sup>——— in his totals, to celebrate the feasts; that he might provision the prophets, priests, — and lay priests of the temples<sup>10</sup>——— in the nomes, great and small — — making for me an overflow for my city, the land having moisture, the cities and nomes fatness.

Foreign Invasion

907. <sup>11</sup>——— it being divine chastisement. [In] the protected Southland in its divine way, while the whole land was overturned, because of the greatness of <sup>12</sup>——— [———] coming from the South. I satisfied my — coming from <sup>13</sup>——— in — [in] going in and in going out by night and by day<sup>c</sup> <sup>14</sup>——— an excellent refuge for my city. [I] repelled the wretches from the southern nomes — — — [time].

Family Prosperity and Conclusion

908. <sup>15</sup>——— following his god without ceasing, — the temple, seeing that which was in it. Every shrine was sealed with [my] seal <sup>16</sup>——— belonging thereto. I was in the temple —, following the footsteps of my lord. My son was with me <sup>17</sup>——— priest of his ka, chief prophet of — in Thebes, chief of the phyle, Nesuptah. My children were healthy ——— <sup>18</sup>the prophets knew his counsel —. I spent the day in searching and the night in seeking, searching <sup>19</sup>——— [summoning] them that passed, calling them that —, and revising the rules that had begun to be [obsolete].

<sup>a</sup>See § 753, l. 1, for similar epithets of Thebes, from which this is restored.

<sup>b</sup>Or possibly the "best" of the grain.

<sup>c</sup>This is evidently a reference to a siege, as in Piankhi, e. g., § 854, l. 80.

The inscription proceeds to praise of his son (ll. 21 and 22), and concludes with a prayer in the first person plural, of no historic interest (ll. 24-29).

909. On the other side of the relief, Mentemhet then continues an enumeration of his buildings and other works for the temples, as follows:

Works for Min-Amon

I brought forth Min-Amon to his stairway in the southern house (Luxor) at his beautiful feast <sup>3</sup>———— plenty. I presented the oblations of the eight gods in the second month of the third season, twenty-eighth day, in order that <sup>4</sup>———— of electrum and every splendid costly stone. I fashioned the august image of Khonsupekhrod overlaid with gold (called): “His-Every-Emanation-is-<sup>5</sup>———— -Crowns.”<sup>a</sup> I made a throne for this god, the legs of pure silver, inlay-figures <sup>6</sup>———— of his stipulations — — them after a long space (hnty) of years, beginning to decay. <sup>7</sup>———— [————] according as a thorough inspection should be made.

Temple of Mut?

910. I built her temple of stone <sup>8</sup>———— [the doors were of] new<sup>b</sup> cedar, and kedet (kd·t) wood, mounted with Asiatic copper; the inlay-figures thereon were of electrum, the bolts and fastenings <sup>9</sup>———— gold inlaid with every costly stone. I erected for her a hall with thirty-four<sup>c</sup> columns of fine white sandstone [—] <sup>10</sup>————. I constructed her pure and beautiful lake of fine white sandstone; I erected for her, her storehouse for the storage of her divine offerings therein; I multiplied the offering-tables <sup>11</sup>————.

Works for Khonsu

911. I restored the august image of “Khonsu-in-Thebes-Beautiful-Rest” (called): “Wearer-of-the-Divine-Diadem,” with gold and every <sup>a</sup>Two Amon crowns, and one Khonsu crown.

<sup>b</sup>Correct m > c to m > w, as commonly.

<sup>c</sup>So Mariette; Dümichen has 23; no such hall is now discoverable in the temple of Mut. Mentemhet probably means restoration, although he makes a similar claim on his statue (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asher, 353, l. 10): “I erected the temple of Mut, mistress of heaven, of fine white sandstone.”

genuine costly stone. I multiplied their offering-tables of silver, gold, and copper. <sup>12</sup>——— I clothed<sup>1a</sup> Khonsu (called): "The-Plan-Maker-is-an-Emanation," with electrum, as formerly.

Works for Montu

912. I constructed the pure lake of Montu, lord of Thebes, of fine white sandstone like <sup>13</sup>——— illuminating his great and august house therewith. I multiplied his offering-tables of silver, gold, and bronze.

Theban Divinities

I fashioned individual vessels. I equipped Wes and Weset,<sup>b</sup> Victorious Thebes, Mistress of Might, as an emanation<sup>c</sup> <sup>14</sup>———.

Image of Bast

I fashioned the august image of Bast, residing in Thebes; with staves<sup>d</sup> of electrum and every genuine costly stone.

Works for Ptah

913. I fashioned the august image of Ptah (called): "Thebes<sup>1</sup>-is-Bright-at-His-Appearance," of gold <sup>15</sup>——— their offering-tables more beautiful than before.

Images of Hathor

I fashioned [the image] of Hathor, Mistress of the Valley (called): "———-Bright;" as their glorious emanation, according as a thorough inspection should be made <sup>16</sup>——— every one thereof had two staves.

Images of Amon

I fashioned the august image of Amon, lord of Thebes (Ns'wt-t'wy), residing in Thebes (W's't); the august image of Khonsu (called): "Numberer-of-Life;" the august image of Amon, lord of Thebes <sup>17</sup>——— every one thereof had two staves.

<sup>a</sup>Or: "the protection of K., etc., was of electrum."

<sup>b</sup>Apparently a male and female divinity, each apotheosizing Thebes. The goddess is well known, but this is the only occurrence of the god with which I am acquainted.

<sup>c</sup>M ty't; it is not always certain what this phrase means in this inscription, e. g., l. 18 after "Themet."

<sup>d</sup>For carrying.

Statue of Amenhotep I

I fashioned the statue of Zeserkere (Amenhotep I), triumphant; of electrum and every costly stone; with two staves, as it had been before<sup>18</sup>_____.

Khonsu of Themet

914. [I fashioned the image of] Khonsu, residing in Themet (T<sup>3</sup>-mw·t) [— —] of electrum, with two staves.

Image of "The Great One"

I fashioned "The-Great-One (feminine)-of-the-Garden" as her glorious emanation; I restored her temples, that it might be as formerly.

Wall of Karnak

<sup>19</sup>_____ it of fine white sandstone, to keep off the flood of the river from [it when it came]. I hewed a [—] <sup>20</sup>_____ at his beautiful feast of the fourth month of the first season, twenty-fifth day. I restored the wall of the temple of Amon in Karnak [—] <sup>21</sup>_____ [— — —]. I built a [—] of brick, according as I found it good to make the ancestors<sup>22</sup>_____.

Works for the Sacred Bull

915. I [fashioned] the bull of Mad<sup>a</sup> (M<sup>3</sup>d), as his glorious emanation; I built his house; it was more beautiful than what was therein<sup>23</sup>[before] _____.

Temple of Montu

I built the temple of Montu, lord — — — — its gates shone beautifully<sup>24</sup>_____.

Works for Uncertain Gods

[I fashioned the image of] — upon his stairway (called): "— - - - of the-Field-in-Thebes;" of gold, more beautiful than it was before<sup>25</sup>_____ who is lord of the hill-country, residing in Khemkhem (Hmhm).

Image of Horus

I fashioned the august image of Horus (called): "The-God-Abides-<sup>26</sup>_____."

<sup>a</sup>A sacred precinct near Karnak.

Image of Min?

916. I [fashioned] (the image of) 'Min' (called): "Chief-of-Heaven," as his glorious emanation, overlaid — — 27————.

Image of Thoth

I fashioned the august image of Thoth, presiding over Hatibt (Ḥ t-ybt), residing in —————.

Works for Isis

28———— I — the emanation of Isis. I fashioned — upon them — — my whole city f— —] — f—] — 29———— more beautiful than formerly. I constructed a sacred lake for the temple of Isis f— —] — 30————.

Works for Osiris

I fashioned the barge of Osiris in this district, of — cubits — — — — of new<sup>a</sup> cedar, according to the accustomed stipulations, 'after I had found it of acacia' ————— 31———— of brick, after I had found it beginning to fall to ruin —————.

SERAPEUM STELA<sup>b</sup>

917. This stela, recording the burial of an Apis at Memphis in the twenty-fourth year of Taharka, is important as showing that in 664 B. C. the priests of Memphis regarded Taharka as still reigning there, although he had been driven out by Ashurbanipal in 668. As the stela was hidden far down in the subterranean passages of the Serapeum, the priests could have safely so dated the monument, even though the city was under Assyrian government. Hence, <sup>a</sup>Correct m > c to m > w.

<sup>b</sup>Louvre, No. 121; published by Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 35; Revue égyptologique, VII, 136; Chassinat, Recueil, 22, 18. I had also my own copy of the original.

it is not safe to conclude, from this stela, that Taharka actually held Memphis in 664 B. C.

918. Year 24, fourth month of the second season (eighth month), day 23, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Taharka, living forever.

The god was conducted in peace to the beautiful West, by the hereditary prince, sem priest, master of all wardrobes, prophet of Ptah, divine father, Senbef, son of the divine father, of Sekhetre (Sht-R), Enekhwennofer; born of Neatesnakhte (N<sup>3</sup>-<sup>c3</sup>-t<sup>3</sup>ys-nht' t). His brother, divine father of Sekhetre, Ptahhotep.

REIGN OF TANUTAMON

STELA OF TANUTAMON<sup>a</sup>

919. This stela brings us to the close of Ethiopian rule in Egypt. Lower Egypt was in control of Assyrian vassals, resulting from the defeat of Taharka by Ashurbanipal's army, not long after the latter's accession in 668 B. C. The Delta vassals had been discovered in their subsequent plotting with Taharka against their Assyrian overlord. Necho, the Saitic dynast, after being sent to Ninevah, was pardoned and reinstated at Sais. His son, likewise, was made vassal king in Athribis, and at this juncture, according to the records of Ashurbanipal,<sup>b</sup> Taharka died.

920. The stela of Tanutamon records the course of political events in Upper Egypt during the last days of Taharka, and the short reign of Tanutamon over all Egypt. It shows us Tanutamon coregent with Taharka during the latter's last year (663 B. C.), which was the first of Tanutamon;<sup>c</sup> and narrates how he proceeded from some place in Upper <sup>a</sup>Gray granite, round-topped stela, 1.32 m. high and 0.72 m. wide, now in Cairo (No. 162, Guide of 1902, 112); discovered at Napata with the Piankhi Stela in 1862; published by Maspero, Revue archéologique, 1868, XVII, 329 ff.; tirage à part, Didier, 8vo, 11 pp. and 2 Pls.); and by Mariette (Monuments divers, Pls. 7, 8). I had also a squeeze and a copy of squeeze by Schaefer, and he and I together went over the copy again with the squeeze. This copy brought out a number of important readings filling up several lacunæ. I am also indebted to Schaefer for several valuable suggestions.

---

<sup>b</sup>Winckler, Untersuchungen zur altorientalischen Geschichte, 103-5, ll. 36-69.

<sup>c</sup>The proper relation of Tanutamon and Taharka in this narrative was first explained by Schaefer (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1897, 67 ff.). As he did not come to the throne even as coregent until 663 B. C., Winckler's explanation of Ashurbanipal's confused records (Altorientalische Forschungen, 480-83), in which he makes Tanutamon the final opponent of Ashurbanipal in the campaign of 668-7, is impossible.

Egypt (probably Thebes), of which he was king, to Napata, where he was crowned sole king, so that Taharka's death must have been the occasion of his assumption of sole power.<sup>a</sup> He had been summoned by a dream, before going to Napata to seize also the Northland, then in Assyrian hands, and, leaving Napata, he then undertook the recovery of the North. He captured Memphis, perhaps slew Necho of Sais in battle,<sup>b</sup> and, although unable to subdue the Delta dynasts, accepted what he construed as their submission, which they offered in person. He then ruled in Memphis as nominal king of all Egypt, and at this point the narrative of his stela closes. The presence of the Assyrians in the land is ignored throughout, and the inglorious conclusion of his reign in Egypt at the approach of Ashurbanipal's second great invasion in 661 B. C. is naturally not added at the end.

Introduction

921. 1 "Good God"<sup>c</sup> on the day when he was born; Atum is he for the people (rḥy't), lord of two horns, ruler of the living, prince, seizing every land, victorious in might on the day of battle, facing the front on the day<sup>d</sup> of conflict<sup>3</sup>, lord of valor, like Montu, great in strength, like a fierce-eyed lion, wise-hearted, like Thoth; crossing the sea<sup>e</sup> in pursuit

<sup>a</sup>Ashurbanipal calls Tanutamon the son of Taharka's sister, and the son of Shabaka (Winckler, op. cit., 105); hence Shabaka must have married Piankhi's daughter, which explains his claim to the throne. Tanutamon was thus Piankhi's grandson.

<sup>b</sup>The battle is recorded by Tanutamon (ll. 16, 17), but he does not mention the slaying of Necho. This is probable from the remark of Herodotus (as Eduard Meyer first perceived, Geschichte des alten Aegyptens, 353) that Necho was slain by an Ethiopian king, who, Herodotus thought, was Shabaka. But, according to Manetho, Necho's death must have occurred in 663 B. C., that is, the year of Tanutamon's expedition against Memphis.

<sup>c</sup>That is, "king."

<sup>d</sup>There is possibly, but probably not, a lost word at the end of l. 1.

<sup>e</sup>D > w > d-wr.

of his opponent, carrying off the ends of<sup>a</sup> r—1—. He has [taken] this land; none fighting and none standing before him, (even) the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Bekere (B<sup>3</sup>-k<sup>3</sup>-R<sup>3</sup>), Son of Re, Tanutamom (T<sup>3</sup>n-w<sup>3</sup>-ty-Ymn), beloved of Amon of Napata.

The Dream

922. In the year 1, of his coronation as king — — 4his majesty saw a dream by night: two serpents, one upon his right, the other upon his left. Then his majesty awoke, and he found them not. His majesty said: "Wherefore [has] this [come] to me?" Then they answered<sup>b</sup> him, saying: "Thine is the Southland; take for thyself (also) the Northland. The 'Two Goddesses'<sup>c</sup> shine upon thy brow, the land is given to thee, in its length and its breadth. [No] 6other divides it with thee."

Journey to Napata

923. When his majesty was crowned upon the throne of Horus in this first<sup>d</sup> year, his majesty went forth from the place<sup>e</sup> where he had been, as Horus went forth from Khemmis. He went forth from—, while there [came] 7to him millions and hundreds of thousands coming after him. Said his majesty: "Lo, the dream is true! It<sup>f</sup> is profitable for him who sets it in his heart, (but) evil for him who understands [it] not." His majesty went to Napata, while none stood 8before him.<sup>g</sup>

Coronation in Napata

924. His majesty arrived at the temple of Amon of Napata, residing in the Pure Mountain. As for his majesty, his heart was glad when he saw his father, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes (Nswt-t<sup>3</sup>wy), residing in the Pure Mountain. Garlands for this god were brought to him; 9then his <sup>a</sup>Possibly: "carrying away the rear of his foe (ph sw)."<sup>1</sup> The ph is very probable.

<sup>b</sup>Read whm sn n, but the scribe has omitted the second n.

<sup>c</sup>The double diadem of Upper and Lower Egypt.

<sup>d</sup>This remark can refer only to his second coronation as sole king. It is here referred to at the beginning of his journey to Napata, in anticipation of what happened on his arrival there, viz., his said coronation as sole king. His joint reign with Taharka thus lasted less than a year.

<sup>e</sup>This must have been some place in Upper Egypt, of which he was then king; it was therefore probably Thebes.

<sup>f</sup>A dream.

<sup>g</sup>In a hostile sense.

majesty brought forth in splendor Amon of Napata; and he made for him a great festival offering, founding for him a feast: 39 oxen, 40 jars (c 3) of beer, and 100 šw.

Departure for the North

925. His majesty sailed down-stream toward the Northland, that he might behold <sup>10</sup>Amon, whose name is hidden from the gods.

Ceremonies at Elephantine

His majesty arrived at Elephantine; then his majesty sailed across to Elephantine, he arrived at the temple of Khnum-Re, lord of the cataract, <sup>11</sup>and he caused this god to be brought forth in splendor. He made a great festival offering, and he gave bread and beer for the gods of the two caverns. He appeased 'Nun' in his cavern.

Ceremonies at Thebes

926. Then his majesty sailed down-stream to the city Thebes of Amon. His majesty sailed to the frontier<sup>a</sup> of Thebes (W<sup>2</sup> s·t), and he entered the temple of Amon-Re, lord of Thebes. There came to his majesty the servant of the great —,<sup>b</sup> and the lay priests of the temple of Amon-Re, <sup>13</sup>lord of Thebes, and they brought to him garlands for Amon, whose name is hidden. As for his majesty, his heart rejoiced when he saw this temple. He brought forth Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, in splendor, and there was celebrated a great feast in the whole land.

Departure for the Delta

927. <sup>14</sup>His majesty sailed down-stream to the Northland, while the west and the east made great jubilee, saying: "Welcome is thy coming, and welcome thy ka! To sustain alive the Two Lands; <sup>15</sup>to erect the temples which have begun to fall to ruin; to set up their statues in their shrines; to give divine offerings to the gods and goddesses, and mortuary offerings to the glorified (dead); <sup>16</sup>to put the priest in his place; to furnish all things of the sacred property." As for those who had fighting in their hearts,<sup>a</sup> they became rejoicers.

<sup>a</sup>Or: "into" (r hn ehoun), as in the Piankhi inscription.

<sup>b</sup>Evidently a priestly title.

<sup>c</sup>The following evidently refers to the ruin and disorganization resulting from the Assyrian invasions.

Capture of Memphis

928. When his majesty arrived at Memphis, there came forth <sup>17</sup>the children of rebellion, to fight with his majesty. His majesty made a great slaughter among them; their number being unknown. His majesty took Memphis, and he entered into the temple of <sup>18</sup>Ptah, "South-of-His-Wall;" he made a great festival oblation for Ptah-Sokar; he appeased Sekhmet, the great, who loves him.

New Buildings in Napata

929. As for his majesty, his heart was glad in giving <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> to his father, Amon, of Napata. His majesty issued a command concerning it, <sup>19</sup>to Nubia (T<sup>2</sup> pd' t), to build for him a hall anew; it was not found built in the time of the ancestors. His majesty caused it to be built of stone, mounted with gold;<sup>b</sup> <sup>20</sup>its panel<sup>c</sup> was of cedar <sup>21</sup>incensed with myrrh of Punt. The double doors thereof were of electrum, <sup>22</sup>the two bolts (krty) of <sup>1</sup>tin<sup>1</sup> (Tyhty). He built for him another hall at the rear exit, for furnishing his milk <sup>23</sup>of his numerous herds, in tens of thousands, thousands, hundreds, and tens; the number of the young calves <sup>24</sup>with their mothers was unknown.

Campaign in the Delta

930. Now, after these things, his majesty sailed north, to fight with the chiefs of the North. <sup>25</sup>Then they entered their strongholds [<sup>as</sup> beasts crawl into<sup>1</sup>] their holes. Then his majesty spent many days before them, (but) there came not forth one <sup>26</sup>of them to fight with his majesty. Then his majesty sailed southward to Memphis.

Arrival of the Delta Dynasts

931. He sat in his palace deliberating and counseling with <sup>27</sup>his heart how to cause his army to reach and to <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> them. Then his army said that one had come to report to him, saying: "These chiefs come to the place <sup>28</sup>where his majesty is, [O king], our lord." Said his majesty: "Come they to fight? Come they to submit,<sup>a</sup> they shall live from this hour." They said <sup>29</sup>[to] his majesty: "They come to submit to (bk) the king, our lord." Said his majesty: "As for my lord, this august god, Amon-Re, lord of Thebes, residing in the Pure Mountain, great and <sup>1</sup>excellent<sup>1</sup> god, whose name is <sup>1</sup>known<sup>1</sup>, vigilant <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup> <sup>30</sup>for his beloved, and giving valor to him who serves him; he who possesses his plans does not go astray; nor doth he whom he leads err. Behold, he told (it) me by night, <sup>31</sup>and I behold (it) by day."<sup>b</sup> Said his majesty: "Where are they in this hour?" Said they before his majesty: "They are here, waiting at the hall (<sup>c</sup> ryt)." "

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "Those (wnn) in whose hearts was to fight, they, etc."

<sup>b</sup>Here begins the back of the stela.

<sup>c</sup>Or tablet.

Submission of the Delta Dynasts

932. Then his majesty went forth <sup>32</sup>from his [<sup>1</sup>palace<sup>1</sup>] to —, as Re shines in his bright dwelling. He found them prostrate upon their bellies, kissing the ground to his majesty. Said his majesty: "Lo, it is true that which he uttered, <sup>33</sup>the word <sup>1</sup>of his design. Lo, he knows what<sup>1</sup> shall happen. It is the decree of the god; (hence) it comes to pass. I swear as Re loves me, as Amon favors me in his house, <sup>1</sup>behold, I saw<sup>1</sup> this august god, Amon <sup>34</sup>of Napata, residing in the Pure Mountain, while he was standing<sup>c</sup> by me, he said to me: 'I am thy leader in<sup>d</sup> every way. Thou mayest not say: "Would that I had<sup>e</sup> . . . ." <sup>35</sup>. . . ." Then they answered him, saying: "Lo, this god, <sup>36</sup>he hath [revealed] to thee the beginning; he hath completed for thee the <sup>1</sup>end<sup>1</sup> in prosperity. Lo, thou dost not <sup>1</sup>— <sup>1</sup>—<sup>f</sup> that comes out of his mouth, O king, our lord." Then the hereditary prince of Per-Soped, Pekrur<sup>g</sup> (P<sup>3</sup> -krr), arose to speak, saying: <sup>37</sup>"Thou slayest whom thou wilt; and lettest live whom thou wilt <sup>1</sup>—<sup>1</sup>." They answered him with one accord, saying:

<sup>a</sup>Lit., "to serve," or "labor" (bk), the word for pay taxes. The second question is likewise a protasis.

<sup>b</sup>Schaefer suggests: "That which he told me by night, I have seen by day."

<sup>c</sup>Compare the dream of Merneptah, III, 582. <sup>d</sup>Lit., "to every way."

<sup>e</sup>The conclusion of Tanutamon's speech is fragmentary, and hopelessly obscure. Enough remains to show that it consisted only of pious phrases of no historical importance. It is evident that he is telling the subject chiefs that their submission is only the fulfilment of Amon's promise to him.

<sup>f</sup>The text is uncertain.

<sup>g</sup>Lit., "The Frog," the same as Coptic "Pekrou;" see Steindorff, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1892, 63.

“Give to us breath, O lord of life, <sup>38</sup>without whom there is no life. Let us serve (bk) thee<sup>a</sup> like the serfs who are subject to thee, as thou<sup>b</sup> saidest at the first on the day when thou wert crowned as king.” The heart of his majesty rejoiced when he heard this word, <sup>39</sup>and he gave to them bread, beer, and every good thing.

Dismissal of the Delta Dynasts

933. Now, when some days had passed, after these events, and <sup>1</sup>everything had been given in plenty — —, they said: “Wherefore are we (still) here, O king, our lord?” Said <sup>40</sup>his majesty: “Wherefore!” Said they to his majesty: “Let us go to our cities, that we may command our peasant-serfs that we may bring (j<sup>3</sup> y<sup>3</sup> n) our impost (bk) to the court.” His majesty (let) them go <sup>41</sup>to their cities, and they became <sup>1</sup>subjects<sup>1,c</sup>.

Brief Reign at Memphis

934. The Southerners went north, and the Northerners went south to the place where his majesty was, bearing every good thing of the Southland, and all provision <sup>42</sup>of the Northland, to satisfy the heart of his majesty, (<sup>1</sup>when<sup>1</sup>) the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Bekere, Son of Re, Tanutamon, L. P. H., appeared upon the throne of Horus, forever.

<sup>a</sup>Lit., “labor for (pay taxes to) him” (bk<sup>3</sup> n nf).

<sup>b</sup>The change of person is in the original.

<sup>c</sup>Schaefer read bsjy(w).

THE TWENTY-SIXTH DYNASTY

REIGN OF PSAMTIK I

ADOPTION STELA OF NITOCRIS<sup>a</sup>

935. This document has thrown a flood of light on the dynastic connections in the Ethiopian and Saitic period, and its discovery was especially welcome, in view of the paucity of contemporary monuments from this age. It may be described as a decree of adoption and property-conveyance. It records the adoption of Nitocris, the daughter of Psamtik I, by a Shepnupet, daughter of Taharka, the Divine Votress, or sacerdotal princess, at Thebes. Shepnupet transfers all her property to Nitocris, and the purpose of the adoption was that the family of Psamtik I might legally gain control of this property, as well as the position which it entailed at Thebes.

936. The beginning of the document is lost, and it now commences in the middle of a speech of Psamtik I to his court, announcing his purpose to have his daughter Nitocris adopted by Shepnupet. The court responds with the usual encomiums. In the ninth year of Psamtik I, therefore, Nitocris proceeds to Thebes, where she is received with acclamation, and the property of Shepnupet is formally conveyed to her, a full invoice of her estate being appended.

937. The stela shows that Psamtik had gained full control of Thebes by his ninth year, and that Tanutamon had, therefore, lost Upper Egypt before that time. The status of Thebes is much the same as under the Ethiopians, Men-

---

<sup>a</sup>Red granite stela, nearly 6 feet high, and 4½ feet wide, found by Legrain at Karnak in 1897; now in Cairo. The top is broken off and missing; published by Legrain (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 16-19); translated by Erman (ibid., 24-29), on whose rendering the present translation is largely based temhet, the favorite of Taharka,<sup>a</sup> was still its prince, showing that some of the old feudal dynasts still survived under Psamtik I.<sup>b</sup> The High Priest of Amon occupies a completely subordinate position; he possesses no political influence, and his subordinate, the third prophet of Amon, contributes as much as he to the revenues of Nitocris.

938. The adoption of Nitocris, and the similar adoption of her predecessor, Shepnupet, as well as the adoption of Amenirdis by the same Shepnupet, render it clear that this was the usual method of succession in the Ethiopian and Saitic periods, and much simplifies the royal family connections of the time. Already, as early as 1885, Erman had noticed that Nitocris was but the adoptive mother of Enekhnesneferibre.<sup>c</sup> A stela, recounting this adoption, which is a second Adoption Stela (§§ 988A-988J) has now been discovered at Karnak. They furnish the following chronology of the Theban princesses:

Adoption of Nitocris: year 9 of Psamtik I, 654 B. C.

Death of Shepnupet II: Unknown date ———.

Induction of Nitocris: unknown date ———.

Adoption of Enekhnesneferibre: year 1 of Psamtik II, 593 B. C.

<sup>a</sup>That this is the same Mentemhet as the one under Taharka, is shown by the name of his eldest son, Nesuptah, the same whom we find in the records of Mentemhet under Taharka (§ 903).

<sup>b</sup>The old principality of Heracleopolis also still survived, at least into the third generation of the Saite line; for there was a prince of Heracleopolis named Hor, son of Psamtik. The father must have been born not earlier than the time of Psamtik I. Hor built considerably on his own account at Heracleopolis; cf. statue inscription in Louvre (see §§ 967 ff.). A chapel was also built by one P-drps (in the year 51 of Psamtik I at Pharbæthus), who may also have been a local prince; cf. Berlin stela (No. 8438); Brugsch, Thesaurus, IV, 797 = Revillout, Revue égyptologique, I, 33). Compare also the buildings or temple works of Nesuhor at Elephantine (§§ 989 ff.).

<sup>c</sup>In Schweinfurth, "Alte Baureste im Uadi Gasûs" (Abhandlungen der Berliner Akademie, 1885).

Death of Nitocris: year 4 of Apries, 584 B. C.

Induction of Enekhnesneferibre: year 4 of Apries, 584 B. C.

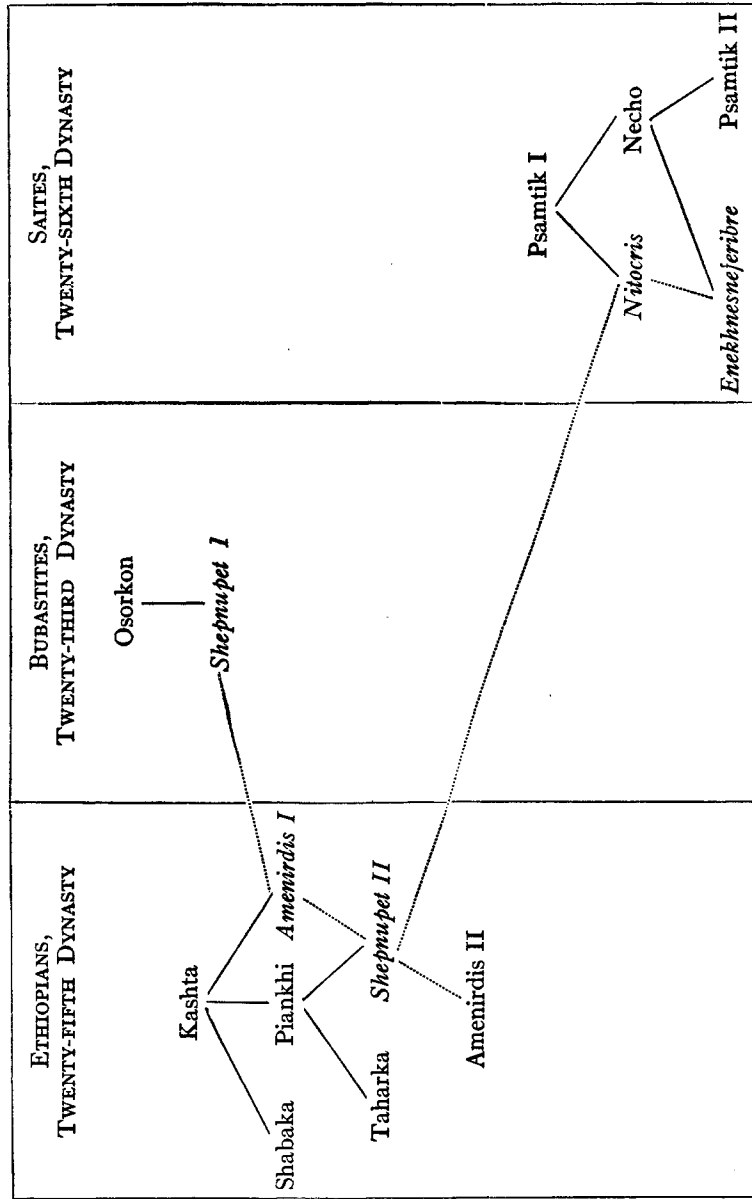

Death of Enekhnesneferibre: after Psamtik III, not earlier than 525 B. C.

939. These stelæ and other contemporary monuments enable us to reconstruct the following genealogy,<sup>a</sup> tracing the succession of these sacerdotal princesses from the Twenty-third to the Twenty-sixth Dynasty. Incidentally, this reconstruction discloses important relationships among the Ethiopian rulers.

---

<sup>a</sup>Names of princesses are in italics; dotted lines indicate adoption. Essentially the same table in so far as the princesses are concerned was drawn up by Daressy, Recueil, XX, 84; then by Erman, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 29.

940.

941. In this table the most important difficulty is the identity of Piankhi, a question not raised in Erman's discussion.<sup>a</sup> There were at least three Piankhis,<sup>c</sup> and nowhere is Piankhi, brother of Amenirdis I, identified by his throne-name; nor do we know the throne-name of the great Piankhi. In view of the fact that Piankhi, brother of Amenirdis I, appointed her to succeed the daughter of an Osorkon, and we know that Piankhi the Great overthrew an Osorkon of the Twenty-third Dynasty (§ 872), it can hardly be doubted that Amenirdis I's brother is the great Piankhi. The chronological considerations (§§ 810 ff.) also demand that the great Piankhi shall be dated in the same general period involved in the position occupied by Piankhi, brother of Amenirdis I in the table.

Psamtik's Declaration of Adoption

942. <sup>b</sup>"I am his son, first in the favor of the father of the gods, offering to the gods; whom<sup>c</sup> he begat for himself, to satisfy his heart. I have given to him my daughter, to be Divine Consort, that she 'may invoke protection for the king' more than those who were before her; that he may indeed be satisfied with her prayers, and that he may protect the land of <sup>3</sup>him who gave her to him."

"Lo, I have now heard saying, a king's-daughter of Taharka,<sup>d</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 29.

<sup>c</sup>1. Wsr-m > c · t-R < - P - c nhy (Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 14, a-d).

2. Snjr-R < - P - c nhy (Lepsius, Denkmäler, V, 14, l).

3. Mn-hpr-R < - P - c nhy (Louvre Stela, 100; Rougé, Notice, 116). One of these must have been the great conqueror Piankhi. See fuller list, Petrie, History, III, 267 f.

<sup>b</sup>Several lines are lost at the beginning; of the line numbered 1, the first half is lost, and the second is unintelligible.

<sup>c</sup>Refers to "son."

<sup>d</sup>Horus-name, K > h < w, followed by "Good God" and erased cartouche. This daughter of Taharka, as Erman has observed, is doubtless the same as the Amenardis of l. 16, who had already shared in the property of the sacred office. But as her predecessor, Shepnupet, was not yet dead, she had not yet succeeded to the office. This Amenardis is now supplanted as "Great Daughter" by Nitocris, daughter of Psamtik I.

triumphant, is there whom he gave to his sister to be her 'Great Daughter,' who is there as 'Divine Votress' (Ntr-dwꜣt). I am not one<sup>a</sup> to expel an heir from his place, for I am a king who loves 'truth; my particular abomination is lying; (I am) a son protecting his father, taking the inheritance of Keb, uniting the two portions as a youth. Hence I give her<sup>b</sup> to her,<sup>c</sup> to be her 'Great Daughter' as her<sup>c</sup> father<sup>d</sup> (once) conveyed her<sup>c</sup> to (his) sister."<sup>e</sup>

Response of the Court

943. Then <sup>5</sup>they bowed to the ground, they gave thanks to the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Wahibre (Psamtik I), living forever; and they said: "Abiding and enduring through eternity! Thy every command shall abide and endure. How beautiful is this which the god doeth for thee! How excellent is that which thy father doeth for thee! . . . .<sup>6</sup> . . . . He loves to remember thy ka, and he rejoices at the mention of thy name, O Horus, 'Great-of-Heart,' King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Psamtik I, living forever. He has done this as his monument for his father, Amon, lord of heaven, ruler of gods. He hath given his beloved eldest daughter, Nitocris (Nt-ykrꜣt), <sup>7</sup>whose 'beautiful name' is Shepnupet, to be Divine Consort, to play the sistrum before his (Amon's) beautiful face."

Nitocris Proceeds to Thebes

944. In the year 9, first month of the first season (first month), day 28, went forth his eldest daughter from the king's family apartments, clad in fine linen, and newly adorned with malachite. The attendants conducting her were legion in number, <sup>8</sup>and marshals cleared the path, for beginning the goodly way to the harbor, to turn up-stream for Thebes. The vessels bearing her were very numerous, the crews were mighty men; and they were deeply laden <sup>1</sup>to the decks<sup>1</sup> with every good thing of the king's-palace. <sup>9</sup>The commander thereof was the sole companion, nomarch of Heracleopolis, commander in chief of the army, <sup>a</sup>The sense is clear, but the construction is entirely uncertain.

<sup>b</sup>Nitocris.

<sup>c</sup>Shepnupet, sister of Taharka.

<sup>d</sup>Piankhi.

<sup>e</sup>Piankhi's sister, Amenardis, as shown by Berlin 7972; Greene, Fouilles, 8, 1, and Lieblein, St. Petersburg, II, 7. See Erman, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 35, 29.

chief of the harbor, Somtous-Tefnakhte.<sup>a</sup> Messengers sailed to the South, to make splendid provision before her. Sail was set [— — — —].
<sup>b10</sup>The great men took their weapons, and every noble [had] his provision, supplied with every good thing: bread, beer, oxen, geese, [—], dates, herbs, and every good thing. One transferred (her) to his neighbor, until she reached Thebes.

Reception in Thebes

945. <sup>11</sup>In the year 9, second month of the first season (second month), day 14,<sup>c</sup> they arrived at the city of the gods, Thebes. As she advanced, she found (all) Thebes, men and women alike, standing, rejoicing at her approach, surrounding her <sup>12</sup>with great offerings, a multitude in number. Then they said: "The daughter of the King of Upper Egypt, Nitocris, comes to the house of Amon, that he may receive her and be satisfied with her. The daughter of the King of Lower Egypt, Shepnupet, comes to Karnak, that the gods therein may honor her. Every monument of <sup>13</sup>the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Psamtik (I), abides and endures forever and ever. Amon, lord of heaven, king of gods, hath received what his son, Horus, 'Great-of-Heart,' living forever and ever, made for him. Amon, ruler of gods, hath praised that which his son, Favorite of the Two Goddesses, Nebe (Nb-ꜥ), living forever and ever, made for him. . . . . <sup>14</sup>. . . . The reward therefore is with Amon,<sup>d</sup> and with Montu,<sup>d</sup> even a million years of life, a million years of stability, a million years of satisfaction. All health and joy of heart are with them for their beloved son, the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands, Wahibre, <sup>15</sup>Son of Re, Psamtik (I), living forever and ever. . . . ."<sup>e</sup>

Conveyance of the Fortune

946. Now, afterward when she came to the Divine Votress, Shepnupet, <sup>16</sup>she saw her, was satisfied with her, and loved her beyond every-

<sup>a</sup>A Heracleopolitan of the same name and the same office appears under Piankhi after the conquest, at Thebes (Benson and Gourlay, The Temple of Mut in Asker); as the ninth year of Psamtik is some seventy-five years later, the two men are not the same, but probably father and son.

<sup>b</sup>The text as published is not in order, but it is evident that the fleet here sails away from Sais.

<sup>c</sup>Only sixteen days after leaving Sais.

<sup>d</sup>Epithets omitted above.

<sup>e</sup>The gods have given him the kingship.

thing. She conveyed to her the fortune (ymy-pr) which her father and her mother had conveyed to her and to her 'Great Daughter,' Amenardis, king's-daughter of King —, triumphant. It was put into writing concerning them, saying: "We<sup>a</sup> have given to thee<sup>b</sup> all our property in field and in town. Thou abidest upon our throne, abiding <sup>17</sup>and enduring forever and ever." The witnesses concerning them were the prophets, the priests and all the adherents of the temple.

Inventory of the Fortune

947. List of all the property given to her <sup>16</sup>by [them] in the towns and nomes of the South and North:

Lands

948. That which his (sic!) majesty gave to her in seven nomes of the Southland:

- |  |                                 |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 1. In the district of Heracleopolis, the nome <sup>18</sup> called Yuna ( Yw-n ), which is in the district thereof                      | lands, 300 stat                 |
| 2. In the district of Oxyrhyncus, the estate of Putowe ( Pw-t <sup>19</sup> wy ), which is in the district thereof               | lands, 300 stat                 |
| 3. In the district of Sep, the estate of Kewkew ( K <sup>20</sup> w-k <sup>21</sup> w ), which is in the district thereof | <sup>19</sup> lands, [300] stat |
| 4. In the district of the Hare nome, (Hermopolis), the estates of Nesumin, which are in the district thereof                                   | 600 stat                        |
| 5. In the district of Aphroditopolis, (the town of) Kay ( K <sup>22</sup> y ), which is in the district thereof                  | 300 stat                        |
| 6. <sup>23</sup> In the district of [—], the estate of Harsiese, which is in the district thereof  | <sup>20</sup> 200 stat          |

All this added together lands, 1,800<sup>d</sup> stat together with all the income thereof from field and town; with their arid lands, and their canals.

<sup>a</sup>The pronoun refers to Shepnupet (II) and Amenardis.

<sup>b</sup>Feminine.

<sup>c</sup>There should be seven nomes, according to the heading. The lacking nome, which was omitted by error of the scribes, has been added at the end of the inscription.

<sup>d</sup>The total is 2,000, but the discrepancy is, perhaps, explained by the uncertainty of the third item.

Revenues

949. Bread and beer given to the temple of Amon for her:

From the Prince of Thebes

That which the fourth prophet of Amon, prince of <sup>22</sup>the city (Thebes), governor of the whole South, Mentemhet, gives to her:

Daily:

Bread	200 deben
Wine	5 hin
'Cakes' (§ 9)	1
Vegetables	1 bundle ( htp )

Monthly:

Oxen	3
Geese	5

From His Son

950. That which his eldest son, chief of the prophets of Thebes, Nesuptah, gives to her:

Daily:

Bread	100 deben
Wine	2 hin
Vegetables	1 bundle ( htp )

Monthly:

<sup>22</sup> 'Cakes' (§ 9)	15
Beer	10 jars ( hbn )
Lands of the region ( k c h' t ) of Wawat	100 stat

From His Wife

951. That which the wife of the fourth prophet of Amon, Mentemhet (named): Uzarenes (Wd<sup>3</sup>-rus), gives to her:

Daily:

Bread	100 deben
-------	-----------

From the High Priest of Amon

952. That which the High Priest of Amon, Harkheb (Hr-hb), gives to her:

Daily:
Bread	100 deben
Wine	2 hin
Monthly:
1Cakes1 (§ 9)	10
23Beer	5 jars ( hbn )
Vegetables	10 bundles ( htp )

From the Third Prophet of Amon

953. That which the third prophet of Amon, Pediamennebneštowe, gives to her:

Daily:
Bread	100 deben
Wine	2 hin
Monthly:
Beer	5 jars ( hbn )
1Cakes1 (§ 9)	10
Vegetables	10 bundles ( htp )

Summary

954. Combined total:

Daily:
Bread	600 deben
Wine	11 hin
1Cakes1 (§ 9)	2 $\frac{1}{6}$ <sup>a</sup>
Vegetables	2 $\frac{2}{3}$ <sup>a</sup> bundles
24Monthly:
Oxen	3
Geese	5
Beer	20 jars
Lands	100 stat

From the King

955. That which his majesty gives to her in the nome of Heliopolis in the temple of Atum, of the divine offerings (temple income), which his majesty founded:

Spelt	2 khar
-------	--------

<sup>a</sup>Including also the monthly quota reduced to days.

after it has been offered in the (divine) presence daily, and the god has been satisfied therewith.

From the Temples

956. That which is given to her from the temples:

Sais	Bread	200 deben
<sup>25</sup> Buto	"	200 "
House of Hathor of the Malachite	"	100 "
Memphis <sup>1</sup> ( Pr-ynbw )	"	50 "
Kom el-Hisn	"	50 "
Per-Manu	"	50 "
The house ( c·t ) of Tharu	"	50 "
Tanis	"	100 "
House of Hathor	"	100 "
<sup>26</sup> Bubastis	"	100 "
Athribis	"	200 "
Mesta ( Mš-tʔ )	"	50 "
Bista ( Byʔ s-tʔ )	"	50 "
House of Harsaphes, lord of Heracleopolis	"	100 "
Per-Seped ( Saft-el-Henneh )	"	100 "
Combined total	Bread	1,500 deben

Further Lands

957. That which was given to her in four<sup>a</sup> nomes of the Northland:

1. <sup>27</sup> In the district of Sais, the estates ( pr ) of the southern Bedwin, which are in the district thereof: lands	360 stat
2. In the district of Bista ( Byʔ s-tʔ ), the house ( c·t ) of Neferher ( Njr-ḥr ), which is in the district thereof: lands	500 stat
3. In the district of Thebu ( Tbw ), <sup>28</sup> — in the Barque of the Sycamore, which is in the district thereof	2 <sup>1</sup> 4 <sup>10</sup> stat
4. In the middle district of Heliopolis, "The-Wall-of-Hori," son of Zedti ( Ddty ), which is (also) "The-Wall-of-Psenmut," born of <sup>29</sup> Meretubekhet ( Mr-t-wbḥ·t ), which is in the district thereof	200 (+x) stat
Total lands of four nomes	1,400 stat

<sup>a</sup>Miscopied 3 in the publication; see l. 29, and l. 30.

together with all the income thereof, from field and town; with their arid lands and their <sup>30</sup>canals.

Combined total:

Bread	2,100 deben
Lands in eleven nomes	3,300 stat

Abiding, abiding, conveyed, conveyed, imperishable and ineffaceable, forever and ever, forever and ever!

Land Omitted Above<sup>a</sup>

958. In the district of — 'pep', with all its people, all its lands, and all its possessions in field and town.

---

STATUE INSCRIPTION OF THE CHIEF STEWARD, IBE<sup>b</sup>

958A. This inscription records part of the career of Ibe, one of the nobles in attendance upon Nitocris, the daughter of Psamtik I, after her appointment as sacerdotal princess of Thebes. Ibe describes her installation (year 9), at the ceremonies of which he was present (§§ 958D–958E); and then narrates his appointment by the king as her chief steward [seventeen years later, in the year 26 (§ 958G)], for the purpose of restoring her palace. He arranged the affairs of the princess, and she spent a day with him in the temple, looking over her papers. He then conducted the restoration of her palace, involving the erection of one building a hundred cubits high (over 172 feet!). This is the only literary reference to the height of a dwelling in earlier Egypt. Ibe also built a palace-chapel of Osiris, assisted in the celebration of the feasts of Amon, and aided in the restoration of the Osirian tomb at Thebes.

---

<sup>a</sup>The scribe omitted this piece of land from the list in seven nomes (§ 948).

<sup>b</sup>Limestone statue bought at Luxor by Legrain in 1903; it represents a standing figure broken off at the waist, the upper portion missing. A stela held before the figure bears the inscription. Published by Daressy, Annales, V, 94–96. The stone is friable and the surface much eroded, so that the text is very uncertain.

Introduction

958B. <sup>1</sup>—— chief steward of the Divine Consort, Ibe (Yb <sup>2</sup>), son of the priest (mry' ntr), Enekhhor (<sup>c</sup> nh-Hr) <sup>2</sup>—— . . . <sup>3</sup>. . . <sup>a</sup> —— <sup>4</sup>chief [steward] of my queen, his daughter, the Divine Consort ——.

Appointment of Nitocris

958C. A lacuna at this point evidently contained the statement that Psamtik I commanded the appointment of his daughter,

<sup>5</sup>His beloved, the great favorite of Amon, the sweet —, [daughter of] the beloved of Mut, Mehetnusekhet (Mh' t-m-wsh' t) to be Divine Consort, Divine Votress of Amon in Karnak.

Installation of Nitocris

958D. <sup>6</sup>The chief ritual priest, divine scribe, prophets, divine fathers, priests (w <sup>c</sup> b), and the great companions of his majesty, were the suite of their queen. The whole land was in great festivity; an oblation — <sup>7</sup>filled with every offering, [jubilating] <sup>1</sup> to him, satisfying the heart; [by] <sup>1</sup> the glorious one, great among the great, his beloved, the Divine Votress, Nitocris, who liveth; while the lay priesthood of the temple were following [her] <sup>8r</sup> — <sup>1</sup>. There was performed for her every customary ceremony, like the fashion of the coronation of her good lord, Amon — — radiance, like the sun (Šw). She caused — — <sup>9</sup>that there be presented a great oblation; the lay priesthood brought the incense of favor, love, life, <sup>b</sup> prosperity, and health for her father, Wahibre (W <sup>2</sup> h-yb-R <sup>c</sup>, Psamtik I).

Nitocris Arrives at Her Theban Palace

958E. Her majesty proceeded — — <sup>10</sup>to the palace, seated in her palanquin (dn' t), the poles (thereof) being made anew, of silver and gold, inlaid with every genuine costly stone, <sup>c</sup> and she caused [that there be offered] <sup>1c</sup> — —.

<sup>a</sup>Fragments of a mortuary prayer for Ibe, whose title is, perhaps, partially preserved at the beginning of l. 4.

<sup>b</sup>See II, 96o.

<sup>c</sup>Or: "given to her [beside them] — —."

Decay of the Palace of Nitocris

958F. <sup>11</sup>Year 26, second month of the first season, day 3. <sup>12</sup>On this day<sup>1</sup>,<sup>a</sup> his majesty [— — —]. His majesty sent those who were in his suite, — — <sup>13</sup>of the Southland, prophets, and priests (w<sup>c</sup> b) of Amon, and sacred women of Amon. They came, saying: “His majesty has heard that the house of the Divine Votress of Amon <sup>14</sup>is beginning to fall to ruin.”

Appointment of Ibe as Chief Steward of Nitocris to Carry Out Restoration

958G. These people also bring with them a command of the king that

There should be appointed <sup>15</sup>the king's-confidant, Ibe, as chief steward of the Divine Consort, and that there should be collected for him all his things which should go [for the payment] of the works, <sup>16</sup>[and] that they should be delivered to all the scribes and inspectors sent with the business of the house of the Divine Votress, as many as they were. The list of every day — — — <sup>17</sup>[of — — —] utensils of silver, gold, copper, [—], [everything] of the White House.

Ibe's Administration

958H. <sup>18</sup>I [filled] her granaries with [wheat], spelt, and all fruits. I multiplied her cattle yards with bullocks, [obliged] her officials to pay dues — — <sup>19</sup>all of them. I conserved everything by exaction in — throughout.

Nitocris Spends a Day Inspecting Her Affairs

958I. — — he [went] to receive her in the temple of Amon — —. <sup>20</sup>She spent the day sealing [— —] of the house.

Here she seems to have inspected

<sup>21</sup>All her affairs of the myriad of years which every excellent king lives.

Ibe Conducts the Restoration of the Palace of Nitocris

958J. I built her refectory (w<sup>c</sup> b<sup>t</sup>) by the side of the king's-house (pr stny), ([called]): “Khonsu-of [—],”<sup>b</sup> as an eternal work, everything was a work of — <sup>21</sup>— in it, — her house (h' t) in the pure house (pr) of her father, Amon, which her father, Re, made for her in the first beginning (sp tpy), 100 cubits high, and 100 cubits wide — — — <sup>22</sup>built in all its —. Its — was of stone, its pavement was of stone, every [altar] found in it, its tables — <sup>23</sup>without [number]. Its ceiling (lit., heaven) was of electrum, inlaid with every genuine costly stone.

<sup>a</sup>Or: “([the coronation day] of his majesty.”

<sup>b</sup>Amon?

Ibe Builds a Palace-Chapel of Osiris

958K. I erected a temple (h' t-nt) beside it for her lord, Osiris-Wennofer, of [all] excellent work. His barque — <sup>24</sup>— like Re in his horizon. The portable image of his majesty was fashioned of electrum, inlaid with every genuine costly stone, together with statues of her<sup>a</sup> body of electrum — — — <sup>25</sup>— to her palace in her [barge] before the — place.

Celebration of Amon's Feasts

958L. Ibe then narrates how the god (Amon) was brought forth in procession, with his sacred women who accompanied Nitocris,

At his feast which the land celebrated for him on the sixth of the month; [whereof the like was done] beside the upper gate of Amon-Re [— —] with her father at his feast of the first month of the third season (Pakhons) <sup>26</sup>—.

Restoration and Furniture of the Osirian Tomb?

958M. She filled his secret cavern<sup>b</sup> with brick, with [all] [genuine things] that he desired. Its doors were of cedar, the pavement of [— — — —] which the queen (hn' t), L. P. H., [—], Divine Votress, Nitocris, fashioned [————] <sup>27</sup>— Great Divine Consort, Mehet-nusekhet, likewise in everything; [in order<sup>c</sup> to bury] a multitude of their vessels, even all their<sup>d</sup> offering-tables of the temple, of silver, gold, and every costly stone. I founded their divine offerings, of bread, beer, cattle, fowl, linen, ointment, wine, milk, [—], and vegetables as daily [offerings [without]] <sup>28</sup>number. . . . .<sup>e</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Nitocris.

<sup>b</sup>The Osirian tomb of Amon?

<sup>c</sup>Yw for r, both being pronounced "e."

<sup>d</sup>It is not certain to whom this "their" (and again in this line) refers.

<sup>e</sup>The remainder of the line is chiefly an obscure asseveration of faithfulness by Ibe.

FIRST SERAPEUM STELA<sup>a</sup>

959. This is the important stela which shows that Taharka immediately preceded Psamtik I. The deceased Apis died just before the beginning of Psamtik I's twenty-first year, having lived twenty-one years, two months, and seven days. As the animal was born in the twenty-sixth year of Taharka, it is evident that Taharka was the predecessor of Psamtik I, with a possible interval between them of not more than one or two months. The stela is further important as indicating that the years of the king's reign coincided with the years of the civil calendar. The Apis died on the twenty-first of the twelfth month in Psamtik's twentieth year. At the expiration of the ceremonial seventy days, the burial took place on the twenty-fifth of the second month in the king's twenty-first year. The transition from year 20 to year 21 evidently fell on New Year's Day (see also § 984).

Death of Apis

960. Year 20, fourth month of the third season (twelfth month), day 21; under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Wahibre (W<sup>3</sup> h-yb-R<sup>c</sup>); Son of Re, of his body, Psamtik (Psmṯk) I; went forth the majesty of Apis, the Living Son, to heaven.

Burial of Apis

961. This god was conducted in peace to the Beautiful West in the year 21, second month of the first season (second month), (on) the twenty-fifth day.

Birth and Age

962. Now, he was born in the year 26 of King Taharka; he was received into Memphis in the fourth month of the second season (eighth month), (on) the ninth day; which makes 21 years, 2 months 7 days<sup>1, b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Louvre, No. 190; published: Mariette, Le Sérapéum de Memphis, III, Pl. 36; Piehl, Inscriptions, I, XXII, C; Revillout, Revue égyptologique, VII, 138; Chassinat, Recueil, 18, 19. I had also my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>After the "2 months" there is a hieratic 7, and before it a half-circle, which is probably the sign for day.

SECOND SERAPEUM STELA<sup>a</sup>

963. This inscription has heretofore been understood as recording both repairs in the Serapeum or a sanctuary of Apis,<sup>b</sup> and the burial of an Apis deceased under Psamtik I. The true import of the inscription is totally different. There is no reference to an Apis which died in Psamtik I's reign, but only the record of the restoration by him, of an old interment, on receiving a report that the coffin was so fallen to pieces that the body of the sacred animal was exposed to view.

Date

964. In the year 52 under the majesty of this Good God (Psamtik I),<sup>c</sup> came one to say to his majesty:

Message

965. "The temple<sup>d</sup> of thy father, Osiris-Apis, and the things therein are beginning to fall to ruin. The divine limbs are visible in his coffin,<sup>e</sup> decay has laid hold of his (mortuary) chests."

Restoration

966. His majesty commanded restoration in his temple,<sup>d</sup> and that it should be more beautiful than that which was there before. His majesty caused that there be done for him all that is done for a god on the day of interment. Every office had its duties, that the divine limbs might be splendid in ointment, wrappings of royal linen, and all the

<sup>a</sup>Large stela found by Mariette in the Serapeum, now in the Louvre (No. 239); published by Mariette, Renseignements, 11 f. (not seen); I had my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>Brugsch (Geschichte, 741, 742) and Wiedemann (Aegyptische Geschichte, 619, 620).

<sup>c</sup>His fivefold titulary immediately precedes.

<sup>d</sup>As the context shows, "temple" (h'-t-ntr) is here the sepulcher of an Apis, and must mean an alcove of the Serapeum, in which an Apis was entombed. If this stone had not been found in the Serapeum, we should think such a burial chapel as that erected by Amenhotep III for an Apis, was meant.

<sup>e</sup>This (wn) must have been a wooden coffin, which was so decayed that the body of the Apis could be seen.

raiment of a god. His (mortuary) chests were of ked wood, meru wood, and cedar wood, of the choicest of every wood. Their troops<sup>1a</sup> were subjects of the palace,<sup>b</sup> while a king's-companion stood over<sup>c</sup> them, levying their labor for the court,<sup>d</sup> like the land of Egypt.

May he be given life, stability, satisfaction, like Re, forever and ever.

---

STATUE INSCRIPTION OF HOR<sup>e</sup>

967. This fragmentary inscription, like that of Pefnedineit (§§ 1015 ff.) and Nesuhor (§§ 989 ff.) illustrates the excessively religious spirit of the Saitic age. Hor was military commander at Heracleopolis, where he executed considerable additions, or at least restorations, in the temple of Harsaphes.<sup>f</sup> These he has recorded upon his votive statue in some detail. His reference to the use of cedar from the royal domain would be more important if the king under whom he served were mentioned,<sup>g</sup> as it shows that the forests of Lebanon were under the control of the Pharaoh at this time.

Introduction

968. ———— <sup>1</sup>benefactions in Heracleopolis, watchful in restoring Ner (N c r), making Heracleopolis prosper, repelling her obstructors

---

<sup>a</sup>This word is written with three standing men with feathers upon their heads. The reference to "Egypt" at the end would indicate that they were not Egyptians, and the feathers point to Libyans. The antecedent of "their" is also in doubt.

<sup>b</sup>Read c h c.

<sup>c</sup>Spiegelberg's interpretation (Recueil, 26, 43, 1) involves making "kings-companion" plural, while the text shows a singular.

<sup>d</sup>Or: "collecting their impost into the court."

<sup>e</sup>On his black granite statue, now in the Louvre (A 88); published by Pierret (Recueil d'Inscriptions, I, 14-21); and partially by Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1251, 1252. I had a copy of the Berlin squeeze, kindly made for me by Schaefer.

<sup>f</sup>Other examples of nobles building temples will be found in the Northern Oasis (Steindorff, Königlich-Sächsische Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften, 1900, 226).

<sup>g</sup>Our insertion of the inscription in the reign of Psamtik I is conjectural.

when the 'filthy'<sup>a</sup> lay in her streets as in a stable; repelling '—' from her district, chief of Heracleopolis, commander of the army, Hor, son of the chief of 'militia' (šš) in the district of Busiris, Psantik, born of the matron, Nefrusebek; he saith:

Prayer

969. "O divine lord, Khnum, king of the Two Lands, ruler of lands, sole god, whose qualities none possesses;<sup>b</sup> I am 'zealous', showing allegiance to thee. I have filled my heart with thee, the prosperous way of him who follows thy majesty. Thou hast made my heart, that my heart might be vigilant in pursuit of genuine things<sup>c</sup> ———."

Temple Court

970. "———<sup>2</sup> in the great forecourt of Harsaphes, as a great work without its like; a colonnade of pink granite, the doors of fine cedar of the (royal) domain, many — of gold like the horizon of heaven. Its south and north walls are of fine limestone of Ayan, the lintels of pink granite, overlaid with gold, the door with electrum."

Temple Hall

971. "I restored the southern aisle (Ytwr), and the northern aisle, and the southern and northern aisle in this place, besides the house of Nehebkaui."

Temple Lake and Furniture

972. "I built the rear wall of the pool 'of' the shore, I seized the place ———<sup>3</sup> I beautified the broad-hall of the 'militia' (šš) behind the tomb,<sup>d</sup> in order to make for me a great work in the house (pr) of Harsaphes, lord of gods, '— —'. I gave two pieces of land (hsp) before the great god '— — — —'. I gave<sup>1</sup> wine '—' every day; I rewarded '—' with goods from my house, I beautified them, (for) I knew that the abomination of a god is withholding. I made their two offering-tablets

<sup>a</sup>Is this a term of contempt for a foreign foe, referring to the expulsion of an Assyrian garrison?

<sup>b</sup>This is the phrase applied to the sun-god, Aton, in the great hymn (see my De Hymnis in Solem sub Rege Amenophide IV Conceptis, 47, l. 50, where the end is to be amended thus: ntr w c nn ky hr sp w j).

<sup>c</sup>For the god's temple.

<sup>d</sup>Hbs-bg't; see Brugsch, Wörterbuch, 456.

of white stone (ds), in order to present the divine offerings upon them: one being in the pit of the coffin, the place where Atum, the old man, goes to rest; the other in "None-Prosper-Against-Him,"<sup>a</sup> 'before'<sup>1</sup> King Wennofer ——— 'his gods, I filled up what was found empty'<sup>b</sup> in his house."

Feast of Bast

973. "I brought out Bast in procession to her barge, at her beautiful feast of the fourth month of the second season (eighth month), the fifth day until [—]."

Concluding Prayer

"I have done these things with a glad heart, without — —. I have opened 'to thee'<sup>1</sup> my arms and extended my embrace 'before [thee]'<sup>1</sup> — work [— —]<sup>1</sup> which was in my heart, while making monuments in thy house. Endue me with life, prosperity, and health [— —]<sup>1</sup> which is in my heart in thy temple. Give me revered old age, spending a long life in happiness, possessing all favor of the ruler of lands (the king), while my name endures in Heracleopolis until the coming of eternity."

<sup>a</sup>Name of a place.

<sup>b</sup>Referring to broken inscriptions which he restored.

REIGN OF NECHO

SERAPEUM STELA<sup>a</sup>

974. This stela furnishes the data for computing the exact length of Psamtik I's reign. Having lived sixteen years, seven months and seventeen days, this Apis died in the sixteenth year of Necho, on the sixth of the second month. The bulk of his life fell in the reign of Necho, and he was only one year, six months, and eleven days old at the accession of Necho. This period of his life thus coincided with the last year, six months and eleven days of Necho's predecessor, Psamtik I. Now, the Apis was born in the fifty-third year of Psamtik I, on the nineteenth of the sixth month; hence the total length of Psamtik I's reign was the sum of 52 years, 5 months, 19 days and  $\frac{1}{1}$  "  $\frac{6}{6}$  "  $\frac{11}{11}$  "

or 54 years, 0 months, 0 days.

975. This would indicate that Psamtik ruled an even number of complete years,<sup>b</sup> but we cannot suppose that Psamtik I died on the last day of the year; it is evident that he died in the fifty-fifth year of his reign, and that the fraction of that incomplete year was, after his death, included in the first year of his successor, Necho. It is thus clear that the years of the king's reign in the Twenty-sixth Dynasty began on New Year's Day. We have already reached the same conclusion from the first Serapeum Stela of Psamtik I (§ 959).

---

<sup>a</sup>Louvre, No. 193; published by Piehl, Inscriptions, I, XXI, A; Chassinat, Recueil, 22, 21. I had also my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe's computation ignores the 5 epagomenæ; the Apis was really 16 years, 7 months, and 22 days old.

Date

976. <sup>1</sup>Year 16, fourth month of the first season (fourth month), day 16, under the majesty of Horus: Wise-hearted (Šy<sup>2</sup>-yb); King of Upper and Lower Egypt;<sup>a</sup> Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Triumphant; Golden Horus: Beloved-of-the-Gods; <sup>2</sup>Uhemibre; Son of Re, of his body, his beloved: Necho, living forever, beloved of Apis, son of Osiris.

Burial of Apis

977. <sup>3</sup>The day<sup>b</sup> of the interment of this god. This god was conducted in peace to the necropolis, to let him assume his place in his temple in the western desert of <sup>4</sup>“Life-of-the-Two-Lands,” after there had been done for him all that is done in the pure house, as it was done formerly.

Life of Apis

978. He was born <sup>5</sup>in the year 53, second month of the second season (sixth month), day 19, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Wahibre; Son of Re: Psamtik (I), triumphant. <sup>6</sup>He was [received into the house of Ptah in the year 54, third month of the first season (third month), day 12. He departed from life <sup>7</sup>[in the year] 16, second month of the first season (second month), day 6. The total of his length of life was 16 years, 7 months, and 17 days.

Tomb and Equipment of Apis

979. The majesty of <sup>8</sup>the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Necho, living forever, made all the coffins and every thing excellent and profitable for this august god. <sup>9</sup>He built for him his place in the necropolis, of fine limestone of Ayan, of excellent workmanship. Never happened the like <sup>10</sup>since the beginning. That he might be given all life, stability, satisfaction, health, and joy of heart, like Re, forever and ever.

---

<sup>a</sup>This title has been inserted by the scribe in the wrong place after the Horus-name.

<sup>b</sup>The date at the top; it is just 70 days after his death, as dated in the document (l. 7).

BUILDING INSCRIPTION<sup>a</sup>

980. The inscription shows that Uzahor superintended the quarries at Assuan during the building operations of Necho. Like the old officials stationed at this place from the Sixth Dynasty on, he was “governor of the door,” or frontier post, of the southern countries.

Revered by the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Uhemibre (Necho), like Re. Hereditary prince and count (rp<sup>c</sup>ty, h<sup>3</sup>ty<sup>c</sup>), governor of the door of the countries, Uzahor (Wd<sup>3</sup>-Hr), he says: “I was commander of works upon the mountain ———, to make great obelisks of granite, and all monuments of diorite (bhn) and granite for the ———.”

<sup>a</sup>From a statue bought by Petrie at Memphis; published, Season, XXI, 5, and 26.

REIGN OF PSAMTIK II

STATUE INSCRIPTION OF NEFERIBRE-NOFER<sup>a</sup>

981. This fragmentary document contains a few references to the building activity of Psamtik II, of whose reign we know so little. Neferibre-nofer was a “magazine overseer,” who can have been no other than the Neferibre-nofer, of another statue<sup>b</sup> at Cairo, who held the same office under Psamtik II, and bore also the name Irhoro (Yry-hr-<sup>c</sup>). Besides being tutor and guardian of the king, he also held the rank of “hereditary prince, count, wearer of the royal seal, and sole companion.”

Omitting unessential and fragmentary self-praise, the building references are these:

982. . . . . Neferibre-<sup>3</sup>nofer, to whom the Two Lands recount their hearts, and repeat to him all their thoughts; [‘who <sup>4</sup>pleases’] King Neferibre (Psamtik II) by doing that which is his desire, when he commands to protect their<sup>c</sup> holy places, beautifying the Two Lands — 5. . . . . 7. . . . He built the temple of the lord of eternity, <sup>8</sup>erecting a pyramidion (bmbn[<sup>t</sup>]) in Mehenet of Sais, in work [————] fine limestone of Ayan; <sup>9</sup>obelisks of Elephantine granite, houses for the first time for Neit; a (portable) barque-shrine (wts-njr<sup>t</sup>) of fine gold, inlaid with every splendid costly stone <sup>10</sup>. . . . .

983. The very fragmentary remainder (ll. 10–16) contains references to liberal offerings to the gods, “for the sake of the life, prosperity and health of King Psamtik (II), living like Re.”

<sup>a</sup>Black granite statue in Cairo; published by Daressy, Recueil, XVI, 46, 47 (C).

<sup>b</sup>Gray granite statue; published by Mariette, Monuments divers, 29, a, 1–5 = Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1887, 120–22.

<sup>c</sup>The gods?

REIGN OF APRIES

SERAPEUM STELA<sup>a</sup>

984. From this stela we can compute the length of the combined reigns of Necho and Psamtik II. The Apis commemorated died on the twelfth day of the eighth month in the twelfth year of Apries, being seventeen years, six months, and five days old; hence his life began five years, ten months, and twenty-three days before the accession of Apries. As the animal's birth fell on the seventh of the second month in the sixteenth year of Necho, the lapse of time from the accession of Necho to that of Apries (or to the death of Psamtik II) is the sum of 15 years, 1 month, 7 days and 5 " 10 months, 23 "

or 21 years, 0 months, 0 days.

The combined reigns of Necho and Psamtik II, therefore, lasted exactly twenty-one years.<sup>b</sup> It is noticeable, also, that, as above (§ 975), the fraction of Psamtik II's last or incomplete year is not counted, but his reign is concluded with the end of his last complete year, as if Apries had begun to reign on New Year's Day.

985. Since the above was written the conclusion reached has received interesting confirmation by the discovery of the second Adoption Stela (§§ 988A-988J) at Karnak.<sup>a</sup> It furnishes the two following data for the length of Psamtik II's reign:

---

<sup>a</sup>Louvre, No. 240; published by Mariette (Choix de monuments du Sérapéum, Pl. VII); thence by Bunsen (Egypt's Place, 2d ed., V, 738-40); Piehl, (Inscriptions, I, XXI, B); Birch (Egyptian Texts, 39-41); Chassinat (Recueil, 18). I also had my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>The scribe has ignored the 5 epagomenæ at the end of the year, as in § 975, note; the Apis really lived 17 years, 6 months, and 10 days.

1. In the first year of Psamtik II's reign, in the eleventh month, on the twenty-ninth day, his daughter, the princess Enkhnesneferibre, arrived at Thebes to be adopted by the Divine Consort, Nitocris.

2. In the seventh year of his reign, in the first month, on the twenty-third day, Psamtik II died.<sup>b</sup>

The adoption was a political device which would be carried out by the Pharaoh without delay; hence we are safe in concluding that Enkhnesneferibre arrived in Thebes not long after Psamtik II's accession,<sup>c</sup> which thus fell late in the calendar year. His first regnal year thus consisted of no more than a month or two. Of his last year (the seventh), but twenty-three days had elapsed when he died. He thus actually reigned but five years and two or three months. From the twenty-one years above obtained as the total length of the successive reigns of Necho and Psamtik II, combined, we may then deduct the latter's reign of a little over five years, furnishing practically sixteen years as the length of Necho's reign. This coincides with the fact that our highest known date of Necho is the sixteenth year<sup>d</sup> (when the Apis of the following stela was born), and with Herodotus, who gives Necho sixteen years, and Psamtik II six years.

<sup>a</sup>Legrain, Recueil, 27, 81, 82. See above, § 938.

<sup>b</sup>The stela also states that his son Apries then succeeded him.

<sup>c</sup>The late date (year 9) for the adoption of Nitocris under Psamtik I was, of course, due to the fact that he did not gain control of Thebes immediately.

<sup>d</sup>This date is the 106th day of the sixteenth year (§ 976); hence there is plenty of margin for the few months in excess of the five years reigned by Psamtik II.

Date

986. <sup>1</sup>Year 12, second month of the third season (tenth month), day 21, under the majesty of King Apries<sup>a</sup> (H<sup>c c</sup>-yb-Re), <sup>2</sup>beloved of Apis, son of Osiris.

Interment of Apis

The god was conducted in peace to the Beautiful West, <sup>3</sup>to let him assume his place in the necropolis, the western desert of Memphis; after there had been done for him all that is done in <sup>4</sup>the pure house. Never was done the like before.

Life of Apis

987. The majesty of this god went forth to heaven <sup>5</sup>in the year 12, fourth month of the second season (eighth month), day 12. He was born in the year 16, second month of the first season (second month), day 7, under the majesty of <sup>6</sup>King Necho, living forever. He was installed in the house of Ptah <sup>7</sup>in the year 1, third month of the third season (eleventh month), day 9, under the majesty of Psamtik II. <sup>8</sup>The beautiful life of this god, was 17 years, 6 months, 5 days.

Mortuary Equipment

988. The Good God, Wahibre (Apries), made all the coffins, <sup>9</sup>everything, excellent, and every profitable thing, for this august god; that he (the king) might be given life and health therefore, forever.

STELA OF THE DIVINE CONSORT ENEKHNESNEFERIBRE<sup>b</sup>

988A. This new monument furnishes several important facts in the history of the Twenty-sixth Dynasty, enabling us to confirm our reconstruction of the chronology and family history of this dynasty. These new facts are:

1. The final proof that Psamtik II was the father of Enekhnesneferibre.
2. The date of Psamtik II's death, and thus the exact length of his reign.

<sup>a</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

<sup>b</sup>Stela of alabaster, o. m. 74 c. high, o. m. 42 c. wide, o. m. 13 c. thick, now in the Cairo Museum. It was discovered by Legrain in the great cache at Karnak, and was published by Maspero, with translation in Annales, V, 84-90.

3. Apries was the son of Psamtik II.
4. The date of the adoption of Enekhnesneferibre.
5. The date of the death of Nitocris.
6. The date of the accession of Enekhnesneferibre.

988B. The stela narrates the arrival of Enekhnesneferibre at Thebes in the first year of her father, Psamtik II, and her adoption there by Nitocris, as Nitocris herself had once been adopted by Shepnupet II, at the decree of Psamtik I (§§ 935 ff.). At this adoption she received the title of High Priest of Amon. Five years and fifty-nine days after her arrival at Thebes, Enekhnesneferibre's father, Psamtik II, died,<sup>a</sup> and was succeeded by his son, Apries. In the fourth year of this king, just eight years, four months, and ten days after Enekhnesneferibre's adoption, Nitocris died, and twelve days later Enekhnesneferibre succeeded to her office. This she held into the reign of Psamtik III, when she was at least eighty years old (see table, § 938).

Arrival of Enekhnesneferibre at Thebes

988C. <sup>1</sup>Year 1, third month of the third season, day 29, under the majesty of Horus: Menekhib (Mnh-yb); Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Mighty of Arm; Golden Horus: Beautifying the Two Lands; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Neferibre; Son of Re: <sup>2</sup>Psamtik II, given life. On this day the king's-daughter, Enekhnesneferibre, arrived at Thebes.

Adoption of Enekhnesneferibre by Nitocris

988D. Her mother, the Divine Consort, Nitocris, who liveth, came forth <sup>3</sup>to behold her beauty, and they went together to the House (pr) of Amon. Then was conducted the [<sup>4</sup>divine<sup>5</sup>] <sup>6</sup>image<sup>7b</sup> from [<sup>8</sup>the House of<sup>9</sup>] <sup>10</sup>Amon<sup>11</sup>, to — — <sup>12</sup>—<sup>13</sup> in order to make her titulary as follows:

“The Greatly Praised in <sup>14</sup>—<sup>15</sup>,<sup>c</sup> Flower in the Palace, <sup>16</sup>—<sup>17</sup> of the <sup>18</sup>—<sup>19</sup>”

<sup>a</sup>Having thus reigned five years and two or three months; see § 985.

<sup>b</sup>Hnty?

<sup>c</sup>Possibly “House of Amon.”

of 5Amon, High Priest of Amon, King's-Daughter, Enekhnesneferibre. She shall be<sup>a</sup> in the Presence of her Father, Amon-Re, Lord of Thebes, Presider over Karnak."

Death of Psamtik II

988E. 6Year 7, first month of the first season, day 23, went forth this Good God, Lord of the Two Lands, Psamtik II to heaven. He joined the sun, the divine limbs mingling with him who made him (yr-sw).

Accession of His Son Apries

988F. Then was crowned 7his son, in his place, (even) Horus: Wahib; Favorite of the Two Goddesses: Lord of Might; Golden Horus: Making Verdant the Two Lands; King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Apries (H<sup>c</sup> -yb-R<sup>c</sup>); Son of Re: Wahibre (W<sup>o</sup> h-yb-R<sup>c</sup>), who liveth.

Death and Burial of Nitocris

988G. Year 4, fourth month of the third season, 8day 4, of this king; went forth the Divine Votress (Dw<sup>o</sup> t-ntr), Nitocris, triumphant, to heaven. She joined the sun, the divine limbs mingling with him who made her. Her daughter, the High Priest, Enekhnesneferibre, 9did for her all that is done for every excellent king.

Induction of Enekhnesneferibre

988H. Now, when twelve days had elapsed after these events, (in) the fourth month of the third season, day 15, went the king's-daughter, 10the High Priest, Enekhnesneferibre, to the House of Amon-Re, king of gods; while the prophets, the divine fathers, the priests (w<sup>c</sup> b), ritual priests and lay priests of the temple of Amon 11were behind her, and the great companions were in front thereof. There were performed for her all the customary ceremonies of the induction of the Divine Votress (Dw<sup>o</sup> t-ntr) of Amon into the temple, by the divine scribe 12and nine priests (w<sup>c</sup> b) of this house (pr). She fastened on all the amulets and ornaments of the Divine Consort (Hm<sup>o</sup> t-ntr), and the Divine Votress (Dw<sup>o</sup> t-ntr) of Amon, crowned with the two plumes, the diadem of 13her forehead,<sup>b</sup> to be queen (hn t) of every circuit of the sun.

<sup>a</sup>Or possibly the titulary closes with her name, and the following should be rendered: "While she was, etc."

<sup>b</sup>It is possible that the word rendered "forehead" (dhn) may be the verb "appoint" (dhn).

Titulary of Enekhnesneferibre

988I. Her titulary was made as follows:

“Hereditary Princess, Great in Amiability, Great in Favor, Mistress of Loveliness, Sweet in Love, Queen (hn't) of all Women, Divine Consort, <sup>14</sup>Divine Votress, Heknefrumut<sup>a</sup> (Hk'ḏ't nfr'w-Mw't), Divine Hand, Enekhnesneferibre, who liveth, King's-Daughter of the Lord of the Two Lands, Psamtik (II).”

Reign of Enekhnesneferibre

988J. There were done for her all the customary rites and all the ceremonies as <sup>15</sup>was done for Tafnut in the beginning.<sup>b</sup> The prophets, the divine fathers, and the lay priests of the temple came to her at all times when she went to the House of Amon, at his every festal procession.<sup>c</sup>

INSCRIPTION OF NESUHOR<sup>d</sup>

989. The remarkable, and often misunderstood, narrative contained in this document furnishes an interesting corroboration of the tale of the mutiny of Psamtik I's troops, as narrated by Herodotus (II, 30, 31). Our Nesuhor was commander of the fortress and garrison at Elephantine, where he had assumed the responsibility for many pious works for the local divinities, in accordance with the increased religious spirit of the Saitic age. On one occasion the foreign mercenaries of the garrison mutinied and, like the Automoloi of Herodotus, planned to migrate to Upper

<sup>a</sup>Her alabaster statue (Annales, V, 90-92) gives as the reading of this name: Hk'ḏ(t)-nfr'w-mry'(t)-Mw't.

<sup>b</sup>Lit., “at the first time” (m-sp-tpy).

<sup>c</sup>Lit., “at his every feast of the appearance” (m hb' j nb n ḥc).

<sup>d</sup>On his statue in the Louvre (A 90); published by Maspero (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1884, 88, 89), with corrections by Brugsch (ibid., 93-97). I had also my own copy of the original which added a number of corrections, and a collation of the Berlin squeeze by Schaefer, which furnished the proper reading of the name of Nesuhor's mother. The inscription was first properly understood by Schaefer (Beiträge zur alten Geschichte, IV, 152-63), who also gives a final text (ibid., Tafel, I-II).

Nubia, to a region called Shas-heret. Nesuhor succeeded in dissuading them and delivered them to Apries, who accordingly punished them. Believing that the gods had delivered him from his dangerous predicament among a horde of turbulent foreign soldiery, Nesuhor did not fail to narrate the event on his statue as a motive for his good works to the divinities of the first cataract. It thus furnishes graphic contemporary evidence of the dangerously unstable character of the military, of which the power of the Saite kings consisted. A similar but more widely-spread disaffection was the occasion of the overthrow of Apries by Amasis.

Qualities of Nesuhor

990. <sup>1</sup>—————<sup>a</sup> as his lord — his equal; whom his majesty appointed to a very great office, the office of his eldest son,<sup>b</sup> governor of the Door of the Southern Countries, to repel the countries that rebel against him. When he hath spread the fear of him in the southern countries, <sup>2</sup>they flee into their valleys for fear of him. Who did not <sup>1</sup>relax [vigilance in] seeking benefits for his lord; honored of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Apries ( $\overline{H}^c c - yb - R^c$ ), favored by the Son of Re, Wahibre ( $W^> h - yb - R^c$ ), Nesuhor, whose beautiful name is Ib-Psamtik-menekh ("The-Heart-of-Psamtik-is-Excellent"), son of Ifrer ( $Yw\{rr}$ ), born of the mistress, Tesenethor ( $T^> -sn^t - \overline{H}r$ ), triumphant.

Nesuhor's Prayer

991. He says: "O lord of might! Fashioner of gods and men! Khnum, lord of the Cataract, Satet, <sup>3</sup>and Anuket, mistress(es) of Elephantine! I rejoice in your names, I praise your beauty. I am free from laxity in doing that which you<sup>c</sup> desire; I fill my heart with you<sup>c</sup> in every design which I carry out. May my ka be remembered because of that which I have done in your house.

<sup>a</sup>The upper half of this (vertical) line is lacking; the document begins with epithets of praise applied to Nesuhor.

<sup>b</sup>The southern country under the empire was governed by a viceroy, who was originally the king's eldest son. This old tradition is now applied to the governor of Elephantine.

<sup>c</sup>Lit., "your ka's."

Good Works for the Gods

992. I have splendidly equipped your temple with vessels of silver; numerous cattle, ducks, and geese; I have made secure their maintenance by (an endowment of) lands, as well as <sup>4</sup>(that of) their custodians forever and ever. I built their shelters in your city. I gave very fine wine of the Southern Oasis, spelt and honey into your storehouses, which I built anew in the great name of his majesty. I gave illuminating oil for lighting the lamps of your temple. I appointed weavers, maid-servants and launderers for the august wardrobe of the great god <sup>5</sup>and his divine ennead. I built their quarters in his temple, established forever by decree of the Good God, Lord of the Two Lands, Apries, living forever.

Requital of Good Works

993. Remember ye him in whose heart was the beautification of your house, (even) Nesuhor, whose name is abiding in the mouth of the citizens; as a reward for (all) this. Let my name abide in your house, let my ka be remembered after my life, let my statue abide and my name endure upon it imperishably in your temple.

Rescue of Nesuhor

994. <sup>6</sup>For ye rescued me from an evil plight, from the mercenaries [Libyans<sup>1</sup>,<sup>a</sup> Greeks, Asiatics, and foreigners, who had it in their hearts to —, and who had it in their hearts to go to Shas-heret (šꜣꜣ yš-ḥr·t).<sup>b</sup> His majesty feared because of the evil which they did. I re-established their heart in reason by advice, not permitting them to go to Nubia (Tꜣ -pd·t), (but) bringing them to the place where his majesty was; and his majesty executed their [punishment<sup>1</sup>].

995. Here follows a mortuary prayer, containing the following titles of Nesuhor:

Hereditary prince, count, wearer of the royal seal, beloved sole companion, great in his office, grand in his rank, official at the head of the people, governor of the Door of the Southern Countries.

<sup>a</sup>One is inclined to read Tmḥw here; for if we read cꜣ mw, "Asiatics," then the Asiatics appear twice.

<sup>b</sup>Schaefer has shown that this region was in upper Nubia (op. cit., 158–63).

REIGN OF AMASIS (AHMOSE II)

ELEPHANTINE STELA<sup>a</sup>

996. This, perhaps the most important document of the Saitic period, is, unfortunately, so badly preserved that a consecutive translation is totally impossible.<sup>b</sup> In the following I have rendered only what is capable of safe translation, and have then connected the few scattered translatable passages, by statements of their probable relation to each other, as indicated by the intervening uncertain context.

997. The drift of the historical facts furnished by the document is thus, in the main, discernible, in spite of the uncertainties and obscurities in details. In his third year as king of Egypt, Amasis finds Apries advancing against him from the north with a force of Greeks and a fleet. Apries assumed the offensive, and advanced to the vicinity of Sais, where Amasis, having mustered his forces, met and defeated him. The army of Apries was scattered, but the dethroned king escaped, and his troops continued to rove the North, infesting the roads and, of course, living by plunder. Meantime, Apries was a fugitive, with a few Greek (?) ships. When four or five months had passed in this way, Amasis was obliged to dispatch his forces, to exterminate the remnant of Apries' army, and while this went on, Apries was slain.

998. The narrative of Herodotus begins at an earlier

---

<sup>a</sup>A large stela of rose granite, 5 feet 9 inches high and three feet wide, found as part of a doorway in a house in Cairo, now in the Cairo Museum. Published by Daressy (Recueil, XXII, 2, 3). The stone is much worn, and so illegible that sometimes not a single sign is certain for half a line or more.

<sup>b</sup>The rendering by Daressy (ibid.) is nine-tenths conjecture, and the English version of Hall (Oldest Civilisation of Greece, 323, 324) is chiefly a translation of Daressy's French.

point in the usurpation of Amasis than does our stela. It would seem that after the defeat of Apries, and his dethronement by Amasis, as related by Herodotus, Apries had taken advantage of Amasis' kindness, had after some three years made his escape and had gathered an army of Greeks, who were again defeated by Amasis, as recorded on our stela. If this reconstruction be correct, then this second battle, as being much like the first, was not properly distinguished by Herodotus, who says nothing of it. This seems to me more probable than to identify the battle of our stela with that of Herodotus, in which case Amasis had ruled over two years, at least, before he was attacked by Apries; and there would also be no sojourn of Apries in the custody of Amasis, as so particularly related by Herodotus.<sup>a</sup> The account of Apries' death, as given by Herodotus, is difficult to harmonize with that on our stela on any hypothesis; but both sources agree in the statement that Amasis gave Apries honorable burial, according to Herodotus, among his ancestors at Sais.

999. There is contemporary evidence of the gradual rise of Amasis; for long after his assumption of the royal cartouche he continued to use his titles as a noble and a powerful palace official. Thus he inscribed his mother's sarcophagus<sup>b</sup> as follows:

1000. Revered by her husband, royal confidante of Wahibre (W<sup>3</sup> h-yb-R<sup>c</sup>, Apries), Teperet. Her lifetime was 70 years, 4 months, 15 days. The name of her mother was Mer-Ptah-Si-Hapi. It was her son who made it for her, the wearer of the royal seal, sole companion, chief of <sup>a</sup>Unless we suppose that Apries was captured in the battle on our stela (which does not mention the fact), sojourned with Amasis four or five months, and then escaped to the Greek ships, there to be slain.

<sup>b</sup>Now in the Museum of Stockholm; published by Piehl (Petites Etudes, 32, and Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 28, 10); and Revillout (Revue égyptologique, II, 97).

the palace, prophet of Isis, master of the judgment-hall, <sup>a</sup>Ahmose (Amasis),<sup>a</sup> — Si-Neit.

1001. His mother was thus associated with, and perhaps related to, Apries, and Amasis' powerful connections thus aided him in usurping the throne. Herodotus' stories of his low birth are, therefore, unfounded.

1002. Year 3, second month of the third season (tenth month), under the majesty of King Amasis,<sup>b</sup> beloved of Khnum, lord of the Cataract, and Hathor, residing in Zeme (D<sup>3</sup>-mw·t), given all life, stability, satisfaction, like Re, forever. <sup>2</sup>. . . . .<sup>c</sup>

1003. Here follows the statement that his majesty was in the palace-hall, deliberating the affairs of the land, when one came to say to his majesty: "Apries (H<sup>c</sup>-yb-R<sup>c</sup>), <sup>3</sup>he has sailed southward — ships of —, while Greeks without number are coursing through the Northland — — — — —. <sup>4</sup> — —. <sup>d</sup> They are wasting all Egypt; they have reached Malachite-Field,<sup>e</sup> and those who are of thy party flee because of them."

1004. Then his majesty caused the royal companions and — to be called, and informed them of what had happened.

He addressed them with reassuring exhortations (ll. 5-7), and they replied with praise of Amasis, declaring that Apries had acted like a dog at a carcass (ll. 7-10).

<sup>a</sup>In cartouche. A libation basin in the Louvre (Pierret, Recueil d'inscriptions, I, 82; Revillout, Revue égyptologique, I, 51, and II, 69 ff.); Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 28, 12, enumerates his titles, before he assumed the cartouche, thus: "Prince, sole companion, chief of the palace, master of the throne —, chief of temples, master of secret things of all affairs of the king, favorite of his lord, strong in mind for his lord, chief of the royal council-halls, master of the judgment-hall, Ahmose-Si-Neit-Wahibre, born of Teperet." It is, perhaps, to his mother's connection with Wahibre-Apries that the addition "Wahibre" to his name is due. Daressy's suggestion of another woman as the mother of Amasis (Recueil, 22, 143, 144) is without support in the monument adduced.

<sup>b</sup>Full fivefold titulary.

<sup>c</sup>Epithets belonging to the royal name.

<sup>d</sup>Possibly: "Now he hath remembered their place in Ph-c n." Ph-c n is a part of the Andropolite nome in the western Delta, but the reading of the name is quite uncertain.

<sup>e</sup>Sḥ·t-mjk (sic!) is probably the same as Pr-H·t-hr-Mjk, near Sais and Buto; see Daressy's note, Recueil, XXII, 8.

Said his majesty: "Ye shall fight tomorrow! Every man (hr-nb) to the front!" His majesty mustered his infantry and his cavalry<sup>a</sup> — — —<sup>1</sup>. His majesty mounted <sup>11</sup>upon his chariot; he took arrows and bow in his hand, <sup>12</sup>he arrived<sup>1</sup> (ʿspr-nʿ) at <sup>13</sup>—, he reached Andropolis, the army jubilating and rejoicing on the road.

1005. The introduction to the battle is totally unintelligible. Then follows (l. 12):

His majesty fought like a lion, he made a slaughter among them, whose number was unknown. Numerous ships <sup>1</sup>took<sup>1</sup> (ʿw) them, falling into the water, whom they saw sink <sup>2</sup>as do the fish.

Amasis triumphed.

1006. <sup>14</sup>Year 3, third month of the first season (third month), day 8, <sup>15</sup>came<sup>1</sup> one to say to his majesty: "The enemy infest the ways, there are thousands there, invading the land; they cover every road. As for those who are in the ships, <sup>16</sup>they bear hatred of thee in their hearts<sup>1</sup> <sup>17</sup>without ceasing."

1007. Amasis then gave his troops instructions to scour "every road, not letting a day pass," without pressing the enemy (ll. 15, 16); whereupon the army greatly rejoiced, and proceeded to their task (l. 16). The enemy's ships were taken (l. 17), and Apries was probably surprised and slain while taking his ease on one of the vessels. "He (Amasis) saw his favorite<sup>b</sup> fallen in his — which he had made <sup>18</sup>before the water." Amasis had him buried as befitted a king, forgot the "abomination of the gods," which he had committed, and "he (Amasis) founded divine offerings in great multitude," for the mortuary observances of the fallen Apries.

<sup>a</sup>The word is uncertain; hf nʿr is impossible. I translate from the determinative. The Greeks must have had horsemen at this time.

<sup>b</sup>Mh-ybʿj, lit., "one filling his heart," common term for the favorite or friend of a king.

SERAPEUM STELA<sup>a</sup>

1008. As this stela records the life of an Apis, the duration of which fell entirely in Amasis' reign, it furnishes no data as to the exact length of his reign.

Date

1009. <sup>1</sup>Year 23, first month of the third season (ninth month), day 15, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Khnemibre (Amasis), given life forever.

Burial of Apis

1010. <sup>2</sup>The god was conducted in peace to the Beautiful West, to let him assume his place in the necropolis, <sup>3</sup>in the place which his majesty made for him, the like of which never was made before; after <sup>4</sup>there had been done for him all that is done in the pure house.<sup>b</sup>

Mortuary Equipment

1011. Lo, his majesty had in his remembrance how <sup>5</sup>Horus did for his father, Osiris, and he made a great sarcophagus<sup>c</sup> of granite. Behold, his majesty <sup>6</sup>found it good to make it of costly stone [—] all kings of all times. <sup>7</sup>He made a shroud of mysterious linen of Resenet and Mehenet,<sup>d</sup> to attach <sup>8</sup>to him his amulets, and all his ornaments of gold, and every splendid, costly stone. They were more beautiful than <sup>9</sup>what was done before,<sup>e</sup> for his majesty loved Apis, the Living Son, more than any (other) king.

Life of Apis

1012. <sup>10</sup>The majesty of this god went forth to heaven in the year 23, third month of the second season (seventh month), day 6. He was

<sup>a</sup>Louvre, No. 192, published by Piehl, Inscriptions, I, XX, H (good translation, 23, 24); Chassinat, Recueil, 22, 20. I had also my own copy of the original.

<sup>b</sup>The place of embalmment.

<sup>c</sup>This sarcophagus is still in the Serapeum (Brugsch, Geschichte, 743, 744). Inscription upon it (Brugsch, Thesaurus, V, 966, 967): "Amasis; he made (it) as his monument for Apis, the living son (even) a great sarcophagus of granite because his majesty found it good to make it of costly stone (c>t)." The last part is verbatim the same as on the stela above.

<sup>d</sup>The two parts of the sacred district of Sais; see Piehl, Inscriptions, I, 24, note 2.

<sup>e</sup>By earlier kings.

born in the year 5, <sup>11</sup>first month of the first season (first month), day 7. He was installed in the house of Ptah in the second month of the third season (tenth month), day 18. <sup>12</sup>The beautiful lifetime of this god was 18 years, 1 month, 6 days.

Ahmose (II)-Sineit, given satisfying life forever, made (it) for him.

---

STATUE INSCRIPTION OF THE GENERAL AHMOSE<sup>a</sup>

1013. The titles and epitheta borne by this officer are the only contemporary evidence for the foreign campaigns of the latter part of the Saitic age. Ahmose's "beautiful name" shows that he was born under Psamtik II. He could hardly have become a general, therefore, before the reign of Ahmose II, under whom his duties in Nubia doubtless fell. His titles in the inscription are as follows:

1014. Commander of the army, Ahmose, whose beautiful name is Neferibre-nakht.

King's -messenger, fighting for his lord's sake in every country, doing what his majesty desires in Nubia (T<sup>3</sup>-p<sup>d</sup>·t), governor of the two doors<sup>b</sup> in the northern countries, prophet of Soped, lord of the East, Ahmose, etc. (as above).

---

STATUE INSCRIPTION OF PEFNEFDINEIT<sup>c</sup>

1015. The monuments left by this noble disclose the interesting fact that he was Apries' "chief physician," and a prominent member of the treasury administration who was among those won over to the cause of Amasis. He held the

---

<sup>a</sup>Found near Zagazig, now in Cairo; published by Daressy, Recueil, XX, 77.

<sup>b</sup>Two forts on the Asiatic frontier in the eastern Delta, as is shown by the man's priesthood of Soped, a god of that region.

<sup>c</sup>Louvre, A 93; published by Pierret, Recueil d'inscriptions du Louvre, II, 39 = Brugsch, Thesaurus, VI, 1252-54 (incomplete); from these two by Piehl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 32, 118-22; collation of last by Baillet, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 1895, 127 ff. (a number of glaring errors); I had also my own copy of the original.

same offices under the latter, becoming, likewise, his "chief physician."<sup>a</sup> The Louvre statue was erected in Abydos, and bears an inscription narrating Pefnefdineit's notable achievements in support of Osiris and his temple. He claims the consideration of the god and his priesthood, because he constantly presented the needs of Abydos to King Amasis and secured wealth and buildings for the Abydos temple. Some of this work he personally superintended at Abydos, and he participated in the presentation of the Osirian drama there. His incessant activity for the cult of Osiris, although he was not a member of the royal family, is a striking example of the excessive religious zeal of the age, pictured so graphically by Herodotus.

1016. One of his achievements on behalf of Osiris is striking. A descendant of the ancient Thinite family, whose counts we still find in the Eighteenth Dynasty, was dispossessed of his income from the Great Oasis and from the local ferry, and Pefnefdineit had these revenues diverted to the treasury of Osiris. The income from the oasis was then devoted to meet the funeral expenses of the people of Abydos.

Titles of Pefnefdineit

1017. "The hereditary prince, count, sole companion, chief of the palace (hrp-c h-c), chief physician, overseer of the gold-treasury, great one of the hall, great revered one in the king's-house, chief steward. Pefnefdineit, begotten of the chief of strongholds, local governor of Dep, prophet of Horus of Pe, Sisebek, says:

Mortuary Prayer

1018. "O every priest (w-c b), who shall perform divine offices; the First of the Westerners (Osiris) shall favor you, as ye recite for me the prayer for mortuary offerings, with prostrations to the First of the Westerners; so shall ye behold the glories before your god; because I was more honored by the majesty <sup>2</sup>of my lord than any noble of his. I was one distinguished by reason of what he had done, an excellent craftsman, establishing his house.”

<sup>a</sup>Pefnefdineit erected another statue in the temple at Heliopolis which bears record of his rank under Apries. Now in British Museum: Sharpe, Egyptian Inscriptions, I, 111 = Pichl, Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 31, 88-91. An offering-tablet of his is also in the Mosque of Bibars, Cairo (Wiedemann, Recueil, VIII, 64; Pichl from W., Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 31, 87 f.).

Attention to Abydos

1019. “I transmitted the affairs of Abydos to the palace, that his majesty might hear (them). His majesty commanded that I do the work in Abydos, in order that Abydos might be furnished. I did greatly in improving Abydos, I put all the things of Abydos in order; (whether) sleeping (or) waking, seeking the good of Abydos therewith. <sup>3</sup>I besought favor from my lord every day, in order that Abydos might be furnished.”

Temple and Equipment

1020. “I built the temple of the First of the Westerners in excellent and eternal work, as was commanded me from his majesty. He saw the prosperity in the affairs of the Abydos nome. I surrounded it with walls of brick, and the necropolis with granite, an august shrine<sup>a</sup> of electrum, the adornments<sup>a</sup> and the divine [amulets]<sup>1</sup>, all the tables<sup>a</sup> of the divine offerings (yh't-ntr) were of <sup>4</sup>gold, silver, and every costly stone. I built W'pg, I set up its altars (<sup>c</sup>h), I dug its lake, planted with trees.”

Temple Income

1021. “I provisioned the temple of the First of the Westerners, increasing that which came in to him, established as daily income. His magazine was settled with male and female slaves. I gave to him 1,000 stat of lands, of the fields of the Abydos nome; equipped with people and all small cattle; its name was made: ‘Establishment (grg't)-of-Osiris,’ <sup>5</sup>in order that the divine offerings might be furnished from it throughout eternity. I renewed for him the divine offerings more plentifully than what was formerly there. I made for him arbors,<sup>b</sup> planted with all date<sup>c</sup> trees, and vineyards (with) people therein of

---

<sup>a</sup>These nouns are enumerated as if in a list, without any verb of which they are the objects.

<sup>b</sup>c't nt ht; the same phrase occurs twice in Papyrus Harris (see §§ 194 and 264).

<sup>c</sup>Or: “sweet trees.”

foreign countries, <sup>6</sup>brought as living captives, yielding 30 hin of wine therefrom every day upon the altar of the First of the Westerners; and offerings shall be brought thence throughout eternity.”

Temple Archives

1022. “I restored the house of sacred writings when ruined; I recorded the offerings <sup>7</sup>of Osiris, I put in order all his contracts.”

Osiris Drama

1023. “I hewed from cedar (<sup>c</sup>š) the sacred barge<sup>a</sup> which I found (made) of acacia. I repelled the chief of the devastators<sup>b</sup> from Abydos, I defended Abydos <sup>8</sup>for its lord, I protected all its people.”

Confiscation of Count's Property

1024. “I gave to the temple the things that issued from the desert (<sup>h</sup> > š · t)<sup>c</sup> of Abydos, which I found in the possession of the count, in order that <sup>9</sup>the people of Abydos might be buried. I gave to the temple the ferry-boat of Abydos which I took from the count; (for) Osiris desired that his city should be equipped. <sup>10</sup>His majesty praised me because of what I had done.”

Prayer for King

1025. “May he<sup>d</sup> grant life to his son, Ahmose (Amasis)-Sineit; may he grant favor before his majesty and honor before <sup>11</sup>the great god. O priest, praise the god for me; O every one coming forth, praise <sup>12</sup>ye<sup>1</sup> in the temple. Speak my name, the <sup>12</sup>chief steward, Pefnefdineit, born of Nenesbast <sup>13</sup>[(N c]-nš-B > s · t)<sup>e</sup>. . . . .”

<sup>a</sup>This temple barge was used in the Osiris drama; compare II, 183.

<sup>b</sup>In the dramatic enactment of the incidents of the Osiris myth.

<sup>c</sup>These can only be the income from the Great Oasis, which from the time of the Eighteenth Dynasty had belonged to the counts of Abydos (II, 763). This income then seems to have been devoted to paying the expenses of burying the people of Abydos.

<sup>d</sup>Osiris.

<sup>e</sup>Restored from the other monuments of this man (Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache, 31, 87, 88).

MORTUARY STELÆ OF THE PRIEST PSAMTIK<sup>a</sup>

1026. The historical value of these stelæ consists solely in the chronological data which they furnish. From these data it is possible to establish the exact length of the Twenty-sixth Dynasty, and also the length of the reign of Apries, otherwise uncertain. The calculation is as follows:

Psamtik was sixty-five years, ten months, and two days old at his death in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of Amasis, on the twenty-eighth day of the eighth month. He was, therefore, born thirty-nine years, two months, and four days before the accession of Amasis. Now, the date of his birth is given as the first day of the eleventh month in year 1 of Necho; hence, Necho's accession was exactly forty<sup>b</sup> years before that of Amasis. The length of the dynasty is, then, the total of the following items:

Psamtik I		54 years
Necho	}
Psamtik II		40 "
Apries
Amasis		44 "
		138 "
Total

<sup>a</sup>Small stelæ in Leyden (V, 18 and 19), written with ink and rapidly becoming illegible; published by Piehl, (Inscriptions, III, XXVIII, G and H). I had also my own copy of the original which I collated with an old manuscript copy of Leemans, made while the stelæ were more legible than at present.

<sup>b</sup>The computation is as follows:

Lifetime,	65-10- 2
Date of death,	26- 7-28
	39- 2- 4
From birth to accession of Amasis,	10- 1	Date of birth in reign of Necho.
	40- 0- 5

The five days are, of course, the five epagomenæ.

As the fall of the dynasty occurred in 525 B. C., its accession took place in (525 + 138) 663 B. C.

1027. The length of the reign of Apries may also be determined from the same data, thus: the total of all the other reigns in the dynasty is as follows:

Psamtik I		54 years
Necho	}	21 “
Psamtik II
(Apries omitted)		—
Amasis		44 “
		119 “
Total

This total deducted from the 138 years' duration of the dynasty leaves nineteen years for the reign of Apries.<sup>a</sup> From the Elephantine Stela of Amasis we know that Apries lived over two years (i. e., into the third year) after the accession of Amasis, but these two years fall within the reign of the latter, and are not included in the nineteen years of Apries' sole reign. The text is as follows:

1028. Year 1, third month of the third season, day 1, under the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Uhemibre (Wḥm-yb-R), Son of Re, Necho (N-kʿw).

1029. On this good day was born the divine father, Psamtik, begotten of Ahuben (Y<sup>c</sup> ḥ-wbn), born of Enkhetesi (<sup>c</sup> nḥts). His good life was 65 years, 10 months, 2 days. Year 27, fourth month of the second season, day 28, was his day of departure from life. He was introduced into the Good House,<sup>b</sup> and he spent 42<sup>c</sup> days under the hand of Anubis, lord of Tazoser. He was conducted in peace to the Beautiful West in the first month of the third season (ninth month), day 1—1;<sup>a</sup> and his life in the necropolis is forever and ever.

<sup>a</sup>A stela in Berlin (No. 15393) is dated in the seventeenth year of Apries.

<sup>b</sup>This was the place of the embalmers, where he spent 42 days in process of embalment, as is evident from the following context, Anubis being the embalmer. For a clear narrative of such mortuary proceedings, see the Miramar stela (Bergmann, Hieroglyphische Inschriften, VI, l. 10).

<sup>c</sup>Leemanns read 42; I could see only 30 and a stroke, with room between for another 10, and at the end for several strokes (units). Piehl read 30+x. The duplicate has clearly 42; but see next note.

---

<sup>a</sup>Merely the day-sign with no numeral. On the duplicate I could not read the numeral; Leemanns gives 2, and Piehl read 1. None of these numerals fits the case; 42 days after his death would bring the burial on the tenth of the tenth month. As our texts both give ninth month, the 42 is evidently an error. It cannot be more than 32.

Class 932

Book H82

Library of Adelbert College

V.5

of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O.

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT

ANCIENT RECORDS

UNDER THE GENERAL EDITORSHIP OF
WILLIAM RAINY HARPER

---

First Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF ASSYRIA AND BABYLONIA
EDITED BY ROBERT FRANCIS HARPER

Second Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT
EDITED BY JAMES HENRY BREASTED

Third Series

ANCIENT RECORDS OF PALESTINE, PHENICIA
AND SYRIA
EDITED BY WILLIAM RAINY HARPER

ANCIENT RECORDS OF EGYPT

HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE PERSIAN CONQUEST, COLLECTED
EDITED AND TRANSLATED WITH COMMENTARY

BY

JAMES HENRY BREASTED, PH.D.

PROFESSOR OF EGYPTOLOGY AND ORIENTAL HISTORY
IN THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

VOLUME V
INDICES

CHICAGO
THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS
1907

LONDON: LUZAC & CO.

LEIPZIG: OTTO HARBASSOWITZ

COPYRIGHT 1907 BY
THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Published February 1907

Composed and Printed By
The University of Chicago Press
Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

PREFACE TO VOLUME V

These indices are the work of my friend and former pupil, Dr. O. A. Toffteen. I would take occasion to express to him here my thanks and appreciation for the labor and care which he has expended upon them. While the author has constantly supervised the compilation, yet the work has been that of Dr. Toffteen, and he is fully responsible for it. It should be said in justice to him, as well as perhaps to the author also, that the latter's return to the Orient for another season left the compiler only a little over two months in which to complete his heavy task. He was obliged to work more hours a day and with more speed than was his desire, but I am sure that the usefulness of his work, and the persistent industry with which he has compiled his lists, will deserve lenient judgment, should any occasional errors in numbers be found. I hope also that the necessity for the separate publication of such exhaustive indices in a volume by themselves will be evident to any who may have expected to find them included in Volume IV. Aside from the fact that it would have rendered that volume (already far the largest of the set) much too bulky, it was thought highly desirable to give such a cyclopædia of the subject separate existence as a volume, rather than to absorb it in Volume IV, where it would be constantly lost to use, whenever anyone might be using Volume IV for some other purpose. Likewise if bound up with Volume IV, the employment of the indices by a reader would also have involved the needless use of Volume IV with them. The compilation of the index has disclosed an occasional inconsistency in rendering, and in a few cases also in the orthography of proper names, in view of which the author would only recall the long period of time and the numerous modifications involved in the slow progress of such a work as this.

In view of some remarks in one of the first reviews which have appeared, it should be stated that it was necessary to close the manuscript of these Records to any additions on October 1, 1904. Any works or texts which appeared after that date could not be included. An advance proof kindly sent me by Eduard Meyer enabled me to employ his invaluable Chronologie in revising the chronology in Volume I; and wherever possible I endeavored to insert in the proof important facts appearing in new books and current journals. But I could take up no new texts. The omission of Abydos texts, mentioned by Foucart (Journal des Savants, June, 1906, p. 336), was intentional, as no translatable document of importance is in Abydos, Volume I, the only volume out when my manuscript was handed in. Among these the inscription of "Nakhiti," which Foucart says I have overlooked, is in our own Haskell Museum, where it was received not long after its discovery. I was therefore not very likely to overlook it.

As I have stated in the general preface, circumstances beyond my control obliged me to read the proofs of these volumes, as well as those of my History of Egypt, between April and September, 1905, a period in which fell also the preparations for the expedition to Egypt under the auspices of the Oriental Exploration Fund, University of Chicago. There are therefore doubtless more typographical errors and corrigenda than I could wish. I have already noticed the following:

Vol. I, §§ 178-80. Please read in the following order: 180, 178, 179. The unpublished and also almost unreadable base-inscription should be mentioned here (see Maspero, Les Origines, p. 364, note 8).

Vol. I, § 182. The verb after "Ptah" is doubtless part of the name, so that the ny is dative and not the n-form. We should then render, "Ptahyutnai (Pth-ywt-ny), who made this for him, etc."

Vol. I, § 185. For "field judge who," read "field judge, Kemethnet (Km̄nt), who."

Vol. I, § 199. After "Upper," insert "Oleander."

Vol. I, § 538. For "count of Siut," read "official of Siut."

Vol. I, § 685. For "Nebkure," read "Nubkure."

Vol. I, before § 707, at top of p. 313. Insert as a title, "REIGN OF AMENEMHET III."

Vol. I, pp. 314, 316, 318, 320, 322, 324, 326, in running-title at the top of the page for "SESOSTRIS III," read "AMENEMHET III."

Vol. II, § 657. For "by the hair the Kode-folk," read "among the Curly-Haired," as in Vol. II, § 71.

Vol. II, p. 305, note a. For "has," read "have."

Vol. II, § 854. For "Ibbet," read "Ibhet."

Vol. III, § 309. For " $K^{\text{r}} \text{r}^{\text{r}} \text{ky-k}^{\text{s}}$ " read " $K^{\text{r}} \text{r}^{\text{r}} \text{ky-}^{\text{s}}$ ."

Vol. III, § 498. For " $H^{\text{r}}$ ," read " $H^{\text{r}} m$ ." This change is due to a collation of the original at Abu Simbel.

Vol. IV, § 240. For " $s^{\text{r}} mw$ ," read " $s^{\text{c}} mw$ ."

Vol. IV, § 455. For " $^{\text{r}}-ry-m$ ," read " $^{\text{r}}-r-ry-m$ ."

Vol. IV, § 493. For " $Njr-k^{\text{c}}-R^{\text{c}}$ ," read " $Njr-k^{\text{r}}-R^{\text{c}}$ ."

Vol. IV, § 815. For "Zeamamefonekh," read "Zeamonefonekh."

Vol. IV, § 853. For " $htm$ ," read " $h̄tm$ ."

Vol. IV, § 874. For " $Hnt-Hty$ ," read " $H̄nt-Hty$ ."

Vol. IV, § 918. For " $N^{\text{r}} \text{c}^{\text{r}} \text{pys-nht. t}$ ," read " $N^{\text{r}} \text{c}^{\text{r}} \text{t}^{\text{r}} \text{ys-nht. t}$ ."

Vol. IV, § 921. For " $B^{\text{r}} \text{-k}^{\text{r}} \text{-R}^{\text{r}}$ ," read " $B^{\text{r}} \text{-k}^{\text{r}} \text{-R}^{\text{c}}$ ."

Vol. IV, § 1028. For " $whm$ ," read " $w̄hm$ ."

I would also note that the inscription recording a campaign in Syria, supposed to belong to Thutmose II (Vol. II, § 125), has been shown by Sethe's examination of the original probably to belong to Thutmose I. Hence Naville was right in attributing the monument to the last-mentioned king (Deir-el-Bahari, Vol. III, p. 17). This makes the reign of Thutmose II still more ephemeral and unimportant.

JAMES HENRY BREASTED.

HASKELL ORIENTAL MUSEUM,
UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO,
September 1, 1906.

LIST OF INDICES AND HINTS FOR USE

		PAGE
INDEX	I. DIVINE NAMES . . . . .	3
INDEX	II. TEMPLES . . . . .	13
INDEX	III. KINGS OF EGYPT . . . . .	23
INDEX	IV. PERSONS . . . . .	35
INDEX	V. TITLES, OFFICES, AND RANKS . . . . .	51
INDEX	VI. GEOGRAPHICAL . . . . .	71
INDEX	VII. MISCELLANEOUS . . . . .	105
INDEX	VIII. EGYPTIAN . . . . .	173
INDEX	IX. HEBREW . . . . .	197
INDEX	X. ARABIC . . . . .	199
INDEX	XI. LEPSIUS' DENKMÄLER AND TEXT . . . . .	201

The temples (Index II) will be found supplementary to the geography in Index VI. Inscriptions, however, are not placed under temples. The inscriptions of all sites will be found in the geographical index (VI). In compiling the list of temples it was found difficult to distinguish between the different temples in a given city, when such temples have perished, as, for example, at Memphis and Heliopolis. The differentiations made are probably not always correct. The index of Pharaohs includes also such queens as actually ruled; otherwise the queens will be found in Index IV. The documents, monuments, wars, etc., of the Pharaohs will be found under the numbered name, not under the throne-name. Thus, look for Thutmose III under Thutmose III, not under Menkheperre; the references to the latter name will be found appended to those of the former.

The historical development of terms should not be forgotten in using these lists. "Count," "mayor," and "prince" are all renderings of the same Egyptian term at different periods. In the same way, different connection often demands a different rendering of the same title; thus, "chief," "overseer," "master," and "governor" may be rendered from the same Egyptian title. Such a series is also "lord," "nomarch," and "ruler."

INDICES

INDEX I

DIVINE NAMES

A

- ALL-LORD, I 478; II 53, 314, 343, 812, 815; III 265, 281, 613; IV 47, 66, 356, 382; great house of, IV 8; city of, II 316; throne of, see Index VII; eye of, II 316, 815; applied to Re-Atum, IV 249.
- AMON, II 98, 101, 120, 149, 153, 154 ter, 157, 162, 163, 165, 192, 193, 194, 195, 199, 205, 208, 209, 211, 216, 228, 244, 275, 283, 285, 294, 302, 310, 311, 314, 315, 328, 329, 332, 339, 374, 377, 383, 389, 402, 430, 431, 439, 451, 452, 455, 457, 549, 556, 557, 558, 559, 596, 608, 617, 620, 627, 628, 646, 784, 790, 791, 805, 827, 835, 836, 838, 856; III 27, 28, 34, 43, 71, 72, 82, 111, 134, 138, 155, 164, 165, 172, 177, 179, 195, 198, 204, 210, 224, 237, 261, 371, 386, 452, 455, 471, 498, 535, 560 n. b, 566, 575, 580, 615, 622, 623, 626, 642; IV 7, 13, 17, 40, 47, 50, 51, 54, 55, 71, 72, 78, 80, 82, 88, 92, 96, 103, 110, 122, 123, 125, 126, 127, 411, 412, 468, 497, 586, 591, 634, 661, 663, 688, 700, 702, 704, 705, 724, 743, 822, 836, 851, 855, 856, 868, 887, 888, 893, 925, 926, 943, 945, 958C, 958D, J, 988H; lord of eternity, IV 124; lord of heaven, IV 943, 945; king of gods, II 412, 891; III 30, 72; IV 483, 498, 945; lord of gods, II 253, 351, 645, 881; III 215, 515, 625, 626; ruler of gods, IV 943; lord of Karnak, II 149, 150, 377, 378, 423; presider over Karnak, II 200, 203, 253, 271, 282, 315, 402, 568, 569; lord of Thebes, II 44, 45, 87, 120, 121, 158, 164, 166, 197, 224, 253, 268, 271, 272, 274, 276, 280, 282, 309, 313, 315, 319, 339, 427, 568, 624, 639, 790, 792, 797, 831, 881, 882, 883, 886, 925, 930; III 76, 158, 455, 461; IV 52, 126, 913; ruler of Thebes, IV 246; lord of the Two Lands, II 198; bull of his mother, IV 426; fashioner of all that exists, II 149; fashioner of kings and queens, II 199; thunders in heaven, IV 578; equips all lands, IV 579; owns all ships, IV 580; acting as judge, IV 650-58, 672-73, 676; successor of Re, II 189; physical father of king, II 189; crowning kings, II 228-29; shield of bowmen, III, 581; in oaths, II 121, 318, 422, 452; IV 862; worshiped in Zahi, IV 219; in Nubia, IV 218; in Napata, IV 921, 924, 929, 932; in the city of Wa—, of Northern Syria, II 458; in Byblos, IV 580; Egypt, kingdom of, II 910; throne of, see Index VII; staff of, II 71; statues of, IV 190, 217, 219, 220, 245; Amon-of-the-Way, an image of Amon, IV 569, 586; erasure of name of, see Index VII: Erasure; extermination of cult of, II 306; Booty presented to, IV 126, 128; see also Index VII: Booty, Spoil, Plunder; prisoners presented to, I 13; see also Index VII: Captives, Prisoners, Slaves; associate gods of, III 82; see also Amon-Re, Amon-Re-Iny, Amon-rasonther, Amon-Kamephis, Amon-Atum, Ir-Amon; western voyage of, II 885, 888; Feasts of, see Index VII: Feasts; Amenhotep, festival leader of, II 912; oasis of, II 189; Estate of, see Index II: Karnak, temple of Amon; Temples of, see Index II: Karnak, Luxor, Medinet Habu, Western Thebes, Mewetkhent, Napata, Sebta, Kanekeme, Tanis, Zahi. For other references to Amon, see Amon-Re and Index II: Temple of Amon at Karnak.
- AMON-ATUM, II 853; III 261.
- AMON-KAMEPHIS, II 225 n. b; IV 63.
- AMONRASONTHER, III 555 n. e.
- AMON-RE, II 88, 127, 142, 157, 305, 328, 338, 365, 384, 402 n. c, 418, 460, 601, 606, 662, 791, 792, 834, 904; III 27, 77, 137, 195, 206, 504, 512, 515, 517, 520, 556 n. a, 583, 597, 600, 621, 648; IV 7, 10, 14, 33, 42, 44, 56, 71, 75, 77, 90, 103, 104, 108, 137, 411; IV 726, 751; king of gods, II 73, 310, 370, 389, 638, 844, 878, 885, 926; III 223, 479, 504, 517; IV 4, 10, 15, 16, 26, 27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 49, 52, 57, 58, 80, 105, 110, 128, 143, 183, 184, 185, 186, 222, 225, 230, 236, 383, 384, 424,

- 463, 477, 489, 491, 494, 495, 496, 497, 510, 511, 522, 523, 528, 531, 534, 539, 541, 563, 564, 566, 580, 586, 593, 594, 609, 610, 611, 615, 616, 617, 622, 626, 632, 633, 634, 635, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 647, 652, 653, 654, 659, 660, 665, 668, 671, 672, 673, 677, 698, 705, 706, 707, 708, 721, 736, 740, 762, 770, 777, 795, 988H; lord of gods, II 256; IV 401; the begetter, II 288; the self-begetter, IV 186, 653; 654, 671, 722; lord of life and health IV 580; Hatshepsut, daughter of, II 225, 314; divine offerings for, II 159; see also Index VII: Offerings, and IV 160 ff.; presider over Karnak, II 196, 281, 568, 905; III 150, 285, 519; IV 740, 880, 988D; lord of Thebes, I 484; II 159, 196, 225, 265, 278, 281, 425, 439, 568, 573, 603, 606, 614, 627, 630, 646, 654, 656, 797, 886, 888, 889, 890, 896, 905; III 82, 105, 110, 116, 119, 136, 150, 152, 156, 215, 216, 217, 219, 223, 256, 285, 290, 433, 436, 453, 503, 510, 512, 517, 519, 522; IV 15, 126, 130, 184, 458, 652, 653, 704, 706, 722, 740, 854, 886, 889, 900, 924, 926, 931, 988D; lord of the lands, IV 566; lord of the highlands and mountains, IV 458; residing in Nubia, IV 900; lord of "Thrones-of-the-Two-Lands," IV 369; temple of, in the backlands of Fayûm, IV 369; lord of Yered, IV 368; lord of heaven, II 219, 253, 278, 312, 325, 934; III 517; IV 78, 80, 128, 184; lord of earth, II 253. For further references, see Amon.
- AMON-RE-HARAKHTE, III 370.
- AMON-RE-HARAKHTE-ATUM: lord of the two lands of Heliopolis, III 371.
- AMON-RE-INY: ruler of Thebes, IV 12.
- AMON-RE-OSIRIS, III 206.
- ANATH, III 84, 467; IV 105.
- ANTHERET: Hittite divinity, III 386.
- ANUBIS, II 192 n. c, 212; lord of the 'cave', I 394; lord of Rosta, III 17; lord of designs in Neru, IV 296; lord of Rekreret, I 540; lord of Sep, IV 368; lord of Tazoser, IV 1029; souls of, I 403; feast of, see Index VII: Feasts, "birth of Anubis;" temples of, see Index II: Neru, Rekreret (in Siut), Sep, Rosta.
- ANUKET: mistress of Elephantine, IV 991; gifts to, I 500; temple of Satet, Anuket, and Khnum, built by Sesostris I, I 500; giving symbol of life to Sesostris III, I 643; mistress of Nubia, I 644; II 794 n. a; "feast of Nubia" of, II 798; voyage of, II 798.
- APIS, IV 960; the Living Son, IV 1011; son of Ptah, IV 309, 781, 791; son of First of Westerners, IV 780; son of Osiris, IV 976, 986; sacred cattle of, IV 332; feast of, see Index VII: Feasts, "Running-of-the-Apis;" temple of, the Serapeum in Memphis, see Index II; burial of, in the Serapeum, I 22; IV 771, 778, 780, 786, 791, 884, 917, 918, 961, 977, 986, 1010. See also Osiris-Apis.
- ASTARTE, IV 105.
- ATON, I 66 n. c; II 946, 959, 960, 961, 972, 983, 984, 985, 987, 988, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 999, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1006, 1007, 1010, 1011, 1012, 1015; III 19, 72, 144, 270, 281; IV 62; lord of lords, II 1007; lord of radiance, II 1011; ruler of the Two Lands, II 1007; attributes of, II 991, 992; displacing the name of god, II 987; cult of, introduced by Ikhnaton, II 932; faith of, II 932, 943, 949, 979; hymns of, II 979, 984, 991, 992, 999-1001, 1007, 1010-11; landmarks of, II 960; oblation to, II 952, 958; temples of, see Index II: Akhetaton, Heliopolis, Thebes.
- ATUM (original sun-god of Heliopolis), I 625; II 91, 192 n. c, 226, 228, 299, 318, 412, 630, 907; III 246, 265, 270, 278, 281, 597; IV 31, 38, 42, 56, 57, 62, 94, 130, 182, 252, 254, 382, 401, 704, 817, 869, 872, 921; going down in the west, II 318; Heliopolis, city of, III 576; lord of the Two Lands of Heliopolis, I 500; II 221, 224, 635, 643, 896; III 159, 245, 288, 548, 600; IV 183, 247, 248, 249, 280, 284, 289, 383; of Khereha, IV 869; great house of heaven of, IV 357; throne of, see Index VII; earthly reign of, II 91; begetter of Pharaoh, II 91; succeeded by Re, II 222; the old man, IV 972; kings crowned by, II 221, 222, 226, 227; gifts to, I 500; temple built to, in Heliopolis by Sesostris I, I 503; lord of the great house, I 504; bull of the gods, I 504; ancient writings of, I 756; mountain of, II 917.
- ATUM-HARMAKHIS: statue for (=the Sphinx), II 815.

- ATUM-KHEPRI: lord of Heliopolis, IV 732, 872; chapel of, in the temple at Heliopolis, IV 732.
- ATUM-RE-HARAKHTE, IV 183, 248, 249, 280, 284, 289, 383.
- B
- BAAL, III 86, 122, 144, 312, 326, 338, 463; IV 46, 49, 62, 72, 75, 77, 80, 96, 104, 106, 246; servant of, III 630.
- BAST, IV 463; mistress of Bubastis, IV 734; mother of, I 485; mistress of Berset, IV 369; of the South, I 396 n. c; protecting the land, I 747; in Heracleopolis, IV 973; feast of, IV 973; residing in Thebes, IV 912; image of, IV 912; foes of, II 792.
- BES, II 206.
- BULL, THE WHITE: endowment of, I 159.
- BUTO, II 223; III 28; IV 62; white crown beloved by, II 235; endowment of, I 156, 159; mistress of Dep, I 500; II 224; mistress of Perneser, I 159; of the South, I 167; mistress of Pe, I 500.
- BUTO-UPET-TOWE: ritual priest of, III 542.
- C
- CITY-GOD: loves the ruler, I 403, 404; leads him, I 404.
- D
- DEDUN, II 173, 279, 646; temple at Semneh, dedicated to, II 167, 170; presider over Nubia, II 170, 171, 176.
- E
- EIGHT GODS, THE, II 302; IV 848; temple of, in Hermopolis, IV 848.
- ENNEAD, THE DIVINE, I 160; II 360; III 612; IV 382, 399; of Abydos, I 764; III 232, 486, 525; of Elephantine, IV 992; of Heliopolis, III 16, 545, 547; IV 250, 261, 262, 265, 269, 304, 869; of Memphis, IV 309, 322; of temple at Redisiyeh, III 173, 190, 195; of Thebes, II 71, 308, 635, 812, 832, 907, 909; III 27, 29, 32, 206, 215, 218, 256, 281, 285, 510, 533; IV 9, 13, 128, 624, 768; of the Senut-house, I 165; the great, II 285; of Pakht, II 301.
- ESWERE, IV 484.
- ESYE (deity of wisdom), I 504, 747; II 316 n. a.
- F
- FIRST OF WESTERNERS: see Osiris.
- G
- GODDESS, IV 599; of South and North, IV 352, 363, 364, 383, 470, 731; acting as midwives, II 206.
- GODS, II 118, 149; of Thebes, II 73, 224; of the South, II 828; of the South and North, II 217, 219, 224, 800, 812; IV 183, 335, 352, 353, 363, 364, 383, 470, 731; of the deeps, IV 330; oblations for, IV 330; fragrance of, II 196; odor of, II 196; council of, II 192; of birth, II 206 n. f; city, II, 53; dancing dwarf of, I 351; sent to a foreign land, III 440-47; desecrated by the Syrian usurper, IV 398; magic powers of, IV 455; forbidding practice of magic by men, IV 455; of wax, for magical purposes, IV 454; "Amon-of-the-Way," an image of Amon, IV 569, 586; see also Index V: Beloved of god, Daughter of god, Mistress of god.
- "GREAT-ONE-OF-THE-GARDEN," a goddess, IV 914; image of, IV 914; temples of, IV 914.
- H
- HAPI, I 500; III 289; great in Niles, IV 887; temple of, at Heliopolis, IV 273; see also Index VI: Per-Hapi, and the Nile-god.
- HARAKHTE, II 139, 425, 562, 633, 701, 792, 812, 915; III 159, 179, 237, 288, 370, 496, 499, 542, 546, 556 n. a, 560, n. a, 599, 600; IV 38, 463, 477, 510, 702, 703; lord of heaven, III 3; IV 247; great god, III 3; IV 247; lord of earth, III 3; sun of darkness, III 3; only god, III 18; king of the gods, III 18; king, the image of, III 30; lord of Nubia, III 499; worshiped in Amada, II 791; stela for, I 501; worshiped in the city of Wa—, of Northern Syria, II 458; throne of, see Index VII; temple of, in Karnak, II 935; IV 706, 708.
- HARENDOTES (Horus, protector of his father, Hr-nd-yt-f), II 95; IV 484;

- in the temple of Min at Panopolis, II 181.
- HARKEPTI: prophet of, I 533.
- HARKHENTIKHET: lord of Athribis, IV 360, 369; lord of Kemwer, IV 875.
- HARMAKHIS, II 811, 814.
- HARMAKHIS-KHEPRI-RE-ATUM, II 815.
- HARSAPHES: lord of Heracleopolis, I 675; divine fathers of, IV 787, 792; lord of Heliopolis, IV 733; chapel of, IV 733.
- HARSEKHA, III 404.
- HARSIESE, II 192 n. c; III 24, 32; IV 458, 463, 464; "house of Osiris and Harsiese" (=the temple of Osiris at Abydos), IV 357.
- HARVEST-GOD, I 483.
- HARVEST-GODDESS, III 265.
- HATHOR, II 192 n. c, 208, 209, 226, 337; III 19, 210; blade of, IV 784; cow-headed, II 210; cows of, II 210; daughter of Ptah, IV 331; residing in the South of Memphis, IV 331; mistress of Cusæ, I 500; temple of, II 300; of Diospolis Parva, prophet of, IV 726; (of Heliopolis), mistress of Hotep, II 1042; IV 247; mistress of Hotep-em-Hotep, IV 733; chapel of, IV 733; of the house of Atum, III 400; mistress of the Malachite country, I 715, 720, 722, 723, 725, 738, 750; II 450 n. a; IV 409, 784; temple of (in Buto?), IV 784, 956; endowment of, IV 784; mistress of Nun, I 178; mistress of Dendera, I 423H, 500; mistress of heaven, I 738; mistress of Punt, II 252, 255, 288; mistress of Myrrh, II 295; mistress of Royenet, I 216 bis; mistress of the Sycamore; I 165; mistress of Imu, I 351; sovereign of Thebes, II 357; patroness of Thebes, II 224; procession of, II 357; mistress of the valley, IV 913; image of, IV 913; temple of (in Tanis?), IV 956; residing in Zeme, IV 1002; shrines of, in the sun-temple, Sekhet-Re, I 159; in Ro-she, I 159; shrines of, in the pyramid temple: "The-Soul-of-Sahure-Shrines," I 159; endowment of, I 156, 159, 165; IV 784; mine-chambers at Sinai made for, I 723; priests of, I 216, 217; prophethess of, IV 792; temple of, at Aphroditopolis, IV 366.
- HAWK, II 115.
- HEKET, II 205, 302; goddess of birth, II 206 n. f; frog-headed, II 202; mistress of Hirur, II 205 n. a; white one of Nekhen, II 205 n. a; the deliverer, II 205 n. a.
- HEKU: an obscure divinity, II 210.
- HERERET, I 396 n. c.
- HIGHLAND GODDESS: mistress of the Red Mountain, I 493.
- "HIM-OF-THE-HORIZON," II 314.
- HORIZON-GOD (Y > hutu), II 141, 325; III 144, 515; IV 331.
- HORUS, I 605; II 70 bis, 73 bis, 120, 138, 143, 220, 279, 318, 430; III 28, 173, 194, 229, 259, 266, 270, 497, 590; IV 17, 47, 304, 720, 1011; son of Isis, II 808; III 236, 272; IV 351; the Mighty Bull, IV 351; who has numbered his limbs, I 502; receiving life from Osiris, I 744; beloved of Mat, IV 351; lord of joy, III 136; on the royal standard, II 143; in the gold sign, II 145 bis; throne of, see Index VII; hawk, symbol of, III 285; lord of Alabastronpolis, III 24, 27; lord of Bek, III 284, 285; lord of Bohem, III 643; of Edfu, II 111, 114; III 165, 195, 285; of He, III 496; house of, III 496, 498; lord of Letopolis, II 95; IV 878; of Nubia, temple built for, by Sesostri I in Apollinopolis Magna, I 500; lord of Pe, IV 1017; prophet of, IV 1017; of the South, lord of Perzoz, IV 726; prophet of, IV 726; lord of Sebi, III 20; image of, IV 915; followers of, II 73; III 16; =the king, I 345, 346, 423C, et passim; terror of, I 356; worshipers of, I 78 n. a; II 73; Two Regions of, I 441, 448; Two Lands of, I 441; Feasts of, see Index VII: Feasts (worship of Horus, Rekeh); Temples of, see Index II: Athribis, Heliopolis, Apollinopolis Magna, Perzoz, He, Edfu, Letopolis.
- HORUS-SOPED, III 155.
- HOR-WATIT, II 303.
- HRISHEFYT: king of the Two Lands, IV 368; temple of, IV 368.
- HU (deity of taste), I 504.

I

IBIS: footsteps of, III 25.

INMUTER, III 155.

- IR-AMON (=the king): road of, II 792.
IRERTI, II 828.
IRSU, III 285.
ISIS, I 441; II 111, 192 n. c, 318; III 28, 173, 194; IV 47, 463, 895, 896; goddess of birth, II 206 n. f; mistress of heaven, IV 458; "mistress of the pyramid," I 177, 179, 180; divine mother, I 178; III 227; the late date of her cult, I 177; "the great one," II 293 n. e; Horus, son of, II 808; III 224, 236; IV 47, 62, 103, 351, 895; temple of, IV 706, 916; called: "The-Great-Ka-of-Harakhte," IV 706; lake of, IV 916.
- K
- KAMEPHIS, II 831; III 623; the self-begetting sun-god, II 314 n. b; "bull-of-his-mother," II 225, 314.
KEB, II 192 n. c, 285; IV 400; throne of, see Index VII; god of earth, III 116; divine begetter, II 71; controller of minerals and metals, I 726; II 91; inheritance of, IV 942.
KHENT-YAWETEF: endowment of, I 159.
KHEPRI, II 299, 314, 812, 907; III 281, 288, 411; office of, II 595; statue of (=the Sphinx), II 814.
KHEPRI-SET, IV 399.
KHESETI, II 240, 241.
KHNUM, I 747; II 302, 328, 795 n. d; III 203, 265, 404; lord of the cataract, I 317, 500, 611, 615; II 95, 224, 360, 794 n. a, 796 n. j, 844; III 479; IV 655, 969, 991, 1002; II 205, 207, 212; creator of man, II 199, 202; god of birth, II 206 n. f; at the potter's wheel, II 202; the potter, II 203; father of all gods and goddesses, IV 148; binder of the Nine Bows, II 170, 171; smiter of the Shasu, II 170, 171; of Elephantine, II 89; field of Dodekaschoinos belonging to, IV 146; lord of Hirur, I 637 n. a; II 95, 202; dwelling in Abydos, II 95; lord of Sheshotep, IV 366; temples of, see Index II: Elephantine, Semneh, Sheshotep.
KHNUM-HATWERET: temple of, IV 367.
KHNUM-RE, of Elephantine: temple of, IV 925; lord of the cataract, IV 925.
KHONSU, II 216; III 34, 155, 452, 560 n. b, 623; IV 78, 125, 126, 185, 463, 468, 483, 616, 639, 663, 668; of the Theban triad, I 24; II 244; IV 183, 184, 222, 230, 236; priests of, III 341; the two sacred barques of, III 431; residing in Themet, IV 914; image of; IV 914.
KHONSU-IN-THEBES-BEAUTIFUL-REST, III 136, 150, 156, 431, 440, 447; IV 184, 225, 602, 617, 620, 671, 911; Horus, lord of joy, III 136, 150; IV 225; lord of Thebes, IV 602; temple of, in Thebes (Karnak), IV 214, 225, 472, 602, 603, 660; statues of, IV 214; third prophet of, IV 665; image of, IV 911; name of, IV 911; image of, in Karnak temple, IV 204.
KHONSU-NEFERHOTEP, III 370.
KHONSU-RE, IV 624.
KHONSU-THE-PLAN-MAKER-IN-THEBES, III 431, 440, 441, 442, 447; driving out evil spirits, III 443, 444; priest of, 432; in the form of a hawk, III 445; sent to Bekhten, III 440, 445, 446.
KHONSUPEKHROD: image of, IV 909; name of, IV 909; throne of, IV 909.
KHUYET, goddess of the temple of Khentikhet in Athribis, IV 874.
- M
- MAT (goddess of truth), II 154, 938; III, 18, 19, 150, 556 n. a, 560 n. b; IV 458, 463; prophet of, I 531; II 352, 936; III 556, 560; daughter of Re, II 939; beloved of Horus, IV 351; mistress of heaven, II 939; ruler of gods, II 939; presider over the palace, II 939; temple of, in Karnak, IV 660.
MEFDET: feast of birth of, I 115.
MENHYT, III 88.
MENMARE, III 172.
MES: endowment of, I 159.
MESKHENET, II 207, 302; III 400; goddess of birth, II 206 n. f; directing the midwives, II 206.
MIN, I 441, 500; II 30; IV 463; "Lofty of the Two Feathers," II 302; lovely like, IV 49; lord of Panopolis, II 181; temple of, II 181; feasts of, II 181; ithyphallic, I 296; II 104, 302 n. a, 889 n. a; august god, I 437; lord of Coptos, I 296, 443, 605, 779, 780; wine offered before him, I 435; III

- 282; lord of the highlands, I 437, 441, 443, 707; III 282; IV 458; offering of, to Mentuhotep IV, I 437; creator of the pure, costly stone of the Hammamat Mountain, I 442; Hammamat, the highlands of, I 442; head of the Troglodytes, I 443; guarding the expedition to Hammamat, I 448, 707; his forms appeared in a rain storm, I 451; image of "chief-of-heaven," IV 916; shadow of, put on the temple door, II 104, 302 n. a, 889 n. a; likeness of, in year of terror, II 792, 918; divine offerings for, II 567; feasts of, see Index VII: Feasts (Birth of Min, Peret-Min); temples of, see Index II: Coptos, Panopolis.
- MIN, HORUS, AND ISIS: triad of, IV 365.
- MIN-AMON, IV 26; residing in Bohem, III 77, 79, 159, 161; temple of, III 74, 77, 247; endowment of divine offerings for, III 77, 159; temple-personnel of, III 78; store house of, III 78; slaves of, III 78; of Luxor, IV 909.
- MIN-HARSIESE, IV 465.
- MIN-HOR OF COPTOS, I 675.
- MIN-SI-ESE, III 76, 158.
- MONTU, I 468, 471; II 192 n. c, 412, 844; III 86, 94, 141, 152, 224, 285, 307, 312, 319, 457, 479, 490; IV 37, 40, 41, 46, 49, 50, 51, 54, 56, 62, 65, 72, 75, 78, 91, 92, 98, 104, 105, 110, 124, 477, 496, 628, 721, 921, 945; bull of the mighty arm, IV 880; god of Hermonthis, II 352, 828, 831; IV 477; prophets of, II 352; lord of Erment, IV 547; house of, IV 547; lord of Thebes, I 510; II 224, 430; III 84, 147, 308, 326; IV 912; residing in Thebes, IV 82, 103; temple of, in Karnak, IV 660.
- MONTU-RE, lord of Thebes, IV 886; prophet of, IV 660.
- MOON-GOD, III 486; Thoth, the, III 643.
- MUT, II 288, 353, 814, 835; III 34, 256, 371, 452, 500 bis, 560 n. b, 623; IV 57, 78, 80, 126, 185, 463, 468, 483, 489, 616, 623, 634, 649, 663, 702; mistress of Ishru, II 353, 357, 380, 627, 891; III 136, 370; IV 184, 623, 671; the great Bast, III 150; ruler of Karnak, III 150; mistress of amiability, III 150; grants the going in and out in the nether-world, II 353; procession of, II 357; the great sorceress, reared for the dominion of the two regions of Horus, I 441; great-in-Magic, I 468; belonging to the Theban triad, II 244; IV 183, 184, 222, 230, 236; temple of, in Ishru, built by Senmut, II 351; IV 660; the sistrum-bearer, IV 733; image of, in Karnak temple, IV 204; eye of Re, IV 899; of Napata, IV 897, 899; queen of Nubia, IV 898; temple of, in Napata, IV 897-99; mistress of the Nine Bows, II 891; mistress of heaven, III 136; IV 898, 899; queen of all gods; III 136; IV, 899; mistress of Ba (in Hauran), IV 716 n. b.
- MUT-HATHOR, mistress of Thebes, II 622.
- MUT-KHENT-EBUI-NTERU, IV 369; temple of, IV 369.
- N
- NEFERTEM, of the Memphis triad, IV 320; defender of the Two Lands, IV 183; protector of the Two Lands, IV 305, 306; statue of, in Medinet Habu temple, IV 191.
- NEHEBKAU, a serpent-divinity: house of, IV 971; Nehebkew, II 302.
- NEHEMEWI, II 302.
- NETI, I 609; II 630; III 28; houses of, I 609; IV 982; temples of, II 358; mistress of Sais, IV 830; prophet of, IV 830.
- NEKHBET: endowment of, I 156, 159; the white one of El Kab, II 828; III 100; mistress of Perwer, I 159; mistress of heaven, I 741; III 28; IV 62; temple at El Kab dedicated to, III 504.
- NEPHTHYS, I 500; II 192 n. c; III 28; goddess of birth, II 206 n. f.
- NIBMARE: Lord of Nubia, II 894; sole lord, II 900; worshiped as god, II 897.
- NILE-GOD: II 210, 212 (?); father of gods IV 296, 886, 888; books of, IV 296, 297, 347; explanation of, IV 296 n. e; oblations for, IV 296, 303, 347; statues of, IV 302, 349, 395, 738; the two, of North and South, II 888.
- NILE-GODDESS: statues of, IV 303, 349, 395.
- NINE GODS, in Khreha, I 500; see also Ennead of Memphis.

- NUBTI: presiding over the Southland, IV 880.
- NUN, II 887, 888; IV 62, 189, 308, 888; great council of, IV 330; shrine of, II 607; river of, in Heliopolis, IV 870; costly stones, the products of, III 448 n. b; cavern of, at Elephantine, IV 925.
- NUT, II 192 n. c, 285; son of (= Osiris), I 759; II 318, 813, 900; III 84, 139, 144, 148; IV 49, 854; stars in the body of, II 164; Set, son of, III 539, 542.

O

- OMBITE GOD (=Set), III 583.
- ONOURIS, IV 458, 484; of the tall plumes, IV 365; in Thinis, I 500; IV 365; temple of, see Index II, under Thinis; highpriest of, II 818; son of Re, III 261.
- ONOURIS-SHU, IV 355.
- OSIRIS, II 91, 92, 192 n. c; III 173, 194, 232, 259, 266, 272, 280, 281, 486, 529; IV 46, 182, 304, 382, 400, 675, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 1011, 1024; giving burial, II 358; first of West-erners, I 500, 509, 608, 613, 665-67, 669, 758-61, 763, 765, II 96, 98, 186; III 528; IV 1018, 1021; Apis, son of, IV 780; ruler of the West, III 17; presider over the West, III 17; great, mighty one residing in Thinis, I 666; Lord of Abydos, I 500, 666, 669, 684, 758-59, 765; II 96, 98, 186, 367, 840; III 259, 528; IV 365, 484; secret of, II 180; districts of, III 260; mortuary endowments presented to, II 839, 840; lord of Rosta, I 177, 179, 180; lord of Tazoser, IV 187, 357; the great god of the dead, I 9; king of Upper and Lower Egypt, I 759; the great god, I 330, 338, 684, II 98; lord of heaven, I 338; (Hnty ymntyw), I 349; lord of life, I 684; lord of eternity, I 613, 762; II 293; ruler of eternity, III 17; IV 424; soul living with, II 378; sacred barge of, I 762, 763, II 183; throne of, in the house of gold, I 764; see also Index VII; coming forth from the body of Nut, I 759; appearance of, in procession, I 763; ennead of, I 763, 764; oblation-tables of, I 764; symbol of, II 874; son of, III 270; skin of pure electrum, III 176; ceremonies at feast of, in Abydos, I 669; dead kings called, III 266, 272; IV 499, 593, 642; burial of, applied to funerals of men, III 212; IV 499, 593, 637-47, 668; of Busiris, IV 484; of Coptos, IV 458.

OSIRIS AND HARSIESE: house of, in Abydos, IV 357.

OSIRIS-APIS: temple of (=Serapeum), IV 965.

OSIRIS-WENNOFER, I 669; lord of Tazoser, III 17; temple of, in Karnak, IV 958K.

P

PAKHT, mistress of Benihasan, III 249; traversing the Eastland, II 301; ways of, are storm-beaten, II 301; ennead of, II 301.

PERE-HARAKHTE, IV 496.

PTAH, II 804, 900; III 25, 173, 179, 237, 371, 428, 537, 554 n. d, 555 n. e, 615; IV 94, 204, 320, 351, 625, 702, 791, 857, 868; of the Memphis triad, IV 183, 305, 306; "Ptah South-of His-Wall," II 164, 613, 619, 620, 812, 836, 885; III 77, 159, 370, 510, 600; IV 183, 305, 306, 307, 313, 315, 331, 336, 337, 338, 342, 346, 347, 383, 463, 496, 781, 857, 866, 928; lord of the white wall, IV 336; lord of "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," II 611, 929; III 23, 77, 159, 370, 600; IV 183, 305, 306, 307, 337, 338, 342, 346, 347, 383, 463, 496, 628, 977; "beautiful-faced," II 601, 611, 790; IV 47, 62, 307, 331, 382, 401; "lord of truth," II 619; father of the gods, IV 307; ready-horned, IV 307; lofty-plumed, IV 307; Memphis, city of, IV 310; temple in, I 167, 241, 288, 720; II 929; III 537; IV 183, 323-30, 337-39; companions of, III 400; priestesses of, III 400; two high priests of, at Memphis, I 212; had built with his fingers the ancient temple of Upwawat at Siut, I 403; creator of handicrafts, III 288; furnishing the temple-plan, IV 625; workshop of, IV 28; wine offered to, II 612; speaking, in the form of his statue, III 582; blessings of, III 394-414; IV 132-35; feast of, II 614; III 23, 77, 159; lord of Thebes, IV 526, 528; temple of, in Karnak, II 157 n. e, 611, 614, 790; IV 526, 528, 960;

- proceeding to the treasury of the South, II 614; throne of, see Index VII.
- PTAH-NUN: father of the gods, IV 330.
- PTAH-SOKAR, IV 928; statue of, in Medinet Habu temple, IV 191.
- PTAH-TATENEN, II 641; III 397, 399, 411, 555 n. e, 556 n. a; IV 135; stronghold of, III 576.
- Q
- QUEEN OF THE LAND (a protecting goddess): district ("bend") of, I 401.
- R
- RAM-GOD: lord of Mendes, III 542; chief priest of, III 542.
- RAYET, II 325.
- RE, II 98 bis, 120, 141, 144 bis, 198 n. j, 314, 407, 422, 792, 999, 1013; III 18, 19, 172, 265, 270, 272, 281, 285, 287, 289, 319, 374, 517, 590, 598, 616; IV 256, 353, 382, 460, 836, 870, 958J; bestower of the red crown, II 229; hawk-headed, III 2; originally a king of Egypt, II 187; became father of every Egyptian king, II 187, 222; succeeded by Amon, II 189; successor of Atum, II 222; Saosis mother of, IV 251, 278; two mothers of, II 318; in oath, II 121, 318, 422, 452; as crowner of Pharaoh, II 142; confers his own titles on Pharaoh, II 143 ff.; lord of gods, IV 259; lord of Heliopolis, III 546; lord of the eastern bend, IV 479; offerings to, at early morning, IV 256, 258; known by the Puntites, by Libyans, III 611; throne of, see Index VII; musician (fem.) of, III 542.
- RE-ATUM, IV 62, 401; gritstone mountain of, II 917; the All-Lord, IV 249; the creator, IV 249; of Thebes, III 623; Great Seer of, III 623.
- RE-ATUM-KHEPRI, III ex 6
- RE-HARAKHTE, III 246, 280; IV 183, 248, 249, 280, 284, 289, 383; temple of, at Heliopolis, II 642; IV 732.
- RE-HARAKHTE-ATUM, IV 732.
- RE-SEBEK, III 556 n. a.
- REKHET (goddess), I 609.
- RENETET, II 302; III 265.
- RENUTET, II 814.
- RESHEP, IV 40.
- RESI-INEBEF (=Ptah), IV 305, 322; meaning of, IV 305 n. a.
- S
- SAFT: shrine of, II 889 n. a.
- SAOSIS: mistress of Heliopolis, IV 247, 278; mother of Re, IV 278; of the Heliopolis triad, mistress of Hotepet, IV 183; mistress of Hetep, IV 248, 278; temple of, in Heliopolis, IV 278.
- SATET: mistress of Elephantine, I 615, 646, 650; II 360, 794 n. a; IV 991; giving the symbol of life to Sesostris III, I 646; temple of, IV 991.
- SEBEK, III 554 n. d, 560 n. b; lord of Silseleh, III 208; temple at, III 208; Horus dwelling in Fayûm, IV 369, temple of Shedet, IV 369; lord of Meshu, IV 368; temple of, IV 368, lord of Neshit-Crocodilopolis, IV 366; temple at, I 709; IV 366; of Peronek, IV 547.
- SED: feast of, I 113.
- SEFKHET: keeping records, II 212, 231; writing the names of kings, II 230; counts the numbers, II 274, 279.
- SEKHMET, I 747; II 226, 820; III 117, 360, 598; IV 90, 320, 655, 928; of the Memphis triad, IV 183, 305, 306; limbs of, II 52; presider (fem.) over Khas, II 814; beloved of Ptah, IV 183, 305, 306, 628; house (?) of, IV 445; mistress of Rehesu, IV 878; house of, IV 878; mistress of Sais, IV 878; house of, IV 878.
- SEM: endowment of, I 159.
- SEP: highway of, to Khereha, IV 870.
- SEPA: endowment of, I 156.
- SEREK-GODDESS, II 209.
- SERPENT-GODDESSES, IV 194, 268, 333, 356, 407.
- SESHAT: goddess, I 109; feast of, I 115.
- SET, II 318; III 28, 155; IV 38, 47, 75, 79, 91, 103, 108; portion of, II 70, 120; years of, II 220; god of Kom Ombo, II 828; lord of Oxyrhynchus, IV 368; temple of, IV 368; son of Nut, III 539, 542; high priest of, III 542; temple of, at Sesu, IV 369.
- SHU, II 192 n. c; III 245, 608 n. f; IV 62, 103, 105; Memphis abode of, IV 857; son of Re, IV 355; throne of, see Index VII; Onouris-shu, IV 355.
- SNEFRU: lord of the highlands, I 722.

SOKAR: in Shetyt, I 288; in Rosta, II 814; lord of Sehez, IV 855; temple of, in Mer-Atum (Medûm), IV 855; feast of, see Index VII: Feasts.

SOKAR-OSIRIS, II 904.

SOLE-LORD, II 900.

SOPEd, II 337; giving the symbol of life to the king, I 617; lord of the East, I 722, 750; IV 1014; divine votress of, IV 784; Horus-Soped, III 155.

SUN OF THE NINE BOWS, II 987.

SUN-GOD: of Kheta, III 386; of Ernen, III 386, 391 bis.

SUTEKH, III 326, 338, 374, 386, 391, 419, 423, 491, 590, 599, 600; IV 43, 104, 105, 578; lord of heavens, III 386, 391; lord of the oasis, IV 726; prophet of, IV 726; Urshu, feast of, IV, 726; giving legal decisions, IV 727, 728; son of Nut, IV 726; temple of, in Ombos, IV 359; temple of, in the Residence city of Ramses III, IV, 362; of Khesesep, III 386; of Seres, III 386; of Aleppo, III 386; of Rekhsen, III 386; of Sekhpen, III 386; of Tehenu, III 611; of Kheta, III 386; of Ernen, III 386; of Zepyerened, III 386; of Perek, III 386.

T

TATENEN, III 179, 399, 411, 608; IV 9, 304, 307, 308, 335, 382, 401; father of the gods, III 411; IV 307, 308; source of artificer's materials, II 91; Ram, lord of Mendes, III 400; double plume of, IV 62.

TEFNUT, II 192 n. c; III 245; Tafnut, IV 254, 988J.

TESKHER: Hittite divinity, III 386.

TEWERET, II 206.

THOTH, II 95, 147, 193, 211, 230(?), 635, 664, 915; III 18, 19, 25, 281, 288, 404; IV 31, 46, 90, 105, 458, 460, 630, 730, 734, 921; lord of Hermopolis, IV 733, 848; dwelling in Hermopolis, temple of, in Hesret, the sacred quarter of Hermopolis, IV 356, 848; leader of the gods, II 95; keeping records, II 231, 275; balances of, II 280; IV 256; ape, sacred animal of, IV 33, 256; lord of divine words, IV 406; records of, III 448, n. b; takes the place of Horus, in the titulary of Khufu, I 176; founder of the ancient temple of Upwawet at Siut, I 403; writing of, I 531; accustomed to justice, I 531, 618; lord of Khmunu, records in writing, II 274; lord of Karnak, III 136; presiding over Hatibt, IV 916; image of, IV 916; divine boat of, I 669; eye-amulet for, IV 373, 386; temple of, at Pauzy, IV 368; the moon-god, priest of, III 643.

TRIAD: of Heliopolis, IV 183, 247, 248; of Memphis, 183, 305, 306, 320; of Thebes, II 224; IV 128, 222, 230, 236, 463.

U

UPWAWET: lord of Siut, I 394 bis, 395, 403, 541; IV 358; the dead smell the earth before, I 613; plan of, I 396; ancient temple of, in Siut, I 398, 403; procession of, I 540, 669; champion of his father (Osiris), I 669; opening the way before Osiris, I 763; lord of Tazoser (cemetery of Abydos), I 767; of the North, II 95; of the South, II 95; IV 358; temple of, in Siut, I 390, 403; IV 358; feast of Birth of Upwawet, I 150; going forth of Upwawet, I 669.

W

WENNOFER, I 669; II 815; III 240, 271, 279, 525; IV 972; ceremony of "That Day of the Great Conflict," I 669; lord of Tazoser, III 17, 234; soil of, III 260; sovereign of eternity, III 272, 278.

WERERET: mistress of Punt, II 288; mistress, great in sorcery, II 288; mistress of all gods, II 288.

WES, IV 912.

WESET, IV 912.

Y

YAMET, goddess: feast of, I 98.

YOH (=Thoth as moon-god), II 896.

Z

ZEBUI: lord of Aphroditopolis, IV 366; temple of, IV 366.

INDEX II

TEMPLES

NOTE.—All temple inscriptions are listed in Indices VI and VII.

- Abu Simbel—
GREAT TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 449–57, 495–99.
SMALL TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, II 500, 501; dedicated to Queen Nefretiri, III 500.
- Abusir—
SUN-TEMPLE OF NUSURRE, I 252 n. a, 423H n. a.
- Abydos—
TEMPLE OF OSIRIS, I 534; II 185; IV 365, 1020; restored by Sesostris I, I 534; cleansed by Khenzer, I 784; lower story of, I 784; upper story of, I 784; called: “house of Osiris and Harsiese,” IV 357; temple “of First of Westerners,” IV 1020.
 —Barque of, I 534, 613, 668, 669, 746; II 92; names of, I 669; chapel of, I 668, 669; rudder of, I 613.
 —Divine offerings of, IV 676, 1021; altars of, I 746; IV 357, 686, 1020, 1021; amulets of, IV 1020; feasts in, I 665 n. b; lake of, IV 1020; secrets of Osiris in, I 746; oblation-table of, I 787; offering-tables of, I 534; IV 676, 1020; table vessels of, IV 357; furniture of, II 185; stairway of the lord of Abydos, I 528, 673, 684; II 52; wall of, IV 357, 1020; Wpg of, IV 1020.
 —Shrines in, I 787; IV 1020; portable shrine in, I 667; names of, I 667, 787.
 —Statue of Osiris in, I 668, 672, 759; II 92, 95; palace of, I 669; regalia of, I 668; tomb of, before Peker, I 669; cultus image, II 92; called: “protector of the oil tree,” I 785; statue of the king in, IV 357; statue of Thutmose III in, II 186; divine offerings for, II 186; lands of the royal domain for, II 186.
 —Temple archives of, IV 1022.
 —Officials of, IV 357; high priests of, Nebwawi, II 179, 181; lay-priests of, I 668, 765, 783.
 —Palace of Ramses III in, IV 357.
 —Estate of: arbors of, IV 1021; ferry-boat of, IV 1024; barge of, I 762; IV 916, 1023; cattle of, IV 676, 1021; garden of, IV 676, 682, 687; gardener of, IV 682; gold house of, I 746, 764; income of, IV 683–87; lands of, IV 681, 687, 1021; necropolis of, IV 1020; see also Index VI, Tazoser; people of, IV 357, 365, 676; slaves of, IV 680, 682, 687, 1021; storehouse of, I 783; treasury of, IV 683–86; vineyards of, IV 1021.
 “HOUSE OF MENMARE,” mortuary temple of Seti I; begun by Seti I, III 174, 225, 226, 263; completed by Ramses II, III, 266; columns of, III 263; statue of, III 263; divine offerings of, III 263.
MORTUARY TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 524–29; built of limestone, III 525; dedicated to Wennofer, III 525; garden of, III 527; granary of, III 526; shrine-chamber, III 529; store house of, III 526; portals of, III 528; magazine of, III 527; endowment of, III 526, treasury of, III 527.
- Akhetaton—
TEMPLE OF ATON, II 956, 975, 982; broad hall of, II 1018; dedicated to Aton, II 956; chamber of, II 1017. Endowment of, II 952, 954, 958, 966.
 —Aton-house of Aton, II 987.
 —High priests of, II 982, 985; “great seer” of, II 982, 983, 985, 987, 988.
- TEMPLE OF “SHADOW-OF-RE” OF THE KING, II 1018.
TEMPLE OF “SHADOW-OF-RE” OF QUEEN TIY, II 956, 1016, 1017, 1018.
TEMPLE OF “SHADOW-OF-RE” OF THE KING’S DAUGHTER, II 1017.
- Amâda (read Amada)—
TEMPLE, III 606 n. a.
- Aphroditopolis—
TEMPLE OF HATHOR, II 3 n. b; IV 366, 369; people of, IV 366, 369.

- TEMPLE OF ZEBUI, IV 366; people of, IV 366.
- Apollinopolis Magna—
- TEMPLE OF HORUS OF NUBIA, built of sculptured stone in the nome of Apollinopolis Magna by Sesostris I, I 500.
- Arsinoe—See Crocodilopolis.
- Athribis—
- TEMPLE OF HORUS, II 919; called temple of Harkhentikhet (=Horus), IV 360, 369, 874; restored by Ramses III, IV 360; dedicated to Horus, IV 360, 369, 874; and Khuyet, a goddess, IV 874; walls of, IV 360; decrees for, IV 360.
- Estate of: herd of, IV 360, 369; divine bulls of, IV 470; inspectors of, IV 360; lake of, II 919; flowers of, II 919; prophets of, IV 360; slaves of, IV 360.
- Babylon—See Khreha.
- Benihasan—
- CLIFF TEMPLE OF PAKHT, II 296; III 249; restored by Hatshepsut, I 15; II 296 n. c, 298, 300; and by Thutmose III, II 296; called Speos Artemidos by the Greeks, II 296; modern name: Stabl Antar, II 296 n. c; dedicated to Pakht, II 301; offering-table of, II 301; chest of linen in, II 301.
- Priest of, I 624; II 301.
- Berset—
- TEMPLE OF BAST, IV 369; herd of, IV 369; people of, IV 369.
- Bet-el-Walli (read Bet-el-Wāli)—
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 458-77; built in the rock, III 458 n. b; forecourt of, excavated in the rock, III 458 n. b.
- Bista—
- TEMPLE, IV 956.
- Bohen—See Wadi Halfa.
- Bubastis—
- TEMPLE OF BAST, IV 734; sh-vessel presented to, IV 734.
- TEMPLE OF AMON, IV 751; jubilee-hall of, IV 748, 751.
- Buto—
- TEMPLE OF BUTO, IV 956; shrine in, I 156.
- TEMPLE OF HATHOR OF THE MALACHITE, IV 956.
- Coptos—
- TEMPLE OF MIN, I 776, 778, 780; IV 365; treasury of, I 778.
- People of, IV 365; scribe of, I 776; inspection of, I 777; priest of, I 776; deposition of a priest of, I 778; lay-priests of, I 776, 777; prophet of, IV 465.
- Sacred property of, I 779; temple income of, I 780.
- Garden of, II 567; maidens for, II 567; pleasant trees in, II 567; vegetables of, II 567.
- Crocodilopolis—
- HOUSE OF SEBEK, I 709; IV 366, 818, 882; statutes of, I 709; Horus dwelling in, IV 369; people of, IV 366; with inscription of Amenemhet III in, II 233.
- TEMPLE OF AMON-RE, IV 369; name of, IV 369; people of, IV 369.
- Cusæ—
- TEMPLE OF HATHOR, II 300; was in ruins, II 300; restored by Hatshepsut, II 300.
- Dêr el Bahri—
- TEMPLE CALLED "MOST-SPLENDID," II 375; colonnade of, II 191; doors of, II 375; chapel of Amon in, II 375; floor of, II 375; palace of the god in, II 375.
- Great Seat, the "Khkhet," in, II 375; doors of, II 375.
- Shrine of Thutmose II, II 127; of ebony, II 127; dedicated to Amon-Re, II 127.
- Temple-garden, II 264, 295; equipment, II 265; Punt in, II 295.
- Derr (= Miam)—
- TEMPLE OF RE, III 503; IV 474, 479; chapel of Ramses II in, III 503; dedicated to Harakhte, III 503; name of, III 503; statue of Ramses VI in, IV 479; domains assigned to, IV 479-83.
- Drah-abu-n-Neggah—
- MORTUARY TEMPLE OF AMENHOTEP I,

- II 45 n. b; called "house of Zeserkere," II 45 n. b.
- Edfu—
- TEMPLE OF, II 112; dedicated to Horus, II 111; door-keeper of, see Index V; statue of Ahhotep in, II 113, 114.
- Elephantine—
- TEMPLE OF KHNUM: endowed by Ramses III, IV 146-50; field of, IV 146; ships of, IV 147; people of, IV 147; prophet of, IV 150; honey-collectors of, IV 149; herd of, IV 150.
- TEMPLE OF ANUKET AND SATET, I 500; II 798; IV 991, 992, built by Sesostris I, I 500; endowment of, IV 992; storehouses of, IV 992.
- El Kab—
- TEMPLE OF AMENHOTEP III, III 558 n. d.
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 505; dedicated to Nekhbet, III 505.
- Fayûm—See Crocodilopolis.
- Hatweret—
- TEMPLE OF KHNUM, IV 367; people of, IV 367.
- He—See Hem.
- Heliopolis—
- TEMPLE OF ATUM, I 498; II 643; IV 183, 872, 955; Hathors of, III 400; called house of Atum-Re-Harakhte, IV 256, 262, 281, 284; rebuilt by Sesostris I, I 498-506.
- House of Re, II 642; III 547; IV 250, 252, 266, 735, 871; the "Great House," III 547; house of Re-Harakhte, IV 296, 732; called, dwelling of the gods, I 504; seat of eternity, III 545.
- Encircling wall of, II 642; IV 250; doorway of, II 643; name of, II 643; forecourt of, IV 250, 269; court of, IV 266; doorkeepers of, IV 266; dewat-chamber of, IV 871; sanctuary of, IV 251; great seat in, IV 251; double doors of, IV 251; dedicated to mother of Re, IV 251; mysterious seat of, IV 262.
- Vessels of, IV 269, 732, 735; barque of, III 542; balances of, IV 256; altars in, IV 256, 735; dwt-altars, IV 735; offering-tablets of, IV 735.
- Colossi in, IV 252.
- Obelisk of Sesostris I in, I 503.
- Pool of Kebeh in, IV 296; oblations to the Nile-God in, IV 296.
- Shrines of, IV 250; of Atum and Tefnut, IV 254; double doors of, IV 254; divine fathers of, see Index V.
- Sphinxes in, IV 732.
- Statues in, IV 268; statues of gods in, IV 250; statue of Re in, IV 253, 268; amulets of, IV 253.
- Stelae in, IV 255.
- Chapel of Ramses III in, IV 277, 281, 283; name of, IV 277; equipment of, IV 277; people of, IV 281; under charge of the "Great Seer," IV 281.
- Chapel of Atum-Khepri in, IV 732.
- House of Atum in (palace), IV 256, 262; temple treasury located within, IV 256; groves in, IV 262.
- Divine offerings in, IV 256; endowment of, I 156, 159, 165, 166; IV 256; royal gifts to, IV 284-88, 732, 735; decree on administration of, IV 255.
- Officials of, IV 281; priests (wcb) of, IV 250; chief ritual priest of, IV 871; high priests of, see Index V; great seer of, see Index V; personnel of, IV 266.
- Estate of, IV 280 82; domains of, IV 265; cattle of, IV 280, 282; cattle-yards of, IV 260; fattening-houses of, IV 260; galleys of, IV 280, 282; gardens of, IV 262, 280, 282, 288; shedeh, IV 262; flower, IV 264; granary of, IV 250, 267, 878; groves of, IV 262, 264, 280, 282, 288; harbor of IV 266; herds of, IV 251; income of, IV 283; lake of, I 503; IV 261, 264; lands of, IV 251, 265, 281, 282; olive lands of, IV 263, 288; gardeners of, IV 263, 288; people of, IV 281; poultry yard of, IV 265; property of IV 251, 280; ships of, IV 270; slaves of, IV 266; storehouses of, for feasts, IV 257; slaves of, IV 257; storehouse for temple income, IV 258, 270; oblation storehouses in, IV 259; towns of, IV 280, 282; transport-ships of, IV 282; treasury of, IV 250, 256, 266, 270; vineyards of, IV 262; workshops of, IV 280, 281.
- TEMPLE OF SAOSIS, IV 278; called: Hetep, Hathor, mistress of, IV 247, 248; and Hotepet, Saosis, mistress of, IV 183; location of, IV 278; barge

- of, IV 278; name of, 278; property of, IV 278; settlement in, IV 278.
- TEMPLE OF ATON, II 1018; called: "Exaltation-of-Re-in-Heliopolis," II 1018.
- HOUSE OF HAPI, IV 273; oblations for, IV 273.
- TEMPLE OF HORUS, IV 271; name of, IV 271; walls of, IV 271; grove of, IV 271, 272; gardeners of, IV 272; court of, IV 272; oblations in, V 272.
- TEMPLE OF RE IN NORTH HELIOPOLIS, IV 274-76, 281, 283; name of, IV 274; restored by Ramses III, IV 276; forecourt of, IV 274; equipment of, IV 274.
- Chief inspector of, IV 281; scribe of, IV 281.
- Gardens of, IV 274; herds of, IV 275; 283; names of, IV 275; people of, IV 281.
- Château of, IV 281.
- Hem (H<sup>3</sup>m)—
- TEMPLE OF HORUS, III 496, 498 (in both places read H<sup>3</sup>m for H<sup>2</sup>, as a subsequent collation of the original at Abu Simbel shows).
- Heracleopolis—
- TEMPLE OF HARSAPHEH, IV 972; forecourt of, IV 970; hall of, IV 971; colonnade of, IV 970; doors of, IV 970.
- Lake of, I 111; IV 972.
- Chief prophet of, IV 792; prophet of Neit of, IV 792; sistrum-bearer of, IV 792; divine fathers of, see Index V.
- NER: temple in Heracleopolis, IV 968; restored by Hor, IV 968.
- TEMPLE OF BAST, IV 973.
- Hermonthis—
- TEMPLE OF MONTU, II 389; IV 547, 912, 915; built by Senmut.
- TEMPLE OF ATON, II 1018; called: "Horizon-of-Aton-in-Hermonthis," II 1018.
- Hermopolis—
- TEMPLE OF THOTH IN THE SACRED QUARTER OF HESRET, IV 356, 367, 848; court of, IV 356; people of, IV 367; wall of, IV 356; sh-vessel in, IV 733.
- Dwelling house of Thoth in, IV 356.
- Chapel of Ramses III, built within the court of Thoth's temple, IV 356, 367; dedicated to Thoth, IV 356; people of, IV 367.
- TEMPLE OF THE EIGHT GODS, IV 848.
- HOUSE: "The love of Thutotep abides in the Hare nome," I 706.
- Kanekeme—
- TEMPLE OF AMON, IV 216; built by Ramses III, IV 216.
- Karnak—
- GREAT TEMPLE OF AMON, II 157, 389, 794, 1040; III 224; IV 183, 184, 222, 405, 494, 495, 671, 706, 736, 887, 926, 945, 949, 958I, 988D, H, J; name of, II, 157; originally built of brick, II 157; rebuilt by Thutmose III, of sandstone, II 157, 794; completed by Amenhotep II, II 794; repaired by High Priest Amenhotep, IV 488 n. c., 489, 494.
- Works of, II 775; chief of, see Index V.
- Walls of, II 794; IV 914; inclosure wall of, II 164, 794; IV 654.
- Endowment of, II 163, 793; dues for, II 557, 559; IV 489; gifts to, IV 230-35, 736, 949; equipment of, II 29.
- Forecourt of, IV 195, 495, 531; Lateran obelisk in, II 627; vase stand in, IV 199; name of, IV 495.
- Jubilee-court of, I 49; IV 707, 764; built by Sheshonk I, IV 707; name of, IV 708; colonnade of, IV 707; pylon of, IV 707.
- Court of, IV 198, 207, 496, 497; planted with sycamores, IV 210.
- Great house in, IV 904.
- Upper gate of, II, 835; IV 958L.
- Bubastite gate of, IV 701, 756 n. a.
- Flagstaves of, II 776; III 94.
- Doorways of, II 154, 564, 601, 794 n. b; great doors of, II 376, 755, 794; gate of, II 309, 376; IV 889; name of, II 154, 309; IV 889; see also Portals; stelæ at, IV 205; upper portal of, II 835.
- Pylon (interior), II 155, 243; erected by Thutmose III, II 155; of Sheshonk I, IV 707; see also Index VII: Pylons.
- Colonnaded hall of Thutmose I, II 100, 103, 104; of Thutmose III, II

- 599; IV 767; columns of, II 32, 600, 795; IV 889; renewed by Thutmose III, II 600; by Shabaka, IV 889.
- Halls of, II 165, 304; IV 528, 563, 654, 764, 889; built by Thutmose III, II 560; name of, II 560, 599 n. f; IV 753; rebuilt by Amenhotep, IV 489; hall of the sacred chamber, built by Amenhotep II, II 795.
- Central hypostyle of, II 603; IV 701; built by Thutmose III, II 603; architect of, II 605, 772, 775.
- Holy of Holies of, II 153, 155, 795; hall of, II 795; built by Thutmose III, II 153; name of, II 153; statue of Ramses III in, IV 201 n. c.
- Pavement of silver of, II 755; IV 205, 671, 672.
- Chambers of, II 165.
- Chapel of, II 798A; IV 736.
- Shrines in the Karnak temple, II 156; of Thutmose III, II 376, 775, 776; names of, I 375, 376; of Nun, II 606; of Ramses III, IV 197, 198, 201; in eastern end, II 607; shrine inscribed by Amenemhet, I 484.
- Statues of kings in, II 156; statue of Amenhotep III in, II 917; three statues of Amenhotep, son of Hapi, in, II 912, 913, 913 n. c; statue of Amon, IV 736; see also Index VII: Statues; processional image of Amon, IV 737; image of Amon, IV 913.
- Vessels of gold, II 596; costly stones, II 596; electrum, II 596; silver, II 795; bronze, II 795; altar, II 163, 795; IV 736, 900; barge, II 888; IV 209, 211, 563, 575, 586, 904; sacred barque, II 283; IV 611; offering-tables, II 376, 795; oblation-standards, II 795; fire-pans, II 795; oblation-vessels, II 795; oblation-tablets, II 795; IV 199; jars, II 556; amulets, IV 201; censer, IV 736; libation-vases, donated by Intef I, I 421; table, II 353; tablet of victories, II 407; linen: royal linen, II 554; white linen, II 554; šhr-w-linen, II 554; wm.t-linen, II 554.
- Sacred pool of, II 559; geese of, II 559; IV 229.
- Palace of high priest of, built by Sesostris I, IV 488; rebuilt by Roy, III 626; IV 488; restored by Amenhotep, IV 489; location of, IV 488.
- Kitchen of, III 624 n. i; refectory, III 624.
- Wine-cellar of, IV 512; prophet of, IV 512.
- Palace of, in the city of the Northland, IV 215; name of, IV 215; built by Ramses III, IV 215; gardens of, IV 215; boulevards of, IV 215; sacred avenue of, IV 215; people of, IV 225.
- House of the Divine Votress of Amon-Re, major-domo of, IV 511, 513, 522; singing women of, IV 521.
- for scribes, priests, ḫ-priests, high priests, lay priests, ritual priests, w b-priests, first-, second-, third-, fourth-prophets, high priestesses, divine votresses, see Index V; endowment of lay-priests of, II 618; duties of priests of, II 571; oblation bearers of, IV 515; chief of, IV 515; steward of, II 290, 350; chief steward of, II 359; bakers of, III 624; kneaders of, III 624 n. g; confectioners of, III 624; makers of cakes and loaves, III 624; sacred women of, IV 751.
- for inscriptions in, see Index VI: Karnak.
- Gold-house of, II 751; IV 491; double gold-house, II 751.
- Granaries of, II 43, 63, 343, 350, 806; IV 207, 217, 227, 497, 906; double granary of, II 43, 343; overseer of, II 43, 343.
- Storehouse of, II 332, 402, 554, 645, 646, 751, 759, 929; III 111, 119, 138, 152, 351, 453; IV 227, 497, 550; overseer of, II 352; chief measurer of, II 929; captives assigned for, IV 128; date-storeroom, II 749; metals and stones in, II 558; slaves of, II 555; IV 200; storehouse of dues, IV 489; storehouse for feast of Appearance, IV 200; equipment of, IV 200.
- Treasuries of, IV 211, 217, 227, 489, 497; white house of, II 748, 806; treasures of, II 748, 806.
- in Middle Kingdom, I 421, 484; IV 488.
- under Ahmose I, II 29-32, 34.
- under Amenhotep I, II 44.
- under Thutmose I, II 100, 103-5.
- under Hatshepsut, II 243-45, 304-21, 345-62.
- under Thutmose III, II 150-66, 376, 407, 560, 599, 608, 624, 625, 775, 776, 794; IV 753, 767.
- under Amenhotep II, II 781 ff., 794, 795, 798A, 803-6.
- under Thutmose IV, II 627, 830 ff.

- Great Temple of Amon*—
 —under Amenhotop III, II 888, 889, 899-903, 917.
 —under Ikhnaton, II 932, 941.
 —under Seti I (Great Hypostyle), III 222-24; name of, III 222; columns of, III 510.
 —under Ramses II (Great Hypo-style), III 509-13; name of Ramses IV in, III 510, 512; IV 665; servant of, IV 665.
 —under Ramses III, dedicated to Amon, IV 197; name of, IV 197; monolithic shrine of, IV 197, 198; image of Amon in, IV 198; doorways of, IV 197; cultus utensils of, IV 199; sacrificial tablet of, IV 199; offering-tablet of, IV 199.
 —Estate of, IV 222-45; captives for, II 918; IV 121, 208, 213; cattle of, II 354, 555, 912; IV 212, 222; overseer of, II 354, 912; IV 212; scribes of, IV 212; inspectors of, IV 212; shepherds of, IV 212; overseers of the horses of, IV 212; large cattle of, IV 225; small cattle of, IV 226; garden of, II 571; a Punt made in it, II 295; loan-cows, from Zahi, II 555; from Kush, II 555; gardens of, in South and North, II 352, 354, 561; IV 222, 226; of Kanekeme, IV 216; gold countries of, III 647; grain of, II 748, 749; IV 206; clean grain, II 561; groves of, IV 226; herds of, IV 212, 224; honey for, II 748; lakes of, II 164; IV 213, 488 n. c, 489; planted, IV 213; southern lake of, IV 489; lands of, IV 190, 222, 223, 226, 948, 950, 954, 957, 958; plowed lands of, II 561; fields of, II 354, 561; milk for, II 555; peasants of, II 554; overseer of, II 554; in South and North, II 561; 555; peasant-serfs of, II 354, 554; chief of, II 354; people of, IV 223, 225; ship of, IV 209; transports of, IV, 211, 226; galleys of, IV 211, 222, 226; archers of, IV 211; captains of, IV 211; towns given to, IV 222; of Egypt, IV 226; Kharu, IV 226; Kush, IV 226; Retenu, II 557; vineyards of, II 386; IV 213, 216; chief of, II 386; things of, IV 222 227; workshops of, II 775; IV 222, 226.
 —after the Empire, priests, IV 488 n. c, 489, 494; Twenty-second Dyn., IV 701, 708, 756 n. a, 764; Ethiopians, IV 889; Mentemhet, IV 901-916; Saites, IV 935 ff., 988A ff.
TEMPLE OF MUT IN ISHRU, II 350, 380, 627; IV 489, 901 n. b; Mut, mistress of, II 357, 380, 891; built by Senmut, II 351; inspection of, IV 660; restored by Mentemhet, IV 910; doors of, IV 910; hall of, IV 910; columns of, IV 910; offering-tables of, IV 910; sh-vessel in, IV 733; shrine in, II 380.
 —Garden of, planted with trees, IV 489; lake of, IV 910; storehouse of, IV 910; slaves in, IV 225.
TEMPLE OF ATON, II 932, 941; name of, II 932, 942; granary of, II 932; scribe of, II 932; overseer of the granary of, II 932.
TEMPLE OF KHONSU-IN-THEBES-BEAUTIFUL-REST, IV 214, 609, 610, 611, 624, 626, 912; begun by Ramses III, IV 214; additions to, by Ramses IV, IV 472; by Ramses XII, IV 602-3; completed by Hrihor, IV 609-26; inspected by Menkheperre, IV 660; barque of, IV 611 n. f; colonnade of, IV 622; court of, IV 614, 619; flag-staves of, IV 626, 632; forecourt of, IV 621; great seat of, IV 214 n. e; great place of, IV 610; hall of, IV 214 n. e; name of, IV 602, 610; broad hall of, IV 625; name of, IV 625; hypostyle of, IV 614; image of Khonsu in, IV 913; offering-tables of, IV 610; portal of, IV 626; pylon of, IV 621; built by Paynozem I, IV 632; shrine in, IV 609; sphinx in, IV 649 n. c; statues in, IV 214.
 —Income of, IV 227-29; people, IV 225; slaves, IV 225.
TEMPLE OF PTAH, II 790; IV 526, 528, 913; originally built of brick, II 157 n. e, 611; inspected by Menkheperre, IV 660; restored by Thutmose III, I 14; II 157 n. c, 611, 614; by Seti I, II 612; called house of the "Beautiful-of-Face," II 790.
 —Endowment of divine offerings for, II 620; doors of cedar, II 615.
 —Image of Ptah in, IV 913; name of, IV 913.
 —Vessels of, II 615; clothing, II 615; linen, II 615; ointments, II 615; offering-tables, IV 913.
 —Seat of Ptah, II 615.
 —Lay priesthood of, II 620.
TEMPLE OF MONTU, lord of Thebes, IV 660, 912; offering-tables of, IV 912; lake of, IV 912.
TEMPLE OF MAT, IV 660.
TEMPLE OF HARAKHTE, II 935; IV 706,

- 708; names of, II 935, 940, 942, 959, 984; high priest of, II 934; master of secret things of, IV 706, 708.
- TEMPLE OF BAST, IV 912.
- TEMPLE OF OSIRIS-WENNOFER, IV 755 n. c, 958K; barque of, IV 958K; portable image of, IV 958K; barge of, IV 958K.
- SMALL TEMPLE OF RAMSES III, IV 195; dedicated to Amon, IV 195; name of, IV 195; income of, IV 227-29; doors of, IV 195; people of, IV 223; treasury of, IV 195; herd of, IV 223.
- SOUTHERN KARNAK TEMPLE: dedicated to Amon, IV 196; built by Ramses III, IV 196; people of, IV 223; herd of, IV 224; income of, IV 227-29.
- Khammat (Soleb)—
- TEMPLE IN KHAMMAT: built by Amen-hotep III, II 890; of sandstone, II 890, 895, 898; pylons of, II 894; portals of, II 890, 895, 898; divine shadow of, II 895; floor adorned with silver, II 890; obelisks of, II 890, 894; flagstaves of, II 894.
- Khereha (Babylon)—
- TEMPLE OF ATUM, I 165; IV 869, 870; ennead of Atum in, IV 869; lords of, II 814; endowment of the gods of, I 165.
- Kom el-Hisn—
- TEMPLE, IV 95.
- Kummeh—
- TEMPLE OF THUTMOSE III, built of "good white stone of Sha," I 510.
- Kurna—
- "HOUSE-OF-MENMARE," mortuary temple of Seti I, III 114, 210; name of, III 212, 214, 217, 219, 229, 232, 236; begun by Ramses I, 211-13; completed by Seti I, 210; and Ramses II, III 448 n. b. 516-22; used by Ramses II, III 516-22; built of sandstone, III, 114, 216, 217, 220; barque of, III 212; silver-house of, III 213; palace of, III 213; dedicated also to Ramses I, III 521; sphinx in, III 114; list of captured cities in, III 114.
- Luxor—
- TEMPLE OF AMON, III 187-212; 215-42, 351, 841, 886; III 506-8, 533, 567; IV 223; restored and inspected by Menkheperre, IV 659, 660; built of sandstone, II 886; walls of electrum, II 886; floor of silver, II 886; portals of, II 886; garden of, III 567; towers of, II 886; lake of, III 567 n. c; inclosure wall of, II 887; IV 628; stairway of, IV 909; hypostyle of, IV 742 n. a.
- Barque of, IV 743; great house of, IV 743; portable image of, IV 743.
- Chapel of Thutmose III in, III 506.
- People of, IV 223; herd of, IV 224; income of, IV 227-29.
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, within the temple inclosure of Amon, III 507.
- Mad—
- TEMPLE, IV 915.
- Medinet Habu—
- TEMPLE OF AMON (XVIII Dyn.): begun by Thutmose I, II 637; completed by Thutmose III, II 637-41; names of, II 638; IV 179; restored by Ramses III, IV 179; by Paynozem I, IV 634.
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES III, IV 1 ff.; name of, IV 5, 7, 19, 189, 523, 532, 545; built of sandstone, IV 4, 7, 9, 189; gritstone, IV 189; black granite, IV 189; doors of electrum, IV 4, 189; dedicated to Amon, IV 189; divine offerings for, IV 190; wall of, IV 189; with ramps, IV 189; towers, IV 189; portal of, IV 191.
- First court of, IV 12, 13, 14; name of, IV 14; great seat of, IV 14; doorways of, IV 14; doors of, IV 14; inlay figures of, IV 14; pylon of, IV 15, 85-92, 93-99; flagstaves of, IV 15.
- Second court of, IV 6; built of sandstone, IV 7; great seat of, IV 7; festival of Min celebrated in, IV 9.
- Inlay figures in, IV 7, 9; doorposts of, IV 9.
- Images in, IV 9; scarabs in, IV 191; statues in, IV 191.
- Statue of Amon in, IV 190; name of, IV 190.
- Ptah-Sokar in, IV 191.
- Nefertem in, IV 191.
- Pylon of, IV 10, 60, 61; portal of, IV 11; name of, IV 11.
- Chapel of Khonsu in, IV 5; great seat of, IV 5; door of electrum, IV 5; chapels in, IV 191.
- Pavilion of, IV 17, 111 n. a, 192; balcony of, IV 192; columns of, IV 192; doors of, IV 192; doorposts of, IV 192.
- Double façade of, IV 16; colonnade of, IV 16; roof of, of, IV 16.

- Château for, IV 194; lake of, IV 194.
- Estate of, IV 190; captives in, IV 190; garden of, IV 189, 194; arbor-areas of, IV 194; granary of, IV 9, 190, 193; herd of, IV 190, 224, 466; income of, IV 227-29; lake of, IV 189; lands of, IV 190; people of, IV 223; property of, IV 140, 190; ships of, IV 19, 193; storehouse of, IV 9; coppersmiths of, IV 533; treasury of, IV 9, 26, 27, 28, 31, 32, 190, 193, 545, 547; treasury chambers of, IV 25.
- Medûm—
- TEMPLE OF SOKAR, lord of Sehez, IV 855.
- Memphis—
- TEMPLE OF PTAH, I 167, 241, 288, 720; II 929; III 537; IV 183, 987; Hat-keptah, ancient name of, IV 865, 868; also called temple of "Ptah-South-of-his-Wall," I 167, 241, 288, 720; II 929; IV 183, 311, 319, 321, 322, 342, 866, 928, 1011; restored by Ramses II, III 537; by Ramses III, IV 314.
- Decrees of, IV 321; divine offerings in, IV 320; feasts of, IV 329, 330; gifts to, IV 342-45.
- Court of, IV 311, 327, 330, 333, 335; name of, IV 330; garden in, IV 333.
- Holy of holies of, IV 865; dewat-chamber of, IV 866.
- Shrine of, IV 320; statues in, IV 320; portable shrine of, IV 315; processional image of, IV 315; barque of, IV 315; great seat in, IV 315; statues in, IV 326, 338 n. a; barge of, IV 330; tablets of, IV 317, 318; great seat of, IV 319, 334; table-vessels of, IV 334; mysterious seat of Sokar in, IV 857; house (= palace) in, IV 338, 340; granaries of, IV 314, 325; storehouse of, IV 314, 324, 328; for the feasts, IV 322; treasuries of, IV 340.
- Officials of, IV 324; high priests of, I 211, 212, 239, 258, 283, 286, 287, 288; III 552 n. e; IV 338; sem-priest of, see Index V: Priests; women of, IV 321; administration of, IV 321.
- Estate of, IV 337-39; cattle of, IV 323, 334, 337; cattle yards of, IV 323; fattening-houses of, IV 323; galleys of, IV 328, 337, 339; gardens of, IV 337, 339; groves of, IV 339; herd of, IV 338, 340; income of, IV 340, 341; lands of, IV 337, 339; magazines of, IV 324; people of, IV 338; poultry yards of, IV 323; slaves of, IV 322, 338; towns given to, IV 337, 339; transports of, IV 328, 339; workshops of, IV 337.
- TEMPLE OF ATON, II 1018; name of, II 1018.
- TEMPLE OF AMON, III 530.
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES II OF AMON, III 412, 530-37; Thoth, III 531; fore-court of, III 412; double façade of, III 412; endowment of, III 413; sphinx in, III 531; Ineb-Sebek, a sanctuary in, IV 315, 330, 333.
- TEMPLE OF SETI I, III 214 n. d.; name of, III 214 n. d.
- TEMPLE OF RAMSES III, IV 311; name of, IV 311, 338, 340.
- Doors of, IV 311; "great seat" of, IV 311; shrine of, IV 312; image of Ptah in, IV 312; towers of, IV 311; personnel of, IV 313.
- Estate of: cattle yards of, IV 313; fattening-houses of, IV 313; gardens of, IV 313; herds of, IV 313; lands of, IV 313; magazine of, IV 313; storehouses of, IV 313; serf-laborers of, IV 313.
- SERAPEUM, I 22; located in "the western desert of Memphis," IV 977; called temple of Osiris-Apis, IV 965; restored by Psamtik, IV 966; Apis buried in, IV 771, 778, 780, 786, 791, 884, 917, 918, 961; troops of, IV 966; stelæ of Pediese, IV 771-74, 778-81; Harpeson, IV 785-92; Bocchoris, IV 884; Senbef, IV 917, 918; Psamtik I, IV 959-62, 963-66; Necho, IV 974-79; Apries, IV 984-88; Amasis, IV 1008-12.
- Mer-Atum—See Medûm
- Mesha—
- TEMPLE OF SEBEK, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Mesta—
- TEMPLE, IV 956.
- Mewetkhent—
- TEMPLE OF AMON, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Napata—
- TEMPLE OF MUT, IV 897-99; and of Amon, IV 929; restored by Taharka, IV 897-99; by Tanutamun, IV 929; adytum of, IV 899; cells of, IV 899; halls of, IV 898, 929 bis; doors of, IV 929; herd of, IV 929.

- Neru—
 TEMPLE OF ANUBIS, IV 296; "books of the Nile-God" presented in, IV 296.
- Ombos—
 TEMPLE OF SUTEKH, IV 359, 365; restored by Ramses III, IV 359.
 —Chapel of Ramses III in, IV 359; name of, IV 359.
 —Herds of, IV 359; lands, IV 359; islands given to, IV 359; people, IV 365; slaves, IV 359; treasury, IV 359.
- Oryx Nome—
 TEMPLE OF KHNUM, lord of Hirur, adorned by Kheti in his city of the Oryx nome, I 637 n. a.
- Oxyrrhyncus—
 TEMPLE OF SET, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Panopolis—
 TEMPLE OF MIN, II 181; IV 366; prophets of, II 181; people of, IV 366; feasts of, II 181.
 —Chapel of Ramses III in, IV 366.
 —Harendotes, in temple of Min, II 181.
- Pauzy—
 TEMPLE OF THOTH, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Pe—
 TEMPLE OF BUTO, I 500.
- Per-Manu—
 TEMPLE, IV 956.
- Perneser—
 TEMPLE OF BUTO, I 159.
- Pernu—
 TEMPLE OF BUTO, I 156.
- Perwer—
 TEMPLE OF NEKHBET, I 159.
- Perzoz—
 TEMPLE OF HORUS, IV 726; prophet of, IV 726.
- Ramesseum—
 RAMESSEUM, MORTUARY TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, at Thebes, III 329, 335, 365, 448 n. b, 514, 515; of sandstone, III 515; nave of, III 515; barque of, III 515; treasury of, III 515; columns of, III 515; granary of, III 515.
- Ramses—
 TEMPLE OF SUTEKH IN THE RESIDENCE CITY OF RAMSES II, IV 362; grain of, IV 362; granary of, IV 362; herds of, IV 362; people of, IV 369; serf-laborers of, IV 362; treasury of, IV 362.
- Redisiyeh—
 TEMPLE OF SETI I, III 162 n. c, 172-95.
- Rehesu—
 TEMPLE OF SEKHMET, IV 878.
- Rosta—
 TEMPLE OF ANUBIS (see Sphinx), III 230; IV 4.
- Royenet—
 TEMPLE OF HATHOR, mistress of Royenet, I 219.
- Sais—
 TEMPLE OF SEKHMET, IV 878, 956.
- Sebû c a—
 TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 504; dedicated to Amon, III 504.
- Semneh—
 TEMPLE OF DEDUN, rebuilt by Thutmose III, II 61 n. a, 167; of sandstone, II 167, 176.
 —Originally built by Sesostris III, II 167; within the fortress, II 167; of brick, II 167.
 —Sacred to Khnum and Dedun, II 167; located inside fortress at Semneh, I 653 n. c; feasts of, I 655, 655 n. b.
- Sep—
 TEMPLE OF ANUBIS, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Serreh (Aksheh)—
 TEMPLE OF RAMSES II, III 502; name of, III 502.
- Sesu—
 TEMPLE OF SET, IV 369; people of, IV 369.
- Shedebod—
 TEMPLE, IV 780.
- Sheshotep—
 TEMPLE OF KHNUM, IV 366; people of, IV 366.
- Silsileh—
 ROCK-TEMPLE OF SEBEK, III 208; built by Harmhab, III 4552-560.
- Siût—
 TEMPLE OF UPWAWET AT SIÛT, I 398, 403; IV 358, 366, 367; of ancient foundation, I 398, 403; ancient walls of, I 403; built by Ptah, I 403; founded by Thoth, I 403; restored by Kheti,

- I 398, 403; by order of King Merikere, I 403; monument for the souls of Anubis in, I 403; colonnade of, I 403.
—Wall of, IV 358; barge of, IV 358; royal palace in, IV 358, 367; people of, IV 367; storehouse of, IV 358.
—List of official body of, I 550; lay-priests of, I 539, 544.
- TEMPLE OF ANUBIS, LORD OF REKRERET, I, 583; w c b-priests of, I 540; great w c b-priest of, I 572, 583; fire kindled in, on New Year's night, I 573; lay-priests of, I 576.
- Soleb—See Khammat.
- Sphinx—
- HOUSE OF THE SPHINX, I 180; Osiris, lord of Rosta, I 177, 180, 509; Sokar in, II 814; Anubis, lord of, III 17; identical with the temple of the Sphinx, I 180 n. h.
- TEMPLE OF ISIS, near the Sphinx, I 177 n. e, 179; IV 706; built by Pesebkhennu, I 177 n. e.
- Tanis—
- TEMPLE OF AMON, IV 217 n. i, 956; granary of, IV 217; cattle yards of, IV, 217; poultry yards of, IV 217; gardens of, IV 217; herd of, IV 217; statue of Amon in, IV 217; slaves of, IV 217; treasury of, IV 217; divine offering of, IV 217.
- Tep-het—
- TEMPLE OF RE, I 159, 165.
- Tharu—
- TEMPLE, IV 956.
- Thebes—
- SERET-MAT, II 374.
See also Karnak, Luxor, Mad.
- Thebes, Western—
- For temples on the west side of Thebes, see also Kurna, Dêr el Bahri, Drah abu-'n-Neggah, Medinet Habu, and Ramesseum.
- TEMPLE OF THE MEMNON COLOSSI, built by Thutmose III, II 552, n. i; Amenhotep III, I 14; II 883-85; name of, II 918 n. a; located on the west of Thebes, II 883.
—Portals of, II 883; floor of, II 883; flagstaves of, II 883; station of the king in, II 883; lake of, II 883; fish and fowl in, II 883.
—Storehouse of, II 884; slaves of, II 884; captives in, II 884; cattle of, II 884.
- MORTUARY TEMPLE OF THUTMOSE IV, II 821, 823; tablet erected in, by Thutmose IV, II 821, 824; fortress of, II 821, 823.
- MORTUARY TEMPLE OF AMENHOTEP III, II 904, 905; built of sandstone, II 905; offerings for, II 907, 908; double pylon of, II 906; statues of, II 906; priests of, II 908; obelisks of, II 908; prophets of, II 908.
- MORTUARY TEMPLE OF MERNEPTAH, II 856 n. b; III 602 n. d.
- CHAPEL OF PRINCE WAZMOSE, II 928.
- Thinis—
- TEMPLE OF ONOURIS, IV 355, 365, 484; wall of, IV 355, 365; built by Ramses III, IV 355; name of, IV 355; completed by Ramses III, IV 355; estate of, IV 355; people of, IV 365.
- Wadi Halfa—
- TEMPLE OF HORUS OF BOHEN, built by Thutmose III, III 639 n. a; III 74, 157; endowed by Ramses I, III 17, 18; Seti I, III 159, 160; divine offerings for, III 77, 159; personnel of, III 78, 160; storehouse of, III 78, 160.
- Yered—
- TEMPLE OF AMON-RE, IV 368; people of, IV 368.
- Zahi—
- TEMPLE OF AMON, IV 219; name of, IV 219; built by Ramses III, IV 219; statue of Amon in, IV 219.
- Of Uncertain Location—
- HOUSE (called) "MIGHTY-OF-THE-GODS," I 97.
- HOUSE: HOR-REN, I 119.
- TEMPLE OF MUT-KHENT-EBUI-ENTERU, IV 369; people of, IV 369.
- HOUSE OF [ ] OF HORUS: endowment of, I 156.
- HOUSE OF ISIS, I 180.
- TEMPLE OF HRISHEFYT, IV, 368; people of, IV 368.
- TEMPLE (SUN) OF SEPTE: endowment of, I 156.
- SAW, temple of, I 103.
- TEMPLE OF SEKHET-RE, I 159.
- TEMPLE OF SENUT-HOUSE, THE DOUBLE: endowment of, I 141, 159, 165.
- TEMPLES, built by Intef I, I 421.

INDEX III
KINGS OF EGYPT

A

- A, predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
- AHMOSE I (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 1-37; chronology of, I 66; accession of, I 51; successors of, II 1; siege of Sharuhén by, II 4; ships of, II 7; grandmother of, II 33; service of Thure under, II 62; Phoenician campaign of, II 20; building designs of, II 34; mortuary endowment of, II 840; mummy of IV 645.
- Nebpehtire (= Ahmose I), II 7, 20, 21, 25, 34, 62, III, 182, 840; IV, 645.
- AHMOSE II: See Amasis.
- AKHTHOES, I 53.
- ALEXANDER THE GREAT, journey to oasis of Amon, II 189.
- AMASIS (XXVI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 996-1029; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41, 996-99, 1026-27. Khnemibre (= Amasis), IV 1000.
- Amasis-Si-Neit (Amasis), IV 1000, 1012, 1025.
- AMENEMHET I (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, 463-97; chronology of, I 64, 460-62; Nubian war of, I 8, 472-73, 483; expeditions to Hammamat, I 466-68; to the Sand-dwellers, I 469-71; teaching of, 474-83; insurrection against, I 479-81; coregency with Sesostri I, I 481; reorganization of Egypt, I 482; death of, I 491-92.
- Sehetepibre (= Amenemhet I), I 465, 473, 478, 491, 597.
- AMENEMHET II (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 594-613; chronology of, I 64, 460-62, 594.
- Hekenemmat (= Amenemhet II), I 616.
- Nubkure (= Amenemhet II), I 595, 600, 679 bis, 685.
- AMENEMHET III (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 707-48 (title of reign overlooked by printer); chronology of, I 64, 460-62; expeditions to Hammamat, I 707-12; to Sinai, I 713-28; temple-inscription at Arsinoe, II 233.
- Nematre (= Amenemhet III), I 673, 708, 713, 718, 719, 721, 728, 747.
- AMENEMHET IV (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 749-50; chronology of, I 64, 460-62.
- Makhrure (= Amenemhet IV), I 749, 750.
- AMENEMOPET (XXI Dyn.), IV 663; chronology of, I 70.
- Usermare-Setepnamon (= Amehemopet), IV 663.
- AMENHIRKHEPESHEF-RAMESSES-NETERHEKON: see Ramses V.
- AMENHOTEP I (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 38-53; chronology of, I 66; Sothic date of, I 46, 51; succession of, I 43; II 1; rewards of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet under, II 22; Nubian campaign of, II 39, 41; Libyan war, II 42; Karnak gate of, II 44; career of Ahmose, son of Ebana, under, II 38, 39; career of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet under, II 44-46; service of Thure under, II 63; death of, II 45; mummy of, IV 638, 647; tomb of, IV 513, 605, 607, 668, 691, 692, 699.
- Zeserkere (= Amenhotep I), II 25, 39, 41, 42, 51, 63; IV 513, 638, 913.
- AMENHOTEP II (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 780-809; chronology of, I 66; coregency with Thutmose III, I 66 n. a; II 184 n. d; Asiatic campaigns of, I 16; II 780-98; date of campaigns of, I 66; II 780; Amâda and Elephantine stelæ of, I 16; II 791-98; Karnak chapel of, II 798A; reliefs of, II 781, 791, 798A, 799, 801, 802.
- Okheprure (= Amenhotep II), II 186, 782, 795, 797, 800, 804, 808, 809.
- AMENHOTEP III (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 841-931; chronology of, I 66; birth and coronation of, I 13; II 187-212, 215-42, 841; Nubian war of, II 842-55; tablet of

- victory of, II 856-59; commemorative scarabs of, II 860-68; queens of, II 861-62, 866-67; jubilee celebrations of, II 870-74; building inscriptions of, II 878-910; campaigns of, II 844, 582-85; celebration of the coronation day of, II 849; deification of, II 893, 894; tomb of, IV 556; reliefs of, II 187-212, 215-42, 843, 845, 856, 857, 858.
- Nubmare (= Amenhotep III), II 844 bis, 853, 886, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 894, 897, 898, 915, 916, 922.
- AMENHOTEP IV: see Ikhnaton.
- AMENI: crown prince (= Amenemhet II), I 520.
- AMENISRU, II 866 n. c.
- AMENMESES (XIXth Dyn.): chronology of, I 67; III 641.
- AMENRUD, IV 852 n. c.
- APOPHIS, Hyksos king, mentioned in Pap. Sallier, II 4.
- APRIES (Hophra) (XXVI Dyn.), IV 1015; inscriptions of reign of, IV 984-95; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41, 984-85, 1026-27; minimum length of reign of, IV 985; war against Amasis, IV 996-1007.
- Wahib (= Atries), IV 988F.
- Wahibre (= Atries), IV 988, 988F, 990, 1000.
- ASHURBANIPAL, IV 405 n. g.
- ATEOTHIS (I Dyn.): history of (?), on Palermo stone, I 91 n. b, 93 n. e, 102 n. a.
- B
- BEKERE: see Tanutamon.
- BEKNERANEF (XXIV Dyn.): inscriptions of, IV 884; chronology of, 72 n. d, 73; son of Tefnakhte, IV 884.
- Bocchoris (Bekneranef), IV 884.
- Wohkere (= Bekneranef), IV 884.
- BESH, I 81.
- BINRE-MERIAMON: see Merneptah.
- BOCCHORIS: see Bekneranef, IV 884.
- C
- CHU-EN-ATEN: see Ikhnaton.
- D
- DED: see Dedkere-Isesi.
- DEDEFRE: chronology of, I 55, 59.
- DEDKERE-ISESI (V Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 264-81; length of reign, I 60; titles, I 264-67.
- Dedkhu (Horus-name of Dedkere-Isesi), I 264, 266.
- Ded (Golden-Horus-name of Dedkere-Isesi), I 266.
- E
- EYE (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 1042-43; tomb of, II 989-96; Tiy, wife of, II 989; servants of, II 989; chronology of, I 66.
- H
- HARMHAB (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 1-73; chronology of, I 66 n. e, 67 n. g; tomb of, III 1-21; coronation inscription of, III 22-32; wars of, III 33-44; edict of, I 18; III 45-67; legal proceedings in time of, I 66 n. e; wife of, III 22 n. b; reliefs of, III 2, 5-9, 10-13, 15, 18, 20, 34, 37.
- Mernamon (= Harmhab), III 29, 32B.
- Setepnere (= Harmhab), II 573; III 24, 29, 32, 32B, 71.
- Zeserkheprure (= Harmhab), II 573; III 12, 24, 29, 32, 32B, 42, 71.
- HATSHEPSUT, chronology of, I 66; divine paternity of, II 188, 190, 192, 196-201, 203-5; pictured in the birth-reliefs as a boy, II 188 n. c; birth of, II 206-8; nursing of, II 210; called king by Khnum and Amon, II 203, 208; Thutmose III called her brother, II 213; maidenhood of, II 223; coronation of, I 150 n. f; II 215-42; wearing king's costume, II 231; expedition to Punt, II 246-295; her temple at Der el-Bahri, II 215-295; pylon-inscription of, II 243-45; restoration of temple of Pakht at Benihasan, I 15; II 296-301, and other temples, II 302-3; the two Karnak obelisks, I 16; II 304-21; reliefs of, at Der el-Bahri, II 322-36; daughter of, II 344; vizier of, II 388-90; prominent officials of, II 340-87; usurpation of her monuments by Thutmose I and III, II 126; ebony shrine of, II 126-27; relation with Thutmose III, II 136.
- Khnefmet-Amon (= Hatshepsut), II 198, 237, 286, 308, 309, 310, 339.
- Makere (= Hatshepsut), II 201, 208, 213, 230, 238, 239, 245, 253, 264, 269, 271, 274, 280, 285, 286, 288, 308, 309,

- 310, 314, 329, 339, 344, 350, 357, 365, 368, 370, 377 bis, 380.
 —Wosretkew (=Hatshepsut), II 239, 268, 285, 308, 309, 325, 339, 354.
HEKENEMMAT: see Amenemhet II.
HEKMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Ramses IV.
HOPHRA: see Apries.
HRIHOR (XXI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 608-26; chronology of I 70; IV 604-7; high priest of Amon, IV 566, 580, 593, 594, 609, 610, 611, 612, 615, 617, 621, 622, 624, 626; vizier, IV 593; king, IV 607, 620, 622-26; building of the temple of Khonsu, IV 611-26; reliefs of, IV 611-14, 621, 626.
 —Siamon-Hrihor (=Hrihor), IV 620, 623, 626.
- I
- IKHNATON (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 932-1018; chronology of, I 66, 67 n. g; temple of Harakhte in Thebes, II 931-35; vizier of, II 938-48; landmarks of Tell el-Amarna, II 949-72; the Tell el-Amarna tombs, II 977-1018; change of name, II 932; Aton-faith of, II 932, 943, 949, 979; queen of, 943, 958, 959, 961; daughters of, 958, 961; estate of, II 1004; reliefs of, II 933.
 —Amenhotep IV (=Ikhnaton), I 66; II 934, 939.
 —Chu-en-Aten, III 2.
 —Neferkheprure-Wanre (=Ikhnaton), II 934, 942, 959, 971, 984, 985, 987, 991, 992, 994, 999, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1007, 1010, 1012.
 —Wanre (=Ikhnaton), II 975, 984, 993, 995, 1003, 1013.
IKHNERE-SETEPNERE: see Siptah.
INTEF I (XI Dyn.), (Horus-Wahenekh): inscription of reign of, I 421-23; his tomb-stela, I 421; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 529; the conquests on the northern frontier of Thebes, I 422-23; king of Thebes, I 421-23; chief treasurer of, I 423A-F.
 —Intefo, IV 514; pyramid of, IV 514; hound of, IV 514.
 —Wahenekh (Intef I), I 423, 423B, 423D 423F, 529.
INTEF II (XI Dyn.), (Horus-Nakhtnebt-Tepnefer): inscriptions of reign of, I 23A-G; chronology of, I 63, 415-18; chief treasurer of, I 423A, 423G; son of Intef I, I 423G.
 —Nakhtnebt-Tepnefer (Intef II), I 423 G.
INTEF III (XI Dyn.): chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 424; vassal of Mentuhotep II, I 424, 425.
INTEF (Nubkheprure), (XIII Dyn.): pyramid of, IV 515.
INTEFO: see Intef I.
INTEFO (Sekhemre-Upmat): pyramid of, IV 516; stela of, IV 516.
ITY (VI Dyn.): inscription of, I 61 n. a, 386-87; pyramid of, I 387.
- K
- KAIECHOS (I Dyn.): cult of "Running-of-Apis," I 114 n. a.
KASHTA, IV 940.
KEMOSE: queen of, II 33; pyramid of, IV 519.
 —Uzkheperre (=Kemose): pyramid of, IV 519.
KHAFRE (IV Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 188-209; chronology of, I 54, 55, 59, 190; son of, I 190; referred to, II 815.
KHANEFERRE: chronology of, I 55, 60.
KHASEKHEMUI (II Dyn.): birth of, I 86, 136.
KHAYU: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
KHEKURE: see Sesostriis III.
KHENZER (XIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 781-87; cleansing of the temple of Abydos, I 783-87.
 —Nematre-Nekhere (=Khenzer), I 786.
KHEPERHEZRE-SETEPNERE: see She-shonk I.
KHEPERHEZRE-SETEPNERE: see Takelot II.
KHEPERKERE: see Sesostriis I.
KHEPERKHARE-SETEPNAMON: see Paynozem I.
KHNEMET-AMON: see Hatshepsut.
KHNEMIBRE: see Amasis.
KHUFU (IV Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 176-187; mentioned, I 180, chronology of, I 54, 55, 59; his relief at Wadi-Maghara, I 176; history of, on the Palermo stone, I 86; his full name, I 176; his Horus-name, I 176,

- 180; sphinx and temple of, I 177; daughter of, I 180; pyramid of, I 180.
 —Khnum-Khufu ("Khnum protects me"), full name of Khufu, I 176, 176 n. c.
- M
- MAKERE: see Hatshepsut.
MAHRURE: see Amenemhet IV.
MEKE, predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
MENEKHBIB: see Psamtik II.
MENES (I Dyn.): accession of, I 53, 58, 79, 88; history of, on Palermo stone (?), I 91, n. b.
MENKHEPERRE: see Thutmose III.
MENKHEPRURE: see Thutmose IV.
MENKUHOR (V Dyn.): inscription of, I 263; length of reign of, I 60; titles of, I 263.
 —Menkhu (Horus-name of Menkuhor), I 263.
MENKURE (IV Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 210-12; chronology of, I 54 bis, 55, 59, 254, 255; title of, I 211; mentioned, I 213, 217; educated Ptahshepses, I 256.
MENMARE: see Seti I.
MENMARE-SETEPNEPTAH: see Ramses XII.
MENPEHTIRE: see Ramses I.
MENTUHOTEP I (XI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 423H; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 423H; wars of, I 423H.
 —Nibhotep (= Mentuhotep I), I 423H.
MENTUHOTEP II (XI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 424-26; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 425; chief treasurer of, I 425-26; first great king of the Theban line, I 426; pyramid of, IV 520.
 —Nibhepetre (= Mentuhotep II), pyramid of, IV 520.
 —Nibkhrure (= Mentuhotep II), I 426; name to be read Nibhepetre, p. 344, add.
MENTUHOTEP III (XI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 427-33; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 427; mortuary temple of, IV 520 n. b.
MENTUHOTEP IV (XI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 434-59; Hammamat inscriptions, I 434-53; sarcophagus of, I 448; expedition of, I 447; vizier of, I 438, 445; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 434; mother of, I 450.
 —Nibtowere (= Mentuhotep IV), I 437, 440, 441, 446, 450, 455, 456.
MERERI: see Pepi I.
MERIAMON-HORUS-PESIBKHENNO: see Pesibkhenno II.
MERIAMON-OSORKON: see Osorkon I.
MERIAMON-OSORKON: see Osorkon III.
MERIAMON-PAYNOZEM: see Paynozem I.
MERIAMON-PEDIBAST: see Pedibast.
MERIAMON-PEMOU: see Pemou.
MERIAMON-PIANKHI: see Piankhi.
MERIAMON-RAMESSES: see Ramses II.
MERIAMON-SHESHONK: see Sheshonk I.
MERIAMON-SHESHONK: see Sheshonk III.
MERIAMON-SHESHONK: see Sheshonk IV.
MERIAMON-SIBAST-OSORKON: see Osorkon II, IV 747.
MERIAMON-SIBAST-SHESHONK-NUTERHEKON: see Sheshonk III.
MERIAMON-SIESE-PEMOU: see Pemou.
MERIAMON-SIESE-TAKELOT: see Take-lot II.
MERIAMON-YEWEPET: see Yewepet.
MERIKERE (King of Heracleopolis), I 398, 399; titles of, I 399, 403; restoration of the temple of Upwawet, I 403.
MERNAMON: see Harmhab.
MERNEPTAH (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 569-638; chronology of, I 67, n. b; accession of, III 578; Libyan-Mediterranean invasion against, III 572-617; prominent officers of, III 618-38; reliefs of, III 594, 597, 628.
 —Binre-Meriamon (= Merneptah), III 575, 607, 610, 635.
 —Merneptah-Hotepirma (= Merneptah), III 575, 588, 598, 600, 607, 610, 631, 633, 634, 638.
MERNEPTAH: see Seti I.
MERNEPTAH-SIPTAH: see Siptah.
MERNERE I (VI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 316-36; chronology of, I 61; inscriptions at the First Cataract, I 8, 316-18; sarcophagus of, I 321; pyramid of queen of, I 321-22;

- expeditions to the Negro tribes, I 333-36.
- MERNERE II (VI Dyn.): chronology of, I 61.
- MEIBIS (I Dyn.): name last on Palermo stone, I 103 n. b, 148 n. c.
- N
- NAKHTNEB-TEPNEFER: see Intef II.
- NAMLOT: king, IV 814, 830, 833, 849, 882; prince of Hatweret, IV 820.
- NEBE: see Psamtik I.
- NEBKHEPRURE: see Tutenkhamon.
- NEBPEHTIRE: see Ahmose.
- NECHO (XXVI Dyn.): IV 1028; inscriptions of reign of, IV 974-80; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41, 974-75, 1026-27.
- Uhemibre (=Necho), IV 976, 980, 1028.
- NEFEREFRE (V Dyn.): chronology of, I 255, 261.
- NEFERHOTEP (XIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 753-72; restoration of the temple of Osiris at Abydos, I 755-65; decree concerning the necropolis of Abydos, I 766-72.
- NEFERIBRE: see Psamtik II.
- NEFERIRKERE (V Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 242-49; chronology of, I 55, 60, 254-56, 260, history on Palermo stone, I 163-67; vizier of, I 243-48.
- NEFERKERE: see Pepi II.
- NEFERKERE: see Shabaka.
- NEFERKERE-SETEPNERE: see Ramses IX.
- NEFERKHEPRURE-WANRE: see Ikhнатon.
- NEFERTEM-KHURE: see Taharka.
- NEFHEB<sup>1</sup>: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
- NEMATRE: see Amenemhet III.
- NEMATRE-NEKHERE: see Khenzer.
- NESUBENEDED (XXI Dyn.) (=Smen-des): inscriptions of reign of, IV 627-30; living at Tanis, IV 564, 565, 566, 574; wealthy ship-owner, IV 574; ruler of the Northland, IV 581, 582; king, IV 627-30; chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7; restoration of the wall of Luxor, IV 627-30.
- Smen-des (=Nesubenedded), IV 564 n. c.
- NETERIMU (II Dyn.): reign of, on Palermo stone, I 117.
- NIBHEPETRE: see Mentuhotep II.
- NIBHOTEP: see Mentuhotep.
- NIBKHEPRURE: see Mentuhotep II.
- NIBMARE: see Amenhotep III.
- NIBMARE-MERIAMON: see Ramses V.
- NIBTOWERE: see Mentuhotep IV.
- NUBKHEPRURE-INTEF: inscription of, I 773-80; insurrection in time of, I 773-74; deposition of the count of Coptos, I 775-80; pyramid of, IV 515.
- NUBKURE: see Amenemhet II.
- NUBTI: a Hyksos king, III 542.
- NUSERRE (V Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 250-62; chronology of, I 54 ter, 55, 60, 167 n. a; relief of, I 250; titles, I 250; sun-temple of, at Abusir, I 252 n. a, 423H n. a.
- O
- OKHEPERKERE: see Thutmose I.
- OKHEPERNERE: see Thutmose II.
- OKHEPERRE: see Sheshonk IV.
- OKHEPRURE: see Amenhotep II.
- OPEHTISET (=Nubti): a Hyksos king, with whom a new era began, III 549.
- OSORKON I (XXII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 729-37; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 695; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95; temple gifts of, IV 729-37; wife of, IV 739, 740.
- Meriamon-Osorkon (I), IV 740.
- OSORKON II (XXII Dyn.), IV 771, 774; inscriptions of reign of, IV 742-51; records of Nile levels under reign of, I 43 n. b; IV 696-97; chronology of, I 71, 71 n. a; IV 694-95; flood inscription of, IV 742-44; reliefs of, IV 749-50, 757-70.
- Osorkon (II) Siese-Meriamon, IV 743.
- Usermare - Setepnamon (= Osorkon II), IV 743, 774.
- OSORKON III (XXIII Dyn.), IV 830, 872; inscriptions of reign of, IV 795; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 794; chronology of, I 72, 72 n. d; IV 793-94; living in Bubastis, IV 878; son of, IV 794.
- Meriamon-Osorkon (III), IV 795.

P

- PAYNOZEM I (XXI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 631-49; chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7; high priest of Amon, IV 631-42; king, IV 642-49; temple buildings of, IV 632-35; restoration of mummies by, IV 636-47. —Kheperkhare-Setepnamon (=Paynozem I), IV 645, 649.
—Meriamon-Paynozem (I), IV 659.
—Paynozem-Meriamon (=Paynozem I), IV 645, 649, 652, 660.
- PEDIBAST (XXIII Dyn.): records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 794; chronology of, I 72.
—Meriamon-Pedibast, IV 794.
- PEFNEFDIBAST, IV 814. The Demotic, from a recent observation of Spiegelberg, shows we should read Pefthew-owebast (Pf-ḏw-cwy-Bḏst).
- PEMOU (XXII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 778-81; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 698; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95, 778.
—Meriamon-Pemou, IV 780.
—Meriamon-Siese-Pemou, IV 698.
—Usermare-Setepnamon (=Pemou), IV 698, 780.
- PEPI I (VI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 295-315; chronology of, I 61; expedition of, I 295, 297-98; queen of, 310; army of, I 311-12; war against Sand-dwellers, I 311-14; campaign in Southern Palestine, I 315.
—Merire (=Pepi I), I 298, 302
- PEPI II (VI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 337-85; chronology of, I 61; queen-mother of, I 339, 341; queens of, I 344; vizier of, I 347-49; letter of, 350-54; grandees of his reign: Pepi-nakht, I 355-60; Khui, I 361; Sebui, I 362-74; Ibi, I 375-79; Zau, I 380-85.
—Neferkere (Pepi II), I 340, 382.
- PESIBKHENNO I (XXI Dyn.): chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7.
- PESIBKHENNO II (XXI Dyn.): chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7; daughter of, IV 740.
—Meriamon-Horus-Pesibkhenno (II), IV 740.
- PIANKHI, I 22; stela of, IV 796-883; reliefs of, IV 814, 815.
—Meriamon-Piankhi, IV 816, 817, 834.
- PSAMMUS (XXIII Dyn.?), I 72 n. d; IV 812; inscriptions of reign of, IV 935-73.
- PSAMTIK I (XXVI Dyn.), IV 978; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41; stela of adoption, I 23; IV 935-58; the Serapeum stelæ, IV 959-66.
—Nebe (=Psamtik I), IV 945.
—Wahibre (=Psamtik I), IV 943, 945, 958D, 960, 978.
- PSAMTIK II (XXVI Dyn.), IV 987, 988A, C, E, I; inscriptions of reign of, IV 981-83; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41, 984-85, 1026-27.
—Menekhib (=Psamtik II), IV 988C.
—Nefibre (=Psamtik II), IV 982, 988C.
- PSAMTIK III (XXVI Dyn.): chronology of, I 75.
- PTOLEMY EUERGETES II, II 912.
— - PU: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.

R

- RAMESSIDS: tombs of, in the "valley of the kings," IV 473, 490, 491.
- RAMSES I (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 74-9; chronology of, I 67; coffin of, IV, 667.
—Menpehtire (=Ramses I), III 76, 77, 78, 213, 373, 521; IV 667.
- RAMSES II (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 251-568; chronology of, I 67 n. a; length of reign of, IV 471; lost calendar of, I 43 n. b; date of campaigns of, I 43; erasure of inscriptions of Hatshepsut, II 192 n. d, 193; restoration of temple at Der el-Bahri, II 192 n. d; coregency with Seti I, III 268; mortuary temple in Abydos for Seti I, III 251-81; the well of Akita, III 282-93; the Asiatic war, III 294-391; treaty with the Hittites, I 18, 36; III 367-91; subsequent relations with the Hittites, III 392-447; Nubian wars of, III 448-91; buildings of, III 492-542; jubilees of, III 543-60; birth of, III 400; youth of, III 267; marriage of, III 415-24, 428, 432-47; sons of, III 350, 362, 456, 474, 477, 482; daughters of, III 482 n. c; coffin of, IV 665, 691; tomb of, IV 545, 594; mummy of, IV 642; reburial of, IV 665; obelisks of, III 392, 543 n. c, 567; reliefs of, III 255-539.

- Ramses II*—
 —Meriamon-Ramses (II), III 271, 281, 285.
 —Ramses-Meriamon (=Ramses II), III 317, 336, 360, 365, 370, 375, 376, 377, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 386, 389, 390, 433, 486, 501, 504, 507, 520, 522, 527, 548, 553, 554, 556, 560.
 —Usermare-Setepnere (=Ramses II), II 192 n. d; III 259, 271, 279, 281, 285, 306, 317, 336, 360, 365, 370, 373, 375, 378, 381, 382, 384, 385, 389, 433, 442, 447, 502, 507, 552, 553, 554, 556, 560; IV 524, 545, 642, 665.
- RAMSES III (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 1-456; inaccurate publications of I 29; chronology of, I 69; length of reign of, I 48; accession of, IV 63; calendar of, I 43 n. b; IV 139-45; buildings of, IV 1-34 (see also Papyrus Harris passim); first Libyan war of, IV 35-58; northern war, IV 59-82; second Libyan war, IV 83-114; Syrian war, IV 115-135; Nubian war, IV 136-38; endowment of temples, IV 146-50, 231-35, 284-88, 342-45, 372-81; Papyrus-Harris, IV 151-412; harem-conspiracy, IV 416-53; practice of magic, IV 454-56; mummy of, IV 640, 641; reliefs of, IV 25, 29-34, 45-57, 69-82, 99-114, 117-30, 132-35, 137-38, 184, 246, 305.
 —Usermare-Meriamon (=Ramses III), IV 37, 49, 55, 62, 75, 79, 94, 103, 105, 106, 110, 122, 126, 128, 130, 182, 230, 248, 249, 284, 289, 290, 297, 306, 307, 342, 346, 347, 352, 353, 364, 372, 383, 397, 455, 491, 523, 545, 547, 640.
- RAMSES IV (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 457-72; chronology of, I 69, 69 n. a; first expedition to Hammamat, IV 457-60; second expedition to Hammamat, IV 461-68; completion of the temple of Khonsu, IV 472; reliefs of, IV 458, 463.
 —Hekmare-Setepnamon (=Ramses IV), IV 463, 472.
 —Ramses-Hekma-Meriamon (=Ramses IV), IV 246, 304, 351, 382, 411, 412.
 —Ramses-Meriamon (=Ramses IV), IV 463, 472.
 —Usermare-Setepnamon (=Ramses IV), IV 246, 304, 351, 382, 411, 412.
- RAMSES V (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of, IV 473; chronology of, I 69; tomb of, IV 473.
 —Amonhirkhepeshef-Ramses-Neterhekon (=Ramses V), IV 473.
 —Nibmare-Meriamon (=Ramses V), IV 473.
- RAMSES VI (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 474-83; chronology of, I 69; tomb of Penno, IV 474-83; reliefs of, IV 476, 477.
- RAMSES VII (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 484-85; chronology of, I 69; scribe of, IV 485; reliefs of, IV 484.
 —Ramses - Menthirkhepeshef - Meriamon (=Ramses VII), IV 484.
 —Usermare-Ikhnamon (=Ramses VII), IV 484.
- RAMSES VIII (XX Dyn.): chronology of, I 69.
- RAMSES IX (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 486-556; chronology of, I 69, 69 n. a; high priest of Amon in reign of, IV 486-98; tomb-robberies in time of, IV 499-556; reliefs of, IV 493.
 —Neferkere-Setepnere (=Ramses IX), IV 510.
 —Ramses-Meriamon (=Ramses IX), IV 510.
- RAMSES X (XX Dyn.): chronology of, I 69; coregency with Ramses IX, IV 544.
 —Uhem-mesut (=Ramses X), IV 545.
- RAMSES XI (XX Dyn.): chronology of, I 69.
- RAMSES XII (XX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 557-603; chronology of, I 69; report of Wenamon, IV 557-91; affairs in the South, IV 595-600; building the temple of Khonsu, IV 601-3, 609-15; restoration of mummies, IV 592-94.
 —Menmare-Setepneptah (=Ramses XII), IV 596, 609, 611, 612.
 —Ramses (XII)-Khamwese-Meriamon-Nuterhekon, IV 596, 609.
- RAMSES-HEKMA-MERIAMON: see Ramses IV.
- RAMSES-KHAMWESE-MERIAMON-NUTERHEKON: see Ramses XII.
- RAMSES-MENTHIRKHEPESHEF-MERIAMON: see Ramses VII.

- RAMSES-MERIAMON: see Ramses II.
RAMSES-MERIAMON: see Ramses IV.
RAMSES-MERIAMON: see Ramses IX.
RAMSES-SIPTAH: see Siptah.
- S
- SAHURE (V Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 236-41; chronology of, I 54 bis, 55, 60, 254-56; history on Palermo stone, I 159-62; titles of, I 236; privy councilor of, I 259.
SAKERE (XVIII Dyn.): chronology of, I 66.
SEBEKEMSAF (Sekhemre-Shedtowe): queen of, IV 517; pyramid of, IV 517, 528.
—Sekhemre-Shedtowe (=Sebekemsaf), IV 517; queen of, IV 517; pyramid of, IV 517, 528.
SEBEKNEFRURE (XII Dyn.): chronology of, I 64.
SEBEKTOWE: see Shabaka.
SEHETEPHRE: see Amenemhet I.
SEKA: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
SEKENENRE-TAO: see Tao.
SEKENENRE-TA00: see Taoo.
SEKHEMRE-KHUTOWE (XIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 751-52.
SEKHEMRE-UPMAT: pyramid of, IV 516.
SENEKHKERE, I 420 n. f.
SESHMUTOWE: see Sesostri II; I 616.
SESOSTRI I (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 498-593; chronology of, I 64, 460-62, 487-88; coregency of, I 487; building inscription of, I 14, 498-506; Nubian expeditions, I 510-12, 518-21; appointments of, I 627; buildings of, IV 489.
—Kheperkere (=Sesostri I), I 501, 512, 520, 525, 529, 598, 784; IV 489.
SESOSTRI II (XII Dyn.): inscription of reign of, I 614-39; chronology of, I 64, 460-62; coregency of, 614.
SESOSTRI III (XII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 640-700; chronology of, I 64, 460-62; conquest of Nubia, I 10; queen of, I 655 n. b; made god, II 160; hymn to, I 17; treasurer of, I 9, 661-70.
—Khekure (=Sesostri III), I 644, 647, 650, 652, 663, 672, 675, 686; II 170, 171 174, 175.
SETEPNERE: see Harmhab.
SETI I (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 80-250; chronology of, I 67; Karnak inscriptions of, III 80-156; other temple inscriptions, III 162-98; building inscriptions, III 199-250; wars in Asia, III 80-119; in Libya, III 120-56; queen of, IV 555; her tomb, IV 555, 593; restoration of monuments by, I 13, 15; II 312; reliefs of, III 80-156, 163, 165, 203; obelisk of, III 544; tomb of, IV 545, 642, 665, 666, 667; mummy of, IV 639, 661; coffin of, IV 666, 691.
—Menmare (=Seti I), II 612, 878; III 82 n. b, 83, 86, 88, 100, 101, 105, 110, 116, 122, 132, 134, 136, 143, 144, 146, 150, 154, 155, 160, 169, 171, 175, 179, 195, 223, 260, 263, 267, 270, 271, 272, 280, 289, 373, 541; IV 545, 555, 593, 642, 661, 665, 666, 667.
—Merneptah (=Seti I), III 266, 272.
—Seti-Merneptah (=Seti I), II 312, 856; III 86, 88, 94, 100, 122, 132, 134, 143, 144, 146, 150, 154, 169, 175, 195, 270, 271, 541, 545, 547, 645; IV 665, 666, 667.
—Uhem-Mesut (=Seti I), III 94, 101, 108, 169, 223.
—Hartema (=Seti I), III 96, 122, 132.
SETI II (XIX Dyn.): chronology of, I 67; succeeding Siptah, III 641; viceroy of Kush, III 639, 640, 642, 643, 646, 647.
SETI-MERNEPTAH: see Seti I.
SETNAKHT (XX Dyn.): chronology of, I 69; rule of, IV 399; death of, IV 400.
—Setnakht-Merere-Meriamon (=Setnakht), IV 399.
—Userkhare-Setepnere-Meriamon (=Setnakht), IV 399.
SETNEH, an ancient king, I 166.
SHABAKA (XXV Dyn.): inscription of reign of, IV 889; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 886; chronology of, I 74; IV 885.
—Neferkere (=Shabaka), IV 886.
—Sebektowe (=Shabaka), IV 886.
SHABATAKA (XXV Dyn.): record of

- Nile levels in reign of, I 43; IV 887; chronology of, I 74; IV 885.
- SHEPSESRAF (IV Dyn.): chronology of, I 54 bis, 55, 59, 254, 255, 257; daughter of, I 257; son-in-law of, I 54, 257; pyramid of, I 151;
- SHEPSESKERE: chronology of, I 55, 60.
- SHESHONK I (XXII Dyn.), I 26, 49; IV 787, 792; inscriptions of reign of, IV 699-728; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 695; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95; quarrying at Silsileh, IV 701-8; buildings in Karnak temple, IV 701-24A; campaign in Palestine, IV 709-24; rebellion in the oasis in reign of, IV 729; reliefs of, IV 702, 709-18.
- Kheperhezre-Setepnere (= Sheshonk I), IV 700, 703, 724.
- Meriamon-Sheshonk (I), IV 700, 704, 705, 721, 724.
- SHESHONK II (XXII Dyn.): chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95.
- SHESHONK III (XXII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 756-77; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 698; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95, 778; annals of high priest Osorkon, IV 756-70.
- Meriamon-Sheshonk (III), IV 698.
- Meriamon-Sibast-Sheshonk- (III) Nuterhekon, IV 774.
- Usermare-Setepnamon (= Sheshonk III), IV 698, 774.
- SHESHONK IV (XXII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 782-92; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 698; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95.
- Meriamon-Sheshonk (IV), IV 698.
- Okheperre (= Sheshonk IV), IV 784, 791.
- Usermare-Meriamon (= Sheshonk IV), IV 698.
- SIAMON: Tanite king, IV 663; chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7.
- SIAMON-HRIHOR: see Hrihor.
- SIPTAH (XIX Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, III 639-51; chronology of, I 67; viceroys of Kush in time of, III 639, 643, 646; queen of, IV 400 n. c.; reliefs of, III 647, 648.
- Ikhnerre-Setepnere (= Siptah) III, 648, 650.
- Merneptah-Siptah (= Siptah), III 650.
- Ramses-Siptah (= Siptah), III 642, 643.
- SMENDES: see Nesubenebbed.
- SNEFRU (III Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 168-75; mentioned, I 176, 189, 731; chronology of, I 54 bis, 55, 56, 58, 86; placed in III Dynasty by Palermo stone, I 86; became god of the Sinai region, I 168, 722; commemorated by roads and statues in the Delta, I 168, 493; regarded as god, I 722; founder of mining, I 168; smiter of barbarians, I 169; dispatched a fleet to bring cedar from Lebanon I 89; gates of, I 148; his relief at Wadi Maghara, I 169.

T

- TAHARKA (Tirhaka) (XXV Dyn.), IV 942, 962; inscriptions of reign of, IV 892-918; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 888; chronology of, I 74; IV 885; fleeing before Ashurbanipal, IV 405 n. g, 917; Piankhi, father of, IV 892; death of, IV 919.
- Nefertem-Khure (= Taharka), IV 888.
- TAKELOT I (XXII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, IV 738-40; records of Nile levels under reign of, IV 695; chronology of, I 71, 71 n. g; IV 694-95; queens of, IV 696, 792.
- TAKELOT II (XXII Dyn.), I 35; IV 777; inscriptions of reign of, IV 752-55; chronology of, I 71; IV 694-95; coregency with Osorkon II, IV 697.
- Kheperhezre-Setepnere (= Take lot II), IV 762.
- Meriamon-Siese-Takelot (II), IV 753, 762.
- TAKELOT III (XXIII Dyn.): chronology of, I 72, 72 n. d; coregency with Osorkon III, I 72 n. d.
- TANUTAMON (XXV Dyn.): inscription of, IV 919-34; coregency with Taharka, IV 920; conquest of the Delta IV 927-34.
- Bekere (= Tanutamon), IV 921, 934.
- TAO (Sekenenre): pyramid of, IV 518.
- Sekenenre-Tao, pyramid of, IV 518. an officer of, II 7; queen of, II 33.
- TAOO (Sekenenre): pyramid of, IV 518.
- Sekenenre-Taoo, pyramid of, IV 518.
- TETI (VI Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 282-94; chronology of, I 61.

- TEYEN: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
- THESH: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
- THUTMOSE I, II 25, 74, 114; inscriptions of reign of, II 54-114; chronology of, I 66; rewards of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet, under II 23; coronation decrees of, I 18, II 54-60; full titulary of, II 56, 69; feast of coronation of, II 60; service of Thure under, II 64; Tombos inscription of, II 67-73; fortress on Tombos, built by, II 72, 121; Nubian frontier of, II 67; comparative dates of Asiatic and Nubian campaigns, II 67, 79; tribute of South and North, II 70; boundaries of, II 73; clearing of cataract canal by, II 75-76; Nubian campaign of, II 67-77, 80, 84; Asiatic campaign of, II 73, 81, 85, 125; obelisks of, II 86-89; first jubilee of, I 66 n. g; II 89; works at Abydos of, II 90-98; tomb of, II 105; old age of, II 64; death of, II 108; still living under Thutmose II, II 121; usurpation of monument of Hatshepsut by, II 126; succession of children of, II 135.
- Okheperkere (= Thutmose I), II 25, 64, 70, 75, 80, 84, 87, 88, 114, 121, 194, 196, 224, 238, 311, 317, 478, 778.
- THUTMOSE II (XVIII Dyn.), II 25; inscriptions of reign of, II 115-27; chronology of, I 66; rewards of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet under, II 24; service of Thure under, II 65; biography of Ineni, II 115, 118; accession of, II 116; death of, II 118; Nubian war of, II 119-22; first campaign of, campaign against Shasu, II 123-24; campaign in Syria (now known to belong to Thutmose I), II 125; usurpation of monument of Hatshepsut by, II 126; death of, II 363, 368; mummy of, IV 637.
- Okhepernere (= Thutmose II), II 21, 24, 25, 65, 116, 122, 124, 125, 127, 332 n. d, 389, 390, 595; IV 637.
- THUTMOSE III (XVIII Dyn.); later inscriptions, of reign of, II 391-779; (for earlier inscriptions, see Thutmose III and queen); chronology of, I 66; length of reign of, I 48; II 592; Sothic date in reign of, I 43, 46, 51; service of Thure under, II 66; coronation of, II 131 ff., 594; power in Syria before his campaigns, II 137, 184; receives homage of all foreign princes, II 148; capture of Joppa, I 24; campaigns in Syria, I 43; II 391-540; offerings from conquests of, II 541-72; buildings of, II 131 ff., 593-643; Nubian wars of, II 644-54; hymn of victory of, II 655-62; annals of, I 3 bis, 13, 14, 66 n. h; II 391-540; vizier of, I 20; II 663-762; prominent officials of, II 763-79; called a brother of Hatshepsut, II 213; ascension to heaven of, II 222; death of, II 592; son of Thutmose II, II 595; wife of, II 779; son of, II 780; coregency with, II 184 n. d; mortuary temple of, II 552 n. i; statues of, II 164, 165, 186; obelisks of, I 16; II 563, 571, 626-36, 776; temple at Medinet Habu, II 637-41; reliefs of, II 450 n. a, 543-46, 645, 646, 653, 655.
- Menkheperre (= Thutmose III), II 21, 25, 146, 154 ter, 157, 174, 176, 179, 185, 186, 213, 332, 332 n. d, 370, 383, 387, 392, 407, 441, 451, 458, 584, 592, 635, 642, 650, 654, 656, 750, 752, 755, 758, 761, 779, 794, 832; III 58; IV 628.
- THUTMOSE III AND QUEEN (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 128-390.
- THUTMOSE IV (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 810-40; chronology of, I 66; youth of, II 813-15; accession of, I 24; II 812; Asiatic campaign of, II 816-22; Nubian campaign of, II 823-29; buildings of, II 830-38; obelisk of, I 16; II 830; mummy of, II 15; sphinx stela of, I 15; II 810-15; palace in Abydos, II 839.
- Menkheprure (= Thutmose IV), II 812, 821, 825, 832, 834, 836, 837, 838, 840; III 32B; IV 539.
- THUTMOSES, feud of the, II 128-30.
- TIRHAKA: see Taharka.
- TUTENKHAMON (XVIII Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, II 1019-41; chronology of, I 66; restoration of inscriptions by, II 897, 1019; reliefs of, II 1021, 1028, 1035.
- Nebkheprure (= Tutenkhamon), II 897, 1036, 1041.
- Tutenkhaton (Tutenkhamon), II 1019.

U

- UHEMBRE: see Necho.
 UHEM-MESUT, see Ramses X.
 UHEM-MESUT: see Seti I.
 UNIS (V Dyn.): length of reign of, I 60; Sabu, official of, I 282, 283.
 USEKHARE-SETEPNERE-MERIAMON: see Setnakht.
 USERKAF (V Dyn.): inscriptions of reign of, I 213-35; chronology of, I 54 bis, 55, 60, 231, 255; history on Palermo stone, I 153-58; coronation-feasts of, I 258.
 USERKERE (VI Dyn.): chronology of, I 61; probably identical with Ity, I 61 n. a.
 USERMARE-IKHNAMON: see Ramses VII.
 USERMARE-MERIAMON: see Ramses III.
 USERMARE-MERIAMON: see Sheshonk IV.
 USERMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Amenem-opet.
 USERMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Osorkon II.
 USERMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Pemou.
 USERMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Ramses IV.
 USERMARE-SETEPNAMON: see Sheshonk III.

- USERMARE-SETEPNERE: see Ramses II.
 UZKHEPERRE-KAMOSE: see Kamose.

W

- WAHENKH: see Intef I.
 WAHIB: see Apries.
 WAHIBRE: see Apries.
 WAHIBRE: see Psamtik I.
 WANRE: see Ikhnaton.
 WAZENEZ: predynastic king of Lower Egypt, I 90.
 WOHKERE: see Bekneranef.
 WOSRETKEW: see Hatshepsut.

Y

- YEWEPET: high-priest of Amon, IV 607, 700, 705; called "king," IV 814, 830, 868; of Tentremu, IV 878.
 —Meriamon-Yewepet, IV 794.

Z

- ZESERKERE: see Amenhotep I.
 ZESERKHEPRURE: see Harmhab.
 ZET (XXIII Dyn. ?), I 72 n. d; IV 812.
 ZOSER (III Dyn.): gift to Khnum, I 24, 201; chronology of, I 58; terraced pyramid of, I 170.

INDEX IV

PERSONS

A

- AABU, I 707.
- ABRAHAM: visit to Egypt of, I 620 n. d; III 10.
- ABRAM: field of, IV 715.
- AFRICANUS, I 72 n. e; IV 884.
- AHHOTEP I: mother of King Ahmose I, parentage of, II 33; age of, II 49, 52; restoration of Princess Sebekemsaf's tomb by, II 112; Yuf, favorite of, II, 109-14; Edfu estate belonging to, II, 113.
- AHMOSE (officer of Ikhnaton): inscription of, II 1004-8; tomb of, II 1004.
- AHMOSE: queen of Thutmose I, Yuf, favorite of, II 114; coition with Amon, II 194, 195, 203; confinement, II 204-5; birth of Hatshepsut, II 206, 210.
- AHMOSE (son of Ebana), biography of, II 1-16, 38, 39, 78-82.
- AHMOSE (Saite general), IV 1013, 1014.
- AHMOSE-NOFRETERE, queen of Ahmose I, II 26, 34.
- AHMOSE-PEN-NEKHBT, biography of, II 17-25, 40-42, 123-24, 344.
- AHMOSE-SEPIR, pyramid of, IV 519.
- AHMOSE-SITKAMOSE, queen, IV 644.
- AHUBEN: father of Psamtik, the priest, IV 1029.
- AKENESH, chief of Me, IV 815, 868, 878.
- AMENEMHAB: inscription of, II 578-92; biography of, II 574-78; tomb of, II 574 n. g; adventures of, II 574-75.
- AMENEMHAB, peasant, IV 539.
- AMENEMHET, I 518.
- AMENEMHET (= Amen): inscription of, I 515-23; biography of, 515, 516; titles of, I 518; three expeditions of, I 519-21; administration of, I 522; character of, I 523; also called Amen, I 518 n. a; son of Knumhotep I, I 515.
- AMENEMHET, inscription of, I 730-32.
- AMENEMHET (official of Amenemhet III): inscription of, I 707-9; expedition to Nubia, I 707; titles of, I 707; expedition to Hammamat, I 709.
- AMENEMHET, third prophet of Amon, II 931.
- AMENEMHET, vizier of Mentuhotep IV: tablet of, I 444-48; titles of, I 438, 442, 445; expedition of, I 442-47.
- AMENEMHET-AMENY, II 689 n. d.
- AMENEMOPET, first prophet, IV 480.
- AMENEMOPET: tomb of, II 671 n. e; tomb-inscription of, II 671 n. e.
- AMENEMOPET, viceroy of Kush, III 204 n. b, 477 bis.
- AMENEMUYA, son of Ramses II, III 362.
- AMENEMYENET, IV 524.
- AMENEMYENET, brother of Neferhotep, III 73.
- AMENHIRKHEPESHEF, son of Ramses II, III, 350, 456, 482.
- AMENHIRUNAMEF, son of Ramses II, III, 467, 471, 474, 477.
- AMENHOTEP, bodyguardsman of Thutmose IV: inscription of, II 818.
- AMENHOTEP, high priest of Amon, I 69 n. a; IV 487, 489, 494, 495, 498, 523, 531, 534; inscriptions of, IV, 488-98.
- AMENHOTEP, son of Hapi: inscriptions of, II 911-27; deification of, II 911-12; promotions of, II 914-17; mortuary temple of, II 921-27; also called Huy, II 924.
- AMENHOTEP, treasurer, IV 495.
- AMENHOTEP, viceroy of Kush, brother of Huy, II 1028.
- AMENHOTEP, workman, IV 526.
- AMENI (= Amenemhet), I 518 n. a; inscription of, I 515-23.
- AMENI, father of Sisetet, I 671.
- AMENI, magnate of the south: inscription of, I 649-50.
- AMENI (under Amenemhet III): rock-inscription of, I 721-23.

- AMENIRDIS I, IV 940, 946.
 AMENIRDIS II, IV 940.
 AMENISENEB, I 716.
 AMENISENEB: inscriptions of, I 781-87;
 titles of, I 782; commission to, I 783-
 84; rewards of, I 785-87.
 AMENKEN: inscriptions of, II 801-2;
 tomb of, II 801.
 AMENKHA, IV 449.
 AMENMOSE, IV 466.
 AMENNAKHT, scribe, IV 526, 529.
 AMENOPET: district of, IV 539; house of, IV 539.
 AMENUSERE, I 777.
 AMU, father of Mentuhotep, the general,
 I 512.
 ANI, II 977.
 ANI, III 634.
 ANUBISEMONEKH, father of Methen,
 I 171, 172.
 APOPHIS, a Hyksos king, II 4.
 ARTATAMA, king of Mitanni, II 866 n. h.
- B
- BABA, father of Ahmose of El-Kab,
 II 7.
 BAHU, herdsman, IV 481.
 BAY, III 647, 648.
 BEDEL, king of Dor, IV 565.
 BEHKESI, I 365.
 BEK, architect of Ikhnaton: inscription of, II 973-76; reliefs of, II 974, 976.
 BEK, king's-scribe, IV 668.
 BEKET, architect of the tomb of Khnumhotep II, I 639.
 BEKET, matron: daughter of a count,
 I 622; mother of Khnumhotep II,
 I 622, 639; titles of, I 628.
 BEKETATON, daughter of Ikhnaton, II
 1016.
 BEKI, IV 547.
 BEKI, IV 665, 667.
 BEKNEKHONSU: inscription of, III 561-
 68; statue of, I 20; III 561 n. d;
 titles of, III 563; career of, III 564, 565.
 BEKNEKHONSU, IV 466.
 BEKNEKHONSU, IV 665.
 BEKNENEF, prince, IV 830.
 BEKNEPTAH, captain, I 343.
 BEKNEPTAH, chief commander of Heracleopolis, IV 777.
 BEKNUREL, chief of police, IV 512.
 BEKUREL, queen of Seti I, IV 555.
 BENTRESH, III 436, 438, 443.
 BERKET-EL, rich shipowner of Sidon,
 IV 574.
 BINEMWESE, IV 443.
 BUPENAMONKHA, slave, IV 682.
 BURDED, I 351, 353.
 BUTEHAMON, scribe, IV 640.
 BUYUAWA, a Libyan, IV 787, 792.
- C
- CORNELIUS GALLUS, I 459 n. c.
- D
- DEBHEN: inscription of, I 210-12;
 tomb of, I 210-12.
 DED, king of Libya, III 579; IV 43.
 DENE, slave, IV 682.
 DENEREG, II 114.
 DIODORUS, IV 884 n. a.
 DISNEK, wife of Idu-Seneni, I 338 ter.
 DUSHRATTA, king of Mitanni, II 866
 n. h.
- E
- EBEK, slave, IV 682.
 EFNAMON, prophet, IV 692.
 EGEM, Hittite chief of archers, III 337.
 EHATINOFER, workman, IV 551.
 EHENEFER, a negro slave, IV 539.
 EKPTAH, slave, IV 680.
 EMKU, father of Ameniseneb, I 782.
 EMUENSHI, sheik of Upper Tenu, I 494.
 ENEBNI, nobleman, II 213; statute of,
 II 213.
 ENEFSU, IV 550.
 ENEKHHOR, commander, IV 878.
 ENEKHHOR, priest, IV 958B.
 ENEKHNEFERIBRE, II 896 n. d.
 ENEKHNES-MERIRE I, wife of Pepi I and queen-mother of Mernere I, I
 344; titles of, I 345.
 ENEKHNES-MERIRE II, wife of Pepi I and queen-mother of Pepi II, I 341, 344, pyramid of, I 341; titles, I 346.

- ENEKHNESNEFERIBRE, divine consort, IV 988A, C, G, H, I; stela of, IV 988A-J; statue of, IV 988I n. a.
- ENEKHWENNOFER, father of Senbef, IV 918.
- ENEN, II 931.
- ENENKHET, I 360.
- ENKHETESI, mother of Psamtik the priest, IV 1029.
- ENKHOFNAMON, prophet, IV 665, 667, 689.
- ENKHU, vizier, I 783; stelæ of, I 783 n. d; statue of, I 783, n. d.
- ENROY, wife of Teshere, IV 553.
- ENWAW, charioteer, III 635.
- EPERDEGEL, III 632.
- ERO—EKH, IV 682.
- ERREM, IV 455.
- ESHEHEBSED, IV 438.
- ETI: inscription of, I 457-59; stela of, I 457; biography of, I 457-58; titles of, I 459.
- ETI, wife of chief of Punt, II 254, 258.
- F
- FETONEMUT, Singer of Amon-Re, IV 641.
- G
- GERBETES, Hittite chariot-warrior, III 337.
- GILUKHIPA, queen of Amenhotep III, II, 866 n. h; see also Kirgipa.
- H
- HAPI, IV 537, 539.
- HAPI, father of Amenhotep: II 912; burial of, II 920; written Hapu, II 924, 925.
- HAPI, mother of Khui, I 675.
- HAPU: inscription of, I 614-16; inspection of the fort of Wawat, I 616.
- HAPU, vizier of Thutmose IV, II 665.
- HAPUSENEB, vizier under Hatshepsut: inscriptions of, II 388-90.
- HAREMSAF, chief of works, IV 706, 708.
- HARHOTEP, II 110.
- HARKHEB, high priest of Amon, IV 952.
- HARKHUF: inscriptions of, I 325-36, 350-54; nobleman of Assuan, I 325; titles of, I 326, 332; home-life of, I 328, 331; tomb of, I 325, 329, 330; journeys of, I 333-36, 356; father of, I 333; son of, I 336 n. a; letter to, I 350-54; rewards of, I 352.
- HARMINI: stela inscription of, II 47, 48.
- HARMOSE, gardener, IV 682.
- HARNAKHT: inscription of, I 717, 718; surname of, I 718.
- HARNEPE—R—, IV 682.
- HARNETAMEHU, surname of Harnakht, I 718.
- HARNURE: inscription of, I 733-38; biography of, I 733-34; expedition to Sinai, I 735-38.
- HARPESON, high priest of Heracleopolis, IV 787, 792.
- HARPESON, prophet of Neit, IV 787, 792.
- HARSIESE I, high priest of Amon, IV 698.
- HARSIESE II, high priest of Amon, IV 698, 794.
- HARSIESE, Sem-priest, IV 779.
- HARSIESE, slave, IV 682.
- HATEY, II 932.
- HATEY, III 32C, 513.
- HATSHEPSUT-MERETRE: statue of, II 802.
- HEKIB, "beautiful name" of Pepinakht, I 356.
- HEKNEFRUMUT: see Enekhnesneferibre.
- HEMUKHROW, I 343.
- HENEMI, I 343.
- HENHATHOR, son of Nekonekh: scribe, I 218, 221; prophet, I 221; chief heir of Nekonekh, I 225.
- HENKU: tomb-inscription of, I 280-81; nomarch of the Cerastes-Mountain, I 281; brother of, I 281.
- HENOFER, mother of Senmut, II 358.
- HENPTAH I, high priest of Heracleopolis, IV 787, 792.
- HENPTAH II, high priest of Heracleopolis, IV 787, 792.
- HENTTOWE, queen of Paynozem I, IV 649.
- HENU: inscription of, I, 428-33; titles of, I 428; expedition to Red Sea, I 429; equipment of his army, I 430; improvement of the Red Sea territories, I 431; shipbuilding at Red Sea, I 432; quarrying at Hammamat, I 433.

- HENUT, mother of Kheye, I 750.
HENUT, mother of Sebek-hir-hab, I 725.
HENUTENAMON, IV 448.
HENUTENUTER, mother of Tewhenut, IV 727.
HENUTSEN, daughter of Khufu, I 180; king's-confidante, I 185.
HEPI, treasurer of the God, I 342.
HEPZEFI: inscriptions of, I 535-93; prince of Siut, I 535; contracts of, 539-93; titles of, I 537-38; statue of in temple of Anubis at Siut, I 540.
HERETIBSUTEN, IV 774.
HERNOFER, divine votress, IV 784.
HERODOTUS, I 23, 24, 75 n. h, 180 n. i; II 792 n. d; III 56 n. c, 171 n. b; IV 989, 998.
HERUNOFER, father of Penno, IV 482.
HETAMENTHENOFER, prophet, IV 660.
HETEB, queen of Alasa, IV 591.
HETEPHIREs, king's-confidant, I 196.
HETIHENKER, chief of Libya, IV 784.
HEZETHEKNU, wife of Nekonekh, I 216, 217, 218, 221, 224.
HIRMAMONPENE, inspector, IV 593.
HOR, II 229 n. e.
HOR: commander of Heracleopolis, IV 967; statue of, IV 967; inscription of, IV 968-73.
HORI, IV 957.
HORI, deputy, IV 531.
HORI, inscription of, III 82 n. b.
HORI: king's-messenger, III 645; son of Ubekhu, III 650.
HORI, king's-scribe, IV 485.
HORI, scribe, IV 465.
HORI, standard bearer, IV 423, 426, 453.
HORI, standard bearer, IV 531.
HORI, temple scribe, IV 281.
HORISHERE, scribe, IV 526, 529.
HOTEP, son of Kam, I 187.
HOTEPHIRYAKHET: tomb-inscriptions of, I 251-53; priest at Abusir, I 251; judge, attached to Nekhen, I 252; eldest of the hall, I 253; his intercession, I 252; given a sarcophagus by the king, I 253.
HUI, II 929.
HUI, III 210.
HURABES, prince, IV 878.
HUY, beautiful name of Amenhotep, son of Hapu, II 924.
HUY, chief, IV 338.
HUY (of Amarna), inscription of, II 1014-16; tomb of, II 1014; reliefs of, II 1014, 1016.
HUY, overseer of herds, IV 338.
HUY, viceroy of Kush: inscription of, II 1019-41; tomb of, II 1019; family of, II 1026, 1040; reliefs of, II 1022-24, 1028, 1035, 1039, 1040.
HUY, IV 524.
- I
- IBDU, commander, I 303.
IBE, steward of Nitocris, inscription of, IV 958A-M.
IBEB, father of Amenemhet, I 707.
IBEBI, I 282, 283; see Sabu-Ibebi.
IBI, probably the son of Zau of Abydos: inscriptions of, I 375-79; biography of, I 375; titles of, I 376-77; wife to, I 375; son of, I 376, 380; career of, I 377-78; tomb of, I 378; mortuary endowment, I 379.
IB-PSAMTIK-MENEKH (=Nesuhor), IV 990.
IBSHE, I 620 n. d.
IDI, I 466 n. c.
IDU, also called Seneni: inscription of, I 338; tomb of, I 337; wife of, I 338.
IFRER, father of Nesuhor, IV 990.
IHE, nomarch of the Hare nome, I 688 n. a.
IHI, statue of, I 165.
IHU, treasurer of the god, I 298, 299.
IHY, I 387.
IKHAMON, slave, IV 680.
IKHERNOFRET: inscription of, I 661-70; biography of, I 9, 661; commission to Abydos, I 665-66; royal letter to, I 664; the drama of Osiris, I 669; temple of Osiris, I 667-68; titles of, I 664; mother of, I 670; relatives of, I 670.
IKHI, nobleman of IV Dyn., I 183.
IKHI, ship-captain: son of the preceding, I 301; father of, I 301.
IKHI, treasurer of the god (VI Dyn.): I 298, 299; inscription of, I 301.
IKHNOUBET, daughter of Nekonekh, I 230.

- IKUDIDI: inscription of, I 524-28; titles of, I 526; prayer of, I 526; expedition of, I 527; tomb of, at Abydos, I 528; home of, at Thebes, I 527.
- IKUI, father of Intef the nomarch, I 491.
- INHOTEP, inscription of, I 388-90.
- IMI, mother of Mentuhotep IV, I 450.
- IMSU, I 529; great grandfather of, I 529.
- IMTES, queen of Pepi I, I 310; legal proceedings against, I 310.
- INENI: biography of, II 43-46, 99-108, 115-18, 340-43; career under Amenhotep I, II 44-46; under Thutmose I, I 99-108; under Thutmose II, II 115-18; under Thutmose III and Hatshepsut, II 340-43.
- INHAPI queen, tomb of, IV 665, 666, 667.
- INI, chief judge, I 373.
- INI, inscription of, III 198.
- INI, steward, IV 546.
- INTEF, inscriptions of, I 466-68, 466 n. c.
- INTEF, nomarch: inscription of, I 420; biography of, I 419; ancestry of I 419 n. c; mortuary stela of, I 419-20; founder of the Theban line, I 419; son of, I 419; statue dedicated to, I 419; titles of, I 420; father of, I 419; also called "Intefo" (Intef the great), I 419 n. d.
- INTEF, palace-overseer, I 390.
- INTEF, ship-captain, I 365.
- INTEF, the Herald: inscription of, II 763-71; titles of, II 763; duties of the royal herald, II 764, 767; character of, II 768; tomb of, II 763 n. e.
- INTEFYOKER: inscription of, I 529, 423 n. a; lineage of, I 529.
- IPI, ship-captain, I 387.
- IRAMON, artisan, IV 539.
- IRBASTUZENUFU, daughter of king Amenrud, IV 852 n. c.
- IRETERU, prophetess of Hathor, IV 787, 792.
- IRHORO (= Neferibre-nofer), IV 981.
- IRI, father of Harkhuf, I 333.
- IRI, royal attendant, I 369, 370, 371.
- IROI, IV 445.
- ISESI, I 351, 353.
- ISIS, wife of Ramses III, IV 523, 543.
- J
- JOSEPHUS, II 912 n. b.
- K
- KA, I 731.
- KAM, governor, I 187.
- KARA, IV 423, 426.
- KARU, watchman, IV 550.
- KEDENDENNA, IV 423, 443, 446.
- KEKSIRE, mortuary priest, I 218.
- KEM, father of Hori, III 645.
- KEMETH, Hittite chief of warriors, III 337.
- KEMI, mother of Neferhotep, I 755.
- KEMWESE, water-carrier, IV 539.
- KENNEBTIWER, king's-confidant, I 197.
- KENOFER (Zaty-), crown prince, I 389.
- KEPER, king of Meshwesh, IV 90; captured by Ramses III, IV 97, 109; fettered, IV 103.
- KEPES, queen of Takelot I, IV 792.
- KERES, stela inscription of, II 49-53.
- KEROME, king's-daughter, IV 755.
- KEROME, queen of Sheshonk I, IV 792.
- KEROMEM, queen of Takelot I, IV 696, 747, 760.
- KERPES, IV 432.
- KEWKEW, IV 948.
- KEY, cattle-overseer, IV 224.
- KEY, father of Thuthotep, I 692 n. c.
- KHAMHET: inscription of, II 819; titles of, II 872; tomb of, II 819, 870, reliefs of, II 819, 870, 871, 872.
- KHAMMALE, IV 434.
- KHAMMALE, chief, IV 466.
- KHAMOPET, IV 433.
- KHAMOPET, IV 532.
- KHAMPET, II 929, 930, 931.
- KHAMTIR, deputy of the army, IV 466.
- KHAMTIR, overseer, IV 466.
- KHAMWESE, prophet of Amon, IV 795.
- KHAMWESE, son of Ramses II, III 350, 362, 474, 482, 552, 553, 554, 557, 558.
- KHAMWESE, vizier, IV 511, 513, 522, 523, 531, 532, 540, 543, 585, 586.
- KHARU, IV 523, 532.
- KHAY, captain of infantry, III 630 632.
- KHAY, vizier, III 556, 559, 560.

- КНЕБУХАТОР, son of Nekonekh, I 218, 221.
- КХЕНМСУ КХЕНТКХЕТИХОТЕР, rock-inscriptions of, I 713-16.
- КХЕНТЕМЕМЕТИ, inscription of, I 607-613; titles of, I 608; honors of, I 609; temple-inspection by, I 610-12; stela of, I 613.
- КХЕНТИСУХАТОР, I 218, 221.
- КХЕНТКХЕТИХОТЕР, see Khenemsu.
- КХЕНТКХЕТВЕР: inscription of, I 604-5; expedition to Punt of, I 605.
- КХЕНУ, inferior scribe, I 299.
- КХЕНУКА, a nobleman: inscription of, I 231-35; his titles, I 220, 222; mortuary priest of, I 213.
- КХЕРПЕСАР, Hittite scribe, III 337.
- КХЕТ, I 343.
- КХЕТАСАР, king of Kheta, I 18; III 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 391.
- КХЕТИ I, nomarch of Siut: inscription of, I 398-404; biography of, I 398-99; ancestry of, I 398, 400; career of, I 401, 404; old age of, 402; restoring the temple, I 403; titles of, I 400.
- КХЕТИ II: inscriptions of, I 405-414, 426 (?); biography of, I 405-6, 426; wealth and generosity of, I 408; digging the canals for Siut, I 407; monuments of, I 409, 426; army of, I 410; fleet of, I 411; tomb of, I 412; childhood of, I 413; grandfather of, I 414; mother of, I 414, 426(?).
- КХЕТИ, nomarch of Oryx nome, I 637 n. a; temple of Khnum, I 637 n. a.
- КХЕТИ, wife of Khnumhotep II, I 633.
- КХЕYE, I 750.
- КХНЕМХОТЕР, hnp-sh, I 361; expedition to Kush and Punt, I 361.
- КХНУМ-ЕНКХЕФ, I 343.
- КХНУМХОТЕР I: inscription of, I 463-65; biography of, I 463; titles of, I 464; career of, I 465; grandfather of Khnumhotep II, I 464; made count of Menet-Khufu, I 465; of the entire Oryx nome, I 625-26; sons of, I 627; daughter of, I 628.
- КХНУМХОТЕР II: inscription of, I 619-39; biography of, 619-21; titles of, I 622; tomb of, I 623; count of Menet-Khufu, I 624, 629; grandfather of I 625-26; uncle of, I 627; mother of, I 628; buildings of, I 630, 637-39; honors of, I 631; sons of, I 632-33; ancestry of, I 625-26, 634-36; official staff of, I 623; wife of, I 633.
- КХНУМХОТЕР III: son of Khnumhotep II, I 620 n. a, 633; made ruler of Menet-Khufu, I 620 n. a; titles of, I 633; mother of, I 633; his son (?), I 620 n. a; ruling in (?), I 620 n. a.
- КХНУМХОТЕР, the treasurer: inscription of, I 617-18; titles of, I 618.
- КХОНСУХЕТНЕТЕРНЕВ, priest, III 432.
- КХУФ, I 343.
- КХУФУ, I 387.
- КХУИ, I 361.
- КХУИ, father of the queen of Pepi I, I 344; of Zau, I 349.
- КХУИ: inscription of, I 674-75; titles of, I 675.
- КХУИ, judge, I 299.
- КХУНИ, master of bath, I 336.
- КХУУ, father of Nenekhseskhnun, I 305.
- КИНЕН, I 776.
- КИРГИПА: wife of Amenhotep III, II 867; daughter of Satirna of Naharin, II 867; harem ladies of, II 867; chief of harem of, II 867.
- КИСУХАТОР, son of Nekonekh, I 218, 221.

L

ЛЕМЕРСЕКЕНЫ, commander, IV 821.

M

- МАХАРБААЛ, IV 423, 443, 446.
- МАХУ, II 809.
- МАИ, IV 423, 426, 452.
- МАИ: tomb of, II 997; inscription of, II 997-1003; titles of, II 997; hymn of, II 999; prayer of, II 1003.
- МАКЕРЕ, queen of Osorkon I, IV 740.
- МАНЕТО, I 24, 53, 61 n. b, 62 n. d, 78 n. a, 79 n. a, 86; II 296, 912.
- МАСАХЕРЕТ, high priest of Amon, IV 647.
- МАТКХА, daughter of Shepseskaf and wife of Ptahshepses, I 257.
- МАТНЕФРУРЕ, queen of Ramses II, III 417.
- МЕХЕТНУСЕКХЕТ, wife of Sheshonk, IV 676, 679, 684, 685, 686, 687, 787, 792.

- MEHETNUSEKHET, IV 958C, M.
 MEHI, son of Senezemib, I 274, 277.
 MEKETATON, daughter of Ikhnaton, II 961.
 MEKHU, father of Sebni, I 363; expedition to Nubia, I 363; death of, I 364; embalment of body of, I 370; burial in Nekheb, I 373.
 MEKMEL, Syrian prince, IV 566.
 MEN, captain, son of Mut, I 606.
 MEN, father of Bek, II 975, 976.
 MENGEBET, ship-captain, IV 565.
 MENKHEPERRE, high priest of Amon, IV 650, 652, 653, 654, 655, 657, 658, 660, 661, 663, 668, 671; inscriptions of, IV 650-61.
 MENKHEPERRESENEB: inscriptions of, II 772-76; offices of, II 772-74; reliefs of, II 773, 774.
 MENKHET, mother of Meri, I 508.
 MENMARENAKHT, overseer, IV 546.
 MENTEMHET, prince of Thebes, IV 901, 904, 949, 951; inscription of, IV 901-916; buildings of, IV 902, 909-916; wife of, IV 951; relief of, IV 903, 909.
 MENTEMTOWE, IV 423, 426.
 MENTEMWESE, IV 692.
 MENTHIRKHEPESHEF, chief of police, IV 512.
 MENTUHOTEP (general): inscription of, I 510-14; titles of, I 512; relief of, I 514; son of, I 512; degradation of, I 514.
 MENTUHOTEP: inscriptions of, I 530-34; copied by, I 530; titles of, I 531; character of, I 532; building operations of, at Abydos, I 534.
 MER, mortuary priest, I 218.
 MERASAR, king of Kheta, III 373, 391.
 MERETATON, daughter of Ikhnaton, II 961; temple of, in Akhetaton, II 1017.
 MERERI, scribe of the marine, I 390.
 [MERET-NEIT], mother of King [Miebis?], I 103.
 MERETUBEKHET, IV 957.
 MERI: inscription of, I 507-9; titles of I 508; builder of the pyramid-chapel of Sesostris I, I 509; son of Menkhet, I 508.
 MERI, deputy of Wawat, IV 481.
 MERIAMON, son of Ramses II, III 350, 362.
 MERIAMON-SHESHONK, high priest of Amon, grandson of Sheshonk I, IV 740.
 MERIBAST, IV 487.
 MERIPTAH, II 923, 929, 930, 931.
 MERIRE I: inscription of, II 982-88; wife of, II 984; office of, II 985; tomb of, II 982, 1018;
 MERIRE II, II 981.
 MERIRE, scribe, II 1043.
 MERIRE-MERIPTAH-ONEKH I, chief architect of Pepi I: inscription of, I 299; titles of, I 298, 299; son of, I 298.
 MERIRE-MERIPTAH-ONEKH II, son of the preceding, ritual priest, I 298.
 MERIRE-ONEKH, I 343.
 MERIRE-ONEKH, commander, I 303.
 MERMOSE, viceroy of Kush, II 855; inscription of, II 851-55.
 MERNUTERSETENI, eldest son of Weshptah, I 243.
 MER-PTAH-SI-HAPI, mother of Teperet, IV 1000.
 MERSEGER, queen to Sesostris III, I 655 n. b; II 171.
 MERTHOTH, prophet, IV 665.
 MERTITYÔTES, royal favorite of Snefru, Khufu, and Khafre, I 54, 55; stela-inscription of, I 188-89; titles, I 189.
 MERTUSAMEN, IV 446.
 MERU, hereditary prince, I 370.
 MERWER, IV 551.
 MERYEY, king of Libya, III 579, 586, 610, 612, 615; IV 43.
 MESEDSURE, IV 428, 429.
 MESHESHER, king of Meshwesh, IV 90.
 MESHKEN, king of Libya, IV 43.
 MESSUI, IV 445.
 METELLA, king of Kheta, III 374, 375, 377.
 METENU, father of Sebeko, I 716.
 METHDET, III 632.
 METHEN: inscriptions of, I 170-75; biography of, I 170; activity in the Delta, I 170; ruler of Fayum and Anubis nome, I 170; died in reign of Snefru, I 170; son of Anubisemonekh I 171; and Nebsent, I 176; career of,

- I 172; honors and gifts to, I 173, 175; offices, I 174; family of, I 175.
- METHREM, a Hittite, III 337.
- MEYA, III 32B.
- MINEMHET, I 776, 780.
- MINHOTEP, I 776.
- MINHOTEP, II 800.
- MITHERE, IV 523.
- MONTU—, son of Ramses II, III 362.
- MUSEN, chief of Me, IV 787, 792.
- MUT, mother of Men, I 606.
- MUTEMUYA, IV 486.
- MUTEMUYA, queen of Thutmose IV, II 866 n. h.
- MUTNEZMET, wife of Harmhab, II 1043; III 22 n. f.
- MUTNOFRET, queen of Ramses II, III 255.
- N
- NAKHT I, eldest son of Khnumhotep I, I 627; ruler of Menet-Khufu, I 627.
- NAKHT II, eldest son of Khnumhotep II, I 632; ruler of the Jackal nome, I 632.
- NAKHTAMON, III 633.
- NAKHTAMON, artificer, IV 466.
- NAKHTAMON, butler, IV 466.
- NAKHTAMON, charioteer, IV 466.
- NAKHTEMHET, IV 528.
- NAKHTEMMUT, IV 539.
- NAMLOT I, chief of Me, IV 676, 679, 683, 685, 686, 687, 787, 792; statue of, IV 678, 680.
- NAMLOT II, high priest of Heracleopolis, IV 787, 792.
- NEATESNAKHTE, mother of Senbef, IV 918.
- NEBAMON, overseer, IV 517.
- NEBET, mother of the queen of Pepi I, I 344; of Zau, I 349.
- NEBETHAPI, IV 682.
- NEBETU, wife of Thutmose III, II 779.
- NEBETYOTEF, mother of Ameniseneb, I 782.
- NEBNESHI, IV 787, 792.
- NEBSENT, mother of Methen, I 175.
- NEBUNNEF, III 255-57; inscription of, III 256.
- NEBWAWI: biography of, II 177-78; statue of, II 178-83; stela of, II 184-86; career of, II 179-86; offices of, 180-83, 185-86.
- NEBZEFAL, IV 445.
- NEFERHER, of Bista, IV 957.
- NEFERHET, stela of, II 839 n. d.
- NEFERHOR, king's-messenger, III 643.
- NEFERHOR, scribe of the archives, III 643.
- NEFERHOTEP, king's-butler: inscription of, III 68-73; reliefs of, III 69, 73.
- NEFERHOTEP, tomb of, III 68 n. c.
- NEFERHOTEPES, king's-mother, I 241.
- NEFERHOTEPUR, I 776.
- NEFERIBENOFER, overseer of magazine, IV 981; statue of, IV 981-83.
- NEFERKERE EM-PER-AMON, king's-butler, IV 495, 511, 513, 522, 531.
- NEFERNEFRUATON-NOFRETETE, queen of Ikhnaton, II 959, 984, 991, 1010, 1015.
- NEFERPERET, chief treasurer under Ahmose I, II 28.
- NEFRETIRI, queen, IV 479.
- NEFRETIRI, queen of Ramses II, III 482 n. c, 499, 500, 501.
- NEFRURE, eldest daughter of Hatshepsut, II 344, 362, 363, 364.
- NEFRURE, queen of Ramses II, III 435.
- NEFRUSEBEK, IV 968.
- NEHI, viceroy of Kush: temple-inscription at Semneh of, II 651; pillar-inscription of, II 412-13; grotto-inscription of, II 652; confusion with Thure, II 61.
- NEHRI, I 628; married to Beket, I 628; son of, I 636; Khnumhotep II, son of, I 622, 631, 633, 634, 639; ruled as a babe, I 636; ka-house in Mernofret, I 635.
- NEHRI, father of Key, I 692 n. c, 692 n. a.
- NEHSI, II 290.
- NEKENNEBTI, king's-confidant, I 194.
- NEKE-ONEKH, I 343.
- NEKHTARNESHENU, chief of Me, IV 878.
- NEKONEKH, a nobleman: inscriptions of, I 213-30; titles and offices of, I 213; 216, 230; wife of, I 216, 224; children of, I 214, 228-30; tomb of, I 215; testamentary enactments of, I

- 216-22; will of, I 223-25; priest of Hathor I 219; enactments for the mortuary priesthood of, I 226, 227; mortuary statues of, I 228-30.
- NEKRI, II 1 n. c.
- NEKUPTAH, I 387.
- NEKURE, prince, I 190-99.
- NEKURE, son of preceding, I 195.
- NEMATHAP, queen (?), I 173.
- NENEKH-KHENTIKHET, ship-captain, I 266.
- NENEKHSEKHMET: inscription of, I 237-40; chief physician of Sahure, I 238; his tomb, I 238; its false door, I 238-39.
- NENEKHSEKHNUM, commission to, I 305; son of, I 305.
- NENESBAST, mother of Pefnefdineit, IV 1025.
- NESHENUMEH, slave, IV 682.
- NESIKHONSU, wife of Paynozem II, IV 689.
- NESIMUT, queen, IV 555.
- NESIPAI, IV 689.
- NESITETAT, slave, IV 682.
- NESNEKEDI, chief of Me, IV 830.
- NESSUHATHORYAKHET, son of Nekonehk, I 218, 221.
- NESSUMONTU: stela inscription of, I 469-71; career under Amenemhet I and Sesostris I, I 469-71.
- NESTENT, queen of Namlot, IV 844.
- NESUAMON, IV 547.
- NESUAMON, chief of police, IV 545, 548, 552.
- NESUAMON, high priest of Amon, IV 487.
- NESUAMON, king's-butler, IV 495, 511, 513, 522, 523, 526, 528, 531, 533, 540.
- NESUAMON, master of hunt, IV 539.
- NESUAMON, priest, IV 551.
- NESUAMON, prophet, IV 531.
- NESUAMON, scribe, IV 486.
- NESUAMON, Sem-priest, IV 541.
- NESUBAST, prophet, IV 726, 728.
- NESUBENEDED, high priest of Amon, IV 794.
- NESUHOR, IV 652.
- NESUHOR, governor, 990, 993: statue-inscription of, IV 989-95.
- NESUMIN, IV 948.
- NESUMONTU, IV 547, 749.
- NESUPEHERNEMUT, prophet, IV 660.
- NESUPEKESHUTI, scribe, IV 665, 668, 689, 692.
- NESUPTAH, prince of Thebes, IV 901, 904, 908.
- NESUPTAH, chief of prophets, IV 950.
- NEWSETREKENYE, IV 784.
- NEZEMIB, a private citizen: inscription of, I 278-79.
- NIBAMON: inscription of, II 777-79.
- NIBMARE-NAKHT, vizier, IV 523, 535, 546.
- NITOCRIS, daughter of Taharka, I 61 n. c.; IV 942, 958D; adopted by Psamtik I, IV 943, 945; beautiful name of, IV 943; divine votress, IV 942, 946, 958D, M, 988D; death and burial of, IV 988G.
- NOFER, watchman, IV 551.
- NOFRETETE, queen of Ikhnaton, II 961.
- NUBHOTEP, wife of Zezemonekh, I 186.
- NUBKHAS, queen, IV 517, 528, 538.

O

- ONENEY, IV 452.
- OSORKON, high priest of Amon, IV 698, 753, 755, 760, 769, 770, 777.

P

- PAHRI, grandson of Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 3; titles of, II 3 n. c.
- PAKAUTI, king's-scribe, IV 485.
- PATONEMHAB, III 22; tomb of, III 22 n. a; high priest of Re, III 22 n. a.
- PAY, steward, IV 224.
- PAY—, overseer, IV 638.
- PAYBEK, IV 550, 551.
- PAYERNU, IV 423.
- PAYKAMEN, IV 547, 548.
- PAYNEFERHIR, chief overseer, IV 637.
- PAYNEHSI, IV 547.
- PAYNEHSI, IV 682.
- PAYNEHSI, viceroy of Kush, IV 597.
- PAYNOFER, scribe, IV 512.
- PAYNOZEM, scribe, IV 527.
- PAYNOZEM II, high priest of Amon, IV 663, 668, 671, 672, 688, 689; inscriptions of, IV 662-67.

- PAYONEKH, high priest of Amon, IV 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 637, 638, 639, 641.
- PE'AOKE, inscription of, II 839-40.
- PEBEKAMEN, IV 427, 428, 429, 430, 439, 440, 444, 454.
- PEBES, IV 423, 426, 452.
- PEBES, prince in Per-Hapi, IV 878.
- PEBES, scribe, IV 526, 529.
- PEDIAMENEBCSTOWE, third prophet of Amon, IV 953.
- PEDIAMENESTOWE, ritual priest, IV 881.
- PEDIAMON, chief of workmen, IV 668.
- PEDIAMON-NEBCSTOWE, IV 852 n. c.
- PEDIESE, chief of Me, IV 774, 779; relief of, IV 779.
- PEDIESE, prince of Athribis, IV 868, 874, 875, 879.
- PEDIHARSOMTOUS, prophet, IV 878.
- PEFNEFDIBAST, high priest of Ptah, IV 774, 781.
- PEFNEFDIBAST, ruler of Heracleopolis, IV 852; descendants of, IV 852 n. c.
- PEFNEFDINEIT, chief physician, IV 1017, 1025; statue-inscription of, IV 1015-25.
- PEFROL, IV 423, 426.
- PEHENUI, IV 550.
- PEHETI, father of Nesubast, IV 726, 728.
- PEKAMEN, coppersmith, IV 532.
- PEKENU, IV 784.
- PEKHARU, coppersmith, IV 523, 532.
- PEKRUR, hereditary prince of Per-soped, IV 932.
- PELUKA, IV 439.
- PEMERIAMON, steward, IV 546.
- PEMERKHETEM, III 634.
- PEMOU, IV 815, 878; prince of Busiris, IV 878.
- PEN, II 682.
- PENAMON, III 633.
- PENAMON, butler, IV 584.
- PENAMON, scribe, IV 647.
- PENANUKET, IV 541.
- PENDUA, IV 430.
- PENE—, IV 682.
- PENEBIK, scribe, IV 512.
- PENHUBIN, IV 442, 455.
- PEN-NEKHBET, called Ahmose: see Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet.
- PENNO, II 1041.
- PENNO: inscription of, IV 474-83; titles of, IV 474; tomb of, IV 474-83.
- PENRENTUT, IV 423.
- PENTEWERE, IV 444, 447.
- PENTEWERE, chief of Me, IV 878.
- PENTEWERE, scribe, copyist of Papyrus Sallier III, III 315.
- PEPI-NAKHT: inscriptions of, I 355-60; titles of, I 356; character of, I 357; expeditions to Nubia, I 358-59; expedition against Asiatics, I 360.
- PENITHOWE, steward, IV 338.
- PERAMSES, vizier, III 542.
- PERE, IV 442.
- PERE, scribe, IV 450.
- PEREHIRUNAMEF, son of Ramses II, III 456, 482.
- PEREHU, chief of Punt, II 254, 258; family of, II 254.
- PEREKAMENEF, IV 445.
- PEREMHAB, IV 423.
- PEREMHAB, captain, III 634.
- PEREMHAB, deputy, III 634.
- PERENNEFER, III 73.
- PEREPEWYOT, officer, IV 593.
- PERSEN: tomb-inscription of, I 241; title of, I 241.
- PESE'EKE, IV 784.
- PESER, father of Amenemapet, III 477 bis.
- PESER, mayor of Thebes, IV 513, 526, 527, 528, 531.
- PESIBKHENNO, high priest of Amon, IV 688.
- PETEWNTEAMON, IV 431.
- PETHENEF, prince, IV 815, 878.
- PETHUT, chief of Me, IV 787, 792.
- PETKHEP, princess (= queen) of Kheta, III 391; born in the land of Kezweden, III 391.
- PETPETDEDES, priestess of Harsaphes, IV 787, 792.
- PEWER, slave, IV 682.
- PEWERO, mayor of Western Thebes, IV, 511, 512, 522, 527, 528, 535.
- PEYES, IV 444, 445, 451.
- PEYES, Hittite charioteer, III 337 bis.

- PEYNOK, IV 429.
 PIRSUN, IV 443, 446.
 PIYAY, III 644.
 PLINY, IV 878 n. e.
 PREM HAB, see Patonemhab.
 PSAMTIK, chief of militia, IV 968.
 PSAMTIK, priest, IV 1029; mortuary stela of, IV 1026-29.
 PSENMUT, IV 957.
 PTAH, nobleman of IV Dyn., I 182.
 PTAHHOTEP, brother of Senbef, IV 918.
 PTAHMOSE, deputy, IV 338.
 PTAHSHEPSES: inscription of, I 254-62; importance thereof on chronology, I 54 bis, 55, 254, 255; education of, I 256, 257; marriage of, I 257; career of, I 258-62.
 PTAHWER, inscription of, I 728.
 PUEMRE: inscriptions of, II 379-87; statue of, II 380; tomb of, II 382; relief of, II 385.
 PUREM, commander, IV 821.
 PURME, commander, IV 881; probably identical with Purem, q. v.
 PUTOKER, I 466 n. c.
 PUTOWE, IV 948.
- R
- RAHENEM, wife of Ibi, I 375.
 RAMOSE, father of Senmut, II 358.
 RAMOSE, king's-scribe, II 1043.
 RAMOSE, messenger, III 372.
 RAMOSE, of Amarna, II 947 n. a.
 RAMOSE, the vizier: inscription of, II 936-48; titles of, II 936; tomb of, II 936-47; reliefs of, II 938, 941, 944; burial of, II 947.
 RAMSES, son of Ramses II, III 456, 482.
 RAMSES-ESHAB, III 496, 498.
 RAMSES-ESHEHAB, scribe, IV 465.
 RAMSES-KHEMENTER-BAY, III 647, 648.
 RAMSESNAKHT, III 633.
 RAMSESNAKHT, high priest and first prophet of Amon, I 69 n. a; IV 466, 487, 489, 494, 495.
 RAMSESNAKHT, scribe, IV 466.
 RAY, chief treasurer of Thutmose III, II 450 n. a.
 RE, attendant, II 1043.
 RE-AM, brother of Henku, I 281; titles of, I 281.
 REBESNEN, III 337.
 REBEYER, king of Aleppo, III 337.
 REDEDET, mother of the first kings of the V Dyn., II 198 n. j.
 REKHMIRE, vizier of Thutmose III: ancestry of, II 663; office of, II 665. tomb of, I 20; II 663; inscriptions of, II 663-762; reliefs of, II 712, 714, 717, 747, 752, 753, 756, 761, 762.
 REKHPEHTUF, king's-messenger, III 642.
 RENSENEB, I 752.
 ROME, high priest of Amon, III 621, 628.
 ROY, frontier official, III 630.
 ROY, high priest of Amon, III 623, 626; inscription of, III 618-28; titles of, III 623; reliefs of, III 626 n. c, 628.
 ROYENET, II 7.
 ROYENET, mother of Bek, II 975.
 RUMA, IV 442.
- S
- SABU, also called Ibebi: inscriptions of, I 282-86; titles of, 283-86; career of, I 283-286; son of, I 287.
 SABU, also called Thety: inscription of, I 287-88; office of, I 288; son of Sabu-Ibebi, I 287.
 SABU "the black," I 287 n. b.
 SATIRNA, king of Naharin, II 867; Artatama, father of, II 866 n. h; Dushratta, son of, II 866 n. h; Gilukhipa (= Kirgipa), daughter of, II 866 n. h, 867.
 SEBEKDIDI-RANEFSENE, rock-inscription of, I 719-20.
 SEBEKEMSAF (sic! for Sebekemsas, wife of one of the XIII Dyn. Intefs), queen Ahhotep restores tomb of, II 109-112.
 SEBEKENEKH, father of Nehri, I 636.
 SEBEK-HIR-HAB, rock-inscription of, I 725-27.
 SEBEKHOTEP, I 665 n. b.
 SEBEK-KHU, called Zaa: inscription of, I 676-87; biography of, I 677-79; Asiatic campaign of, I 680; honors of, I 681-82; titles of, I 683; tomb of, I 684; career of, I 685-86; campaign in Nubia, I 687.
 SEBEKNAKHT, II 931.
 SEBEKO, I 716.

- SEBNI: inscriptions of, I 362-74; biography of, I 362-64; death of father of, I 365; expedition to Nubia, I 366-70; king's letter to, I 371; honors and reward of, I 372.
- SEHETEPHIBRE: inscription of, I 743-48; titles of, I 745; tomb of, I 746; instruction of, I 747-48.
- SEKHEMKERE, prince, I 54, 55.
- SEMEN, II 822.
- SEMRETES, a Hittite, III 337.
- SENBET, hereditary prince, IV 918.
- SENEB, son of Enkhu, I 783.
- SENETEPI, I 723.
- SENEKH: inscription of, I 454-56; titles of, I 455; career of, I 456.
- SENEZEM, chief scribe, I 343.
- SENEZEM, leader of recruits, I 343.
- SENEZEMIB, vizier: inscriptions of, I 268-77; career of, I 270; royal letters to, I 271, 273; son of, I 274.
- SENISENEB, mother of Thutmose I, II 58.
- SENMUT: biography of, II 345-68; architect of Hatshepsut, II 304, 345; took part in the Punt expedition, II 290, 346; statues of, I 20; II 345, 349-58, 363-68; tomb of, II 348; titles of, II 354; tombstone of, II 348.
- SENUONEKH: inscriptions of, I 231-35; priest under Userkaf and Sahure, I 231; tomb of, I 231; endowment of mortuary priests of, I 232-35.
- SENY, IV 485.
- SEPLEL, king of Kheta, III 373, 377.
- SEPTHER, brother of the Hittite king, III 337.
- SESI, official titles of, I 299.
- SETAU, high priest of Nekhbet, I 69 n. a; IV 414-15; tomb at El Kab, IV 414-15.
- SETEMHAB, IV 19.
- SETEPNERE, son of Ramses II, III 362.
- SETI, son of Ramses II, III 350, 362.
- SETI, viceroy of Kush, afterward King Seti II, III 642, 643, 646, 647.
- SETI, vizier, III 538, 539, 542.
- SETIMPERAMON, IV 436.
- SETIMPERTHOTH, IV 435.
- SETNAKHT, artisan, IV 537, 541.
- SHEDMEZER, IV 445.
- SHEM-BAAL, III 632.
- SHEPNUPET I, daughter of Osorkon, IV 940.
- SHEPNUPET II, daughter of Piankhi, IV 940, 946; (=Nitocris), IV 943, 945.
- SHEPSESHATHOR, priest, I 218, 221.
- SHESHONK, chief of Me, IV 675, 677, 683, 687, 787, 792; stela of, IV 675-87.
- SHESHONK, hereditary prince, IV 774.
- SHUTTARNA, king of Mitanni, II 866 n. h; see also Satirna.
- SIAMON, I 777.
- SIAMON, king's-son, IV 646.
- SIHATHOR: inscription of, I 599-603; title of, I 599; commissions of, I 600; expeditions of, I 602-3.
- SIMONTU: inscription of, 594-98; childhood of, I 597; career of, I 598; death of, I 595; birth of, I 596.
- SIMUT, II 931.
- SINOURIS, I 785.
- SINUHE: tale of, I 486-97; biography of, I 486-89; titles of, I 490; death of Amenemhet, I 491-92; flight to Palestine, I 493-94; return to the court of Egypt, I 495-97.
- SIRENPOWET, nomarch of Elephantine, I 510 n. b.
- SISATET: inscriptions of, I 671-73; relatives of, I 676-71.
- SISEBEK, prophet, IV 1017.
- SI[r], mother of Kheta II, I 414 and n. a.
- SITAMENI, mother of Ikhnofret, I 670, 671.
- SITAMON, daughter of Amenhotep III, II 912.
- SITKAMOSE, queen, IV 644; mummy of IV 644.
- SITRE, I 426.
- SITYOH, II 612.
- SOMTOUS-TEFNAKHT, nomarch of Heracleopolis, IV 944.
- STIRA, I 716.
- STRABO, III 51 n. b.
- SUDIAMON, IV 672, 673.
- SULE, scribe, IV 466.
- SUTE, II 299 n. e.
- SUTEKMOSE, III 632.

- SUTIMOSE, IV 647.
 SYNCELLUS, I 72 n. e; IV 884 n. d.
- T
- TA, vizier, IV 414.
 TADUKHIPA, queen of Amenhotep IV, II 866 n. h.
 TAKELOT, chief of Me, father of Pediese, IV 774; chief of Meshwesh, IV 779, 781.
 TAKELOT, high priest of Amon, IV 698, 794.
 TAKELOT, Sem-priest, son of Pediese, IV, 774.
 TARTESEB, royal Hittite messenger, III 371, 372.
 TEDENETNEBAST, princess, IV 795.
 TEDER, Hittite chief of warriors, III 337.
 TEDESE, IV 682.
 TEDIMUT, slave, IV 682.
 TEFIBI, nomarch of Siut: inscriptions of, I 393-97; kind rule of, I 395; war with the South, I 396; mortuary prayer of, I 394; titles of, I 395; son of, ruling while a minor, I 395; father of Kheti I, I 403 bis.
 TEFNAKHT, chief of the West, IV 818, 819, 830; chief of Sais, IV 859, chief of Me, 838, 854, 880; father of Bocchoris, IV 884.
 TELAMON, IV 539.
 TEMEKHONSU, queen of Osorkon I, IV 792.
 TENR, wife of Merire I, II 984.
 TENTAMON, IV 564, 565, 574, 581, 582.
 TENTSEHERYE, mother of Weshtehet, IV 784.
 TENTSEPEH, divine mother, IV 792.
 TENTSEPEH, priestess of Harsaphes, IV 787, 792.
 TENTSEPEH, king's-daughter, IV 787, 792.
 TENTSEY, IV 695.
 TENTTO, a singer, IV 589.
 TEPERET, king's-confidante, IV 1000.
 TEPARAMENEF, IV 682.
 TERE, sister-wife of Pediese, IV 774.
 TERGEN, Hittite officer, III 337.
 TERGENENES, Hittite charioteer, III 337.
 TERGETETETHES, Hittite chief of archers III 337.
 TESENETHOR, mother of Nesuhor, IV 990.
 TESHERE, priest, IV 547, 550, 553.
 TESITNAKHT, tomb of, robbed, IV 499.
 TETI, I 777.
 TETI, IV 547.
 TETI, mother of Thutnakht, I 689.
 TETISHERI, grandmother of Ahmose I, II 33, 36.
 TEWHENUT, mother of Nesubast, IV 727, 728.
 TEWOSRET, queen of Siptah, IV 400 n. c.
 TEYEDER, Hittite chief of bodyguard, III 337.
 TEYNAKHT, IV 452.
 THANENI, campaign-recorder of Thutmose III, II 392; tomb of, II 392; inscription of, II 820; referred to, II 451 n. d; titles of, II 820.
 THARA, III 633.
 THAROY, coppersmith, IV 532.
 THAY, II 1043.
 THEKEREM, III 632.
 THEMER, king of Libya, IV 43.
 THENEKEMET, priestess of Harsaphes, IV 787, 792.
 THENTI, tomb of, at Gisch, I 182 n. a.
 THESHEN, eldest son of Zezemonekh, I 186.
 THESPEREBAST, king's-daughter, IV 771, 774.
 THETHI, I 361.
 THETHI, nobleman, I 184; master pyramid builder, I 301.
 THETHIST (treasurer, X Dyn.): inscription of, I 423A-G; stela of, I 423A n. a; titles of, I 423C; career of, I 423D.
 THEWETHES, king of Tenes, III 337.
 THURE, viceroy of Kush, II 54-55; temple-inscription of, at Semneh, II 61-66; rock-inscriptions of, on Sehel, II 75-76; rock-inscription of, at Assuan, II 77.
 THUTEMHAB, III 437.
 THUTEMHAB, commander, IV 367.
 THUTHOTEP: tomb-inscriptions of, I

688-706; ancient family of, I 688, 692-93; his great statue, I 694-706.
THUTIV, attendant, III 632.
THUTIV, general under Hatshepsut and Thutmose III, I 24; II 275; inscription of, II 369-78; tomb of, II 369 n. c.; titles of, II 371.
THUTMOSE, III 32C.
THUTMOSE, chief scribe, IV 281.
THUTMOSE, major-domo, IV 672, 673.
THUTNAKHT, I 689.
THUTREKHEFER, IV 423, 443, 446.
THUYA, mother of Tiy, II 862, 867.
TIY, great queen of Amenhotep III, II 861, 862, 904, 1014, 1016; parents of, II 862, 864, 865, 867, 869; pleasure lake of, II 869; Zerukha city of, II 869.
TIY, queen of Ramses III, IV 427, 447.
TIY, wife of Eye, II 989; nurse of Ikhnaton, II 989.
TUTU: inscription of, II 1009-1013; tomb of, II 1009.

U

UNI: inscriptions of, I 292-94; 306-315, 319-24; biography of, I 6; childhood of, I 292-94; offices of, I 293; judge, I 307; equipment of tomb of, I 308; superior custodian, I 309; prosecution of the queen, I 310; war against the Bedwin, I 311-14; against Palestine, I 315; governor of the South, I 320; expedition to the Ibhet quarry, I 42, 321; to Elephantine, I 322; to Hatnub, I 323; to the Southern Quarries, I 324.
URAMON, prophet, IV 512.
USERKHEPESH, chief workman, IV 526, 528.
USERMARE-NAKHT, prophet of Min, IV 465.
USERMARE-SEKHEPERSU, butler, IV 466.
UZAHOR, governor of the door of south countries, IV 980.
UZAI, I 343.
UZARENES, wife of Mentemhet, IV 951.
UZMUTENKHOS, queen of Osorkon II, IV 792.
UZPTAHENKHOF, high priest of Heliopolis, IV 787, 792.

W

WAYHESET, prophet, IV 726, 727, 728; stela of, IV 725-28.
WEBKHATHOR, son of Nekonekh, I 218, 221.
WENAMON, envoy to Syria, I 18; report of, IV 557-91.
WENNOFER, divine father, IV 668.
WENPEHTI, weaver, IV 552.
WEREN, IV 437.
WERET, mother of Meya, III 32B.
WERET, Syrian prince, IV 566.
WERMER, king of Libya, IV 43.
WESHPTAH, vizier of Neferirkere: tomb-inscription of, I 243-48; untimely death of, I 246; his ebony coffin, I 247; buried by the king, I 248; beside the pyramid of Sahure, I 249.
WESTEHET, chief caravaner, IV 784; relief of, IV 783.
WOSER, vizier, uncle of Rekhmire, II 663, 665; tomb of, II 671 n. e.; tomb-inscription of, II 671 n. e.

Y

YAKHETIRNI, I 387.
YARSU, a Syrian chief, IV 398.
YATA, mother of Ptahwer, I 728.
YATU, I 723.
YATU, mother of Amenhotep, II 912; burial of, II 920.
YEKERIB, I 343.
YENINI, IV 440.
YEWELOT, high priest of Amon, IV 794; will of, IV 795.
YUF, stela inscription of, at Edfu, II 109-114.
YUH, III 32C.
YUI, judge, III 32B.
YUROI, IV 515.
YUYA, father of Tiy, II 862, 867; tomb of, II 861 n. c.

Z

ZAA, surname of Sebek-khu, I 676, 683.
ZAKAR-BAAL, prince of Byblos, IV 566, 567.
ZATY, I 343.

- ZATY, called Kenofer, crown prince, I 389.
- ZAU, son of Zau-Shemai: inscription of, I 380-85; biography of, I 380; titles of, I 381; burial of his father, I 382; tomb of, I 383; prayer of, I 384; succession of, I 385.
- ZAU, vizier, brother of queen of Pepi I, I 347; relief of, I 344; titles of, I 348; his five brothers of the same name, I 347.
- ZAU-SHEMAI, son of Ibi, I 380, 382, 383.
- ZEAMONEFONEKH, of Mendes, IV 878.
- ZEAMONEFONEKH, prince, IV 815, 830.
- ZEDI, divine father, IV, 547, 553.
- ZEDKHIYU, prince in Khentnofer, IV 878.
- ZEDTI, IV 957.
- ZEKHONSEFONEKH, high priest of Amon, IV 650, 668, 689, 691, 692.
- ZEMI, son of Harkhuf, I 336 n. a.
- ZEPER, III 630.
- ZEPTAHEFONEKH, prophet, IV 699.
- ZEZEMONEKH, treasurer of the god, I 186 bis.
- ZOSERSUKHONSU, scribe, IV 640.

INDEX V

TITLES, OFFICES, AND RANKS

- | A   | B   |
|---|---|
| ADMINISTRATOR, IV 525, 671, 676; Methen, I 173, 174.  | BELOVED, KING'S, III 102; Sabu-Ibebi, I 285; Thethi, I 423C; Sinuhe, I 490; Khnumhotep, I 618; Khui, I 675; Enebni, II 213; Ahmose, II 1004; Harmhab, III 16.   |
| ADVANCED SEAT, OF: Thethi, I 423C, 423D, Amenemhet, I 445.  | —of Buto, Dedkere-Isesi, I 264.   |
| ADVOCATE OF THE PEOPLE: Mentuhotep, I 533.  | —of god, Merikere, I 399.   |
| ANNOUNCER, second in rank in the temple, I 550.   | —of Khnum, Mernere, I 317.  |
| ARCHITECT: see Chief of works.  | —of the lord of Coptos, Pepi I, I 296.  |
| ARTIFICER, I 262, 285, 447; II 92, 436; IV 488 n. c; rank of, III 271.  | —of Upwawet, Mother of Kheti II, I 414.   |
| Chief artificer, Nakhtamon, IV 466.   | —Title of queen, Enekhnes-Merire II, I 341.   |
| ARTISAN, III 275; IV 539, 541, 551, 600, 858.   | BUTLER, IV 409, 466, 522, 524, 543, 585; Pebes, IV 423, 426, 452; Kenedenna, IV 423; Maharbaal, IV 423; Payernu, IV 423; Thutrehnefer, IV 423; Mesedsure, IV 428; Weren, IV 437; Peluka, IV 439; Yenini, IV 440; Nebzefai, IV 445; Henutenamon, IV 448; Nakhtamon, IV 466; Penamon, IV 584.                 |
| —Assistant artisan, I 298, 301.   | —Butlers of the palace, IV 402.   |
| ARTISTS, I 447.   | —Constituting a lower court, IV 443, 446, 448, 449, 450.  |
| ASSISTANT ( hry- ): Neferperet, II 28; Bek, II 975; Thutmose, III 32C; Beknekhonsu, III 566; Amenhotep, IV 489.  | —King's butler, III 371; IV 54, 55, 67, 77, 497, 511, 598; Neferhotep, III 70; Ramses-eshahab, III 496, 498; Usermare-sekhepersu, IV 466; Amenhotep, IV 495; Nesuamon, IV, 495, 511, 513, 522, 526, 528, 531, 533, 540; Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, IV 495, 511, 513, 522, 531; Ini, IV 546; Pameriamon, IV 546. |
| ATTACHED: to Dep, Mentuhotep, I 512.  | C   |
| —to the Double House, Sabu-Ibebi, I 284, 285; Merire-Meriptah-Onekh, I 298, 299; Sesi, I 299.   | CAPTAIN: Merire-onekh, I 343; Nekeonekh, I 343; Yekerib, I 343; Khnum-enkhef, I 343; Hemukhrow, I 343.  |
| —to the king: Ptahshepses, I 258-61; Sabu-Ibebi, I 283.   | —of archers, III 484, 587, 631; IV 405, 552; Perehirunamaf, III 482; Binemwese, IV 443.   |
| —Attached to Nekhen: Uni, I 293; Kknumhotep I, I 464; Amenemhet, I 518; Mentuhotep, I 531, 533; Senmut, II 352; Ramose, II 936; Khay, III 556; see also, Judge. | —of infantry, IV 65; Khay, III 630, 632; Penamon, III 633; Peremhab, III 634.   |
| —Attached to the pyramid: Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 341, 346.   | —of gendarmes of Coptos, II 774.  |
| ATTENDANTS, II 53, 474; III 69; IV 124, 402, 405, 407; Sinuhe, I 490; Re, II 1043; Thutiy, III 632; Nakhtamon, III 633.   | —of marines, IV 407.  |
| —Chamber attendant: Uni, I 293; Harkhuf, I 332.   |   |
| —Commander of attendants, q. v.  |   |
| —Feast-day attendant, Sabu-Ibebi, I 284, 285, 286.  |   |
| —King's attendant, Iri, I 369; Zaa, I 687; Mai, II 997; Neferhotep, III 70.   |   |
| AUTHORITIES, THE GREAT, of South and North, IV, 460.  |   |

- Captain*—
 —of police, Oneney, IV 452.
 —Fleet-captain, II 750.
 —Ship captain, IV 211, 572; Nenekh-Khentikhet, I 266, 276; Ikhi, I 301; Intef, I 365; Ipi, I 387; Men, I 606; Nibamon, II 779; Mengebet, IV 565, 566.
 CARAVAN-CONDUCTORS, I 312, 334, 336; Harkhuf, I 332, 334; —khuf, I 343; Merire-onekh, I 343; Neke-onekh, I 343; Pepi-nakht, I 356; Enenkhet, I 360.
 —Chief caravaneer: Weshtehet, IV 784.
 CHIEFS (in Egypt), II 172, 385, 1023; III 405; IV 65, 281, 398, 468, 480, 873, 875; Thutiy, II 372; Perekamenef, IV 445; Osorkon, IV 777.
 —of archers: Enebni, II 213; Peramses, III 542; Seti, III 542.
 —of the army, Ramses II, III 288.
 —Builders, IV 858.
 —of the chamber, IV 437; Pebekkamen IV 427, 428.
 —of chiefs: Sheshonk, IV 675, 677; Namlot, IV 678, 683, 687.
 —of the royal council halls, Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
 —of a district: Zeptahefonekh, IV 699; Wayheset, IV 726; Khamwese, IV 795.
 —Fowler, Harnakht, I 718;
 —of gendarmes, Ini, III 198.
 —of foreign gendarmes, Seti, III 542.
 —of police, IV 522; Beknurel, IV 512; Menthirkepesh, IV 512; Nesuamon, IV 545, 548, 552.
 —of police of the necropolis, in Western Thebes, Pewero, IV 511, 512, 522, 527.
 —of the harbor, Somtous-Tefnakhte, IV 944.
 —of harem-ladies, II 867.
 —of the highland (a necropolis official), I 584, 585.
 —of the house of Pharaoh, Senebtefi, I 723.
 —of irrigation, Wayheset, IV 726.
 —of king's estate, Senmut, II 386.
 —of the land: Senmut, II 357; Harmhab, III 25, 26.
 —of militia in Busiris, Psamtik, IV 968.
 —of the New Towns, I 354; see also Governor of.
 —of all nobles of judicial office: Amenemhet, I 438.
 —of oblation-bearers of House of Amon: Yuroi, IV 515.
 —of the palace: Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000; Pefnefdineit, IV 1017.
 —of the peasantry, III 322.
 —of the peasant-serfs of Amon: Senmut, II 354.
 —of the people (rhy.t), II 236, 238.
 —of the phyle, Nesuptah, IV 908.
 —of the priestly phyle of Abydos: Ameniseneb, I 782, 787.
 —of quarry service, II 935; Amonmose, IV 466; Beknekhonsu, IV 466.
 —of the sailors: Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 80.
 —of sculptors: Bek, II 975; Men, II 976.
 —Sistrum-bearer of Harsaphes, Tentseph, IV 787, 792; Thenekemet, IV 787, 792; Petpetdedes, IV 787, 792.
 —of the stable: Amenhotep, II 818; Ini, III 198; Pernerketem, III 634.
 —of the court stables, IV 466.
 —of strongholds: Sisebek, IV 1017.
 —of the temples: Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
 —of temple-palace: Huy, IV 338.
 —of the White House: Ameni, I 722.
 —of works, I 646; II 384; III 264, 271; Senezemib, I 271-73; Merire-Merip-tah-onekh, I 298, 299; Amenemhet, I 442, 445; Mentuhotep, I 531; Si-montu, I 598; Ineni, II 43, 106; Rekhmire, II 757; Hui, III 210; Hatay, III 513; Ramses-nakht, IV 466; Amenhotep, IV 491; Haremsaf, IV 706, 708.
 —of chiefs of works: Senmut, II 368.
 —of works of Amon: Intef, II 775.
 —of works in the "Eternal Seat": Meya, III 32B.
 —of the king's work: Amenhotep, II 912, 917; Ramose, II 936; Mai, II 997.
 —of works in the Red Mountain: Bek, II 975; Men, II 976.
 —workmen: Userkhepesh, IV 526.
 —of workmen: Pediamon, IV 668; see also under Commander, Deputy Door-keeper, Fan-bearer, Favorites, Inspector, Judge, Justice, Measurer, Mayor, Physician, Priest, Prophet, Mortuary priest, Ritual priest, Scribe, Steward.
 —Chiefs of Heracleopolis, Karnak, two lands and two towns of the Oasis, Sais, Two Lands, the West, see Index VI.
 —Chiefs of Kush, Libya, see Index VI.
 —Assistant chief of the chamber, Eshehebsed, IV 438.

Chiefs—

- The Great Chief of Me: Musen, IV 787, 792; Pethut, IV 787, 792; Sheshonk, IV 675, 677, 678, 680, 787, 792; Namlot, IV 676, 678, 683, 685, 686, 687, 787, 792; Takelot, IV 774, 779; Pediese, IV 774, 779; Hethenker, IV 784; Akenesh, IV 815, 868; Zeamonefonekh, IV 815, 830; Sheshonk, IV 830; Nesneki, IV, 830, 878; Tefnakhte, IV 838, 854, 880; Pethenef, IV 878; Pemou, IV 878; Nekhtharneshenu, IV 878; Pentewere, IV 878; Pentubekhenet, IV 878.
- The Great Chief of Meshwesh: Takelot, IV 779, 781; Pediese, IV 781.
- CHIEFTAINS, IV 111, 129.
- COMMANDANT: regulations of, II 298; chief of: Khamale, IV 466.
- Commandant of Coptos, Kinen, I 776; of fortress, II 718, 719; III 586; of Tharu: Peramses, III 542; Seti, III 542; of infantry, IV 466; of ruler's table, II 695; of towns, III 484.
- Great commandant of the residence city: Zaa, I 683.
- COMMANDER, IV 824, 825; Inushefenu, IV 366, 367.
- of the army, II 864; III 264, 332, 484; IV 819, 821; Ibdū, I 303; Yakhetimi, I 387; Zaty-Kenofēr, I 389; (Crown Prince) Sesostris I, I 492; Mentuhotep, I 512; Renseneb, I 752; Ramose, II 947 n. a; Mai, II 997, 1002; Ramses, III 482; Inushefenu, IV 366, 367; Thutemhab, IV 367; Peyes, IV 445; Paynozēm (I), IV 643; Purem, IV 821; Lemersekeny, IV 821; Enekhōr, IV (830), 878; Purme, IV 881; Ahmose, IV 1014.
- in chief of the army, IV 109, 121, 124 n. b; Amenmose, II 811; Harmhab, III 4, 16; Amenhirkhepeshef, III 350, 482; Hrihor, IV 609, 612; Menkheperre, IV 652, 653, 654, 655; Paynozēm, IV 671; Yewepet, IV 700, 705; Osorkon, IV 753, 760, 762; Yewelot, IV 795; Somtous-Tefnakhte IV 944.
- of the whole land: Kheti I, I 398 (Herakleopolitan kingdom); Ramses (III), IV 400.
- of the army of Heracleopolis: Namlot, IV 787, 792; Uzptahenkhoḥ, IV 787, 792; Henptah, IV 787, 792; Harpeson, IV 787, 792; Hor, IV 968.
- of attendants, Zaa, I 687.
- of commanders, Amenemhet, I 445.
- of followers, Amenemhet, I 707.
- of infantry, III 484.
- of Middle Egypt, Kheti II, I 410.
- of the official body of the king, I 445.
- of recruits, Mentuhotep, I 512.
- on the river, Senekh, I 455.
- of sailors, Enekhēt, I 360.
- of strongholds, I 312; Ibi, I 377; Zau, I 381, 384.
- of the stronghold of granary, Ibi, I 379.
- of the troops: Merire-onekh, I 303; Amenemhet, I 707; Thaneni, II 820; Mermose, II 852.
- of troops in the highlands, Senekh, I 445.
- of the troops of a village, II 852.
- in chief of the troops of Oryx nome, Amenemhet, I 519.
- of works upon the mountain, Uzahor, IV 980.
- chief commander of the army of Heracleopolis, Bekneptah, IV 777.
- naval commander, I 211, 276; Amenemhab, II 591.
- COMPANION, I 334, 336, 355; II 1008; III 270; IV 611, 652; Uni, I 307; Senmut, II 352, 361, 366; Thutiy, II 371; Amenemhab, II 579; Nehi, II 652; Rekhmire, II 713; Intef, II 763.
- of the feet: Amenhotep, II 818; Harmhab, III 20; Rekhpehtuf, III 642.
- of Horus (queen's title): Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 346.
- of the palace, I 312; Amenemhet, I 731.
- Companions, I 246, 312, 755, 757, 758, 761; II 236, 292, 335, 353, 873, 935, 993; III 20, 484; IV 52, 54, 71, 77, 147, 398, 460, 494, 629, 765, 958 D, 988H; counted by the herald, II 767; permitted to "enter in" to his majesty, IV 460.
- of the court, II 290, 292.
- of Ptah, III 400.
- Female companions, III 267.
- of the king, I 201; IV 958D, 966, 1004.
- Sole companion, I 505; Kam, I 187; Re-am, I 281; Uni, I 293, 309;

- Merire-meriptah-onekh, I 298, 299;
 Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Iri, I 333;
 Harkhuf, I 326, 332, 336, 352;
 Khuni, I 336; Pepi-Nakht, I 356 bis;
 Enenkhet, I 360; Sebni, I 364;
 Mekhu, I 365, 368, 370; Ibi, I 377
 bis; Zau, I 381, 384; Tefibi, I 395;
 Kheti I, I 395; Kheti II, I 395, 426;
 Henu, I 428 bis; Eti, I 459 n. a;
 Khnumhotep I, I 464; Intef, I 467;
 Idi, I 466 n. c; Putoker, I 466 n. c;
 Sinuhe, I 490; Mentuhotep, I 512;
 Mentuhotep, I 533; Simontu, I 596;
 Khnumhotep II, I 631; Nakht II, I
 632; Khnumhotep III, I 633; Kheti,
 I 637 n. a; Ikhnofret, I 664; Neferperet, II 28; Keres, II 52; Thure,
 II 170 n. c (?); Nehsi, II 290; Senmut,
 II 350; Puemre, II 385; Nehi, II 652;
 Rekhmire, II 713; Intef, II 763, 767;
 Amenhotep, II 912; Ramose, II 936;
 Mai, II 997, 1002; Amenhotep, II
 1040; Harmhab, III 8, 16, 20; Som-tous-Tefnakhte, IV 944; Neferibre-nofer, IV 981; Nesuhor, IV 995;
 Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000; Pefnef-dineit, IV 1017.
- CONDUCTOR: of overseers, Amenemhet,
 I 444.
 —of the palace, Amenemhet, I 445.
- CONFIDANT, KING'S: I 298; IV 873;
 Thethi, I 184; Nekennebti, I 194;
 Nekure, I 195; Hetephires, I 196;
 Kennebtiver, I 197; Nekonekh, I
 216, 217, 224; Khenuka, I 220, 222;
 Nonekhsesi, I 230; Kheti I, I 403;
 Kheti II (?), I 413; Ikudidi, I 527;
 Khnumhotep II, I 622; Ibe, IV
 958G.
- Real confidant of the king: Sinuhe,
 I 490; Men, I 606; Khentemseti,
 I 609; Senmut, II 352; Harmhab,
 III 20; Khnumhotep, I 618; Khui,
 I 675; Sebekdidi, I 720.
- Confidant of the princes of the king:
 Kheti II, I 413.
- CONFIDANTE, KING'S: Henutsen, I
 185; Nekennebti, I 199; Hezethe-kenu, I 217, 218, 221, 224; Ikhnoubet,
 I 230; Teperet, IV 1000.
- CONSORT, DIVINE: see Divine consort.
- COUNCILOR, II 666.
- COUNSELOR, Khnumhotep, III I 663.
- COUNT, I 312, 336, 414; III 484; Uni,
 I 293, 320; Harkhuf, I 326, 332, 336;
 Zau, I 348; Khui, I 349; Pepi-
 Nakht, I 356; Thethi, I 361; Khui,
 I 361; Sebni, I 364, 372; Mekhu, I
 370; Ibi, I 377; Zau, I 384; Tefibi,
 I 391, 395; Kheti I, I 391; Kheti II,
 I 391; Intef, I 419; Amenemhet, I
 438, 445; Khnumhotep I, I 464, 625,
 626; Intef, I 467; Mentuhotep, I 512;
 Amenemhet, I 518; Crown Prince
 Ameni, I 520; Crown Prince Sesostris
 (II), I 521; Mentuhotep, I 531, 533;
 Hepzefi, I 537-39, 541, 544, 549, 554,
 559, 568, 571, 572, 576, 579, 582, 589;
 Simontu, I 596; Khenkhetwer, I
 605; Nehri, I 628; Khnumhotep II,
 I 622, 624, 629, 631, 639; Nakht II,
 I 632; Kheti, I 637 n. a; Ikhnofret,
 I 664; Sebek-khu, Zaa, I 683; Thut-nakht, I 689; Sehetepibre, I 745;
 Minemhet, I 776; Ahmose-Pen-
 Nekhbet, II 20; Ineni, II 43; Keres,
 II 52; Nehsi, II 290; Senmut, II 350,
 354, 362, 366; Thutiy, II 371; Puem-re, II 383, 385; Hapuseneb, II 389;
 Nehi, II 652; Rekhmire, II 713, 754,
 757; Intef, II 763, 767, 775; Minhotep, II 800; Khamhet, II 872;
 Amenhotep, II 912; Ramose, II 936;
 Mai, II 997, 1002; Huy, II 1036;
 Amenhotep, II 1040; Harmhab, III,
 8, 16, 20; Beknekhonsu, III 563;
 Amenhotep, IV 495; Namlot, IV
 787, 792; Uzptahenkhoft, IV 787,
 792; Henptah, IV 787, 792; Harpe-
 son, IV 787, 792; Henptah, IV 787,
 792; Harpeson, IV 787, 792; Uzahor
 IV 980; Neferibre-nofer, IV 981;
 Nesuhor, IV 995; Pefnefdineit, IV
 1017.
- Appointment of, by the king, I 385;
 given as a mortuary honor, I 385 n. c.
- Daughter of count, Beket, I 622.
- Son of count: Amenemhet, I 519;
 Khnumhotep II, I 629.
- Counts of Abydos, Coptos, Middle Egypt, Thinis, see Index VI.
- COUNTESS: Beket, I 628.
- CUP-BEARER OF THE KING: Sabu-Ibebi, I 285.
- CUSTODIAN, IV 992.
- of the domain of Pharaoh, I 382;
 Pepi-nakht, I 356;
- Inferior custodian of the domain of Pharaoh, Uni, I 294;
- Superior custodian of the domain of Pharaoh, the four, I 309; Uni, I 300, 310, 312.

D

- DARLING: Zau, I 381; Khnumhotep, I 618.
- DAUGHTER OF THE GOD (queen's title): Enekhnes-Merire II, I 346.
- "DAUGHTER, THE GREAT—": Nitocris, IV 942; Shepnupet II, IV 946; Amenirdis I, IV 949.
- DEPUTY, III 371; collecting dues, III 51, 54; Methen, I 172, 174; Mahu, II 809; Peremhab, III 634; Ptahmose, IV 338; Hori, IV 531.
- of the army, IV 466; Amenemhab, II 809; Khamtir, IV 466; the two of, collecting dues, III 54.
- of fortress: Penno, II 1041.
- of the harem: Amenkha, IV 449.
- of the king: Harmhab, III 17.
- of nomes: Methen, I 172.
- of Kush, II 1041.
- of Wawat, IV 480; Penno, IV 474, 477, 482, 483; Meri, IV 481; see also Treasurer.
- Chief deputy, IV 466; scribe of, IV 466.
- DEVOTED TO HORUS: Mertityotes, I 189.
- DIGNITARIES OF THE KING, II 236, 238, 290, 292, 335, 343.
- DISTRICT OFFICIALS, II 717, 729; recorders of, II 717, 729.
- DIVINE CONSORT: Ahmose-Nefretiri, II 34; Ahhotep, II 110; Hatshepsut, II 344, 360, 361, 362; Nefrure, II 364; Nitocris, IV 942, 943, 988D; Mehetnusekhet, IV 958M, Enekhnesneferibre, IV 988D, G, H; ornaments of, IV 988H; steward of, IV 958B.
- DIVINE FATHER (priestly title of low rank, also king's father-in-law) II, 97; 292, 302, 925; III 270, 958D; inspection of, I 610; acting as judge, III 65; Puemre, II 383; Eye, II 989, 992, 993; Senbef, IV 918; Psamtik, IV 1029.
- Divine father of Amon, IV 988H, J; Neferhotep, III 71; Perennefer, III 73; Beknekhonsu, III 566; Roy, III 623; Zedi, IV 547; Zekhonsefonekh, IV 668, 689, 691, 692; Nesupekeshuti, IV 668, 689; Wennofer, IV 668, 692; Efnamon, IV 692; Haremsaf, IV 706, 708.
- of Harsaphes: Musen, IV 787, 792; Pethut, IV 789, 792; Sheshonk, IV 787, 792; Namlot, IV 787, 792.

- of Sekhetre: Enekhwennofer, IV 718; Senbef, IV 718; Ptahhotep, IV 718.
- DIVINE HAND (=divine votress), IV 414.
- DIVINE MOTHER: Tentsepeh, IV 792; Kerome, IV 792; Temekhonsu, IV 792; Kepes, IV 792.
- DIVINE VOTRESS, IV 942.
- of Amon-Re, IV 511, 513, 521, 522; Nitocris, IV 942, 945, 958D, M, 988G; induction into office of, IV 958D, 986H; ornaments of, IV 958H.
- DOOR-KEEPER: of judgment-hall, II 711.
- of the temple of Edfu: Yuf, II 112.
- Chief of the door-keepers in the temple of Hathor, Pese'eke, IV 784; see also "Keeper of the door."
- DWELLERS IN THE PLACE OF THE HAND (priestly title), II 97.

E

- ELDEST OF THE CHAMBER, Uni, I 307.
- "Eldest of the hall" of the temple of Amon: Wenamon, IV 563.
- ENVOY: Wenamon, I 18; see King's messenger.
- EPER, IV 466.
- EPRU, IV 281.
- EXALTED ONES, I 413.
- EXCELLENT: Enebin, II 213.

F

- FAN-BEARERS, II 1014; III 41, 94, 332, 651; IV 76, 124; Mentuhotep, I 514; Amenhotep, II 912; Merire I, II 988; Eye, II 989, 992; Ahmose, II 1004; Huy, II 1029; Harmhab, III 16, 17; Meya, III 328; Amenemopet, III 204 n. b; Amenhirunamef, III 467, 471, 477; Seti, III 542; Piyay, III 644; Seti, III 646, 647.
- Chiefs of fan-bearers, II 935.
- "FATHER OF THE TWO LANDS": title given to Harmhab, III 26.
- Great father (=teacher), Senmut, II 364.
- FAVORITE, II 994, 996; were a prey to the terror of Heracleopolis, I 401.
- of Horus: Simontu, I 596; Harmhab, III 17.
- of the king: Mertityotes, I 55, 189; Senezemib, I 270; Harkhuf, I 332; Zau, I 381; Kheti II, I 409, 413;

- Thethi, I 423 ter, 423E; Henu, I 428; Amenemhet, I 442, 445; Meri, I 508; Mentuhotep, I 512; Mentuhotep, I 531; Khnumhotep, I 618; Khui, I 675; Sebekdidi, I 720; Senmut, II 352; Thutiy, II 371; Intef, II 767; Rekhpehtuf, III 642; Amenhotep, IV 498; Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
- Chief of favorites, Nesikhonsu, IV 680.
- Favorite of the king (lady's title): Nebet, I 349.
- Favorite of the Two Goddesses (one of the oldest of the Pharaoh's five titles, designating him as the protégé of Buto, serpent-goddess of the North, and Nekhbet, vulture-goddess of the South, the patron-goddesses of the kingdom; it stands second in the Pharaoh's fivefold titulary), I 169; II 120 et passim.
- FELLOW OF THE KING, in counseling, Mentuhotep, I 531.
- FIRST UNDER THE KING: Sesi, I 299; Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Thethi, I 423C.
- FOLLOWING THE KING, II 993; Thethi, I 423C; Enebni, II 213; Eye, II 993; Ahmose, II 1008; Harmhab, III 20.
- FOREMEN, I 697; foreman of the: Ineni, II 343; Senmut, II 352.
- of the Tomb, Beket, I 639.
- G
- GENERAL: Thutiy, I 24; Harmhab, III 16.
- of the army, II 925.
- GIRDLE, FASTENING OF (a rank?): Uni, I 294; Simontu, I 597.
- GOD (=king), I 262, 273 et passim.
- Great god, I 169, 176, 236 et passim; writing of, I 264.
- GOLDEN HORUS (one of the five royal titles), I 250 et passim.
- GOVERNOR, III 322, 323; Kam I 187.
- of Dep, Methen, I 172, 174, 201; Sinuhe, I 490; Mentuhotep, I 512; Sisebek, IV 1017.
- of the door of the southern countries; Uzehor, IV 980; Nesuhor, IV 990, 995.
- of the eastern highlands: Khnumhotep I I 625; Khnumhotep II, I 622, 624.
- of foreign countries: Pepi-nakht, I 356; Seti, III 542; Peramses, III 542.
- of the gold countries of Amon: Seti (II), III 647.
- of the gold country of Coptos, II 774.
- of the palace: Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Mentuhotep, I 533.
- of the pyramid city: Zau, I 348; Pepinakht, I 356.
- of the new towns: Nekonekh, I 216.
- of the northern countries, III 484.
- Governor of the residence city, III 484; IV 777; Amenemhet, I 438, 442, 445; Crown Prince Sesostri (II), I 521; Nehri, I 628; Enkhu, I 783; Hapuseneb, II 389; Rekhmire, II 675, 754; Amenhotep, II 923; Ramose, II 936, 937 n. a, 940; Seti, III 542; Peramses, III, 542; Khay, III 556, 560; Ta, IV 414; Khamwese, IV 511, 513, 522, 523, 531, 532, 540, 543; Nibmarenakht, IV 546; Paynozem I, IV 634; Paynozem II, IV 668.
- Governor of the South, IV 753; Uni, I 293, 320 bis; Harkhuf, I 326, 533; Sebni, I 364; Ibi, I 377; Amenemhet, I 445; Putoker, I 466 n. c; Thutnakht, I 689; Osorkon, IV 765, 767, 777; Namlot, IV 787, 792; Uzptahenkof, IV 787, 792; Henptah, IV 787, 792; Harpeson, IV 787, 792; Mentemhet, IV 904, 949.
- Governor of the Southern Countries, III 484; Thure, II 170 n. c (?); Nehi, II 651, 652; Huy, II 1029; Amenhotep, II 1030; Amenemopet, III 204 n. b; Seti (II), III 646.
- Governor of Elephantine of the South, II 172.
- Real governor of the South: Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Ibi, I 378.
- Governor of the two doors in the northern countries: Ahmose, IV 1014.
- GRAIN REGISTRAR: Simontu, I 598.
- GRANDEES, II 292 bis; III 264, 484.
- of the palace, head of: Thethi, I 423C, 423E.
- GREAT IN POSSESSIONS (queen's title): Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 346.
- GREAT LORD, see Lord.
- GREAT ONE OF THE KING OF LOWER EGYPT: Amenemhet, I 445; Sehetepibre, I 745.
- GREAT ONES, of Heracleopolis, I 401.

GREAT PILLAR IN THE NOME OF THEBES, Eti, I 459.

GREAT SEER, IV 281; Merire I, II 982, 983, 985, 987, 988.

—of Re-Atum in Thebes, Roy, III 623.

GREATEST OF THE GREAT: Senmut, II 355; Harmhab, III 20.

GREAT-HEARTED, Thethi, I 423C.

GUARDIAN, KING'S: Neferibre-nofer, IV 981.

H

HARBOR-MASTER, IV 572.

HEAD OF THE TWO LANDS, Harmhab, III 27.

HEIR OF A RULER: Kheti I, I 400.

HERALD, II 925 n. a; duties of, II 52, 764, 767; departments of office of: manager of court and palace ceremonies, II 764, 767; communications to the people by, II 764, 767; communications from the people to, II 764, 767; messenger of the judgment-hall, II 764, 767; communication to foreign lands by, II 764, 767.

—of the judgment-hall, Intef, II 763.

—King's herald, II 9, 11; Intef, II 763, 767, 768; Penrenut, IV 423; Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, IV 495, 511, 513, 522, 531; Ini, IV 546.

—Queen's herald: Keres, II 50, 52.

HIGH PRIEST, see Priest.

HIGH-VOICED: Henu, I 428.

HONORED BY HIS CITY-GOD: Ibi, I 378.

—by the king, Sabu-Ibebi, I 283, 284, 285, 286.

HORUS (the oldest of the Pharaoh's five titles, and the one identifying him with the sun-god; it stands first in the fivefold royal titulary), e. g., II 120 et passim.

HORUS, GOLDEN (third title of the Pharaoh in his fivefold titulary; the Greek rendering ἀντιπάλων ὑπέρστροφος suggests that the gold-sign (nb) on which the Horus-hawk stands, is but a symbol for Set, whose name is written with this sign. The Horus-hawk surmounting the symbol of Set would then mean, "Horus Victor over Set." But against this is the early literal rendering of the gold-sign, in II 145), e. g., II 120 et passim.

—hry ydb: Mentuhotep, I 533.

I

IMI-KHENTIT: Tutu, II 1009.

INSPECTORS, II 1026; IV 208, 360, 361, 407, 466, 652, 671, 676, 751, 958G; impost from, IV 225; laws on, III 58.

—of the cattle of Amon, IV 212.

—of the fields, II 437; III 275; IV 149.

—of the necropolis, IV 511, 512, 517, 522, 525, 533, 593.

—of the harem, IV 455; Petewnteamon, IV 431; Kerpes, IV 432; Khamopet, IV 433; Khammale, IV 434; Setim-perthoth, IV 435; Setimperamon, IV 436; Errem, IV 455.

—of the highlands, III 192.

—Chief inspector: Perehotep, IV 281; Hori, IV 281; Nesupekeshuti, IV 665, 668.

J

JUDGE: Anubisemonekh, I 171; Methen, I 172; Hotep, I 187; Zaty, I 343; —khet, I 343; Zau, I 348; Sinuhe, I 490; Ramose, II 936; Yui, III 32B; Khay, III 556, 560; receiving bribes, III 64.

—Attached to Nekhen, I 310; Hotep-hiryakhet, I 252; Sesi, I 299; Khui, I 299; Uni, I 307, 309; Harkhuf, I 332; Pepi-nakht, I 356; see also "Attached to Nekhen."

—Chief judge, I 307; IV 777; Senezemib, I 271, 273; Ini, I 373; Amenemhet, I 445; Mentuhotep, I 531.

—Field judge: Methen, I 174; son of Henutsen, I 185; see also "High-voiced."

—Judging the people and the inhabitants, Amenemhet, I 445.

—Justice, chief: Zau, I 347, 348; Ramose, II 936; Khay, III 556, 560.

—Chief of the six courts: Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Henu, I 428; Amenemhet, I 445; Rekhmire, II 713, 754.

K

KEEPER OF THE DOOR OF THE SOUTH: Zau, I 380; Intef, I 420; Henu, I 428; Amenemhet, I 445.

—of the door of the highlands, Khnum-hotep III, I 633.

—of the house of rolls, III 264.

—of the wardrobe of the temple (fourth in rank), I 550, 559; in charge of the wicks, I 560, 560.

—of the wide hall of the temple (sixth

- in rank), I 550; see also Door-keeper, Storeroom-keeper.
- KENBETI, II 719, 720, 722, 723, 727, 733, 734, 738, 745.
- KHETKHET-OFFICERS, III 66.
- KING, EGYPTIAN: divine birth of, II 122, 187, 189 et passim; choice of, by oracle, II 134-36; offers incense, II 139; station of, in temple ritual, see Station of the king; as Bull, Lion, Panther, see Index VII; mourning for nomarch, Kheti II, I 414.
- Names of, see Horus, Golden Horus, Two Goddesses, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Son of Re.
- Titles of: the double lord, III 285; enduring in monuments, I 441 et passim; excellent god, I 441 et passim; fashioner of beauty, I 423B; I 423G et passim; first in thrones, I 441 et passim; good god, I 492 et passim; great in love, I 441 et passim; "Great Pillar," I 420 n. d et passim; heir of Horus in his Two Lands, I 441 et passim; living forever, I 437, 440, 450, 456 et passim; living like Re forever, 423B, 423F 423G I 441, 443 et passim; lord of joy, I 441 et passim; mighty in fear, I 441 et passim; son of Hathor, I 423H; Sun of Egypt, IV 79, 82, 127; "who makes his Two Lands to live," I 420, and n. f, et passim; shade of the whole land, I 399 et passim; "Star of the South," I 511; White Bull, I 511 et passim; king among the Bedwin, Sinuhe, I 490.
- KING OF LOWER EGYPT, I 95, 145; III 175; appearance of, I 105, 114, 121, 123, 127, 129, 131, 134, 140, 141, 143, 150, 167.
- KING OF UPPER EGYPT, I 90; III 175; appearance of, I 99, 105, 116, 119, 121, 134, 140, 141, 143, 150, 167; magnates of, I 445, 745.
- KING OF UPPER AND LOWER EGYPT (early title of the Pharaoh, the fourth in his fivefold titulary: assumed by Menes as ruler of both kingdoms), e. g., II 120 et passim.
- KING'S CHILDREN, I 246, 256, 413; II 813; IV 54, 55 63, 77, 92, 124, 523, 524, 525, 528.
- KING'S CONCUBINES, IV 844.
- KING'S DAUGHTER, IV 844, 849; Ahmose-Nefretiri, II 34; Sebekemsaf, II 112; Nefrure, II 344; Hatshepsut, II 360; Sitamon, II 912; Meretaton, II 961, 1017; Meketaton, II 961; Amose-Sitkamose, IV 644; Makere, IV 740; Kerome, IV 755; Thespebast, IV 771, 774, 781; Tentseph, IV 787, 792; Tedenetebast, IV 795; Nestent IV 844; Nitocris, IV 942; Amenirdis I, IV 946; Enekneseferibre, IV 988C, D, H.
- KING'S ELDEST SON, I 66 n. g; Ameni, I 520; Zaty-Kenofer, I 389; Amenmose, II 811; Amenhirkhepeshef, III 482; Nesuhor, IV 990.
- KING'S HOUSE, see Index VII.
- KING'S MOTHER, IV 523, 525, 528, 696, 895; Neferhotepes, I 241; Eneknese-Merire I, I 345; Eneknese-Merire II, I 341, 346; Tetisher, II 33, 36; Ahhotep I, II 52, 111; Seniseneb, II 58; Ahmose, II 196; Mehetnusekhet, IV 792; Tentsey, IV 695, 787, 792; Kerome, IV 696, 787, 792.
- KING'S SISTER, IV 844, 895; Ahmose-Nefretiri, II 34; Sebekemsaf, II 110; Hatshepsut, II 360.
- KING'S SON (of his body), III 102, 124; IV 109, 121; Nekure, I 190, 193; Ameni, I 520; Kinen, I 776; Thutmose (IV), II 815; Ramses (II), III 132; Khamwese, III 350, 362, 474, 482, 552, 553, 554; Meriamon, III 350, 362; Seti, III 350, 362; Amenhirkhepeshef, III 350, 456, 482; Montu, III 362; Amenemuya, III 362; Setepnere, III 362; Ramses, III 456, 482; Perehirunamef, III 456, 482; Amenhirunamef, III 467, 474, 477; Siamon, IV 646; Yewepet, IV 705; Meriamon-Sheshonk, IV 740; Osorkon, IV 753; Sheshonk, IV 774; Yewelot, IV 794; Nesubenedded, IV 794.
- Viceroy of Kush: Thure, II 64, 170 n. e; Enebni, II 213; Nehi, II 651, 652; Mermose, II 852, 855; Huy, II 1023, 1025, 1026, 1029, 1036, 1038; Amenhotep, II 1030, 1038. Amenemopet, III 204 n. b, 477 bis.
- of Kush, III 289, 291, 292; IV 476; Huy, II 1023, 1025, 1029, 1036, 1038; Amenhotep, II 1030, 1038; Ini, III 198; Amenemopet, III 477 bis; Seti (II), III 642, 643, 646, 647; Hori, III 650; Paynehsi, IV 597; Hrihor, IV 615.

King's Son—

—of Ramses, Zepthefonekh, IV 699.

KING'S WIFE, IV 523, 525, 528, 844, 849; Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 341, 346; Sebekemsaf, II 110; Ahmose, II 196, 197; Nebetu, II 779; Nefretiri, IV 479; Isis, IV 523; Nesimut, IV 555; Bekurel, IV 555; Nestent IV 844.

GREAT KING'S WIFE: Tetisheri, II 33, 36; Ahmose-Nefretiri, II 34; Ah-hotep, II 110, 111, 113; Merseger, II 171; Ahmose, II 214; Hatshepsut, II 214, 232, 344, 360; Tiy, II 862, 864, 865, 867, 869, 1014, 1015, 1016; Nefernefruaton-Nofretete, II 959, 961, 984, 991, 995, 1010, 1015; Matnefrure, III 417; Nefrure, III 435; Nefretiri, III 500 bis, 501; Nubkhas, IV 517; 538; Ahmose-Sitkamose, IV 644; Kerome, IV 696, 760.

L

LAW-GIVER: Mentuhotep, I 531.

LAY-PRIEST, see Priest.

LEADER, IV 55, 123, 124; Hrihor, IV 612; Paynozem II, IV 668; Meriamon-Sheshonk, IV 740; Osorkon, IV 760.

—of the archers of Pharaoh: Paynehsi, IV 597.

—of the army: Intef, II 767; Yewepet, IV 705; Meriamon-Sheshonk, IV 740.

—of bowmen, III 581.

—of the crew of recruits: Henemi, I 343; Senezem, I 343; Amenemhet, I 731.

—of chariotry, IV 54, 71, 92, 397.

—of infantry, IV 54, 71, 92, 397.

—of the feasts of Amon: Meva, III 32B.

—of the king's workmen, III 173.

—of leaders, III 484.

—of the Magnates of South and North, Mentuhotep, I 533.

—of the palace: Thutiy, II 377.

—of the palace-hall: Kam, I 187.

—on the two sides, II 925.

LOCAL GOVERNOR OF DEP, see Governor.

LORD OF CHARIOTRY: Ramses (II), III 267.

—of infantry: Ramses (II), III 267.

—of the double gold-house: Ikhernefret, I 664.

—of the double silver-house: Ikhernefret, I 664.

—of gods, II 288, 294 et passim.

—of the palace, II 72; Simontu, I 596.

—of reverence: Khentemsemeti, I 613.

—of truth, royal title of Snefru, I 169.

—of the Black Land: Mentuhotep, I 532.

—of the Red Land: Mentuhotep, I 532.

—of Nekheb: Uni, I 293; Pepi-nakht, I 356; Ini, I 373; Ameni, I 518.

—of Nekhen, I 201.

—of the South, I 359.

—of the Two Lands (a royal title), I 250 et passim.

—of the two regions, Merikere, king of Heracleopolis, I 399.

—of Kadesh, II 585, 590.

—of the Lebanon cities, taken as captive, II 436.

—king, the double lord, III 285.

—mother of Kheti II acted as lord of Siut, I 414.

—great lord of the Cerastes Mountain: Ibi, I 377; Zau, I 381.

—of the Hare nome, Nenekhseskhnun, I 305.

—of Middle Egypt, Kheti I, I 403.

—of Nekheb: Khentemsemeti, I 609; Royenet, II 7; Baba, II 7; Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 7.

—of the Oryx nome: Khnumhotep I, I 464, 626; Ameni, I 518; Kheti, I 637 n. a.

—of the South, Hapuseneb, II 389.

—of the Theban nome, Intef, I 420.

—of the royal wardrobe, Mentuhotep I 533.

M

MAGNATES, IV 124, 566.

—of the palace, II 64.

—of the king of Upper Egypt: Amenemhet, I 445; Sehetepibre, I 745.

—of the South: standing in the two aisles before the vizier, II 675, 712; Ameni, I 650.

—of the South and North: Senmut, II 335.

—leader of magnates, I 533.

MAJESTY, I 211 et passim.

MAJOR-DOMO, IV 598; Thutmose IV, IV 672, 673.

—of the house of the Divine Votress of Amon-Re: Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, IV 511, 513, 522, 531.

MARSHAL, IV 944.

—of the two thrones, III 484; Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Thutnakht, I 689.

Marshal—

- Court marshal, III 69.
- MASTER OF THE BATH: Khuni, I 336.
- of the Double Cabinet: Khnumhotep, I 618; Sisatet, I 672 n. a, 673; Khe-nemsu, I 713, 716; Sebeko, I 716; Ameni, I 722; Sebek-hir-hab, I 725, 726; Ptahwer, I 728; Amenemhet, I 731; Harure, I 735.
- of the footstool of the palace: Uni, I 320 bis.
- of the harbor, IV 572.
- of horse: Peramses, III 542; Seti, III 542.
- of the horses of the king: Eye, II 989, 992; Perehirunamef, III 482.
- of the hunt: Nesuamon, IV 539.
- of the judgment-hall: Khentkhetwer, I 605; Ahmose, II 1004; Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000.
- of the royal weapons: Enebni, II 213.
- of the king's writings: Mentuhotep, I 533.
- of the palace: Senmut, II 352.
- of all people: Senmut, II 357.
- of the privy chamber, sitting on the right of the vizier, II 675.
- of all secrets, I 755.
- of secret things: Senezemib, I 270; Sabu-Ibebi, I 285; Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Mentuhotep, I 533 bis, 534; Ikhernofret, I 668; (to this office belonged the duty of clothing the god at his processions, I 745).
- of secrets of heaven, earth, and the nether world: Roy, III 623.
- of the secret things of the king: Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
- of the secret things of the king's wardrobe: Khentemseti, I 608.
- of the secret things of the palace: Ramose, II 936.
- of secret things of the temple, third in rank, I 550; Sehetepibre, I 745; Haremsaf, IV 706, 708.
- of the secret writings of the temple: Senmut, II 355; Rekhmire, II 748.
- of the suite, Mai, II 997.
- of the throne: Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
- of all wardrobes: Zau, I 348; Mentuhotep, I 533; Rekhmire, II 713; Ramose, II 936; Senbef, IV 918.
- Master-builder, I 212, 289, 298; III 484; IV 629; Merire-meriptahonekh, I 298, 299; Thethi, I 301.
- Master-workmen, IV 466.

- MAYOR: official head of a town or city, under the Empire, the successor of the count (h<sup>3</sup>iy-c) of the OK and MK., II 53, 692, 699, 701, 721, 722, 729, 735, 739, 742, 743, 768, 927 bis, 1041; III 82 n. b; IV 147, 533.
- Tribute from, II 708; taxes from, II 717.
- of Nekhen: Harmini, II 47, 48.
- of Thebes: Amenmose: IV 466; Peser, IV 513, 526, 527, 531.
- of Western Thebes: Pewero, IV 511, 512, 522, 527, 528, 535.
- Chief mayor, III 484.

MEASURER, CHIEF, Hui, II 929.

MEMBER OF THE COURT, Sabu-Ibebi, I 283, 285, 286.

MERINUTER, see Priest.

MESSENGERS, I 429; II 667, 926; III 616; IV 42, 582, 585, 586, 678, 843, 880, 944.

—of Amon: Wenamon, IV 570, 586, 590, 591.

—of the king's house, II 692, 710.

—of the vizier, II 675, 676, 680; duties of, II 682.

—of Bekhten, III 436.

—circuit messenger, II 692.

—divine messenger, said of a portable statue, IV 586.

—king's messenger, I 492; II 120, 206, 207, 254, 255, 260, 261, 262, 337, 371, 423, 651; IV 408; duties of, III 642; Intef, I 467; Amenhotep, II 1030; Harmhab, III 13, 20; Ramose, III 372; Rekhpehtuf, III 642; Neferhor, III 643; Hori, III 645; Ubekhu, III 650; Hori, IV 485; Ahmose, IV 1014.

—of Kheta, Terteseb, III 371, 372; second messenger of Kheta, III 371.

MISTRESS OF ALL GODS: Wereret, II 288.

MOUNTAINEER (necropolis official), I 584, 585.

N

NEHEBKAUF (=“who controls his ka's”) in the upper country: Eti, I 459; also applied to a well-known mortuary divinity, I 459 n. b.

NOBLES, I 6, 307, 349; II 236, 238, 288, 289, 353, 368; III 101; IV 52, 54, 55, 65, 123, 124, 281, 425, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 444, 466, 495;

- 511, 513, 517, 521, 522, 524, 531, 533, 534, 765, 944, 1018.
 —Conducted by the herald, II 767;
 of court of examination, IV 425, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 444, 456; of judicial office, chief of, q. v.;
 of Elephantine, I 6; of Kheta, III 419.
 —Great nobles: Hrihor, IV 612.
 —Nobleman: Uni, I 42; Kheti I, I 400.
 —Noblest of the noble: Senmut, II 355.
- NOMARCHS, I 312, 398; functions of, I 398; Methen, I 172, 174; Kheti, I 398.
 —of Heracleopolis: Somtous-Tefnakhte, IV 944.
 —of Hermonthis: ancestors of Intef, I 419 n. c.
 —of Thebes: Intef, I 419.
- NURSE: Eye, II 989.
 —of the god (= Pharaoh) in the private chamber: Khentemseti, I 609.
- O
- OBLATION-BEARERS, IV 515; chief of, see under Chief.
- OFFICER, II 667, 987; III 51, 52, 54, 55; IV 40, 52, 65, 71, 124, 147, 149, 593.
 —of the army, III 340; IV 70.
 —of cavalry, III 584.
 —of the court, II 236.
 —of court fishermen, IV 466.
 —of the gendarmes, II 927.
 —of the infantry: Tefnakhte, IV 452.
 —of marines, III 197.
 —Navy officer: Amenemhab, II 579, 591,
 —Sdm-w-officers.
- OFFICIAL BODY OF THE KING, I 429; commander of, I 445.
- OFFICIAL STAFF (= local court), consisting of divine fathers, III 65; prophets of the temple, III 65; officials of the court, III 65; priests of the gods, III 65; connivance of, III 58; remittance of impost from, III 63; bribery of, III 64.
- OFFICIALS, I 165, 206, 281, 307; II 335, 384, 666, 667, 935, 990, 993, 1002, 1039; III 10, 12, 59, 61, 101, 271, 272, 322, 323; IV 71, 281, 283, 338, 409, 525, 958H; duties of, II 666, 667, 668; III 58.
 —of the court, III 65, 437.
 —of the treasury: Harnakht, I 718.
 —of Nubia, III 643.
 —District officials: see District officials.
 —Frontier officials, III 629, 636; impost from, IV 225.
 —hsh-official, II 881.
 —kj<sup>o</sup>-yb-officials, II 708.
- ORDERLIES, IV 281.
 —of his majesty, III 450; Nekri, II 1 n. c.
- OVERSEER, III 210; IV 583; Behkesi, I 365.
 —of the administration of divine offerings: Sesi, I 299.
 —of the bounty of the king's field of offerings: Kam, I 187.
 —of cattle, II 1041; IV 150.
 —of the cattle of Amon, IV 212, 547, 548; Senmut, II 354, 356; Amenhotep, II 912; Pay, IV 224.
 —of the castle of Pharaoh, III 57.
 —of commissions: Methen, I 173.
 —of craftsmen, chief of: Intef, II 775.
 —of the crown-possessions, I 312.
 —of the fields of Amon: Senmut, II 354.
 —of flax: Methen, I 172.
 —of the gardens of Amon: Senmut, II 352, 354, 356.
 —of the gold-house, III 484; Keres, II 52.
 —of the double gold-house: Mentuhotep, I 533; Thutiy, II 371.
 —of the granary, II 872; IV 498; Henu, I 428; Ineni, II 43; Nebamon, IV 517; Menmarenakht, IV 546; Paynehsi, IV 597.
 —of the double granary: Mentuhotep, I 533; Intef, II 768.
 —of the granary of Amon: Senmut, II 350, 367.
 —of the double granary of Amon: Ineni, II 43, 343.
 —of the granary of the temple of Aton: Hatey, II 932.
 —of the granaries: Hrihor, IV 615.
 —of grain: Henku, I 281.
 —of every handicraft: Thutiy, II 371.
 —of the royal harem: Huy, II 1014; Peynok, IV 429; Mesedsure, IV 430.
 —of herds, IV 466; Hori, III 82 n. b; Huy, IV 338; Penhuibin, IV 455; Beknekhonsu, IV 466.
 —of the highland, I 589.
 —of the horn of the cattle of Amon, IV 212.
 —of horn and hoof: Henu, I 428.
 —of horn, hoof, and feather, III 486; Sehetepibre, I 745.

Overseer—

- of hundred, II 617, 700; reporting to the vizier, II 676, 708.
- of land, II 686.
- of the ka-house, seventh in rank in the temple, I 550.
- of the king's hall: Nibamon, II 778.
- of the king's house: Thutnakht, I 689.
- of the king's records: Zau, I 348.
- of the necropolis of Siut, I 582, 584, 585.
- of palace: Intef, I 390.
- of the palace-baths: Kam, I 187.
- of the two pleasure-marshes: Sehetepibre, I 745.
- of royal property: Sehetepibre, I 745.
- of the provision magazine: Methen, I 172.
- of the pyramid: Thethi, I 184.
- of the <sup>1</sup> of Sekhmet: Iroi, IV 445.
- of the silver-house, II 987; III 484; Keres, II 52.
- of all works of the house of silver: Senmut, II 352.
- of the double silver-house, Mentuhotep, I 533, Thutiy, II 371.
- of stone-work: Uzai, I 343.
- of the storehouse, fifth in rank in the temple, I 550.
- of the storehouse of Amon: Senmut, II 352, 356.
- of that which is and that which is not: Henu, I 248.
- of that which heaven gives, earth creates, and the Nile brings: Amenemhet, I 438.
- of the temples: Henu, I 428; Hapuseneb, II 389.
- of the temples of Neit: Senmut, II 358; Mai, II 997, 1002.
- of š t y: Waycheset. IV 726.
- of ten, I 276.
- of the treasury, II 925; Meriptah, II 923; Meya, III 32B; Thutmose, III 210; Piyay, III 644; Pay, IV 638.
- of the gold treasury, Pefnefdineit, IV 1017.
- of the western highlands, Mentuhotep, I 533.
- of the White House, II 1020; IV 495, 511, 512, 522; Henu, I 428; Ramose, II 947 n. a; Huy, II 1014; Setemhab, IV 19, 20; Mentemtowe, IV 423, 426; Pefroi, IV 423, 426; Pere, IV 442; Khamtir, IV 466; Menmarenakht, IV 546; Zekhonsfonekh, IV 668, 689, 691, 692; scribe of —, IV 512, 522.

- of the double White House, I 505.
- of works in the mountain of Gritstone: Harmhab, III 17.
- of works in the temples: Minhotep, II 800.
- of workmen, II 383.
- Chief overseer: Yekerib, I 343; Khnum-enkhef, I 343; Hemukhrow, I 343.
- Chief overseer of the estate, II 925.
- Chief overseer of the White House: Payneferhir, IV 637.
- Chief overseer of works in the temple of Amon: Beknekhonsu, III 564, 566, 567.
- Conductor of overseers: Amenemhet, I 445.
- Gang-overseer of the crown possessions in the Oryx nome, I 522.

P

PHARAOH, see King.

PHYSICIANS: chief, I 246; Nenekhsekhmet, I 238, 240; Pefnefdineit, IV 1017.

PILLAR, of his mother (a priestly office), II 133, 240; III 155 n. b; Prince Thutmose (III), II 138.

—of the South: Sehetepibre, I 745.

PILOT, II 252.

—of the people: Mentuhotep, I 531.

POLICE, captain of, q. v.; chief of, q. v.

POSSESSED OF LOVE: Ibi, I 378.

PREFECTS OF EGYPT, Roman, Momen's theory of, I 28.

PRIEST, II 766; III 413; IV 124, 468, 906, 927, 1025; see also Prophet; Divine father; Shepseshathor, I 218, 221; Tetheri, IV 547, 550, 553; Nesuamon, IV 551; acting as judges, III 64, 65.

—of Amon, 925; III 624.

—of Edfu: Yuf, II 112, 113.

—of Horus: Khnumhotep, II, I 624.

—of Khnum: Khentemsemeti, I 609. of Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-the-bes; Khonsu-hetneterneb, III 432.

—of Min, Neferhotepur, I 776.

—of Pakht, II 301; Khnumhotep II, I 624.

—of goddess Seshat, I 109.

—of Thoth: Neferhor, III 643.

—of the northern crown: Khentemsemeti, I 609.

—of the southern crown: Khentemsemeti, I 609.

- Priest*—
 —Priestesses of Ptah, III 400.
 * k -PRIEST OF KARNAK: Hariesese, IV 753.
 CHIEF PRIEST OF THE RAM-GOD: Seti, III 542.
 GREAT-PRIEST OF ANUBIS, I 572.
 HIGH PRIEST OF AMON, I 22; II 925; IV 539, 574, 587, 747; revolt by, IV 486; succession of, I 60 n. a; III 622, 626; title carried by divine consort, Enekhnesneferibre, IV 988D, G, H; Rise as King, IV 25-34, 139-45, 151-79, 189-226, 218-19, 224, 236-37, 405, 486-98, 592-94, 601-3, 608-626; see also "First prophet of Amon."
 —Meriptah, II 929, 930, 931; Nebunef, III 255, 257; Beknekhonsu, III 563, 565, 566, 568; Rome, III 618, 621; Roy, III 618, 623, 626; IV 487; Beknekhonsu, III 618; IV 487; Ram-snakht, IV 487, 489, 494, 495; Nesu-amon, IV 487; Amenhotep, IV 487, 489, 494, 495, 523, 531, 532, 534; Hrihor, IV 566, 580, 593, 594, 600, 610, 611, 612, 615, 617, 621, 622, 624, 626; Payonekh, IV 631, 632, 633, 634, 640, 641; Paynozem I, IV 631, 632, 633, 634, 637, 638, 639, 640, 642; Zekhonsefonekh, IV 650; Masaheret, IV 647; Menkheperre, IV 650, 652, 653, 654, 655, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661; Nesubenedded, IV 662; Paynozem II, IV 663, 668, 671; Pesibkhenno, IV 688; Yewepet, IV 607, 700, 705; Harsiese, IV 698; Osorkon, IV 698, 753, 755, 760, 762, 769, 770, 777; Meriamon-Sheshonk, IV 740; Harsiese, IV 698, 753, 794, Takelot, IV 698, 794; Yewelot, IV 794, 795; Nesubenedded, IV 794; Harkheb, IV 952.
 —of Aton, Merire I, II 982, 985; see also "Great seer."
 —of Nekhbet: Setau, IV, 414.
 —of Onouris: Amenhotep, II 818.
 —of Osiris: Nebwawi, II 179, 181.
 —of Ptah at Memphis, IV 338; Ptahshepses, I 258; Sabu-Ibebi, I 283, 286; Sabu-Thety, I 287; Khamwese, III 552 n. l; Takelot, IV 781; Pediese, IV 781; Pefnefdibast, IV 774; ; the two, of Memphis, I 211, 212, 239, 288; sacred possessions and duties of, I 288.
 —of Re, at Heliopolis, Patonemhab, III 22 n. a; the two, I 165.
 of Set: Seti, III 542.
 —High priestess of Amon, IV 414 n. c.
 LAY-PRIESTS (Wnw—or "hour-priests," laymen who served periodically in the temples), IV 906, 958D.
 —of Amon at Karnak, II 353; IV 926, 988H, J; at Tanis, IV 217.
 —of the temple of Anubis, I 576, 580.
 —of Min at Coptos, I 776; complaint by, I 777.
 —of Osiris at Abydos, I 668, 783; II 97; III 263.
 —of Upwawet, lord of Siut, I 539, 544, 547, 554.
 MERI-NUTER PRIEST: Khui, I 349; Putoker, I 466 n. c; Mentuhotep, I 533; Rekhmire, II 713; Ramose, II 936; Huy, II 1036; Khay, III 556, 560; Enekhhor, IV 958 B.
 MORTUARY PRIEST (k-servant), I 201, 204, 205, 538; II 908, 996; III 271; Mer, I 218; Keksire, I 218; of Senuonekh, I 232-35; of Senezemib, I 274.
 —of Menet-Khufu, endowment of, I 630; duties of, I 630.
 —of Siut, duties of, I 538, 562; in charge of the statue of Hepzesh, I 542, 544, 555, 562, 574; kindling the fire on News Year's night, I 562.
 —Mortuary priests divided into phyles, I 274; chief of, see Index V.
 —Mortuary lay-priests, III 277.
 —Assistant mortuary priest, I 202.
 —Inferior mortuary priest, I 202.
 —Chief mortuary priest, Ptah, I 182.
 RITUAL PRIEST (hry-hb), I 246; II 97, 239, 766; III 31, 78, 160; Re-am, I 281; Merire-Meriptah-onekh II, I 298; Isi, I 333; Harkhuf, I 326, 332, 336; Pepi-Nakht, I 356; Sebni, I 364; Mekhu, I 365, 370; Putoker, I 466 n. c; Neferhotep, III 72; duties of, II 239; tenth in rank in the temple, I 550.
 —of Amon, IV 988H.
 —of Buto-Upet-Towe: Seti, III 542.
 —Chief ritual priest, I 370; IV 871, 958D; Zau, I 348; Pediamenestowe, IV 881; "stretched the cord" at the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone for the temple in Heliopolis, I 506.
 SEM-PRIEST: Zau, I 348; Mentuhotep, I 533; Ikhernofret, I 668; Schetepibre, I 746; Hapuseneb, II 389; Rekhmire, II 713; Ramose, II 936; Khamwese, III 552, 553, 554; Roy,

- III 623; Nesuamon, IV 541; Senbef, IV 918.
 —of Ptah. Khamwese, III 557; Take-lot, IV 781; Pediese, IV 781; Take-lot, IV 774; Harsiese, IV 779; Tef-nakhte, IV 830.
w <sup>c</sup> b-PRIEST, II 97 bis, 283; III 31, 78, 160; IV 250, 958D, F, 1018; regulations of, IV 250.
 —of Amon, Beknekhonsu, III 565; IV 988H.
 —of Heliopolis, IV 250.
 —of Siut, I 538, 563, 564; endowment of, I 538; Hepzefi, I 552.
 —Great w <sup>c</sup> b-priest of Amon, Harsiese, IV 753.
wtb-PRIEST (or wqb; perhaps better sm); see Schaefer, Mysterien, Sethe, Untersuchungen IV, 63; Ikhernofret, I 668.
 PRIESTHOOD, later, I 24.
 PRIESTHOOD OF HATHOR, I 216.
 PRIEST-KINGS, I 22.
 PRINCE, II 185, 993, 1006; III 174, 287, 290, 291, 322, 325, 422, 466, 471, 613; IV 71, 77, 92, 147, 208, 238, 343, 360, 397, 402, 460, 494, 497, 583, 818, 819, 821, 822, 830, 868, 873, 881; august office of, II 669; supplies for, furnished by the herald, II 767; Sekhemkere, I 54; Tefibi, I 394; Mentuhotep, I 533; Kheti, I 637 n. a; Senmut, II 350; Harmhab, III 13, 27; Amenhirunamef, III 467, 471; Paynozcm II, IV 668.
h <sup>a</sup> ty-<sup>c</sup>, only from Nubian time on (in Empire "mayor," q. v., and before Empire, "count," q. v.): Pethenef, IV 815, 878; Pemou, IV 815, 878; Zeamonefonekh, IV 878; Akenesh, IV 878; Nektharneshenu, IV 878; Hurabes, IV 878; Zedkhiyu, IV 878; Pebes, IV 878; Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000 n. a.
 —of Esneh: Pahrī, II n. 3b.
 —of the greatest of companions: Harmhab, III 20.
 —of the king: confidant of, q. v.
 —of the palace, Zau, I 381.
 —of Thebes, Nesuptah, IV 904; Mentemhet, IV 904, 948.
 CROWN PRINCE, see King's eldest son.
 HEREDITARY PRINCE (rp <sup>c</sup> ty), III 102, 124; IV 110, 121, 124 n. b, 304, 347; administration of law executed by, III 25; Zau, I 348; Khui, I 349; Meru, I 370; Tefibi, I 391, 395; Kheti I, I 391; Kheti II, I 391; Intef, I 419, 420; Amenemhet, I 438, 442, 445; Khnumhotep I, I 464, 625, 626; Intef, I 467; Putoker, I 466 n. c; Sinuhe, I 490; Mentuhotep, I 512; Amenemhet I 518; Crown Prince Ameni, I 520; Crown Prince Sesostris (II), I 521; Mentuhotep, I 531, 532; Hepzefi, I 537, 538, 539; Simontu, I 596; Khentkhetwer, I 605; Nehri, I 628; Khnumhotep II, I 622, 624, 631, 639; Nakht II, I 632; Ikhernofret, I 664; Sebek-khu-Zaa, I 683; Sehetepibre, I 745; Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet, II 20; Neferperet, II 28; Ineni, II 43; Keres II 52; Nehsi, II 290; Senmut, II 350, 354, 362, 366; Thutiy, II 371; Puemre, II 383, 385; Hapuseneb, II 389; Nehi, II 652; Rekhmire, II 713, 717, 729, 748, 754, 757; Intef, II 763, 767, 775; Minhotep, II 800; Khamhet, II 872; Amenhotep, II 912, 923, 924, 925; Ramose, II 936, 937 n. a; Mai, II 997, 1002, Huy, II 1036; Amenhotep, II 1040; Harmhab, III 8, 16 bis, 20, 25, 27; Ramses (II), III 132, 267; Amenhirunamef, III 474, 477; Amon-hirkhepeshef, III 482; Seti, III 542; Peramses, III 542; Khay, III 556, 560; Beknekhonsu, III 563, 568; Roy, III 623; Seti (II), III 646 n. i; Ramses (III), IV 400; Amenhotep, IV 495; Hrihor, IV 612; Sheshonk, IV 774; Beknef, IV 830; Pediese, IV 868, 874, 875, 879; Senbef, IV 918; Pekrur, IV 932; Uzahor, IV 980; Neferibre-nofer, IV 981; Nesuhor, IV 995; Pefnefdineit, IV 1017.
 HEREDITARY PRINCESS: Beket, I 628; Ahmose-Nefretiri, II 34; Hatshepsut, II 360; Nefernefruaton-Nofretete, II 959; Baekhesneferibre, IV 988 I.
 PRINCESS OF KHETA: Petkhep, III 391.
 —of Kush, II 1035.
 PRIVY COUNCILOR, I 505; Ptahshepses, I 259; Harkhuf, I 332, 336; Harmhab, III 16, 20.
 —of the right hand: Senmut, II 358.
 —of the treasurer of god: Idi, I 466 n. c.
 PROPHETS (a priestly office), I 165, 217, 349; III 77, 103, 160; IV 360, 466, 906, 908, 958D, F; in charge of the sacred writings, II 353.
 —of the temples, acting as judges, III 65.
 —regulation of, II 754.

Prophets—

- of Abydos, I 535, 746.
  - of the house of King Amenhotep: Perenkheh, IV 512.
  - of Amon, IV 753, 988H, J; Prince Thutmose (III), II 138; Senmut, II 351; Intef, II 775; Nesuamon, IV 531; Enkhofnamon, IV 665, 689; Khamwese, IV 795; Nesuptah, IV 904.
  - of Anubis: Mentuhotep, I 533.
  - of the gods of Buto, Zau, I 348.
  - of dues: Harhotep, II 110.
  - of Harkefti: Mentuhotep, I 533.
  - of Harsaphes: IV 747.
  - of Hathor of Diospolis Parva: Wayeheset, IV 726.
  - of Horus: Mentuhotep, I 533.
  - of Horus of Letopolis: Pediharsomtous, IV 878.
  - of Horus of the South, lord of Perzoz: Wayeheset, IV 726.
  - of Horus, Amenhotep, chief of, II 912.
  - of Isis: Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000.
  - of Khnum, IV 150.
  - of “Khonsu-the-Plan-Maker-in-Thebes”: Khonsuhetnerneb, I I I 432.
  - of Mat: Mentuhotep, I 531, 533; Senmut, II 352; Ramose, II 936; Khay, III 556.
  - of Min-Harsiese: Usermare-Nakht, IV 465.
  - of Montu: Nesupehnermut, IV 660; Hetamenthenofer, IV 660.
  - of Neit: Harpeson, IV 787, 792; Tefnakhte, IV 830.
  - of Ptah, III 413; Sabu-Ibebi, I 284; Senbef, IV 918.
  - of Sebek of Peronekh: Paynehsi, IV 547.
  - of Sokar: Sabu-Ibebi, I 284; Sabu-Thety, I 288.
  - of Soped: Ahmose, IV 1014.
  - of Sutekh, lord of Oasis: Wayeheset, IV 726; Nesubast, IV 726.
- CHIEF PROPHET, IV 908.
- in Heracleopolis: Namlot, IV 787, 792; Uzptahenkhoi, IV 787, 792; Henptah, IV 787, 792; Harpeson, IV 787, 792; Henptah, IV 787, 792.
  - of Horus, lord of Sebi: Harmhab, III 20.
- CHIEFS of the prophets, IV 466.
- of Thebes: Nesuptah, IV 950.
  - of North and South: Ramose, II 936.

- in Hermopolis: Thutiy, II 371.
- in temple of Min, at Panopolis: Nebwawi, II 181.
- of Montu of Hermonthis: Senmut, II 352.
- First prophet of Amon (=high-priest of Amon): Meriptah, II 931; Beknekhonsu, III 565 n. c; Roy, III 623 n. c; Ramses-nakht, IV 466; Amenemopet, IV 480.
- Second prophet of Amon, Enen, II 931; Beknekhonsu, III 565; Roy, III 623.
- of dues: Yuf, II 112.
- Third prophet of Amon: Amenemhet, II 931; Beknekhonsu, III 565; Roy, III 623; Zeptahefonekh, IV 699; Pediamennebnesstowe, IV 953.
- of Khonsu: Merthoth, IV 665, 691; Efnamon, IV 492.
- Fourth prophet of Amon: Simut, II 931; Nesupehnermut, IV 660; Hetamenthenofer, IV 660; Mentemhet, IV 904, 949, 951.

INFERIOR PROPHET: Ini, I 373; Idi, I 466 n. c.

—of the pyramid-city: Uni, I 307.

MORTUARY PROPHET, II 908; III 271.

SUPERIOR PROPHET, I 312, 349; III 484; a procession due to, I 569; highest in rank in the temple, I 354, 550; Intef, I 420; Putoker, I 466 n. c; Hepzeñ, I 538-39, 544, 549, 554, 559, 568, 572, 576, 582, 589; Thutnakht, I 689.

—of all gods: Seti, III 542.

—of Hathor: Nekonekh, I 216.

—of Min: Intef, I 467; Putoker, I 466 n. c.

—of Upwawet, lord of Siut, I 550, 551; Tefibi, I 395; Kheti I, I 395; Kheti II, I 395, 426; Hepzeñ, I 568.

PROPHETESS OF HATHOR (in Heracleopolis): Ireteru, IV 792.

Q

QUEEN: see King's wife, Great king's wife; table-scribe of, III 58.

TITLES OF:

—Very favored: Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 346.

—Very amiable: Enekhnes-Merire I, I 345; Enekhnes-Merire II, I 346.

—Queen of the land: see Index I.

QUEEN-MOTHER, IV 895; Tiy, II 1016.

R

RECEIVER OF INCOME: rank of, II 675.

- RECORDER OF THE DISTRICT, II 717, 719, 720, 724, 727, 728, 736, 737, 738, 741, 745.
 —of district officials, II 717, 729.
 —of the troops: Harmhab, III 20.
- REGISTRAR OF GRAIN, I 598.
- REVERED: Nenekhsckhmet, I 240; Re-am, I 281; Harkhuf, I 336; Meri, I 508; Imsu, I 529; Simontu, I 598.
 —by the god: Zau, I 348.
 —by the great god, Henutsen, I 185; Pepi-nakht, I 356; Ikudidi, I 526.
 —by Hathor: Hezethekenu, I 216; Ikhnoubet, I 230.
 —by Ptah: Ptahshepses, I 262; Sabu-Ibebi, I 285.
 —by Osiris: Uni, I 293, 324.
- RITUAL PRIEST: see Priest.
- RULER, an unprecise rendering of the unprecise ḥkꜣ, which signifies, ruler, prince, nomarch, I 400 n. a.; III 175; IV 818 et passim; Methen, I 174.
 —in the Cerastes-Mountain: Henku, I 281.
 —of fields: Methen, I 174.
 —of Southern Perked: Methen I, 172, 174.
 —of towns, IV 398.
 —of the "New Towns": Nehri, I 628.
 —of rulers: Kheti I, I 400.
 —heir of a ruler: I 400.
 —palace ruler: Methen I, 172, 174.
- S
- SANDAL-BEARER, Uni, I 320 bis.
- SATISFYING THE KING: Intef, I 420 et passim.
- SCRIBE: I 5; II 385, 766; IV 581, 784.
- SCRIBES, II 53, 717, 986; IV 52, 466, 652, 671, 676, 958G; Anubisemonekh, I 171; Ptah, I 182; Zaty, I 343; —khet, I 343; Imsu, I 529; Thutiy, II 275; Ineni, II 343; Thutiy, II 371; Intef, II 767; Hatey, II 932; Merire, II 1043; Hui, III 210; Amenhirkhepeshef, III 350; Neferhor, III 643; May, IV 423; Amennakht, IV 526; Nesupekeshuti, IV 665.
 —of the army, II 925; IV 466.
 —of the army-lists: Sule, IV 466.
 —of the deputy of the army: Ramsesnakht, IV 466.
 —of the archives: Neferhor, III 643; Piyay, III 644; Peremhab, IV 423; Mai, IV 426, 452.
 —of computation: Intef, II 763.
 —of the crown-possessions: Hori, IV 465.
 —of the district, II 719, 723, 725, 726, 727, 729, 731, 738, 740, 744; IV 529.
 —of the domain: Penno, IV 482.
 —of the harem: Simontu, I 598; Pere, IV 450.
 —of the great harem: Simontu, I 598; Pendua, IV 430.
 —of the hieroglyphs, I 755.
 —of the king's records: Henhathor, I 218, 221, 225; Khenu, I 299; Seti (II), III 647.
 —of rolls of Pharaoh, IV 498.
 —of the marine: Mereri, I 390.
 —of the mayor, II 721; IV 529.
 —of the necropolis, IV 530; Horishere, IV 526, 529; Pebes, IV 526, 529.
 —of the Theban Necropolis: Butehamon, IV 640.
 —of the pyramid-phyle: Pepi-nakht, I 356.
 —of the recorder, II 719, 720, 727, 729, 736, 737, 738, 741, 745.
 —of recruits: Thaneni, II 820; Harmhab, III 17.
 —of the sacred book: performed the "stretching of the cord" at foundation ceremonies, I 506.
 —of the house of Sacred Writings, IV 460; Messui, IV 445; Shedmezer, IV 445; Ramses-eschhab, IV 465.
 —of the temple: eighth in rank in the temple, I 550; Neferhotepur, I 776; Perhotep, IV 281; Hori, IV 281; Zosersukhonsu, IV 640; Penamon, IV 647.
 —of the altar: ninth in rank in the temple, I 550.
 —of the cattle of Amon, IV 212.
 —of the House of Amon, III 624; IV 531; Merithoth, IV 665.
 —of the Sacred Treasury of Amon: Siamon, I 777.
 —of the overseer of the treasury: Paynozem, IV 527.
 —of the assistant treasurer: Yuf, II 114.
 —of the vizier, II 675, 712; Seneb, I 783; Penebik, IV 512, 522; Nesupekeshuti, IV 668.
 —of the White House: Peluka, IV 439; Penamon, IV 647.
 —of the overseer of the White House of Pharaoh, IV 511.
- CHIEF SCRIBE: Senezem, I 343; Thutmose, IV 281.

Chief Scribe—

- of the king's writings: Senezemib, I 271, 273.
- of the king, III 291.
- of the provision magazine: Methen, I 172.
- of the vizier, II 670; IV 511.
- of the overseer of the White House: Paynofer, IV 512, 522.
- FIELD SCRIBE, II 717.
- of the waters of Abydos, I 529.
- of Horus of Edfu: Denereg, II 114.
- INFERIOR SCRIBE: Hotep, I 187; Sesi, I 299.
- KING'S-SCRIBE: Nonekhsesi, I 230; Amenhotep, II 915; III 50, 102, 332; IV 121, 124 n. b, 491; Simontu, I 596, 598 bis; Thaneni, II 820; Mermose, II 855; Khamhet, II 872; Amenhotep, II 914, 924, 925; Khampet, II 929, 930, 931; Eye, II 989, 992; Ahmose, II 1004; Amenhotep, II 1038, 1040; Ramose, II 1043; Harmhab, III 8, 16, 17; Meya, III 32B; Thutemhab, III 437; Amenhirunamef, III 467, 471, 477; Peramses, III 542; Seti, III 542; Piyay, III 644; Seti (II), III 647; Setemhab, IV 20; Pakauti, IV 485; Hori, IV 485; Neferkere-em-Per-Amon, IV 495, 522; Nesuamon, IV 511, 513, 523, 526, 528, 531, 533, 540; Pameriamon, IV 546; Bek, IV 668.
- of the army, II 923; Paynehsi, IV 597.
- of the Hittite king, III 337.
- SACRED SCRIBE, III 437; IV 958D, 988H.
- SEAL-SCRIBE, Amenemhet-Ameny, II 686 n. d.
- SUPERIOR KING'S-SCRIBE: Amenhotep II 916;
- Table scribe: Ani, II 977.
- of harem, III 58.
- of queen, III 58.
- SEALER OF CONTRACTS IN THE HOUSE OF AMON: Ineni, II 43.
- SEER, THE GREAT: see Great seer.
- SEM-PRIEST: see Priest.
- SERVANT: royal, I 307; Thethi, I 423D.
- of the royal harem of the queen: Sinuhe, I 490.
- of Neit: Khentemseteti, I 609.
- of the royal toilet, Khentemseteti, I 609.

- real servant, Meri, I 508; Khentemseteti, I 608.
- SHADE-BEARERS, II 1014; III 40; see also Sunshade-bearers.
- SHEIK OF THE HIGHLANDS: Ibshe, I 620 n. d.
- of the Red Land, I 423 D, 429.
- of Upper Tenu, I 494.
- of villages, II 692, 699, 701, 768.
- Tribute from, II 708.
- SISTRUM-BEARER OF HARSAPHEs, chief of, q. v.
- SMALL LORD, I 458, 459.
- SMITER OF ALL COUNTRIES: Sahure, I 236, 250, 267.
- SON OF RE (fifth title of the Pharaoh in his fivefold titulary; it was introduced at the close of the Fifth Dynasty on the triumph of the Heliopolitan priests of Re, the sun-god), e. g., II 20 et passim; origin of title of, II 187.
- “Son of Re” put within the cartouche, I 423H, n. b.
- SON OF A RULER: Kheti I, I 400, 401, 402.
- of a daughter of a ruler: Kheti I, I 400.
- STANDARD-BEARER, III 208; IV 70; Pe'aoke, II 839; Kara, IV 423, 426.
- of the infantry, Hori, IV 423, 426, 453.
- of the marines: Hori, IV 531.
- STEWARD, III 484; IV 401; Henu, I 428; Ikudidi, I 526; Thutiy, II 275; Khampet, II 929, 930; Sebeknakht, II 931; Ramose, II 1043; Ramsesnakht, III 633; Penithowe, IV 338; Ini, IV 546.
- Collecting taxes, III 55.
- in charge of herds, IV 224.
- of Amon: Semut, II 290, 350, 352, 353, 354, 357, 366; Piyay, III 644; Pay, IV 224.
- of the court: Pameriamon, IV 546.
- in Egypt: Senekh, I 455.
- of estates of Pharaoh, II 871; Ahmose, II 1004.
- of Horus: Penno, IV 474.
- of the House [of Shadow-of Re]: Huy, II 1014.
- of the king's daughter: Amenhotep, II 919.
- of the king's wife: Nibamon, II 779.
- of the palace: Nekonekh, I 216, 217, 224.
- of the storehouse of the leader of works: Khui, I 675.

Steward—

—of the southern city (=Thebes): Thutmose, III 32C.

CHIEF STEWARD, II 706. Senmut, II 351, 361; Intef, II 768; Harmhab, III 20; Pefnefdineit, IV 1017, 1025.

—of Amon, Senmut, II 354, 356.

—of the divine consort: Ibe, IV 958B, G.

—of the king: Senmut, II 354, 357.

—of the king's mother: Keres, II 52.

—of the princess: Senmut, II 362.

STOREROOM KEEPER: Yatu, I 723.

—of the palace, Kheye, I 750.

STRETCHING THE MEASURING CORD, I 506; Amenemhet, I 445.

STRONG OF BOW, Kheti II, I 410.

STRONG-VOICED: administrative position, having to do with lands, Methen, I 172.

SUBJECT OF THE KING: Thethi, I 423D.

SUBORDINATE OF THE KING, Thethi: I 423D.

SUNSHADE-BEARERS, IV 56, 70, 72, 76, 100, 110, 123, 124, 405 n. g; see also Shade-bearers.

SUPERIOR OF SUPERIORS: Senmut, II 368.

SUPERINTENDENT OF GRANARY, II 925.

—of the royal domain: Neferhotep, III 70.

SUPERVISOR, Uni, I 294.

—of everything of the whole land, Amenemhet, I 438.

—of fields in Thinite nome: Imsu, I 529.

—District supervisor, II 708.

T

TEACHER: see Great Father.

TOWN-RULERS, II 717, 721, 723, 729.

TREASURER, II 708; Sebekdidi, I 720; Sebekhotep, I 723.

—of the god: Hepi, I 342; Burded, I 351, 353; Thethi, I 361; Khui, I 361; Zaty-Kenofer, I 389; Khnumhotep, I 618; Zezemonekh, I 186; Theshen, I 186; Ikhi, I 298, 299, 301; Ihu, I 298, 299; Harkhuf, I 336; Khenemsu, I 713, 716; Amenemhet, I 731; Harure, I 735, 736; privy councilor of, q. v.

—Two treasurers, I 212.

—of the palace, III 484.

—of Pharaoh, I 447; Amenhotep, IV 495.

—Assistant treasurer, II 114; Eti, I 459; Meri, I 508; Sihathor, I 603; of the chief treasurer: Sebekdidi, I 720; Sebekhotep, I 723.

—Chief treasurer, I 646; III 484;

Thethi, I 423C; Kheti II, I 426;

Henu, I 428; Mentuhotep, I 532, 533;

Beket, I 637; Ikhernofret, I 664,

672; Neferperet, II 28; Khenemsu, I

713, 716; Ptahwer, I 728; Neferperet

II 28; Nehsi, II 290; Ray, II 450 n. a;

Meriptah, II 929, 931; Ramses-Khen-enter-Bay, III 647; Nesupekeshuti,

IV 689; of the Theban necropolis:

Merithoth, IV 665; daily reporting to the Pharaoh II 678; to the vizier, II

679; ranks of, II 675, 678; in charge of the gold-house, II 706.

—Deputy of the chief treasurer:

Ameniseneb, I 716; Sionouris, I 785;

see also under Official.

TUTOR, royal: Senmut, II 364; Neferibre-nofer, IV 981; see also Great

Father.

V

VICEROY OF KUSH, I 18; residence of,

II 54, 62; earliest known, II 61;

appointment of earliest known, II 64;

territory of, extending from Nekhen to Napata, II 1022, 1025; investiture of, II 1020; two of them holding office at the same time, II 1027, 1028; see also King's son, and King's son of Kush.

VIZIER, I 307; II 925; III 69, 324, 333,

470, 484; IV 76, 110, 147, 150, 511,

517, 522, 524, 527, 543, 547, 777, 873;

Senezemib, I 271, 273; Khety, II 689

n. d; Zau, I 347, 348; Amenemhet,

I 438, 442, 445; Crown Prince Sesos-tris (II), I 521; Mentuhotep, I 531;

Enkhu, I 783; Hapuzeneb, II 388,

389; Woser, II 663, 665; Rekhmire,

I 20; II 663, 665, 666, 748, 754; Hapu,

II 665; Amenhotep, II 923; Ramose,

II 936, 937 n. c, 940; Seti, III 542;

Peramses, III 542; Khay, III 556,

559, 560; Ta, IV 414; Khamwese,

IV 511, 513, 522, 523, 531, 532,

540, 543; Nibmare-nakht, IV 523,

535, 546; Hrihor, IV 593; Paynozem

(I), IV 634; Paynozem (II), IV 668.

—Archives of, IV 534; impartiality of,

II 668.

—Departments in office of: judiciary, II

675, 681, 685-86, 688-91, 700, 704,

705; treasury, II 676, 680, 706, 708;

war, army, II 593-95, 702; war, navy,

II 687, 710; interior, II 677, 687,

- 697, 707; agriculture, II 698, 699; general executive, II 692, 701, 703; advisory, II 678, 679, 682, 684, 696, 709, 711.
 Duties of, II 666, 670, 671-711; reporting daily to Pharaoh, II 678; to the chief treasurer, II 679; taking counsel from Pharaoh, II 678, 694, 697; receiving daily report from the chief treasurer, II 679; mustering of king's body-guard, II 693; garrisons for residence city, II 694; garrison for court, II 694; gives regulations for the council of the army, II 695; in charge of herds, IV 224; judgments reported to, II 681; "hears" criminal cases, II 683; decides real-estate cases, II 686, 689-91; keeps registers of wills and gifts, II 688-89; appointments by, II 697, 698, 699, 700, 703, 705.
 —Reports to: from the treasury, II 676, 679; fortresses, II 676, 702; the king's house, II 676; the court, II 676; overseers, II 677; district officials, II 687, 708; mayors, II 692, 708; village sheiks, II 692, 708; great council, II 706; navy officers, II 710; door-keeper of judgment hall, II 711; concerning rising of Sirius, II 709; concerning high Nile, II 709.
 —Hall of, II 666, 681, 682, 688 n. d, 695, 696, 712, 713, 717, 729; importance of, II 666; "hearing" in, II 670; arrangement of the sitting in, II 675, 712.
 —Chief scribe of, II 670; scribes of, II 675, 712; records of, II 684; messenger of, II 675, 676, 680, 685.
 —Vizier: of the South, IV 224.
 —Deposition of vizier, IV 361.
 VOTRESS: of the goddess, III 391.
 —of Amon-Re, IV 511; see also Divine votress.

W

- WARRIOR OF THE RULER: Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 39.
 WATCHMAN, III 616; IV 266.
 —of the temple of Amon: Paykamen, IV 548; Karu, IV 550; Nofer, IV 551.
 WEARER OF THE ROYAL SEAL, I 312, 505; III 264; Harkhuf, I 326, 332, 330; Zau, I 348; Pepi-nakht, I 356; Sebn, I 364; Mekhu, I 370; Ibi, I 377; Zau, I 381; Tefibi, I 391, 395; Kheti I, I 391; Kheti II, I 391, 426; Henu, I 428 bis; Eti, I 459; Khnumhotep I, I 464; Intef, I 467; Idi, I 466 n. c; Sinuhe, I 490; Mentuhotep, I 512; Amenemhet, I 519; Mentuhotep, I 531, 533; Simontu, I 596; Khentkhetwer, I 605; Ikhnofret, I 664; Sehetepibre, I 745; Renseneb, I 752; Minemhet, I 776; Neferhotepur, I 776; Ahmose Pen-Nekhet, II 20; Neferperet, II 28; Keres, II 52; Thure, II 170 n. c (?); Nehsi, II 290; Senmut, II 350, 351, 361; Thutiy, II 371; Puemre, II 385; Nehi, II 652; Rekmire, II 713; Intef, II 763, 767; Ramose, II 936; Mai, II 997, 1002; Harmhab, III 16, 20; Ramses-Khementer-Bay, III 647; Neferibre-nofer, IV 981; Nesuhor, IV 995; Ahmose-Si-Neit, IV 1000; duty of, III 264, 287.
 WORSHIPERS OF HORUS, I 78 n. a.

INDEX VI

GEOGRAPHICAL

- A
- € mt-district of, II 744; scribe of, II 744; products of, II 744.
ABD EL-KURNA: (hill of Western Thebes), mortuary temple of Seti I, see Index II.
 —Temple inscription: by Ramses II, III 488 n. b.
 —Tomb inscription: by Ineni, II 43-46, 99-108, 115-18, 340-43, 648; Puemre II 383-87; Rekhmire, II 666-762; Menkheperreseneb, II 773-76; Amenken, II 801-2; Khamhet, II 819, 871-72; Hatey, II 932; Ramose, II 936-47.
 —Tombs of: Ineni, II 43 n. c; Puemre, II 382 n. c; Amenken, II 801 n. d; Khamhet, II 819, 872; Hatey, II 932; Rekhmire, II 663 n. d; Menkheperreseneb, II 772 n. a; Ramose, II 936 n. b; Neferhotep, III 68 n. c.
ABU SIMBEL: great temple of Ramses II, III 449, 495.
 —Small temple of Ramses II, III 500, 501.
 —Stela of Ramses II, III 392, 394-414; 415-24; cf. IV 132-35.
 —Temple inscription by Ramses II, III 449-57, 496-99, 500-1; Rekhpehtuf, III 642.
ABUKIR, IV 405 n. g.
ABUSIR: city of Sun-barques at, I 167, n. a, 251; tomb of Weshptah, I 242 n. a; of Hotephiyakhhet, I 251; temple of Nuserre, I 252 n. a, 423H n. a.
ABYDOS: city of Thinite nome I 349, 396 nn. d, h, 529; II 692; III 281; IV 485, 675, 676, 678, 679, 1019, 1023.
 —Nome of, IV 1020; fields of, IV 1021; desert of, IV 1023; district of, II 738; scribe of, II 738; tower in, III 260; IV 357; "Eternity of the Kingdom," a district south of, IV 681; canal of, I 763; III 261.
 —Bends (=promontories) of: "Lord of offerings," I 684; "Mistress of Life," I 684; region of eternity, III 436.
 —Cemetery of: see Tazoser.
 —Pool of, IV 681.
 —Palace of, IV 1019; palace of Thutmose IV in, II 839; royal residence in, of Sesostri III, I 665 n. b; of Ramses III, IV 357.
 —Fortress of, III 82 n. b.
 —Temples of: see Index II.
 —Feasts of: monthly, I 663 n. b; half-monthly, I 665 n. b; beginning of seasons, I 668; great feast of Osiris, I 669.
 —Mortuary chapel of Tetisheri, II 36.
 —Tombs of, III 266; tomb of Tetisheri, II 36.
 —Count of, IV 1024; mayor of, III 82 n. b.
 —Priestly phyle of, I 782; prophets of, contracts for remuneration of the, I 536, 746, 765.
 —Officials of: field scribe of the waters of, I 529; recorder of, II 738; scribe of the recorder of, II 738; kenbeti of, II 738.
 —Gods of: see Index I under Osiris, Anubis, Upwawet, Wennofer, First of the Westerners.
 —Statues for gods of, II 95.
 —Products of, II 738.
 —Temple inscriptions: by Seti I, III 227-43; Ramses II, III 251-81; 485-86.
 —Inscription on Mastaba-tomb of Uni, I 271 n. a; tomb of Ikudidi, I 524-28; memorial tablet of Ikhernofret, I 661 n. d.
 —Stelæ of Enekhnes-Merire, I 344 n. a; Ikudidi, I 524 n. d; Mentuhotep, I 530 n. c; Sihathor, I 599 n. e; Khentemseti, I 609 n. a; Sisetet, I 671 n. e, 673; Sebek-khu, I 676 n. c; Sehetepibre, I 743 n. c; Neferhotep, I 753 n. a, 766 n. b; Ameniseneb, I 781 n. a, 786 n. i; Ahmose I, II 33 n. f. Harmini, II 47 n. c; Thutmose I, II 90 n. g; Nebwawi, II 184 n. c; Neferhet, II 839 n. d; Hori, III 82 n. b; Ramses IV, IV 469-71; Hori, IV 484-85; Sheshonk, IV 669 n. d.

- ADAMAH: city in Naphtali, IV 714 n. b.
- ADDAR: city in Judah, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 716.
- ADEL: city in Palestine, IV 712 n. c.
- ADORAIM: city in Judah, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712 n. f.
- AJALON: city of Israel, in Dan, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- AKHETATON, II 949, 957, 958, 1000; founded by Ikhнатon, II 960; deeded to Aton, II 954, 966; made the capital, 955.
 —Boundaries of, II 961-64, 966-69;
 —Landmarks (=stelæ) of, II 949-72; area of, II 965.
 —Mountains of, II 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 969, 971, 972, 994, 1003, 1013; highland of, II 1008.
 —Pavilion in, II 960; houses of, II 978; gardens of, II 978; palaces of, II 978; temples of, II 978; storehouse of, II 1015; tombs of, II 977-1018.
- AKHMIM: called district of the city of Min, II 740; in the Panopolite nome, I 529; location of, I 423 n. a, 529.
 —Officials of: nomarch, Intefyoker, I 423 n. a; scribe of, II 740.
 —Products of, II 740.
- AKITA: Nubian country, written Akati, IV 477; gold in, III 286; lacking in water, III 286, 289; road to, III 291; well dug for, III 292.
- AKKO: captured by Seti I, III 114.
- ALABASTROPOLIS, IV 818 n. g; Harmhab, nomarch of, III 20 n. c; Horus, lord of, III 24, 27.
- ALASA: land of, IV 591; captured by Seti I, III 114; invaded by the Northerners of the Isles, IV 64; Heteb, queen of, IV 591; crews of, IV 591.
- ALEPPO, I 3; land of, III 319, 320, 321, 322; ally of Kheta, III 312; located north of Tunip, III 319; under the Hittites, III 386; Wan, west of, II 582; prisoners from, II 798A; Rebyer, king of, III 337; Sutekh, god of, III 386.
- AMÂDA: stela of Amenhotep II, II 791 n. f; temple of, III 606 n. a.
- AMOR, CITY OF, IV 117; citadel of, IV 117; fortress of, IV 117; banner of, IV 117.
- AMOR, LAND OF: Kadesh in, III 141, 310, 340; Deper in, III 356; shore of, III 310; captives of, IV 39, 129; chief of IV 39, 117, 127, 129; seed of, IV 39; the Northerners of the Isles camp in, IV 64.
- ANDROPOLIS, IV 1004.
- ANTIOCH, II 582 n. c.
- ANUBIS: nome of (XVII), ruled by Methen, I 170, 173.
- APHERODITOPOLIS: nome of, II 327; IV 818 n. h, 948; two mountains of, III 510; northern frontier of the South in time of Uni, I 311, 320; also in time of Tefibi, I 396 n. h; in time of Intef I, I 423; just north of the Thinite nome, I 423 n. a; across the river from Akhmim, I 423 n. a; made the door of the North by Intef I, I 423; serpent and feather signs of nome of, I 423 n. a.
 —Gods of: Zebui, lord of, IV 366; temple of, IV 366; Hathor, temple of, IV 366.
- APOLLINOPOLIS MAGNA: nome (II) of Upper Egypt, temple of Horus of Nubia, built by Sesostri I, I 500.
- ARAINA: city of or near Naharin, battle at, II 496, 498.
- ARAM: district of, III 634.
- ARANAMI: city on east side of Orontes, south of Kadesh, III 310.
- ARASA: field of, in Wawat, IV 482.
- AREK: Nubian region, captured by Amenhotep III, II 845 n. f.
- ARKO: island of (near third cataract), inscription of Thutmose I, II 67 n. a.
- ARRAPACHITIS: country of, II 512; IV 131; tribute of, II 512.
- ARSINOË: temple inscription of Amenemhet III, II 233.
- ARUNA (city south of Megiddo), II 421, 425, 426, 427; road of, II 422; conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 713.
- ARVAD: land of, III 306; ally of Kheta, III 309, 312; a city of Zahi, II 461; captured by Thutmose III, II 461; by Ramses II, III 306, 366; invaded by the Northerners of the Isles, IV 64.
 —Products of: grain, II 461, 465; pleasant trees, II 461; gardens, II 461; fruit, II 461; wines, II 461; wine-presses, II 461; groves of, II 465.
- ASIA, I 728; marshes of, II 321; eastern boundary of Egypt, II 321; strongholds of, IV 141; tribute from, II 385.
- ASIA, ends of: tribute from, II 386.

- ASIA MINOR, I 25.
- ASIATICS, I 620 n. d, 680; II 296, 321, 412, 440, 657, 658, 837, 916; III 7, 9, 10, 12, 84, 118, 139, 141, 144, 151, 165, 457, 479, 484, 486, 490; IV 62, 72, 78, 80, 103, 104, 105, 119, 355, 356, 720, 721, 840, 994.
- in Avaris, II 4, 14, 303; Sharuhen, II 416; Yeraza, II 416; Megiddo, II 441; Negeb, II 580; Wan, II 582; Tikhsi, II 587; Orontes region, II 784; Niy, II 786; Retenu, II 658; IV 219; Kharu, III 101; Ikathi, II 787; of the army of Mitanni, IV 722.
- Campaigns against: by Sahure, I 236; Nuserre, I 250; Iseki, I 267; Pepinakht, I 360 bis; Mentuhotep I, I 423H; Amenemhet I, I 465; Sesostris III, I 681 bis, 707; Ahmose, II 30; Thutmose I, II 101; Harmhab, III 20; Ramses II, III 453, 490; Ramses III, IV 119, 122.
- Chiefs of, III 490; slaves of, for temple of Amon, II 555.
- Bringing eye-paint, I 620 n. d; tribute from, II 120; III 453.
- Their abodes destroyed, III 11; famine of, III 11; asking to live in Egypt, III 11; revolt amongst, II 416.
- ASKALON: city of, III 355; rebellion of, III 355; captured by Ramses II, III 355; by Merneptah, III 617.
- ASSASF (Thebes), cliff-tomb of Neferhotep, III 68 n. c.
- Tomb inscription, by Neferhotep, III 70-72.
- ASSIUT (see Siut), I 398, 401 n. a.
- ASSUAN: field of dodekaschoinos, IV 146.
- Granite quarry of, I 42; II 304, 876.
- Rock inscriptions: by Hapu, I 614-16; Sesostris III, I 653; family of Neferhotep, I 753 n. b; Thutmose I, II 77; Thutmose II, II 119 n. c; Senmut, II 359; Amenhotep III, II 844 n. b; officer of Amenhotep III, II 876; Bek, II 973-76; Seti I, III 202; Ramses II, III 478 n. a.
- Tomb inscription of Harkhuf, I 325, 336.
- Tomb of Harkhuf, I 325.
- Trading post on the Nubian frontier, I 493 n. l.
- See also Suan.
- ASSUR: tribute from, II 445, 446, 449; chief of, II 446, 449; captured by Ramses II, III 366 n. c.
- Products of: lapis lazuli, II 446; vessels of hwt-stone in colors, II 446; horses, II 449; wagons, II 449; m-h<sup>3</sup>-w-skins, II 449; nbb-wood, II 449; kanek wood, II 449; carob wood, II 449; olive wood, II 449; meru wood, II 449; nebi wood, II 449.
- ATFIIH, IV 818 n. h.
- ATHEIBIS: nome of, IV 873; reached by ships from Heliopolis, IV 873; harbor of, IV 873; treasury of, IV 874.
- Gods of: Horus, IV 360, 874, 956; Khuyet, goddess, IV 874.
- Temple of Horus in, IV 360, 956; called Khenti-khet, IV 360, 369, 874.
- Stela of Merneptah, III 596-601.
- Vizier deposed in, IV 361; Amenhotep, lord of, II 912.
- ATIKA: copper mines of, IV 408; messengers sent to, IV 408; reached both by land and sea, IV 408.
- AUTOMOLOI, IV 989.
- AVARIS, II 4, 296; siege of, II 4, 8, 9, 11 n. d; capture of, II 12; of the Northland, II 303.
- AYAN, IV 818; see also Tayan.
- AYAN: limestone of, I 534, 635, 740; II 27, 44, 103, 302, 339, 345 n. c bis, 380, 390, 603, 604, 799, 800, 875; III 240, 525; IV 7, 216, 355, 356, 358, 970, 979, 982.
- Eper of foreigners of, IV 466. See also Troja and Turra.
- Well in, built by Ramess III, IV 406; foundation of, IV 406; battlements of, IV 406.

B

- BA, locality in Hauran: Mut, mistress of, IV 716 n. b.
- BAB EL-MANDEB, IV 407 n. c.
- BABYLON, III 479; lapis lazuli of, II 446, 484.
- BABYLONIA: ancient reckoning of years in, I 81.
- BACK-LANDS, II 797.
- “BALANCES OF THE TWO LANDS,” IV 864; meaning of, IV 864 n. a.
- BARBARIANS (h<sup>3</sup> s.tyw), I 532; II 303, 427; IV 106; slain by Snefru, I 169; by Uni, I 315.
- Four (Nubian tribes) slain by Sesostris I, I 519; by Thutmose III, II 413.
- “BARQUE OF THE SYCAMORE”: an estate in the district of Thebu, IV 597.

- "BEAUTIFUL-IS-KHAFRE": city in nome of the Cerastes Mountain, I 199.
- "BEAUTIFUL REGION," a district northwest of Thebes, IV 795.
- BEDWIN, III 10; IV 246; lands of, IV 217.
- Sinuhe, king among the, I 490; "walls of the ruler" made to repulse the Bedwin, I 493; chief of, I 493.
- Slain by Snefru, I 168; by Sahure, I 236; by Nuserre, I 250; running like hounds before Amenemhet I, I 483.
- Southern Bedwin, in the district of Sais, IV 957.
- BEHBET, in central Delta, IV 818 n. a, 878 n. a.
- BEHNEA (Oxyrrhyncus), IV 818 n. b.
- BEK: Nubian region, also written Beki, II 852; Horus, lord of, III 284, 285; fortress of, II 852.
- BEKEN: Libyan people, slain by Ramses III, IV 405.
- BEKHEN: name given the Hammamat region, IV 460, 465, 467; reached from Egypt by ox-carts, IV 467.
- BEKHTEN: chief of, III 435, 439, 440, 444, 445, 446.
- Bentresh, second daughter of, was possessed of an evil spirit, III 436, 438, 443.
- Nefrure, oldest daughter of chief of, became queen of Ramses II, III 435.
- Nobles of, III 442; soldiers of, III 442, 444, 446; messenger of, III 436, 437.
- Transportation of Khonsu to, III 442.
- Tribute of, III 435; horses from, III 446.
- BEKHU, II 597.
- BELMEM: city of Palestine, IV 713 n. f.
- BEND, THE GREAT, IV 110.
- of Naharin (=Euphrates), II 479 n. a, 631, 656.
- of the Sea, III 118.
- BENHASAN: temples of, see Index II.
- Tombs of: Khnumhotep I, I 463 n. a; Amenemhet, I 515 n. a; Khnumhotep II, I 119 n. c, 619 n. d.
- Pakht, mistress of, III 249.
- Temple inscription: by Hatshepsut, II 297-303; Seti I, III 249.
- Tomb inscriptions: I 10, 34; by Khnumhotep I, I 465; Amenemhet, I 518-23; Kknumhotep II, I 622-39.
- BENJAMIN, CITIES OF, IV 712 n. h.
- BERBER DOGS, I 421 n. b.
- BERSET: located on the "Water-of-Re," IV 369; Bast, mistress of, IV 369; temple of Bast in, IV 369.
- BERSHEH: tomb inscriptions of Thuthotep, I 688-706.
- BÊT-EL-WALLI (correct form: Bêt-et-Wâli), temple of Ramses II, III 458.
- Temple inscriptions by Ramses II, III 458-77.
- BETH-ANATH: captured by Seti I, III 114; mount of, III 356.
- BETH ANOTH: city in Judah, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 716.
- BETH-HORON: city of Israel, in Ephraim, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- BETH-SHAEL: captured by Seti I, III 114.
- BETH-SHEAN: city of Israel, in Manasseh, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- BETH-TELEM: city of Palestine, IV 713 n. h.
- BEWEY: Syrian locality on southern Orontes, III 340.
- BEYEN, TOWER OF, IV 867.
- BIGEY (Su-mw't), fortress of, II 718; commandant of, II 718.
- Products of, II 718.
- Rock inscriptions, by Ramses II, III 553.
- BISTA: temple of, IV 956; district of, IV 957.
- BIT, OASIS OF, IV 867.
- BLACK LAND, II 245; III 471; Mentuhotep, lord of, I 532; Thutmose II, king of, II 116; Hatshepsut, ruler of, II 299, 319, 321.
- BOHEN (=Wadi Halfa): Min-Amon, residing in, III 77, 159, 248; temple of, III 74; 159; endowment of divine offerings for, III 77, 159; Horus, lord of, III 285, 643.
- "BRILLIANT-IS-KHAFRE": city in the Upper nome, I 199.
- BUBASTIS: Bast, mother of, I 485; Osorkon III living in, IV 878.
- Temples of, II 846; IV 734, 751; IV 956.
- Inscription of Amenhotep III, II 846-50.

- BUSIRIS: nome of, I 159; IV 830 n. a.; called Per-Osiris, IV 830, 878; district of, IV 968; city of, IV 485, 830; Osiris, lord of, IV 485; militia of, IV 968.
- BUTO: city in nome of Xoïs, I 156, 174; gods of, I 348; temple of Buto in, IV 956; temple of Hathor of the Malachite in (?), IV 956.
- BYBLOS: ships of, II 492; Zakar-Baal, prince of, IV 566, 567; harbor of, IV 569, 591; nobles of, IV 570.
- Journal of former kings of, IV 576.
- Ruled Lebanon, IV 577; fortress of, IV 573; butler of, IV 585; letter scribe of, IV 588, 589.
- Tribute to Egypt never paid by, IV 577; storehouses of, IV 576; agents of, IV 576.
- C
- CAIRO, MUSEUM OF, IV 1014 n. a, et passim.
- CANOPUS, IV 405 n. c.
- CARCHEMISH: expedition of Thutmose III to, II 583; conquered by Ramses II, III 306; by Ramses III, IV 131.
- Ally of Kheta, III 309; battle at, II 583; invaded by Northerners of the Isles, IV 64.
- Not included in Kheta, III 306; IV 64, 131; located by the waters of Naharin, II 583.
- Prisoners from, II 583.
- CATARACT, FIRST, I 24; II 15 n. e.
- Canals dug by Uni, I 324; by Sesotris III, I 643-48; cleared by Thutmose I, II 75-76; by Thutmose III, II 649-50.
- Khnum, lord, I 317, 500, 611, 615; II 95, 224; Khnum-Re, lord of, IV 925.
- Rock inscriptions, by Mernere, I 8, 21, 317 n. a, 318 n. h; Amenhotep III, II 843.
- CATARACT, FOURTH: cartouches found at, I 21.
- CATARACT, SECOND, I 651.
- CERASTES MOUNTAIN: XII nome of Upper Egypt, I 199; rise to power of, I 375; Henku, nomarch of, I 280, 281; hawk, sacred animal of, I 281 n. c; great lords of: Ibi, I 377; Zau, I 381.
- CIRCLE, THE GREAT (Okeanos), II 73, 220, 325, 661, 804; III 480; IV 45.
- CIRCLE OF THE EARTH, IV 64.
- COPTOS, I 7; II 729; road of, I 429; highland of, IV 407; haven of, IV 407; landing place for expeditions to and from Punt, IV 407.
- District of, II 733; gold country of, II 774; highlands of, II 774.
- Min, lord of, I 296, 443; Min-Hor of, I 675; triad of: Min-Horus-Isis, IV 365.
- Officers of: commandant of, king's son, Kinen, I 776; captain of gendarmes of, II 774; governor of the gold country of, II 774; count of, I 776; a culprit, I 777; punishment of, I 778-79; office given to Minemhet, I 778; kenbeti of, II 733; gendarmes of, II 774; priest of Min, scribe of the temple, wearer of the royal seal, Neferhotepur, I 776; army of, I 776.
- Products of, II 733; gold from the highlands of, I 521; II 774.
- Stela of Ramses II, III 427-28.
- Temple of Min: see Index II; house of Min-Harsiese, IV 465.
- COW STRONGHOLD: city of, I 174, 187.
- CROCODILE NOME: northern boundary of, I 529.
- CROCIDILOPOLIS: capital of Fayum, IV 818 n. a; House of Sebek in, I 709; IV 366, 818, 882.
- CUSÆ (XIV nome of Upper Egypt): Hathor, mistress of, I 500; II 300; temple of, II 300; products of, II 732.
- CYPRUS, LAND OF, II 659; see also Isy.
- D
- DAKHEL (=Southern Oasis): stela of Wayeheset in, IV 725; village of Mut in, IV 725 n. a.
- DAMASCUS, II 476 n. b.
- DAN: cities of, IV 712 n. b.
- DANEON PORTUS, IV 878 n. c.
- DED: chief of Me, lord of, IV 830; Pemou, lord of, IV 878.
- DELTA, I 22, 25, 170; III 10; IV 189, 780 et passim; see North, Northland; marshes of, IV 271; rising of Sothis in, I 45; predynastic kings of, I 78; governed by Amenemhet I, I 482.

- DENDERA: district of, II 734; Kenbeti of, II 734; products of, II 734; Hathor, mistress of, I 423H, 500.
- DENYEN OF THE ISLES, IV 403; ally of the northerners, IV 64; slain by Ramses III, IV 403; captives of, IV 81, 82, 403.
- DEP (Buto): local governor of, I 172, 174, 175 n. a, 512; IV 1017; see also Index V: Governor; Buto, mistress of, I 500; II 224.
- DEPER: city of Amor, captured by Ramses II, III 356.
- DERDEN, III 306, 349.
- DÊR EL-BAHRI, II 187; Temple of: see Index II.
- Cliff tomb of Amenhotep I, IV 668, 690-92.
- Temple inscription: by Thutmose II, II 125; Hatshepsut, II 192, 194, 196-98, 200-1, 203, 205, 208, 213, 214, 216, 219-20, 223-25, 227, 229, 230, 233, 235-41.
- Tomb inscription in, IV 668, 689, 691-92.
- DÊR EL-GEBRÂWI: cliff tomb of Henku, I 280; tomb of Ibi, in the southern necropolis of, I 375 n. f.
- Tomb inscriptions by Henku, I 281; Ibi, I 377-79.
- DERR (in Nubia, also called Miam): temple of Re in, III 503; IV 474, 479.
- DESERT: Methen, local governor in, I 174.
- DIOSPOLIS, II 336.
- DIOSPOLIS PARVA: recorder of, II 737; scribe of the recorder of, II 737; products of, II 737; Hathor of, IV 726; product of, IV 726.
- DOG RIVER, III 297.
- DOOR (=Elephantine): "people who were in the door," I 367.
- DOOR OF THE COUNTRIES (=Elephantine), IV 980; door of the southern countries, IV 990, 995; Governor of: see Index V.
- DOOR OF THE HIGHLANDS: keeper of, I 633.
- DOOR OF THE NORTH: Intef I of Thebes made the Aphroditopolite nome the, I 423; see also Two Doors of the Northern Countries.
- DOOR OF THE SOUTH (Elephantine), I 367 n. d; keeper of, Zau, I 380; Intef, I 420; see also IV 990.
- DOR: city of Thekel, IV 565; Bedel, king of, IV 565; harbor of, IV 566; treasury of, IV 566.
- DRAH ABU-'N-NEGGAH: brick pyramid of Intef II in, I 421 n. a.
- Mortuary temple of Amenhotep I in, 45 n. b.
- Tombs of Thutiy, II 369 n. c; Nibamon, II 777 n. c.
- Stela of Intef, I 419 n. a; Intef I, I 421 n. a; Keres, II 49 n. a; Thutiy, II 369 n. c; Nipamon, II 777 n. c; stelæ of Thutiy, II 369-78; Nibamon, II 777-79.

E

- EAST LAND, I 159; Eastern land, II 658; applied to God's Land, II 658.
- EASTERNERS, II 656.
- EDFU: property of Queen Ahhotep in, II 113.
- District officials of, II 721; mayor of, II 721; scribe of mayor of, II 721; recorder of, II 721.
- God of: Horus of, II 111; called beautiful god of, II 828.
- Products of, II 721.
- Stela of Yuf, II 109 n. b.
- Temple of, II 112; tomb of Sebekemsaf in, II 109, 112.
- EDOM: the Shasu of, III 638; conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 714.
- EGWOWE: cities of, plundered by the Libyans, IV 405; probably identical with Canopus, IV 405 n. o.
- EGYPT, I 26, 32, 33, 451, 453; II 39 bis, 98 bis, 294, 314, 341, 460, 462, 900, 1032, 1033; III 38, 50, 84, 101, 107, 112, 136, 144, 148, 152, 155, 265, 270, 281, 285, 374, 375, 378, 381, 409, 411, 435, 479, 489, 580, 581, 585, 590, 591, 592, 608, 612, 614, 616; IV 37, 40, 42, 43, 45, 47, 52, 54, 55, 62, 63, 66, 67, 71, 77, 86, 90, 91, 92, 99, 103, 105, 109, 110, 112, 124, 126, 130, 183, 190, 202, 220, 229, 233, 246, 250, 255, 263, 282, 310, 313, 335, 341, 351, 353, 382, 387, 397, 398, 399, 400, 408, 410, 464, 466, 467, 471, 569, 571, 578, 582, 586, 588, 655, 720, 821, 822, 869; see also Two Lands, Two Regions, Kem, South and North.
- Called daughter of Re, III 612; home of civilization, IV 579.

- Egypt*—
- Boundaries of, see Index VII: Boundaries.
  - Reorganization of, by Amenemhet I, I 482-83; Harmhab, III 31; captured by Osorkon I, IV 740; invasion of, by the Libyans, III 572-617; by the northerners, IV 64, 77; by Meshwesh, IV 88, 95.
  - Foes of, south, east and west (Nubians, Asiatic, Libyans), I 423H.
  - Classes of, IV 402; see also Index VII; districts of, IV 220; feudal principalities of, IV 746.
  - Gods of, III 77, 159, 206; see also Index I.
  - Laws of, III 64; see also Index VII.
  - Ships of, IV 574, 576, 580, see also Index VII.
  - Strongholds of, II 467; IV 141; see also Index VII: Fortresses, Strongholds.
  - Temples of, III 585; see also Index II.
  - Towns of, given for support of temples, IV 226; see Index VII; waters of, II 420.
  - Egyptians, II 267; smitten by Mentuhotep I, I 423H.
  - EHNAS (=Heracleopolis): nobles of, I 398; see Heracleopolis.
  - EKBET: unknown people, II 70.
  - EKERETH: Syrian land of, captured by Ramses II, III 306; ally of Kheta, III 309.
  - EKETERI, III 312; see also Ekereth.
  - EKWESH: a northern people in alliance with Libya, invading Egypt, III 574, 579.
  - Captives from, III 588, 601.
  - Hands of, III 588, 601; who had no foreskins, III 588 bis.
  - of the countries of the sea, III 588, 601; slain by Merneptah, III 588.
  - ELEPHANTINE, II 935; of the South, 172, 717.
  - Frontier of the South: in time of Uni, I 311, 320; in time of Tefibi, I 396; of Amenemhet I, I 482; of Thutmose I, II 101.
  - the two caves of, III 171; IV 125; quay of, IV 146 n. c; inscription on, IV 146-50.
  - Temples of Satet and Anuket, I 500; IV 991, 992; endowment of, IV 992; temple of Khnum, IV 146-50, 925.
  - Building of the crown possessions of the South in, I 650.
  - Fortress of, I 650, 650, n. e; II 719; doorway of, I 650.
  - Governor of, II 172; chiefs of, II 172; nobles of, I 6; nomarch of, Sirenpowet, I 510 n. b; city officers of, II 719; commandant of the fortress of, II 719; recorder of, II 719; scribe of the recorder of, II 719; kenbeti of, II 719; scribe of, II 719; fishermen of, II 650; IV 148; fowlers of, IV 148; honey collectors of, IV 149; natrongatherers of, IV 148; salt gatherers of, IV 148.
  - Gods of, II 798; sailing on the river, II 798; Khnum-Re, lord of, IV 925; Satet and Anuket of, I 500; IV 991, 992; Satet, mistress of, I 615, 646, 649; II 360; offering-tables were given to the southern gods in, by Sesostris I, I 500.
  - Products of, II 719; granite from, I 322; IV 679; Hatshepsut's obelisks from, II 327; obelisk of Thutmose I, II 89.
  - Stela of Ameni, I 649; Amenhotep II, II 791 n. g; Seti I, III 203-4.
  - EL-HESSEH: island of, I 317 n. a.
  - EL KAB (modern name of Nekheb), II 3 n. b; nomarchs of, II 1; Ahmose, son of Ebana, nobleman of, II 7.
  - Great lords of: Khentemseti, I 609; Royenet, II 7; Baba, II 7; Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 7; Setau, high priest of, I 69 n. a; III 558 n. d; IV 414, 415.
  - Temple of Ramses II, III 505; temple of Amenhotep III, III 558 n. d.
  - Cliff tombs: of Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 1 n. a; Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet, II 25 n. f; Pahari, II 3 n. d; Setau, IV 414, 415; tomb of Ini, north of, I 373.
  - Nekhbet, the white goddess of, II 828.
  - Temple inscription, by Ramses II, III 505, 558.
  - Tomb inscription: of Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 6-16, 39, 80-82; of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet, II 25; Setau, IV 414.
  - Stela, I 741.
  - EL-KHARGEH: the southern oasis, IV 725 n. a.
  - ELLESIEYEH: grotto inscription, by Nehi, II 652.
  - EMU: green gold of, II 265; electrum from, II 298, 387.
  - ENDS, or ends of the earth (lit. "hinder-ends," meaning the extreme

- North, always "behind" to the Egyptians, as far as known to them), II 120, 498, 586, 761 n. a, 771; III 34.
- ENDS OF ASIA: tribute from, II 386, 891.
- ENENES: Syrian land, III 337; archers of, III 337.
- ENI: probably the same as Esneh, I 459.
- EN-PARAN, IV 716.
- EPHRAIM: cities of, IV 712 n. a, 714 n. b.
- ERETH: a Hittite fortress, IV 118.
- ERKATU: city north of Fenkhu, captured by Thutmose III, II 529.
- ERMENT: Montu, lord of, IV 547; temple of, IV 547; see Hermonthis.
- ERNEN: Hittite city, sun-god of, III 386, 391 bis; Sutekh, god of the city of, III 386.
- ERWEN: Syrian land, ally of Kheta, III 309 n. d, 312.
- ESBET: a Lybian people captured by Ramses III, IV 405.
- ESHMUNEN (=Khmunu), I 695.
- ESNEH: islands of, II 723.
- Prince of: Pabri, II 3 n. b; town ruler of, II 723; scribe of the islands of, II 723; Kenbeti, II 723.
- Products of, II 723.
- ETHIOPIANS, I 22; see Kush.
- ETI: a canal of the Nile, by Heliopolis, III 576, 870.
- EUPHRATES: earliest reference to, II 68, 73; boundary stone set up at, by Thutmose I and III, II 478; crossed by Thutmose III, II 479 n. a; see also Inverted water.
- EYE OF RE (=Thebes), IV 906.
- F
- FARAFRAH: oasis of, III 580 n. c.
- FAYÛM, I 170, 174; III 580 n. a; IV 818 n. g.
- Back lands of, IV 369.
- Temple of Amon-Re in, IV 369; Horus dwelling in, IV 369; temple of Sebek of Shedet in, IV 369.
- FENKHU: lands of, II 27 n. a, 30, 120, 439, 529; disturbing the boundaries of Thutmose III, II 439; conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 719; of marshes of Asia, III 118; oxen from, II 27.
- FIELD OF ABRAM, THE: city in southern Palestine, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 715.
- FOREIGN COUNTRIES: Governors of: see Index V.
- FOUR BARBARIAN COUNTRIES, I 519.
- Four eastern countries, I 675.
- G
- GAD: cities of, IV 712 n. g.
- GATE OF IHOTEP: a district, I 312.
- GAZA: city of, II 417; Zeper and Roy from, III 630.
- GAZELLE-NOSE: land of, I 315.
- GEBEL-ABUFODAH, I 401 n. a.
- GEBEL BARKAL (Napata): stelæ of, I 22; of Piankhi, IV 796 n. a.
- GEBEL MARÂG: near Dêr el-Gebrâwi, north of Assiut, tomb of Zau in, I 380 n. d.
- GEBEEL-AHMAR: gritstone quarry of, II 493 n. b, 906 n. a.
- GEBELËN, I 427, 459; quarry of, IV 629.
- Temple fragments of Mentuhotep I from, I 423H.
- Recorder of, II 724.
- Products of, II 724.
- Rock inscription of Hui, III 209-210.
- Pillar inscription, by Nesubeneded, IV 628-30.
- Stela of Eti, I 457 n. d.
- GEKET: city of Syria, III 632, 632 n. b.
- Men of: Thutiy, III 632; Thekeran, III 632; Methdet, III 632; Shew-Baal, III 632; Sutekhmose, III 632; Eperdegel, III 632.
- GENEBTEYEW: tribute from, II 474.
- Products of: oxen, II 474; calves, II 474; bulls, II 474; ivory, II 474; ebony, II 474; panther skins, II 474.
- GEZER: people of Kharu, captured by Thutmose IV in, II 821; revolt by, III 606; subdued by Merneptah, III 606, 617.
- GIBEON: city of Israel, in Benjamin, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- GIZEH: tombs at, I 180 nn. i, j, 268 n. i.
- Stela of Khufu, I 177 n. e.
- Tomb of Thenti, I 182 n. a; mastaba of Thethi, I 184; tomb of Nekure, I 190; of Debhen, I 210; mastaba-tomb of Senezemib, I 268.
- Vase inscription of Hatshepsut, II 214 n. d.

- GOD'S LAND, II 288, 900; IV 313, 328, 341, 387, 883.
 —Name applied to Naharin, III 434; to countries in the North, III 116; to the eastern land, II 658; to Retenu, II 451, 773, 820, 888; to Punt, II 253, 255, 264, 265, 271, 286; IV 407.
 —Marvels of, II 285, 288; III 274.
 —Sea of, II 257.
 —Treasurer of, II 271, 277.
 —Located near Red Sea, I 433; stela of Khnumhotep, executed in—, found at Wadi Gasus ("Sewew"), I 618; costly stones from I 764; III 448 n. b; Hammamat in front of, IV 460; on the way to, IV 463.
 —Chiefs of, III 448 n. b; IV 407.
 —Products of, IV 270; myrrh tree, II 264; fragrant wood, II 265; malachite, II 450 n. a; cedar from, II 888; southerners of, II 288; trees taken from, II 294, 295; myrrh-sycamores from, IV 333; sweet wood from, II 321.
- GOLD COUNTRY OF AMON: Governor of, see Index V.
- "GREAT IS KHAFRE": pyramid city of Khafre, I 199, 202.
- "GREAT-IS [-THE FAME]-OF-KHAFRE": city of, I 197.
- GREECE, I 25.
 —Greeks, II 296 n. c; IV 994, 1003.
- GREEN, THE GREAT (=Sea), II 660, 877.
- H
- HAGG-KANDIL, II 695.
- HAMATH, II 584 n. c.
- HAMMAMAT, I 433; the august primeval mountain, I 441; the pure, august stone, which Min has made, I 442; the highlands of Min, I 442; in front of God's Land, IV 460.
 —Black basalt from, I 675.
 —Gods of: Isis, Min, Mut, I 441; Min, Mut, I 468.
 —Rock inscriptions of, Isesi, I 7; inscriptions from Middle Kingdom, I 10; quarry inscription of, I 61 n. a; inscription of Ahmose II, I 75 n. h; rock inscriptions of Pepi I, I 295-301; Ity, I 386-87; Imhotep, I 388-90; Henu, I 428-33; Mentuhotep IV, I 434-53; Amenemhet, I 444-48; Senekh, I 454-56; Intef, I 466-68, 466 n. c; Khui, I 674-75; Amenemhet, I 707-9; Ramses IV, IV 457-60; 461-68.
- HAPHARAIM: city of Israel, in Issachar, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- HAPI: city of Delta, IV 818.
- HARABAT: town by the well of, III 84.
- HARE NOME, I 700-6; IV 821, 948.
 —Location of, I 626; youths of, I 700, 703; army of, IV 848; warriors of, I 701.
 —Hermopolis (=Khnum-Eshmunen): chief city of, I 688; IV 840; priests of, I 702.
 —Cemetery of, at Bersheh, I 688; at Shekh Sa' id, I 688.
 —Harbor of, IV 833.
 —Great lords of: Nenekhseskhnun, I 305; Nehri, I 692 n. c; Key, I 692 n. c; Thuthotep, I 688, 692, 693; Thutnakht, I 689; Ihe (?), I 688 n. a.
- HARPOON NOME, I 174.
- HATBENU, IV 818, 839.
- HATIBTI: Thoth presiding over, IV 916.
- HATKEPTAH: ancient name of the temple of Ptah at Memphis, IV 316.
- HATNUB (alabaster quarry in the desert behind Amarna): location of, I 695.
 —Alabaster from, I 7, 305, 323, 696; II 45, 302, 375, 546 n. b.
 —Expedition to, by Uni, I 323.
 —Rock inscription by Nenekhseskhnun I 7, 305.
 —Hieratic graffiti from, I 695 n. b.
- HAT-SEHETEPIBRE: residence city of Nehri, I 628; probably identical with Ithtowe, the residence city of Amenemhet, I, I 628 n. c.
- HATSEKHEM (Diospolis parva), II 762.
- HATSETENI, IV 818.
- HATSHO, IV 102; location of, IV 102 n. d; fortress of, IV 107.
- HATURT-AMENEMHET: mayor of, II 735; products of, II 735.
- HATWASET: see Avaris and H't-w'r't.
- HATWERET: in XVI nome of Upper Egypt, IV 820; Namlot, prince of, IV 820.
 —Khnum, lord of, IV 367; temple of, IV 367.
- HAUNEBU (peoples of the distant North in the Mediterranean): conquered by Henu, I 447; by Harmhab, III 34; Ramses III, IV 130.
 —Hands of, II 120; people of, II 70.

- Haunebu*—
 —Impost of, II 953; tribute of, II 953.
 Hauran: M̄ut worshiped in, IV 716 n. b.
 HE: a Nubian land, I 602; islands around, I 602; see also Hem.
 HEBENU, IV 820 n. b.
 HEBREWS, IV 281 n. e.
 HEFAT, I 459.
 HEH (=Semneh), I 652.
 HEIGHT-OF-WAN: see Wan.
 HEKA, I 103.
 HELIOPOLIS, II 628; III 28, 32, 271, 545; IV 263, 265, 471, 870, 871; nome of, IV 955; land of, IV 257, 262; the two lands of, IV 183 et passim.
 —Middle district of, IV 957; names of, IV 957.
 —Besieged in the Libyan-Mediterranean invasion, III 612, 613.
 —Kings crowned in, by Atum, II 221, 222.
 —Sand hill of, IV 870.
 —Canal of, IV 266, 278, 394.
 —Harbor of, IV 873; pool of Kebeh, IV 870; river of Nun, IV 870.
 —Cleansed by Thutmose III, II 642; Thutmose IV, II 812; Ramses III, IV 250.
 —Offering ceremonies of, II 562.
 —As place of future punishment, III 180.
 —Temple model of, III 240.
 —Temples of Atum-Re (=Harakhte), Aton, Horus, Saosis, Hapi, Re (in north Heliopolis): see Index II.
 —Two pylons in, III 246; two obelisks in, III 246; two pairs in, III 246; London obelisk, II 632-33; New York obelisk, II 634-36; obelisk of Seti I, III 544.
 —Amenhotep II, divine ruler of, II 782, 796, 797, 806; Harmhab, sovereign of, before becoming king of Egypt, III 4; Ramses III, ruler of, IV 5, 37, 62, 94, 105, 182, 215, 217, 218, 219, 423.
 —Lords of, III 16, 614; table of, III 16.
 —High priest of Re: Patonemhab, III 22 n. a; Sem-priests of, II 389.
 —Gods of, III 245, 246, 545; IV 183, 247, 248; Atum, lord of: see Index I; Re, lord of: see Index I; Harsaphes, lord of, IV 733; Horus, III 1; Osiris, III 1; Isis, III 1; Nephthys, III 1; Hathor, III 1; IV 247; ennead of, III 16, 545, 547; IV 250, 261, 262, 265, 269; triad: of Atum, Saosis, Re-Harakhte, IV 183, 247, 248; spirits of, I 155, 159, 165, 167; II 314.
 —Obelisk inscriptions, by Thutmose III, II 633, 635-36; Ramses II, III 545-48.
 —Stela of Thutmose III, II 642.
 —Northern Heliopolis, IV 721; temple of Re in, IV 274-76.
 HELIOPOLIS, SOUTHERN (at Erment, south of Thebes), II 906 n. a, 934; IV 721, 768.
 HEM (read so instead of He): Horus of, III 496, 498; temple of, III 496, 498.
 HEMY: in the Delta, wine of, IV 734.
 HENEM: city in Palestine, IV 713 n. e.
 HEPEN: pool of, III 100.
 HERACLEOPOLIS, IV 968; kingdom of, invasion of, by Thebans, I 396 n. d; insurrection within, I 398; consisting of the Northland and Middle Egypt, I 407 and n. b; end of (Dynasties IX and X), I 416; defended by the princes of Siut, I 422; conquered by Intef I of Thebes, I 422; finally overthrown by Mentuhotep I, I 423H.
 —District of, IV 948.
 —City of, I 401, 403; besieged by Tefnakhte, IV 818; by Pianchi's army, IV 825; streets of, IV 968.
 —Merikere, king of, I 399; Tefnefdibast, ruler of, IV 852.
 —Army of, IV 777, 787, 792, 868; Commander of, Commander in chief of, see Index V.
 —Great ones of, I 401; Somtous-Tefnakhte, nomarch of, IV 944; Hor, chief of, IV 968.
 —Temple of Harsaphes of, I 111; IV 792, 956, 968, 970, 971-72; temple of Bast, IV 973.
 —Gods of: Harsaphes, lord of, I 675; IV 792; Divine father of: see Index V.
 HERACLEUM, IV 405 n. g.
 HERENKERU: city in southern end of Libanon, under the rule of Kadesh, II 436; plundered by Thutmose III, II 436; called a city of Retenu, II 557; impost of, II 557.
 HERMONTIS, III 615; nomarchs of, the Intefs, I 419 n. c; recorder of,

- II 727; scribe of the recorder of, II 727.
 —District of, II 727; scribe of, II 727; kenbeti of, II 727.
 —Temples of: see Index V; throne of Amon in, II 314.
 —Montu, god of, II 352, 828; see Index I; prophets of Montu, II 352.
 —Products of, II 727.
 —See also Erment.
- HERMOPOLIS (Khmunu), IV 842, 848, 948; captured by Pianchi, IV 833, 842.
 —Hermopolis (wmw), IV 833, 843 bis.
 —Hesret, a sacred quarter of: Thoth, presider over, II 95, 147; IV 356; temple of Thoth in, IV 356, 848; Thoth, lord of, IV 848.
 —Prophets of, II 371; chief of, II 371.
 —Royal palace of, IV 849; granary of, IV 851; treasury of, IV 849; magazines of, IV 849; stables of, IV 850; colossus of, I 695.
- HERMOPOLIS PARVA, IV 830 n. b.
- HERUR: see Hirur.
- HERYPEDEMY, IV 867.
- HES: Libyan people, slain by Ramses III, IV 405.
- HESEBKA (XI nome of Lower Egypt), IV 830, 878.
- HESEN: stronghold in the Harpoon nome, I 174.
- HESRET (a sacred quarter of Hermopolis), II 95, 147; IV 356; lord of, III 25.
- HESWER: city in the Saitic nome, Methen palace-ruler of, I 174.
- HIGHLAND (upper lands back from the river, along the foot of the cliffs), II 80, 113, 114.
- HIGHLANDS: captured by Mentuhotep I, I 423H; cleared of Troglodytes by Henu, I 429 n. g; beasts of, I 436; mountain of Hammamat, the highlands of Min, I 442; commander of troops in, I 455.
 —Extending southward to Thau and northward to Menet-Khufu, I 456.
 —Source of ebony, II 127; gold from, II 373; III 195; electrum from, II 374.
 —Door of: see Door of the Highlands.
 —Inspectors of: see Index V.
 —of Akhetaton, II 1008; of Coptos, II 774.
- The eastern, governors of: see Index V.
 —The western, I 533; overseers of, see Index V.
- HILL COUNTRY (=First Cataract), I 318.
 —Hill countries, the two, II 297.
- HIPPONON, IV 818 n. e.
- HIRUR (Herur) (town by Benihasan): Khnum, lord of, I 637 n. a; II 95; Heket mistress of, II 205 n. a.
- HORIZON OF HORUS: a part of the Oryx nome, I 619; on the east of the river, I 625; up to the eastern highlands, I 625; detached as a separate principality, I 619; Menet-Khufu, chief city of, I 619.
- HORNS OF THE EARTH: in the South, II 101, 120, 631, 652; III 115, 118, 204 n. b, 588 n. c, 600; on the Nubian border, IV 102; mountain of, IV 102; in Asia, II 412.
- HOTEP (sacred quarter of Heliopolis): Hathor, mistress of, II 1042.
- HOU, city of, I 401 n. a.
- HOUSE OF HATHOR: recorder of, II 728.
- "HOUSE-OF-MENKHEPRURE": district of Memphis, II 1043.
- "HOUSE-OF-MENMARE-MERIAMON": town west of Memphis, IV 338, 340.
- "HOUSE-OF-OKHEPERKERE": district of Memphis, II 1043.
- "HOUSE-OF-PTAH": district of Memphis, II 1043.
- "HOUSE-OF-RAMSES-MERIAMON": see Ramses, city of.
- "HOUSE-OF-THE-NORTH": city of, I 125.
- HUA, HEIGHT OF: a Nubian region, II 849, 850; captives from, II 850.
- HYKSOS: their neglect of the Egyptian temples, I 15; II 296; chronology of, I 65; war with, I 24, 774; II 4 n. a; length of reign, I 52; expulsion of, II 1, 4; resumption of building after, II 26; they ruled in ignorance of Re, II 303.
 —Era begun by, III 538, 542.
 —Kings of: Ophtiset-Nubii, III 538, 542; Paophis: see Index III.

I

IBHET: Nubian region: revolt of, II 852; capture of, II 853.

- Ibhet*—
 —Archers of, II 854; servants of, II 854; captives of II 854.
 —Campaign in, by Amenhotep III, II 852-55.
 —Cattle of, II 853.
 —Harvest of, II 852.
 —Quarry of, I 321, 322.
IBRIM: mayor of, IV 474.
 —Cliff tomb of Penno in, IV 474 n. a.
 —Tomb inscription, by Penno, IV 476-83.
IDEHET: two wells dug in, by Henu I 431.
IHETEB: a well dug there by Henu, I 431.
IKATHI: city near Niy in Syria, Egyptian infantry in, II 787; revolt of, II 787; captured by Amenhotep II, II 788; booty from, II 788.
IKEN, Nubian city, I 652.
IKHERKIN: Nubian land, I 510.
ILION, III 312 n. c.
ILLAHÛN: at the mouth of Fayûm, IV 818, 853.
IMERES: city of, I 173.
IMU: Hathor, mistress of, I 351.
IMUKEHEK: probably a Libyan region, war of Amenhotep I in, II 42.
 “INVERTED WATER” (=the Euphrates), II 73; IV 407; the sea of (=Indian ocean), IV 407 n. c; fleet of Ramses III sailing thereon to the land of Punt, IV 407.
IREM: Nubian region.
 —Captured by Hatshepsut, II 26; Thutmose III, II 494; Amenhotep III, II 845 n. f.
 —Chiefs of, II 267; son of chief of, II 494.
IRSHU: sacred quarter of Mut in Karnak; see Index II: Karnak, Temple of Mut.
IRTHET: negro tribe, I 311, 317, 334 bis, 336; chief of, I 324, 336 bis.
IRTHETH: negro land, I 334.
ISEUM (=Neter), modern Behbeit, IV 818 n. a, 878 n. a.
ISIDIS OPPIDUM (=Neter, modern Behbeit), IV 818 n. a.
ISLANDS, IV 830, 873, 880, 882.
ISLE OF SNEFRU, I 312, n. d, 492.
ISLES: Northerners of the, IV 75; invading northern Syria, IV 64; camping in Amor, IV 64; intending to attack Egypt, IV 64, 77.
ISLES, (the Greek Islands): II 73; isles in the midst of the sea, II 1006; IV 880.
ISRAEL: desolated by Merneptah, III 615; captured by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
 —Towns of, IV 712.
ISSACHAR: cities of, IV 712 nn. c, f.
ISY (=Cyprus), II 659; captured by Thutmose III, II 493, 511; Ramses II, III 366 n. c.
 —Prince of, II 511; chief of, II 521.
 —Tribute of, II 493, 511, 521.
 —Products of: copper, II 493, 521; lead, II 493, 521; lapislazuli, II 493; crude copper, II 511; ivory, II 493, 521; horses, II 511.
ITFIT (see also Atfih): recorder of, II 741; scribe of the recorder of, II 741; products of, II 741.
ITHTOWE: between Medûm and Memphis, IV 818, 856.
- J
- JACKAL NOME: location of, I 626, 632.
 —Ruler of, Nakht II, I 632.
JACOB-EL, IV 131.
JONIANS, III 312 n. c.
JOPPA: capture of, I 24; II 577.
JORDAN, IV 716.
JOSEPH-EL, IV 131.
JUDAH: kingdom of, IV 713 n. d.
- K
- KADER: city in land of Pemehtem, in Syria, captured by Seti I, III 94.
KADESH, I 3; III 310, 311, 322, 325, 336; extent of its dominion, II 420.
 —Located in the land of Amor, III 141, 310; of Zahi, III 318.
 —District of, II 531; Syria, a dependency of, II 420; ally of Kheta, III 309, 312.
 —Captured by: Thutmose III, II 465, 585; Amenhotep II, II 798A; Seti I, III 141 bis; Ramses II, III 306.
 —Siege of, II 589; great battle at, III 306-312, 317-27; assault on, II 590.
 —Highland of, III 308, 318.
 —Cities of, captured by Thutmose III,

- II 531; groves of, II 465; harvest of, II 465.
- Prince of, II 589; lords of, II 585, 590; chief of, II 420, 430, 435, 596, 773.
- Tribute from, II 773.
- Prisoners of, II 585, 798 A.
- Booty from, II 435, 436, 532, 585; chariot, II 435; suit of bronze armor, II 435; meru wood, II 435; chairs, II 436; staff, II 436; statue, II 436; clothing, II 436.
- KANA: captured by Thutmose III, II 529.
- KANEKEME (in the Delta): a vineyard of Amon, IV 216; temple of Amon in, IV 216.
- KARBANITI (Kerben), IV 405 n. g.
- KARNAK, II 43, 63, 80, 105, 383, 390, 606, 832, 833, 834, 835, 837, 838, 881; III 27, 28, 215, 216, 220, 261, 511, 512, 517; IV 9, 201, 495, 616, 624, 635, 768, 823, 851, 855, 945, 958C.
- Quay of, I 22; IV 693 n. a, 914.
- Hapuseneb, chief in, II 389; for other officials see Thebes (eastern), and Index II: Karnak, Temple of Amon, and Index V.
- Gods of: see Index I: Amon, Amon-Re, Harakhte, Aton, Mut, Khonsu, Montu, Mat, Horus, Ptah, Osiris-Wennofer, Hathor.
- Temples of: see Index II: Temples of Amon, Mut, Khonsu, Ptah of Thebes, Montu, Bast, Mat, Harakhte, Seti I, Ramses II, Osiris-Wennofer, and Index II: Thebes (eastern).
- Obelisks: of Thutmose I (Nos. 1 and 2), II 86; Hatshepsut (Nos. 1 and 2), II 304, erected by Senmut II 351; Thutmose III, II 624-25; Ramses II, III 543 n. c.
- Statues: of Senmut, II 349; Puemre, I 380 n. e; Amenhotep, son of Hapi, II 912, 913.
- Temple inscriptions: by Thutmose III, II 131-66, 415-37, 439-43, 445-49, 451-52, 455-62, 464-67, 469-75, 747-87, 489-95, 497-503, 507-515, 515-19, 529-40, 654; Hatshepsut, II 305; Amenhotep II, II 798A, 804-6; Seti I, III 82-150, 223-24; Ramses II, III 348-51, 355, 367-91, 509-513; Merneptah, III 574-92; Ramses IV, IV 472; Ramses IX, IV 492-98;
- Sheshonk I, IV 709-724; Osorkon, IV 753, 756-70 777.
- In temple of Khonsu: inscriptions by Ramses XII, IV 602-3; Hrihor, IV 609-26; Paynozem I, IV 632-33, 649.
- In temple of Ptah; inscription of Thutmose III, in II 611.
- Column inscription: of Thutmose III, II 601; Amenhotep II, II 804-6.
- Obelisk inscriptions: by Thutmose I, II 86-88; Hatshepsut, II 308-321.
- Statue inscriptions: by Senmut, II 350-58; Puemre, II 380-81; Amenhotep, son of Hapi, II 912, 914-20.
- Stelæ of: Ahmose I, II n. d; Thutmose III, II 599 n. d; Thutmose III, II 609 n. e; Thutmose III, II 655 n. b; Amenhotep II, II 781 n. b; Ramses II, III 429-47; Sheshonk I, IV 724A; Kerome, IV 755; Yewelot, IV 795; Psamtik I, IV 935-58; Enekhnesneferibre, IV 988A-J; for other inscriptions, see Thebes, and Index II: Karnak, Temple of Amon.
- Stela in temple of Ptah: of Thutmose III, II 609 n. e; Seti I, III 82.
- KAROY: region of Kush, II 889; III 285; region of Napata, II 1020, 1025; gold from, II 889; III 285.
- Tablet erected in, by Amenhotep II, II 800.
- Campaign of Thutmose IV to, II 818.
- Southern boundary of Egypt at, II 862.
- KAS (K > 5): Nubian land, I 510; see also Kush.
- KASR-ES-SAIYÂD: cliff tomb of Idu-Seneni in, I 337 n. a.
- KAU: negro tribe, I 311.
- KAY: town of, IV 948.
- KEBEH: pool of, in Heliopolis, IV 296, 870.
- KEBEH (probably a region of upper Euphrates), II 101.
- KEBES: a Syrian locality, III 337; Tergetetethes, chief of archers of, III 337.
- KEDEM bordered on Yaa, I 496.
- KEFTYEW: land of, II 659; ships of, II 492; vessels of the make of, II 537; tribute of, II 761, 773; classed with "all the Isles in the midst of the sea," II 761 n. a.
- Captured by Thutmose III, II 761; Ramses II, III 366.

- Keftiyew*—
—Chief of, II 773.
KEHEK: captives of, III 588.
—Made into an Egyptian class, IV 402, 410.
KEHENI: near Athribis, IV 873.
KELEKESH: III 306, 349; ally of Kheta, III 309.
KEMED: captured by Seti I, III 114.
KEMWER: lake of, I 493; shore of, IV 724A; Harkhentikhet, lord of, IV 875.
KENEMETYEW, II 808.
KENOFU: pyramid city of Amenemhet I, I 490 n. a.
KERBEN: city of Egypt, IV 405; location of, IV 405 n. g.
KEREKHEN: n. —, Hittite city, III 386.
KEREMIM: captured by Seti I, III 114.
KERET, II 925.
KERPET: city on mount of Bethanath, III 356; conquered by Ramses II, III 356.
KERZET: Hittite city, III 386.
KESHKESH: Syrian land of, ally of Kheta, III 309, 312; captives from, III 428.
KETNE: place in Syria, II 598; captured by Thutmose III, II 598; by Amenhotep II, II 798A; by Ramses II, III 366; prisoners from, II 798A.
KEYKESH: Libyan people, slain by Ramses III, IV 405.
KEZWEDEN: Syrian locality, ally of Kheta, III 309, 312; land of, III 386; dependency of Kheta, III 386; queen of Kheta from, III 391.
KHAFRE: cities of, I 195–98.
KHAFTET-HIR-NEBES: necropolis in western Thebes II 927; goddess, II 70, 339, 606, 655.
KHAMEHEM: captured by Seti I, III 114.
KHAMMAT: modern Soleb, in Nubia; temple of, II 890 894–98; fortress of, II 894, 896, 897; mayor of, II 1041.
KHARU, IV 883.
—Captured by Kadesh, II 420; Amenhotep II, II 798A; Thutmose IV, II 822; Seti I, III 84, 101; Ramses II, III 457; Merneptah, III 617; She-shonk I, IV 724.
—Sea of (the Mediterranean), IV 565.
—Asiatics of, III 101.
—King's messenger to, III 651.
—Towns of, given for support of temples, IV 226; Gezer, city of, II 821; Tyre, city in, III 630, 633.
—Chiefs of, III 84; Yarsu, chief of, ruling Egypt, IV 398.
—Tribute of, II 1015; IV 724; impost of, IV 229.
—Vases of, called  $\text{ḫ} \text{ḫ} \text{ḫ} \text{ḫ}$  vases, II 436; bows of, II 501; prisoners from, II 798A, 821, 884; IV 225; oil of, IV 33; see also Syria.
KHAS: Sekhmet presider over, II 814.
KHASEY: Nubian land, I 510.
KHATITHANA: tribe of, II 789; city of, II 789; captured by Amenhotep II, II 789; belonged to Retenu, II 790.
KHEMKHEM, IV 915.
KHEMMIS: Horus in, II 138, 814; IV 923.
KHENBET: Hittite city, III 386.
KHENT: nome of (XIV), I 159, 165.
KHENT-EBUI-ENTERU: Mut of, IV 369; temple of, IV 369.
KHENTHENNOFER: Nubian region, II 14, 30, 80, 121; III 270, 285; captives from, II 162, 646; Nubian Troglodytes from, II 268, 646; youths (=recruits) of, III 332; under the authority of the viceroy of Kush, II 1026.
—Fine gold from, IV 770.
—Gods of, III 448 n. b; Nibmare, lord of, II 898.
—Nomes of, III 448 n. b.
KHENTIKHET: see under Temples of Athribis: Index II.
KHENTNOFER, IV 878.
KHEREHA (modern Babylon), II 814; cavern of, IV 869.
—Mount of, IV 870; highway of god Sep to, IV 870; located in Per-Hapi, IV 878.
—Nine gods in, I 500; temple of, I 165; lords of, II 814; ennead of Atum in, IV 869.
KHERPENTERES: Hittite city, III 386.
KHESEKHET: Nubian region, II 849.
KHESEP: Hittite city, Sutekh, god of, III 386.
KHETA: field of, a district in Memphis, II 1043.

- KHETA: land of, III 34, 374, 375, 380, 381, 383, 384, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 410, 415, 479.
 —Districts of, III 321.
 —Wars with: by Seti I, III 114, 143, 144, 147, 148, 151, 152; Ramses II, III 306-312, 317-27, 392, 448 n. b; by Merneptah, III 617; Ramses III, IV 129.
 —the great coalition of prince of, III 309; treaty of Egypt with, I 18, 36; III 367-91; invasion into, by the people of the Isles of the Northerners, IV 64.
 —Grain transported by ships from Egypt to, III 580.
 —Kings of, III 375 n. c; Seplel, III 373, 377; Merasar, III 373, 391; Metella, III 374, 375, 377; Khetasar, III 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 391; queen of, Petkhep, III 391; Matnefrure, eldest daughter of King Khetasar, given as queen to Ramses II, III 410, 415, 417; second daughter of Khetasar, III 428.
 —Chief of, visiting Egypt, III 421, 424, 426; chiefs of, II 525, 773; III 144, 309, 310, 319, 321, 322, 323, 325, 326, 330, 330, 337, 338, 340, 340, 349, 359, 360, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 389, 390, 391, 417, 418, 419, 421, 424, IV 129; Thewethes, III 337; Rebeyer, III 337; Septher, III 337.
 —Kheta, the Great: tribute from, II 485, 525, 773; III 151, 421; gifts from, III 420.
 —Officers of, III 337; nobles of, III 419; people of, III 421; prisoners from, III 342; regulars of, III 424; warriors of III, 424; chariot warrior of, Gerbetes, III 337; charioteers: Tergen, III 337; Tergenenes, III 337; Peves, III 337; soldiers of: Semretes, III 337; Methren, III 337; chief of the warriors of, Teder, III 337; chief of the archers of, Tergetetethes, III 337; Egem, III 337; Rebesnen, III 337; scribe of chief of, Kherpesar, III 337; chief of the bodyguard, Teyeder, III 337; king's messengers, Tarteseb, III 371, 372.
 —Chariotry of, III 309, 310, 312, 320, 321, 338, 424; infantry of, III 320, 321, 338, 424; army of, III 419, 424.
 —City of, III 365; cities of: Ernen, III 386; Zepyerened, III 386; Perek, III 386; Khesesep, III 386; Seres, III, 386; Aleppo, III 386; Rekhzen, III 386; Sekhpen, III 386; Zeyeth-ekhrer, III 386; Kerzet, III 386; Kherpenteres, III 386; Kerekhen, III 386; Khewek, III 386; Zen, III 386; Zen-wet, III 386; Serep, III 386, Khenbet, III 386.
 —Fortresses of Ereth, IV 120.
 —Gods of, III 386; Sun god, III 386; Sutekh, III 386; Antheret, III 386; Tesker, III 386.
 —Products of: silver, II 485; III 420; white precious stone, II 485; t'-gw-wood, II 485; gold, II 525; III 420; horses, III 420, 428; goats, III 428; large cattle, III 428.
KHEWEK: Hittite city, III 386.
KHMUNU (= Eshmunen, Hermopolis): chief city of the Hare nome, I 688; Thoth, lord of, II 274; see Eshmunen, Hermopolis.
KIKKAR: locality in Palestine, IV 713 n. h.
KINA: brook of, II 428, 430.
KODE: captured by Kadesh, II 420; by Ramses II, III 306; located north of Megiddo, II 434; ally of Kheta, III 309, 321; invaded by the Northerners of the Isles, IV 64.
 —All Kode, III 321; not included in the districts of Kheta or land of Naharin, III 321; IV 64.
 —Chief of, III 421; visiting Egypt, III 421, 426; folk of, "curly-haired," II 657.
KOM EL-HISN: temple of, IV 956.
KOM OMBO: Set, god of, II 828.
KONOSSO, ISLAND OF: rock inscription by Mentuhotep I, I 423H n. d; Thutmose IV, II 823 n. b; Amenhotep III, II 845.
KUBBÂN: stelæ of Thutmose I, II 54 n. a; Ramses II, III 282-93.
KUMMEH (37 miles above Wadi Halfa): temple of, built of "good white stone" from Shat, I 510.
 —Rock inscription by Amenemhet IV, I 749.
KURNA: Temple of Seti I, see Index II.
KURNET-MURRAI (west side of Thebes): cliff-tomb of Huy, II 1019 n. a.
KURUSKO (half-way between first and second cataract): inscription of, I 412 n. b.
KUSH: land of, II 121 bis, 122, 858;

- III 44, 498; IV 313, 341, 387, 410; passed by Sesostris I's expedition; sailing southward, I 519.
- Campaigns against, by: Pepi II, I 361; Sesostris I, I 510 n. b; Sesostris III, I 647, 650, 653, 661, 672; Amenhotep I, II 39, 41; Thutmose I, II 76-77, 84; Thutmose II, II 119-22; Thutmose III, II 648; Thutmose IV, II 824; Amenhotep III, II 844, 845, 857; Harmhab, III 42; Seti I, III 164 bis; Ramses II, III 285, 392, 471.
- Rebellion of, II 844.
- Colony from, II 824; Troglodytes of, III 490; Negro people of, IV 114; Negro slaves from, II 494, 502, 514, 522, 526; prisoners from, II 857.
- Tribute from, II 891, 1015; III 42, 453, 590, 644; impost of, II 127, 494, 502, 514, 522, 526, 538; harvest of, II 494, 502, 514, 514, 538, 871.
- Towns of, given for support of temples, IV 226.
- Localities of: Pool of Horus, II 845; Karoy, II 889.
- Viceroy of, I 18, called "King's son," II 47; see Index V; first appointed by Thutmose I, II 47; earliest known II 61; appointment of earliest known, II 64; residence of, II 54, 62; called "King's son of Kush," II 1023; see Index V.
- Chief of II 122; III 590; IV 114; chiefs of, II 844, 857, 891, 1035, 1036; III 164; princess of, II 1035; deputy of, see Index V; king's messenger to, III 651.
- Products of: gold, II 522, 526; bulls, II 514; oxen, II 494, 502, 514, 1035; calves, II 494, 502, 514; ivory, II 494, 502, 514; ebony, II 494, 502, 514; ships, II 494, 502, 514, 538; chariot, II 1035, 1039.
- L
- LEBANON: expedition to, I 146 n. a; capture of Tripolis of, by Thutmose III, II 236; by Amenhotep II, II 783.
- Owned by Byblos, IV 577; claimed by Amon, IV 580.
- Fortress, built by Thutmose III in, II 548; name of, II 548.
- Imposts of, II 483, 510; chiefs of, II 483, 548; III 94; harvest of, II 519; booty of, II 783.
- Products of, II 436; birds of, II 483; wild fowl, II 483; horses, II 783; cedar from, III 94; IV 577.
- LETOPOLIS: Horus lord, IV 878; presider over, II 95; prophet of, IV 878.
- LEVI-EL, IV 131.
- LIBYA: land of, III 581, 586, 611; IV 40; people of, I 423H, 492; III 590; IV 822, 994.
- Invasion by, into Egypt, III 572-617; IV 91; plundering western Egypt, IV 405.
- Conquest of, by Mentuhotep I, I 423H; Amenemhet I, I 492; Ramses II, III 448 n. c; Merneptah, III 574, 584, 591, 594, 598, 608; Ramses III, first war, IV 35-58; second war, IV 83-114.
- Kings of: Ded, III 579; IV 43; Meshken, IV 43; Meryey, III 579, 586, 610, 612, 614; IV 43; Wermer, IV 43; Themer, IV 43.
- Chief of, Hetihenker, IV 783, 784; chiefs of, III 579, 580, 583, 584, 586, 588, 589, 590, 594, 595, 610, 615; IV 114, 127, 783, 784.
- Uncircumcised phalli of, III 587, 588, 601 ter; IV 52, 54; seed of, III 604; IV 91; families of, III 598.
- Chariotry of, III 583; infantry of, III 583; archers of, III 609; bowmen of, III 579; captives from, III 584, 588, 600; IV 52, 54, 57, 78, 79.
- LIBYAN NOME, I 159.
- LISHT: pyramid of Sesostris I in, I 507 n. b.
- LOWER EGYPT: kings of, I 78, 78 n. a, 90; II 287; III 577, 585.
- LUKA: ally of Kheta, III 309, 312; ally of Libya, invading Egypt, III 574, 579; uncircumcised (?), III 588.
- LUXOR, II 187, 190, 226, 230, 351, 554; III 27, 30; IV 836, 909.
- Wall of, built by Thutmose III, IV 628; restored by Nesubnebded, IV 628-30.
- Feast of, II 809, 887, 888; see Index VII: Feasts, of Southern Opet.
- Obelisk of Ramses II, III 543 n. c, 567.
- Temple reliefs and inscriptions of Amenhotep III, II 187-212, 215-42, Ramses II, III 480-84, 506-8; Menkheperre, IV 659; see also Opet, the Southern.

- LYCOPOLIS: XIII nome of Upper Egypt, I 280, 396; jackal, sacred animal of, I 281 n. c.
- M
- MA<sup>c</sup>SARA (quarry), I 8; II 26.
—Rock inscriptions, by Neferperet, II 26 n. c. See Ayan.
- MACHANAIM: city of Israel, in Gad, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- MAD: sacred precinct near Karnak, IV 915; bull of, IV 915; house of, IV 915.
- MALACHITE COUNTRY, I 161; IV 409; products of: silver, IV 409; gold, IV 409; royal linen, IV 409; mek-linen, IV 409; malachite, IV 409; Hathor, mistress of: see Index I.
- MALACHITE FIELD, IV 1003.
- MANASSEH: cities of, IV 712 n. d.
- MANU, MOUNTAIN OF: western boundary of Egypt, II 321, 905; IV 12, 13, 246.
- MARSHES, OF ASIA (exact rendering of the word translated "Marshes" is uncertain, but the lands of the upper Euphrates are meant), II 120, 321, 402, 657; III 480; IV 90.
—Applied to the Kode-folk, II 657; of the lands of Mitanni, II 659; of Fenkhu, III 118.
—Marshes of Asia, II 321; eastern boundary of Egypt, II 321; tribute from, II 385; III 434.
—Marshes of the earth, revolt in, II 416; as far as Naharin, II 631; III 115, 118, 434.
- MAZOI: negro tribe, I 311, 317; chief of, I 324; people of, captured by Amenemhet I, I 483; gendarmes of, IV 466.
- ME, GREAT CHIEFS OF: Sheshonk, IV 675, 677, 678, 680; Namlot, IV 676, 678, 683, 685, 686, 687; see also Meshwesh and Index V: Chiefs.
- MEBER, III 578.
- MEHAY: dom palm of, IV 234.
- MEDINET HABU: Themet, a region of, IV 634 n. b.
—Pylon inscriptions by Ramses III, IV 61-68, 85-92, 94-99, 101-6, 130, 132-35, 137-38.
—Temple inscription by Thutmose III, II 638-41, Ramses III, IV 4-17, 26-34, 37-58, 70-82, 107-14, 117-29, 140-45.
—Temple of Thutmose III in: see Index II; Temple of Ramses III, IV 1 ff.; see Index II.
- MEDŪM, IV 818, 855; see also Mer-Atum.
- MEHENET: sacred district of Sais, IV 1011; temple in, IV 982; mysterious linen from, IV 1011.
- MEGIDDO, II 439.
—Campaign against, by Thutmose III, II 412-43; by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
—In the land of Retenu, II 402; seized by Kadesh, II 420; brook of Kina south of, II 428; chief of, II 435; Asiatics in, II 441; surrender of, II 434, 441; harvest of, II 437; plain of, II 429; cattle of, II 430; siege of, II 432, 440.
—Spoil of: mares, II 431, 435; foals, II 435; stallions, II 435; chariot, II 435; suit of bronze armor, II 435; bows, II 435; meri wood, II 435; large cattle, II 435; small cattle, II 435; white small cattle, II 435.
- MEKHER: negro land, I 334.
- MEMPHIS, II 790; III 28, 77, 159, 260, 271, 286, 608, 610, 612, 613, 615; IV 328, 471, 491, 724, 781, 818, 859, 861, 930, 956; beautified by Thutmose IV, II 812; latitude of, I 45; fall of supremacy of, I 53, 56.
—Called "Life-of-the-Two-Lands," IV 977; "the wall," I 372; the white wall, IV 336; a walled city, III 608.
—Besieged in the Libyan-Mediterranean invasion, III 608, 610, 612, 613; besieged by Piankhi, IV 857-64; captured by Piankhi, IV 865; captured by Tanutamun, IV 928.
—Nome of, I 159; hunting on the highlands of, II 813; lions of, II 813; wild goats in, II 813.
—Temples: of Ptah (Hatkeptah), Ramses II, Aton, Amon, Seti I, Ramses III, Serapeum: see Index II.
—Gods of: city of Ptah, IV 310; mysterious seat of Sokar in, IV 857; abode of Shu, IV 857; sanctuary of Ineb-Sebek, IV 315, 330, 333; ennead of: see Index I; triad of: Ptah, Sekhmet, Nefertem; IV 183, 305, 306.
—Dated stelæ of, I 22.
—Quarters of, II 814; districts of: "fiel of-the-Kheta," II 1043; "House-

- Okheperkere," II 1043; "House-of-Menkheprure" II 1043; "House-of-Ptah," II 1043.
- Western road of, IV 338; western canal of, IV 338.
- Harbor of, IV 858, 863; stronghold of, IV 858; treasury of, IV 868; granaries, IV 868, 878.
- High priests of: see Index V: Priests.
- MENDES (=Per-Beneded), IV 830, 878; Ptah-Tatenen, as a ram, lord of, III 400; the ram-god, lord of, III 542.
- Nome of, Methen, overseer of, I 173, 174; cities of, I 197, 198.
- MENET-KHUFU: northern point of the Highlands, I 456; located in the Benihasan region, I 624 n. a; was the chief city of "Horizon of Horus," I 619; birthplace of Khufu (IV Dyn.), I 619.
- Colonnaded hall, rebuilt by Khnum-hotep II, I 637.
- Rulers of: Khnumhotep I, I 465, 625; Nakht I, I 627; Khnumhotep II, I 624, 629.
- MER-ATUM: modern Medūm, IV 818, 855; house of Sokar in, IV 855.
- MEREM: city in northern Palestine, conquered by Ramses II, III 356.
- MERET-SNEFRU: city of, I 165.
- MERNEPTAH-HOTEPHIRMA: city of, III 634; located in the land of Aram, III 634; fortress of, III 638; in Theku, III 638; stronghold of, III 633; well of, III 631; pools of Pithom of, III 638.
- MERNOFRET: city of, I 635; ka-house of Nehri in, I 635.
- MERO—: city of Tikhsi, II 587.
- MESA: Syrian land of, conquered by Ramses II, III 306; ally of Kheta, III 309, 312.
- MESBET: see Esbet.
- MESSED, IV 879.
- MESEZUT (of the Saitic nome): city of, I 174 n. f.
- MESHA: Sebek, lord of, IV 368; temple of, IV 368.
- MESHENETH: Syrian locality, captured by Ramses II, III 306; ally of Kheta, III 309.
- MESHWESH: a Libyan land, IV 90, 103, 108, 113.
- Captured by: Merneptah, III 580, 598, 608; Ramses III, IV 40, 43, 52, 58, 84, 91, 92, 103, 104, 107, 224, 405.
- Invading Tehenu, IV 87; Egypt, IV 88, 405; in alliance with Temeh, IV 91.
- Kings of: Keper, IV 90, 97; Meshe-she, IV 90.
- Chief of, IV 87, 109, III, III, III, III, 779, 781.
- Army of, IV 90; warriors of, IV 90, 97; men of, IV III; chiefs of, IV 90; chieftains of, IV III; leaders of, IV III.
- Hands of (indicating that circumcision was practiced in), IV 58, 54 (?), III; seed of, IV 43.
- Captives from, IV 90, 92, III, 405; impost from, IV 92.
- Feast of "slaying the Meshwesh," IV 145; herd named after conquest of, IV 224.
- Cattle from, III 589; IV 110, III; herds of, IV 90; horses of, IV 86, 90, III; asses of, IV III; copper swords from, III 589; swords from, IV III; bows from, IV III; quivers from, IV III; spears from, IV III; chariots from, IV III; see also Me.
- MESTA, TEMPLE OF, IV 956.
- METENU, IV 818 n. h, 882.
- METHER: Nubian country, I 368.
- MEWETKHENT: temple of Amon in, IV 368.
- MIAM (see also Derr): chief of, II 1037; Horus, lord of, III 285; IV 474; Penno, chief of the quarry service of, IV 474; statue of Ramses VI in, IV 479; domains of, IV 479-83.
- Treasurer of, IV 474; mayor of, IV 474; scribe of the White House of, IV 474.
- MIDDLE EGYPT, I 10; boundaries of, in the Middle Kingdom, I 396 n. h; rebellion of, chastised by Merikere, I 400; counts of, I 401, 414; belonging to the Heracleopolitan kingdom, I 396, 401, 407, 413, 414.
- Kheti I, great lord of, I 403; Kheti II, commander of, I 410; Nakht II, forefront of, I 632.
- MIGDOL OF RAMSES, IV 77.
- MIN: city of, II 740; see Akhmim.
- MINIEH: province of, I p. 48.
- MIN-SI-ESE, III 76.

- MIPER: (in Saite nome) Methen palace ruler of, I 172, 174.
- MIRAMAR: stela at, I 281 n. c.
- MITANNI, I 3; lands of, II 659, 773.
—Asiatics of the army of, IV 722.
—Called Naharin, II 867.
—Caves of, II 773.
—Chiefs of, II 773, 804.
—Cities of, II 773.
—Kings of: Artatama, II 866 n. h; Shuttarna, II 866 n. h; Dushratta, II 866 n. h.
—Overthrown by Thutmose III, II 773; Ramses III, IV 131.
—Princesses of: Mutemuya, II 866 n. h; Gilukhipa, II 866 n. h, 867; Tadukhipa, II 866 n. h.
—Tribute from, II 804.
- MIVU: district of Wawat, IV 480.
- MONS CASSIUS, II 582 n. c.
- MUT, VILLAGE OF: in Dakhel of the southern oasis, IV 725 n. c.
- N
- NAHARIN, LAND OF, III 321, 434; not included in the districts of Kheta or Kode, III 321, 344, 346; Mitanni designated as in, II 867; great bend of (=Euphrates), crossed by Thutmose III, II 479 n. a, 631; waters of (=Euphrates), II 583; located between Carchemish and Naharin, II 583; marshes of, II 631; III 115, 118; boundary of, II 871.
—Campaigns to: by Thutmose I, II 81, 85; Thutmose III, II 476-82, 485, 496-503, 532; Amenhotep, II, II 800; Thutmose IV, II 817-19; Amenhotep III, II 858; Ramses II, III 365.
—Captured by: Kadesh, II 420; Thutmose III, II 479, 498; Amenhotep II, II 800; Thutmose IV, II 817-19; Amenhotep III, II 858; Seti I, III 114, 115, 118; Ramses II, III 306-312, 317-27, 344.
—Revolt of, II 498; coalition of, with Kheta, III 309; sent auxiliary troops to Kadesh, II 532.
—Tablet erected there by Thutmose I, II 478; by Thutmose III, II 481; boundary stone of Thutmose III placed east of Euphrates, II 478; tablet erected by Amenhotep II in, II 800.
—King of, II 81, 479; princes of, II 480, 819; Satirna, chief of, II 867; Kirgipa, princess of, II 867.
—Populations of, II 858; harem ladies of, II 867.
—Tunip in the land of, III 365; towns of, II 479; settlements of, II 479; prisoners of, II 581.
—Tribute of, II 482, 819; harvest of, II 480; booty from, II 480, 500, 501, 532, 817.
—Products of: oxen, II 482; calves, II 482; bullocks, II 482; bulls, II 482; incense, II 482; sweet oil, II 482; green oil, II 482; fruit, II 482; grain, II 480; horses, II 482; gold, II 482; silver vessels, II 482; chariots II 482; weapons of war, II 482.
- NAHR EL-KELB, stela of Ramses II, III 297; see Dog River.
- NAPATA, I 22; II 647; IV 895, 923; city of Nubia, II 797; a prince of Tikhsi hanged on its wall, II 797; southern boundary of the territory of the viceroy of Kush, II 1022, 1025; also called Karoy, II 1020, 1025.
—Cliff temple of, IV 897-99, 924; pure mountain of, IV 924, 932; see Gebel Barkal.
—Amon of, IV 921, 924, 929, 932.
—Stela of Tanutamon, IV 919-34.
- NAPTALI: cities of, IV 714 n. b.
- NEDYT: flats of, where the enemies of Osiris were ceremoniously slain, I 669.
“NEFERIRKERE-BELOVED-OF-THE-DIVINE-ENNEAD”: city of, I 165.
“NEFERIRKERE-BELOVED-OF-THE-SPIRITS-OF-HELIOPOLIS”: city of, I 165.
- NEFRUS: wall of, IV 820.
Ng'w (ox), city of, I 493.
- NEGEB, IV 715; battle in, II 580; prisoners of, II 580; people of, called Asiatics, II 580.
- NEGRO: land of, I 146; II 797; III 285, 457; 490; IV 477, 724.
—Negroes, II 71, 849, 1035; III 448 n. b, 451; IV 338; slain, I 465, 707; chief's children and commanders slain, I 358; prisoners taken, I 538; II 648; chiefs of, I 359; II 648.
—Revolt of, II 826.
—Imported to Egypt for attendants, II 494, 526.
—Captives, III 40, 44, 452; IV 225; servants, II 854; slaves, IV 539.

- Negro*—
 —Negro tribes, I 311, 333-36, 510.
 —Products of, I 336; baskets of, II 271; ships, I 652; bulls, I 658; herds, I 652; grain, I 658; trading, I 652; wells, I 658; II 850.
 —Negro words: "urum" = black, IV 821 n. g.
 —Negresses, II 854.
- NEKHEB: ancient name of El Kab, I 293, 373, 609; II 7; Lords of: see Index V; for further references see El Kab.
- NEKHEN (=Hieraconpolis): city of, I 201, 252, 293; II 47; northern boundary of the territory of the viceroy of Kush, II 1020, 1022, 1025.
 —Lord of: see Index V; district officials of, II 722; mayors of, II 722; Harmini, II 47, 48; kenbeti of, II 722; "Attached to," see Index V; Judge attached to, see Index V.
 —Gods of, II 888; Heket, white one of, II 205 n. a; Nekhbet, the white goddess of, III 100.
 —Products of, II 722.
- NEMYEW: chiefs of, II 267.
- NER: temple of, in Heracleopolis, IV 968; restored by Hor, IV 968.
- NERU: see Index II.
- NETER: in central Delta, Tefnakhte, great prince of, IV 818.
- NETHER WORLD, I 378; II 95, 293, 664, 936; III 259, 272, 278; IV 4, 182, 309, 353, 411, 485, 852; the glorious ones entering the, III 17; going in and out of, II 353, 378; IV 187; door of, III 240; gates of, II 378; gods of, III 280; IV 473; water of, III 291, 292; king of, IV 182.
- NEW ISLES: domains of Re in, IV 265.
- NEW TOWNS: Nekonekh, governor of, I 216; Nehri, ruler of, I 628; chief of, I 354.
- NIBMAT: bend of Horus, a district, I 312.
- NILE, I 483; III 587; IV 354, 407, 479, 480, 481, 482; flooding ancient landmarks through irrigation, in time of Kheti II, I 407.
 —Rising of, in time of Uni, I 42; of Shabataka, I 43.
 —Connected with Red Sea, II 248.
 —Full Nile, royal title, II 992, 1003; III 486.
 —Great, Nile, II 883, 887; III 404; IV 246.
 —High Nile, IV 470; to be reported to the vizier, II 709; as epithet of the king, II 994.
 —Nile levels, I 22, 95, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 146, 147, 148, 152, 157, 159, 165, 749, 752; IV 695, 696, 697, 698, 743, 793, 794, 886, 887, 888.
 —Shores of, IV 72; sources of, III 171 n. b; valley of, I 1, 8; III 290.
 —"I was a Nile [to my people]," Tefibi, I 395.
- NINE BOWS, I 423H; II 72, 120, 148, 656, 792, 828, 836, 887, 1029; III 30, 77, 103, 110, 114, 132, 346, 408, 414, 457, 465, 474, 479, 489, 498, 510, 577, 580, 590, 600, 607, 617; IV 38, 49, 52, 54, 55, 57, 62, 63, 66, 67, 68, 71, 72, 77, 78, 81, 103, 104, 105, 110, 123, 124, 126, 246, 259, 304, 351, 620, 712, 718, 720.
 —Chiefs of, III 26; captives from, IV 190.
 —Sun of, royal title, II 1037; III 38, 44, 152; IV 122.
 —Thebes, mistress of, IV 751; Khnum, binder of, II 170, 171; Mut, mistress of, II 891.
- NIY, city in upper Retenu: gifts from, II 125; south of Naharin, II 481; elephant hunt at, II 588; south of Oronates, II 786; walls of, II 786.
 —Asiatics of, II 786; prisoners from, II 798A.
- NOMADS (Asiatic): strongholds of, overthrown by Nessu-Montu, I 471.
- NORTH, the, III 155; IV 47, 72, 130, 359, 864; great lake of, III 479; countries of, III 457; chiefs of, IV 860, 930; gods of, II 217.
- NORTH AND SOUTH, I 161, 274, 340; genii of, 206; union of, I 78; numbering of cattle in, I 81; building the wall of, I 146.
 —Prophets of, II 936.
- NORTH COUNTRIES, III 351; chiefs of, II 1032; captives of, III 351.
 —Northern countries: two doors of, IV 1014; Governor of, see Index V.

- NORTHERN ISLE: probably the same as Isle of Snefru, I 312.
- NORTHERNERS, I 81; II 656, 797, 835, 887; III 273, 574; IV 722, 845, 934.
- NORTHERNERS OF THE ISLES: attacking Northern Syria, IV 64; camping in Amor, IV 64; intending to invade Egypt, IV 64; allies of, IV 64.
- NORTHLAND, I 156, 158, 212, 311, 407; II 224, 341, 355; III 281; IV 189 n. c, 190, 780, 825, 830, 832, 835, 838, 841, 853, 859, 876, 882, 883, 895, 922, 925, 927, 934, 1003.
- Avaris of the, II 296, 303; city of, IV 215.
- Belonging to the Heracleopolitan kingdom, I 407 n. b, 413, 414.
- Wine gardens of Amon in, IV 213; stern-rope of, II 885; Busiris, city of, IV 485; princes of, IV 868, 873.
- NUBIA (T 2-pd:t), III 31, 179, 479, 500, 501, 502; IV 443, 929, 994, 1014.
- Regions of, I 311, 336, 510; II 843, 845 n. f, 849.
- Campaigns to: by Pepinakht, I 355, 358, 359; Mekhu, I 363, 365; Sebni, I 363, 366, 368; Mentuhotep I, I 423 H; Sesostri III, I 658; Ahmose I, II 5; Thutmose I, II 67-77, 78-80, 84; Thutmose II, II 122; Thutmose III, II 446-48; Thutmose IV, II 826-29; Amenhotep III, II 842-55; Ramses II, III 448 n. b, 457; Ramses III, IV 136-38; Sheshonk I, IV 723.
- Towns of, conquered by Thutmose III, II 645, 646, 647; Napata, city of, II 797.
- Chief of, I 317, 602; II 71, 80; Officials of: see Index V.
- Temple of Amon in, IV 218.
- Gods of, III 290; Horus of, I 500; Anuket, mistress of, I 644; Dedun, presider over, II 170, 171, 176; Nibmare, lord of, II 894, 897; Harakhte, lord of, III 499.
- Impost of, IV 190; reckonings of, III 448 n. b.
- Upper Nubia, products of: gold brought from, I 665; fine white stone of, II 176.
- Inscriptions in, I 8, 10; under the empire, I 21.
- NUBIAN TROGLODYTES, II 11, 268, 646, 837, 892.
- NUBIANS, I 423H, 658; II 71, 101, 916; sacrificed to Amon, II 645.
- NUGES: city in southern Lebanon, ally of Kheta, III 309; under the rule of Kadesh, II 436; called a city of Retenu, II 557; plundered by Thutmose III, II 436; district of, II 490, 508.
- Booty of, II 436, 490, 508; impost of, II 557; products of, II 490.
- NUN (the primeval celestial ocean): Hathor, mistress of, I 178; dwellers in, II 95.

O

- OASIS: hills of, III 580; district of Toyeh in, III 580; captured by Libya, III 580.
- OASIS, northern, III 580 n. c; tribute from, II 385, 386; wine-gardens of Amon in, IV 212; products of, IV 229, 283, 387.
- OASIS DWELLERS: land of, expedition of Sesostri I to, under Ikudidi, I 527.
- OASIS OF AMON, II 189.
- OASIS OF BIT, IV 867.
- OASIS REGION: tribute from, II 386; Intef, lord of, II 763, 767; Thebans banished to, IV 655, 656.
- OASIS, SOUTHERN: also called oasis of Dakhel, IV 725 n. a, 726 n. c, 734; and oasis of el-Khargeh, IV 726 n. c, 734; known by ancients as Oasis Major, IV 726 n. c; two towns of, IV 726; two lands of, IV 726; Sutekh, lord of, IV 726; land of, IV 726; rebellion of, IV 726; organization of, IV 726.
- Wine and shedeh from, IV 734, 992; tribute from, II 385, 386; wine-garden of Amon in, IV 213.
- OKEANOS: see Circle, Great.
- OMBOS: district officials of, II 720; recorder of, II 720; scribe of the recorder of, II 720; kenbeti of, II 720.
- Temple of Sutekh in, IV 359.
- Set, god of, III 583; Sutekh, lord of, IV 359.
- Products of, II 720.
- ON (=Heliopolis), II 814; two lands of, III 600.
- OPET, SOUTHERN (=Luxor), II 886; IV 671, 743; restored by Senmut, II 27, 351.
- Ceremony of the voyage to, II 554; feast of, II 591, 809, 887, 888; III 58; IV 671.
- Inclosure wall of, II 887; see also Luxor.

- OPHIEION, I 459 n. e; see Hefat.
- ORONTES, III 311, 326, 336; ford of, II 784; cattle at the, II 784; booty taken in, II 784, 785; channel of, III 308.
- ORYX NOME (XVI of Upper Egypt), I 518; location of, I 619, 626; horizon of Horus, a part of, I 619; bordering on the South to the Hare nome, I 626; North to the Jackal nome, I 626; extending in west to the western highlands, I 626; troops of, I 519; Commander in chief of: see Index V.
- Fields of, I 523, 626.
- Great lords of: Khnumhotep I, I 464, 626; Amen(emhet), I 518, 522 bis; Kheti, I 637 n. a; shepherds of, I 522.
- Temple of Khnum, lord of Hirur, I 637 n. a.
- OTHU: captured by Seti I, III 114.
- Ox (Ng<sup>o</sup>w), city of, I 493.
- OXYRRHYNCUS (= Behnesa): XIX nome of Upper Egypt, I 427; IV 818 n. b, 820, 837; district of, IV 948; army of, I 429, 442; boundaries of, I 632.
- Set, lord of, IV 368; temple of, IV 368.
- P
- PALESTINE: inscriptions in, I 8; civilization of, I 20; campaign in southern Palestine by Uni, I 315; people from, settling in Delta, III 10; conquered by Ramses II, III 471. See also Syria, Kharu Zahi, Retenu.
- PANOPOLIS: nome of, north of Thinis, I 529 n. e; Min, lord of, II 181; Min, Horus and Isis of, IV 366; temple of Min in, II 181; IV 366.
- PATORIS: nomes of, IV 905.
- PAUZY: temple of Thoth in, IV 368.
- PE: souls of, I 264; temple of Buto in, I 500; gods of, II 888; Horus, lord of, IV 1017; Buto, mistress of, I 500; royal statue of Sesostri for, I 500; Mentuhotep, lord of, I 512.
- PEDES: III 306, 349; ally of Kheta, III 309 n. d, 312.
- PEDETISHEW: transporting grain in ships to Kheta, III 580.
- PEHER: captured by Seti I, III 114.
- PEKANAN: city in Palestine, III 88; plundered by Merneptah, III 617.
- Pekanan: as part of a temple name, according to which Zahi would be a part of Pekanan, IV 219.
- PEKER (district in Abydos): feast of, II 94.
- PELESET: a Palestine people, conquered by Ramses III, IV 44, 129, 403; chieftain of, IV 129; soldiers of, by land and sea, IV 44; ally of the northerners, IV 64; towns of, IV 71; captives of, IV 81, 82, 129; headdress of, IV 73.
- PEMDSHEE (Oxyrrhyncus), IV 818 n. c.
- PEMEHETEM: land in Syria; captured by Seti I, III 94.
- PENINEYWE, IV 867.
- PER-BAST (=Bubastis): residence of Osorkon III, IV 830.
- PER-BENEDEDED (=Mendes): IV 830; Zeamonefonekh, prince of, IV 878.
- PER-BERSET: a Delta city, III 576.
- PEREK: Hittite city; Sutekh, god of III 386.
- PER-GERER, IV 878.
- PER-HAPI: Khereha in, IV 878; Pebes, prince of, IV 878.
- PER-HATHOR-RESIT, I 373.
- PER-HEBY, IV 878.
- PER-HOR: mayor of, II 742; products of, II 742.
- PERIRE, III 588, 600; fields of, on the western boundary of Egypt, III 579; district of, III 583.
- PERKED, SOUTHERN: Methen, ruler of, I 172, 174.
- PER-MANU: temple of, IV 956.
- Pr-mr-yw*: town of, II 721; town ruler of, II 721; products of, II 721.
- PERNEBETPIH, IV 818.
- PERNESER: temple of Buto in, I 159.
- PERNEZED: capital of Oxyrrhyncus-Behnesa, IV 818, 837.
- PERNUB, near Sais, IV 818.
- PERONEKH: Sebek of, IV 547.
- PER-OSIRIS (=Busiris) IV 830; She-shonk, chief of Me, lord of, IV 830; Pemou, prince of, IV 878.
- PER-PEG, IV 831.
- PER-SEKHEMKHEPPERRE, near Illahun, IV 818, 853; wall of, IV 853; stronghold of, IV 853.

- PERSEPA: Methen, palace-ruler of, I 172.
- PERSHETHET: Methen ruler of, I 172.
- PERSIANS: accession of, I 47, 48, 50.
- PER-SOPED, IV 878, 956; Pekrur, hereditary prince of, IV 932.
- PER-THUTUPREHUI (Hermopolis parva): army of, IV 830, 878; Enekhhor, commander of, IV 878.
- PERWEN: Nubian land, I 510.
- PERWERSAH: Methen, ruler of, I 174.
- PERZOS: Horus of the South, lord of, IV 726; prophet of, IV 726.
- PESEBEK: town of, IV 784.
- PETEN, I 493.
- PEZEDKU: canal near Avaris, II 9.
- PHILAE, I 459 n. e.
- PHOENICIA: invaded by Ahmose I, II 4, 19-20.
- PITHOM: pools of, III 638; located in Theku, III 638.
- PORT OF THE SOUTH: northern frontier city of the South in the time of Tefibi, I 396.
- PUNT, II 253, 290; gods of, II 286; known by hearsay to ancestors, II 287; Wereret, mistress of, II 288; called the Red Land, I 429; called God's Land, I 433; II 253, 255, 265, 271, 286; III 116; IV 407; Hathor, mistress of, II 252, 255; called the land of rest, III 116.
- Location of, II 249; in the east, II 892; southern boundary of Egypt, II 321.
- Myrrh terraces of, II 260; ways to, II 285; IV 130; highways of, III 155.
- Expeditions to: by Khufu (?), II 247; Sahure, I 161; II 247; Isesi, I 351; II 247; under Pepi II, by Enekhket, I 360; II 247; under Pepi II by Thethi, I 361; II 247; Mentuhotep III, I 429; II 247; Amenemhet II, I 605; II 247; Sesostris II, II 247; Hatshepsut, II 246-95, 296, 299; Harmhab, III 37-39; Seti I, III 116; Ramses III, IV 407.
- Chiefs of, II 255, 256, 260, 261, 262, 267; III 37, 38; Perehu, II 254, 258.
- Tribes of: Irem, II 267; Nemyew, II 267.
- A Punt, made in the garden of Amon at Thebes, II 295.
- Puntites, II 288; called "Southernns of God's Land," II 288.
- Tribute from, II 261, 262; III 37; IV 407; gifts from, I 351; slaves from, II 486.
- Products of, II 750; dwarf from, I 351; marvels of, II 265, 266, 271, 272, 274, 277-78, 321, 377, 486, 513; odor of, I 762; II 196, 274; gold from, II 486; gold dust from, III 37; ivory, II 265, 272, 486; shells, II 272; green gold of Emu, II 265; electrum, I 161; II 272; throw sticks, II 272; ebony, II 265, 272, 486; dried myrrh, II 486, 513; fragrant woods, II 265; III 527; myrrh resin, II 265; khesyt wood, II 265; myrrh trees, II 265; cinnamon wood, II 265; myrrh, I 161, 429; II 260, 321; IV 130, 210, 333, 929; ihmut incense, II 265; sonter incense, II 265; incense, IV 130; eye cosmetic, II 265; asses, II 258; apes, II 265; monkeys, II 265; dogs, II 265; southern panther, II 265, 272; panther skins, II 265, 272, 486; small cattle, II 272; oxen, II 486; calves, II 486; bulls, II 486; ostrich feathers, III 37; manna, IV 286, 390.
- PUNT RELIEFS: by Hatshepsut in temple at Dêr el-Bahri, II 246 ff.; by Harmhab on his Karnak pylons, III 37.

R

- RABBITH: town of Israel, in Issachar, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- "RAMSES-MERIAMON," city of Ramses, III 261, 371; IV 362, 369, 414; Amon, god of, III 371; Ptah, god of, III 371; temple of Sutekh in, IV 362; people of, IV 369.
- The city of: Palace of, in the city of the Northland, IV 215; name of, IV 215; built by Ramses III, IV 215; gardens of, IV 215; boulevards of, IV 215; sacred avenue of IV 215; people of, IV, 225.
- RANOFER: district of, IV 830; Yewepet, king of, IV 878.
- RAPHIA, IV 716.
- RED LAND, II 245, 297; III 179, 270, 471, 598; expedition to Punt by Henu to bring myrrh from the sheiks of, I 429, 430.

- Mentuhotep, lord of, I 532; pillar of, I 533; Thutmose II, ruler of, II 116; Hatshepsut, ruler of, II 299, 319, 321.
- Chiefs of, executed, II 808; sheiks of, I 423D.
- RED MOUNTAIN: quarry of, I 493; II 975, 976; highland goddess, mistress of, I 493; II 297; sandstone from, II 153; gritstone from, II 917 n. c.; Chief of works in: see Index V.
- RED SEA, I 7, 433; ship-building at, by Enenkhet, I 360; by Henu, I 432; battle at northern end of, I 360; hunting at, I 456; oblation at, I 432; connected with the Nile, II 248.
- REDESIYEH: temple of, III 162; built by Seti I, III 172-74; town of, settled by Seti I, III 172; gods of, III 173; stronghold of, III 174.
- Rock inscriptions, by Seti I, III 197-98.
- Temple inscriptions, by Seti I, III 162-95.
- REHESU: near Letopolis; Sekhmet, mistress of, IV 878; house of, IV 878.
- REHOB: city of Israel, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.
- REKHSEN: Hittite city, Sutekh, god of, III 386.
- REKRERET: sacred district of Anubis in Siût; Anubis, lord of, I 540, 572, 583.
- Rs-nf.t.*: district of, II 731; scribe of, II 731; products of, II 731.
- RESENET: a sacred district of Sais; mysterious linen from, IV 1011.
- RESHET: malachite from, II 321.
- RESHU: land of, under rule of Hatshepsut, II 299.
- RESIDENCE CITY of Ramses III; temple of Sutekh in, IV 362.
- RETENU, II 413, 439, 477, 596, 616; III 102, 103, 270, 476, 498; IV 219, 709 n. b; called God's Land, II 451, 820, 888; "Retenu and all the northern countries of the ends of the earth," II 761 n. a; cities of Kharu not included in, II 798A; Lebanon located within, II 548.
- Campaigns to, by: Sesostris III, I 680; Thutmose I, II 81; Thutmose II, II 125; Thutmose III, 1st campaign, II 402, 408-443; 2d campaign, II 444-49; 3d campaign, II 450-52; 4th campaign, II 453; 5th campaign, II 455-62; 6th campaign, II 463-67; 7th campaign, II 468-75; 8th campaign, II 476-87; 9th campaign, II 488-95; 10th campaign, II 496-503; 11th campaign, II 504; 12th campaign, II 505; 13th campaign, II 506-515; 14th campaign, II 516-19; 15th campaign, II 520-23; 16th campaign, II 524-27; 17th campaign, II 528-40; Amenhotep II, II 790, 798A; Seti I, III 94, 139, 147; Ramses II, III 392, 448 n. b, 451, 457.
- Princes of, II 413, 471; nobles of, II 790; chiefs of, II 162, 225, 445, 447, 466, 467, 491, 525; III 94, 97, 106, 107, 139, 151, 392, 448 n. b, 451; IV 623.
- Captives from, II 162, 402, 467, 790; III 97, 392, 448 n. b; slaves from, 436, 447, 467, 471, 491, 518.
- Tribute from, II 445, 447, 448, 466, 471, 491, 518, 533(?), 534(?), 761, 820; III 106, 110; presents from, II 1030; dues of, II 596; plunder from, II 790; impost from, IV 28; harvest of, II 473.
- Cities of: Nuges, II 557; Yenoam, II 557; Herenkeru, II 557.
- Products of: gold from, II 447, 471, 491; III 111; chariots, wrought with gold, II 413, 447, 467, 491; gold horn from, II 447; flat dishes from, II 447; silver from, II 447, 491; III 111; malachite from, III 111; lapis lazuli from, III 111; copper from, II 447, 471, 491; vessels of copper from, II 491; lead from, II 471, 491; feldspar from, II 491; colors from, II 491; green stone, II 473, 491; sparkling stone, II 473; costly stone, II 473, 491; III 111; incense from, II 447, 472, 491; dried myrrh from, II 491; plants of, II 451; flowers of, II 452; honeyed wine, II 447; c.g.t.-wood from, II 447; ivory, II 447; carob wood, II 447; mrw-wood, II 447; psgw-wood, II 447; fire wood, II 447; cedar, II 838, 888; grain, II 473; clean grain, II 473; barley, II 473; green oil, II 473; wine, II 473; fruit, II 473; oxen, II 491; horses, II 403, 447, 467, 491; asses, II 491; bulls, II 447; bullocks, II 447; small cattle, II 447; calves, II 447, 471, 491.
- RETENU, THE LOWER: subject to

- Amenhotep II, II 789A; Amenhotep III, II 858; Seti I, III 116; Osorkon II, IV 749.
 —Prisoners from, II 798A.
- RETENU, THE UPPER, IV 749; subject to Thutmose II, II 125; Thutmose III, II 451; Amenhotep II, II 766, 798A; Amenhotep III, II 858; Seti I, III 112, 116; Ramses II, III 366; Osorkon II, IV 749.
 —Prisoners from, II 798A; chiefs of, II 1033; III 112.
- RHINOCOLURA, III 51 n. b.
- RIDGE: north of the sand-dwellers (southern Palestine), I 315.
- RIVER, IV 823, 831; the great (= Nile), III 580; IV 405; the Conopus branch of the Nile, IV 405 n. a.
- ROSTA, III 230; Anubis, lord of, IV 4.
- ROYENET (= Tehneh), I 213, 218, 221; Hathor of, I 213.
- S
- š-y-wt*: land of, north of Kadesh, II 465.
- SAFT-EL-HENNEH (= Per-Soped), IV 956.
- SAHSETENI, VOYAGE TO, I 112.
- SAL, ISLAND OF, II 652.
- SALS, DISTRICT OF, IV 957; southern Bedwin in, IV 957; Mehenet, a district of, IV 982; Resenet, a district of, IV 1011; nome of, Methen, local governor of, I 172, 173, 174.
 —Chiefs of: Khentemseti, I 609; Tefnakhte, IV 859.
 —Neit, mistress of, IV 830; Sekhmet, mistress of, IV 878; house of, IV 878, 956.
 —Royal statue for, I 500.
- SAKKARA, CEMETERY OF, I 289.
 —Mastaba-chamber of Methen, I 170 n. c; mastaba of Nenekhsekhmet, I 237; Ptahshepses, I 254; mastaba-tomb of Sabu-Ibebi, I 282; pyramid of Mernere, I 321 n. a.
 —Stela of: Nenekhsekhmet, I 237 n. c; Harmhab, III 2.
 —Tomb of Harmhab, III 1 n. a.
- SAMHUDET: city in the Delta, II 935; IV 878.
- SAND DWELLERS: Asiatic, I 311; II 321; III 155; IV 130; five rebellions of, in time of Pepi I, I 314; hacked up by army of Uni, I 313 bis; captives taken by Uni, I 313; their strongholds overturned, I 313; figs and vines destroyed, I 313; numerous troops of, I 313; ridge north of, I 315; slain by Pepi-nakht at the northern end of Red Sea, I 360; expedition against, by Nessumontu, I 471; = Asiatic Troglodytes, I 471; silenced by Mentuhotep, I 532; slain by Thutmose III, II 661.
 —Chiefs of, II 70; tribute given by, II 101.
- SAND RANGERS, I 493; II 916.
- SARBÛT-EL-KHADEM: reached by sea, II 877.
 —Rock inscriptions by: Amenemhet II, I 606 n. b; Khenemsu, I 715, 715A; Sebek-hir-hab, I 725 n. d; Ptahwer, I 728; Amenemhet, I 730; Amenemhet IV, I 750; Thutmose III, II 450 n. a.
 —Stela of Harure, I 733 n. b; officer of Amenhotep III, II 877.
- “SATISFIER-OF-THE-GODS,” city of: mayor of, II 1041; fortress of, II 1041; Penno, deputy of, 1041; Mermose, prophet in, II 1041; priest in, II 1041.
- SEA, II 220; III 480.
 —The great lake of the North, III 479.
- SEA, COUNTRY OF THE: Ekwesh of, III 588, 601; Sherden of, IV 129; Teresh of, IV 129.
- SEA OF SYRIA (Kharu), IV 565.
- SEA PEOPLE, IV 52.
- SEBENNYTOS: Akenesh, prince of, IV 878.
- SEBI: probably identical with Alabastropolis, III 20 n. c; Horus, lord of, III 20; Harmhab, chief prophet of, III 20.
- SEBÛ ‘A: temple of Ramses II, III 504.
- SEHEL, ISLAND OF, I 642.
 —Rock inscription of: Sesostris III, I 642-48; the family of Neferhotep, I 753 n. b; Thure, II 75, 76; Thutmose III, II 649 n. d; Ramose, II 937 n. a; Ramses II, III 553 n. b, 557; Seti (II), III 646.
- SEHEZ: Sokar, lord of, IV 855; Menhy of, IV 855.
- SEIR: people of, IV 404; a tribe of the Shasu, IV 404; captured by Ramses III, IV 404; tents of, IV 404; cattle of, IV 404.

- SEKHEMITE NOME (II of Lower Egypt), I 173, 175.
- SEKHEMU: city of, in Xoïs nome, I 174.
- SEKHPEN: Hittite city, Sutekh, god of, III 386.
- SEKMEM: city in Syria, I 680.
- SEKTU: ships of, II 492.
- SEMNEH: southern boundary of Egypt in the time of Sesostriis III, I 652; fortress of, I 653 n. c, 752; temple of Thutmose III, I 653 n. c; II 61 n. a, 651.
- Rock inscriptions by Sekhemre-Khutowe, I 751 n. a.
- Stelæ of: Sesostriis III, I 651-60; Merimose, II 851-55.
- Temple inscription of Thure, 61 n. a; of Thutmose III, II 167-76; of Nehi, II 651.
- SENT, a stronghold: Methen, ruler of, I 172.
- SENZAR: battle in, II 584. See Sezar.
- SEP: district of, IV 948; Anubis, lord of, IV 368; temple of, IV 368.
- SEPED: Libyan people, captured by Ramses III, IV 52-91; seed of, III 91; circumcision practiced among (?), IV 52, 54 (?).
- SEREP: Hittite city, III 386.
- SERES: Hittite city, Sutekh, god of, III 386.
- SERREH: temple of Ramses II in, III 502.
- SESU: temple of Set in, IV 369.
- SETHU, Negro land, I 336; chief of, I 334, 336 bis.
- SEWEW (=Wadi Gasus): on the coast of the Red Sea, opposite Coptos, I 605.
- SEZAR (=Senzar): prisoners from, II 798A.
- SHABTUNA: city on the west side of Orontes, south of Kadesh, III 310, 319, 324; IV 131.
- SHAI: Libyan people, slain by Ramses III, IV 405.
- SHARUHEN: flight of Hyksos to, II 4; siege of, II 4, 12 n. g, 13 n. b; revolt in, II 416; captured by Sheshonk I, IV 716.
- SHAS-HERET, IV 994.
- SHASU (Bedwin of Sinai and vicinity, especially north of it), II 124; Khnum, smiter of, II 170, 171.
- Conquered by Thutmose III, II 517; Seti I, III 86, 88, 101; Ramses II, III 457; Ramses III, IV 129, 403; conquest of, from the fortress of Tharu to Pekan, III 88.
- People of Seir, a tribe of, IV 404; of Edom, III 638; in army of Kheta, III 319.
- Rebellion of, III 101; captives from, III 108, 457; IV 129; chieftain of, IV 129.
- SHAT: Nubian land, I 510; "good white stone" of, temple of Kummeh built of, I 510.
- SHATB: modern city just south of Assiut, I 401 n. a.
- SHATT ER-RËGAL (near Assuan): relief of Mentuhotep II in, I 425.
- SHEDEBOD, TEMPLE OF, IV 780.
- SHEDET: in Fayûm, IV 369.
- SHEKELESH: a northern people, invading Egypt, III 574, 579, 595; slain by Merneptah, III 588; ally of the northerners, IV 64; captives from, III 588; IV 81.
- SHEKEN: canal of, III 576.
- SHEKH SA'ID: tombs of the princes of the VI Dyn., I 688; restored by Thutnakt, I 689.
- Tomb inscription of Thutnakt, I 688 n. a.
- SHEMESH-EDOM: captured by Amenhotep II, II 783; located in the Lebanon region, II 783; booty from, II 783.
- SHEMIK: Nubian land, I 510.
- SHEM-RE: city of, I 125.
- SHERDEN: a northern people of the sea, IV 129; captives from, III 588, 601; IV 129, 403; rebellious-hearted, III 401; infantry of, IV 72; invading Egypt, III 574, 579; slain by Merneptah, III 588 bis; Ramses III, IV 403.
- SHERDEN: a foreign class of mercenary troops, III 307; IV 50, 51, 397, 402, 410.
- SHEREM: city in northern Palestine, conquered by Ramses II, III 356.
- SHERET-METHEN: city of, I 172, 173.
- SHESHOTEP (modern Shatb, south of Assiut): city of, I 401; Khnum, lord of, IV 366; temple of, IV 366.
- SHETA: wild cattle hunt in, II 864.

- SHET-METHEN: in the Saitic nome, I 173 bis.
- SHETYT: Sokar god of, I 288.
- SHILOH, IV 131.
- SHINAR: captured by Amenhotep III, II 859; Ramses II, III 366 n. c.
- Tribute of, II 484.
- Products of: lapis lazuli, II 484; artificial lapis lazuli, II 484; lapis lazuli of Babylon, II 484; ram's head (artificial) of lapis lazuli, I 484.
- SHORE: western (of the Nile?), IV 405; plundered by Libyans, IV 405.
- SHUNEH YUSUF, IV 878 n. f.
- SHUNEM: city of Israel, in Issachar; conquered by Sheshonk, IV 712.
- SIDON: 10,000 ships in harbor of, IV 574.
- SILSELEH, IV 706; Sebek, lord of, III 208; rock temple of, III 208; built by Harmhab, III 552-60.
- Sandstone quarry of, I 49; II 935; III 205 n. c; IV 18, 701 n. d.
- Rock inscription, by official of Ikhnaton, II 934-35; Seti I, III 206-8; Ramses II, III 552, 554, 555, 556, 559, 560; Roy, III 627-28; Siptah, III 648; Setemhab, IV 19, 20; Haremsaf, IV 701-8.
- SIMYRA: city of, II 476, 528 n. h; captured by Thutmose III, II 465; by Seti I, III 114.
- SINAI: peninsula of, I 7, 10, 42, 728; copper mines of, operated in I Dyn., I 168; by Snefru, I 168-69; mine land of, visited by Sihathor, and malachite brought from, I 602; reached by sea, I 718; II 877.
- Gifts of (=mining products), I 353; expedition of Ramses III to, IV 409.
- SIUT, II 729; IV 358, 795; see also Assiut; canal of irrigation dug by Kheti II, I 407; its princes defended the kings of Heracleopolis against Thebes, I 396, 401, 411, 422.
- Princes of: Tefibi, I 393-97; Kheti I, I 398-404; Kheti II, I 405-414; mother of Kheti II "lord" of Siut, I 414; Hepzefi, I 535-93.
- Counts of, I 538, 547, 557.
- Officials of, I 547, 579; recorder of, II 745; scribe of the recorder of, II 745; kenbeti of, II 745.
- Citizens of, I 546, 547, 578, 579.
- Temple of Upwawet, I 398, 403, 541; official body of, I 550; gifts to, I 404, 407; lay priests of, I 539.
- Temple of Anubis, lord of Rekreret, w<sup>c</sup>b-priests of, I 540; great w<sup>c</sup>b-priest of, I 572.
- Necropolis of: overseer of, I 582; official body of, I 584.
- Products of, II 745.
- Tomb inscriptions at, I 10, 391-92; tomb III, I 393-97; tomb IV, I 398-404; tomb V, I 405-414; cliff tomb of Hepzefi, I 535-93.
- SOCOH: city of Judah, conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 713.
- SOLEB: fortress of, II 894, 895, 897; temple of, II 890, 894-98.
- SOMALI COAST, II 249.
- SOUTH, II 341; III 155; IV 47, 310, 652, 864, 907, 944.
- Nomes of, IV 857; war with, by Tefibi, I 396; Henu, overseer of the administration of, I 428.
- City of (=Thebes), II 1038.
- Vizier of, IV 224.
- Governor of Uni, I 293, 320 ter; extent of, in time of Uni, I 311; real governor of, Nenekhseskhnun, I 305.
- Great lord of: Hapuseneb, II 389; Lords of: see Index V.
- Magnates of: their rank, II 675; Pillar of: see Index V.
- Affairs of, I 332; boundaries of: in the Middle Kingdom, I 396, 396 n. h; gods of, II 217, 828; granite of, II 315; elephantine of the, II 171; door of: see Door of the South; treasury of, II 614; wine-gardens of Amon in IV 212.
- SOUTH COUNTRIES, II 646; princes of, II 887.
- Tribute of, II 652, 1038; impost of, II 652, 653; gifts of, II 271.
- Electrum from, II 654.
- SOUTH AND NORTH, I 152, 423D, 451; II 161, 203, 285, 352, 578, 715; III 20, 268, 286, 404; IV 67, 313, 359; captured by Mentuhotep I, I 423H; recruits of, II 332; infantry of, II 429.
- The great authorities of, IV 460; chiefs of, II 871, 872; III 448 n. b; mayors of, II 701, 768.
- Gods of, II 219, 224, 800, 812; IV 183, 335, 352, 353, 363, 364, 383, 470, 731; goddesses of, IV 352, 363, 364, 383, 470, 731.

South and North—

—Tribute of, III 13, 554; harvest of, II 871.

—Fortresses of, II 675.

—Cattle of Amon in, II 912; IV 212.

SOUTH AND NORTH COUNTRIES, II 213; captives from, II 162; expeditions to, II 818.

SOUTHERN CITY (=Thebes), II 706, 826; III 82, 206, 256, 261; IV 414, 467, 708.

—Vizier of, II 675, 717; garrison of, II 694.

—Steward of, III 32C.

SOUTHERN COUNTRIES, III 285, 480; tribute of, III 116; governor of, II 170; imposts of, II 281; marvels of, II 282; door of, IV 990, 995.

SOUTHERN ISLANDS: scribe of, II 726; products of, II 726.

SOUTHERN LAKE: next to Nomes XX and XXI of Upper Egypt, I 172.

SOUTHERNERS, II 341, 797, 835, 887; III 204 n. b, 272; IV 722, 845, 934.

—Of God's Land, II 288.

SOUTHLAND, III 281; IV 190, 819, 880, 905, 907, 922, 934, 948, 958F; bow-rope of, II 885; gods of, IV 34; products of, IV 34.

SPHINX OF HARMAKHIS: district of, I 179.

SUAN, I 493; see Assuan.

SUCCOTH, III 638 n. a.

SUHEN-EM-OPET: castle in Thebes, II 402.

SYCAMORE: region of, I 493; fields of, II 299; bearing myrrh, II 299.

SYENE: in the Delta; wine of, IV 734.

SYRIA (H<sup>2</sup>-rw) I 3, 20, 43; IV 313, 341, 383, 387, 410, 582, 883; inscriptions in, I 8; envoy to, I 18; sea of, IV 565, 573.

—Barley from, IV 287, 344, 391; oil from, IV 376; impost of, IV 229, 387; tribute from, IV 724.

—Syrian, III 454, 468; IV 338, 398; crew, IV 574; Syrian chief ruling Egypt, IV 398; slaves of, for temple of Amon, II 555; for temple of Osiris, IV 680.

T

TAAANACH, II 426; road of, II 421; conquered by Sheshonk I, IV 712.

TABOR, III 356.

TAKINASH, IV 818 n. c.

TAKOMPSO, IV 146.

TANGÛR (seventy miles south of the second cataract): inscription by Thutmose I, II 67 n. b; Nubian expedition of Thutmose I to, II 74.

TANIS: called city of the northland, IV 215(?).

—Residence of Ramses II, III 406; Ramses III(?), IV 215, 217 n. i (?); Smendes, IV 564.

—Amon temple of, IV (215, 217(?)), 956.

—Palace of, IV 215.

—Colossus of Ramses II, III 417; obelisk of Ramses II, III 392, 543 n. c.

—Colossus inscription, by Ramses II, III 417.

—Obelisk inscription, by Ramses II, III 392, 448 n. b.

—Stelæ of: Ramses II, III 487-91; Seti, III 538-42; Osorkon II, IV 745-47; Taharka, IV 892-96.

TAROY: Nubian region: fortress of, II 852.

TAYAN: Yewepet king of, IV 878.

TAZOSER (cemetery of Abydos): Wennofer, lord of, III 17, 234; Upwawet, lord of, I 767, 768; lords of, III 234; located south of Abydos, I 771; addition to, for other tombs, I 771; boundary stelæ set up, I 769; precinct of, III 240; sanctity of, I 770; custodian of, I 770; Anubis, lord of, IV 1029.

—House in, II 36; ennead of, III 218; lord of, III 237.

TAZOSER: in western Thebes, IV 91, 309, 382; court of the lord of, IV 4; sacred district of lord of life of, IV 4; place of rest, IV 246.

TAZOSER: lords of, III 240; districts of, III 240; nome of, III 240.

TEFRER: lapis lazuli from, III 448 n. b.

TEHENU, II 225, 413; III 134, 457, 600; IV 56, 355, 356; a land to the west, III 116.

—Invaded by Libya, III 579; by Meshwesh, IV 87.

—Captured by Mentuhotep, I 423H; Amenhotep III, II 892; Seti I, III 116, 147; Ramses II, III 448 n. b, 457, 465; Merneptah, III 588, 611, 616, 617; Ramses III, IV 37, 54.

- Tehenu—
 —Fortress of, II 892.
 —Chiefs of, III 116, 132, 139.
 —Seed of, IV 87.
 —Sutekh gods of, III 611.
 —Tribute of, II 321.
 —Products of, I 675; ivory, II 321; tusks, II 321.
TEHENUT: nome of, IV 482; domain of, IV 482; located in Wawat, IV 482.
TEHNEH, IV 838; tomb in, I 172; tomb of Nekonekh, I 213; Hathor of, I 213.
TELL EL-AMARNA, I 7, 304, 695; inscriptions of, I 20, 33.
 —Cliff tombs of: Ani, II 977; Merire II, II 981; Merire I, II 982-88; Eye, II 989-96; Mai, II 997-1003; Ahmose, II 1004-8; Tutu, II 1009-1013; Huy, II 1014-17.
 —Rock inscriptions of, by Ikhnaton, II 949-72.
 —Tomb inscriptions by: Ani, II 977; Merire I, II 983-88, 1018; Eye, II 990-96; Mai, II 997, 999-1003; Ahmose, II 1006-8; Tutu, II 1010-13; Huy, II 1015-17.
TEMEH: Libyan land, I 311, 335 bis; IV 91; soldiers of, in the army of Uni, I 311; attacked by the people of Yam, I 335.
 —Captives from, IV 92; impost from, IV 92.
 —Captured by Merneptah, IV 580, 586, 598, 608; by Ramses III, IV 40, 42, 43, 49, 50, 52, 58, 71, 84, 91, 92, 103, 104.
 —Circumcision practiced in (?), IV 52, 54; seed of, IV 50, 58.
 —in alliance with Meshwesh, IV 91.
 —Timby stone, from Wawat, IV 373, 389.
TENES: Syrian locality, III 337; Rebesnen, chief of archers of, III 337.
TERERES: Negro land, I 334.
TERESH: a northern people of the sea, IV 129; invading Egypt, III 574, 579; slain by Merneptah, III 588; captives from, III 588, 601; IV 129.
TEREW: a negro people, chief of, IV 114.
TERRACE:
 —Cedar, II 32, 94, 103, 611, 614, 755, 794 n. b; IV 904.
 —Malachite, I 266, 342.
 —Myrrh, II 260, 284, 285, 287, 288, 291 n. a, 294.
TERSES: a Negro people, chief of, IV 114.
 —Tetechen (modern Tehneh), IV 838.
THAMUT: district of, II 641.
THARU: city of, II 415; fortress of, III 88, 100, 307, 542 bis, 631.
 —Robbers to be sent to, III 51; extortioners sent to, III 54; slave-thieves sent to, III 55; hide-thieves sent to, III 56.
 —Temple of, IV 956.
THAU: southern point of the highlands, I 456.
THEBES (=in the original "Thrones of the Two Lands," ns-wt-towy; or w3st, the name of the Theban nome), I 459; II 36, 101, 143, 149, 266, 295, 402, 549, 832, 834, 835, 881, 882, 889, 890, 891, 892, 896, 900, 917; III 23, 30, 144, 154, 165, 260, 261, 271, 436, 507, 515, 566, 580; IV 26, 141, 195, 207, 466, 471, 591, 609, 612, 615, 624, 626, 634, 652, 653, 697, 705, 707, 721, 743, 760, 764, 768, 769, 777, 823, 825, 840, 883, 906, 908, 926, 944, 945.
 —Titles of: the mysterious city, IV 187, 220; city of the lord of eternity, III 27; of the hidden name, IV 753; victorious (=Thebes on the east bank), II 329; IV 8, 197, 211, 213, 216, 753, 912; eye of Re, IV 753, 899, 906; mistress of might, IV 912; mistress of temples, IV 753; mistress of the Nine Bows, IV 751.
 —Glory of, like a splendid sea, I 423; land of, bequeathed by Intef I to his son, I 423.
 —Wall of: the princes of Tikhsi hanged before, II 797.
 —Planted with trees by Ramses III, IV 213.
 —Exempt from inspection, IV 750, 751.
 —Invasion of, in the Heracleopolitan kingdom, I 396 n. d; length of this war, I 415, 420 n. d.
 —Intef, founder of Theban line, I 419; Mentuhotep II, first great king of, I 426; Ikudidi of, I 527; Eti, great pillar in, I 459; Intef, nomarch of, I 420.
 —Mayors of: Amenmose, IV 466; Peser, IV 513, 526, 527, 531.
 —Youths (=recruits) of, II 332.
 —Products of, II 730.
 —Obelisks of, II 627.

- Thebes*—
 —Gods of, II 73, 224; IV 183; triad of, II 244; IV 128, 222, 230, 236, 463; Hathor, patroness of, II 224; see also Index I.
 —Statues of: Senmut, II 363 n. f; Nebnefer, II 928.
 —Stature inscriptions by: Nebnefer, II 929-31; stelæ of, Thutmose III, II 609 n. e; Intef, II 763 n. e; Amenhotep III, II 856 n. b, 878-92, 904-910; Amenhotep, II 921; Merneptah, III 602 n. d.
THEBES, THE WEST OF, II 905, 927, 947; III 216, 217, 219, 220, 521, 522, 622; IV 9, 12, 13, 14, 19, 179, 400, 491, 511.
 —Mayor of, II 927; Pewero, IV 511, 512, 522, 527, 528, 535.
 —District of, II 927; called Khaftet-hir-nebes, II 927; gendarmes of, II 927.
 —Necropolis of, II 338, 339; districts of, called: "Place-of-Beauty," part of, IV 523, 525; valley of the kings, 400 n. c, 473, 524; Zeseret, part of, IV 520; "Place of Truth," IV 465; sacred district of "Lord of Life," IV 4, 187; "Beautiful Region" to the northwest, IV 795; fortress of, II 338-39; goddess of, II 338-39; chief of police of necropolis of, Pewero, IV 511; see also Tazoser of Western Thebes.
 —Temples of: see Index II: Memnonium, Ramesseum, Mortuary temple of Merneptah, Thutmose IV, Chapel of Wazmose, House of Amon.
 —Tomb of Thaneni, II 392; Senmut, II 348 n. a; Amenopet, II 671 n. e; Woser, II 671 n. e; Intef, II 763 n. e.
 —Tombstone of Senmut, II 348 n. b.
 —Tomb inscription of: Thaneni, II 392; stela of Hatshepsut, II 338.
 —For Thebes, east side: see also Karnak, Luxor and Mad, and for Thebes, west side, see also Abd el-Kurna, Drah-abu-<sup>3</sup>n-Neggah, Dêr el-Bahri, Khaftet-hir-nebes, Kurna, Kurnet-Murrai, and Medinet Habu.
THEBU: district of, IV 957; "Barque of the Sycamore," an estate in, IV 957.
THEKEL: in Palestine, IV 567; conquered by Ramses III, IV 44, 77, 403.
 —Chieftains of, IV 77, 78, 79, 129.
 —Soldiers by land and sea of, IV 44.
 —Ally of the northerners, IV 64.
 —Captives of, IV 79, 129.
 —Dor, a city of, IV 565.
 —Ships of, IV 588; mighty sea-people, IV 588.
 —Byblos not included under its dominion, IV 590.
THEKNESH, IV 818.
THEKU: frontier city of, III 638; fortress of Merneptah-Hotepirma in, III 638; pools of Pithom of, III 638.
THEMET: a region of Medinet Habu, IV 634; Khonsu residing in, IV 914.
THENEW: Syrian city, prisoners from, II 798A.
THERETI, I 703.
THES(?): a southern boundary of Theban kingdom in time of Intef I, I 423D.
THINIS: nome of, I 349; II 181, 763, 767.
 —Location of, I 423 n. a; captured by Intef I of Thebes, I 423; northern boundary of Theban kingdom, I 396 n. h, 423D, 529.
 —Cities of: Abydos, I 349, 396 nn. d, h, 529; Thinis, II 763; crown possessions of the South in, I 665 n. b; fortresses of, I 396 n. b, 423.
 —Officials of: supervisor of fields of, Imsu, I 529; mayor of, II 739; nomarchs of, Ibi, I 377; Intef, II 763, 767.
 —Count of, Intef, II 763.
 —Temple of Onouris, IV 355, 365, 484.
 —Gods of: Onouris, I 500; Osiris, I 666.
TIKHSI: district of, II 797; battle in, II 587, 797; Mero—, city of, II 587; prisoners of, II 587; Asiatics in, II 587; seven princes of, II 797.
TINAY, CITY OF: chief of, II 537; tribute of, II 537.
TINTTO-EMU: city in Nubia, II 15.
TÔDSHI, IV 818 n. f.
TOMBOS: island of, II 67; inscriptions found there, I 21; fortress at, II 67.
 —Rock inscriptions of Thutmose I, II 67-73.
TOMERI (=Egypt), III 490, 616.
TOWËR: Abydos of, III 260; IV 357.
TOYEH: district of, III 580; in the Oasis region, III 580; captured by the Libyans, III 580.
TOZI, IV 818.
TROGLODYTES, ASIATIC, III 118; the sand-dwellers, defeated by Nessu-

- montu, I 471; smiting of, I 81, 104; II 225; Khufu, smiter of, I 176; the highlands cleared of, by Henu, I 429 n. h; by Sesostri I, I 511; Min, head of, I 443; sarcophagus stone, concealed from, I 451.
- TROGLODYTES, NUBIAN, I 654; II 646, 656, 892.
- Bringing tribute, II 120.
- of Khenthennofer, II 268, 646; of Kush, III 490.
- Slain by: Zaa, I 687; Ahmose, II 14; Amenhotep I, II 39; Thutmose I, II 71; Thutmose II, II 121; Thutmose III, II 646, 661; Thutmose IV, II 837; Seti I, II 116, 118; Ramses II, III 285, 490; Sheshonk I, IV 719, 720.
- TROJA: limestone quarry of, I 210, 212, 239, 274, 289, 290, 307, 509; II 800, 875; see also Ayan.
- TUNIP: city of, III 365; districts of, III 365; located in the land of Naharin, III 365.
- Aleppo, north of, III 319.
- Captured by Thutmose III, II 530.
- Infantry of, II 459; harvest of, II 530; groves of, II 530; chief of, II 773; tribute from, II 534 (?), 773.
- Under rule of Kheta, III 319.
- TUPHIUM, I 459 n. e: see Hefat.
- TURIN, I 69 n. j.
- TURRA: rock inscription, I 181; by Amenemhet III, I 740; Amenhotep II, II 799; Amenhotep III, II 875; see also Troja and Ayan.
- TWO DOORS OF THE NORTHERN COUNTRIES, IV 1014; Governor of: see Index V.
- TWO HALVES (=Upper and Lower Egypt), I 502; II 318, 805.
- TWO HOUNDS (of Mendesian nome), I 174.
- TWO LANDS, I 420; II 53, 151, 164, 170, 192 n. d, 198, 208, 225, 235, 266, 271, 285, 286, 305, 309, 315, 319, 325, 328, 341, 352, 361, 374, 376, 377, 412 et passim; Amon, lord of, II 198.
- Chiefs of: bound by Mentuhotep I, I 423H; captured by Mentuhotep I, 423H; bowing before Henu, I 428.
- Queen of, II 53.
- King, heir of Horus in his Two Lands, I 441.
- Judged by the hereditary prince, I 531.
- Head of: see Index V.
- Chief of the Two Lands, I 423H et passim.
- TWO MOUNTAINS: costly stones from, III 448 n. b.
- TWO REGIONS, I 552; II 116, 176, 341; III 16; IV 304; captured by Mentuhotep I, I 423H; by Amenemhet I, I 465.
- of Horus, II 353.
- Lord of: see Index V.
- TYRE, IV 567; captured by Seti I, III 114.
- Chief of: Baalat-Remeg, III 630.
- Upper Tyre, in Kharu, III 633.

U

- UHET (=quarry?): road of, I 335.
- ULLAZA: city near Tunip, II 470; location of, II 470; captured by Thutmose III, II 470; by Seti I, III 114; booty from, II 470.
- UNESHEK: Nubian region south of Hua, II 850.
- UPPER EGYPT, I 25; kings of, I 90; II 287; III 577, 580.
- UPPER NOME (XX nome of Upper Egypt), I 199.
- UPPER TENU: Emuienshi, sheik of, I 494; see Retenu.
- UREM: Nubian region, captured by Amenhotep III, II 845 n. f.
- URONARTI: island of, below Semneh, I 654, 655; fortress of, I 654 n. a, 655.
- USERMARE-MERIAMON: city in Nubia, IV 102; location of, IV 102 n. a.
- USERMARE-MERIAMON: city in Syria, III 308.
- UTENTYEW: isles of, II 660.
- UTHEK: Nubian country, I 369.
- UTHETH: Nubian region, expedition of Sebni to bring back his father, I 367.

V

- VALLEY OF THE KINGS' TOMBS: at Thebes, III 32 n. a; IV 400 n. c, 473, 524; tombs of Ramessids in, IV 473 n. a.

W

- WA—: city in northern Syria, II 457; plunder of, II 459; storehouse of offerings, II 458.

- Wa*—
- Gods of: Amon, II 458; Harakhte, II 458.
  - Chief of, II 459; i-h-r-warriors of, II 459; slaves of, II 460.
  - Ships of, II 460.
  - Products of: gold, II 459; silver, II 459; lapis lazuli, II 459; malachite, II 459; vessels of bronze, II 459; vessels of copper, II 459; copper, II 460; lead, II 460; emery, II 460.
  - W<sup>o</sup>h-ys't*: recorder of, II 736; scribe of the recorder of, II 736; products of, II 736.
  - WADI cALĀKI, III 282.
  - WADI GASUS: stelæ of: Khentkhetwer, I 604 n. b; Khnumhotep, I 617 n. a.
  - WADI HALFA:
    - Temple of Thutmose III, III 639.
    - Temple of Horus, III 74; built and endowed by Ramses I, III 54; endowed by Seti I, III 159-61.
    - Temple inscription by: Seti I, III 248; Neferhor, III 643; Piyay, III 644; Hori, III 645; 650, 651(?).
    - Pillar inscription of Nehi, II 412-13.
    - Stelæ of: Mentuhotep, I 510 n. a; Thutmose I, II 54 n. a; Ramses I, III 74-79; Seti I, III 157-61.
  - WADI MAGEHARA: malachite and copper brought from, I 713; reached by sea, I 718.
    - Rock inscriptions of: Snefru, I 168 n. a; Khufu, I 176 n. a; Sahure, I 236 n. a; Nuserre, I 250 n. a; Menkuhor, I 263 n. a; Dedkere-Isezi, I 264 n. a, 265 n. c, 267 nn. e, g; Pepi I, I 302 n. c; Pepi II, I 339 n. e; Khenemsu, I 713 n. i; Harnakht, I 717 n. d; Sebekdidi, I 719; Ameni, I 721; Amenemhet IV, I 750; Hatshepsut and Thutmose III, II 337.
  - WAG: land between Red Sea and Hamamat, I 433 n. d.
  - "WALL-OF-HORI," district of Heliopolis, IV 957.
  - "WALL-OF-PSENMUT," a district of Heliopolis, IV 957.
  - WALL OF THE SOUTH, II 814; Mut, mistress of, II 814.
  - WALLS OF THE RULER: made to repulse the Bedwin, I 493.
  - "WALLS-OF-THE-SOVEREIGN," a name of Memphis, III 615.
  - WAN, HEIGHT OF: expedition to, II 582; located west of Aleppo, II 582; prisoners of, II 582; Asiatics of, II 582; products of, II 582.
  - WATER OF RE: a canal, IV 83, 224, 369.
  - WATET-HOR: tribute of, II 385, 386.
  - WAWAT: region of, given to temple of Amon, IV 950; the great mountain of, IV 480, 481; water of, II 170; ships to, I 426; fortress of, inspected by Hapu, I 616.
    - Expeditions to, by Harkhuf, I 311, 317, 336; Pepi-Nakht, I 358; Sebni, I, 367, 369; Mentuhotep III, I 426; Amenemhet I, I 473-83; Sesostri I, I 510; Thutmose IV, II 826; Merneptah, III 606 n. a.
    - Revolt in, II 826; III 606 n. a.
    - In charge of mayor of Nekhen, II 47; Penno, deputy of, IV 474, 477, 480; Meri, deputy of, IV 481; Herunofor, IV 482; Bahu, herdsman of, IV 481.
    - Impost of, II 475, 487, 495, 515, 523, 527, 539; tribute of, II 48; ships of, II 475, 487, 495, 515, 527; harvest of, II 475, 487, 503, 539; slaves from, II 487; negro slaves from, II 495, 503, 515.
    - Gods of, III 448 n. b.
    - Products of: acacia wood, I 324; oxen, II 475, 487, 495, 503, 515, 527; calves, II 475, 487, 495, 503, 515, 523, 527; bulls, II 475, 487, 503, 523, 527; gold, II 515, 527, 539; ebony, II [523?]; ivory, II [523?], 527(?); timhy stone, IV 373, 389.
  - WAYET: Nubian country, chief of, II 1037.
  - WERKA: smiting of, I 112.
  - WESHESH: ally of the northerners, IV 64; slain by Ramses III, IV 403; captives of, IV 403.
  - WEST: the countries of, III 491; cities of, IV 818; fortress of the, III 586; chief of, Tefnakhte, IV 818, 830.
  - WEST (=cemetery), II 926; the beautiful, IV 249, 304, 918, 961, 986, 1010, 1029.
  - WEST SIDE (=Libya), I 492.
  - WESTERN LAND, II 659; applied to Keftiyew and Cyprus, II 659.
  - WESTERNERS, I 293; II 656.

X

XOIS (Ox nome): nome of, I 156, 159, IV 818; Methen, local governor of, I 172, 173, 174.

Y

YAA: a land in Palestine, on the border of Kedem, I 496; very fruitful, I 496.

YAM: Negro tribe, I 311, 351, 510; chief of, I 324, 336 ter; road to country of, I 333, 334, 335, 352; dancing dwarf from, I 351; a land of spirits, I 351.

YARU: fields of, III 21; plowing in, III 21.

YAT-SEBEK: city of, I 173.

YAWAN, III 312 n. c.

YEHEM: city of Palestine, II 419.

YENOAM: at southern end of Lebanon, under the rule of Kadesh, II 436; called a city of Retenu, II 557; impost of, II 557.

—Captured by Thutmose III, II 436; Seti I, III 90, 114; Merneptah, III 617.

YERAZA: city of the Asiatics, in Judah, revolt in, II 416; conquered by She-shonk, IIV 714.

YERED: temple of Amon-Re, lord of, IV 368.

YU, LAND OF: under rule of Hatshepsut, II 299.

YUNA: nome of, IV 948.

Z

ZAH: (primarily western Syria, especially Phoenicia, but applied also more widely), II 497; III 423; IV 72, 141.

—Campaign of Ahmose I in, II 20; of Thutmose III in, II 456-62, 488-95.

—Chiefs, II 392; taken as prisoners, II 392; princes of, II 658.

—Cities of, II 392, 490; Kadesh, city of, III 318; Wa, II 457; Arvad, II 461; Nuges, II 490.

—Egyptian frontier in, IV 65; allied countries of, II 616; highlands of, II 658; gardens of, II 461; groves of, II 392; furnishes supplies for the garrisons in the harbors, II 468, 472, 483, 492; harvest of, II 510, 519.

—Products of, II 461; IV 211; wines of, II 461; grain of, II 46; asses, II 490; heifers, II 490; white goats, II 490; small goats, II 490; horses, II 462, 490; chariots of, II 490; golden vessels, II 490; gold, II 459, 490; silver vessels, II 490; silver, II 459, 490; copper, II 459, 460, 462, 490; black wood, II 490; carob wood, II 490.

—Ships of: Byblos-ships, II 492; Keft-yew-ships, II 492; Sektu-ships, II 492.

—Silver vessels of the workmanship of, II 482.

—Temple of Amon in, IV 219.

—Tribute from, II 462, 536 (?); impost of, IV 190, 328.

ZIDPATH-EL: city of central Palestine, IV 713.

ZETTI: road of, II 421.

ZEN: Hittite city, III 386.

ZEN-WET: Hittite city, III 386.

ZEPYERENED: Hittite city, Sutekh, god of, III 386.

ZEREN: shore of, II 470.

ZERUKHA: city of Queen Tiy, II 869; pleasure lake of, II 869.

ZESERET: a part of the Theban necropolis, IV 520.

ZEYETHEKHRER: Hittite city, III 386.

ZURIM: city in southern Palestine, IV 714.

INDEX VII

MISCELLANEOUS

A

- ABODE, DIVINE, II 152.
ABOMINATION: practice of magic regarded as, IV 454, 455, 456.
ACACIA, IV 226, 282, 387.
 —Barges of, IV 916, 1023; canal-boats of, IV 229, 387; cargo-boats of, I 323, 324; kara-boats of, IV 229, 283, 387; tow-boats of, IV 229, 387; transport-boats of, IV 229, 283, 387; warships of, IV 229, 387.
 Acacia-wood, from Hatnub, I 323; from Wawat, I 324.
ACCOUNTING: of divine offerings, I 274; of tribute, I 423 D.
ACCOUNTS, I 10, 20.
ACCUSATION, IV 526, 529.
ADDRESS, III 265, 270, 288.
ADMINISTRATION: of canals, IV 266; of the sacred cattle of Apis, IV 332; of temples, IV 202, 255, 317, 321, 354, 360, 363, 665; of temple-women, IV 321; of Egypt, III 26; of law, III 25; of divine offerings, I 299; overseer of, see Index V; see also Index V, Administrator.
ADORNMENTS, IV 1020; of war, III 312, 326; of Re, III 28; of king, IV 876; of Montu, III 319.
ADVANCE-GUARD, II 421.
ADYTUM, II 639, 806; III 240; IV 13, 634, 899; see also Holy of Holies.
AEONS, both, II 317, 759.
AFFAIRS OF THE SOUTH, I 332.
AGENT, IV 576.
AISLE, IV 971.
ALABASTER, II 906; III 529; IV 234, 390.
 —Alabaster: of Hatnub, II 302, 375, 546 n. b.
 —Alabaster quarry, at Hatnub, I 7, 305, 323, 695 n. b, 696; location of, I 695.
 —Articles of alabaster: stela, IV 988A n. b; colossi, IV 191 n. j; great seat, III 525, 529; offering table, I 323 bis; shrine-stair, II 375; statue, IV 302, 988I n. a; altar, II 546 n. b; jar, II 544.
ALLIANCE: defensive, III 378, 380.
 —the Hittite, III 306, 309, 312, 336.
 —of Libya and Mediterranean peoples, III 574.
 —Libyan, IV 35-58.
 —Meshwesh, IV 83, 114.
 —Northerners, IV 64.
ALLIES, IV 822.
ALLOY, IV 202 n. a, 318 n. a.
ALTAR, I 165; II 35, 149, 163, 298, 795, 974; III 260; IV 256, 357, 686, 763, 823, 958J, 1020, 1021.
 —Rank of the scribe of, I 550.
 —of temple of Osiris at Abydos, I 787.
 —for mortuary offering, II 571.
 —Made of alabaster, II 546 n. b; of cedar, I 787; of gold, IV 735; of granite, IV 900; of silver, IV 735, 736, 737.
 —Altars, small, of silver, IV 735.
 —dw-altars, of gold, IV 735.
ALTAR-VESSELS, IV 334.
 “AMON-OF-THE-WAY,” an image of Amon, IV 569, 586.
AMULETS, II 544; IV 538, 876, 988H, 1011, 1020.
 —Eye-amulets, IV 29, 373, 377, 386, 390; of Thoth, IV 373, 386.
 —Made of electrum, II 376, 654; of costly stones, II 376; IV 29, 233, 277, 390; of fine gold, IV 253; of gold, IV 201; of Hirset stone, IV 233; of Ketem gold, IV 319; of lapis lazuli, IV 233; of rock-crystal, IV 377; of silver, IV 319, 373, 386.
ANARCHY: in Egypt, IV 398, 764.
ANASTASI 17, stela of Simontu, I 594 n. a.
ANCESTORS, II 287, 293, 377, 611, 628, 805; IV 629, 630, 817, 914.
 —Writings of, II 364.
 —Offerings for, III 23.
 —Regulations for, III 536.

- Ancestors*—
—Tomb-chambers of, IV 4.
- ANCIENT STOCK: Kheti's family of, I 399.
- ANIMALS: see Antelope, Apes, Beast, Birds, Bugs, Bull, Bullock, Calves, Cat, Cattle, Cow, Crocodile, Dogs, Fishes, Elephant, Gazelle, Giraffe, Goat, Heifer, Hippopotamus, Horse, Hound, Ibex, Lion, M-h'-w, Mice, Monkey, Oryx, Oxen, Panther, Serpent, Sheep, Wolf.
—Sacred animals, feeding of, I 281, 281 n. c.
- ANNALS, II 151, 310, 940; III 585; IV 460, 756.
—of Thutmose III, II 391-540.
- ANTELOPES: for oblation, II 553; IV 768.
- APES: from Punt, II 263, 265.
—as taxes from Bigeh, II 718.
—Sacred apes, II 907 bis; III 16; of Thoth, IV 33, 256.
—Thoth apes of gold, IV 256, 735.
- APOTHEOSIS: of Sesostris III, II 167; see also Deification.
- APPEALS: from local land office to vizier, II 686.
- "APPEARANCE" (of a god, in procession), II 158; IV 217; see also Feast.
—Temple as place of, III 217, 218, 224, 508, 522.
- APPLES (dph'-t—), IV 301.
- APPOINTMENTS: put into writing, I 274, 780; engraved by artists, I 174; of mortuary priests, I 274.
—of local courts, III 65.
—Made by vizier: see under Vizier.
—Temple appointments, II 928.
- ARBOR-AREAS: arbors for temple, IV 194, 264, 1021.
- ARCHÆOLOGY: Egyptian, IV 151.
- ARCHER, II 213, 900; III 84, 147, 224; IV 71, 74, 118, 397, 842.
—Leader of, IV 597.
—Captain of, III 484, 587, 631; IV 405, 407.
—Chief, III 192; see also Index V; of gold-washing, III 193.
—Assistant chief of, see Index V.
—Naval archers, IV 313; galley archer, IV 407.
—Temple archers, IV 211, 266, 313, 324.
—Mercenary archers, IV 50.
—Archers from Ibheth, II 854; Lybia, III 609; Kheta, III 337; chiefs of, III 337; from Eneues, III 337; chief of, III 337; Tint-to-emu, II 15.
- ARCHITECT: see Index V: Builder, Chief of Works, Leader of Works, Master of Works, Overseer of Works.
- ARCHITRAVE INSCRIPTIONS, III 222, 226, 502, 513, 514, 602, 603, 621, 626.
- ARCHIVES, ROYAL, at Thebes, I 18.
—of Pharaoh, III 643.
—of the ancestors, II 73.
—of the vizier, IV 534.
—State archives: see under Hall of Writing.
—Temple archives: see under House of Sacred Writing.
—Scribes of: see Index V.
- ARMLET, II 22, 23, 24.
—of gold, II 64, 545.
—of rock-crystal, IV 303.
- ARMOR, coats, scale, II 802.
—Suits of, II 435; III 589; made of bronze, II 435, 500, 501, 534.
- ARM-RINGS: of gold, II 585, 587.
- ARMS (= weapons), IV 65, 97.
- ARMY, IV 678, 832, 837, 854, 858, 859, 861, 863, 864, 879, 1004.
—of Egypt, I 303, 311, 358; II 39, 122 ter, 253, 256, 260 bis, 285, 288, 290, 327, 337, 413, 424, 434, 461, 472, 813, 908, 917; III 20, 141, 224, 320, 324, 325, 340, 422, 423, 455, 461, 489; IV 70, 71, 747, 767, 818, 821, 822, 825.
—Equipment of, I 456; organization of, in time of Uni, I 312; inspection of, by Uni, I 312.
—Affairs of the army, II 429; army drunk, II 462.
—Mustering of, by the vizier, II 693; viceroy of Kush, II 852.
—Council of, II 695; regulation of, II 695.
—Rearguard of, I 680; II 421; advance guard of, II 421; citizens of, I 681; II 53, 864; watch of, II 425, 864.
—Northern wing of, II 426, 430.
—Southern wing of, II 426, 430; center of, II 430.
—Divisions: of Amon, III 308, 310, 332; of Ptah, III 310 n. f, 334, 340; of Re, III 310, 311, 340; two divisions of, III 56.
—Men of, IV 19.
—of the South, I 429, 442; IV 705, 795.
—of the Northland, I 453.
—of Middle Egypt, I 411, 442.

Army—

—of Oryx nome, I 519; of Coptos, I 776; of Heracleopolis, IV 777, 792; of Hare nome, IV 848; of Per-Thut-uprehui, IV 830.

—of the temples, III 31.

—Army-officers, penalty for stealing hides by, III 56; standard-bearer of, III 208; two deputies of, who collected the dues, III 54; chief of: commandants of, commander of, commander-in-chief of, deputy of, general of, leader of, officers of, scribe of, king's scribe of, see Index V.

—Army: of Kheta, III 419; Kush, II 38, 852; Mitanni, IV 722; see also Archers, Bowmen, Cavalry, Chariotry, Citizens, Infantry, Soldiers, Troops, Warriors.

AROMATIC WOOD, IV 329.

ARREARS, I 522.

ARREST, II 702; IV 523, 588.

ARROW, II 785, 865; III 360, 454, 584; IV 50, 70, 75, 77, 96, 823, 845, 1004.

—Libyan, III 584.

ASCENT: Karnak, the august, of the beginning, II 316.

ASIATIC COPPER: see Copper.

ASSEMBLY, II 925 n. a.

ASSES, I 366, 430; III 286; IV 407, 408.

—from Zahi, II 490; from Punt, II 258; from Retenu, II 401, 509; from Wan, II 580; from Hua, II 850; from Libya, III 584, 587; from Meshwesh, IV 111.

ASTRONOMERS: Greek, I 39, 44.

ASTRONOMICAL DATES: in XVIII Dynasty, I 51; in XII Dynasty, I 57.

ASTRONOMY, I 20.

ATMOSPHERE, IV 308.

ATTACK, IV 859.

AUDIENCE, II 955; III 66.

—Audience-hall, I 239, 423E n. d, 501; II 236, 292, 666; III 240.

—Audience, place of, I 320.

AVENUE, SACRED, IV 215.

AXE: of gold, II 23; of silver, II 24.

—Battle-axe, II 802; III 461, 468; IV 118.

B

BACKLANDS, IV 818.

BAGS, II 750.

BAKER, III 624, 625.

BAKING, IV 393.

BALANCES, I 531; II 53, 279, 280, 900, 995; III 288; IV 33, 256, 285, 288, 880.

—of electrum, IV 256.

—Thoth, guardian of, IV 256.

BALCONY, II 985, 989; III 69, 587; IV 42, 52, 70, 76, 124, 408.

—of fine gold, IV 192.

BALE, IV 229, 283, 387.

—n c b-bale, IV 371.

BANNER, IV 117.

BANU-FRUIT, IV 378, 395.

BARGE OF A GOD (a large and magnificent craft, in which the god sailed on the Nile, or on the temple lake, at festal celebrations; not to be confused with the portable chapel-barque, q. v.), II 304; III 275; IV 65, 407. See also Temple barges below.

—State barge, I 283, 286, 423F; II 373, 596, 797, 809, 838, 864, 869, 997; IV 209, 400; names of, II 373, 596, 797, 809, 838, 864, 869; IV 209.

—Sun barge, IV 209, 278.

—Temple barges, I 261; II 32, 94, 304, 888; III 568; IV 209, 211, 278, 331, 354, 358, 563, 575, 904, 916, 958K, 1023; names of, II 32, 888; IV 278, 563; shrine of, II 888; IV 209, 331; bows of, II 888; IV 341; crowns of, II 888; IV 209; flagstaves of, II 888; obelisks of, II 888; stern of, IV 331; "great house" in, IV 331, 359, 904. —Barges made of cedar, II 32, 94, 838, 888; IV 278, 331, 904, 916, 1023; of acacia, IV 1023.

BARK, IV 288.

BARLEY, I 496; II 149; III 66; IV 190, 193, 207, 250, 259, 265, 266, 314, 325, 354, 359, 363, 859; from Retenu, II 473; as impost of peasants, IV 229; divine offering, II 562.

—Syrian barley, IV 287, 344, 391.

BARQUE (a portable chapel carried on poles and bearing a shrine, containing the cultus image of the god; it was never placed in the water), I 159, 167, 534, 613, 668, 669; II 92, 318; III 212, 431, 515, 542; IV 91, 315, 353, 611, 743, 958K; bow of, IV 414.

—Barque, celestial, IV 73.

—Barque made of electrum, III 212.

- Barque*—
 —Barque-shrine of fine gold, IV 982.
 —Morning barque, II 832; III 281; of Re, II 318; III 16; IV 358, 871; bow of, IV 67.
 —Sun-barque, evening, I 167; II 318; IV 331; of Re, II 318, 832; III 16; of Atum, IV 871.
 BARS: of copper, IV 408.
 BASALT, BLACK: statue of, I 675; obelisks of, III 246.
 BASE: of pyramid, IV 517.
 BASIN: libation, IV 100 n. a.
 BASKET, IV 41, 301, 378.
 —Negro, II 120, 271; III 475.
 BASTINADO: on feet, IV 548, 549.
 —on feet and hands, IV 549, 550, 552, 553.
 BATH: master of, I 336; overseer of palace baths, see Index V.
 BATHE, IV 823.
 BATON (brp-): royal, I 646; II 849; official's, II 385; vizier's II 675.
 BATTERING RAM, IV 838.
 BATTLE, III 141, 455, 461; IV 821, 822, 825, 852; plan of, III 307.
 —Battles at Avaris, II 8, 9, 10; at Kadesh, III 306-12, 317-27, 335; with Kheta, III 144, 317-27, 335; on Lebanon, II 783; in Libya, III 120, 123, 584; at Megiddo, II 430; with Meshwesh, IV 90, 103; on the Orontes, II 784; in Naharin, II 479, 499, 581; in Negeb, II 580; in Wan, II 582; in Carchemish, II 583; in Senzar, II 584; in Kadesh, II 585, 589-90; with northerners, IV 73; against Shasu, III 86; in Tikhsi, II 587.
 —Sea battle, IV 66.
 BATTLE ARRAY, II 426; III 310, 578; IV 43.
 BATTLE-AXES, II 802; III 461, 468; IV 118.
 BATTLE-CRY, III 44, 479.
 BATTLEFIELD, II 578, 579, 792, 818, 916, 918; III 20; IV 49, 106.
 BATTLE-LINE, III 86.
 BATTLEMENTS, II 894; III 616; IV 117, 355, 356, 357, 358, 406, 859, 861.
 BEACH, IV 66.
 BEADS: clusters of, IV 377.
 —Made of lapis lazuli, IV 343; of rock-crystal, IV 233, 287, 345, 377; of white gold, IV 231.
 BEAK: golden, IV 345.
 BEANS: shelled, IV 301, 350.
 BEASTS, IV 930.
 —of the highlands, I 436.
 BEATEN WORK, II 436; III 528; IV 14, 189, 191, 202, 203, 268, 285, 319, 326, 334, 343, 732, 733.
 BEATING: of witnesses with rod, IV 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 555.
 BEEF: shoulders of, II 571; joint of, IV 565.
 BEER: for divine offering, II 620, 621, 622, 792, 798; III 77; IV 190, 200, 238, 239, 292, 297, 309, 326, 393, 924, 925, 944, 949, 950, 952, 953, 954, 958 M.
 —for evening offering, II 565.
 —for food, II 758; III 71.
 —for mortuary offering, I 252, 329, 518; II 111, 113, 114, 117, 356, 365, 378; III 17; IV 485.
 —for oblation, II 553, 571, 960; IV 199, 208, 329, 335, 347, 468.
 —for offerings to obelisks, II 563.
 —Sweet beer, IV 498.
 BEER CELLAR, IV 238.
 BEER HALL, IV 451 n. c, 880.
 BEGGAR: mercy to, I 479.
 BEGINNING (of the world = pwt), II 122, 151, 158, 305, 353; III 11, 31, 436; IV 743, 795, 836, 857, 958J, 988J; Karnak, the august ascent of, II 316.
 —Feast of, see Feasts.
 BEKHEN (a measure), IV 235, 379.
 BENI PLANT, IV 380, 395.
 BENUT STONE: doorway of, II 643.
 BERRIES, IV 295; Seneb, IV 301, 350.
 BEWITCHING, IV 455; see Magic, Sorcery.
 BILLETS OF EBONY, III 475.
 BILLS, I 10, 20.
 BIOGRAPHIES: first appearance of, in III Dynasty, I 6, 170; of Uni, I 6; of nobles of Elephantine, I 6; numerous in Middle Kingdom, I 10; see also Indexes III, IV.
 BIRDLET, IV 54, 106.
 BIRD-POOLS, IV 9; see also Pools.
 BIRDS: see Cranes, Doves, Ducks, Fowl, Geese, Hawk, Ibis, Ostrich,

- Pedet birds, Sessa birds, Shed birds, Urdu birds, Vulture.
 —of Lebanon, II 483.
 —Ships of Thekel called birds, IV 588.
BIRTH-HOUSE: of Amon, III 161.
BLACK COPPER, see Copper.
BLACK-WOOD, chairs of, II 490; from Zahi, II 490.
BLADE OF HATHOR, IV 784.
BLASPHEMY, II 237, 343.
BLESSINGS: on observers of treaty, III 388.
 —of Ptah, III 394-414; IV 132-35.
BLINDFOLDING OF WITNESS, IV 524.
BLOCK, II 493, 509, 512, 525, 536; IV 231, 234, 245, 285, 288, 390, 391.
 —Blocks, august, from Hammamat, for the statues of Mentuhotep III, I 433.
 —Block inscription, at Bubastis, of Amenhotep III, II 846-50.
 —Death penalty paid at the block, IV 529.
BLOSSOMS, IV 244, 295, 301, 350, 394.
BLUE-FLOWERS, IV 600.
BOATMEN: of the temple, IV 266.
BOATS, IV 220, 283, 387; for king's journeys, I 423F; for transporting obelisks, II 105, 326.
 —Divine boat, II 741; of Thoth, I 669.
 —See also Canal-boat, Cargo-boat, Ferry-boat, Kara-boat, Tow-boat.
BODY, or belly, as seat of mind, I 240.
BODY-GUARD OF KING, III 310; IV 117, 120, 123; mustered by the vizier, II 693.
 —Hittite, III 337.
BOLTS, IV 871, 910.
 —for target shooting, II 813.
 —of black copper, IV 411.
 —of bronze, I 483.
 —of copper, I 873; IV 406, 489.
 —of tin, IV 929.
BOLTS, LARGE (a measure), I 719, 720, 721.
 —of g<sup>3</sup>-w-linen, II 736.
 —pdi, II 722.
 —Sm<sup>3</sup>.t II 722.
BONES: king's, of copper, III 403.
"BOOKS OF THE NILE-GOD," IV 296, 297, 347, 383, 388; explanation of, IV 296 n. e; presented in the pool of Kebeh, in the House of Re-Harakhte in Heliopolis, IV 296; in the House of Anubis, in Neru, IV 296; founded for Ptah in Memphis, IV 347.
 —House of books, III 410; see also Day-book.
 —Sacred book, II 915; scribe of, I 506; "of the dead," II 807; secrets of, II 915.
BOOTY, II 761; IV 126.
 —from Megiddo, II 431; Naharin, II 480, 500, 501, 532, 816; Nuges, II 508; Kadesh, II 532; Lebanon, II 783; Orontes, II 785; Ikathi, II 788.
BORDERS OF EGYPT, I 407; III 580; IV 80, 130, 405.
BOTANY OF EGYPT, IV 151; see also Flowers, Fruit, Grain, Herbs, Plants, Trees, Vegetables, Wood.
BOTTLE: leathern, I 430; of waterskins, I 456.
BOUNDARIES OF EGYPT, II 225, 319, 415, 418, 439, 478, 549, 596, 636, 796; III 82, 86, 94, 107, 112, 118, 155, 165, 360, 421, 428, 474, 476, 479, 575; IV 41, 43, 46, 56, 57, 58, 63, 66, 72, 88, 91, 103, 104, 105, 106, 124, 126, 128, 246, 403, 722; northern, II 321; eastern, II 321; southern, II 321, 862; of the south, I 311, 320, 396 n. h, 423, 652, 657; western, II 321; III 579; in the fields of Perire, III 579.
 —Boundaries of fields: registered, settlement of, II 689, 703; unregistered, II 690; of the fields of the sacred cattle of Apis, IV 332; of domains, IV 479, 480, 481, 482, 483.
 —Boundaries of nomes, II 703; of the Jackal nome, I 626, 632; Hare nome, I 626; oryx nome, I 626; Oxyrrhynchus, I 632; Akhetaton, II 961-64.
 —Boundaries of the Asiatics, III 12; of Askalon, III 355; of the Nine Bows, IV 351; of Naharin, II 871;
BOUNDARY STELÆ, I 766.
BOUNDARY STONE, inscription of, II 1 n. c.
BOUNDARY TABLET, on Euphrates, II 478; in Naharin, II 800; in Karoy (region of Napata), II 800.
BOUQUET, II 974; IV 244, 295, 301, 350, 394.
 —of flowers, II 974; IV 244, 295, 350, 394.

- Bow, I 682; II 435, 785; III 42, 360, 450, 451, 454, 468, 473, 475, 489; IV 50, 51, 70, 73, 225, 410, 823, 1004; given as taxes, II 718; drawing of, II 792.
—Bows made in Kketa, III 343; Kharu, II 501, 509; Libya, III 584 bis, 601, 609; Meshwesh, IV 111.
Bow (of ship), IV 65, 66, 331, 582; adorned with crowns, II 888; with hawks, IV 331.
Bowl, IV 269; of copper, I 500; of silver, IV 735.
—wy-bowl, IV 269.
BOWMEN: of Egypt, III 577, 578, 584; IV 74; leader of, III 581.
—of Libya, III 579.
BOW-PEOPLES, IV 130.
BOW-ROPE, IV 863.
—as title of Hatshepsut, II 341; of the Southland, II 885.
BOYS, IV 111.
BRACELETS, II 22, 23, 24; of gold, II 64, 471; III 69; IV 876; of rock-crystal, IV 303, 349, 377.
—from Retenu, II 471; from Naharin, II 501.
BRAND OF THE ROYAL HOUSE, III 56.
BRANDING, I 770; III 56, 414; of captives, IV 405.
BREAD, IV 382, 467, 565, 925, 944, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 956, 957, 958 M; for food, I 336; II 260, 758, 925; III 71, 207, 208; divine offering, II 620; III 71; IV 190, 200, 309, 326; mortuary offering, I 252, 329, II 111, 113, 114, 117, 356, 365, 378, 920; III 17, 526; IV 485; oblation, II 553, 554, 798, 960; IV 208, 329, 335; evening offering, II 565; offering to statue, II 618.
—Fine bread, IV 238, 291, 393.
—of the divine offerings, IV 238, 297, 247.
—Kunek bread, IV 238, 291, 297.
—p<sup>o</sup> k-bread, I 577.
—White bread, II 553; see also Cakes.
BREWERY OF PHARAOH, III 51, 59.
BRIBERY: laws on, III 64; penalty for, III 64.
BRICK, IV 916, 958M; walls of, IV 489, 914, 1020; temples built of, II 157 n. e, 176, 611, 614; III 517, 520; temple inclosures made of, II 614.
—Mud brick, II 607.
BRICK (as a measure), II 521 bis, 534; IV 235, 241, 379, 392.
BRICKLAYER, II 758, 759; Syrian captives as, II 758 nn. d, g.
BRICKMAKERS, II 759.
BRIDGE, III 100; IV 861.
BRONZE, I 534; II 45, 162, 165, 558; IV 358, 847.
—Mixture of, IV 202, 318, 320, 343, 358.
—in scraps, IV 343.
—Articles made of bronze: corselet, II 447; tablets, IV 231, 318, 343; bolts, I 483; vase, I 500; II 164; IV 538; offering-tables, I 534; II 175; IV 912; temple doors, II 375; III 528; scarab, IV 233; vessels, II 436, 459, 795; III 584; IV 343; shrine doors, IV 320; doorway, III 246; wall (royal title), III 224; helmets from Naharin, II 501; suit of armor from Megiddo, II 435 bis; from Naharin, II 500, 501; from Retenu, II 534(?); spears from Retenu, II 509, 525; from Wan, II 582; swords, II 802; daggers, II 802.
—Articles wrought with, II 490.
—Bronze: from Naharin, II 500; from Retenu, II 518.
BROTHERHOOD, III 373, 375.
BROW, IV 922.
BUILDERS, II 758, 759; IV 275, 858; for Chief of, Master of, see Index V.
BUILDING: of houses, I 147, 328; of Temples, II 33-37, 97, 90-98, 99-106; see also Houses, Palaces, and Index II.
BUILDING INSCRIPTIONS: see Inscriptions.
BULL, IV 242, 260, 272, 278, 283, 293, 298, 313, 323, 341, 345, 347, 360, 387, 392, 883, 906; yokes of, I 522; from Negro lands, I 336; army of Tefibi like a, I 396; Kheta II rich in, I 408.
—Bull of Mad, IV 915; divine bulls of Athribis, IV 470; Pharaoh as a bull, II 143, 659, 853; III 117, 144, 147, 285, 360, 372, 455, 489, 507, 608; IV 40, 41, 46, 56, 62, 67, 81, 94, 103, 105, 246, 852; Amon-Kamephis as a bull, II 225, 314, 317; "Bull of his mother," III 24.
—Epithets of, II 659.
—Bulls for mortuary offering, I 540,

- 542, 556, 559, 584, 591; II 840; III 526; for oblation, I 432, 556, 569; II 553, 554; IV 335, 468, 768, 848, 856, 866, 869, 874, 875; divine offering, II 160, 171, 562, 621; III 413; IV 190.
- Bulls from Egypt, IV 229; Kharu, IV 229; Meshwesh, IV 111; Retenu, II 447, 518; Naharin, II 482; Punt, II 486; Genebteyew, II 474; Wawat, II 475, 487, 503, 523, 527; Kush, II 514.
- ipw*-bulls, IV 242.
- BULL CALVES, II 553, 554, 562.
- BULLOCKS, IV 9, 190, 260, 272, 313, 323, 335, 341, 345, 360, 958H.
- from Retenu, II 447, 471, 491; Naharin, II 482.
- Bullocks of the bulls, IV 229, 242, 283, 293, 298, 387, 392; of the Nege-bulls, IV 229.
- BUNCH (a measure), IV 234.
- BUNDLE (a measure), III 77, 159, 207; IV 229, 234, 241, 283, 341, 344, 378, 379, 387, 391, 392, 395, 954.
- hlp*-bundle, IV 350, 949, 950, 952, 953.
- hlp*-bundles, IV 301.
- hrj*-bundles, IV 301.
- Sehetep-bundles, IV 295.
- BUREAU SERVICE, I 295; officials of, I 300.
- BURIAL, II 358, 977, 994, 1003, 1006, 1008; IV 668; offices for, IV 966; coverings for, IV 521, 538.
- Burial (of Osiris), III 212; IV 499, 593, 637-47; of Apis, I 22; IV 771, 778, 780, 786, 791, 884, 917, 918, 961, 977, 986, 1010.
- BUTTER, IV 233, 301, 344, 350, 376.
- C
- CABBAGE, IV 240, 393.
- CABIN, IV 840.
- CABINET: double, I 618, 672, 713, 716.
- of the office of the chief treasurer, I 672 n. a, 673.
- of the treasury, I 716.
- CABINET CHAMBER: plan of rebellion conceived in, I 492.
- CAKES, I 336; II 114; III 71; IV 238, 291, 297, 300, 347, 350, 467; makers of, III 624.
- Bull cakes, II 572.
- Dressed-geese cakes, II 572.
- Obelisk cakes, II 572.
- Rahusu cakes, IV 238, 291, 393.
- White-loaf cakes, II 572, 621.
- s-w*-cakes, IV 240, 378, 392.
- sc*-cakes, IV 949, 950, 952, 953, 954.
- CALCULATIONS: of fields, III 275.
- CALENDAR, EGYPTIAN: introduction of, I 58, early existence of, I 45; oldest fixed date in history, I 45.
- Gregorian, I 40; Julian, I 40; I p. 40.
- CALENDAR OF FEASTS: of Ramses III, I 43 n. b; IV 139-45.
- CALVES, I 408; II 139, 149, 160, 723, 733, 739, 740; IV 242, 283, 293, 298, 341, 345, 387, 392, 906, 929.
- for divine offerings, II 458, 793; IV 190; mortuary offering, III 526; oblation, II 960; IV 335, 468, 848, 856, 866, 869, 874, 875.
- Calves: from Kharu, IV 229; Naharin, II 482; Retenu, II 447, 458, 471; Punt, II 486; Genebteyew, II 474; Wawat, II 475, 487, 495, 503, 515, 523, 527; Kush, II 494, 502, 514.
- CAMP, III 579, 589, 598; IV 64, 870, 873; royal, II 429; III 320, 331, 332, 340.
- CANAL, II 775; IV 412, 853, 957.
- CANAL ADMINISTRATION, IV 266.
- CANAL BOAT: of acacia, IV 229, 387.
- CANAL WALL: of Luxor, IV 628.
- CANALS OF THE DELTA: Eti, III 576; Sheken, III 576; Water of Re, IV 83, 224; of Heliopolis, IV 266, 278, 394.
- Canal of the first Cataract, II 75; begun by Uni, I 324; cleared by Sesostri III, I 643-45; repaired by same king, I 646-48; names of, I 644; II 650; length, width, depth of, I 647; again cleared by Thutmose I and III, I 648; II 75, 76, 649-50.
- Canal, for irrigation, in Siut, dug by Kheti II, I 407.
- Canal of Wadi Tumulât, II 248.
- CANDELABRA: of silver, IV 735.
- CAPTIVES, II 225, 387, 402, 413, 656, 900; III 34, 82, 96, 101, 119, 148, 155, 344, 349, 351, 448 n. b, 597, 598; IV 42, 56, 106, 121, 362, 825, 865.
- Building the temple of Amon, II 758, 759; settled in Egyptian strongholds, IV 403, 405 n. g; distributed to Egyptian families, II 916; as slaves in the temples, II 918; IV 121, 126,

- 128, 137 n. a, 190, 207, 213; IV 359, 404, 1021.
- Captives from Amor, IV 39, 129; Asiatics, IV 122; Denyen, IV 81, 82, 403; Ekwesh, III 588; Hua, II 850, Ibheth, II 854; Ikathi, II 788; Kehek, III 588; Keshkesh, III 428; Kharu, II 884; Khatithana, II 789; Khenthenofer, II 11, 162, 646; adventure with, II 11; Kheta, IV 129; Lebanon, II 783; Libya, III 584, 588, 600; IV 52, 54, 57, 78, 79, 405; Meshwesh, IV 90, 92, 111, 405; Naharin, II 480, 532, III 344; Negros, III 40, 44, 452; IV, 477; Nine Bows, IV 190, 207; Nuges, II 508; Peleset, IV 44, 76, 129, 403; Retenu, II 162, 402, 467, 790; III 97; Sand-dwellers, I 313; II 661; Seir, IV 404; Shasu, III 108; IV 129; Shekelesh, III 588; IV 81; Sherden, III 588, 601; IV 120, 403; Temeh, IV 92; Teresh, III 588; IV 129; Thekel, IV 44, 78, 79, 129, 403; Tintto-emu, II 15; Ullaza, II 470; Weshesh, IV 403; Zahi, II 490.
- CARAVAN, I 312, 332, 334, 336, 343, 352, 356, 360; negro, I 368; conductors of, see Index V.
- CARAVANEERS, III 178 bis, 192, 286.
- CARCASS, III 88; IV 1004.
- CARDINAL POINTS: genii of, II 228, 231.
- CARGO, II 266; III 53, 274.
- CARGO BOATS, I 322, 323; IV 863; of acacia wood, I 323, 324.
- CAROB PODS, IV 295, 301, 350.
- CAROB WOOD, I 372; IV 391.
- Articles made of carob wood: chairs, II 436, 490; chest, II 755; chariots, II 491; shrine, I 667; staff, II 436; table, II 436, 509.
- Carob wood from Arrapachitis, II 512; Assur, II 449; Retenu, II 436, 447, 491, 509, 525; Zahi, II 490.
- CAROUSING, IV 451.
- CARRIERS, II 287.
- CARTOUCHES: found at fourth cataract, I 21.
- CARTOUCHE-VESSEL: of silver, IV 735.
- CARTS, Ox, IV 73, 467.
- CARVED HORNS OF OXEN, III 475.
- CARVERS, III 271.
- CARVINGS, IV 489.
- CASES: criminal, II 683; real estate, II 686, 689, 690.
- CASES: of wrought wood, IV 390.
- CASKETS: of silver, IV 231.
- CASSIA WOOD, IV 234, 344, 379.
- CASTLE, IV 76; names of, IV 77; royal, I 532; see also Palaces.
- CAT: sacred animal, I 281 n. c.
- CATTLE, I 496; II 736, 829, 884, 887, 984; III 577; IV 229, 235, 242, 275, 280, 282, 283, 336, 337, 339, 341, 342, 345, 360, 362, 363, 364, 370, 372, 379, 383, 384, 387, 423, 470, 676, 821, 958M, 992.
- Importation of, I 146, 147, 281; small cattle and bulls, brought from Negro lands, I 336; numbering of, I 81, 157; raising of, I 408; colors of (=breeds of?), I 408.
- Overseer of cattle, II 1041.
- Cattle of Amon: see Index II: Karnak, Temple of Amon; Inspector of, Overseer of, Scribe of, see Index V.
- Sacred cattle of Apis, IV 332.
- Branded for the royal house, III 56; overseer of, III 57; see also Index V.
- Cattle, curiously decorated, II 1035.
- for divine offering, II 793; III 413; mortuary offering, III 271; oblation, I 432; II 960.
- from Ibheth, II 853; Hua, II 850; Meshwesh, III 589; IV 110, 111, 405; Seir, IV 404; of Egyptian colonists in Kush, II 121.
- Breeds of cattle, I 408 n. g.
- Cattle (y. t.), IV 242.
- Large cattle, IV 212, 220, 226, 795; from Retenu, II 434, 525; Megiddo, II 435; Zahi, II 462; Kheta, III 428.
- Small cattle, III 276; IV 212, 220, 226, 795, 1021; from Punt, II 272; Retenu, II 434, 447, 471, 518, 525; Megiddo, II 435; Zahi, II 462; Naharin, II 482.
- Wild cattle, III 598; for mortuary offering, II 840; hunt of, II 863-64.
- Black cattle, IV 278.
- Mountain cattle, IV 272.
- Red cattle from Negro lands, IV 724.
- White, small cattle, from Megiddo, II 435.
- Firstlings of the year, II 727; yearlings, II 723, 726, 727, 730, 731, 735, 739, 743; two-year-olds, II 722, 725, 730, 731, 734, 735, 736, 738, 739, 740, 742; IV 242.

- CATTLE FODDER, IV 212.
 CATTLE FOLDS, I 281, 408.
 CATTLE YARDS, IV 9, 217, 260, 313, 323, 330, 859, 958H.
 CAUSEWAY, IV 861.
 CAVALRY, IV 1004; officers of, III 584.
 CAVERN DWELLERS, IV 4.
 CAVERNS: of Libya, III 611; of Elephantine, IV 925; of the ennead of Khercha, IV 869.
 —Cavern (=tomb), IV 958M.
 CAVES, III 134; of Elephantine, III 171; IV 925; Mitanni, II 773.
 —Anubis, lord of, I 394.
 CEDAR, II 321; IV 226, 234, 245, 282, 345, 379, 385, 391.
 —Articles made of cedar: ferry boats, IV 229, 283, 387; barges, II 32, 94, 838, 888; IV 278, 331, 904, 916, 1023; tow boats, IV 229, 387; ships, I 146, 465; II 492; IV 209, 574; palace doors, I 148; shrine doors, II 156; tomb doors, IV 958M; temple doors, II 155, 157, 375, 611, 614, 749 n. b, 903; III 217, 245, 505, 537, 625; IV 11, 355, 356, 357, 358, 362, 910, 970; doors, IV 406, 489; doorposts, IV 406; altars, I 787; flagstaves, II 103; III 94, 537; IV 15; staves, II 718; chests, II 755; mortuary chests, IV 966; panels, IV 929; columns, II 32, 600, 601.
 —Cedar (?) from Bigeh, II 718; God's Land, II 888; Lebanon, III 94; IV 577; Retenu, II 838, 888; royal domain, II 157, 903; IV 15, 209, 278, 331, 970.
 CEDAR TERRACES: see Terraces.
 CEILING: of lazuli, I 483; of electrum, IV 958J.
 CELLA, IV 899.
 CELLAR: beer, IV 238; wine, IV 512.
 CEMETERY, I 202, 208, 209, 238, 243; III 260; IV 182; children of, IV 499; thieves of, 554, 556; see also Necropolis, and Index VI: Abydos, Serapeum, Memphis, Thebes (Western), Tazoser (West), and Highlands.
 CENSER, II 93; IV 269; of ebony, I 500; silver, I 500; IV 334; fine gold, IV 334; gold, IV 735, 736.
 —Fourfold censer: of gold, IV 735.
 CENSERFULS, IV 299, 348.
 CENTER: of the army, II 430.
 CEREMONIES, III 286, 371, 564; IV 836, 958D, 988J; of Amon-Re, III 206, 256, 436; of Aton, II 994; of erecting the symbol of Osiris, II 874; at feast of Ptah, III 77, 159; of New Moon, II 562, 608; at the voyage to the southern Opet, II 554; of court and palace in charge of the herald, II 764, 767; of investiture, II 1020; IV 958D, 988H.
 —Foundation ceremony, I 445, 506, 669; II 152, 157, 608, 614, 795; see also Cord and Measuring-line.
 —Mortuary ceremony: benefit of, II 925.
 —Temple ceremony, II 826; III 82.
 CHAIR, II 802.
 —of black wood, from Zahi, II 490.
 —of carob wood, from Kadesh, II 436; Zahi, II 490.
 —of ebony, from Kadesh, II 436.
 —of ivory, from Kadesh, II 436.
 —Sedan chair, II 981; vizier's chair, II 675.
 CHAMBER, I 307; II 771; IV 849; royal, II 237; Dewat, IV 866, 871; fire III 28; hidden, III 278; Meskhent, III 525; privy, I 256, 286, 290; II 675; quarry, see under Quarry-chamber; sepulcher, IV 540; shrine, III 529; store, III 100; tomb, IV 4, 515, 517; treasure, IV 25.
 —for Chamber Attendants, Chief of Chamber, Eldest of the Chamber, see Index V.
 —Secret chamber of the mountains, II 946.
 —Sacred chamber: in temple of Karnak, II 795; the august dwelling, II 795.
 —the sealed chamber (=treasury): sealing of, reported to vizier, II 676, 679.
 —Temple chamber, II 164, 390, 1017; names of, II 1017; for oil, II 165.
 —Upper chamber of pyramid, I 322; of tomb of Kheti II, I 412.
 CHAMPION, II 431; III 400.
 CHANNEL OF ORONTES, II 784 n. f; III 325; the inaccessible, II 288.
 CHAPEL, II 908; IV 57, 78, 125, 191, 356; IV 732, 733, 730, 737, 755 n. c; of Thutmose III, at Luxor, III 506; of temple of Seti I at Abydos, III 226, 231-34; of Ramses III in temple of Re at Heliopolis, IV 277; of Pesibkhenno, by Great Pyramid, stela of

- Eye in, II 1042 n. a; in Thebes, of Prince Wazmose, II 928; of Atum-Khepri, IV 732; of Khonsu, in Ramses III's temple at Medinet Habu, II 5; Ptah-Tatenen at Medinet Habu, II 461; chapel in temple of Medinet Habu, II 641.
 —Mortuary chapel, II 36.
 —Secret chapel, III 412.
 —Tomb-chapels, I 19, 20.
- CHAPLETS, IV 876; of gold, II 32.
- CHARCOAL, IV 295, 303, 380, 394.
- CHARIOT, II 7, 813, 857, 858; III 84, 102, 360, 441, 450, 454, 455, 461, 473; IV 49, 50, 53, 72, 73, 74, 76, 840, 860, 1004.
 —Wrought with electrum, II 430, 447, 960, 969; wrought with gold, II 413, 435, 447, 501; wrought with gold and silver, II 430, 431, 467, 490, 491, 501, 509, 801; pole of, II 435.
 —Chariot: from Assur, II 449; Kheta, III 343; Kush, II 1035, 1039; Megiddo, II 430, 431, 435; Meshwesh, IV 111; Naharin, II 81, 85, 482, 501; Nuges, II 508; Retenu, II 413, 447, 467, 491, 509, 518, 790; Zahi, II 490; Ullaza, II 470; Oronates, II 784, 785; Ikathi, II 788.
 —Chariots of carob wood, from Retenu, II 491; of ḫ-gw-wood, II 491.
- CHARIOT DRIVERS, IV 405 n. g.
- CHARIOT WARRIOR: Hittite, III 337.
- CHARIOTEERS (Egyptian), IV 65, 77, 106, 405 n. g; Enwau, III 635.
 —First: Perehirunamēf, III 482 n. c; Rekhpehtuf, III 642; Hori, III 645; Ubekhu, III 650.
 —Charioteer of the court: Nakhtamon, IV 466.
 —Charioteers of the chariotry, IV 466.
 —Hittite charioteers, III 337.
 —King's charioteer, Ini, III 198.
- CHARIOTRY: Egyptian, III 267, 307, 311, 325, 327, 342, 365, 380, 428, 578, 583, 587; IV 71, 89, 354, 402, 410, 822; leader of: see Index V; lord of: see Index V.
 —Hittite, III 310, 312, 320, 321, 337, 378; Libyan, III 583.
 —Syrian, III 309; IV 118.
- CHARM: knowledge of, I 378.
- CHASTISEMENT: divine, IV 907.
- CHÂTEAU, III 588, 600; IV 194, 281.
- CHEST, II 376, 802; IV 27, 29, 843.
 —Linen, II 301, 719, 721, 722, 723, 726, 727, 730, 731, 744.
 —Made of carob wood, I 372; II 755; cedar, II 755; ebony, II 755; ivory, II 755; meru wood, II 755.
 —Mortuary chest: of cedar wood, IV 966; ked wood, IV 966; meru wood IV 966.
- CHIEF MOUTH, IV 398, 400.
- CHILDREN: playing, II 300; length of new-born, I 395; see also education.
- CHISEL, III 271; of copper, IV 552.
- CHRONOLOGICAL TABLES, I 58-75; IV 607, 693, 812, 940.
- CHRONOLOGY, EGYPTIAN, I 38-75, 415-18, 423A, 424, 434, 460-62; IV 604-7, 693-94, 793, 811-13, 885, 935-41; addendum to, I p. 48; length of year discovered in the fifth millennium B. C., I 39; Julian chronology, I 40; Gregorian, I 40; of the XI Dynasty, I 415-18.
- CINNAMON, IV 234, 240, 378, 391, 394; from Punt, III 116.
- CINNAMON WOOD, IV 287, 300, 344, 348, 378, 391; from Punt, II 265.
- CIRCUIT, II 294, 661, 804, 954; IV 818; of Aton, II 795, 1007, 1010; IV 62; of the sun, II 70, 98, 308, 319; IV 40, 71, 249, 623, 988H; of heaven, II 657.
- CIRCUIT MESSENGERS, II 692.
- CIRCUIT RUNNERS, III 170.
- CIRCUMCISION: practiced by the people of Ekwesh, III 588; see also under Hands cut off.
- CISTERNS: of the Oasis, IV 726, 727, 728; name of, IV 727, 728.
- CITADEL, III 463; IV 117.
- CITIZEN, III 61; IV 410.
 —Citizen (c nḥ), III 51, 57, 59; IV 397.
 —Citizen (nds), IV 863; duties of, I 536; ka of, II 353.
 —Citizen (šw), II 920.
 —Citizens of the army, I 681 bis; II 53, 864; III 57, 59, 206; penalty for stealing hides by, III 57.
 —Citizen's cistern, IV 727.
- CITIZEN LANDS, IV 755.
- CITY OF ETERNITY: tomb of Kheti I, I 402.
- CIVILIZATION: Egypt the home of, IV 578.

- CLASSES: of people, II 916; IV 190, 197, 251, 278, 402, 403; established by Ramses III, IV 402; consisting of, IV 402.
- CLAY, IV 871; for plastering tomb-walls, II 106; field of clay, for bricks, II 758.
- CLEANSING: of temples, II 642; of persons, IV 866, 876, 880, 881; see also Index VI: Memphis, cleansing of.
- CLIFF, II 966.
- CLIFF TEMPLE: at Napata, IV 897-99.
- CLIFF TOMB: at Abd el-Kurna, of Rekhmire, I 20; II 663 n. d; Menkheperreseneb, II 772 n. a; Ramose, II 936 n. b; Neferhotep, III 68 n. c.
- Assasif (Thebes), of Neferhôtep, III 68.
- Assiut, of Hepzefi, I 535 n. a.
- opposite Assuan: of Thethi, I 161 n. d; Pepinakht, I 355 n. f; Khui, I 361 n. c; Sebni, I 362 n. f.
- Benihasan: of Amenemhet, I 515 n. a.
- Dêr el-Bahri: of Amenhotep I, IV 668, 690-92.
- Dêr el-Gebrâwi: of Henku, I 280; Ibi, I 375 n. f.
- El Kab: of Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 1 n. a; Pahri, II 3 n. d.
- Gebel Marâg: of Zau, I 380 n. d.
- Ibrim: of Penno, IV 474 n. a.
- Kasr-es-Saiyâd: of Idu-Seneni, I 337 n. a.
- Kurnet-Murrai: of Huy, II 1019.
- Tell el-Amarna: of Ani, II 977; Merire II, II 981; Merire I, II 982-88; Eye, II 989-96; Mai, II 997-1003; Ahmose, I 1004-8; Tutu, II 1009-13; Huy, II 1014-17.
- Thebes: of Thutmose I, II 97; excavation of, II 106; secrecy in excavation of, II 106; Thutmose II, II 389.
- CLOTHING, IV 843, 859, 875, 880, 881, 883; changes of, II 588; as mortuary offering, I 252; for embalmment, I 366, 382; presented to the court, I 369; for the gods, IV 335; for taxes, IV 150, 403.
- Clothing from Kadesh, II 436; see also Garments.
- Clothing the god at his processions: done by the master of secret things, I 745; by queen, II 239.
- Temple clothing, II 615.
- CLUSTERS, IV 295, 301, 350, 378; of beads, IV 377.
- COALITION: the Hittite, III 309; the Libyan, III 579.
- COAT OF MAIL, III 312, 326, 365; IV 99; from the Asiatics on the Orontes, II 785; see also Bronze.
- COFFERS, IV 256.
- COFFIN, IV 521, 538, 665-67, 852 n. c, 979, 988; name on, IV 499; pit of, IV 972.
- COFFIN: of Mekhu, I 368; of Zau, I 382; coffin made of ebony, I 247; of wood, I 382.
- Coffin inscriptions: see under Inscriptions.
- COILS OF ROPE, IV 582.
- COITION: of god with queen, II 196; III 400 n. c.
- COLLARS, II 45; of real malachite, I 534; gold, II 944, 986, 989; III 7, 8, 9, 60, 73; IV 201, 204, 493; of gold, and rock-crystal, IV 373; of gold and costly stone, IV 386, 876.
- COLLECTION OF TAXES, III 55, 58, 61, 62; IV 324.
- COLLECTORS OF HONEY, IV 149, 266.
- COLLUSION: crime of, IV 427, 428, 429, 438, 439, 440, 442, 444, 447.
- COLONNADE, IV 622; of temple of Upwawet at Siut, I 403; of temple of Harsaphes at Heracleopolis, IV 970; of temple at Dêr el-Bahri, II 191; of temple of Karnak, II 305, 317, 775; IV 707, 767; of temple of Ramses III at Medinet Habu, IV 16.
- COLORS, II 558; from Retenu, II 491, 534(?).
- COLOSSUS: in temple of Re at Heliopolis, IV 252; of Medinet Habu temple, IV 191 n. j; at Tanis, of Ramses II, III 417.
- Colossus of Memnon, I 16; II 878, 879, 880, 883 n. e; made of gritstone, II 883 n. e, 906 n. a; temple of Memnon colossi, II 883.
- COLPORTEURS, IV 467; districts of, III 172.
- COLUMNS, III 510, 512, 513; IV 489, 748, 889.
- Columns made of electrum, III 512, 515; IV 192; cedar, II 32, 600, 601; gold, IV 315; wood, II 614; sandstone, II 795; IV 910; lips of, IV 889.

- Columns*—
 —Column inscriptions: see under Inscriptions.
 —Bud columns, III 515.
 —Flower columns, III 515.
 —Temple columns, I 509; II 614, 795,
 805, 917; III 263, 593; IV 315.
 COMMAND OF A GOD, II 253; royal, I
 271, 273, 354; II 52; III 32B, 67, 586;
 IV 597, 629, 706, 817, 943.
 COMMEMORATIVE SCARABS, II 625, 860.
 COMMISSION, I 263, 264, 266, 298, 301,
 303, [305], 342, 445, 508; II 985; III
 32B, 271; IV 147, 412, 414, 466, 511,
 512, 522, 676, 784; to a court, IV
 423; overseer of, see Index V.
 COMMUNICATIONS, III 291; from people to Pharaoh, II 767; from Pharaoh to people, II 767; to foreign lands,
 II 767.
 COMMUNITY, DIVINE, IV 888.
 COMPLAINTS: by the lay priesthood of the temple of Min at Coptos, I 777;
 by the Mayor of Western Thebes,
 IV 527; by Wenamon, IV 566.
 COMPOSITION OF COURT, IV 426, 531, 546.
 COMPUTATION, II 763.
 CONCEALED FROM THE PEOPLE, I 404.
 CONCUBINES, III 267; king's, IV 844.
 CONFECTIONERS, III 624.
 CONFIDENTIAL OFFICE: in charge of,
 Thethi, I 423D.
 CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY, I 779;
 IV 1024.
 CONNIVANCE: laws on, III 58.
 CONSPIRACY: harem, IV 416-56; crime
 of, IV 430, 443, 447.
 CONSTANTINOPLE OBELISK, II 629-31.
 CONTRACT (=treaty), III 386.
 CONTRACTS: registered with the vizier
 II 703; for the remuneration of the prophets of Abydos, I 536; IV 679; of Hepzefi of Siut, I 539-93; for supplies of harbor garrisons, II 483, 510, 519, 535; for endowing divine offerings for Mut-Hathor of Thebes.
 II 622; for endowment of the lay priesthood of Ptah of Karnak, II 620;
 for offerings, IV 1022.
 CONVEYANCES, I 5; IV 946; see also Wills.
 COPPER, I 534; II 155, 558, 666; IV
 31, 32, 228, 230, 245, 283, 285, 342,
 355, 356, 372, 373, 385, 386, 388, 389,
 840, 548, 549, 550, 552, 553, 859, 883,
 958G; in scraps, IV 373, 385, 389.
 —Objects wrought with, II 157, 376,
 794 n. b; III 505, 528; IV 11, 216.
 —King's bones of, III 403.
 —Articles made of copper: chisels, IV
 552; bars, IV 408; shrine doors, IV
 198, 254; temple doors, I 483; II 45,
 104, 302, 390; III 525; IV 311;
 vase, I 500; II 164; bowl, I 500;
 Karnak gate, II 376; offering-tables,
 IV 911; statue, IV 302, 395;
 table vessels, IV 190, 354; swords
 from Meshwesh, III 589; vessels, II
 459; bolts, II 813; IV 406,, 489.
 —Copper from God's Land, III 274;
 Retenu, II 447, 471, 491, 509, 790;
 Zahi, II 459, 460, 462, 490, 536(?);
 Isy, II 493, 521; Sinai, I 713.
 —Crude copper: from Retenu, II 509;
 from Isy, II 511; from Arrapachitis,
 II 512.
 —Asiatic copper, II 45, 104, 614, 755;
 III 217, 537, 910; offering tables of,
 II 175.
 —Black copper, II 92, 390; IV 245, 284, 285, 342, 373, 385, 389, 732, 734, 730;
 door-mountings of, II 155; temple doors of, II 375; decorations made of, II 164; bolts of, IV 411; corselet of, IV 373, 389; shrine doors of, II
 889 n. a.
 COPPER MINES: in Atika, IV 408; at Sinai, I 168.
 COPPERSMITH, II 755; IV 523, 524,
 532, 533, 534; succession of the craft,
 IV 532.
 COPY OF LETTER, IV 527; of records,
 IV 535.
 CORD, MEASURING, I 445.
 —Cord made of palm-fiber, IV 235; of gold and costly stones, IV 386.
 —Stretching of the cord at the foundation ceremony, I 506; II 152, 608,
 614; feast of, II 157.
 CORDAGE, IV 578.
 COREGENCY: in XII Dynasty, I 64,
 460, 462; of Amenhotep II, I 66 n. a;
 II 184 n. d; of Ramses IX, I 69 n. c;
 of Osorkon II, I 71; of Takehot III,
 I 72 n. d; of Ramses II with Seti I,
 III 268; see also I 58-75, and Index
 III.
 CORN, II 987; IV 244.

- CORNICE, IV 315.
- CORONATION, II 151, 594, 849; IV 142, 887, 922, 958D.
- CORONATION DECREE: of Thutmose I, I 18; II 131-66; feast of, I 258.
- CORONATION INSCRIPTION: of Harmhab, III 22-32.
- CORRUPTION OF OFFICIALS, III 58.
- CORSELET, III 360.
- Corselets made of black copper, IV 373, 389; bronze, II 447.
- Corselet from Retenu, II 447; from Orontes, II 785.
- Corselets, inlaid, from Naharin, II 501.
- CORVÉE, I 320.
- COSMETIC, EYE: from Punt, II 265, 272; Naharin, II 501.
- COSTUME, II 231; III 34.
- COUCHES, IV 875, 876.
- COUNCIL: of army, II 695; of gods, II 192; of Nun, IV 330; of understanding, II 914; of war, II 420; III 322.
- the Great Council: reports to the vizier, II 706.
- Local council of a district, II 686.
- COUNCIL HALL: royal, IV 100 n. a.
- COURSE (of a wall), IV 355, 356, 358, 406, 489.
- COURT, ROYAL, I 239, 246, 248, 309, 320, 353; II 107, 151, 205, 232, 236, 238, 255, 260, 292, 371, 620, 622, 675, 706, 769, 1026; III 264, 580, 590; IV 63, 147, 477, 724A, 767, 933, 966; in mourning, I 491; ships of, I 258; garrison of, II 694; officials of, III 65, 437; princes of, III 287; going in and going out of, reported to the vizier, II 676; affairs of, reported by the chief treasurer, II 679; stable of, III 635, 645; chiefs of stables of, IV 466.
- Companions, Members, Nobles, Officers, Officials, Steward of Court: see Index V.
- Temple court, IV 198, 207, 272, 311, 327, 330, 333, 335, 363, 614, 619, 707.
- Peristyle of, at Luxor, III 506.
- Legal court: appointment of, III 65; IV 423; instructions to, IV 424; composition of, IV 426, 531, 546.
- Legal court: great nobles of, IV 425, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 444; of butlers, IV 443, 446, 448, 449, 450.
- the great court of Thebes, IV 531, 533.
- Court of examination, IV 425.
- Court=decree of court, II 290.
- Court-marshal, III 69.
- Court-fishermen, IV 466; divisions of, IV 466; officers of, IV 466.
- COURTIERS, III 267.
- COVERINGS, BURIAL, IV 521, 538.
- COW, IV 229, 242, 283, 293, 298, 341, 347, 387, 392.
- for divine offering, IV 190; for oblation, IV 335.
- Cow speaking, I 408.
- Cows from Kharu, IV 229; Retenu, II 471.
- Cows of Hathor, II 210.
- Loan-cows from Kush, II 556; from Zahi, II 556.
- COW HIDES, IV 379, 395.
- CRAFT, III 51, 52; succession of, see Coppersmiths.
- CRAFTSMEN, II 371, 372, 753, 775, 801, 833; overseer of, see Index V; see also Handicraft.
- CRANES, IV 242.
- CRATE, IV 234, 241, 379.
- CRENELATED OVAL, IV 718.
- CREW, II 328; III 275; IV 212, 407, 944.
- Crews: of Egypt, IV 574; Byblos, IV 586, 591; Syrian, IV 574; Alasa, IV 591.
- Galley crew, IV 328.
- of recruits, I 343; leader of, see Index V.
- CRIME, III 62, 389, 390; IV 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 446, 451, 530, 880.
- Capital crime, III 64; IV 529; of death, IV 454, 456.
- Crimes: insurrection, IV 427, 428, 429, 430, 442, 443; collusion, IV 427, 428, 429, 438, 439, 440, 442, 444, 477; conspiracy, IV 430, 443, 447; not reporting conspiracy, IV 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 448, 449, 450.
- CRIMINAL CASES: docket of, II 670, 683; entry of, II 683.
- CRIMINALS, II 683, 767; IV 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 442, 443, 445, 448,

- 449, 450, 452, 453, 456; procedure of cases against, II 683; IV 423-56.
- CROCODILE, III 615; captured by Amenemhet I, I 483; Pharaoh as, II 659; III 117.
- CROWN POSSESSIONS: in the Oryx nome, I 523; of the south, building of, in Elephantine, I 650; of Thinis of the South, in Abydos, I 665 n. b; tributes distributed to, II 706.
- Overseers of, I 312; gang-overseers of, I 522; people of, IV 466; scribe of, IV 465.
- CROWN, ROYAL, II 235, 239, 314; III 267, 270, 406; of Amon, II 198; IV 246.
- Crown: "Great in Magic," I 609; cf. the same title of goddess Mut.
- the double crown, I 500; II 229; III 286, 486; IV 304.
- Etef-crown, I 168; II 292; IV 104, 186, 209, 351, 401, 411.
- Northern crown, I 609.
- Red crown, I 609, 779; II 229, 318, 815; III 414; IV 62, 104.
- Serpent crown, IV 62.
- Southern crown, I 609.
- White crown, I 609, 779; II 229, 235, 318, 636, 815; III 414; IV 62, 104, 182, 304.
- Crowns: as adornment, II 888; see also Diadems.
- CRUDE COPPER: see Copper.
- CRYSTAL, ROCK, IV 373; cut, IV 233, 287, 345; beads of, IV 233, 287, 345, 377; seals of, IV 233, 303, 345, 349, 377; pendants of, IV 287; armlet of, IV 303; semdets of, IV 377; scarab of, IV 377; bracelet of, IV 303, 349, 377; finger rings of, IV 377; eye-amulets of, IV 377.
- CUBE, IV 378, 395.
- CUBIC MEASURES: see Measure.
- CUBIT, ONE: indicates the length of a newborn child, I 395 n. f; was the length of Tefibi's son, when he began to rule, I 395; of Kheti, III 413; see also Measures, Linear.
- CUMIN, IV 287.
- CUP BEARER: see Index V.
- CURLY-HAIRED: epithet for Negro, II 71, 657 (see corrigenda); III 155; for Kode Folk.
- CURSE: on violators of endowment, II 925; III 192, 194; IV 483; of treaty, III 386.
- CUSHION, II 675 bis.
- CUSTOM: practiced upon a king, IV 866.
- CYPERUS OF THE SHORE, IV 301, 350.

D

- DAGGER, II 22, 254; wrought with electrum, I 682; of bronze, II 802.
- DAHABIYEH, II 1034, 1039.
- DAIS, II 675, 981; III 13.
- DAMAGE, IV 149, 543.
- DANCES OF THE GOD: by the dwarf from Yam, I 353.
- DANCING, II 238.
- DARK PERIOD: the second, between the Old and Middle Kingdoms, I 52, 57.
- DATE GROVE, IV 215.
- DATE PALM: fiber of, IV 380, 395.
- DATE TREES, IV 264, 1021.
- DATE WINE, I 336.
- DATES, IV 244, 295, 347, 944; dried, IV 299, 347.
- for divine offering, II 159; food, I 785; oblation, II 571.
- DAYBOOK OF A FRONTIER OFFICIAL, III 629.
- DEBEN, I 785; II 377, 436 bis, 446 ter, 459 bis, 482, 486, 490, 491, 493 bis, 500, 502, 509, 514, 515, 518 bis, 522, 526, 527, 534, 536, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 726, 727, 730, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 744, 761, 903; III 207; IV 30, 228, 231, 232, 283, 285, 286, 287, 341, 343, 344, 345, 373, 377, 385, 386, 389, 390, 391, 566, 568, 576, 680, 681, 682, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 949, 950, 952, 953, 954, 956, 957.
- DECADENCE, I 22, 23.
- DECEASED: honors for, I 6; daily intercourse with king, I 6.
- DECISION, LEGAL, III 25.
- DECORATION OF SOLDIERS AND OFFICIALS WITH GOLD, I 372; II 6, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 22, 23, 24, 39, 64, 81, 584, 585, 587, 588, 986, 1009, 1036; III 6, 73.
- DECORATIONS ON CATTLE, II 1035.
- DECREE, IV 630, 653, 656, 670, 992; royal, I 351; of Ramses III, IV 147-50.

- Decree*—
 —Coptos decree, by Nubkheprure-Intef, I 773-80; dealing with a culprit, I 777.
 —Coronation decree of Thutmose I, I 18; II 54-60.
 —Decree for Harmhab's reforms, I 18.
 —Endowment decree, I 349.
 —Sealing of decrees, I 274; privy councillor of, I 336.
 —Temple decrees, engraved on tablets, IV 202, 255, 265, 317, 321, 354, 360, 363, 656; concerning the sacred cattle of Apis, IV 332.
- DEDICATION STELÆ, I 15; II 904-910; royal (of buildings and monuments), II 127, 301, 905.
- DEDMET FLOWER, IV 215, 264, 345, 379, 393.
- DEED, II 966.
- DEIFICATION: of Snefru, I 722; Amenhotep, III, II 893-98, 900; Amenhotep, son of Hapi, II 911-12; Menmare, III 173; Ramses II, III 502, 504; see Apotheosis.
- DEMOTIC, I 24.
- DEPOSITION: of a priest of Min, I 778; of vizier, IV 361.
- DEPOSITIONS: of legal documents, IV 534; taken by the vizier, II 704; IV 534.
- DEPUTATION, IV 525, 526.
- DESERT, IV 479; of Abydos, IV 1023.
- DETENTION: unlawful, of slaves, III 55; penalty for, III 55.
- DEW, DIVINE, II 197, 274, 829.
- DEWAT CHAMBER, IV 866, 871.
- DEWATOWE SHIPS: see Ships.
- DIADEM, II 142, 145 bis, 226, 229, 231, 312 n. b, 314, 812, 831, 832-36, 838; III 16, 535, 536; IV 47, 382, 843, 988H; magic power of, II 220; king crowned in, when performing the foundation ceremony, I 506; of Re, IV 895.
 —Double diadem, I 686; II 255; III 267; IV 304; double plumed, IV 401.
 —Serpent diadem, II 245, 657, 925; IV 66, 127, 130.
- DICTIONARY: Egyptian, I 33.
- DIORITE, IV 980.
- DISTRICT, II 686; III 580, 583; IV 265; of Abydos, IV 681; Aphroditopolis, IV 948; Amenopet, IV 539; Bista, IV 957; Busiris, IV 968; Gate of Ihotep, I 312; Middle of Heliopolis, IV 857; Hare nome, IV 948; Herculopolis, IV 948, 968; Oxyrrhyncus, IV 948; town of Pesebek, IV 784; Ranofer, IV 830; Sais, IV 957; Sep, IV 948; Thebu, IV 957; see also Nome.
 —Districts of the colporteurs, III 172; in Wawat, IV 479, 480, 481, 482, 483.
 —Sacred districts of Mehenet (of Sais), IV 982, 1011; Resenet (of Sais), IV 1011.
 —For Chief of, Officials of, Scribe of, Supervisor of, see Index V.
- DIVINE BOAT: see Boat.
- DIVINE COMMUNITY, IV 888.
- DIVINE MEMBERS OF AMENEMHET, I 446, 492.
- DIVINE OFFERINGS: see Endowment, Offering.
- DIVINE OFFICE OF KINGS, III 403.
 —For Divine consort, Divine father, Divine hand, Divine mother, Divine votress, see Index V.
- DIVINE WATER, III 474.
- "DIVINE WORDS" (Hieroglyphs), I 533.
- DIVISION OF HORUS AND SET, THE TWO (when they divided the kingdom between them), II 120.
- DIVISIONS OF COURT FISHERMEN, IV 466.
- DOCKET, II 670; IV 535; criminal, II 683.
- DOCUMENTS: written, I 1, 2, 5; mutilated state of, I 26; state, I 18; religious literature, I 2, 20; legal, I 20; IV 534; administrative, I 10; memoranda, I 20.
- DODEKASCHOINOS: gift of, I 24; IV 146.
- DOGS, II 413; III 475; IV 818, 1004.
 —of Berber breed, I 421 n. b; from Punt, II 265.
 —of King Intef I, I 421.
 —Chief of Libya like a, III 580.
- DOM PALM: fruit of, IV 234, 241, 294, 378, 391; from Mehay, IV 234.
- DOMAIN OF PHARAOH, I 294, 309, 310, 312, 356, 382.
 —for Custodian of, Scribe of, Superintendent of, see Index V.
 —Royal domain, cedar from, II 157, 903; IV 15, 209, 278, 331, 970; lands of, II 186; superintendent of, III 70.

- Domain of a statue, IV 479, 480, 481, 482, 483; boundaries of, IV 479, 480, 481, 482, 483.
- Domain of Tehenut, IV 482; of pyramid, I 373; of temple, IV 141, 265.
- DOOR POSTS, III 14, 15, 236, 625; IV 311, 489; made of limestone, IV 355; 356; sandstone, III 625; stone, IV 357, 358, 362; wood, III 625; cedar, IV 406; electrum, IV 192; gold, IV 9, 197, 214, 216.
- DOORS: setting up of, I 328; made of cedar, IV 406, 489; door-keeper, see Index V; see also Doorpost, Doorway, Lintels, Portals.
- Palace doors: of cedar, I 148.
- Shrine doors: of cedar, II 156; of copper, IV 198, 254; of electrum, IV 5; of ketem gold, IV 251; of bronze, IV 320.
- Temple doors, III 412, 517, 528; of black granite, IV 7; of cedar, II 155, 157, 375, 611, 614, 794, 903; III 217, 245, 505, 520, 537, 625; IV 11, 355, 356, 357, 358, 362, 910, 970; of gold, IV 7, 195, 197, 214, 216; wrought with Asiatic copper, III 217; of copper, I 483; II 45, 104, 302, 390; III 525; IV 7, 14, 189, 311; of black copper, II 375; of bronze, III 528; of electrum, III 567; IV 4, 189, 191, 929; gilded with electrum, III 237; meru wood, IV 488 n. c.
- Tomb door of cedar, IV 958M.
- the great door, I 109; II 376; of temple, II 157; III 502; IV 195.
- the great double doors, of the palace were closed at death of king, I 491; of heaven, IV 216; of temple, IV 871, 929.
- DOORWAY, I 634, 706; II 643; of tomb, I 637 bis; II 947 n. a.; of fortress, I 650; of temple, II 44, 643, 662; III 227, 260, 528; IV 11; names of, II 104, 643; III 227; inscriptions of, see Inscriptions.
- Doorways: made of Benut stone, II 643; sandstone, II 794; granite, IV 197; black granite, III 528; red granite, III 528; electrum, II 903; III 227, 230, 237; bronze, III 246; gold, IV 14, 311; granite, IV 11; see also Portals.
- DOUBLE CABINET: see Cabinet; for Master of, see Index V.
- DOUBLE CROWN, see Crown.
- DOUBLE DIADEM: see Diadem.
- DOUBLE DOORS: see Door.
- DOUBLE FAÇADE: see Façade.
- DOUBLE GOLD-HOUSE, I 533, 664; II 371; see also Gold-house; for Lord of, Overseer of, see Index V.
- DOUBLE GRANARY: see Granary; for Overseers of, see Index V.
- DOUBLE GRANARY OF AMON: see Index I; for Overseer of, see Index V.
- DOUBLE HOUSE: see House; for Attached to, see Index V.
- DOUBLE PLUMED: see Plume.
- DOUBLE SERPENT-CREST: see Serpent-crest.
- DOUBLE SILVER-HOUSE: see Silver-House; for Lord of, Overseer of, see Index V.
- DOUBLE STAIRCASE: see Staircase.
- DOUBLE w c b. t.-HOUSE: see House.
- DOUBLE WHITE HOUSE: see White House; for Overseer of, see Index V.
- DOUGH, I 312.
- DOVES, IV 106, 242.
- DRAGGING: of timber from Lebanon to the seacoast, IV 583.
- DRAUGHTSMEN, I 447; III 271; IV 466.
- DREAM, III 582; IV 922, 923.
- DRINKING-VESSELS, II 436; of silver, III 589.
- Drinking-vessel for the ka, II 32; made of gold, II 32.
- DUCKS, IV 992.
- DUES, I 556; II 110, 149, 172, 483, 543, 596, 774, 798; III 51, 53, 273, 481; IV 878; for harem, III 54; to the gods of the deep, IV 330; to the temples, II 112, 557, 559, 597, 648; III 54; IV 283, 340, 386, 489; of local officials, II 716, 718-45; III 481; IV 958H; of Egypt, III 484; of negro lands, IV 34.
- Laws on dues, III 53, 54.
- DUNGEON OF THE GATE, III 180.
- DWARF, DANCING, I 351, 353; brought from Yam, I 351.
- DWELLING OF THE HIGH PRIEST OF AMON, IV 489; see also Building, House, Palace.
- DYKE, III 598; IV 724A, 795.
- DYNASTIES:
- First: records of, I 7; length of, I 56,

- 58, 85 n. a; chronology of, I 57; history of on the Palermo stone, I 79, 84, 91-116.
- Second: length of, I 56, 85 n. a; chronology of, I 58; history of, on the Palermo stone, I 84, 117-44;
- Third: inscriptions of, I 168-75; records of, I 6, 24; length of, I 55, 85, 85 n. a, 86; chronology of, I 58; history of on the Palermo stone, I 79, 84, 145-48.
- Fourth: length of, I 54, 55; inscriptions of, I 176-212; chronology of I 59; accession of, I 79, 88; history of on the Palermo stone, I 79, 84, 87, 149-50.
- Fifth: records of, I 3, 7, 24; inscriptions of, I 213-81; chronology of, I 60; length of, I 54, 55; history of on the Palermo stone, I 78, 84, 87, 146 n. a, 153-67; introduction of the title, "Son of Re," II 187.
- Sixth: inscriptions of, I 282-390; records of, I 6, 8; chronology of, I 61; length of, I 54.
- Seventh: chronology of, I 53, 57, 62.
- Eighth, I 53, 62.
- Ninth: inscriptions of, I 391-414; chronology of, I 53, 62.
- Tenth: inscriptions of, I 10, 391-414; chronology of, I 53, 57, 62.
- Eleventh: inscriptions of, I 415-59; chronology of, I 63, 415-18, 423A, 424, 434; minimum length of, I 52.
- Twelfth: inscriptions of, I 460-750; their importance, I 8, 14, 17; chronology of, I 64, 460-62; rising of Sothis in, I 42, 46, 57; partially contemporary reigns of kings in, I 52; maximum length of, I 52.
- Thirteenth: inscriptions of, I 751-87; chronology of, I 65.
- Seventeenth: chronology of, I 65.
- Eighteenth: inscriptions of, II 1-1043; records of, I 13, 14, 20; succession of early kings of, II 17; dates of, I 47, 51; rising of Sothis in, I 43, 46; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 65.
- Nineteenth: inscriptions of, III 1-651; importance of records of, I 13, 18, 23; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 67.
- Twentieth: inscriptions of, IV 1-603; importance of records of, I 13, 22, 23; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 69.
- Twenty-first, I 22, 23; inscriptions of, IV 604-92; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 70; IV 604-7.
- Twenty-second, I 22; inscriptions of, IV 693-792; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 71, 72; IV 693-94.
- Twenty-third, I 22; inscriptions of, IV 793-883; minimum length of, I 50; IV 793-94.
- Twenty-fourth, I 22; inscriptions under, IV 884; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 73.
- Twenty-fifth, I 22; inscriptions of, IV 885-934; minimum length of, I 50; chronology of, I 74; IV 885.
- Twenty-sixth, I 22, 23, 48; inscriptions of, IV 935-1029; minimum length of, I 50; IV 1026; accession of, I 57; chronology of, I 75; IV 935-41.

E

- EARRINGS, IV 876.
- EARS: of grain, IV 244.
- Ears and nose cut off, as punishment, IV 451, 452, 524.
- EARTH, II 139, 288, 570 et passim.
- Kissed, II 238, 268 et passim.
- EBONY, II 387, 390; III 475; of best of the highlands, II 127.
- Brought from Negro lands, I 336; Punt, II 265, 272, 486; Nubia, II 375; Genebteyew, II 474; Kush, II 494, 502, 514; the south countries, II 652.
- Articles made of ebony: billets, III 475; chairs, II 436; chest, II 755; coffin, I 247; harp, II 32; shrines, II 127, 375, 388, 390; staff, IV 288; staves, II 802; IV 391; statue, II 436, 801; whips, II 802.
- ECLIPSE, inscription of Takelot II, I 35.
- EDICTS, II 705, 710; IV 354; of Harmhab, I 18; III 45-67; of mortuary endowment, II 922-27.
- EDUCATION OF CHILDREN: Ptahshepses, I 256, 257; Amenemhet I, I 474-83; see also Teaching.
- EGG, KING IN THE, III 267, 270, 288; IV 657, 817, 850; of Harakhte, IV 62; king, the pure egg, II 314.
- ELDERS, II 916.
- ELECTRUM, I 165, 167; II 155, 157, 274, 281, 302, 309, 315, 317, 319, 377, 390,

- 596, 608, 761; III 176, 230, 237, 285, 403; IV 7, 29, 632, 633, 721, 909, 911; in bars, II 279; in rings (commercial), II 279; weighing of, II 281.
- Articles made of: armlets of, II 376, 654; balances, IV 256; jar, II 556; vase, II 164; vessels, II 902; necklace, II 654; pendant, II 654.
- Articles decorated with, II 164, 298, 305, 309, 317, 319, 447, 775, 776, 805, 890; III 517, 525, 528, 970; barque, III 212; chariots wrought with, II 430, 447, 960, 969; ceiling, IV 958J; roof, IV 16; columns, III 512, 515; shrine door, IV 5; temple doors, III 567; IV 4, 929; doorway, II 903; III 227; great house, IV 904; great seat, IV 14, 610; image, IV 958K; portals, II 883, 895, 898; offering-tables, I 534, 610; II 164, 370; statue, I 165, 668; IV 633, 913, 958K; dagger wrought with, I 682; staff of, I 682; pyramidion, II 624, 630, 633, 834; staves, IV 912; temple walls, II 886; IV 748; shrines, II 374 bis, 776, 888; IV 1020; inlaid figures, II 375, 376; IV 910; amulets, II 376, 654; bow and stern of sacred barge, II 94; parts of doors, II 45; statue standards, II 95; flagstave tops, II 103, 883, 888, 889; the great throne, II 292; interior of holy of holies of Amon Temple, finished with, II 153, 596; portals of Amon Temple at Karnak wrought with, II 153.
- Brought from Emu, II 298, 387; the mountains, IV 28; Punt, I 161; II 272; the south countries, II 654; the highlands, II 374, 377.
- King's limbs of, III 403.
- Mine of electrum east of Redesiyeh, III 170.
- ELEPHANT: from Kush, I 510 n. b; from Retenu, II 125.
- EMANATION, II 991, 1000, 1029; IV 246, 817, 909, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916.
- EMBALMERS, I 370.
- EMBALMING, of Mekhu's body, I 370.
- Embalming material: festival oil, from the double White House, I 370; secret things from the w c b t-house, I 370; —, from the c k house, I 370; clothing of the double White House, I 370; burial equipment from the court, I 370.
- House of embalming, IV 1029; name of, IV 1029.
- EMBANKMENT, IV 842.
- EMBARK, IV 571.
- EMERY, II 558; IV 600; from Zahi, II 460; from Retenu, II 534 (?).
- EMIGRANTS, extradition of, III 383, 385.
- EMORY: see Emery.
- EMPIRE: inscriptions of, I 8, 11; minimum length of, I 50.
- EMPTY YEARS, IV 398.
- ENACTMENTS, II 568; of Harmhab, III 45-67; form of, III 45.
- ENBU PLANT, IV 379, 395.
- Enbu fruit, IV 240, 393.
- ENCIRCLING WALL OF TEMPLE, II 642.
- ENCLOSURE, TEMPLE, II 164; see also Wall, and Index II.
- ENDOWMENT: of Aton, II 952, 954, 958, 966; daily offerings, III 31, 515; IV 355, 1021; divine offerings, II 622, 792, 806, 900, 908; III 77, 159, 268; IV 256, 320, 335, 354, 355, 359, 654, 958M; feasts, II 569, 571, 798, 908; IV 208, 237, 290, 329, 924; the lay-priests of Amon, at Karnak, II 618; mortuary offerings, I 200, 269, 379, 562, 577, 630; II 839, 840, 908, 921, 926; III 526; IV 679, 1007; mortuary priests, I 200-9, 274, 630; II 32, 569, 571; oblations, IV 296, 329, 347; offerings for ancestors, III 23; temples, I 156, 159-61, 165-67, 213; II 163, 295, 571, 616, 617, 793; III 31, 413; IV 146-50, 755, 784, 992; tomb, I 213.
- ENEKH OF THE WEST (=life, euphemism for the dead), II 907.
- ENEMY, IV 1006.
- ENFEEBLING BY MAGIC ROLLS, IV 454, 456.
- "ENTER IN" TO HIS MAJESTY, IV 460.
- EPIPHI: see Months.
- EQUIPMENT, III 584.
- ERA OF OPEHTISET-NUBTI, III 538, 542.
- ERASURE OF INSCRIPTIONS, II 52, 126, 190, 192 n. d, 193, 205, 218, 290, 306, 312, 320, 612, 968.
- ESTABLISHMENT: of the field [—], I 302; of Osiris, IV 1021.
- ESTATE: regulation of, I 536; private, of Sebni, I 366, 368; of Yewelot, IV

- 795; of Putowe, IV 948; of Kewkew, IV 948; of Nesumin, IV 948; of Harsiese, IV 948.
- Count's (pr-h > ty -), I 536, 551, 552, 565, 570, 574.
- Divine estate, IV 386; of Amon, IV 222-45; Ptah, IV 337-39; Re, IV 280-82; of the gods, IV 364-69; 383-85.
- Estate of Pharaoh, II 769, 871; IV 147; stewards of, II 871; reports from, II 871; harvest of, II 871; chief overseer of, II 925.
- Paternal estate (mw-pr-yt), I 536, 551, 552, 565, 570, 574.
- (pr-dt), I 546.
- ETERNAL (=TEMPLE) AFFAIRS, I 610.
- Dwelling (=pyramid) of Sesostris I, I 509.
- Horizon (=tomb), IV 513.
- Seat (=necropolis), III 32B.
- ETERNITY, CITY OF (=tomb), I 402; temple of, III 233, 240; horizon of, III 240.
- ETHIOPIAN PERIOD, I 22; IV 796-934.
- ÉTUL, II 1024.
- EVIL SPIRIT, III 438.
- EVIL-DOER, I 401, 403.
- EXACTIONS, IV 266, 283, 323, 340, 341, 386, 387, 497, 958H.
- EXAMINATION: of witnesses, IV 424, 486; of culprits, IV 426-56, 524, 540, 547-55; tortures used at, IV 546, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 555.
- Court of examination, IV 425.
- EXCELLENT ONES, I 623.
- EXPEDITIONS, II 818; III 20; records of, II 407, 455; to Wan, II 582; to Carchemish, II 583.
- by sea: to Lebanon, I 146 n. a; to southern Palestine, time of Uni, I 315; to Punt, I 429; to Hammamat, I 442, 446; personnel of, I 447.
- EXPLORATIONS, II 294; to Yam, by Harkhuf, I 333; to Sethu and Irthet, I 334; of Akhetaton, II 960.
- EXTORTION: laws on, III 54; penalty for, III 54.
- EXTRADITION: of political fugitives, III 382, 384; of emigrants, III 383, 385.
- EYE: Karnak, the eye of the All-Lord, II 316.
- EYE COSMETIC: from Punt, II 265, 272; from Naharin, II 501.
- EYE PAINT, IV 348, 391; from the Asiatics, I 620 n. d.
- F
- FAÇADE, II 374.
- the great double façade, III 412; IV 16; gate of, II 678.
- FALSE DOOR: of tomb, I 212, 238, 239, 290, 405 n. e; of mastaba, I 254, 308; made of limestone, I 212, 238, 239, 254, 290, 308, 405 n. e; of granite, I 322.
- FAME (b w, lit. souls) OF THE KING, II 120, 413 et passim.
- FAMILY, KING'S, IV 944.
- FAMINE: of Joseph, I 483 n. b; III 10; in Lebanon districts, II 436; among Asiatics, III 11, 636, 638 n. b; in Egypt, IV 398.
- FAN, II 22; as insignium of office, III 15; fan-bearers: see Index V.
- FANFARE, III 40.
- FASHION OF WOMEN, IV 849.
- FAT, III 208, 413; IV 286, 344, 394.
- FAT: goose, IV 232, 376; white, IV 233, 239, 299, 300, 350; roasts of, for mortuary oblation, II 571.
- FATTENING-HOUSES, IV 217, 260, 313, 323.
- FEAST-DAY ATTENDANTS: see Index V.
- FEASTS, II 298, 462; IV 275, 359, 675, 926; calendar of, IV 139-45.
- Feast of New Year's day, I 40, 42, 545, 573, 583, 585, 630; II 171, 233, 239, 240; III 224; IV 144, 654, 836; fire kindled in the temple on night of, I 562, 573, 583.
- Feast: of the great year, I 630; the little year, I 630; the great feast, I 630.
- Feast of beginning of the seasons, I 668; II 45, 171, 569, 571, 615; III 526; IV 259, 289, 340, 356, 381, 396, 906; offering for, II 569; IV 208, 236; endowment of, II 571, 908; IV 208.
- Feast of "Beginning-of-the-River," II 32, 373, 596, 798, 838, 888; III 94, 568; IV 330 n. a, 358.
- of New Moon, I 46; II 430, 562, 608; the twelve monthly, I 630, 665 n. b; II 35; the twelve mid-monthly, I 630, 665 n. b.
- Fifth of the month, II 35.
- Sixth of the month, II 35, 149, 562; a feast of Amon, IV 958L.

- Feasts*—
- of the five intercalary days, I 630.
  - of the Birth of the Gods, I 164.
  - Feast-of-the-Appearance, I 261; II 544, 569; IV 200, 257, 322, 354, 356; storehouses for, IV 200, 257, 322, 354, 356.
  - “Coming Forth,” bread of, II 618.
  - Feasts of Amon, III 32B, 439; IV 652, 777, 840; leader of, see Index V; “Gift-of-Life,” IV 552; “Day-of-Bringing-in-the-God,” II 551; IV 836; celebrated in the second day in the third month of the first season, IV 836; “Abiding in Thebes,” IV 836; “Feast of the Valley,” III 212, 215, 218, 515, 517, 522; IV 17; Tenth feast of Amon, II 608; date of II 608. See Feast of Opet.
  - Birth of Anubis, I 91, 100.
  - Feast of Anuket, celebrated for three days in the ninth month, II 798; extended to four days, II 798; “Feast of Nubia,” a feast of Anuket, II 798; endowment of, II 798.
  - Feast of Apis, I 212; of Running-of-Apis, I 114, 121, 127.
  - Feast of Bast, IV 973; celebrated on the fifth day of the fourth month of the second season, IV 973.
  - “Coming Forth of Harakhte,” II 139.
  - Worship of Horus, I 91, 94, 96, 98, 100, 118, 120, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130, 132, 133, 135, 137, 142, 144; “Worship-of-Horus-of-Heaven,” I 125; feast of the great Rekeh, I 630; IV 768; the little Rekeh, I 630; a feast of Horus, IV 768.
  - Feast of Khonsu, IV 753 n. c; celebrated in the first month of the third season, IV 753.
  - Birth of Meftet, I 115.
  - Birth of Min, I 99, 142.
  - Peret-Min (=“Going-forth of Min”), II 566; offering for, II 566.
  - “Altar-of-the-Feast,” of Mut-Hathor of Thebes, II 622; date of, II 622.
  - Feast of the Nile-god, IV 296; celebrated semi-annually at Silseleh, IV 296 n. e.
  - “Great-Going-Forth” of Osiris, I 669.
  - Feast of Ptah “South-of-His-Wall,” III 23, 77, 159.
  - Feast of Ptah, “Bringing-in-the-God,” II 614, 617.
  - “First-of-the-Flood,” a feast of Ptah at Memphis, IV 330.
  - Birth of Sed, I 113.
  - Birth of Seshat, I 115.
  - Feast of Seshed, I 150.
  - Feast of Shed, II 240.
  - Feast of Sokar, I 97, 108, [118], 123, 129.
  - Urshu, feast of Sutekh, IV 726; celebrated on the 25th day, fourth month of the second season, IV 726.
  - Feast of Thoth, I 222; II 35, 302.
  - Birth of Upwawet, I 150; procession of, I 540; “Going Forth of Upwawet,” I 669.
  - Birth of Goddess Yamet, I 98.
  - Feast of Zet, I 101, 107, 131.
  - Feasts of Heaven, II 35; IV 236, 289, 346, 381, 396; eight in number, IV 144; minor feasts of heaven, IV 144.
  - Feast of the Earth, II 35.
  - Feast of the union of Two Lands, I 94, 140, 150, 164.
  - Feast of circuit of wall, I 93, 140, 150, 164, 166.
  - Feast of stretching the cord, I 109, 119, 143.
  - Feast of bringing the wall of Dewazefa, I 138.
  - Feast of “Binding-of-the-Barbarians,” I 655 n. b; II 171.
  - Feast of “Repulse-of-the-Troglo-dytes,” I 655, II 171; occurs on the twenty-first day of the fourth month of the second season, II 171.
  - Feast of Coronation, Shepseskaf, I 258; Sabu-Ibebi, I 286; Thutmose I, II 60; Thutmose III, II 317, 430; Ramses III, IV 237.
  - Feast of Desher, I 94.
  - Feast of Hakro, I 746; II 35.
  - Feast of happy living, I 630; of the dead, I 630.
  - “Myriad-of-years” (probably a festival of Dêr el-Bahn), II 333, 362, 375.
  - “Occurrence of Jubilee,” II 307, 310, 311. See Jubilee.
  - Feast of Opet, II 591, 809, 887, 888; III 58, 256, 436; IV 237, 671, 836, 840, 909; celebrated on the 19th day of the 2d month, IV 144, 237. See Feasts of Amon.
  - Feast of Victory, II 549, 550, 551, 552, 553.
  - Feast of Wag, I 222; II 35; celebrated on the 18th day of the first month of the first season, I 550, 555, 564; night of, celebrated on the 17th day of the

- first month of the first season, I 573, 577, 590.
- FEATHER, IV 873; serpent and feather, signs for Aphroditopolis, I 433, n. a.
- FEET (king's): companions of: see Index V.
- FELDSPAR, from Retenu, II 491.
—Green feldspar, IV 287, 343, 389; statue of, IV 302; from Zahi, II 462.
- FERRY BOAT, I 275; IV 863; of cedar, IV 229, 282, 387.
- FERRYING, I 493.
- FESTIVAL HALL, II 288, 377; offerings, II 298.
- FEUDAL PRINCIPALITIES OF EGYPT, IV 746.
- FICTION: state, II 187-90; see also Poetry, Hymn.
- FIELD, II 966; IV 332, 893, 948, 957, 958, 1021; given away by the king to temples; II 1 n. c, 966; IV 141; for mortuary endowment, II 925, 926; III 526.
—Fields of Dodekaschoinos, IV 146; belonging to Khnum, IV 146; extent of, IV 146.
—Fields of Egypt, III 580.
—Fields of Amon, II 354; overseer of: see Index V.
—Fields: calculations of, III 275; inspectors of, II 437; III 275; renting of, IV 482; ritual roll of, III 271.
—Flax fields of Pharaoh, in Miam, IV 479, 480, 482.
—for Inspectors of, field judge of, Ruler of, Palace ruler of, Scribes of, Supervisor of, see Index V.
- FIG TREES, I 496; planting of, I 173; of sand-dwellers, I 313.
- FIGS, III 208; IV 240, 294, 391; impost of, IV 240.
- FIGURE, III 525; of gods, III 233, 391; IV 245, 384; impost paid to, IV 225; of king, IV 514; made of gold, IV 26, 311.
—Figures outlined, IV 255.
—Inlay figures, IV 909; of costly stone, IV 7 9, 216; of electrum, II 375; IV 7, 11, 14, 214, 910; of gold, IV 205, 488 n. c, 489; ketem-gold, IV 199, 205, 311; silver, IV 489.
- FINGER: skilled in, I 531; see also Measures, linear.
- FINGER RINGS: of fine gold, IV 231; gold of two times, IV 231; white gold, IV 231; malachite, IV 377; rock-crystal, IV 377; red jasper, IV 377.
- FIRE: day of kindling in the temple, I 545; on New Year's night, I 552; on night of Wag-feast, I 573.
- FIRE CHAMBER: an apartment of the temple, III 28.
- FIRE-PANS, I 795.
- FIREWOOD, IV 295, 303, 380, 394; from Retenu, II 447; Naharin, II 502.
- FISH, III 207, 208, 291, 404; IV 243, 394, 582, 1005; cut up, IV 243, 380; whole, IV 243, 380; in temple lakes, II 883; eating of, an abomination for the palace, IV 882.
—Champions like fishes, II 431.
—Shene fish, IV 243.
—White fish, IV 243.
- FISHERMEN, III 62, 376; of Elephantine, II 650; IV 148; impost of, IV 229, 283.
—Court fishermen, IV 466; divisions of, IV 466; officers of, IV 466.
- FLAGSTAFF: the northern, in the palace, II 678.
- FLAGSTAVES: temple, II 103, 624, 776, 883, 888, 889, 894; III 508, 567; IV 15, 626, 632; made of cedar, III 94, 537; IV 15.
- FLAT DISH, II 32, 93, 436; of costly stones and gold, I 436; gold, II 32, 447, 518, 533; of silver, II 447, 462, 518, 533.
—from Retenu, II 436, 447, 509, 518, 533 (?), 536(?); from Zahi, II 462.
- FLAX, I 172; IV 229, 235, 241, 283, 295, 371, 379, 387, 392.
—Southern, IV 379, 392.
—Overseer of: see Index V.
- FLAX FIELDS: of Pharaoh, in Miam, IV 479, 480, 482.
- FLEET, II 304; IV 863; enormous fleet of Kheti I, I 398, 401; of Kheti II, I 405, 411; of Snefru to Syria, I 89; of Amenemhet I, I 465; Hatshepsut's, to Punt, II 251; northern, II 7; captain of, see Index V.
- FLINT: sword of, II 525; from Retenu, II 525.
- FLOCKS: of geese, II 559; IV 380.
—birds, II 571; IV 768.

- FLOOD, IV 743; flood inscription, IV 742-44.
- FLOOR: temple, II 375, 883; of adytum, II 806; adorned with silver, II 806, 883, 886, 889, 890.
- FLOUR, IV 238.
- FLOWERS, IV 244, 272, 274, 350, 394, 871; impost of, IV 244.
- Beautiful flowers, II 902, 903; in temple garden, II 167, 881, 887, 903; in temple lakes, II 919; IV 194.
- Flower gardens of temple, II 167, 881, 887, 903; IV 264.
- Flower offering, III 16, 626, 648; IV 194, 200, 217, 633; for oblation, II 960, 1042; IV 768; see also Blue flower, Dedmet flower, Garden fragrance, Isy flowers, Katha flowers, Lotus flower, Menhet flower, Papyrus flower; see further, Blossom, Bouquets, Clusters, Garland, Sunshade.
- FLY: golden, as decoration of honor, II 23, 585, 587.
- FOALS, II 435; IV 850.
- FOLDS: cattle, I 281; calves, I 408.
- FOLK TALES, I 24; II 188.
- FOLLOWERS OF THE KING, I 492; II 423; commander of, see Index V.
- FOLLOWING: of Upwawet, I 394.
- FOOD: royal, I 423E.
- Food offering, II 355, 976; IV 906.
- FOOTSTOOL: from Kedes, I 436.
- Footstool of the palace, I 320; master of, see Index V.
- FORAGE, II 437.
- FORD: of Orontes, II 784.
- FORECOURT, I 49; II 627; III 412, 458 n. b, 504, 545, 567; IV 259, 269, 274, 495, 531, 621, 970.
- FOREIGNERS, IV 994; of Ayan, Eper of, IV 466; unclean, IV 905.
- FORESKIN, IV 42, 52; people of Ekweh had none, III 588; see also Hands cut off.
- FORT: of Thutmose I, at Tombos, II 72, 121; on the eastern border, I 493; see also Fortress, Stronghold, Building.
- FORTIFICATIONS, II 433.
- FORTRESS, III 580; see also Fort, Strongholds; for Commandant of, Deputy of, see Index V.
- The Tower of Ramses, "a fortress of Abydos," (?) III 82 n. b; of city of Amor, IV 117; Beki, II 852; Bigeh, 718; Buto of Seti-Merneptah, a fortress of Seti I, III 100; Byblos, IV 573; Elephantine, I 650; II 719; Ereth, in Kheta, IV 120; Hatsho, IV 107; Khammat, II 894, 896, 897; Leb-anon, II 548; Port of South, I 396; Merneptah-Hotepirma, III 638; "Satisfier of the Gods," I 1041; Semneh, I 653 n. c, 752; "Seti-Merneptah," III 86; Taroy, II 852; Tehenu, II 892; Tharu, III 88, 100, 307, 542, 631; Southern (=Thebes), 702; "Khaftet-hir-nebes," in the necropolis of Western Thebes, II 339; Thinis, I 396, 423; Tombos, of Thutmose I, called "None-Faces-Him," II 72; "Repulse of the Troglodytes," at Uronarti, I 654, n. a, 655; Wawat, II 616; of the West, III 586.
- "Fortress of Menkheprure": name of the inclosure of the mortuary temple of Thutmose IV in Thebes, II 821; peopled with captives from Kharu, II 821; from Nubia, II 823.
- Temples called fortresses, II 883, 894.
- Reports to be sent to vizier from southern fortress, II 702; from fortresses of the South and North, II 675.
- FORTUNE, IV 946.
- FOUNDATION, IV 355, 356, 358, 406; for ceremony of: see Ceremony.
- FOUNDATION STONE, III 269.
- FOUNDING: see Endowment.
- FOWL, III 404; IV 62, 94, 98, 212, 230, 208, 329, 342, 345, 347, 363, 372, 388, 958M; for divine offerings, II 458, 562, 621, 629, 793; IV 200; evening offering, II 565; feast-offering, II 566; IV 208; oblation, II 553, 554, 960; IV 848, 856, 866, 869, 874, 875; mortuary offering, II 840; III 17; in temple lake, II 883.
- Hatching-fowl, IV 293, 298, 347.
- h-c*-fowl, for divine offering, II 159, 793; IV 242; for oblation, II 571; IV 298, 347; mated, for mortuary offering, II 571; fattened, for mortuary offering, II 571.
- Table fowl, II 621, 622.
- w d*-fowl, I 729.
- Water fowl, IV 229, 235, 283, 293, 298, 345, 347, 380, 387, 392.
- Wild fowl, III 276; IV 41, 44, 65,

- 141, 217, 265, 323, 768; from Lebanon, II 483; tomb-robbers to be slain like, I 330, 338, 378.
- FOWLERS, I 281; of Elephantine, IV 148; impost of, IV 229, 283; chief of: see Index V.
- FRAGRANCE, IV 843; of a god, II 196; of Punt, IV 333; see also Garden-fragrance.
- FRAGRANT WOOD, IV 264; shrine of, I 667; from Punt, II 265; III 527; Retenu, II 471.
- FRAUD: condemned by Amon, IV 671.
- FRONT OF THE ARMY, II 427.
- FRONTIER: southern, gods of, IV 34; Egyptian, in Zahi, IV 65; of Hare nome, IV 821; of Heracleopolis, IV 825.
- FRONTIER OFFICIAL: see Index V; day-book of, III 629; letter of, III 636.
- FRUIT, II 117, 159, 260; III 268; IV 34, 215, 217, 234, 240, 294, 300, 329, 344, 350, 363, 378, 379, 391, 394, 958H; from Zahi, II 461, 462, 472; from Retenu, II 473, 616; Naharin, II 482; of Arvad, II 461.
- Best fruit, IV 350; first-fruit, IV 906; see also Apples, Banu, Berries, Cinnamon, Cumin, Dates, Dom-palm fruit, Enbu, Figs, Grapes, Ibenu, Katha, Khenti, Khithana, Manna, Mehiwet, Minium, Myrrh, Olives, Pomegranates, Raisins, Shesa-fruit, Southern fruit, White fruit.
- Fruit for divine offering, II 562, 616, 621, 622, 798; IV 194, 200; mortuary offering, II 571; III 526; oblation, 553; IV 208.
- FUEL, I 556, 557.
- FUGITIVES: political, extradition of, III 382, 384; treatment of, III 389, 390.
- FUNERAL: splendor of, I 382; expenses for, I 382; IV 1016, 1024.
- Funeral: of Mekhu, I 370; Zau Shemai, I 382; grandfather of Kheti II, I 413.
- Funeral functionaries: embalmers I 370; chief ritual priest, I 370; ymy-w<sup>c</sup> b, I 370; — shd, I 370; mourners, I 370.
- FURNITURE: temple, II 32; mortuary, II 861 n. c; IV 521, 538.
- from Kush, II 1035; III 475; from Libya, III 584.
- FUTURE PUNISHMENT: red flame of fire in Heliopolis, III 180, 192.

G

- GALA COSTUME, II 974.
- GALLEYS, II 304; IV 9, 65, 66, 282, 407, 408.
- Galley archers, IV 407 n. a.
- Temple galley, IV 211, 226, 270, 282, 328, 337, 339, 354, 364, 383, 384; archers of, IV 211; captains of, IV 211; crews of, IV 328.
- GAME OF DRAUGHTS, IV 822.
- GANG-PLANKS, II 263.
- GARDEN: palace, IV 215; temple garden, II 36, 295, 161, 352, 978; III 527, 567; IV 141, 189, 194, 217, 220, 226, 262, 274, 280, 282, 288, 313, 337, 339, 364, 370, 383, 384, 394, 676, 682, 687.
- Garden of Min, II 566.
- Gardens of Amon: overseer of, II 352; a Punt made in it, II 295.
- Gardens: of Arvad, II 461; Akhetaton, II 978.
- Sycamore gardens, IV 380.
- Shedeh gardens of Re, IV 262.
- Vine gardens, IV 380.
- Wine gardens of Amon, IV 213.
- “GARDEN FRAGRANCE” (a flower), IV 244, 301, 350.
- GARDENERS: of Amon, IV 213; of Re, IV 263; of Horus, IV 272; of Osiris, IV 682.
- GARLAND: of flowers, IV 244, 295, 301, 350, 491, 871, 924, 926; of gold, IV 373; of grapes, IV 379.
- GARMENTS, II 722; III 71; IV 228, 272, 283, 284, 285, 341, 344, 374, 375, 387, 390; of statues, II 571; IV 232; of youth, II 7.
- Garments made of linen, III 207, 208; of colored linen, IV 230, 284, 342, 372, 388; mek-linen, IV 284, 342, 388; royal linen, IV 284, 342, 372, 374, 375, 388, 582, 876; southern linen, IV 284, 342, 372, 375, 388; fine southern linen, IV 284, 342, 372, 374, 375, 388.
- dw*-garments, IV 232, 239, 241, 374, 375; of thick stuff, IV 394.
- hm-hrd*-garments: of royal linen, IV 852.
- hnty*-garments: of royal linen, IV 374.
- Hamen garments, IV 232, 237.
- k<sup>o</sup> d<sup>o</sup> -m-r<sup>o</sup>*-garment of southern linen, IV 375.

- Garments*—
 —rdw-garments, IV 230.
 —Sedeb garment, IV 871.
 —ydg<sup>2</sup>-garments: of royal linen, IV 232, 374; fine southern linen, IV 232, 374; southern linen, IV 375.
 —yjd-garments, of southern linen, IV 375; colored linen, IV 239, 375; see also Clothing, Kilts, Mantles, Raiment, Robe, Tunic, Wrapping.
- GARRISONS: of residence city (Thebes), II 694; of court, II 694; stationed by the vizier, II 694.
 —Egyptian garrison in the city of Ikathi, II 787.
- GATES: temple, I 148, 421, 509; II 309, 376; IV 701, 756 n. a, 958L; names of, I 148; II 376; made of copper, II 376; of gritstone, III 245.
 —Dungeon of the gate, III 180.
 —Gate of harem, IV 441.
 —Gate of life, IV 853.
 —Gates for the canal at Siut, I 407.
 —Gates of the netherworld, II 378.
- GAZELLE, IV 160, 190, 242, 392, 553; IV 768; male, IV 242, 392; from negro lands, IV 724.
 —the remarkable gazelle at Hammamat, I 436.
- GEESE, IV 229, 235, 283, 293, 298, 341, 345, 347, 380, 387, 392, 944, 949, 954, 992.
 —for divine offering, II 616, 621, 622, 798; IV 190.
 —for mortuary offering, I 512; II 11, 356, 365; III 276, 526.
 —Fat geese, IV 217, 235, 260, 298, 323, 380, 392, 768.
 —mnwt-geese, I 729.
 —r<sup>2</sup>-geese, IV 242.
 —Tw-r-pw-geese, IV 235, 242, 345.
- GENDARMES, II 978; officers of, II 927; captain of, see Index V; chief of, II 978; III 198; of Mazoi, IV 466; foreign, III 542.
- GENI: of North and South, II 206; of the cardinal points, II 228, 231.
- GEOGRAPHICAL LIST, I 26.
- GEOGRAPHY: OF SOUTHERN NOMES, I 529 n. e.
- GIFT LANDS, administered by the vizier, II 689.
- GIFTS, III 632; IV 412; from foreign princes, II 820, 1028; III 273, 420, 436, 446; IV 207; of the king, II 986; III 66; IV 230; New Year's, I 545, 563; II 801.
 —Gifts to Amon, IV 230-35; Ptah, IV 342-45; Re, IV 284-88; the gods, IV 372-80, 388-96.
- GILDING, III 179.
- GIRAFFE, III 475.
- GIRDLE, I 294, 597; see also Index V, Girdle.
- GIRLS, IV 111.
- "GO IN AND GO OUT" (in the Netherworld), II 353, 378; IV 187, 382.
- GOAT, I 312; IV 298, 347, 392; for mortuary offering, I 556; from Kheta, III 428; from Libya, III 584; from Meshwesh, see Index VI.
 —Mountain goat, II 139, 479; III 11.
 —Small goats from Zahi, II 490.
 —White goats from Zahi, II 490.
 —Wild goats, I 496; IV 91; from Nahrin, II 501; on the highlands of Memphis, II 813.
- GOLD, II 280, 281, 318, 342, 383, 389, 390, 434, 558, 596, 666, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 743, 744, 754, 771, 773, 838, 881, 887, 902, 906, 987, 992, 993; III 63, 71, 137, 151, 176, 192, 193, 204, 210, 229, 268, 286, 309, 401, 420, 428, 434, 453, 512, 515, 527, 601; IV 27, 31, 32, 33, 126, 141, 150, 190, 230, 256, 259, 272, 284, 285, 335, 342, 349, 354, 360, 372, 373, 383, 386, 388, 389, 494, 521, 551, 577, 580, 582, 635, 708, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 843, 847, 852, 859, 874, 875, 876, 878, 880, 881, 883, 889, 909, 910, 911, 915, 929, 958E, G, 970; as adornments of other objects, II 32, 92, 104, 155, 165, 185, 300, 301, 373, 375, 390, 413, 436, 582, 755, 775, 790, 838, 888, 889, 890; III 412; IV 191, 199, 203, 254, 278, 287, 311, 312, 315, 343, 377, 538, 970; commercial, in rings, II 279, 436, 490, 501, 518, 1035; III 475; in scraps, IV 373, 386, 389; as decoration or reward of honor, I 372; II 6, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 22, 23, 24, 39, 64, 81, 584, 585, 587, 588, 986, 1009, 1036; III 6, 73; color of, IV 202, 408; numbering of, I 81; palace of Amenemhet I, decked with, I 483; for oblation, II 960 (?).
 —Articles made of gold: altars, IV 735; dw-altars, IV 735; Thoth apes, IV 256, 735; arm rings, II 585, 587;

- censers, IV 735, 736; fourfold censer, IV 735; chapel, IV 732; chariots wrought with, II 430, 431, 490; bracelets II 64, 471; IV 876; chaplets, II 32; tables, II 32; 175, 390; necklaces, II 32, 585, 587; collars, II 944, 986, 989; III 7, 8, 9, 69, 73, IV 201, 204, 493; columns, IV 315; drinking-vessel for the ka, II 32; flat dish, II 32, 447; figure, IV 26; finger rings, IV 231; flies, III 28, 585, 587; garland, IV 373; great seat, IV 7, 251; horn, II 447; lion, II 585, 587; offering-tables, II, 32; IV 610, 911, 912, 958, 1020; ornaments, IV, 231, 285, 343, 373, 386, 389, 538, 1011; pitcher, IV 735; portals, II 890; shrine, I 667; IV 209, 331; axe, II 23; armlet, II 64; sphinxes, IV 732; statue, IV 250, 268, 302, 316, 326, 349, 395; table vessels, IV 190, 269, 354, 357; temple doors, IV 7, 311; throne, III 321; vase, I 500; II 164, 754; IV 231, 269, 327, 538; vessels, II 32, 64, 162, 436, 615, 989, 1028, 1031, 1035; IV 285, 343, 497, 566, 730; whips, II 802.
- Gold from Akita, III 286; Coptos, IV 30, 228; Edfu, IV 30; Emu, IV 34; God's Land, III 116, 274; the Malachite country, IV 409; Karoy, II 889; III 285; Kush, II 502, 514, 522, 526 (?), 774; IV 30; Libya, III 584; Ombos, IV 30; of the south countries, II 652; of the highlands, II 373.
- Articles of gold from: Retenu, II 447, 471, 491, 518, 820; Zahi, II 459, 490; Naharin, II 482, 501; III 434; Kadesh, II 585; Punt, II 486; Wawat, II [515?], 527 (?), 539; Tikhsi, II 587.
- Gold, doubly refined, II 155 bis.
- Gold of two times, IV 231, 285, 343, 386, 389.
- Gold of three times, IV 408.
- Fine gold, IV 228, 231, 245, 327, 331, 343, 385, 389, 491, 498, 610, 389; amulet of, IV 253; barque shrine of, IV 982; in lay figures of, IV 488 n. c., 489; image of, IV 737; from Emu, IV 31; Khenthenofer, IV 770.
- Asiatic gold, IV 26.
- Green gold, from Emu; from Punt, II 265.
- Ketem gold, IV 199, 201, 204, 205, 231, 311; amulet of, IV 319; shrine doors of, IV 251.
- Gold of the mountains, IV 29, 30, 32, 228.
- Fine mountain gold, IV 285, 386; color of, IV 318.
- Native gold, IV 28, 30.
- White gold, IV 231, 285, 343, 389; beads of, IV 231.
- Gold, washed from rivers, IV 29, 30.
- Gold countries of Amon, III 647.
- Gold dust from Punt, III 37.
- Gold mines, in Akita, III 286.
- Gold mining, III 195.
- Gold ore, brought from Nubia, I 520; from Coptos, I 521; II 774; from negro lands, IV 33.
- Gold washing, III 192, 193, 285.
- GOLD WORKERS, I 447.
- GOLD-HOUSE, I 609; I 52, 185; III 71, 263, 484; IV 204, 214, 316, 354, 363; overseer of, see Index V; in charge of the vizier and chief treasurer II 706.
- Gold-house of the temple, IV 315.
- Double gold-house, I 533, 664; II 43, 52.
- GOLDSMITHS, II 754.
- GRAFFITI, III 32A-C, 642-51; IV 660, 777.
- GRAIN, II 225, 319, 437, 461, 462, 465, 621, 622, 723, 727, 731, 733, 734, 738, 739, 740, 741, 743, 744, 745, 748; III 271; IV 206, 267, 362, 403, 550, 685, 859; ears of, IV 244; ground, II 462; pounding of, II 749; in the kernel, II 462, 473; transported by ship to Kheta, III 580.
- Grain for oblation, II 571, 749; for taxes, III 61; as mortuary offering, I 252; stored up for times of need, by Kheti II, of Siut, I 408; cultivated by Amenemhet, I 483.
- Grain: from Naharin, II 480; Tunip, II 530.
- for Registrar of, Overseer of, see Index V.
- Clean grain, II 434, 462, 473, 561, 806; III 275; IV 236, 257, 283, 289, 297, 313, 314, 346, 347, 371, 376, 381, 387, 396; from Zahi, II 510, 519.
- Southern grain, II 171, 737 bis, 741, 742, 743, 987.
- dk*-grain, II 571.
- sw-t*-grain, II 737, 742.
- š c*-grain, II 737.
- tb*-grain, II 737.
- γ c h*-grain, II 733, 733, 748, 749.
- See also Barley, Corn, Spelt, Wheat.

- GRAIN-HEAP, III 404, 526; IV 9, 325, 354.
- GRANARY, II 149; III 66, 271; IV 330, 403, 851, 854, 855, 859, 868; inspection of, IV 146 n. c.
- Granary of Amon: see Index II, Karnak; Overseer of, see Index V.
- Granary of the king's estate, II 107.
- for Overseers of, Superintendent of, see Index V.
- Stronghold of granary, I 379; Commander of: see Index V.
- Temple granaries, II 43, 63, 343, 350, 806, 932; III 515, 527; IV 207, 217, 227, 250, 314, 325, 354, 355, 362, 497, 878, 906, 958G, H.
- The double granary, I 533; II 768.
- GRANITE, II 601; IV 980, 1020; obelisk of, II 89, 304, 315, 318, 336, 624; III 507, IV 980, 982; shrines of, II 376, 775; IV 254, 320; portals of, II 794 n. b; III 525; chapel of, III 506; altar of, IV 900; door-lintels of, IV 311; sarcophagus of, IV 1011; stela of, II 605, 609 n. e; III 487, 538 n. f, 541, 596 n. d; IV 745 n. a, 919 n. a; statues of, I 601; II 876, 883; temple foundation of, IV 311; block of, II 846 n. a; IV 543; mountain of, IV 97; of the South, II 315.
- Black granite, II 906; temple of, IV 189, 214; temple doors of, IV 7; statue of, III 22 n. f; IV 967 n. a, 981 n. a; doorway of, III 528; stela of, II 655 n. b, 878 n. a; IV 650 n. a.
- Constantinople obelisk made of, II 630.
- Granite quarry at Assuan, II 42; I 304, 876, 980; at Elephantine, I 322; IV 311, 319, 679, 982; at the First Cataract, I 324.
- Gray granite, IV 919 n. a; statue of, IV 981 n. b.
- Pink granite, II 905; jar of, II 32; doorway of, III 528; colonnade of, IV 970; lintels of, IV 970; stelæ of, I 651 n. c, 653 n. c; II 781 n. b, 810 n. a; IV 669 n. d, 795 n. a, 746 n. a, 635 n. a.
- GRAPES, IV 234, 240, 378, 379, 391.
- GRASSHOPPERS, III 309, 455, 592; IV 46, 91, 893.
- GRAVER'S TOOL, IV 189, 202, 255, 317, 318, 321.
- GREAT HOUSE (pr-wr), I 609; II 240 bis, 288; of silver, III 213.
- of a *h*barge, IV 331, 354, 904; made of electrum, IV 904; of gold, IV 331.
- of a barque, IV 743.
- GREEK HISTORIANS, I 23, 25.
- GREGORIAN CALENDAR, I 40.
- GRITSTONE, IV 246; the two Memnon colossi of, II 883 n. e; 906 n. a; temple model of, III 240 n. b; gate of, III 245; images of, IV 252; stela of, IV 724A n. b; statues of, II 883, 917; sanctuary foundation of, IV 251; temple of, III 246; IV 189, 214; mountain of, III 17; IV 79, 82, 357, 406; overseer of works in, III 17.
- GROTTO: of Ellesiyeh, II 652; Silsileh, III 648 n. d.
- Grotto temples, at Abu Simbel, III 495.
- GROVES, IV 67, 470, 880; of Kadesh, II 465; Arvad, II 465; Tunip, II 530.
- Date grove, IV 215.
- Temple groves, IV 220, 226, 262, 271, 272, 280, 282, 288, 339, 363, 384.
- GRYPHON, IV 40, 43, 46, 90.
- GUIDE, II 916.
- "GUILTY": judgment of, declared by court, IV 426, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450.
- GUM, IV 378; of god's land, IV 29; of Punt, IV 29, 31; of myrrh from Punt, II 288; III 116; from Genebtewew, II 474; ointments of gum, IV 476, 477; sweet oil of gum, IV 497, 498.

H

HAKRO: see Feasts.

HALL: Audience see Audience hall.

—Festival hall, II 288; IV 10.

—Judgment hall, I 605; II 681, 705, 706, 707, 903; for Door-keeper of, Master of: see Index V.

—Hall of the king, II 778; IV 931, 1017; of king's house, II 700; overseers of hundreds in, II 700; of royal council, IV 1000 n. a.

—Temple hall, II 165, 304; IV 489, 602, 610, 764, 889, 898, 910, 929, 971.

—Shrine hall, II 775.

—Hall of vizier, II 666, 670.

—Hall of writings of Egypt, IV 255, 321, 354, 363, 679.

—Broad hall: of the palace, III 590; IV 17; of temple, II 1018; III 515, 522; IV 7, 625; of temple militia, IV 972.

- Hall*—
 —gb ḥ-hall, III 154.
 —dw ḥ-hall, III 154.
 —Beer-hall, IV 451 n. c. 880.
 —Jubilee hall, IV 748.
 —Hall of petitions, in Abydos, IV 678.
 HAMMERED WORK, IV 198, 199, 201, 231, 317, 343, 732.
 HAND CUT OFF: as trophy, III 587; IV 42, 52, 54; act executed on captives, who were circumcised, III 588; this was done to the following peoples, who accordingly practiced circumcision: Hyksos at Avaris II 10; Ek-wesh, III 588, 601; Ibhet, II 854; Imukehek, II 42; Khenthenofer, II 14; Kush, II 59; Megiddo, II 431, 435; Meshwesh, IV 52, 54 (?), 111; Naharin, II 85, 532; Senzar, II 584; Seped, IV 52, 54 (?); Sharuhem, II 13; Shekelesh, III 588; Sherden (?), III 588; Temeh, IV 52, 54 (?); Teresh, III 588; Tikhsi, II 797.
 —Hands of silver from Tinay, II 537; —Hands and feet of witnesses, tortured, IV, 545, 548, 549, 550, 552.
 —Divine hand: see Index V.
 HANDICRAFT, II 352; overseer of, II 371; Ptah, creator of, III 288.
 HANDLE: of wood, IV 288.
 HANDWRITING: of Pharaoh, IV 110.
 HANGING: head downward, II 80, 797.
 HANK (of yarn), IV 375, 390.
 HAPPINESS: Ptah, bestower of, III 401.
 HARBOR MOUTH, IV 65, 66, 75, 77; dues for, III 54; for Deputy of, Inspectors of, Overseer of, Scribe of, Table-scribe of, Servants of, see Index V.
 HARBORS, IV 944; of Dor, IV 566, 567; Byblos, IV 569; the Hare nome, IV 833; Memphis, IV 858, 863; Heliopolis, IV 873.
 —Garrisons of the coast harbors of Zahi, II 468, 472, 483, 492, 510, 519, 535; for Chief of, Master of, see Index V.
 HAREM, ROYAL: of Nussorre, I 256; of Sesostris I, 598; of Pepi, I 307; royal, of the queen, I 440; entered by Uni, I 310; private prosecution in Pepi I's, I 310; secret of, I 310.
 —Harem conspiracy: under Ramses III, IV 416-56; court of, IV 423-24; first prosecution of, IV 425-43; second prosecution of, IV 444-45; third prosecution of, IV 446-50; fourth prosecution of, IV 451-53; prosecution of magic practicers, IV 454-56.
 —Harem gate: people of, IV 441.
 —Harem ladies of Naharin, II 867; chief of, II 867.
 —The great harem, I 595; Scribe of: see Index V.
 HARP, IV 880; of ebony, II 32; for temple of Amon at Karnak, II 165.
 HARVEST: II 699; II 404, 616; IV 497; first of harvest given to the temple, I 546-47; II 274.
 —Harvest: of Wawat, II 475, 487, 503, 539; Naharin, II 480; Kush, II 494, 502; Lebanon, II 518; Megiddo, II 437; Kadesh, II 465; Arvad, II 465; Retenu, II 473; Zahi, II 510, 519, 535 (?); Ibhet, II 852; Tunip, II 530; South and North, II 871; in province of Minieh, I p. 48.
 HATCHET, II 254.
 HAWK, IV 40.
 —Divine, III 144, 285; IV 47, 54, 62, 91; of fine gold, as ornament of barge-bow, IV 331.
 HAWK: sacred animal of the Cerastes, mountain nome, I 281 n. c.
 —Hawk, poetical designation of the king, I 492; II 141, 145; III 598; IV 94, 106.
 —Horus Hawk, III 195.
 HEADDRESS, II 22; of Peleset, IV 73.
 HEADS, IV 223, 224, 225, 28c, 338, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369; of ways, II 916; river mouths, II 916; of statue, II 436 bis; of ram, made of lapis lazuli, from Shinar, II 484; of goat from Retenu, II 509; of lion, from Retenu, II 509; of ox, from Retenu, II 518, 536 (?).
 HEAP, I 785; II 265, 274, 275, 276, 288, 387, 566, 617, 618, 761.
 HEARERS OF THE CALL, II 985.
 "HEARING" OF JUDICIAL CASES, by Uni, I 307, 310; Amenemhet, I 445; Mentuhotep, I 531; Senmut, II 352; Rekhmire, II 670.
 —Order of in the vizier's hall, II 675; of criminal cases, II 683; depositions of, II 704;
 HEARSAY, II 287.
 HEAVEN, II 118, 139, 141 bis, 144 bis, 195, 220, 225, 285, 288, 305, 570, 894 et passim; queen, mistress of, II 266;

- ways of, II 257; circuit of, II 269; western corner of, I 335; doors of, II 141.
- HEIFERS, IV 229, 242, 283, 293, 345, 387, 392; from Kharu, IV 229; from Zahi, II 490.
- HELMET, ROYAL, III 30, 69; of bronze, I 501; from Naharin, II 501.
- HEMISPEOS, III 504.
- HERACLEOPOLITAN RULE, I 53, 88; length of, I 53, 63.
- HERBS, IV 295, 301, 350, 394, 944.—h-herb, for divine offering, II 159; for oblation, II 571.
- HERD, III 276, 616; IV 229, 283, 341, 387; Overseers of: see Index V; in charge of stewards, IV 294; in charge of vizier, IV 224.—Herds of large cattle, III 428; IV 212, small cattle, IV 89, 141, 212; fowl; IV 212; goats, III 428; horses, III 359, 428; Nubian, II 645.—Loan herds, I 522; III 57; of mountain goats, II 479; officials of, III 66.—Temple herd, III 526; IV 141, 141 n. a, 150, 212, 217, 224, 251, 275, 283, 313, 332, 338, 340, 354, 359, 360, 362, 369, 405, 466, 929.
- HERDMEN, III 616; IV 275, 481.
- HERESY, ATON, I 66 n. e; II 932-1018.
- HEZET PLANT, IV 235.
- HIDDEN NAME, IV 753, 906, 925, 926.
- HIDES: penalty for stealing of, III 56; presented to the court, I 369; given as taxes, II 718; III 56, 57.—Hide of Panther, II 265, 272, 321; III 475; of cows, IV 379, 395; of ox, VI 582.
- HIERODULES: captive women assigned as, IV 128.
- HIEROGLYPHS: scribes of, 755.
- HIGHLAND OF THE BLESSED (=necropolis), II 378; porters of, II 378; see also Cemetery, Necropolis, and Index VI, Highlands.
- HIGHWAYS, II 285, 294, 299; of Punt, III 155.
- HINDERING: by magic rolls, IV 454, 455.
- HIPPOTAMUS: shooting of, I 110.
- HOLY PLACE, III 271.—Holy of holies, II 153, 155, 795; III 244, 246; IV 201 n. c, 865; place of stela in, I 16; "station of the king" in, II 140 n. b; of Amon at Karnak, II 153; name of, II 153; of "House of Menmare," III 215, 219.
- HOMAGE, II 238.
- HONEY, I 496; II 117, 727, 731, 733, 734, 736, 738, 739, 741, 743, 745, 748; III 208; IV 228, 239, 272, 283, 286, 294, 300, 329, 344, 350, 360, 376, 387, 390, 394, 491, 683, 770, 859, 992; from Retenu, II 518; Zahi, II 462 472; for mortuary offering, I 366 for oblation, II 571; IV 768.
- HONEY COLLECTORS OF THE TEMPLES, VI, 149, 266, 313, 324.
- HOOF, III 285; Overseer of, see Index V.
- HORDE, III 473; of rebels, II 656.
- HORIZON (y > hw.t, more properly Light-sphere), II 141, 887, 991, 999, 1001; III 3, 270; IV 622, 906; Karnak is the — on earth, II 316; journeying to, by Intef I, I 423F; departing into, I 491; IV 400.—Horizon of Aton (=Akhetaton), II 949.—Horizon of eternity, III 240; IV 187; sem-priest of, III 623; the eternal (=pyramid), IV 513.—Horizon of Harakhte, IV 251.—Horizon of heaven, II 604, 755, 883, 903, 905, 984, 999; III 16, 79, 116, 230, 246, 248, 281, 412, 521; IV 8, 9, 10, 315, 356, 609, 632, 970.—Horizon in the West, of Amon, II 375; III 261; doors of, II 375.—Horizon of Re, III 232, IV 198, 314, 610.—Horizon: palace of, IV 7.—Eastern horizon, II 972, 984.—Western horizon, II 972.—Mysterious horizon, IV 195, 251.
- HORN, III 285; IV 46; Overseer of, see Index V; lord of the two horns, a royal title, IV 921.—of gold, II 447.
- HORSE, EGYPTIAN, II 421, 424, 470, 813, 864; III 84, 88, 97, 100, 132, 134, 146, 441, 450, 584; IV 40, 46, 49, 50, 51, 65, 72, 73, 405, 724A, 822, 832, 847, 850, 852, 860, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 880; Master of, see Index V.—Horses, from Bekhten, III 446; Kheta, III 343, 420, 428; Khatithana, II 729; Libya, III 589; Meshwesh, IV 86, 90, III; Retenu, II 125, 413, 447, 467, 491, 509, 518, 533 (?), 597, 790, 1028;

- Kadesh, II 420, 467; Megiddo, II 431; Zahi, II 462, 490; Ullaza, II 470; Naharin, II 81, 85, 479, 482, 498, 501, 532; Nuges, II 508; Isy, II 511; Lebanon, II 783; Orontes, II 784, 785.
—See also Foals, Mares, Stallions, Steed.
- HOSTAGES: foreign king's or chief's children as, II 122.
- HOUND, I 483, 464; IV 514; names of, III 467; IV 514.
- HOUSE, II 978; IV 357, 363, 386.
—House of the council of thirty, I 532.
—h-house: things from it for embalming Mekhu's body, I 370.
—House of Enekh, I 707, 709.
—House of his father (=tomb of ancestor): of Kheti I, I 402.
—House of a god, IV 354; see also Index II.
—House of the sphinx, I 127, 180.
—the good house (=the embalmers' house), IV 1029.
—House of incense, IV 238.
—the pure house (=Serapeum), IV 977, 986, 1010.
—Southern house (=Luxor), IV 909.
—Timber house, IV 380, 394.
—House of rolls, III 264; Keeper of, see Index V.
—House of sacred writing (in Abydos), I 533; IV 445, 460, 1022; Scribe of: see Index V.
—The double house, attached to, I 284, 285, 298, 299 bis.
—See also Embalming, Fattening-houses, Great house, Gold-house, Silver-house, White House.
—Double w<sup>c</sup>b<sup>l</sup>-house: secret things of, for Mekhu's funeral, I 370.
- HOUSEHOLD: of Khnumhotep, II, I 623.
- HUE: of a god, III 24.
- HUNDRED: part of the army, Overseer of, see Index V.
- HUNT: of elephant, in Niy, II 588; of lion, II 865; of wild cattle, at Sheta, II 864; master of, IV 539.
- HUNTERS OF THE HIGHLANDS (=Troglydytes), I 429.
- HUS STONE, IV 191.
- HUSBAND OF EGYPT: king the, III 490.
- HUSBANDMEN, III 275.
- HUT, IV 524.
- HYMNS: of Amon, II 891-92; IV 744; of Aton, II 979, 984, 991, 992, 999-1001, 1007, 1010-11; of Re, III 15, 18, 19; in praise to Sesostris III, I 17; to Thutmose III, I 17.
—Hymns of victory, by Thutmose III, II 655-62; IV 137; Merneptah, III 602-17.
—Sun-hymn of Sute and Hor, II 299 n. e.
- HYPOSTYLE, II 138, 140, 603, 805; III 222, 367 n. a, 513; IV 472, 614, 742 n. a; columns of, II 805; III 513.

I

- IBENU FRUIT, IV 378, 395.
- IBEX, III 475; for oblation, I 432; II 553.
- IBIS, SACRED, I 281 n. c.
- IDENINU PLANT, IV 235, 379, 392.
- IMAGE, II 300, 812, 894, 897; III 31, 117, 179, 218, 233, 288, 486, 502, 517, 525, 622; IV 4, 9, 27, 37, 47, 62, 198, 311, 330, 363, 817, 836, 872, 909, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916; of Mat, IV 458, 463; offered to gods, IV 458, 463; images made of gold, IV 204; gritstone, IV 252; costly stone, IV 377; electrum, IV 958K.
—Portable images, IV 204, 217, 743, 958K; processional, IV 225, 315, 384, 737; impost paid for, IV 225; see also Statue.
- IMPOST, III 179, 193, 210, 274, 276, 277, 481; IV 33, 141, 220, 266, 324, 686, 846, 933; imposts, II 522, 597, 601, 908, 1015.
—Impost (Egyptian), paid by officials, IV 225; standard bearers, IV 25; inspectors, IV 225; people, IV 225, 228, 283, 340, 341, 386, 387, 497; peasants, IV 229, 283, 341, 387; fishermen, IV 229, 283, 387; fowlers, IV 229, 283, 387; of leaders, mayors, etc., II 768; III 63.
—Impost remitted, I 408; III 57, 63; numbered by the herald, II 767, 768.
—Impost consisting of figs, IV 240; flowers, IV 244; malachite, I 731; wood, III 52; vegetables, III 59.
—Impost from foreign lands: Kush, II 271, 494, 502, 514, 522, 526, 538; southern counties, II 281; the south countries, II 652; III 484; Wawat, II 475, 487, 495, 503, 515, 523, 527, 539; Nubia, IV 190; Meshwesh, IV 92; Temeh, IV 92; Megiddo, II 441; Retenu, II 473, 557; Lebanon, II

- 483, 510; Haunebu, II 953; Kharu, IV 229, 387; Sinai mines, I 731; Syria, IV 229, 387; Retenu, IV 28; Zahi, IV 190, 328.
- IMPRISONMENT: of women for theft, IV 556.
- INACCESSIBLE: channels II 88; valleys, II 337; countries, III 118; IV 719, 749.
- INCENSE, II 139, 288; III 268, 270, 613; IV 228, 239, 266, 272, 283, 286, 294, 299, 304, 309, 313, 324, 329, 333, 348, 360, 363, 373, 378, 387, 390, 394, 491, 611, 612, 678, 684, 736, 770, 859, 865, 870, 871.
- for divine offerings, II 562, 572, 616, 621, 798; III 40; IV 200; evening offering, II 565; feast offering, II 566, 569; mortuary offering, II 365, 571; oblation, I 453, 468; II 553, 554, 571, 960; IV 208, 468, 768.
- Inflammable incense, IV 239; incense from Punt, IV 130; Negro tribes, I 136, 369; Retenu, II 447, 473, 491, 509, 518, 525, 416; Zahi, II 462, 472, 510, 519; Naharin, II 482.
- as tribute, II 750, 771.
- Ihmut incense from Punt, II 265.
- Sontar incense from Punt, II 265.
- White incense, IV 233, 239, 299, 344, 376.
- Green incense for divine offering, II 572.
- House of incense, IV 238.
- INCLOSURE, II 864; temple, II 881; III 412; made of brick, II 614; see also Wall.
- INCOME, IV 948; of Amon, IV 227-29; Ptah, IV 340-41; Re, IV 283; of the gods, IV 371, 386-87; of official, II 108, 117; taxes of, II 706, 716; rank of receiver of, II 675.
- INDUCTION: ceremony of, IV 988H; see also Investiture.
- INFANTRY, EGYPTIAN, III 307, 311, 325, 327, 342, 365, 380, 428, 578, 583, 587; IV 71, 72, 89, 354, 402, 410, 822, 859, 1004; of the South and North, II 429; of Tunip, II 459; Egyptian, in city of Ikathi, II 787; of Libya, III 683; of Kheta, III 320, 321, 378; of Sherden, IV 72, 118; for Captains of, Commandants of, Commander of, Leader of, Lord of, Officers of, see Index V.
- INHABITANTS OF EGYPT, distinguished from its people, I 445; see People.
- INHERITANCE: of office, II 925, 926; of craft, coppersmiths, IV 532; of priesthood, see under Succession.
- Inheritance from the mother: of monarchy, I 398, 405, 414.
- INK, III 32A n. a.
- Ink palette, I 5; III 50.
- INLAY, IV 201, 269; of stone, IV 199, 311; costly stone, IV 204, 209, 231, 331, 334, 538, 904, 910, 958E, J, K, 982; gold, IV 231, 311; malachite, IV 253; lapis lazuli, IV 253, 319; see also Figures.
- INSCRIPTION, TEMPLE, I 2, 13; II 472; III 517, 519; Rock, see Rock inscriptions; Building, I 4, 14, 22; Tomb, I 10; Hammamat, Ahmose II, I 75 n. h; Politarch, I 28; Greek and Latin, I 27, 28; Eclipse of Takelot II, I 35; magical, IV 455.
- Coffin inscriptions, by Paynozem II, IV 665-67.
- Colossus inscription, at Tanis, by Ramses II, III 417.
- Column inscription, at Cairo, by Merneptah, III 593-95; in temple of Amon at Karnak, by Thutmose III, II 601; Amenhotep II, II 804-6.
- Dedication inscriptions, III 211-20, 227-42, 248-49, 409, 508, 513, 514, 516, 521, 522, 528; IV 472, 602, 603, 997-99.
- Doorway inscription: at Cairo, by Thutmose III, II 643; Coptos, by Nubkheprure-Intef, I 773-80; Sak-kara, by Harmhab, III 16-17; Soleb, by Amenhotep III, II 808.
- Grotto inscription at Ellesiyeh, by Nehi, II 652.
- Mummy inscriptions, by Paynozem I, IV 637-42, 644-47; Menkheperre, IV 661; Paynozem II, IV 663; Pesibkhenno, IV 688; Yewepet, IV 700.
- Obelisk inscriptions: of Thutmose III, Constantinople obelisk, II 479 n. a.; II 630-31; London obelisk, by Thutmose III, 633; New York obelisk, by Thutmose III, II 635-36; Lateran obelisk, by Thutmose III, II 627-28; Thutmose IV, II 831-38; at Elephantine, by Thutmose I, II 89; at Heliopolis, by Ramses II, III 545-48; at Karnak, by Thutmose I, II 86-88; Hatshepsut, II 306, 308-310, 314-19, 321; at Tanis, by Ramses II, III 392, 448 n. b.
- Pylon inscriptions, in temple of Amon

- at Karnak, by Thutmose I, II 245; Thutmose III, II 521-23, 541-73, 594-98, 645-47; Amenhotep III, II 899-903; Roy, III 621-26; high priest of Amon, IV 671-73; Taharka, IV 880; Temple of Khonsu, Karnak by Paynozem I, IV 632-33; Medinet Habu, by Ramses III, IV 61-68; 85-92, 94-99, 101-6, 130, 132-35, 137-38; Ramesseum, by Ramses II, III 329-30, 356.
- Quay inscriptions, at Elephantine, IV 147-50; by Ramses III, IV 146-50; Karnak, IV 695-98, 794, 886-88.
- Rock inscription, at Assuan, by Hapu, I 614-16; Sesostris III, I 653; family of Neferhotep, I 753 n. b; Thutmose I, II 77; Thutmose II, II 119-22; Senmut, II 360-62; Amenhotep III, II 844 n. b; officer of Amenhotep III, II 875; Bek, II 973-76; Seti I, III 202; Ramses II, III 479; the First Cataract, by Mernere, I 317, 318; Amenhotep III, III 844; Bigeh, by Ramses II, III 553; Gebelen, by Hui, III 210; Hammamat, by Khui, I 674-75; Amenemhet, I 707; Ramses IV, IV 457-60, 461-68; Hatnub, by Nenekhseskhnum, I 304-5; Island of Konosso, by Mentuhotep I, I 423H n. d; Thutmose IV, II 825-29; Amenhotep III, II 845; Kummeh, by Amenemhet IV, I 749; Korusko, of Amenemhet I, I 472-73; Ma<sup>c</sup> sara, by Neferperet, II 27-28; Redesiyeh, by Seti I, III 197-98; Sarbût el-Khadem, by Amenemhet II, I 606; Sebek-hir-hab, I 725-27; Ptahwer, I 728; Amenemhet, I 730-32; Amenemhet IV, I 750; Thutmose III, II 450 n. a; Island of Sehel, by Sesostris III, I 644, 647; importance of, I 28; family of Neferhotep, I 753 n. b; Thure, II 75, 76; Thutmose III, II 649, n. d; Ramose, II 937 n. a; Ramses II, III 553 n. b, 557; Seti (II), III 646; Semneh, by Sekhemre-Khutowe, I 751-52; Silsileh: by official of Ikhnaton, II 934-35; Seti I, III 206-8; Ramses II, III 552, 554, 555, 556, 559, 560; Roy, III 627-28; Siptah, III 648; Setemhab, IV 19, 20; Haremsaf, IV 701-8; Tell el-Amarna, by Ikhnaton, II 949-72; Tombos: by Thutmose I, II 67 n. d; Turra: by Amenemhet III, I 740; Amenhotep III, II 875; at Wadi Maghara: by Snefru, I 168-69; Khufu, I 176; Sahure, I 236; Nuserre, I 250; Menkuhor, I 263; Dedkere-Isesi, I 264-67; Pepi I, I 302-3; Pepi II, I 340-43; Khenemso, I 713-14; Harnakht, I 717-18; Sebekdidi, I 710-20; Ameni, I 721-23; Amenemhet IV, I 750; Hatshepsut and Thutmose III, II 337.
- Shrine inscription, II 126-27, 775.
- Statue inscription: of Enebni, II 213; Harmhab, III 23-32; Sheshonk, IV 740; Hor, IV 967-73; Uzahor, IV 980; Neferibre-Nofer, IV 981-83; Nesuhor, IV 989-95; Ahmose, IV 1014; Pefnefdineit, IV 1017-25; at El Kab: by Ahmose Pen-Nekhbet, II 20-24, 41-42, 84-85, 344; Karnak: by Senmut, II 350-58; Puemre, II 380-81; Amenhotep, son of Hapi, II 912, 914-20; Luxor: by Nebwawi, II 179-83; Ibc, IV 958A-M; Thebes: by Senmut, II 364-68; Hapuseneb, II 389-90; Nebnefer, II 929-31.
- Stela of Khufu, I 177-80; Mertityôtes, I 188-89; Nenekhsekhmet, I 237-40; Enekhnes-Merire, I 344-49; Intef, I 419-20; Thethi, I 423A-G; Eti, I 457-59; Nessumontu, I 469-71; Meri, I 507-9; Mentuhotep, I 510-14; Ikudidi, I 524-28; Intefyoker, I 529; Mentuhotep, I 530-34; Simonu, I 294 n. a, 594-98; Sihathor, I 599 603; Khentkhetwer, I 604-5; Khentemseti, I 607-613; Khnumhotep, I 617-18; Ameni, I 649-50; Sesostris III, I 651-52; 653-60; Sisetet, I 671-72, 673; Sebek-khu, I 676-87; Harure, I 733-38; Sehetepibre, I 743-48; Neferhotep, I 753-65; I 766-72; Ameniseneb, I 781-87; Vizier of King Khenzer, I 783 n. d; Ahmose I, II 29-32, 33-37; Harmini, II 47-48; Keres, II 49-53; Thutmose I, II 54-60, 54 n. a, 90-98; Yuf, II 109-114; Nebwawi, II 184-86; Hatshepsut, II 338-39; Thutiy, II 369-78; Thutmose III, II 590-608, 609-22, 642, 655-62; Intef, II 763-71; Ni bamon, II 777-79; Amenhotep II, II 781-97, 791-98, 818; Thutmose IV, II 810-15; Semen, II 822; Pe<sup>o</sup> aoke, II 839-40; Neferhet, II 839 n. d; Mermose, II 851-55; Amenhotep III, II 856-58, 877, 878-92, 904-910; Amenhotep, II 921-27; Eye, II 1042-43; Harmhab, III 2-5; Ramses I, III 74-79; Hori,

- III 82 n. b; Seti I, III 82, 157-61, 203-4; Ramses II, III 282-93, 297, 392, 394-414, 415-24, 427-28, 429-47, 487-91; Seti, III 538-42; Merneptah, III 596-601, 602-617; Roy, III 627-28; Ramses IV, IV 457, 461, 469-71; Hori, IV 484-85; Menkheperre, IV 650-58; Sheshonk, IV 675-87; Sheshonk I, IV 724A; Wayeheset, IV 725-28; Osorkon II, IV 745-47; Kerome, IV 755; Pediese, IV 771-74, 778-81; Weshtehet, IV 782-84; Harpeson, IV 785-92; Yewelot, IV 795; Piankhi, IV 796-883; Bocchoris, IV 884; Taharka, IV 892-96; Senbef, IV 917-18; Tanutamon, IV 919-34; Psamtik I, IV 935-58, 959-62, 963-66; Necho, IV 974-79; Apries, IV 984-88; Enekhnesneferibre, IV 988A-J; Amasis, IV 1008-1012; Stela at El Kab, I 741-42.
- Temple inscriptions, at Abu Simbel: by Ramses II, III 449-57, 496-501; Rekhpehtuf, III 642; Abd el-Kurna: by Ramses II, III 448 n. b; Abydos: by Seti I, III 227-43; Ramses II, III 251-81, 485-86; Amada: by Merneptah, III 606 n. a; Arsinoe: by Amenemhet III, II 233; Benihasan: by Hatshepsut, II 296-303; Seti I, III 249; Bêt el-Wâli: by Ramses II, III 458-77; Bubastis: by Osorkon II, IV 748-51; Dêr el-Bahri: by Thutmose I, II 125; Hatshepsut, II 192, 194, 196-98, 200-1, 203, 205, 208, 213, 216, 219-20, 223-25, 227, 229, 230, 233, 235, 253, 255-58, 260-62, 264-66, 268-69, 271-72, 274, 276, 278, 280-82, 285-88, 290, 292-95; Derr: by Ramses II, III 503; El Kab: by Ramses II, III 505, 558; in temple of Amon at Karnak: by Thutmose III, 131-66, 415-37, 439-43, 445-49, 451-52, 455-62, 464-67, 469-75, 477-87, 489-95, 497-503, 507-515, 517-19, 520-40, 654; Hatshepsut, II 305; Amenhotep II, II 798A, 804-6; Seti I, III 82-150, 223-24; Ramses II, III 348-51, 355, 367-91, 509-13; Merneptah, III 574-92; Ramses IV, IV 472; Ramses IX, IV 492-98; Sheshonk I, IV 709-724; Osorkon, IV 753, 756-70, 777; Taharka, IV 900; Mentemhet, IV 901-16; in temple of Ptah, at Karnak: by Thutmose III, II 611; in temple of Khonsu at Karnak: by Ramses XII, IV 602-3; Hrihor, IV 609-626; Paynozem I, IV 632-33, 649; Luxor, by Amenhotep III, II 187-212, 215-42, 841; Ramses II, III 480-84, 506-8; Menkheperre, IV 659; Osorkon II, IV 743; Medinet Habu: by Thutmose III, II 638-41; Ramses III, IV 4-17, 26-34, 37-58, 70-82, 107-114, 117-29, 140-45; Paynozem I, IV 634; Ramesseum: Ramses II, III 329-32, 335-40, 365, 448, n. b, 514-15; Redesiyeh: by Seti I, III 162-95; Sebû'c: a: by Ramses II, III 504; Semneh: by Thure, II 62-66; Thutmose III, II 169-72, 174-76; Nehi, II 651; Serreh: by Ramses II, III 502; Soleb: by Amenhotep III, II 894-98; Wadi Halfa: by Seti I, III 248; Neferhor, III 643; Piyay, III 644; Hori, III 645, 650, 651(?).
- Tomb inscription: Senuonekh, I 232-35; Pensen, I 241; Nezemib, I 279; Kheruf, II 873; at Abd el-Kurna: Ineni, II 43-46, 99-108, 648; Pemre, II 383-87; Rekhmire, II 666-762; Menkheperreseneb, II 773-76; Khamhet, II 819, 871-72; Hatey, II 932; Ramose, II 936-48; Abusir: by Weshptah, I 243-49; Hotepshirakhet, I 252-53; Abydos: by Uni, I 293-94, 307-315, 320-24; Assasif: by Neferhotep, III 70-72; opposite Assuan: by Harkhuf, I 328-36, 351-54; by Pepinakht, 356-60, Khui, I 361; Thethi, I 361 n. d; Sebni, I 365-74; Assiut: by Tefibi, I 394-97; Kheti I, I 399-404; Kheti II, I 407-14; Hepzefi, I 538-93; Benihasan: by Khnumhotep I, I 465; Amenemhet, I 518-23; Khnumhotep II, I 622-39; Thuthotep, I 688-706; Cairo: by Kam, I 187; unknown builder, I 290; Dêr el-Bahri, IV 668, 689, 691-92; Dêr el-Gebrâwi: by Henku, I 281; Ibi, I 377-79; El Kab: by Ahmose, son of Ebana, II 6-16, 39, 80-82; Pahari, II 3 and n. b; Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet, II 20, 25, 344; Setau, IV 414; Gebel Marâg: by Zau, I 381-85; Gizeh: by Thenti, I 182; Ihi, I 183; Thethi, I 184; Henutsen I, 185; Zezemonekh, I 186; Nekure, I 192-99; Debhen, I 211-12; Senezemib, I 270-74; Hermonthis: by Intef, the monarch, I 419 n. c; Ibrim: by Penno, IV 476-83; Kasr-es-Saigil: by Idu-Seneni, I 338; Kurnet-Marrat: by Huy, II 1010-41; Sakkara: by

- Methen, I 171-75. Ptahshepses, I 255-62; Sabu-Ibebi, I 283-86; Sabu-Thety, I 288; Harmhab, III 3-4, 8, 11-13, 16-17, 20; Shekh Sa'id: by Thutnakht: I 689; Tehneh, by Nekonekh, I 216-30; Tell el-Amarna: by Ani, II 977; Merire I, II 983-88, 1018; Eye, II 990-96; Mai, II 997, 999-1003; Ahmose, II 1006-8; Tutu, II 1010-13; Huy, II 1015-17; Western Thebes: by Thaneni, II 392, 820; Amenemhab, II 578-92; Woser, II 671 n. e.; Amenemopet, II 671 n. e.; Ramses V, IV 473; Hrihor, IV 593-94; vase inscription of Hatshepsut, at Gizeh, II 214.
- INSECTS, see Fly, Grasshopper.
- INSPECTION, III 94; IV 909, 913; of boundaries, I 528; II 969; cisterns, IV 726; craftsmen, II 753, 754, 775; divine fathers, I 610; flagstaves, II 776; food for divine offerings, II 752; granaries, IV 146 n. c.; land, I 482; III 58; mines, III 170; obelisks, II 776; sepulchers, IV 511; shrines, II 775, 776; statues, II 752; taxes, II 717, 729; temples at Coptos, I 777; temple of Osiris at Abydos, I 787; temple of Amon at Karnak, II 383; temples of Karnak, IV 660; tombs, IV 511, 513, 514, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 533, 543; treasuries, IV 146 n. c.; water supply, II 707; weighing, II 387; Wawat by Hapu, I 616; wells, IV 726; works of divine offerings, II 757.
- INSTALLATION, IV 775, 865, 958D, 1012.
- INSTRUCTION: to the court, IV 424; of children, I 413; of a king, I 413.
- INSURRECTION: crime of, IV 427, 428, 429, 430, 442, 443.
- INTERCALARY DAYS, I 540, 561; see also Feasts.
- INTERCESSION OF THE DEAD FOR LIVING PEOPLE: by Hotepiryakhet, I 252; by Harkhuf, I 329; by Seti I, I 251; III 253; by Ramses III, IV 246.
- INTERIM REIGNS: between XIX and XX Dynasties, I 50, 68, 68 n. e.; of obscure period, I 52; of dark period, I 52, 57.
- INTERIOR AFFAIRS: overseers of, II 677; reports to the vizier, II 687, 697, 707.
- INTERMENT, IV 966, 977, 986; see also Burial, Funeral.
- INUNDATION, I 83, 523; II 871; IV 47, 628, 743; to be reported to vizier, II 709; see also Index VI: Nile Levels.
- INVASION OF EGYPT, III 580, 594, 595, 608; IV 1006; Libyan-Mediterranean, III 572-617; Northerners, IV 64; by Meshwesh, IV 88, 95; by unclean foreigners, IV 905, 907.
- INVENTORY, IV 947; of temples, engraved on tablets, IV 202.
- INVESTIGATION: of official acts, III 58; of pyramids, IV 513; of sepulchers, IV 513; of tombs, IV 513; of theft IV 566; of fraud, IV 673; of writings, I 178, 179, 756.
- INVESTITURE OF VICEROY OF KUSH, II 1020.
- IRON: statue of, IV 302; vessels of, from Tinay, II 537.
—King's organs of, III 403.
- IRRIGATION: canal of, in Siut, I 407; chief of, IV 726.
- ISI PLANTS, IV 213, 215, 244, 295, 301, 350, 394.
—Isi flowers, IV 264.
- ISLANDS: given for the support of temples, IV 359.
- ISRAEL STELA, III 602-617.
- ITHYPHALIC, II 104, 302 n. a, 889 n. a; Min, I 296.
- IVORY, II 387, 601; III 471; IV 344, 391; brought from negro lands, I 336; Punt, II 263, 265, 272, 486; God's Land, II 265; from Tehenu, II 321; Genebteyew, II 474; Kush, II 494, 502, 514; the south countries, II 652; Retenu, II 447, 509, 525; Isy, II 493, 521.
—Articles made of ivory: chairs, II 436; tables, II 509; chest, II 755; statues, II 801; whips, II 802; see also Tooth ivory.

J

- JACKAL: sacred animal of Lycopolis, I 281, n. c.; southern army like, I 396.
—Southern jackal, Pharaoh like, II 661, 829.
- JAR, I 430; II 159, 509, 518; IV 230, 238, 239, 243, 284, 297, 342, 388, 394, 498, 565, 589, 954.
—<sup>c</sup>-jar, IV 209, 300, 301, 347, 348, 350.
—<sup>c</sup>c-jar, IV 228, 233, 283, 286, 344, 376, 387, 390.

- Jar*—
 → c c -bw-jar, IV 294, 299.
 → h c -jar, II 571.
 → š-jar, IV 924.
 → bp -jar, IV 300, 348.
 → pw-g -jar, IV 300, 350.
 → m-s -h y-jar, IV 233.
 → m > dyd y-jar, IV 376.
 → mn-jars, II 447 bis, 462 bis, 482, 491, 501 bis, 509, 518, 571 bis, 572, 621; IV 233, 239, 292, 299, 341, 348, 376, 378, 390, 393.
 → mn. i-jar, IV 395.
 → mrsw-jar, IV 376.
 → mhn-jar, IV 301.
 → mht-jar, IV 350.
 → nms. i-jar, IV 301, 350.
 → hbn(.t)-jar, I 590; II 159, 164, 509, 567, 734, 736, 738, 739, 741, 743, 745; IV 950, 952, 953.
 → hbhb-jar, IV 875, 878.
 → sn y-jar, IV 378, 395.
 → st -jar, I 569.
 → ky-jar, I 550, 556.
 → k > -bw-jars, IV 233, 239, 292, 299, 376, 390.
 → k > -hr-k -jar, IV 294.
 → g > y-jar, IV 238, 241, 294, 300, 301, 350, 393.
 → t > b-jar, II 621, 622.
 → ibw-jar, IV 294.
 → ds-jar, I 569, 585; II 113, 114, 563 bis, 620, 621; III 77, 159; IV 347.
 → Jars made of alabaster, II 544; electrum, II 556; pink granite, II 32.
 JASPER, RED, IV 287, 377; scarab of, IV 233, 377; statue of, IV 302; finger rings of, IV 377; semdets of, IV 377.
 JOINT (of meat), II 113, 114; IV 565.
 JOURNAL OF THE KINGS OF BYBLOS, IV 576.
 JOURNEY, KING'S, I 309.
 JUBILATION, IV 526.
 JUBILEE, Sed, I 105, 206, 298, 300, 302, 305, 403, 435, 437, 443; II, 431, 873, 940, 991, 995, 1006, 1007, 1029; III 195, 240, 279, 281, 371, 399, 406, 414, 550; IV 56, 304, 331, 335, 382, 414, 468, 473, 485, 620, 653, 748, 751, 768, 848, 927; same as Royal jubilee, q. v.
 → Explanation of, IV 750, 751, 848.
 → of Re, III 28; IV 31, 704; jubilee court, IV 707; jubilee hall, IV 748; jubilee houses, IV 335, 414.
 → Royal jubilee, II 608; III 28, 32; of Thutmose I, I 66 n. g; II 89; Hatshepsut, II 221, 233, 239, 241, 307, 310, 311, 328; Thutmose III, II 628, 630, 633; Amenhotep III, II 870-74; Ramses II, III 550-60; same as Sed jubilee, q. v.
 JUDGES: impartiality of, I 357; of a god II 668.
 → Corrupt judges, laws on, III 63-65.
 JUDGING IN THE NAME OF THE KING, I 307; in criminal cases, II 683.
 JUDGMENT-HALL, I 605; II 681, 705, 706, 707, 769, 903; III 63; appointments to, II 705; doorkeeper of, II 711; laws of, III 63; masters of, Index V; herald of, II 763, 767, 768.
 JUDGMENTS: reported to the vizier, II 681; stay of, II 686; not to be passed by an official on a superior, II 681.
 → Rendered by Amon, IV 650-58, 673, 676; by Sutekh, IV 727, 728.
 JUDICIAL OFFICE, I 438.
 JUDICIARY OFFICE: chief, vested in the vizier, II 675, 681, 685-86, 688-91, 700, 704, 705.
 JULIAN CALENDAR, I 40, p. 48.
 JUNIPER, II 321.
 JUSTICE: courts of, IV 147; crime against, III 64.
 → Six courts of justice, I 305, 307, 428, 445; II 713, 754; Chief of, see Index V.
- K
- KA, II 111, 235, 298; III 622 et passim; shaped by the god, II 202; twelve of them nursed for Hatshepsut, II 210; journeying to, I 187, 253; ka of the living king, I 324, 351, 423E, 448.
 KA CHAPEL: of Amenhotep, II 923, 924, 925, 926; slaves of, II 924, 925, 926; fields of, II 925, 926.
 KA HOUSE, I 550; Overseer of, see Index V; of Khnumhotep II, at Menet-Khufu, I 630; at Nehri at Mernofret, I 635.
 KA TEMPLE, I 289, 290, 550; rank of the overseer of, I 550.
 KARA BOATS: of Acacia, IV 229, 283, 387.
 KATHA PLANT, IV 600; given as taxes, III 55 bis.
 → Katha flowers, IV 294, 600.
 → Katha fruit, IV 294.

- KED WOOD, IV 910; mortuary chests of, IV 966.
- KEEL, IV 582.
- KETTLE, II 436; III 589.
- KHENTI FRUIT, IV 378, 395.
- KHESYT WOOD: from Punt, II 265.
- KHITHANA FRUIT, IV 240, 393.
- KIDET, II 436, 446 bis, 482, 484, 486, 490, 491, 502, 509, 514, 515, 518 bis, 522, 526, 527, 536 bis; IV 228, 231, 283, 285, 341, 343, 373, 377, 385, 386, 389, 682, 685, 686, 880.
—Kidet weight, IV 880.
- KILTS: of Southern linen, IV 303, 350, 374; fine Southern linen, IV 232, 375.
- "KINDNESS OF AMON": a greeting, IV 573.
- KING: see Index V; archives of, III 643, 644.
—King's estate: Chief of, Chief overseer of, Steward of: see Index V; granary of, II 107; chief of, II 368.
—King's hall, II 778; Overseer of, see Index V.
—King's house, I 533; II 342, 389; IV 849, 958J; see also Palace; offices of, I 447; going into and out of, reported to vizier, II 676, 680; affairs of II 679; intercourse between court and local authorities, II 692; gates of, opened by command of vizier, II 680; edicts from, received by vizier, II 705, 710; messengers of, II 692.
—King's horses, master of, see Index V.
—King's property, I 745; Overseer of, see Index V.
—King's records, I 218, 221, 225, 299; III 647; Scribe of, see Index V.
—King's rolls, IV 498; Scribe of: see Index V.
—King's wardrobe, great lord of: see Index V; secret things of the king, I 608; Master of: see Index V.
—King's weapons, II 213; Master of: see Index V.
—King's works, chief of: see Index V.
—King's workmen, leader of: see Index V.
—See also Body guard, Brand, Brewery, Cattle, Domain, Chamber, Command, Concubine, Council hall, Court, Crown, Divine office, Domain, Estate, Family, Feet, Flax field, Food, Hall, Helmet, Iron.
—King's officials: see Index V, under Attached, Attendants, Beloved, Butler Companion, Confidant, Confidante, Cup-bearer, Deputy, Dignitary, Fellow, First, Following, Great Ones, Guardian, Herald, Honored, Messenger, Orderly, Prince, Scribe, Servant, Steward, Subordinate, Sunshade bearer, Treasurer, Vizier.
- KIOSK, II 289, 981, 1021, 1028.
- KISS THE GROUND, II 996 et passim.
- KITCHEN OF PHARAOH, III 51, 59; of temple of Amon, III 624 n. a.
- KNEADERS, III 624 n. g.
- KNIFE, II 436; III 589.
- KROPHI: name of a cave at Elephantine, III 171 n. a.

L

- LABOR, ENFORCED, IV 147.
- LADDER, SCALING, IV 118.
- LAKE GARDEN, I 173, 272; Isesi's, called Nehbet, I 273; Harkhuf's, I 328.
—Pleasure lake of Queen Tiy in Zerukha, II 869.
—Temple lake, I 111, 268, 503, 509, 534; II 36, 164, 883, 919; III 567 n. c; IV 189, 194, 213, 261, 264, 363, 488 n. c, 489, 910, 912, 916, 1020; constructed of sandstone, IV 910, 912.
- LAMPS: Temple, IV 992.
- LANCE, II 80.
- LAND CASES: first "heard" by land overseer, II 686; appealed to vizier, II 686.
- LANDMARKS: of the sacred cattle of Apis, IV 332; of Menet-Khufu, I 624, 625; Oryx nome, I 626; Hare nome, I 626; Jackal nome, I 626, 632; Oxyrhyncus, I 632; Tell El-Amarna, II 949, 1042.
—the ancient, I 625; flooded by the Nile, I 407; restored after rebellion according to old writings, I 625.
- LANDS, IV 948, 957, 958; numbering of, I 81.
—Lands, citizen, IV 755, 795.
—Flax land: see Flax.
—Olive land, IV 216, 263, 288, 394.
—Gifts of, II 1, 6, 15, 16, 113, 114; for endowment of mortuary offerings, I 156, 159, 165, 202, 205, 206, 209, 546, 574, 584, 586, 591, 592; II 840; for a statue, IV 479-83; to temples, II 102, 149; III 31, 413; IV 200, 222, 226,

- 251, 265, 280, 282, 313, 337, 339, 354, 359, 364, 370, 380, 383, 384, 681, 687, 948, 950, 954, 957, 958, 972, 1021.
- Land overseer, II 686; hearing of real-estate cases by, II 686.
- Land, the whole: Chief of, Commander of, Supervisor of, see Index V.
- LANDSCAPE RELIEF: of Punt, II 254, 259.
- LAPIS LAZULI, II 280, 434, 558, 773, 775, 838, 881, 889, 902, 903; III 137, 151, 204, 453; IV 29, 31, 32, 34, 126, 230, 231, 284, 285, 342, 343, 354, 372, 373, 383, 385, 388, 389, 491, 732, 735, 847, 875.
- Articles made of lapis lazuli: amulet IV 233; beads, IV 343; inlay, IV 253; offering-tables, I 534; II 390; rosettes, II 32; scarab, IV 233, 285, 343, 389; statue, I 668; IV 302, 395; stela, II 889; ceiling, I 483; shrine, I 667; necklace, II 509; sphinxes, IV 732.
- Artificial lapis lazuli, from Shinar, II 484.
- Lapis lazuli from God's Land, III 116; Naharin, III 434; Retenu, II 447, 509, 518, 536 (?); Zahi, II 459, 462; Isy, II 493; Babylon, II 446, 484; Assur, II 446 bis; Shinar, II 484; Tefrer, III 448 n. b; IV 30.
- Sparkling lapis lazuli, IV 377.
- Vessels ornamented with, II 32, 92, 165, 185, 436, 447, 1031; IV 315.
- LARGESSES OF THE KING, III 65.
- LATERAN OBELISK, II 626-28, 830-38.
- LAUNDERERS, TEMPLE, IV 992.
- LAW, II 568; IV 38, 62; see also Legal petitions handled according to, II 667; concerning vizier's duties, II 673; the 40 skins, containing, II 675, 712; in the temples of the gods, II 757; concerning land cases, II 686.
- Administration of, III 25; by the hereditary prince, III 25.
- Laws of Harmhab, III 51-66; of Egypt, III 270; of the palace, III 101; of the judgment hall, III 63.
- Laws on robbery, III 51-52; dues, III 53-54; slave service, III 55; stealing, III 56-59; connivance, III 58; tax collectors, III 58; inspectors, III 58; judges, III 63-65; bribery, III 64.
- Lawgiver, see Index V.
- LEAD, II 558; IV 32, 245, 373, 385, 389; from Zahi, II 460, 462; Retenu, II 471, 491, 509, 534 (?); Isy, II 493, 521; statue of, IV 302, 392.
- LEATHER: roll of, II 392, 433; sandals of, IV 241, 394; shields of, II 802; tents of, III 589; for taxes, IV 150.
- LEGACY, I 194-99, 423E.
- LEGAL ENACTMENTS, I 5; III 45-67; records, I 18.
- LEGAL PROCEEDINGS, I 66 n. e, 204, 310; IV 423-24; protocol of, I 310.
- LEGISLATION OF HARMHAB, III 45-67.
- LEGITIMISTS, II 348.
- LENTILS, IV 582.
- LETTERS, I 10, 18, 20, 42; III 292, 630, 632, 633, 634; IV 443, 574, 600; of Sebnl, I 367; of a frontier official, III 636; copies taken of, IV 527.
- Royal letters: to Harkhuf, I 6, 351-54; Ikhernofret, I 9, 664; Sebnl, I 371; Senezemib, I 271, 273; Paynehsi, IV 595-600.
- Letter scribe, IV 588, 589.
- LEVY, II 916.
- LIBATION, II 35, 150, 288; III 626; IV 269, 272, 612, 871; vases for, I 421; for feast offerings, II 569; mortuary offering, III 17.
- LIBATION BASIN, IV 1000 n. a.
- LIBRARIES: at Heliopolis, I 757; see also Archives, House of Rolls, House of Writngs.
- LID OF JAR, IV 231, 243, 394; of sarcophagus, I 266, 308, 321, 436, 451.
- LIE: none in Pharaoh's records, II 97 et passim; punishment for, II 670, 683.
- LIFE, SYMBOL OF, II 195, 202, 241.
- LIFETIME: of 110 years, II 926.
- LIMBS, II 197, 294, 299, 544, 652, 754; Horus who has numbered his, I 502; king's, of electrum, III 403.
- LIMESTONE OF AYAN, I 534, 635, 740; II 27, 44, 103, 302, 380, 390, 603, 604, 799, 800, 812, 875; III 240, 525; IV 7, 355, 356, 358, 970; temple of, II 345 n. c, bis, 390; III 240, 525; IV 216, 311, 355, 970; pylons of, II 103; hypostyle of, II 603; pyramid clothed with, I 212; sarcophagus of, I 308; gates of, I 509; temples clothed with, I 534; II 27, 44; IV 251; mortuary chapel of, I 635; doorposts of, IV 355,

- 356; lintels of, IV 355, 356; broad hall of, IV 7; pyramidion of, IV 982; false door, I 88 n. a; slab, I 241 n. f; stelæ of, I 419 n. a, 421 n. a, 457 n. d, 676 n. c, 766 n. b; II 29 n. d; 49 n. a, 642 n. b, 856 n. b, 921 n. b; III 2; IV 725 n. a, 782 n. a; tombs of, III n. a, IV 979; statue of, IV 958A, n. a.
- Limestone cliffs at Amarna, II 949 n. b.
- LINE: extension of (=the foundation ceremony), II 152; see also Cord and Ceremony.
- LINEN, I 722, 723, 725; IV 582, 639, 661, 663, 668, 688, 958M; for mortuary offering, II 365; for statues, II 571; for temple, II 301, 376, 544, 615; garments of, III 207, 208; IV 228.
- Colored linen, IV 239, 283, 286, 341, 344, 375, 387, 388; garments of, IV 284, 342, 372, 375, 388, 390; mantles of, IV 232; tunics of, IV 232, 375; dw-garments, IV 375; yfd-garments, IV 375.
- ḏ*-w-linen, II 722, 727 bis, 736, 738, 744 bis.
- Fine linen, II 615; IV 700 bis, 823, 878, 944.
- Mek-linen, IV 230, 283, 286, 329, 344, 387, 390; clothing of gods of, IV 335; garments of, IV 284, 342, 388; robe of, IV 232; mantle of, IV 232; from the Malachite country, IV 409.
- mt*-linen, II 719, 721, 722, 723, 726, 727 bis, 730, 731, 736, 738, 744 bis.
- mnḥ.t*-linen, II 165.
- Mysterious linen: shroud of, IV 1011; from Mehenet, IV 1011; Resenet, IV 1011.
- Prime linen, I 382.
- Royal linen, II 171, 544, 571; III 515; IV 31, 228, 230, 232, 272, 283, 286, 329, 344, 360, 374, 375, 387, 875; from the Malachite country, IV 409; clothing of gods of, IV 335; garments of, IV 232, 284, 342, 372, 374, 388, 390, 582, 876; hamen-garments, IV 232; mantles, IV 232, 374; statue garments, IV 232; tunics, IV 232, 374; upper garments, IV 232, 374; wrappings of, IV 966; wrappings of Horus, IV 232, 374; hnky-garments, IV 374; ydg-garments, IV 374; hm-ḥrd-garments, IV 582.
- Southern linen, IV 230, 239, 283, 286, 341, 344, 372, 375, 387; garments of, IV 284, 342, 375, 388, 390; kilts of; 303, 350, 375; dw-garments, IV 375; ydg-garments, IV 375; tunics, IV k-ḏ-m-r-garments, IV 375; yfd-garments, IV 375.
- Colored southern linen, IV 228.
- Fine southern linen, I 382; IV 228, 230, 283, 285, 329, 341, 342, 344, 360, 371, 372, 375, 387; dw-garments of, IV 232, 284, 374, 388, 390; kilts of, IV 232, 374; tunics of, IV 232, 374; upper garments of, IV 232, 374; ydg-garments of, IV 232, 374; hamen-garments, IV 374.
- Double fine southern linen, IV 283.
- ḫr.w*-linen, II 554.
- White (ḫt) linen, I 727; II 554, 571, 615.
- wm.t*-linen, II 554.
- LINTELS, IV 489; of granite, IV 311; of red granite, IV 970; of limestone, IV 355, 356.
- LION, IV 580; captured by Amenemhet, I 483; hunted by Thutmose III, II 813; on the highlands of Memphis, II 813.
- Tame, III 450, 470; IV 49, 112, 122.
- Golden, as a decoration of honor, II 23, 585, 587.
- as adornment of temples, II 896, 897.
- Pharaoh as a, II 660, 783, 844, 853, 896 n. d, 901; III 88, 117, 144, 147, 465, 479, 480, 580; IV 40, 41, 46, 49, 51, 54, 62, 75, 104, 921, 1005.
- LIPS OF COLUMNS, IV 880.
- LIST, IV 269, 279, 283, 328, 336, 364, 383, 387, 770, 832; army, IV 466; tax, II 718-45, III 57.
- of Asiatic cities, II 402 n. a, 403 n. b; III 34 n. a, 114, 366; IV 712-16; booty, II 480, 500, 501, 508, 532, 790; captives, II 788; III 156, 588; countries, II 402, 798A; III 119, 156, 342; IV 138; food for the king, I 423E; Hittite lands III 321; Hittite officers, III 337; Hittite chief, III 349; monuments IV 731; Nubian regions, I 311, 336, 510, II 843, 845 n. f, 849; ornaments, IV 538; plunder, II 459, 469; III 589; princes, IV 830, 878; property, II 688; IV 140, 948; rewards, II 583, 584, 584, 585, 587; supplies, II 472; temple dues, IV 160, 227, 283, 340, 386; temple estates, IV 159, 222, 280, 337, 364; tombs, IV 513; towns, II 490; in Nubia, II 645, 646,

- 647; tribute, II 445, 448, 462, 466, 482, 518, 525, 533, 534.
 —Karnak list, I 419, and n. d; II 605 n. i; list of Ramses II at Abydos, I 529 n. e; Abydos list, I 59, n. a, 60 n. f, 61 nn. a, c, 62 n. d; Sakkara list, I 59 n. a, 60 n. g, 62 n. d, 149 n. c.
 LISTING THE NUMBER OF THE PEOPLE, II 916.
 LITERARY COMPOSITIONS, I 90.
 LIVING STREAM (or river): water from, for the ka, II 356, 378.
 LOAD, II 264; loading, IV 407.
 LOAN CATTLE: see Cattle.
 LOAN COWS: see Cow.
 LOAN HERDS: see Herds.
 LOAVES: for food, I 430; II 462; for divine offering, II 559, 560, 562, 571, 620, 621, 622, 792; for evening offering, II 565; for feast offering, II 566; for mortuary offering, I 329, 518; for obelisks, II 563; for oblation, II 749; of the fire, IV 291; makers of, III 624.
 —c k-loaves, IV 238.
 —Large c k-loaves, IV 238, 291, 393.
 —wdww'nt-loaves, IV 238, 291, 297.
 —by' t-loaves, II 113; III 77, 159, 624 n. h; IV 238, 291, 297, 347.
 —bh-loaves, IV 238, 393.
 —p c t-loaves, IV 238.
 —pus' - c k-loaves, IV 238.
 —pr' t-s-loaves for divine offering, III 77, 159.
 —n/r' t-loaves for food, II 462, 472.
 —rrt-loaves for mortuary offering, I 500.
 —syd-loaves, IV 238, 393.
 —Sweet s c b-loaves, IV 238.
 —sh-loaves, II 735.
 —kw-loaves, II 735, 739, 743.
 —ddmt-hr-t'-loaves, IV 238.
 —Flat loaves: for mortuary offering, I 555, 556, 585, 590.
 —Heth loaves: for mortuary offering, I 241.
 —Kyllestis loaves, IV 238, 291.
 —Oblation loaves, IV 238; large oblation loaves, IV 291, 393; white oblation loaves, II 571; IV 238, 291.
 —Pesen loaves: for mortuary offering, I 241.
 —Pesen loaves, II 113; III 624 n. h; IV 238, 297, 347.
 —Pyramidal loaves, IV 238, 347; white pyramidal loaves, IV 291; white pyramidal loaves for divine offerings, II 572 n. c.
 —Round loaves, IV 291.
 —Senu loaves, for divine offerings, II 378; III 624 n. h; for mortuary offering, II 353.
 —Seshu loaves, IV 297.
 —White loaves, I 540, 542, 544, 547, 550, 555, 556, 577, 585, 590; II 159, 565, 571, 572, 621, 622; IV 238, 297; for mortuary offering, I 540, 542, 544, 547, 550, 555, 556, 577, 585, 590; for evening offering, II 565; for divine offerings, II 159, 572, 621, 622.
 —Tall white loaves, IV 291.
 —White t'-loaves, IV 238.
 LOGS, IV 232, 234, 245, 286, 288, 295, 300, 303, 348, 379, 380, 385, 390, 391, 394, 577, 578; from Retenu, II 491, 525; Arrapachitis, II 512.
 LOINS, IV 634.
 LOTUS FLOWER, IV 194, 213, 244, 264, 295.
 LOWING OF CATTLE, I 493.
 LOWLAND, II 113, 114, IV 95; M-h' w, skin of, from Assur, II 449.
- M
- MACE, II 225; III 117, 489; war, IV 130, 246, 718, 720.
 MAGAZINE, I 172; II 356, 986; III 208; IV 330, 410, 849; Overseer of: see Index V; Scribes of: see Index V; temple, IV 313, 324, 1021.
 —of the overseer of the White House, IV 512; chief scribe of, IV 512.
 MAGIC: practice of, IV 454-56; prosecution for, IV 454, 455, 456; regarded as a capital crime, IV 454, 455, 456; ordered by the gods, IV 455.
 —Magic power, II 235; of diadem, II 220; of a god, IV 455.
 —Magical inscriptions, IV 455.
 —Magical prayer, III 18.
 —Mut, great in magic, I 468.
 MAGIC ROLLS, IV 454; for hindering, IV 454; for bewitching, IV 455; for terrifying, IV 454; for enfeebling, IV 454, 456; for extraordinary power, IV 455.
 —Magic rolls deposited with dead kings, IV 455.
 MAIDENS: for the garden of Min, II 567.

- MAIDS, IV 111.
 —Maid servants: temple, IV 751, 992.
- MALACHITE, II 280, 390, 430, 558, 773, 775, 838, 881, 902, 903; III 137, 151, 204, 453; IV 29, 32, 126, 230, 284, 285, 342, 343, 354, 372, 373, 383, 385, 388, 389, 491, 847, 874, 875, 944.
 —Articles made of: finger rings, IV 377; collars, I 534; inlay, IV 253; scarab, IV 233, 285, 343, 389; statue, II 668; IV 302, 395.
 —Brought from the mine-land (of Sinai) I 602, 713, 731, 736; God's Land (at Sinai), II 450 n. a, 820; III 116; the Malachite country IV 409; Naharin, III 434; Reshet, II 321; IV 31, 34; Zahi, II 459.
 —Sparkling malachite, IV 377.
 —Vessels ornamented with, II 32, 165, 185, 1031; IV 315.
- MALACHITE COUNTRY, I 161; IV 409; Hathor, mistress of, I 715, 720, 722, 723, 725, 750; II 450 n. a; IV 409.
 "MALACHITE" TERRACE, I 266, 342.
- MALES, CAPTIVE: assigned for the storehouse, IV 128.
- MANNA, IV 378, 390; from Punt, IV 286, 390.
- MANTLES: of royal linen, IV 232, 374; mek-linen, IV 232; colored linen IV 232.
- MARES, II 435, 589, 875.
- MARINE, I 390; IV 407.
 —Marines, II 328, 332 n. d; III 197; royal, II 332, 916; for Captain of, Officers of, Scribes of, see Index V.
- MARRIAGE, II 7; III 28.
- MARSHES, II 966; IV 895; inclosed, III 276; temples of Thebes like, IV 743; of Delta, III 291; see Index VI: Marshes.
- MARVELS, II 139, 253, 265, 271, 272, 274, 277-78, 282, 285, 288, 377, 486, 513, 608, 804, 864, 867; III 274, 288, 420; IV 197, 407, 491, 618, 635.
- MASONRY, II 306; IV 515.
- MASTABA: of old kingdom, I 181.
 —at Abydos, of Uni, I 291 n. a.
 —at Gizeh, of Ikhi, I 183 n. b; Thethi, I 184 n. d; Kam, I 187 n. d; Senez-emib, I 268 n. i.
 —at Sakhara, of Methen, I 166 n. c, 170 n. c; Nenekhsekhmet, I 237 n. c; Ptahshepses, I 254 n. a; Sabu-Ibebi, I 282, n. a; Sabu-Thety, I 287 n. a.
 —Mastaba inscription: see under Inscriptions, Tomb.
- MASTIC TREE, IV 245.
- MASTS, II 492; IV 861.
- MATHEMATICS, I 20.
- MATRIARCHATE, I 398, 405, 413-14; rule of the mother of Kheti II at Siut, I 414, and she acting as lord, I 414; Nakht II inherited the Jackal nome from his mother, I 632; Khnum-hotep II inherited Menet-Khufu from his mother's father, I 624, 628.
- MEALS, I 493, 496.
- MEASURE, II 734, 737, 741, 742, 743; IV 582; see also Bales, Basket, Bekhen, Bolts, Bunch, Bundle, Censers, Coil, Hank, Jars, and the following:
 —Linear measures: cubit, I 83 n. a, 93, 95, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 146, 147, 148, 152, 157, 159, 165, 212; II 965 bis; IV 288, 330, 343, 355, 356, 358, 400, 513, 515, 886, 887, 904, 916, 958J; finger, I 83 n. a, 97, 103, 105, 108, 113, 115, 119, 120, 121, 123, 124, 125, 127, 128, 129, 130, 133, 134, 136, 137, 140, 142, 143, 146, 147, 148, 152, 157, 159; IV 343, 886; iter, II 479, 852, 965 bis; IV 46, 216; palm, I 95, 97, 98, 100, 103, 107, 108, 109, 113, 115, 119, 121, 122, 123, 127, 128, 133, 134, 136, 137, 138, 140, 141, 142, 143, 147, 148, 152, 157; IV 288, 343, 886, 887; span, I 101, 104, 106, 112, 114; ipet-rod, II 995.
 —Square measures:  $h'it$ , I 574, 584, 586; khet (land-measure), II 965 ter; IV 479, 480, 481, 482, 483; stat (a land-measure containing 100 square cubits = 1 aroura, or about  $\frac{1}{16}$  acre, more exactly  $\frac{1}{16}$  acre), I 156, 158, 159, 161, 165, 166; II 15, 16, 840; IV 226, 282, 288, 339, 370, 380, 384, 394, 681, 755, 784, 795, 948, 950, 954, 957, 1021.
 —Cubic measures: heket, I 545; II 171 bis, 319, 377, 437, 486, 513, 572, 733, 737, 739, 740, 742, 743, 744, 761; IV 220, 232, 234, 236, 240, 241, 283, 286, 287, 289, 294, 297, 313, 341, 344, 346, 347, 371, 378, 379, 381, 387, 390, 391, 392, 396; hin, IV 232, 239, 287,

- 299, 300, 345, 393, 498, 683, 949, 950, 952, 953, 954, 1021; khar, I 556; IV 955; nd<sup>2</sup>, II 159 bis, 571 bis; pedet, II 572, 719, 722; pg-vessel, II 571; pyramid, IV 294; uhet, I 556; yp<sup>1</sup>, IV 232, 234, 238, 239, 240, 241, 244, 286, 294, 295, 297, 301, 350, 380, 390, 392, 393; c-measure, IV 299, 348, 394; ps<sup>2</sup>-measure, IV 378, 395; msty-measure, IV 234, 235, 240, 287, 301, 344, 350, 378, 390, 391, 392, 395, 582; md<sup>2</sup>-measure, IV 295, 347; md<sup>2</sup>yw-measure, IV 244; hlp-measure, IV 238, 240, 244, 291, 294, 379, 392, 393; hlp-hr-nmit-measure, IV 294; sh<sup>1</sup>t-measure, IV 241, 379; spr-measure, IV 299, 348; k<sup>2</sup>-t<sup>2</sup>-rw-ty-measures, IV 378; k<sup>2</sup>-bw<sup>2</sup>-s<sup>2</sup>-measure, IV 240; gs-r<sup>2</sup>-measure, IV 295, 303, 380, 394; f<sup>2</sup>y-measure, IV 238, 240, 294, 378, 393; mtm-measure, IV 238, 291; trj-measure, IV 292; d<sup>2</sup>-w<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>-measure, IV 294; d<sup>2</sup>mw-measure, IV 240; dm<sup>2</sup>w-measure, IV 345; dm<sup>2</sup>mw-measure, IV 379; dyy-measure, IV 295; dny-measure, IV 294, 295; dny.t-measures, II 621, 622; IV 240, 294, 299, 300; dm.t-measure, IV 244, 294, 301, 394, 768; zawet, II 995.
- Loaf-measure: of the court, IV 393; of gold, IV 393; for eating, IV 393; for the mouth of the eater, IV 393.
- Measuring, I 83 n. a; II 273-76, 377.
- Measuring-line: at foundation ceremonies, I 506, 609; II 152, 608, 795.
- MEAT, II 117, 260; III 71; IV 238, 393, 467; roast of, for the altar, I 569, 571.
- MECHIR: see Months.
- MEDICAL PAPYRUS, I 246.
- MEDICINE, I 20.
- MEHIWET FRUIT, IV 240, 378, 392.
- MEKHTEBET: an uncertain adornment, II 22, 24.
- MEMBERS OF STATUES: of precious stones, II 376.
- MEMORIAL, II 150, 286; memorial stelæ, at Abydos, I 9; memorial tablets, I 661 n. d.
- MEMORIAM: monument in, II 175.
- MEMORY, II 378.
- MENHET FLOWER, IV 213.
- MENHET PLANT, IV 295.
- MENIT-UZ (metal): statue of, IV 302.
- MERA WOOD, IV 288, 379, 391.
- MERCENARY, III 428; IV 994; mercenary troops, III 307; IV 117.
- MERCHANTS, III 274; IV 313.
- MERCY: to poor, I 328, 357, 479; to orphans, I 479.
- MERU WOOD, I 146; II 321; IV 378; shrine of, I 667; tent poles of, II 435; chest of, II 755; mortuary chests of, IV 966; staff of, IV 288; staves of, IV 391; temple doors of, IV 488 n. c; from Assur, II 449; from Retenu, II 435, 447.
- MESDET STONE: pairs of, III 246.
- MESNET STONE: offering tables of, I 727; necklace of, I 500.
- MESORE: see Months.
- MESSAGE, IV 819; royal, II 929; see also Index V: Messengers.
- METAL, WALL OF, IV 66.
- METROLOGY, EGYPTIAN, IV 151.
- MICE, III 598.
- MIDDLE AGES, I 3.
- MIDDLE KINGDOM: inscriptions of, I 8, 9, 10; chronology of, I 42, 57; temples of, I 442.
- MIDWIFE: goddess acting as, II 206.
- MILITARY COMMANDER: see Index V.
- MILITIA OF HERACLEOPOLIS: chief of, IV 968; broad hall of, IV 972.
- MILK, I 493; II 162, 566; IV 295, 301, 350, 394, 870, 929, 958M; for mortuary offering, II 571; III 17.
- MINERALS: see Bronze, Copper, Electrum, Emery, Feldspar, Gold, Iron, Lapis lazuli, Lead, Malachite, Metal, Menit-uz, Natron, Silver, Stones, Stones (costly), Tin.
- MINES OF COPPER: in Atika, IV 408.
- at Sinai, I 10, 12; operated in the First Dynasty, I 168; by Snefru, I 168; of Ka, I 731.
- Mine of electrum, east of Redesiyeh, III 170.
- Mines of gold, in Akita, III 286.
- Mine land (Sinai), I 353 n. c, 725, 735, 736, 737; the eternal mountain in, I 736; malachite in, I 736.
- Mine chamber excavated at Sinai by men, I 606; made for Hathor, at Sinai, I 723; name of, I 725.
- Miners, I 447; necropolis miners, I 697.

- Mines of Copper*—
 —Mining: Snefru regarded as founder of, I 168; of gold, III 195.
 —Mining work, IV 517.
 MINIMUM FRUIT, IV 378, 395.
 MIXERS, III 624, 625.
 MIXTURE OF SIX PARTS (=bronze), IV 202, 318, 320, 343, 358.
 MOAT, IV 118.
 MONEY, IV 683, 685, 686; of Thekel, IV 568.
 MONKEYS, III 375; from Punt, II 265.
 MONOLITHIC SHRINE, II 775; IV 198, 320.
 MONTHS: Thoth, first month, II 933; IV 296 n. e; Paophi, second month, II 591 n. b; IV 144, 791 n. a; Tybi, fifth month, II 874; Mechir, sixth month, II 304, 318, 602; Phamenoth, seventh month, II 592 n. c, 823; IV 296 n. e; Pharmuthi, eighth month, I 655; Pakhons, ninth month, II 592 n. c; IV 144, 958L; Epiphi, eleventh month, II 410 n. a; IV 296 n. e; Mesore, twelfth month, II 304, 318.
 MONUMENT, I 12, 19, 154, 158, 159, 160, 161, 165, 166, 409; II 149, 150, 152, 154, 157, 158, 164, 174, 175, 176, 192 n. d, 309, 311, 312, n. b, 317, 318, 339, 351, 383, 548, 558, 568, 571, 596, 601, 603, 605, 606, 608, 611, 624, 627, 628, 633, 638, 639, 643, 651, 654, 662, 752, 755, 759, 775, 800, 805, 832, 836, 838, 856, 883, 887, 888, 889, 890, 892, 894, 896, 897, 898, 903, 909, 912, 917, 936, 946, 960; III 17, 174, 177, 195, 200, 206, 210, 213, 215, 216, 217, 219, 223, 224, 227, 229, 232, 236, 242, 246, 248, 249, 259, 260, 269, 270, 281, 405, 414, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 510, 511, 512, 513, 515, 519, 520, 521, 522, 528, 529, 537, 544, 566; IV 4, 5, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 27, 28, 62, 110, 179, 191, 197, 252, 311, 357, 412, 460, 464, 465, 473, 528, 602, 603, 609, 610, 612, 620, 622, 625, 626, 632, 633, 634, 635, 649, 704, 706, 721, 731, 889, 897, 898, 899, 900, 943, 945, 980, 1011 n. c.
 MOORING, IV 566, 861, 863.
 —Mooring stake, I 423, 612; Intef I drove it in the sacred valley, I 423; as title of Hatshepsut, II 341.
 MOPHI: name of a cave at Elephantine, III 171 n. a.
 MORTAR, IV 538.
 MORTUARY: ceremony of the righteous, benefit of, II 925.
 —Customs, I 536.
 —Endowment, I 200, 269, 379, 562, 577, 630; II 839, 907, 921; IV 679, 1007; by Hepzefi, I 535-93; by Amenhotep, II 921-27; for Osiris, II 840; for Ahmose I, II 840; edict of, II 922-27; contracts of, I 538-93.
 —Furniture, II 861 n. c; IV 521, 538.
 —Gods, III 278.
 —Mortuary oblations, II 571, 1001.
 —Mortuary offerings, I 155, 159, 161, 165, 173, 185, 201, 206, 207, 208, 209, 220, 227, 232-35, 241, 252, 349, 379, 394, II 35, 36, 52, 170, 356, 365, 389; III 271; IV 187, 485, 927, 1018.
 —Mortuary priest, Mortuary prophet; see Index V.
 —Mortuary prayer, I 384; II 97, 111; III 21, IV 484, 995, 1018, 1025; quaint claim of, I 278; posture in, II 37.
 —Mortuary statues of: Hepzefi, I 540; Thutmose III, II 97; Seti I, III 271; placed in the temples, I 500, 540; II 52, 156, 604, 605 n. i.
 —Mortuary stelæ, I 469, 507, 529, 530, 599, 671, 743; II 47, 839; IV 1026.
 —Mortuary temples: see Index II; of Nemathap, I 173; at Abydos, of Seti I, III 174, 225, 226, 263, 266; at Kurna, of Seti I, II 210, 212, 213, 215-20; at Thebes, of Thutmose IV, II 821, 823; Merneptah, II 856 n. b; Amenhotep, II 921; Amenhotep III, II 904-8; of Thutmose III, II 552 n. i; of Mentuhotep III, IV 520 n. b; Ramessesum: see Index II.
 MOUNTAIN, II 995; secret chambers of, II 946; of gritstone, overseer of works in, III 17; of Bethanath, III 356; of Akhetaton, II 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 969, 971, 972, 994; of electrum, east of Redesiyeh, III 170; "Lord-of-Life," name of the mountain on the west of Thebes, III 210; the great, of Wawat, IV 480, 481.
 —Obelisk, called, II 318; statue called, II 917.
 MOUNTAIN GOATS: see Goats.
 MOUNTAINEERS, III 178.
 MOUNTINGS, II 155; IV 254, 287, 343, 355, 356, 358, 377, 406, 489, 910, 929.
 MOURNING: for grandfather of Kheti II, I 414; for a king, I 491; mourners, I 370.

- MUD BRICK, II 607.
- MUMMY, IV 538; of Thutmose II, IV 637; Amenhotep I, IV 638, 647; Seti I, IV 639, 661; Ramses III, IV 640, 641; Ramses II, IV 642; Ahmose I, IV 645; Sitkamose IV 644; Siamon, prince, IV 646; Thutmose IV, I 15; restorations of, I 22; IV 592-94, 636-47, 661, 662-67.
—Mummy inscriptions, IV 637-42, 644-47, 661, 663, 688.
- MURDER: punished with death, IV 658.
- MUSICIANS: temple, II 1018.
—Musician (fem.) of Re: Teya, III 542.
- MUSTERING, IV 1004; of troops, II 693; of workmen, II 935; of young men, II 329, 332.
- MUTINY, IV 989.
- MYRRH, I 763; II 283, 288, 387; III 475; IV 26, 232, 264, 286, 304, 333, 344, 348, 372, 390, 685, 770, 870, 875, 878; from Genebteyew, II 474; Red Land, I 429; fields of the sycamore, II 299; Punt, I 161; II 260, 263, 265, 274, 275, 276, 277, 321, 486; IV 130, 210, 407, 929; divine offering, II 572; gum of, II 288; Hathor, mistress of, II 295.
—Dried myrrh, IV 299, 329; from Punt, II 486, 513; Retenu, II 491.
—Myrrh fruit, IV 232, 286, 390.
—Myrrh resin from Punt, II 265.
—Myrrh sycamores, IV 333.
—Myrrh terraces of Punt, II 260, 284, 285, 287, 288, 294.
—Myrrh trees from Punt, II 263, 264, 265, 272, 288; IV 390.
—Myrrh-wood, IV 232, 286, 390.
- MYTH: of Horus and Set, II 70 n. d.
- N
- NAME: beautiful, I 676; IV 943, 990, 1014; hidden, see Hidden; royal, used in oath, II 58; see Oath.
- NAOPHORS: of costly stone, IV 377; explanation of meaning of, IV 377 n. c.
- NATIVE VERSIONS, I 24.
- NATRON, IV 235, 241, 299, 345, 350, 379, 392, 865; from Retenu, II 518.
—Natron gatherers of Elephantine, IV 148.
- NAVE OF TEMPLE, III 515.
- NAVY, I 405; II 591; see also Fleet, Warships; administration of, under the vizier, II 667, 710; officials of report to vizier, II 710.
—Commander of, Officers of: see Index V.
- NEBDU, IV 241.
- NECKLACE, II 22, 23, 24, 45, 254, 288, 376, 390, 544, 654; of Mšn.t-stone, I 510; hm<sup>3</sup>g.t-stone, I 500; gold and silver, II 32; lapis lazuli, II 509; electrum, II 654; costly stone, II 545, 801, 802; IV 876; gold, II 585, 587.
—Necklaces: from Retenu, II 509; Ka-desh, II 585.
—Necklace-rattles, II 93.
—Bead necklace, II 725, 731; of gold, II 722, 723, 727, 738, 740.
—Braided necklace, III 2.
- NECROPOLIS, I 371; II 378; III 32B, 259; the gods, lords of, III 17; cliff, I 613; the highlands of the blessed, II 378; officer of the tomb in the, II 378; inspectors of, see Index V; soldiers of, I 710; scribes of, see Index V.
—Necropolis of Abydos, IV 1020, 1029; see Tazoser, Index VI.
—Necropolis of Benihasan, I 623; feasts of, I 630.
—Necropolis, southern, of, Dêr el-Gebrâwi, I 375 n. f.
—Necropolis of Heliopolis, II 814; sacred road to, II 814; Gizeh, probably the, II 814 n. c.
—Necropolis of Memphis, the Serapeum, IV 977, 979, 986, 1010; tomb of Apis in, IV 979; called "the western desert of Memphis," IV 977, 986.
—Necropolis of Siut, I 582; official body of: overseer, I 582, 584; chief of the highland, I 584; eight mountaineers, I 582, 584.
—Necropolis at Western Thebes, II 338; fortress of, II 338-39; goddess of, II 338-39; chief treasurer of, IV 665; inspectors of, IV 511, 512, 517, 522, 525, 533, 665; chief of police of, IV 511, 512, 525, 527; administrators of, IV 525; scribes of, IV 526, 529, 530, 640; police of, IV 525; workmen of, IV 524, 525, 526, 528, 530, 533, 543; serf-laborers of, IV 525.
—Necropolis thieves, IV 511, 513, 515, 516, 517, 521, 522, 535.

- NEGE BULLS: from Khara, IV 229.
- NEGLECT OF NOT REPORTING CONSPIRACY: crime of, IV 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 448, 449, 450.
- NEIGHBOR, IV 398, 944.
- NENYBU WOOD, IV 344, 391.
- NEST (of Horus hawk), II 138.
- NET, IV 41, 44, 77.
- NEW MOON: dates of, in reign of Thutmose III, I 46, 51.
- NEW YEAR: gifts of, I 545, 563; II 801.
- NEW YEAR'S DAY, I 42, 545, 563, 573, 583, 585; II 925; New Year's Night, I 573, 583; New Year's feast, 19th of July, I 40; see also Feasts.
- NEYBU WOOD, IV 234; from Assur, II 440.
- NIGHT WATCH, I 417.
- NODDING THE HEAD OF A GOD, III 440, 444, 580; IV 615, 617, 655, 656, 658.
- NOMES, IV 905, 906, 948, 957; order of southern, I 529 n. e; records of, II 703; boundaries of, II 703; Deputy of, see Index V.
- Nomes of: Abydos, IV 1020; Aphroditopolis, I 423; Apollinopolis Magna, II nome of Upper Egypt, I 500; Athribis, IV 873; Busiris, I 159; IV 830 n. a; Cerastes mountain, XII nome of Upper Egypt, I 199; Crocodile nome, I 529; Cusæ, XIV nome of Upper Egypt, I 500; II 300; Hare, I 700-6; IV 821, 848, 948; Harpoon, I 174; Heliopolis, IV 955; Hesebka, XI of Lower Egypt, IV 830; Jackal, I 626, 632; Khent, I 159, 165; Libyan, I 159; Lycopolis, XIII nome of Upper Egypt, I 280, 396; see Jackal nome; Memphis, I 159; Mendes, I 173, 174, 197, 198; IV 830; Oryx, XVI of Upper Egypt, I 518; Oxyrrhyncus, IV 818 nn. b, c, 820, 837, 948; Patoris, IV 905; Sais, I 172, 173, 174; Sekhem II of Lower Egypt, I 173, 175; Thebes, I 420, 459; Thisis, I 349; II 181, 763, 767; Upper nome, I 199; Xoïs, I 156, 159; IV 818; Yuna, IV 948.
- Nome of Tehenu, IV 482; see also Wawat and Libya, Index VI.
- NORTH WIND: a sweet, for the ka, IV 485; as epithet of the king, II 994.
- NOSE TO BE CUT OFF: as penalty for robbing, III 51; extortion, III 54; slave stealing, III 55; stealing hides, III 56.
- Nose and ears cut off, IV 451, 452, 524.
- NUMBERING: occurrence of, I 84, [118], 120, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130, 132, 133, 145, 147, 148, 161, 166, 298, 303, 305, 320, 387; of large cattle, I 157, 267; of large and small cattle, I 81, 192, 266, 340; of gold and lands, I 81, 137; of all people, I 106.

O

- OARS: steering, IV 331, 845.
- OATH: form of royal name for legal, II, 58; in foreign lands in Pharaoh's name, II 68; by Pharaoh, II 121, 318, 422, 452, 570, 601; III 327, 365; IV 835, 850, 862, 875, 880, 881, 932.
- Oath of the king, IV 486, 524, 526, 529, 547, 548, 549, 550, 552, 553; "as the king lives for you," I 349; "as Upwawet, lord of Siut and Anubis, lord of the cave, live for you," I 394; "as my father lives for me," I 658; "as Sesostriis lives," I 682; "as Re loves me, as my father Amon favors me," II 121, 318, 422, 570; "as Re loves me, as my father Atum favors me," III 327, 365.
- OBELISK, II 903, 908; of Seti I, III 202.
- at Elephantine, of Thutmose I, II 89.
- in Heliopolis, erected by Seti I, III 246, 544; inscribed by Ramses II, III 545; New York obelisk, II 634; London obelisk from, II 632-33.
- of the temple of Khammat in Soleb, II 890.
- of Ramses II at Tanis, III 392, 543 n. c; Luxor, III 543 n. c, 567; Karnak III 543 n. c.
- at Karnak: of Thutmose I, II 86; two of them, II 86; only one inscribed by Thutmose I, II 86; the other inscribed by Thutmose III, I 16; II 86; obelisk, Lateran, from Karnak by Thutmose III, II 626, and Thutmose IV, II 833-34; pyramidion of, II 834; Constantinople obelisk of Thutmose III, II 479 n. a, 620-31; four obelisks of Thutmose III, II 563, 571, 776; divine offerings for, II 563, 572; obelisks at Karnak: of Hatshepsut,

- II 304-21, 376; two of them, II 304, 309; one standing, II 304-319; one fallen, II 320-21; history of, II 304, 319; location of, II 304, 319; dimensions of, II 304.
- Obelisks on the sacred barge, II 888.
- Divine offerings for obelisks, II 563, 572.
- Obelisks made of black basalt, III 246; of granite, II 89, 304, 315, 318, 336, 624; III 567; IV 980, 982; of red granite, II 630.
- Obelisk inscription; see Inscriptions.
- OBLATION, I 432, 756; II 139, 286, 312, 355, 553, 554, 749, 814, 815, 952, 960; III 423; IV 141, 187, 208, 237, 259, 272, 290, 296, 354, 356, 383, 388, 468, 676, 768, 856, 857, 866, 870, 874, 958D.
- Festival oblation, IV 329, 330, 335, 928.
- Endowment of oblations, II 908; IV 329.
- Mortuary oblation, II 571, 1001.
- Oblation of vessels, II 654.
- Storehouse of, IV 259.
- OBLATION BEARER: chief of, IV 515.
- OBLATION STANDARDS, II 795.
- OBLATION TABLE, II 795; of costly stones, I 764; the great, of Osiris at Abydos, I 787.
- OBLATION TABLETS, II 795.
- OBSCURE PERIOD: minimum length of, I 52.
- OCCURRENCE, II 935; of numbering, I 81, 82; of royal jubilee, II 89; III 552, 553, 554, 556; of "Running-of-Apis," I 114; of Sed-jubilee, I 296, 298, 300, 302, 305, 435; IV 414.
- ODOR: of a god, II 196; of Punt, I 762; II 196, 274, 288; of king, III 148.
- OFFERING, I 409; II 954; III 16, 259, 260; IV 382, 678, 767, 860, 1021; records of, IV 1022; for Aton, II 996; of the ancestors, endowments for, by Harmhab, III 23; of images, IV 458, 63; for the ka, II 333, 353, 355; see also Mortuary offerings; on king's behalf, II 57; "Offering-which-the-king-gives," II 213, 766; royal, which Amon-Re and the king give, II 365; royal, which Osiris gives, II 367; of Pharaoh's house, III 55; tax collection for, III 55; of Min to Mentuhotep IV, I 437.
- Aton-offering of Aton, II 987.
- Daily offerings, II 919; III 31, 272, 526; IV, 141, 216, 217, 236, 262, 289, 313, 335, 346, 355, 359, 360, 381, 396, 609, 763, 958M.
- Divine offerings (usual term for temple income), I 156, 159, 160, 161, 165, 166, 167, 274, 299, 437, 756; of Amon II 102, 149, 159, 160, 170, 186, 225, 286, 293, 298, 302, 352, 390, 557, 559, 560, 648, 652, 749; III 263, 275, 518, 624; IV 47, 149, 190, 207, 217, 228, 229, 236, 256, 259, 265, 266, 268, 269, 283, 289, 309, 313, 320, 321, 324, 326, 327, 334, 341, 346, 347, 356, 357, 358, 360, 362, 363, 381, 387, 396, 399, 470, 471, 573, 676, 851, 854, 855, 856, 868, 906, 910, 927, 972, 1007, 1021; dues for, collected by two deputies of the army, III 54; endowment of, II 622, 792, 806, 900, 908; III 77, 159, 268; IV 256, 320, 335, 354, 355, 359, 654, 958M; fields of, II 102, 161, 186; grain of, I 274; overseer of, I 299; "hearings" of, conducted by vizier, II 706; storehouses of, IV 258; works of, II 757; in temple of Amon, established by Intef I, I 421; for Harakhte, II 562; for Min, II 567; for Min-Amon in Bohem, III 77, 159; for Mut-Hathor of Thebes, II 622; for Ptah, II 619, 620, 621; III 413; for Wennofer, III 526; for obelisks, II 563, 571; for statues, II 564, 571, 604, 618, 619, 620; III 272, 626.
- Evening offering, II 565.
- Festival offering, IV 383, 388, 763, 924, 925; for the feast of the "Appearance," II 569; for the feast of the "Beginning of the seasons," II 569; for feast of Peret-Min, II 566; —Food offering, III 150, 179, 204.
- OFFERING-TABLES, II 93, 225, 301, 390; IV 676, 910; given to the southern gods in Elephantine by Sesostris I, I 500; for temple of Abydos, I 534; made of alabaster, I 323 bis; gold, II 175, 390; IV 610, 611, 612, 958M, 1020; Asiatic copper, II 175; copper, IV 911; costly stone, IV 958M, 1020; marvelous stone, IV 287; lapis lazuli, I 534; II 390; bronze, I 534; II 175; IV 912; electrum, I 534, 610; II 164, 376; silver, I 534; II 175, 390; IV

- 610, 911, 912, 958M, 1020; mesnet stone, I 727.
- OFFERING-TABLET, I 308; II 35, 97; IV 199, 326; of silver, IV 735; white stone, IV 972.
- OFFICE, II 926, 1040; IV 321, 357, 534, 747; inheritance of, II 53, 766, 925, 926; III 622, 626, 647, 648; assigned, II 1025; divine offices, IV 1018.
- OFFICIAL BODY: of the temple of Upwawet, I 550; of the necropolis of Siut, I 584, 589; of the palace, I 631.
- Official body of Khnumhotep II, I 623; excellent ones, I 623; officers, I 623; artificers, I 623; peasant slaves, I 623.
- OIL, I 496; II 117; IV 216, 228, 263, 272, 283, 286, 299, 329, 344, 360, 387, 491, 770, 859, 992; of Egypt, IV 233, 376; Kharu, IV 233; Zahi, II 462; as tribute, II 750, 771.
- Best oil, IV 300, 348, 394.
- bk*-oil, IV 376; bk<sup>3</sup>-oil, IV 390; red bk-oil, IV 239, 376.
- Festival oil: for embalming, I 370.
- Green oil: from Retenu, II 473, 491, 509, 518; Naharin, II 482; Zahi, II 510, 519.
- Olive oil, III 208.
- nkh*-oil, IV 239, 376, 390, 394; of Egypt, IV 376; of Syria, IV 376.
- Sefet oil, I 241, 382; IV 376; from Retenu, II 509, 518.
- Sweet oil, III 208; IV 239; from Naharin, II 482; Retenu, II 491, 509, 518; of gums, IV 497, 498.
- thnt*-oil, I 366.
- OIL TREE, IV 216; Osiris, protector of, I 783.
- OINTMENT, II 185, 288, 918; III 71, 207; IV 335, 497, 875, 958M; choice, II 294; prime, of the pure ox, II 293; for taxes, IV 150; for oblation, II 612; for mortuary offering, II 365; for embalming, I 366; IV 966; presents of, I 372; for the temple, II 165, 615; of gums, IV 476, 477; of divine things, II 544, 615.
- OKEANOS, II 325; see also Index VI, the Great Green.
- OLD AGE, I 402; II 994, 1003, 1008; IV 489, 491, 612, 657, 675, 677, 705, 740, 784.
- OLD KINGDOM, I 5, 42; length of, I 56; Sothic date, I 44; calendar existed before, I 45.
- OLIVE LAND, IV 216, 263, 288, 394.
- OLIVE WOOD: from Assur, II 449.
- OLIVES, IV 239, 241, 379, 393.
- ONIONS, IV 296, 348.
- OPPRESSION, III 50, 67.
- ORACLE OF THE GOD, II 151, 250, 284, 285, 606, 823, 827; III 174, 534.
- ORGANS, KING'S: of iron, III 403.
- ORNAMENTS, II 544; IV 521, 538, 988H; of costly stones, I 534; II 545; IV 1011; gold, IV 231, 285, 343; IV 1011; of prince, IV 343; of divine consort, IV 988H; of divine votress, IV 988H.
- ORYX: for oblation, IV 768.
- White oryx, IV 190, 242, 266, 392; male of, IV 242, 293.
- OSTRACA, I 20; ostracon in Turin, I 69 n. j; in British Museum, 5623, 5638, I 474 n. d, 45.
- OSTRICH, III 475; eggs of, III 475.
- Ostrich feathers, III 475; from Punt, III 37.
- OVALS: containing names of a country, IV 130, 137, 718.
- OVERLAY, IV 889, 909, 970.
- OX CARTS, IV 73, 467.
- OX HIDES, IV 582.
- OXEN, II 719; IV 242, 293, 392, 482, 583, 859, 924, 944, 949, 954; for oblation, II 815, 960; IV 208, 329; for mortuary offering, I 518; II 111, 113, 114, 139, 149, 356, 365, 840; III 17, 526; for divine offering, II 160, 458, 616, 793, 798; IV 9, 190, 200; for feast offering, II 566; for taxes, II 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 726, 727, 731, 734, 738, 739, 740, 741, 743; flesh of, III 207, 208; from Punt, II 468; Naharin, II 482; Retenu, II 491, 616; with carved horn, III 475; used to drag stones, II 27; Libya, III 584; Genebteyew, II 474; Wawat, II 475, 487, 495, 503, 515, 527; Kush, II 494, 502, 514, 522.
- the pure, prime ointment of, II 293.
- s*<sup>3</sup>-ox, II 723.
- wn-dw*-ox, II 723, 742; III 413.
- White ox: offered to Re in Heliopolis, IV 870.

P

- PAINT, III 625.
 —Painted chariots, II 467, 491, 509; figures, II 601.
 —Painters, I 784.
 PAIR, IV 241, 394.
 —Pairs (= flagstaves), III 244; of msd.t-stone, III 246.
 PAKHONS: see Months.
 PALACE, II 64, 72, 107, 120, 235, 236, 237, 292, 317, 337, 343, 352, 377, 389, 771, 801, 978, 990, 1013, 1026, III 16, 20, 24, 28, 30, 71, 101, 213; 219, 230, 240, 365, 421, 577, 584, 642; IV 52, 91, 99, 209, 412, 678, 749, 848, 882, 932, 944, 958E, 966, 1019; master of, II 352; daily register of, II 393; men of, I 390.
 —Footstool of, I 320; Master of: see Index V.
 —Palace baths, I 187; Overseer of: see Index V.
 —Palace hall, I 187; Leader of: see Index V.
 —Secret things of, II 936; Master of: see Index V.
 —Laws of, III 101.
 —Palaces: of Amenemhet, I 483; decked with gold, I 483; ceiling of lazuli, I 483; doors of copper, I 483; bolts of bronze, I 483; of Ikhnaton, II 987, 989, 990; "Sahure-shines-with-crowns," audience hall of, I 239; House of Amenopet, IV 539; Houses-of-Snefru, wall of southland and northland, I 146; "Structure-of-Beauty," palace of Neferhotep, I 755.
 —for palace officials, see Index V under Butlers, Chief, Companion, Conductor, Grandees, Governors, Leader, Lords, Magnates, Master, Overseer, Princes, Ruler, Steward, Storeroom-keeper, Treasurer.
 —of a god, III 240; IV 192, 215; at Dér el-Bahri, II 375.
 —Door of the dwellers of the nether-world, III 240.
 —Temple palace, IV 338; Chief of: see Index V.
 PALANQUIN, IV 958E; poles of, IV 958E.
 PALEOGRAPHY, I 31.
 PALERMO STONE, I, 76-167; description of, I 76 n. a, 78; location of, I 67 n. a; archaic character, I 77; importance of, I 3, 56, 88.
 PALETTE, III 50; see also Ink.
 PALM: see Measures, linear.
 PALM GROVE, III 473; leaves IV 378, 395.
 —Palm fiber, IV 235, 301, 350, 379, 392; see also Date palm, Dom palm.
 PANELS: of cedar, IV 929.
 PANNIER: of silver, IV 231.
 PANTHER, II 80; III 475; IV 46; rage of, II 72, 80, 121, 792; IV 835, 841, 862; from Negro lands, I 136; IV 724; from Genebteyew, II 474.
 —Southern panther, II 321; from Punt, II 265, 272; skins of, II 265, 272, 321; III 475; IV 724.
 PAOPHI: see Months.
 PAPYRI: Abbott, I 421; inscription of, IV 509-535.
 —Amherst, I 69 n. a; IV 536-41.
 —Anastasi I, IV 713 n. g.
 —Anastasi II, III 425-26, 448 n. c.
 —Anastasi III, III 629-35.
 —Anastasi VI, III 636-38.
 —Berlin, No. 3019; I 474 n. d 6.
 —Berlin, No. 3029, I 498 n. a.
 —British Museum, No. 10053, IV 486;
 —Ebers, I 43 n. b.
 —Harris 500, I 24, 31, 68 n. e; II 547; IV 35, 60, 84, 145, 151-412; discussion of, IV 151-81.
 —Kahun, I 10, p. 48, 67 n. d.
 —Lee, IV 416 n. a, 423-56.
 —Mayer, IV 544-56.
 —Millingen, I 474, n. d 1.
 —Rollin, IV 416 n. a, 423-56.
 —Sallier I, I 24, 67 n. b, 69 n. g, 474 n. d 2, 3; II 4 n. b.
 —Sallier III, III 305 n. c, 315.
 —Sinuhe, I 486 n. d.
 —Turin, I 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 59, nn. a, b, c, d, 60 nn. g, h, 61 n. c, 62 n. d, 63 n. f, 64 n. b, 69 n. i, 78 n. a, 79 n. a, 86, 88, 161 n. b, 190, 416, 427, 460, 461; IV 416-56, 595-600.
 —Turin fragment, IV 542-43.
 —Wenamou, IV 557-91.
 —Westcar, I 24, 67 n. b; II 187, 188, 198 n. j; date of, II 188.
 PAPYRUS: sandals of, IV 241, 393; rolls of, IV 582.
 —Papyrus flowers, IV 244, 264, 295, 394.
 —Papyrus plants, IV 215, 271.
 —Papyrus rind, IV 238, 241, 294, 393.
 —Papyrus stems, IV 244.

- PARTIALITY: an abomination to show, II 668.
- PASTURE, I 408; pasturage, III 577.
- PATERNAL PROPERTY, I 423; IV 874.
- PATROL, IV 147.
- PAVEMENT (s>t w), II 13; IV 958J, M.
—Temple, of silver, IV 7, 671, 672.
- PAVILION, II 872.
—in Akhetaton, II 960; name of, II 960; in Medinet Habu, IV 17; name of, IV 17 n. c.
- PAYMENT, IV 880, 958G.
- PEASANT SERFS, II 536; II 107, 354; IV 125; given as endowment to a mortuary priest, I 630; III 413; made officials, I 281; meaning of name, I 536; duties of, I 536.
—of Amon, II 354; Chief of: see Index V.
- PEASANT SLAVES, III 271, 277, 526.
- PEASANTRY, III 322; Chiefs of: see Index V.
- PEASANTS, IV 539, 821; impost of IV 229.
- PEDET BIRDS, IV 242.
- PEN, I 5; II 916.
- PENALTIES, III 193; for robbing; III 51; extortion, III 54; stealing of slaves, III 55; stealing of hides by army officers, III 56; by soldiers, III 57; bribery, III 64; for stealing from the temples, IV 676; for murder, IV 658.
—Penalty on father entailed upon his posterity, I 778.
- PENDANT: of electrum, II 654; rock crystal, IV 287; costly stones, IV 287, 377.
- PEOPLE, IV 821, 958; given by the king to Methen, I 175; for endowment of mortuary offerings, I 202, 205, 206, 209; deeded to a god, II 966; distinguished from the inhabitants, I 445; listing the number of, II 916; of the Harem gate, IV 441; of the infantry, IV 466; Advocate of: see Index V; belonging to the temple, IV 146 n. c, 150, 223, 277, 281, 338, 354, 355, 357, 359, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 676, 1021.
—People (rhyt), I 445 bis; II 236, 766, 767, 768, 805, 840, 858, 993, 1002; III 59, 174, 175, 265, 268, 578, 580; IV 43, 47, 398, 921; for Chief of, Master of, see Index V.
- People of the court (cnhw), I 286.
- People (hnm.t), IV 47, 188; commands laid upon, II 767; of Naharin, II 858.
—hsb.w-people, III 192.
- People (pc.t), I 445; III 578.
- People (rmt), impost from, IV 225, 228.
- People of wax inscribed, for magical purposes, IV 455.
- PEOPLE'S BUREAU, II 689 n. d.
- PERFUME: festival, for embalment, I 382 bis; from Retenu, II 518.
- PERISTYLE COURT: at Luxor, III 506.
- PERSEA TREE, II 294 n. c; IV 385; the hidden, II 298; cut, IV 288.
- PESGU WOOD: from Retenu, II 447.
- PETITIONER, II 667; right of, to appeal, II 668, 689, 691; summons of, II 685.
- PETITIONS: to the king, by Nakht II, concerning landmarks, I 632; to the vizier, II 714, 715; to be in writing, II 691; Hall of: see Hall.
- PHALLI: uncircumcised, IV 52, 54; from Libya, III 587, 588, 601 ter.
- PHAMENOTH: see Months.
- PHARAOH: annals of, I 3, 6, 13, 20; II 621; title applied to the Heracleopolitan kings, I 401; officials of, I 401; lineal descent of, from Re, II 187; daily report to, from vizier, II 678; from chief treasurer, II 678; crown possessions of, IV 466; see also, King's house, and Index V: King.
—Domain of, I 294, 309, 310, 312, 356, 382; Custodian of: see Index V.
- PHARMUTHI: see Months.
- PHOENIX, HOUSE OF, IV 818 n. e.
- PHYLE: pyramid, I 356; Scribe of: see Index V; of priests, IV 468, 753.
- PIETY: for departed parents, I 181-85; toward parents, II 37.
- PIG (lead), II 493.
- PIGEON, II 726, 727, 735, 737; IV 298.
—Pigeon (myt), IV 242.
- PILLAR, III 504; four, II 1029; of heaven, II 376, 601, 656, 889; III 406, 480, 545; IV 720.
—Pillar of heaven (royal title), III 265; see also Index V: Great Pillar.
- PILLAR INSCRIPTION: at Gebelén, by Nesubenedbed, IV 628-30.

- Pillar Inscription*—
 —at Wadi Halfa, by Nehi, II 412-13.
 —Sebuca, by Ramses II, III 504.
- PITCHER: of gold, IV 735; silver, IV 735.
- PIVOTED, IV 343.
- PLACE: the great, a part of the Theban necropolis, IV 533, 665, 667; Mut, guardian of, IV 665.
 —"Place of Beauty," part of the Theban necropolis, IV 523, 525, 528, 533.
 —"Place of Truth," IV 465; meaning of, IV 465 n. f.
 —"Place which he knows," IV 272.
- PLAN: of battle, I 312; III 307.
 —of the Punt reliefs, II 252; of the reliefs of Seti I, III 81; Ramses III, IV 4.
 —Plans, II 368, 371, 914, 916; III 24, 50, 180, 207, 266, 270, 510; IV 38, 41, 58, 63, 64, 65, 105, 308, 354, 485, 625.
- PLANK, IV 345; see also Gang plank.
- PLANTS, IV 262, 272.
 —b > k > y > -plant, IV 234.
 —See also, Beni plant, Cyperus, Enbu plant, Flax, Hezet plant, Ideninu plant, Katha plant, Menhet plant, Papyrus, Reeds, Semu plants, Sebkheth plant, Storea, Yufiti plant.
- PLASTER: clay as, II 106.
- PLEA, IV 351.
- PLEASURE LAKE, II 869.
- PLEASURE MARSHES, I 745.
- PLOWMEN, IV 821.
- PLUME, III 610.
 —Plumes, the two, III 535; IV 988H; of Onouris, IV 365; of Tatenen, IV 62.
 —Double-plumed diadem: see Diadem.
- PLUNDER: by the army, II 430, 455, 459.
- POEM: of Pentaur, III 305-315; Ramses III, IV 93-99.
- POETRY, EGYPTIAN: teaching of Amenemhet I, I 476; tale of Sinuhe, I 486; building inscription of Sesostris I, I 499; teaching of Sehetepibre, I 747-48; hymn of victory by Thutmose III, II 655-62.
 —Court poetry, II 188; see also Hymns, Literary.
- POLE, IV 379, 391; chariot, II 435, 447; tent, II 435, 490; palanquin, IV 958E; carrying, I 430; IV 315.
- POLE HOUSES, in Punt, II 254.
- POLICE, IV, 525.
 —Chief of, IV 511, 512, 525; see also Index V.
- POLITARCH INSCRIPTIONS, I 28.
- POMEGRANATES, IV 234, 241, 301, 379, 391.
- POOL, III 84, 86, 100, 276, 291, 404; IV 141, 265, 295, 588, 681, 870, 972.
 —"Ibsekeb," name of pool, III 86; "Sweet," name of a pool, III 84.
 —Pools of Pithom of Merneptah, Hoptephirma, III 633.
 —"Pool of Horus," a place in Kush (?), tablet placed there by Amenhotep III, II 845.
 —Pool of Nun, II 887.
 —Pools of the marshes (=Delta), III 31.
- POOR: mercy to, I 328, 357; II 767, 768.
 —Poor man, laws on robbery of, III 51, 52, 58, 59, 61; on stealing from III 53; extortion from, III 54, 58, 59.
- PORT, II 254.
- PORTAL, II 889, 903; IV 191.
 —Temple portals, II 154, 564, 601, 835, 883, 886; III 525, 528, 567; IV 10, 205, 626; see also Doorways.
 —Portals of gold, II 890; electrum, II 883, 895; granite, III 525.
- PORTIERS: guarding the gates of the nether world, II 378.
- PORTRAIT, II 314; of the king: sphinx, II 802.
- POSSESSIONS, IV 851, 874, 876, 958.
 —Great in, a title, see Index V.
- POST, for balances, IV 288; for scales, IV 391.
- POULTRY YARDS, IV 9, 217, 260, 265, 323, 331.
- POWER: Ptah, bestower of, III 403; extraordinary, given by magic rolls, IV 455.
- PRACTICE OF MAGIC, IV 454-56; forbidden by the gods, IV 455; forbidden in the sacred writings, IV 456.
- PRAYER, II 245, 353, 994, 995, 996, 1003, 1008, 1013; III 204, 279, 423.

- 648; IV 186, 246, 249, 485, 942, 969, 973, 991; inscribed on tablets, IV 202; magical, III 18.
- Mortuary, II 111; III 648, of Zau, I 384; for the Pharaoh, II 97; posture in, II 37.
- PRECINCTS OF THE GODS, III 31, 223.
- PREDYNASTIC AGE, I 3; kings of, I 78, 79, 90.
- PRESENTS FROM RETENU, II 1030; see also Gifts.
- PRISON: the great, criminals in, III 683.
- PRISONERS OF WAR: brought to Egypt, from Naharin, II 81, 501, 581; III 344; Shasu, II 124; Zahi, II 392; Megiddo, II 402, 431, 435; Negeb, II 580; Tintto-emu, II 15; Negro lands, I 146; II 39, 645; Kush, II 41, 84, 122, 857; Khenthennofer, II 80; prisoners of war from Egypt, II 11; Aleppo, II 798A; Carchemish, II 583; Kadesh, II 585, 798A; Ketne, II 798A; Kharu, II 798A, 821; Kheta, III 342, 344; Niy, II 798A; Retenu the Lower, II 798A; Retenu the Upper, II 798A; Se(n)zar, II 798A; Tehenu, III 134; Thenew, II 798A; Tikhsi, II 487; Wan, II 582.
- Slain before Amon, III 113; see also Captives, Slaves.
- PRIVATE AFFAIRS OF HIS LORD, I 423C; private matter (judicial cases of), I 307.
- PRIVY CHAMBER, I 290; entered by Ptahshepses, I 256; Sabu-Ibebi, I 286; rank of the master of, II 675.
- Privy council, II 352.
- Privy office in charge of Thethi, I 423C.
- PROCEEDINGS: legal, IV I 204, 310; IV 423-43.
- PROCESSION, I 540, 669; II 357, 571, 618; III 212; IV 611, 727, 749, 761, 768, 836, 988J.
- Procession of a god, II 133, 139, 300; of Harendotes, II 181; Amon, II 608; of Hathor, II 357; of Mut, II 357; of Ptah, II 615; at feast: "Beginning-of-the-Seasons," II 615.
- PRODIGIES, II 187; see also Wonder.
- PROPERTY, I 551, 570; II 840; IV 767, 946; temple, IV 251, 277, 280, 927; registered in the office of vizier, II 688; confiscation of, I 779; IV 1024.
- PROSECUTION: of the queen of Pepi I, I 310; in the harem conspiracy, IV 425, 444, 446, 451; of practicers of magic, IV 454-56.
- PROSTRATION (in prayer), IV 1018; see also Kissing the ground.
- PROVERB, III 611.
- PROVISION, III 230; IV 944; see also Magazine.
- PROW, II 251, 797.
- PTOLEMAIC PERIOD, I 24; II 189.
- PUBLIC ARCHIVES: (place of writings), I 270.
- PUNISHMENT: to be inflicted when cause is given for, II 668; IV 424; —Punishment, executed, IV 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 452; punishment not executed, IV 444, 453; punishment of death, IV 454.
- Consisting of: placing upon the rack, IV 524; cutting off the noses and ears, IV 451, 452, 524; see also Imprisonment.
- PURE HOUSE: of Debhen, I 212; see also House.
- PURIFICATION, II 568; at coronation, II 216, 240; of temples, IV 905 et passim; of kings, IV 843 et passim; endowment for, I 209.
- PYLON, II 889, 894, 917; III 505, 508; IV 621, 626, 632, 707; double, II 906; III 525.
- Pylon III: in Karnak, erected by Amenhotep III, II 885, 889, 903.
- Pylon IV, IV 889 n. a.
- Pylon VI, II 402 n. a, 520 n. f, 541 n. a, 646.
- Pylon VII: at Karnak, II 404, 647; fragment of, II 593-98.
- Pylon VIII, 403 n. b.
- Pylon XI, III 34 n. a.
- Pylon: in temple of Karnak, erected by Amenhotep II, II 795; made of sandstone, II 795.
- Pylons: at Karnak temple, the two of Thutmose I, II 103, 304, 317; of Hatshepsut, II 243.
- Pylon: western, built by Amenhotep III, II 885.
- Pylons: at Abydos' temple, II 246.
- Pylon towers, III 269, 356 n. a.

Pylon—

—Pylon inscriptions: see under Inscriptions.

PYRAMID, III 577; IV 539; base of, IV 517; investigation of, IV 513; upper chamber of, I 322; Attached to, Overseer of: see Index V.

—Pyramid: "Shelter-of-Shepseskaf," I 151.

—"The-Soul-of-Sahure-Shines," I 159, 249.

—of Zoser, terraced, I 170; Methen buried beside it, I 170.

—of Khufu, I 180.

—of Henutsen, daughter of Khufu, I 180.

—"Great-is-Khafre," I 184.

—"Great-is-Khafre," I 202, 205, 206, 208, 209.

—"Divine-is-Menkure," I 211 bis.

—Temple of Menkure, I 212.

—of Hir, I 212, 212 n. c.

—"Isesi-is-[Beautiful]," I 274.

—"Horizon-of-Khufu," I 275.

—Teti, at Sakkara, I 289.

—of the queen of Mernere: "Mernere-Shines-and-is-Beautiful," I 321, 322 bis, 323, 324, 345.

—"Pepi-Remains-Beautiful," I 356.

—"Neferkere-Remains-Living," I 341, 346, 356; domain of, I 374.

—"Merire-Remains-Beautiful," I 341, 345, 346.

—"Fame-of-Ity," I 387.

—Brick pyramid of Intef I, on the western plain of Thebes, I 423C n. f; containing the mortuary stela of Intef I, I 423, 424; investigated by the Ramessid inspectors, IV 514; now disappeared, I 423G n. f; of Amenemhet I, in Kenofar, I 490 n. a.

—of Sesostris I, at Lisht, I 507 n. b; pyramid chapel, of Sesostris I, at Lisht, I 507, 508 n. b; columns, lake, gates of, I 509; stairway of I 528.

—"Amenu-kherep," of Amenemhet II, I 601.

—of Tetisheri, II 36.

—of Mentuhotep II, IV 520.

—of Ahmose-Sepir, IV 519.

—of Kemose, IV 519.

—of Sekenenre-Taoo, IV 518.

—of Sekenenre-Taoo, IV 518.

—of Sekhemre-Shedtowe-Sebekemsaf, IV 517.

—of Sekhemre-Upmat-Intefo, IV 516; stela of, IV 516.

—of Nubkheprure-Intef, IV 515.

—of Intefo, IV 514; stela of, IV 514; king's figure of, IV 514.

—Pyramid city, governors of: see Index V.

PYRAMIDIUM, I 321; II 313, 624, 630, 633; of electrum, II 624, 630, 633, 834; limestone, IV 982.

—in Mehenet of Sais, IV 982; of Sesostris I, I 503.

PYRAMIDIUM HOUSE: of Heliopolis, IV 871.

Q

QUARRY: opened, IV 704, 705.

—of Gebelên, IV 629;

—of Miam, IV 474.

—of alabaster, at Hatnub, I 7, 305, 323, 695 n. b, 696; location of, I 695.

—of black basalt, at Hammamat, I 675.

—of granite, at Assuan, I 42; II 304; at Elephantine, I 322; at First Cataract, I 324; Ibhet, I 321, 322; at Silseleh, I 49.

—of gritstone, at Gebel el-Ahmar, near Cairo, II 906 n. a.

—of limestone, at Ma' sara: see Index VI; at Troja, I 210, 212, 239, 274, 289, 290, 307, 509; II 800, 875.

—of sandstone, at Silseleh, I 49; II 935; III 205 n. c; IV 18, 701 n. d.

—Quarry inscriptions: see under Inscriptions, Rock.

QUARRY CHAMBERS: opened, I 740; III 27, 799, 800, 875.

QUARRY SERVICE, I 390; II 935; men of the palace, I 390; soldiers, I 390; quarrymen of, I 390; IV 19, 537; chiefs of, II 935; IV 466, 474.

QUARRYMEN, I 390, 447, 697, 710; III 172; IV 466; works of, IV 466; master workmen of, IV 466.

QUARTERS: temple, IV 992; of foals, IV 850.

QUARTZOSE: black, stela of, III 427 n. a.

QUAY: of Elephantine, IV 146 n. c; of Karnak, I 22; IV 693 n. a.

QUEEN: titles of, I 341; herald of: see Index V.

QUIVER, II 785; III 450; IV 70; Libyan, III 584; from Meshwesh, IV 111.

R

- RACK: witness placed upon, IV 524.
- RAIMENT, II 719; of a god, IV 966.
- RAISED WORK, IV 231, 302, 319; of costly stones, IV 315.
- RAISINS, IV 301, 350.
- RAM, IV 589; divine shadow in form of, II 596, 889 n. a.; Ptah-Tatenen, lord of Mendes in form of a, III 400; as adornments of temples, II 894, 895; IV 635 n. d, 649.
- Rams' heads: as adornment of sacred barge, made of gold, IV 209.
- RAMP, IV 189, 355, 356, 357, 358.
- RAMPART, II 596, 616, IV 55, 118, 856, 861.
- RANK, I 307, 312, 332; II 1040; IV 995; of the official body of the temple, I 550; III 565, 623.
- RATIONS: daily, for the soldiers, I 431; III 207, 208; of meat and fowl, I 372.
- REAL ESTATE: cases of, II 686, 688; see also Estate, Property.
- REAP, IV 893; see also Harvest.
- REAR: of the army, II 427.
- of foreign armies, IV 46; rearguard, I 680; II 421.
- REBELLION: in Memphis, IV 928; Heracleopolis, I 399; Menet-Khufu, I 625; of Egyptians, II 11, 15, 16; Kush, II 844; Shasu, III 101; Oasis, IV 726; Askalon, III 355. See also Revolt, Insurrection.
- REBELS, III 580; IV 62, 130, 857, 871, 990.
- RECORDING, II 555; IV 679.
- RECORDS: III 580; IV 178, 460; Assyro-Babylonian, I 3; Egyptian, I 3; of nomes, kept by vizier, II 703; legal, copy of, IV 535; the mysterious, III 410; in temple at Thebes, of XXI Dyn., I 22; boundary, I 531; daily, kept by Thutmose III, II 392, 433, 455, 540; for the future, II 568; —of Pharaoh, III 647; overseer of, I 348.
- of the vizier, II 684; loan of, II 684.
- of Thoth, III 448 n. b.
- Records of Restorations: of Hatshepsut at Benihasan, I 15; of mummies, IV 592-94.
- of Nile levels, I 22, 95-169; IV 695-98; 793-94, 886-88.
- of offerings, IV 1022.
- RECRUITS: crew of, I 343; II 332; III 340; IV 70; commander of, I 512; youth of, I 527, 697; scribe of, II 916; III 17.
- RED CONGLOMERATE: from the Red Mountain, I 493 n. b. See Griststone.
- REEDS, IV 234, 287, 378, 391.
- Reed grass, IV 241.
- REFECTORY, III 624; IV 958J.
- REFORMS: of Harmhab, I 18; see also Laws, Enactments.
- REGALIA, II 788; IV 29, 142, 401; of Horus and Set, IV 62; of Re, IV 142; made of costly stone, IV 9.
- REGISTER: of property, II 688; of boundaries, II 689; daily, in the palace, II 393, 472.
- REGULATIONS, II 568, 666; petitions handled according to, II 667; of the ancestors, III 536.
- of impost, III 210; of temple plans, III 263; of army, II 695; of prophets, II 754; of priests, IV 250; of Sed jubilees, IV 414; of commandant, II 298.
- House regulations engraved on tablets, IV 202.
- RELEASE: from taxes, III 57, 63.
- RELIEFS:
- Snefru, I 169.
- Khufu, I 176.
- Nekonekh, I 226.
- Sahure, I 236.
- Persen, I 241.
- Nuserre, I 250.
- Menkuhor, I 263.
- Isesi, I 264.
- Senezemib, I 276.
- Pepi, I 302.
- Mernere, I 317, 318.
- Mentuhotep II, I 425.
- Mentuhotep IV, I 435.
- Mentuhotep, I 514.
- Sesostris I, I 510.
- Sesostris I, I 510.
- Sesostris II, I 617.
- Sesostris III, I 643, 646.
- Thuthotep, I 694, 695, 699, 704-6.
- Sehetepibre, I 744.
- Yuf, II 110.
- Thutmose I, II 244.
- Thutmose II, II 125 n. e, 168, 173.
- Hatshepsut, I 13; II 192, 193, 195,

- 199, 202, 204, 205, 206, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 216, 217, 226, 228, 231, 234, 240, 241; the Punt reliefs, II 246-51, 252, 254, 259, 263, 266, 267, 270, 273, 275, 279, 283, 289, 305; obelisk, II 312, 323, 330, 336; bas-relief, II 337; stela, II 338.
- Senmut, II 359, 363.
- Puemre, II 382, 385.
- Thutmose III, II 450 n. a, 543-46, 645, 646, 653, 655.
- Rekhmire, II 712, 714, 717, 747, 752, 753, 756, 761, 762.
- Menkheperreseneb, II 773, 774.
- Amenhotep II, II 781, 791, 798A, 807.
- Thutmose IV, II 811, 819.
- Amenhotep III, II 187-212, 215-42, 841, 843, 845, 871, 872, 874, 876, 879, 904.
- Khamhet, II 870, 871, 872.
- Ikhnaton, II 933, 978, 981, 982, 986, 989, 1014, 1016, 1017, 1018.
- Ramose, II 938, 941, 944.
- Bek, II 974, 976.
- Huy, II 1014, 1016.
- Tutenkhamon, II 1021, 1028, 1035.
- Huy, II 1022-24, 1035, 1039-40.
- Harmhab, III 2, 5-9, 10-13, 15, 18, 20, 34, 37.
- Neferhotep, III 69, 73.
- Seti I, III 80-156, 163, 165, 203.
- Ramses II, III 255, 258, 284, 328-51, 354, 397, 415, 431, 450, 452, 454, 457, 460, 462, 464, 468, 470, 473, 475, 481, 485, 496, 539.
- Merneptah, III 594, 597, 628.
- Roy, III 626 n. c, 628.
- Siptah, III 647, 648.
- Ramses III, IV 25, 29-34, 49-57, 69-82, 99-114, 117-30, 132-35, 137-38, 184, 246, 305.
- Ramses IV, IV 458, 463.
- Ramses VI, IV 476, 477.
- Ramses VII, IV 484.
- Ramses IX, IV 493.
- Hrihor, IV, 611, 612, 613, 614, 621, 626.
- Sheshonk I, IV 702, 709-718.
- Osorkon II, IV 749-50; 757-70.
- Pediese, IV 779.
- Weshtehet, IV 783.
- Piankhi, IV 814, 815.
- Mentemhet, IV 903, 909.
- RELIGIOUS LITERATURE, I 2, 20.
- RENEWAL OF BURIAL, IV 499, 593.
- RENT OF FIELDS, IV 482.
- REPORT: on battles, IV 834; on harvest, II 871; on judgments, II 681; of Wenamon, IV 557-91; from the overseers of the interior, II 677, 708.
- of chief treasurer, I 423D; II 676, 678, 679; to chief treasurer, I 428, 445; II 679.
- from vizier, II 678, 679; to vizier, II 676, 677, 679.
- from doorkeeper of judgment hall, II 711.
- from the fortresses, II 676, 702.
- from navy officers, II 710.
- from the court, II 676, 679; from the king's house, II 676, 679.
- REPTILES, II 984.
- RESIDENCE, III 406.
- “House-of-Ramses-Meriamon-Given-Life,” name of residence of Ramses II, III 406.
- Residence city, I 628; garrison of, II 694.
- RESIN, of myrrh, II 265.
- RESTING-PLACE: of a god, III 213, 215, 224, 246, 510, 515; of noblemen, IV 511.
- RESTITUTION: ordered in cases of robbery and theft, III 53.
- RESTORATIONS: of temples, II 152, 157, 612; III 31, 537; IV 178, 179, 276, 357, 358, 359, 360, 634, 659, 897-99, 909-916, 966, 968, 1022; of tomb, II 112; III 32B; of inscription, I 15; II 192 n. d; II 573, 856, 878, 896, 968; III 200; wall of Luxor, IV 627-30; mummies, IV 592-94, 637-47.
- REVENUES, IV 949; for the gods, II 793.
- REVOLT: by Negroes, II 826; by Nubia, II 121; Kush, II 844; Ibheth, II 853; Gezer, III 606; Wawat, III 606 n. a.
- of high priest of Amon, IV 486.
- REWARDS, II 583, 584, 585, 587, 588, 872, 926, 944; III 6, 73, 486, 643; IV 471, 492, 494, 611, 633, 708, 879.
- RINGS: of silver, II 584; of b<sup>2</sup>-b<sup>2</sup>-y<sup>2</sup>, IV 377.
- Commercial: see Gold, Silver.
- Earrings, IV 876.
- Seal rings of Thethi, I 423D.
- RITES, IV 988J.
- Ritual roll of fields, III 271.
- RIVER, THE LIVING, II 378; water of, II 925; see Living stream.
- River-mouths, IV 44; see also Index VI.
- ROAD, IV 1004, 1006, 1007; to Yam, I 333; of Elephantine, I 334; of

- Uhet, I 335; from Yehem to Aruna, II 421; to Taanach, II 421; to Zefi, II 421.
- ROAST: for food, III 207; for mortuary offering, I 569, 571; II 571.
- ROBBERY, IV 147, 150, 566; laws on, III 51, 52; by soldiers, forbidden by Uni, I 312.
- ROBE OF MEK-LINEN, IV 232.
- ROCK INSCRIPTIONS: see Incriptions.
- ROD, II 758; beating with, IV 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 555.
—Ipet-rod, II 995.
- ROLL, III 50; IV 483; of papyrus, IV 582; of names, IV 545; of testimony, IV 534; of the house of Osiris, I 758.
—House of rolls, III 264, 410.
—Leather rolls for daily records, II 392, 433.
—Ritual roll of fields, III 271.
—šw-rolls, II 742.
- ROMAN PREFECTS OF EGYPT, I 28.
- ROOF, TEMPLE, IV 315.
- ROPE OF PALM FIBER, IV 235, 379, 392; coils of, IV 582.
- ROSEMARY, IV 234, 344, 378, 392.
- ROWING, II 809.
- RUDDER, I 493; III 291.
- RUG: under the feet of the vizier, II 675.
- RULER'S TABLE, IV 695; Commandant of: see Index V.
- RULES, IV 908; obsolete, IV 908; of war IV 861.
- S
- SACKS, II 263, 735, 750; III 37; IV 32; of myrrh, II 263; of grain, II 319; IV 550; of gold dust, III 37; silver, IV 566.
- SACRED ANIMALS: see Animals.
—Sacred writing, II 353; forbidding practice of magic, IV 456; house of, I 533; IV 445, 460.
- SACRIFICE, IV 857; of the gazelle at Hammamat, I 436; of goats, I 453; of cattle, I 453. See Offering.
- SACRIFICIAL TABLET OF SILVER, IV 199.
- SAILORS, I 275, 360; IV 825, 858, 859; for Captain of, Chief of, Commander of, see Index V.
- SAILS, II 798; IV 578, 944.
- “SALÂM”: said by Libyans, III 617; IV 43; by Meshwesh, IV 97.
- SALT, IV 235, 241, 379, 392.
—špr-salt, IV 299, 348.
—Salt-gatherers of Elephantine, IV 148.
- SANCTUARY, II 298, 300, 540, 555, 758, 935, 987, 994; III 16, 178, 240; IV 141, 251, 471, 678.
—of the South, endowment of, I 156, 159.
- SANDALS, I 312, 430; II 148, 245, 268, 303, 451, 656; III 84, 156, 159, 204, 359, 371, 450, 465, 471, 584; IV 412.
—Made of leather, IV 241, 394; of papyrus, IV 241, 393.
- SANDSTONE, II 389, 601, 775, 903; IV 914; chapel of, II 152; Holy of Holies of, II 153; pylon of, II 795; III 505; columns of, II 795; IV 910; lakes constructed of, IV 910, 912; temple of, II 157 n. c, 611, 614, 883, 886, 890, 895, 898, 905; III 216, 217, 220, 500, 507, 510, 512, 515, 521, 522; IV 4, 7, 9, 14, 189, 195, 214, 602, 603, 610, 625, 649, 897, 898, 899; adytum of, II 639; IV 14; doorways of, II 792; doorposts of, III 625; great seat of, IV 5, 14; tower of, IV 189; stelæ of, I 510 n. a, 753 n. a; II 54 n. a, 90 n. g; 109 n. b, 904 n. a; III 157 n. a.
—Sandstone from Red Mountain, II 153.
—Sandstone mountain, at Abu Simbel, III 500.
—Quarry of, at Silsileh, II 935; III 205 n. c; IV 18, 701 n. d.
- SARCOPHAGUS, I 253; presented by the king, I 269, 273, 275, 307; of Mernere: “Chest-of-the-living,” I 321; of ancestor of Kheti, I 402; of Mentuhotep IV, I 436, 448; of Apis, IV 1011.
- SCALES, IV 391; post for, IV 391.
- SCARABS: of Thutmose III, II 625 n. f; Amenhotep III, II 859, 861–62, 863–64, 865, 866–67, 868–89.
—Made of black granite, IV 191; bronze, IV 233; costly stone, IV 377, 390; lapis lazuli, IV 233, 285, 343; malachite, II 233, 285, 343; minu stone, IV 233; red jasper, IV 233, 377; rock crystal, IV 377.
- SCEPTER (w<sup>3</sup>s), ROYAL, I 646; II 436; IV 493.
- SCIENTIFIC TREATISES, I 20; on medi-

- cine, I 20; mathematics, I 20; astronomy, I 20.
- SCOURGE, ROYAL, III 69; IV 62.
- Scourging as penalty on soldiers for stealing hides, III 57.
- SCOUT, BORDER, III 616; Egyptian III 321, 330, 334, 578; Hittite, III 321, 322, 330.
- Scouting, II 916.
- SCRAPS: of bronze, IV 343; copper, IV 373, 385, 389; gold, IV 373, 386, 389; silver, IV 231, 343, 373, 386, 389.
- SCULPTORS, IV 466; Chief of: see Index V.
- SCULPTURE, III 517, 519; IV 311.
- Sculptured stone, I 500; IV 191.
- SEAL, II 182, 185, 239, 352; IV 353, 689, 871, 908.
- as pendant, of costly stone, IV 233, 377, 290.
- Hittite seal, III 391.
- Made of gold, II 32; rock crystal, IV 233, 303, 345, 349, 377; ubat stone, IV 287, 377; wrought wood, IV 234, 284, 345, 391.
- Seal of writings, I 274; royal, I 351; II 1022; of privy office, I 423C; of office, II 1024, 1025.
- Seal of sgm w-officers, II 684.
- Seal ring, I 423 D; II 32 n. a.
- Seal-scribe: see Index V.
- SEALING, II 371; of treasury, reported to vizier, II 676; of property lists by vizier, II 688; of boundaries by vizier, II 689; edicts to navy, II 710.
- SEASONS OF THE YEAR, I 387 et passim.
- SEAT, THE GREAT: of a god, II 640, 901, 908, 987; III 230, 233, 237, 240, 242, 260, 269, 525; IV 5, 7, 14, 201, 251, 311, 315, 319, 331; =tomb, IV 523, 533.
- Made of alabaster, III 525, 529; electrum, IV 14, 610; gold, IV 7, 250; sandstone, IV 5.
- SEBKHET PLANT, IV 235, 392.
- SECRETS, I 755; of court, I 377; of heaven, II 936; of heaven, earth, and nether world, II 936; III 623; of the divine book, II 915; Masters of: see Index V.
- Secret chambers of the mountains, II 946.
- Secret chapel, III 412.
- Secret mine of Sinai, I 266.
- Secret things of his majesty, I 270, 285, 305, 423C, 533 bis, 534, 668; from the double w-c-b-l-house, for Mekhu's funeral, I 370; of the palace, II 936; of the temple, I 550, 745; IV 706, 708; of the king's wardrobe, I 608.
- Secret words, IV 321.
- Secret writings, II 355, 748.
- SEDAN CHAIR, II 981.
- "SEED IS NOT": said of Libyans, III 604; IV 91; Seped, III 604; IV 91; Tehenu, IV 87; Meshwesh, III 604; IV 43; Amor, III 604; IV 39; Israel, III 603, 617; Temeh, IV 50, 58; northerners, IV 66.
- SEHER, STATUE OF, IV 302.
- SEMDETS: of irer stone, IV 377; rock crystal, IV 377; hirset stone, IV 377; red jasper, IV 377; hukamu stone, IV 377; costly stone, IV 377.
- SEMU PLANT, IV 240, 344, 378, 392.
- SÉPULCHERS: inspection of, IV 511, 521; investigation of, IV 513.
- Sepulcher chamber, IV 540.
- SERF LABORERS, III 566; IV 402; of necropolis, IV 525; of temple, IV 313, 321, 354, 358, 360, 362, 386.
- SERFS, IV 932.
- SERFS, PEASANT, I 281, 536, 630; II 107; III 277; IV 933.
- SERPENT, II 300; IV 922; as adornments, II 888; as sign for Aphroditopolis, I 423 n. a.
- SERPENT CREST, IV 38, 130, 335, 721, 814, 882; the double, IV 895.
- SERVANT THERE (=myself), I 372 et passim.
- SERVANTS, II 989; III 9; of the Negroes, II 854.
- SESHA BIRDS, IV 242, 298, 347.
- SETTING OF TOMB, I 308.
- SETTLEMENTS, III 141, 270; IV 147, 278, 281; of Naharin, II 479; of Kharu, II 884; of Tehenu, III 611; of women in temples, IV 321.
- SHADOW: king as, IV 47, 71, 72, 103, 850, 854.
- Divine shadow (term for the manifestation of a god), II 104, 302 n. a, 596, 889, 890, 907.
- Shadow of Re, name for "temple of Aton" in Akhetaton, II 956, 1016, 1017, 1018; IV 363.

- SHEAF, III 404.
- SHED BIRD, II 571.
- SHEDEH (=wine), IV 213, 228, 233, 239, 262, 269, 272, 283, 286, 292, 299, 309, 313, 329, 335, 344, 376, 387, 390, 468, 734, 768.
- Shedeh gardens of Re, IV 262.
- SHEEP, IV 41.
- SHELLS: from Punt, II 272.
- SHELTER, IV 992.
- SHENE FISH, IV 243.
- SHEPHERD, THE GOOD: royal title, II 900; III 195, 580; of the cattle of Amon, IV 212.
- SHESA FRUIT, IV 378, 395.
- SHIELD, III 475, 489; IV 74, 105; from Retenu, II 509; Kush, II 1035.
- Amon as, III 581; IV 72, 246.
- King as, IV 57, 62.
- Made of leather, II 802.
- SHIP, IV 354, 566, 571, 576, 578, 586, 599, 678, 767, 821, 825, 831, 840, 861, 863, 864, 873, 879, 883, 1003, 1005, 1006, 1007; royal, II 7, 332; captives taken in, II 15; cabin of, IV 840; Captain of, see Index V; made of cedar, I 146, 465; II 32, 94, 492; IV 209, 574.
- Temple ship, IV 19, 147, 193, 209, 270.
- Ship (=sacred barge of Osiris), II 183.
- Ships of Ahmose I: "The Offering," II 7; "Shining in Memphis," II 8.
- "Star-of-the-Two-Lands," II 332 n. d.
- Byblos ship, IV 574; made of cedar, II 492.
- Keftiyew ship in Zahi, II 492.
- Ships of Sidon, IV 574.
- Thekel ships, IV 588.
- Ships from Zahi, II 460, 492.
- Large ship, I 308; III 441.
- Dewatowe ships, I 146, 147.
- Sixteen barges, I 146.
- Sektu ship, in Sahi, II 492.
- wsh*-ships, IV 19.
- mis*-ship, III 274.
- See also Barges, Barques, Boats, Treasure-ship, Troop-ship, Vessels, Warships.
- SHIPBUILDING, I 138, 146; at Red Sea by Enenkhet, I 360 n. e; by Henu, I 432.
- SHOOTING, IV 842.
- SHORES, II 966.
- SHRINES, I 156, 667, 787; II 126, 127, 197, 198; 201, 375, 376, 380, 390, 606, 607, 889 n. a; III 237; IV 250, 254, 312, 320, 539, 908; the seat of a god, II 374; monolithic, IV 198, 320.
- Shrine of a barge, called "great house," IV 331, 354; in the sacred barge of Amon, II 888; IV 209.
- Barque shrine, of fine gold, IV 982.
- Portable shrine, I 667; II 173; IV 315, 599.
- "The Horizon of the God," probably in Dêr el-Bahri temple, II 374; Sekhet Re, a shrine in the temple of Atum in Heliopolis, see Index II; in temple of Khonsu at Karnak, IV 609.
- Doors of, II 156, 889 n. a; IV 198; hall of, II 775; statues of, II 156, 889 n. a.
- Made of carob wood, I 667; ebony, II 127; electrum, II 374, 776, 888; IV 1020; fragrant wood I 667; gold, I 667; IV 209, 331; granite, II 376, 775; IV 198, 254, 319; lazuli, I 667; meru wood, I 667; silver, I 667; stone, II 156.
- Water carrier of, IV 539.
- Shrine chamber, III 529.
- Shrine inscription: see Inscriptions.
- SHROUD OF MYSTERIOUS LINEN, IV 1011.
- SIEGE, IV 861.
- SIEVE OF SILVER, IV 203, 231.
- SIFTING VESSEL OF SILVER, IV 203, 231.
- SILVER, II 280, 342, 383, 390, 434, 558, 601, 720, 722, 723, 727, 730, 732, 733, 734, 735, 739, 740, 771, 773, 887, 902, 992, 993; III 63, 71, 137, 151, 204, 210, 309, 428, 434, 453, 512, 515, 527; IV 7, 27, 29, 30, 31, 32, 126, 141, 150, 190, 228, 230, 245, 256, 259, 272, 283, 284, 285, 313, 335, 341, 342, 349, 354, 360, 372, 373, 383, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 494, 521, 568, 576, 577, 580, 582, 635, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 708, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 847, 852, 859, 875, 876, 878, 881, 883, 889, 909, 958E, G.
- Commercial: in rings, II 436, 485, 490, 518, 1035; sack, IV 566; crude, IV 285; in scraps, IV 231, 343, 373, 386, 389.
- as material for vessels, II 162.
- as adornment of other objects, II 32, 92, 165, 185, 301, 375, 435, 883,

- 888; IV 312, 315, 538; temple floors adorned with, II 806, 886, 889, 890.
 —as reward of honor, III 6, 73.
 —Articles made of silver: altars, IV 735, 736, 737; amulet IV 319, 373, 386; bowls, IV 735; candelabra, IV 735; cartouche vessel, IV 735; casket, IV 231; drinking-vessels (ib. w.), III 589; IV 476, 477; flat dishes, II 447; IV 735; hin-vessel, IV 735; spouted vessel, IV 735; axe, II 24; jars, II 32; drinking-vessels for the ka, II 32; great pails, II 32; sphinxes, II 32; inlay figures, IV 489; offering-tablets, IV 735; pannier, IV 231; rings, II 584; sieve, IV 203, 231; sifting-vessel, IV 203, 231; censer, I 500; offering-tables, I 534; II 175, 390; IV 610, 911, 912, 958M, 1020; shrine, I 667; pitcher, IV 735; statues, II 436; IV 250, 268, 302, 316, 326, 349, 395; table vessels, IV 190, 269, 354, 357; tablet, III 371, 372, 373, 380, 387, 388, 391; IV 202, 231, 285, 317, 343; temple pavement, IV 7, 671, 672; vase, I 500; II 32, 164, 754; IV 203, 231, 269, 327, 538; vessels, II 615, 795, 1028, 1031, 1035; III 106; IV 343, 476, 497, 566, 730, 992; dw-vessels of, IV 735.
 —House of silver, II 352; Overseer of: see Index V.
 —Silver from the malachite country, IV 409; Naharin, II 482; III 434; Kheta, II 485; III 420; Senzar, II 584; God's Land, III 116, 274; Libya, III 584; Retenu, II 447, 491, 518, 533(?), 820; Assur, II 446; Zahi, II 459, 490.
 —Silver house, the double, I 533, 664; II 43, 52, 377.
 SILVERSMITHS, II 754.
 SINGER, IV 589; temple, II 1018.
 —Singing women: of the house of the divine votress of Amon-Re, IV 521, 543; of Amon-Re, IV 641, 755.
 SIRIUS (Sothis): reappearance of, I 40; to be observed by the vizier, II 709; see also Sothic.
 SISTER-WIFE, IV 774.
 SISTRUM, II 995; III 414; IV 847, 943; sh̄m, II 93; šsy.t, II 93.
 —Sistrum-bearer: Mut, the, IV 733; of Harsaphes in Heracleopolis, IV 792.
 SITTING: of the court, II 292; in the vizier's hall, II 675.
 SKINS: of southern panther, II 260, 321, 474, 486; IV 724; M-ḥ ḏ-w, II 449; see also Hides.
 —Water-skins of Libya, III 609, 610.
 SKINS, THE 40, CONTAINING THE LAW, II 675, 712; III 45.
 SLANDER, IV 533.
 SLAUGHTERING BLOCK, II 149.
 —Slaughter yards, IV 190.
 SLAVES, III 82; king's, IV 846; for temples, II 402 n. c. 555 881, 884; III 78, 138, 160; IV 200, 217, 220, 225, 257, 322, 338, 355, 356, 359, 360, 404, 680, 682, 687, 1021; mortuary temples, II 924, 925, 926; III 271; peasant slaves, III 271.
 —Slaves: from Khenthennofer, II 14; Tinto-emu, II 15; Punt, II 486; Kush, II 493, 502, 514, 522, 526; Wawat, II 487, 494, 503, 515; Asiatic, II 555, 587; IV 217; Syrian (Ḥ ḏ-ruw), II 555; Avaris, II 12; Sharuhen, II 13; Tikhsi, II 587; Retenu, II 436, 447, 467, 471, 491, 509, 518, 533; Zahi, II 460, 462; Naharin, II 480, 482; Arrapachitis, II 512.
 —Slave service: laws on, III 55.
 —Stealing of slaves, III 55; penalty for, III 55.
 SLINGERS: slinging stones, IV 842.
 SMITING: of the Northerners, I 81; the Troglodytes, I 81, 104, 176.
 SOCIETY, CLASSES OF: count (ḥ c ty-c), I 536; official (šr), I 536; citizen (ndš), I 536; peasant (y c ḥty), I 536; see also these subjects in Index V and under People.
 SOLDIERS, I 390, 410; II 299, 335; III 40, 195, 271, 616; IV 55, 65, 71, 97, 822, 825, 838, 841, 858, 863, 878; provision of, while on march, I 430; heads cut off from, II 225; penalty for stealing hides by, III 57.
 —Soldiers of Bekhten, III 442, 444, 446.
 SON-IN-LAW: Ptahshepses of Shepseskaf, I 54.
 SORCERESS: Mut, the great, I 141; the two great, II 314.
 —Sorcery: Wereret, great in, II 288; see also Bewitching, Magic.
 SOTHIC CALENDAR: early existence of, I 45.
 —Sothic cycle, length of, I 44.
 —Sothic date: of Amenhotep I, I 51,

- 64; of Thutmose III, I 66 n. h; of Kahun Papyrus, I p. 48.
- Sothic year, longer than calendar year, I 40.
- Sothis (Sirius), I 40; feast of, I 40; difference between feast and heliacal rising of, I 41; late rising of, in XII Dyn., I 42, 53; Sothic date in reign of Thutmose III, I 43, 51; II 410 n. a; Sothic date in reign of Ramses III, I 43 n. b.
- SOUL: living with Osiris, II 378.
- Souls of Amon, II 154.
- Souls of Anubis: temple of Upwawet, a monument for, I 403.
- SOUTHERN FRUIT, IV 240, 378, 393.
- SOUTHERN PALACE, WAYS OF, I 258, 283, 286.
- SPAN (of horses), III 84, 88, 97, 100, 132, 134, 312, 330, 337, 361, 486; IV 72.
- Royal, names of, III 84 bis, 88, 97, 100, 132, 134, 312, 330, 347, 361; IV 72, 73, 77, 106, 107, 120, 123.
- SPAN: see Measures, linear.
- SPARS, IV 861.
- SPEARS, II 784; III 457; IV 70, 119; from Meshwesh, IV 111.
- of bronze: from Retenu, II 509, 525; Wan, II 582.
- SPEECH OF EGYPT, I 494; correct in, I 413; II 571; throne, II 291-95; of Punt chiefs, III 37.
- SPELT, I 496; II 149, 171; III 66; IV 250, 314, 325, 354, 359, 550, 859, 955, 958H, 992.
- SPHINX, I 177; IV 640 n. e; of Harmakhis, I 179, 180; of Seti I, in his temple in Kurna, III 114; of Ramses II, in his temple in Memphis, III 531.
- Sphinx portraits, II 802.
- Sphinxes made of gold, IV 732; lapis lazuli, IV 732; silver, II 32.
- Stela, of Thutmose IV, II 810-15.
- SPIRIT: land of, I 351; king to be a, III 511.
- Evil spirit, possessed of, III 438, 440, 444; speech of, III 444.
- SPLENDORS, II 292, 308; in heaven, II 358.
- SPOIL AT MEGIDDO, II 431.
- SPRINGS, IV 726, 727, 728.
- SPY, III 319; beating of, III 330.
- STABL ANTAR: modern name of the temple of Pakht at Benihasan, II 296 n. c; names of, III 337, 347; IV 123.
- STABLE, ROYAL: III 312, 330, 337, 347, 361, 635, 645; IV 106, 123, 822, 850, 852, 874, 875, 876, 877; filth of, IV 968; chief of, II 818; III 198; IV 466; charioteer of, III 635.
- STAFF, III 450; king's, I 296; II 986; official's, II 385, 1039; III 13; of statue, II 436.
- Crook staff, IV 62.
- Made of carob wood, II 436; ebony, IV 288; of electrum, I 682; meru wood, IV 288; T. p. gw-wood, II 536.
- Staff of old age, I 692; II 916.
- See also Staves.
- STAIR OF TOMB OF KHETI II, I 412; of of shrine, of alabaster, II 375.
- STAIRCASE, THE DOUBLE, III 406.
- STAIRWAYS OF TEMPLES, I 421, 528, 673, 684; II 150; IV 909, 915; of tomb, I 577.
- STAKE: for the ground plan of the temple, I 506.
- STALL, IV 874; see Stable.
- STALLIONS, II 435, 875.
- STANDARD (containing royal Horus name), II 143.
- Standard (for supporting the image of a god), II 303; of electrum, II 95; of Amon, IV 49.
- Standard, of drinking-vessel, for the ka, of silver, II 32.
- Standard bearers: impost from, IV 225; see also Index V.
- STARS, II 886, 894; III 232; in the body of Nut, II 164; unresting, III 278; shooting, IV 62, 91.
- Pole star, IV 304; Orion, II 828; circling star, II 658; III 117; "imperishable," II 318; III 378; IV 852.
- Star of electrum: royal title, II 900.
- Star of the South, I 511.
- STATE FICTION, II 187-90.
- STATEMENTS, II 377, 437, 555, 788, 864, 865, 872, 995; III 600; IV 33; of oracle, II 606.
- STATION OF THE KING (in the temple ritual), II 140, 791, 796, 883, 904; III 271, 537.
- STATIONS OF RANK: making of, I 309.
- STATUES, IV 268, 320, 326, 357, 927; of Ikhi, I 165; Debhen, I 212; Intef,

- I 419; Mentuhotep, I 433; Sesostris I, I 500; Hepzefi, I 540; Amenemhet II, I 601; Khnumhotep II, I 630; Sesostris III, I 660; Thuthotep, I 694; Vizier of King Khenzer, I 783 n. d; Ahmose-Pen-Nekhbet, II 18 n. d; Queen Ahhotep, II 118, 114; Thutmose III, II 164, 165, 186; Nebwawi, II 177, 178 n. a; Enebni, II 213; Hatshepsut, II 288; Hatshepsut Meretre, II 802; Senmut, II 349, 353, 363; Puemre, II 380; Hapuseneb, II 388 n. f; Amenhotep II, II 802; Khepri (=Sphinx), II 814; Amenhotep III, II 876, 917; Amenhotep, son of Hapi, II 912, 913; Nebnefer, II 928; Harmhab, III 22 n. f; Seti I, III 202, 260, 263, 271; Ramses II, III 406; Roy, III 626; Ramses III, IV 26, 199, 201; Ramses VI, IV 477, 479; Namlot, IV 678; Osorkon II, IV 745 n. a; Amenhotep I, IV 913; Ibe, IV 958A; Hor, IV 967; Uzahor IV 980; Neferibre-Nofer, IV 981; Irhoro, IV 981; Nesuhor, IV 980, 993; Enekhnesneferibre, IV 9881 n. a; Ahmose, IV 1014; Pefnefdineit, IV 1015.
- Mortuary statues of Hepzefi, I 540; Thutmose III, II 97; Amenhotep III, II 906; placed in the temples, I 500, 540; II 52, 156, 604, 605 n. i; in charge of the mortuary priest, I 542, 544, 555, 577, 590; fire kindled before it on feast-days, I 574; procession of, II 571, 618; divine offerings for, II 564, 571, 618, 619, 620; III 626; garments for, II 571; domains of, IV 479-83.
- Statues of gods, IV 250, 316; impost paid to, IV 225; of Amon, IV 190, 217, 219, 220, 245, 384, 736; of the Nile god, IV 302, 349, 395, 738; Nile goddess, IV 303, 349, 395; of Ptah, III 582; IV 315.
- Statue made of alabaster, IV 302; black granite, III 22 n. f; IV 967 n. e, 981 n. a; bronze, IV 302; copper, IV 302, 395; costly stone, II 883; IV 190, 250, 316, 349, 377, 395; ebony, II 436, 801, 802; electrum, I 165, 668; IV 633, 913; gold, IV 199, 201, 250, 268, 302, 316, 326, 349, 395; granite, I 601; II 876, 883; IV 191; gray granite, IV 981 n. b; green feldspar, IV 302; grit-stone, II 883, 906, n. a; IV 191; hirset stone, IV 302; iron, IV 302; ivory, II 801; kenmet stone, IV 302; lapis lazuli, IV 302, 395; lead, IV 302, 395; limestone, IV 958A n. b; malachite, IV 302, 395; menit-uz-metal, IV 302; mesdemet stone, IV 302; minu stone, IV 302; red jasper, IV 302; seher, IV 302; shesmet stone, IV 302; silver, II 436; IV 191, 250, 268, 302, 316, 326, 349, 395; sycamore wood, IV 303, 349, 395; tin, IV 302; tur, IV 302.
- Statues: from Kadesh, II 436; with human face, II 436.
- Statue inscriptions: see under Inscriptions.
- STAVES, II 493; IV 913; of ebony, II 802; electrum, IV 912; meru wood, IV 391; see also Staff.
- STEALING, IV 486, 566, 676; laws on, III 54-59; penalty for, III 54, 55, 56; IV 676; of slaves, III 55; of hides, III 56, 57.
- STEED, III 224, 360, 489; IV 103.
- STEER, IV 9.
- STEERING OARS, IV 331, 845.
- STELA, IV 321, 464, 531, 586, 618, 630, 656, 679, 761, 784; importance of, I 4, 9, 13, 14, 16, 22, 23, 24, 71 n. g, 72 n. b.
- Bases of, IV 205.
- Erected to Min, I 441; Harakhte, I 501; Re, IV 255, 265.
- Stela: made of alabaster, IV 988A n. b granite, II 605, 609 n. e; III 487, 538 n. f, 541, 596, n. d; 745 n. a, 919 n. a; black granite, IV 650 n. a; red granite, IV 669 n. d, 795 n. a, 796 n. a, 935 n. a; of granite of Elephantine, IV 679; gritstone, IV 724A n. d; lazuli, II 889; limestone, IV 725 n. a, 782 n. a; overlaid with gold, IV 205.
- Stela of Intefo, IV 514; Sekhemre-Upmat-Intefo, IV 516.
- See also Inscriptions, Stela.
- STEMS, IV 244.
- STERN (=of ship), II 251, 252; IV 65, 66, 582; of fine gold, IV 331.
- STERN ROPE: title of Hatshepsut, II 341; of the Northland, II 885.
- STICKS, IV 287.
- STIPULATIONS: for offerings, IV 678; for building, IV 707, 916.
- STOCK, ANCIENT, I 399, 400.
- STONE, IV 958J et passim.
- Hard stone (=alabaster): statues of, I 323, 601, 696.

Stone—

- Stone of Ayan (=limestone), I 534, 635, 740; II 27, 44, 103, 302, 339.
- STONE: enduring, stela of, II 606.
- Good white stone of š>c.t, in the temple of Kummeh, I 510.
- See also Alabaster, Benut stone, Quartzose, Basalt, Diorite, Flint, Granite, Gritstone, Hus stone, Limestone, Mesdet stone, Mesnet stone, Red Conglomerate, Sandstone and the following:
- STONE CARRIERS, II 759.
- STONE, COSTLY (rendering of š>t, a word applied to all rare and costly stones and minerals, like malachite, lapis lazuli, turquoise, or amethyst, but not including pearls, rubies or diamonds, which were unknown), I 731; II 91, 92, 280, 376, 377, 383, 389, 390, 596, 773, 838, 887, 889, 902, 906, 912, 1028; III 31, 137, 151, 237, 405, 428, 453, 504, 512, 527, 537; IV 7, 26 bis, 27, 29, 32, 33, 126, 128, 190, 191, 214, 230, 245, 284, 287, 331, 335, 342, 349, 372, 383, 385, 386, 388, 394, 610, 847, 852, 876, 880, 881, 909, 911, 912, 913, 1011.
- Objects ornamented with, II 165, 185, 436, 490; III 412; IV 312, 315, 610, 843.
- Articles made of costly stones: amulets, II 376; IV 233; eye amulets, IV 29, 377, 390; inlay, IV 204, 209, 231, 331, 334, 538, 904, 910, 958E, J, K, 982; naophors, IV 377; necklace, II 545, 801, 876; offering-tables, IV 958M, 1020; ornaments, I 534; II 545; IV 1011; seal pendants, IV 287, 377; scarab, IV 377, 390; seal, IV 233, 377, 390; semdets, IV 377; statues, I 668; II 883; IV 250, 315, 349, 377, 395; vase, II 545; vessels, II 615, 1031; IV 730; from Retenu, II 491; God's Land, I 764; II 280, 820; III 116, 448 n. b; IV 34; from the Southland, IV 34; from Retenu, II 473, 518, 534 (?), 820; in secret mine at Sinai, I 266, 738; from the Two Mountains, III 448 n. b.
- B > -b > -y >* -stone: rings of, IV 377.
- Sparkling stone: statues of, IV 395; from Retenu, II 473, 533 (?).
- Green stones from Retenu, II 473, 491; Kheta, III 428.
- hm > g.t*-stone: necklace of, I 500.
- hrtt*-stone: vessels of, from Assur, II 446.
- Hukamu stone: semdets of, IV 377.
- Irer stone: semdets of, IV 377.
- White stone: offering tablets of, IV 972; pylons of, III 246; from Nubia, II 176; from Hittites, II 485; from Retenu, II 518.
- ybh' t*-stone from Naharin, II 501.
- Kenmet stone, IV 600; statue of, IV 302.
- Mesdemet stone, IV 345; statue of, IV 302.
- Minu stone: statue of, IV 302; scarab of, IV 233; from Retenu, II 491, 518; white menu stone from Retenu, II 509, 518.
- Hirset stone, IV 287; amulet of, IV 233; statue of, IV 302; semdets of, IV 377.
- Shesmet stone: statue of, IV 302.
- Uba stone, IV 303, 350, 395.
- Ubat stone: seals of, IV 287, 377.
- Marvelous stone: offering-table of, IV 287.
- Timhy stone from Wawat, IV 373, 389.
- Uz mineral, IV 348, 377.
- Inkhu stone, IV 600.
- See also Crystal, Jasper.
- STONE WORK: Overseer of: see Index V; workmen in stone, III 171.
- STONECUTTERS, I 447; IV 275, 466, 539.
- Stone cutting, I 239, 343.
- STORE CHAMBER, III 100; name of, III 100.
- STORE CITIES: sustenance ordered out therefrom by Pepi II, I 354.
- STOREA, IV 393.
- STOREHOUSE, II 356, 751; III 94, 204; IV 330, 403, 576.
- Storehouse of the count, I 556; of Akhetaton, II 1015.
- of offerings of temple at Abydos, I 783.
- in the city of Wa, in Northern Syria, II 458.
- Temple, I 550, II 352, 402, 554, 645, 646, 751, 755, 884, 929; III 78, 111, 110, 138, 152, 160, 351, 453, 526; IV 47, 227, 257, 258, 259, 270, 313, 314, 324, 354, 355, 358, 480, 491, 497, 550, 910, 992; overseer of, I 550; II 352; rank of, I 550; chief measurer of, II 929; captives assigned for, IV 128.
- STOREROOM, I 723, 750; Keeper of: see Index V; of dates, II 749.

- STRATEGY, III 298-304; plan of, made by Uni, I 312.
- STREAM: the living, II 356.
- STREET, IV 968.
- STRINGS: of flowers, IV 244; of beads, IV 343.
- STRONGHOLDS, II 467; III 86, 270, 457, 616; IV 141, 818, 853, 854, 856, 858, 867; Sent, I 172; Hesen, I 174; cow, I 174, 187; of the Northland, I 311; of the sand-dwellers, I 313; Redesiyeh, III 174; the nomads (Asiatic), overthrown by Nessumontu, I 471; "Wall of Seshmu-towe," I 742; of Ptah-Tatenen, III 576; of Asia, IV 141; of Merneptah-Hotephirma, III 633.
- Captives settled in, IV 403, 405 n. g; for Chief of, Commander of: see Index V.
- Stronghold of granary, I 379; Commander of: see Index V.
- SUBJECTS (nd. t.): of Pharaoh, I 122.
- SUCCESSION: of kingship from father to son, I 423A; of high priests of Amon, III 622, 626; of officers, see Office, Inheritance of; of Craft, see Craft.
- SUICIDE, ENFORCED, IV 444, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 452, 454, 456.
- SUIT, II 997; IV 958D, F; Master of, see Index V.
- SUMMONS: of petitioners, II 685.
- SUN, II 303, 325 et passim; circuit of, II 70, 98, 308; be joined with, I 491.
- Sun of the Nine Bows: royal title, II 1037; III 38.
- Right eye of, IV 678.
- Sun-disk, II 305, 941.
- Sun-hymn of Sute and Hor, II 299 n. c.
- Sunshades, II 802; IV 53, 583; of flowers, IV 244.
- SURNAME ("beautiful name"), I 676.
- SUSTENANCE: ordered out from the chief of New Towns, I 354.
- SWADDLING CLOTHES, I 502, 635.
- SWEETWOOD, II 390; IV 264, 870; from Retenu, II 509; Arrapachitis, II 509; God's Land, II 321; Punt, II 892; III 116, 527; Naharin, III 434.
- SWIMMING: instruction in, I 413.
- SWORD, I 409; II 225, 858, 925; III 117, 450, 455, 457, 465, 486, 489, 582, 584, 589, 597, 598, 613; IV 28, 70, 71, 80, 92, 246, 351, 362, 382, 405, 719, 720, 721, 823; of Horus, III 607; from Kheta, III 343; from Meshwesh, IV 111.
- of copper, from Meshwesh, III 589.
- of flint, from Retenu, II 525.
- hps*-swords, III 117, 163; of bronze, II 802.
- SWORDSMAN, III 457; mercenary, IV 50.
- SYCAMORE, I 493; II 299, 325; incense, IV 210; sycamore-gardens, IV 380; sycamores, myrrh, IV 333.
- Sycamore wood, statues of, IV 303, 349, 395.
- SYMBOL OF OSIRIS, II 874.

T

- TABLE: of carob wood, II 436, 509; gold, II 571; ivory, II 436, 509; silver, II 571; from Retenu, II 436, 509.
- Table of a god, II 353, 355, 367; III 16; IV 958J; for mortuary offerings, II 571.
- Table of the king, II 117; ruler's, II 695; Commandant of: see Index V.
- TABLE FOWL, II 621, 622.
- TABLE SCRIBE, II 977; III 58; of harem, III 58; queen's, III 58.
- TABLE VESSELS, IV 334; of copper, IV 190, 354; gold, IV 190, 269, 354, 357; silver, IV 190, 269, 354, 357.
- TABLET, IV 586, 672, 673; of bronze, IV 231, 318, 343; copper, IV 202; gold, IV 202; silver, IV 202, 231, 285, 317, 343.
- Silver tablet from Kheta, III 371, 372, 373, 386, 387, 388, 391.
- Tablets: erected at Abydos, by Ikher-nofret, I 661 n. d; in Karnak temple, by Thutmose III, II 407, 555; in Karoy, by Amenhotep II, II 800; in Naharin, by Thutmose III, II 480; Amenhotep II, II 800; in Thebes, in mortuary temple of Thutmose IV, II 821, 824.
- Tablet: inscribed with prayers, IV 202; see also Prayers.
- TALKING OF ANIMALS, I 408.
- TALONS, IV 77, 86, 90.
- TAMARISK, IV 241, 379, 392.
- TAMBOURINE, II 1039.

- TARGET SHOOTING, II 813, 900.
- TASKMASTER, II 758.
- TASSELS OF GOLD, IV 201, 204; of gold and rock crystal, IV 373; gold and costly stones, IV 386.
- TAX, III 481; IV 141, 266, 852; upon officials, II 716, 718-45; see also Dues, Imposts and Tribute.
- Taxes levied by the vizier, II 706, 716; inspection of, II 717, 729; assessment of, II 916.
- Tax lists, I 10; II 716-45; taxes collected for funeral expenses, of Zau, I 382; remitted by Kheti II of Siut, I 408.
- Taxes, paid in natura, III 55; consisting of Katha plant, III 55 bis; leather, IV 150; hides, II 718; III 56, 57; vegetables, III 59; grain, III 61; IV 403; gold, II 718-45; IV 150; silver, II 720-40; IV 150; clothing, II 716-46; IV 150, 403; ointment, IV 150.
- Tax collectors: laws on, III 55, 58, 61, 62.
- Tax officials, IV 266, 324.
- TEACHING: of Amenemhet I, I 474-83; of the great seer, II 985; of the Aton faith, II 987, 990, 1002, 1003, 1013.
- Teaching cometh from Egypt, IV 579.
- TEMPLE, II 150, 302, 315, 389, 455, 800, 910, 978; III 178, 204, 232, 233, 234, 240, 248, 260, 269, 567, 585, 608, 613, 622; IV 62, 220, 283, 313, 354, 363, 386, 906, 908, 927; army of, III 31; captive women assigned as hierodules in, IV 128; decrees for administration of, see Decrees; wide hall of, I 550; workmen of, II 181; records of, from XXI Dyn., I 22; neglected by the Hyksos, I 15; rank of the scribe of, I 550; musicians, II 1018; singers, II 1018.
- Wardrobe of, I 550, 559, 560, 566; Keeper of: see Index V.
- Secret things of, I 550, 745; IV 706, 708; Master of: see Index V.
- Secret writings of, II 355, 748; master of: see Index V.
- Temple model of Heliopolis, III 244.
- Temple women: the pure settlement of, IV 321; administration of, IV 321.
- Temple-day: definition of, I 552, 561, 565.
- Temple walls, used for commemoration of a king's victories, I 12, 13.
- Temple inscriptions: see under Inscriptions.
- See further, Doors, Double doors, the Great Door, Field, Flagstaves, Fortress, Gate, Grove, Granary, Hall, Herd, House, Inspection, Lake, Land, Linen, Mortuary, Palace, Regulation, Record, Restoration, Sanctuary, Storehouse, Stronghold, Treasury, Wall.
- See also Cliff temples and Index II, and for Temple officials, see Index V.
- TEN: Overseer of: see Index V.
- TENT, I 353; II 431; III 576, 589; royal, II 425, 429, 447; III 318; poles II 435; of leather, III 589; people of Seir, living in, IV 404.
- TERRACED TEMPLE OF MENTUHOTEP III, II 291 n. a; of Hatshepsut, II 291 n. a.
- TERRACES: as source of cedar, II 32, 94, 103, 611, 614, 755, 794 n. b; IV 904; myrrh, II 260, 284, 285, 287, 288, 291 n. a, 294; the "Malachite," I 266, 342; of grain, at Arvad, II 461.
- TERRIFYING: by magic rolls, IV 454.
- TESTAMENT, I 200-9; violation of, I 204; of Nekonekh, I 213-30; of Senuonekh, I 231-35.
- TESTIMONY, IV 600; of witnesses, IV 547-53.
- THEFT, IV 552, 676; laws on, III 54; penalty for, III 54; IV 676; imprisonment for, IV 556.
- THICK STUFF: garments of, IV 241, 394.
- THIEVES, IV 511, 513, 515, 516, 517, 521, 522, 535, 537, 540, 543, 545, 548, 549, 550, 554, 556, 566.
- THINGS (divine), IV 222, 227, 280, 283, 337, 340, 341, 364, 383, 386, 387.
- THINITE PERIOD: Length of, I 56.
- THOTH: see Months.
- THROAT, II 987; IV 538.
- THRONE, II 298, 341, 375; III 525; IV 62, 110, 399, 730, 896; of gold, III 321; speech from, II 291-95; the great, III 412; of electrum, II 292; III 286; Master of, see Index V; portable, IV 749, 751; Libyan, III 584; royal, II 122, 138, 149, 151, 237, 808, 871, 959; III 27, 40, 566; IV 9, 63, 188, 246, 304, 401, 411, 471, 649, 653, 677.
- Throne of a god, II 285; IV 909; of All-Lord, IV 196; Amon, II 314,

- 608, 805, 881; III 27; IV 40, 124, 246, 777, 836; Atum, II 832; III 272; IV 5, 67, 103, 246, 399; Haraqhte, IV 66, 401; Horus, I 686, 779; II 55, 120, 151, 203, 208, 242, 302, 308, 319, 332, 443, 662, 812, 826; III 76, 158, 281, 285, 370, 486 578; IV 92, 142, 382, 411, 473, 624, 630, 895, 923, 934; Keb, II 595, 815; III 116, 267; IV 304, 400; Khonsupekhrod, IV 909; Osiris, IV 188, 401; Ptah, II 615; III 407, 615; IV 351; Re, II 303; III 16, 65; IV 57, 198, 887; Shu, III 612.
- of chiefs, III 645.
- Thrones, the two, marshal of, see Index V.
- THROW STICKS: brought from Negro lands, I 336; from Punt, II 272.
- THUNDER, produced by Amon, IV 578.
- TIMBER, IV 563, 575, 582, 584, 586; green, II 433; felling of, by order of vizier, II 697; house, IV 380, 394.
- TIN, IV 245, 385; bolts of, IV 929; statue of, IV 302.
- TITHE, IV 354.
- TITULARY, II 226, 303, 808; III 29, 435; royal, II 56, 120, 143-47; IV 489; of divine consort, IV 988D, I.
- TOILET, ROYAL, I 609; Servant of, see Index V.
- TOMB, I 5, 19; II 947; IV 585, 972; of limestone, IV 979; inspection of, IV 511; investigation of, IV 513; Foreman of, see Index V; house furniture in, IV 521; ornaments in, IV 521.
- Tombs of Senuonekh, I 231; Persen, I 241; Nezemib, I 278 n. b; Sebekemsaf, II 112; Amenhotep, II 818; Kheruf, II 873.
- at Abd el-Kurna of Ineni, II 43 n. c; Puemre, II 382 n. c; Amenken, II 801; Khamhet, II 819, 870; Hatey, II 932.
- at Abusir, of Weshptah, I 242; Hotep-hiryakhet, I 251.
- at Abydos, of Ikudidi, I 528; Zer, I 662; Osiris, I 660; Zaa, I 684; Keres, II 491, built by Queen Ah-hotep, II 49-53.
- at Assiut, of Tefibi, I 393 n. a; Kheti I, I 398 n. d; Kheti II, I 405 n. c, 412.
- at Assuan, of Harkhuf, I 325.
- at Benihasan, of Khnumhotep I, I 463 n. a; Khnumhotep II, I 179 n. e, 619 n. d, 623, 637.
- at Drah-abu-<sup>3</sup>n-Neggah: of Thutiy, II 369 n. c; Nibamon, II 777 n. e.
- at el-Bersheh, of Thuthotep, I 688 n. f.
- at El Kab, of Ahmose-Pen-Nekhet, II 17 n. c, 25 n. f; Setau, IV 414, 415.
- at Gizeh, of Thenti, I 182 n. a; Henutsen, I 185 n. e; Zezemonekh, I 186 n. a; Mertityotes, I 188 n. a; Nekure, I 190 n. g; Debhen, I 210 n. a.
- at Hermonthis, of Intef, the nomarch, I 419 n. c.
- at Nekheb, of Ini, I 373.
- at Sakkara, of Harmhab, III 1.
- at Tehneh, of Nekonekh, I 213 n. a.
- at Thebes of Senmut, II 348; Thaneni, II 392, 820; Amenemhab, II 574 n. g; Amenemopet, II 671 n. e; Woser, II 671 n. e; Intef, II 763 n. e; Yuya, II 861 n. c; Thutmose IV, III 32B; Ramessids, IV 473 n. a; Amenhotep I, IV 513, 665, 667, 668, 691, 692, 700; Nebamon, IV 517; Nubkhas, IV 517; singing women of the Divine Votress, IV 521; Isis, IV 523; Ramses II, IV 545, 594; Seti I, IV 545, 593; Nesimut, IV 555; Bekurel, VI 555; Amenhotep III, IV 556. See also above Abd el-Kurna and Drah-abu-<sup>3</sup>n-Neggah.
- Peker, tomb of Osiris, I 660.
- Tomb inscriptions: see Inscriptions.
- Tombs of the lords of life, IV 4.
- TOMB CHAMBER, IV 4, 515, 517.
- TOMB CHAPEL, I 19, 20; of Tetisheri in Tazeser, II 36; lake of, II 36; garden of, II 36; offerings of, II 36; endowment of, II 36; mortuary priests of, II 36; ritual priests of, II 36.
- TOMB ROBBERIES IN NECROPOLIS OF THEBES, IV 499-556.
- TOMB ROBBERS, I 15; III 32; IV 499-556; punishment threatened by the great god (Osiris), I 330, 338, 378.
- TOMBSTONE AT THEBES OF SENMUT, II 348.
- TOOTH IVORY, II 509.
- TORTURES: at examination, on hands and feet, IV 545, 552, 553; bastinado of feet, IV 548, 549, 550; beating, IV 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553.
- TOW-BOAT, I 276, 322; of acacia, I 324; IV 229, 387; cedar, IV 229, 387.

- TOWER, IV 842, 861; of Menmare, III 100.
- Temple towers, II 886, 889; IV 117, 189, 311, 355, 356, 357, 358.
- TOWNS, II 966; III 62, 84, 86, 88, 90, 94, 141, 147, 613, 616; IV 54, 405, 410, 479, 948, 957, 958; of the Asiatics III 11; destroyed, III 11; Naharin, II 479; Zahi, II 490; Redesiyeh, founded by Seti I, III 172; of Tehenu (?), III 588; given for mortuary endowment, I 209; feeble towns settled with people from other nomes, I 281; given to temples, II 557; IV 222, 226, 280, 282, 339, 364, 383, 384; Commandant of, see Index V.
- TOW-ROPE, II 328.
- TRANSPORT: of monuments, III 206; transport (boat), IV 863; of acacia, IV 229, 283, 387; ship, III 441; IV 9, 19.
- Temple transports, IV 211, 226, 270, 282, 328, 337, 339, 384.
- TRANSPORTATION ACROSS THE NILE, I 276, 308.
- TRAY, IV 33.
- TREASURES: of God's Land, II 271, 277; in king's house, sealing of, II 371.
- Treasure ship, IV 193.
- TREASURY, II 182, 473, 750; III 274; IV 92, 566, 846, 849, 851, 852, 854, 855, 856, 859, 868, 874, 876, 879, 880; under vizier's supervision, II 676, 680, 706, 708; sealing of, II 676; captives for, III 155.
- Chief treasury: order of business, I 423E; chief of, I 713; double cabinet of, I 716, 725; affairs of, reported to the vizier, II 676, 680, 706, 708; Overseer of, Scribe of: see Index V; inspection of, IV 146 n. c.
- Gold treasury: overseer of, IV 1017.
- Temple treasuries, I 777, 778; III 515, 527; IV 9, 26, 27, 28, 31, 32, 190, 193, 195, 211, 217, 227, 250, 256, 266, 270, 340, 359, 362, 489, 497, 545, 547, 683, 684, 685, 686. See also White House.
- Treasury of the South, II 614.
- TREATY, III 373, 374, 375, 391; of Kheta with Egypt, by Seplel, III 377; Metella, III 377; Khetasar, III 367-91.
- TREES, II 263; IV 795; deeded to a god, II 966; fruit, II 433; planting of, I 173, 328; II 294; III 268; IV 213, 216, 410, 489, 1020; cutting down of, II 697; enduring trees of myrrh, II 288.
- Ished tree, II 310.
- Mimusop tree, II 294 n. c.
- Pleasant trees: for garden of Min, II 567; of Megiddo, II 433; of Arvad, II 461.
- See also Acacia, Cedar, Date, Myrrh, Fig trees, Juniper, Mastic tree, Oil tree, Palm tree, Persea, Rosemary, Sycamore, Tamarisk, Vine.
- TRIBES, CHIEF MEN OF, IV 405.
- TRIBUTE, II 225, 245, 325, 377, 385, 522, 525, 648, 657, 750, 1028, 1030, 1035; III 13, 82, 137, 138, 273, 428, 481, 484, 527; IV 28, 91, 126, 130, 141, 215, 256, 333, 360, 407, 412, 497, 734, 852, 868, 878; the heads and hands, IV 497; distribution of, II 706; inspection of, II 706, 761; reports on, to be made monthly, II 708.
- Tribute: from mayors, II 708; village sheiks, II 708; rulers numbered by the herald, II 771.
- Tribute from: Arrapachitis, II 512; Asiatics, II 120; III 453; Assur, II 445, 446, 449; Babylon, II 446; Bekhten III 435; never paid by Byblos, IV 576, 577; from Cyprus, II 493, 511, 521; Egypt, I 423D; Genebteyew, II 474; Haunebu, II 953; Isles, IV 34; Isy, II 493, 511, 521; Kadesh, II 773; Keftew, II 761, 773; Kharu, II 1015; IV 724; Kheta, II 485, 525, 773; III 151, 421; Kush, II 801, 1015; III 42, 453, 590, 644; Mitanni, II 804; Naharin, II 482, 819; Northland, II 751; northern Oasis, II 385, 386; southern Oasis, II 385, 386; Oasis region, II 386; Nubia, III 484; Punt, II 261, 262, 268; III 39; IV 407; Retenu, II 445, 447, 448, 466, 471, 491, 509(?), 518, 525, 533(?), 534(?), 761, 820; III 106, 111; IV 219; Sea, IV 34; Shinar, II 484; south countries the, II 652, 751, 761, 1038; III 116; South and North, III 13; Syria, II 1015; IV 724; Tehenu, II 321, 413; Tinay, II 537; Tunip, II 773; Zahi, II 462, 536(?); marshes of Asia, II 385; III 434; Watet-Hor, II 385, 386; ends of Asia, II 386, 891.

TRIBUTE WEIGHT: see Weight.

TRIUMPHANT: epithet received by the dead and constantly placed after their names; literally "true of voice" (mꜣꜥ-hrw); later (from end of Empire on) placed also after the names of the living. Passim.

TROOPS, I 303, 315, 410; II 420, 916; III 577; IV 767, 768, 825, 861, 864; consultation with, II 420; headed by, I 312, 366; II 852; IV 966; proscribed from Sebni's estate, I 366, 368; officers of, II 433; two divisions of, III 56; recorder of, III 20; Commander of, Commander in chief of, see Index V.

—Elite troops of the king, II 809; mercenary troops, III 307.

—Temple troops, IV 966.

—Troop-ships, I 315.

TRUMPET, II 981.

—Trumpeter, III 40; IV 70, 118.

TUNIC: of royal linen, IV 232, 374; southern linen, IV 374; fine southern linen, IV 232, 374; colored linen, IV 232, 239, 374.

TUNNELING, IV 515, 516.

TUR: statute made of, IV 302.

TURBAN, III 460.

TUSK, III 475; IV 344, 391; presented to the court, I 369.

—from Retenu, II 525(?); Tehenu, II 321; Isy, II 493, 521; Niy, II 588.

TYBI: see Months.

U

UNCIRCUMCISED, III 587, 588, 601.

UNCLEAN: by eating fish, IV 882; foreigners, IV 905.

UPLANDS, II 966.

UPPER GARMENTS: of royal linen, IV 232; fine southern linen, IV 232.

URÆUS, II 70, 299; III 7, 12, 13, 15, 18, 21, 116; IV 209, 382, 401, 814, 815, 843, 882; the two, III 622.

URDU BIRDS, IV 345.

—with golden beaks, IV 345.

USHERS, II 925 n. a.

USURPER, SYRIAN, I 68, 68 n. e; IV 398.

UTENSILS: of silver, IV 958C; gold, IV 958G; copper, IV 958G.

UTTERANCE: of a god, II 196, 198, 199, 207, 208, 220, 286, 656, 891, 909, 910; III 105, 110, 116, 136, 150, 155, 164, 165, 223, 399, 518; IV 34, 49, 57, 78, 126, 130, 611, 612, 620, 633, 721; queen, II 197; king, III 259, 411, 486; IV 26 bis, 28, 29, 31, 32, 52, 54, 58, 63, 77, 78, 81, 109, 110, 112, 124, 128; officer, II 940; III 16, 271; IV 52, 55, 58, 71, 77, 82, 110, 123, 124, 127, 128.

V

VALLEY, SACRED: Intef I landed there, I 423.

VALUABLES, IV 580.

VASE, II 802; IV 326; given to the temple of Amon for libation, I 421; II 164.

—Made of bronze, I 500; II 164; IV 538; copper, I 500; II 164; costly stone, II 545; electrum, II 164; gold, I 500; II 32, 64, 164, 754; IV 199, 238, 269, 327, 538; fine gold, IV 334; gold of two times, IV 231; silver, I 500; II 32, 164, 754; IV 203, 231, 269, 327, 334, 538.

—-kꜣ-nꜣ vase, II 518; from Retenu, II 509, 533; Kharu, II 436.

—Two-handled vase from Kharu II 436; from Retenu, II 509, 518, 533 (?).

—Denya vase, IV 238, 269.

—Enkhy vase, IV 269, 334.

—Gen vase, IV 334.

—Nemset vase, IV 269, 334.

—Heset vase, IV 269, 334.

—Vase stand, IV 199, 269, 327.

—Vase inscription: see under Inscriptions.

VEGETABLES, II 117, 159, 161; IV 244, 283, 329, 341, 371, 387, 949, 950, 952, 953, 954, 958M; for oblation, II 815; IV 335; for divine offering, II 567, 620, 621, 622; III 77, 159; IV 200, 217; IV 229, 394; for food, III 207, 208.

—Paid as impost, III 59.

—See also Beans, Cabbage, Onions, Lentils.

VESSEL (ship), IV 944; of Snefru's fleet, I 89; of Hatshepsut, II 252, 266, 288; transport vessels, of Thuthotep, I 697; temple vessels, II 162; from Genebteyew, II 474; Wawat, II 475, 487, 503; 515, 523; Punt, II 486; Kush, II 494, 502, 514.

—Eight vessel (a barge), II 917.

VESSELS, IV 231, 285, 343, 373, 385, 386, 389, 394, 876.

Vessels—

- of bronze, II 436, 459, 795; copper, II 459; from Retenu, II 491; costly stones, II 615, 1031; IV 730; gold, II 490, 615, 989, 1028, 1031; III 106; IV 285, 343, 497, 566, 730; wrought with gold, from Retenu, II 790, 1031; hrti-stone from Assur, II 446; iron from Tinay, II 537; lapis lazuli, II 1031; III 106; malachite, II 1031; silver, II 615, 795, 1028, 1031; III 106; IV 343, 476, 477, 497, 566, 730, 992; from Zahi, II 490; Naharin, II 482; of workmanship of Zahi, II 482, 490; from Retenu, II 491, 518; III 106; of workmanship of, II 491; of the work of Keftyew, from Tinay, II 537.
- the work of Zahi, from Retenu, II 509.
- Temple vessels, IV 95M; for the temple cult, IV 268.
- Hin vessel of silver, IV 735.
- Spouted vessel of silver, IV 735.
- c*-vessel, IV 238.
- Ekhu*-vessels, IV 334.
- sh*-vessel, IV 732, 733, 734.
- k > k-mn*-vessel, IV 582.
- t > pw*-vessels, III 589.
- t b*-vessel, IV 582.
- dw*-vessels, of silver, IV 735.
- VICTORY: commemoration of, in the temple, I 12; at Megiddo, II 431; see also Hymns.
- VILLAGE, II 852; sheik of, II 692, 699, 701.
- VIOLATORS, of mortuary endowment, II 925; III 192, 194; IV 483; of treaty, III 386.
- VISION, of a god, III 445.
- VINES: I 496; IV 216; planting of, I 173; of sand-dwellers, I 313; gardens, IV 380.
- VINEYARD: planting of, I 173; IV 1021; vineyard estate, I 201.
- Vineyards of Amon, II 386; IV 213, 216; tribute from, II 386; of Re, IV 262.
- VOTRESS: of Ptah, IV 321; divine votress of Amon-Re, IV 511, 513, 521, 522, 942, 946, 958C, M; house of, IV 511, 513, 521, 522, 958F, G, K; major domo of, IV 511, 513, 522; granary of, IV 958G, H; singing women of, IV 521; cattleyards of, IV 958G, H; tombs of, IV 522, 958M; temple of, IV 958K.

VOYAGE (festival of a god), II 94.

VULTURE, III 154.

W

- WAGONS: from Assur, II 449; see also Ox-carts, Chariots.
- WALL, III 84, 141, 260, 269, 567, 616; IV 65, 189, 216, 250, 271, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 489, 654, 748, 818, 820, 853, 859, 861, 864, 879, 914, 970, 1020; of fortress inclosure, II 894; king as, IV 72, 75.
- Canal wall, IV 628.
- Siege-wall: of Megiddo, II 433.
- Temple walls: of electrum, II 886; IV 748; metal, IV 66.
- Walled towns, IV 818, 830.
- Walls of lakes, IV 910, 912; of pools, IV 972.
- WAND, III 43.
- WARDROBE, ROYAL, I 348, 533, 608; Great lord of, Master of, see Index V.
- Wardrobe of the temple: rank of the keeper of, I 550.
- WARES, III 274.
- WARS, of Pepi I, I 311; Harmhab, III 33-44; Libyan, under Merneptah, I 13, rule of, IV 861; see also Battles.
- Warrior, III 579; IV 58, 65, 75, 81, 879; of the sea, III 479; IV 44; Hittite, III 337.
- Warship: Egyptian, I 322; IV 65, 74; of Peleset, IV 74; Sherden, IV 74; made of acacia, IV 229, 387.
- War club of Snefru, I 168; of Pepi I, I 296; of Asiatics, I 365 n. c.
- War mace, IV 130, 246.
- War office: in charge of the vizier, II 693-95, 702.
- War plan, I 312; III 307; council of, II 420; III 322.
- Man of war, III 579.
- WATCH, II 916; of army, II 425, 864; III 318.
- WATER: of the living stream, II 356; of the living river, II 378; divine water (=semen virile), III 474, 486; of Re, IV 47.
- Libation of for mortuary offering, III 17.
- Water-supply, I 407; II 15 n. e.; III 170; under charge of vizier, II 698, 707.
- Waters of Akhetaton, II 966; of Egypt, II 420; Naharin (=Euphrates), II 583.

- WATER FOWL: see Fowl.
- WAY OF LIFE, II 990; of heaven, II 257; of Re, II 257; to Punt, II 285, 294; the Two, II 299.
- WAX, IV 240, 393.
—gods, made of, for magical purposes, IV 454; people, made of, IV 455.
- WEAPONS, IV 75, 91, 410, 944; royal, II 213, 430, 784, 801; soldiers, II 429; IV 71; Asiatics, II 784; of Ikathi, II 788; of Kheta, III 310, 343.
—Weapons of war, IV 825; from Ul-laza, II 470; Retenu, II 471, 534 (?); Meshwesh, III 589; Naharin, II 482; Nuges, II 508.
—See also Arrow, Axe, Baton, Bow, Dagger, Hatchet, Knife, Lance, Mace, Rod, Scourge, Shield, Spear, Sword.
- WEAVER, TEMPLE, IV 552, 992.
- WEIGHING, II 273-74, 281, 387; IV 256; Thoth, guardian of, IV 256.
- WEIGHT, I 531.
—Cow, II 279; IV 29.
—mh<sup>3</sup>-weight, IV 240.
—Karakuti-weight, IV 286.
—Nusa-weight, IV, 302, 349, 395; tribute, II 719, 720, 721, 722, 735.
—Round, II 279.
—See also Deben, Kidet.
- WELL, III 84, 86, 616.
—of Ayan, IV 406; Redesiyeh, III 171, 197; of Elephantine, III 171; the oasis, IV 726, 728; "Well of Meriamon-Ramses-Mighty-in-Victory," III 293; "Menmare-is-Great-in-Victory," III 84; Merneptah-Hotepfirma, III 631; located on the highland, III 631.
—Digging of, I 431; III 171, 195, 286, 287, 289, 290, 291, 292; inspection of, IV 726; seizure of, I 431; wonderful origin of, in Hammamat, I 451; temple-well masoned, I 534.
—wv-wells, IV 726.
—hbs-well, IV 726.
- WHEAT, IV 9, 190, 193, 207, 259, 363, 958H.
- WHEEL, POTTER'S, II 202.
- WHIPS: of ebony, II 802; gold, II 802; ivory, II 802.
- WHITE FISH, IV 243.
- WHITE FRUIT, IV 30.
- WHITE HOUSE, IV 958G; offerings of, I 370; departments of, I 447; chief of, I 722; overseer of, II 1014, 1020; IV 495, 511, 512; Scribe of, see Index V.
—White House of Miam (Ibrim): scribe of, IV 474.
—Double White House, I 505; festival oil from, for Mekhu's funeral, I 370; clothing from, for Mekhu's funeral, I 370; of the court, embalment equipment from, for Zau, I 382; overseer of, I 505; see also Treasury.
- WICKS FOR KINDLING FIRE IN THE TEMPLE, I 560-64, 566, 573-74, 583.
- WIDE HALL OF THE TEMPLE: rank of the keeper of, I 550.
- WIDOW: kindness to, I 395; Kharu a widow to Egypt, III 617.
- WIFE-SISTER, IV 774; violation of, II 925.
- WILD FOWL: see Fowl.
- WILD GOATS: see Goats.
- WILLS AND CONVEYANCES, I 5; of Prince Nekure, I 190-99; Nekonekh, I 223-25; Yewelot, IV 794; Shepnupet II, IV 946.
- WIND, THE NORTH: the sweet, II 353.
- WINDOW, IV 573, 871.
- WINE, I 496; II 117, 159, 260, 434, 887; III 268; IV 216, 217, 228, 233, 239, 283, 299, 341, 344, 348, 363, 376, 387, 565, 589, 734, 949, 950, 952, 953, 954, 972; for divine offering, II 562, 616, 621, 622, 793, 798; IV 190, 213, 262, 269, 272, 286, 292, 309, 313, 329, 390, 958M, 1021; for evening offering, II 565; for feast offering, II 566; oblation, I 435; II 553, 554, 571, 612, 960; III 284; IV 199, 208, 335, 468, 768; for mortuary offering, II 571; III 17, 526; for food, III 208.
—as tribute, II 750, 751, 771; IV 734.
—of Arvad, II 461; Zahi, II 462, 472, 510, 519; Retenu, II 491, 509, 518, 616; southern oasis, IV 734, 992.
—Honeyed wine, from Retenu, II 447, 473.
—Hemy wine, IV 734.
—Syene wine, IV 734.
—Wine cellar, IV 512.
—Wine gardens of Amon, IV 213.
—Wine presses, II 461.
—See also Date Wine, Shedeh.
- WING, OF ARMY, II 426, 430; Pharaoh, lord of, II 661.
- WISDOM, PTAH BESTOWER OF, III 402.
- WISE MAN, I 697; III 434, 438, 439; of the house of sacred writings, IV 460.

- WITCHCRAFT, IV 454-56.
- WITNESS, IV 876; examination of, IV 424; gods as, to treaty, III 386.
- WOLF, PHARAOH AS, III 144, 147.
- Wolves, I 281; III 134; see also Jackals.
- WOMEN: imprisoned for theft, IV 556; bulls made into, IV 883.
- Captives, assigned as hierodules, IV 128.
- of the harem, IV 427, 428, 430, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451.
- Sacred women of Amon, IV 751; in Ptah's temple, IV 321.
- Singing women in temple of Amon, IV 521, 543.
- WONDERS AT HAMMAMAT: first, I 435-37; second, I 449-51.
- WOOD, handle of, IV 288; track for obelisk of, II 105.
- g.t.*-wood, chariot-poles of, II 447; from Retenu, II 447; two-colored, from Retenu, II 447.
- k > nk*-wood from Assur, II 449.
- nhb*-wood from Assur, II 449.
- T > gw*-wood, chariots of, II 491; staff of, II 536; from Hittites, II 485; Zahi, II 490; Retenu, II 491; seal of, IV 234, 288, 345, 391; block for the scales, IV 391; cases of, IV 391.
- See also Acacia, Aromatic, Black wood, Carob, Cassia, Cedar, Cinnamon, Fire wood, Fragrant wood, Ked wood, Kidet wood, Khesyt wood, Mera wood, Meru wood, Neybu wood, Neneby wood, Olive wood, Pesgu wood, Sweet wood, Sycamore wood.
- WORKMANSHIP, II 754; IV 257, 489, 850, 897; of Zahi, II 482, 509; Retenu, II 490; Kharu, II 501, 509; Keftiyew, II 537.
- WORKMEN, II 383; III 271, 498; IV 275, 524, 525, 526, 551; in stone, III 171; master, IV 466; Chief, see Index V.
- King's: Leader of, Overseer of, see Index V.
- WORKS: for the ka, III 272; of quarrymen, IV 466; for Chief of, Commander of, Overseer of, see Index V.
- King's, chief of, see Index V.
- Works of Amon: Chief of, Chief overseer of, see Index V.
- WORKSHOP OF PTAH, IV 28; temple, II 775; IV 226, 280, 282, 337, 364, 370, 383.
- WOUNDS, FIVE: opened on a soldier for stealing hides, III 57.
- WRAPPING OF HORUS (a garment), of royal linen, IV 232, 374.
- Wrappings, burial, IV 966; of royal linen, IV 966.
- WREATH, II 185; III 208.
- WRIT OF CLAIM, I 205.
- WRITING, II 151, 186, 606; IV 140, 564, 655, 672, 673, 964; of Amon, IV 563, 574; of Atum, I 756; of Thoth, I 531; IV 34.
- Writings, sacred, II 353; forbidding practice of magic, IV 456; house of, I 533; IV 445, 460, 1022; in charge of the prophets, II 353.
- Ancient: concerning landmarks, I 625; concerning taxes, II 717.
- of the vizier, II 684; confidential, II 684.
- King's writings, I 271, 273, 533; Master of, Chief scribe of: see Index V; of daily records, II 392, 680.
- Hall of writings, IV 255, 321, 354, 363, 768.
- WROUGHT WOOD: seal of, IV 234, 288, 345, 391; block for the scales, IV 391; cases of, IV 391.
- w < b.t.*-HOUSE, THE DOUBLE: see House.
- Wpg*: a part of the temple of Osiris at Abydos, IV 1020; altars of, IV 1020; lake of, IV 1020.

Y

- YARN, IV 228, 375, 387, 390.
- YEAR: hieroglyphic sign for, on Palermo stone, I 81; reckoning of, in ancient Babylonia, I 81.
- Calendar year: length of, discovered in the fifth millennium, I 39; division of, I 39.
- Solar (Gregorian), I 40.
- Sothic year longer, I 40.
- the little year, feast of, I 630; the great, feast of, I 630.
- Millions of years spent by the king in the temple, I 403.

- YOKE, IV 467; of bulls, I 523.
- YOUTH, I 413, 697; IV 63, III, 246, 895.
- YUFITI PLANT, IV 234, 344, 378, 392.

Z

- ZAWET, II 995.
- ZENITH, II 815.

INDEX VIII

EGYPTIAN

ABBREVIATIONS

d. n.=divine name.
e. n.=ethnic name.
f. n.=feast name.
g. n.=geographical name.

p. n.=personal name.
r. n.=royal name.
t. n.=temple name.

- <sup>o</sup>, r. n., I 90.
<sup>o</sup>-yw-rw-n, g. n., IV 712.
<sup>o</sup>yr-sw, p. n. (?), IV 398 n. a.
<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-n, p. n., II 6.
<sup>o</sup>-bk, p. n., IV 682.
<sup>o</sup>-m-w-r<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 310, 340, 356;
   <sup>o</sup>-m-r<sup>o</sup>, IV 64, 127; y m-r (read <sup>o</sup>-m-r), III 141.
<sup>o</sup>-r-n-n<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 368, 391.
<sup>o</sup>-r-n-t, g. n., III 308, 311.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-m, III 634.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-n<sup>o</sup>-m, g. n., III 310.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-r-p-b, II 512 n. f.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-r-b, g. n., II 512.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 114; IV 64, 482, 591.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-ty-wt, g. n., II 461; <sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t-wt, II
 465; <sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t-w, III 309, 312; IV 64;
Y-r<sup>o</sup>-t-w (read <sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t-w), III 306.
<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 120.
<sup>o</sup>-ry-m, p. n., IV 455.
<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 405.
<sup>o</sup>-sw-r<sup>o</sup>, see Ys-sw-r<sup>o</sup>
<sup>o</sup>-s-k-rw-n<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 355; <sup>o</sup>-s-k<sup>o</sup>-r-ny,
 III 617.
<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-n<sup>o</sup> (vase), II 436, 509, 518, 533.
<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-y-t<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 286; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-ty, IV 477.
<sup>o</sup>-k-w-y-s<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 601; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-w<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>,
 III 574; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-w<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>, III 579; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-y-w<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>,
 III 588 bis.
<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-n-s<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 878; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-n-s<sup>o</sup>, IV
 815; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-n-s-w, IV 868.
<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t-y, g. n., III 306; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-ry-t,
 III 309; <sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-t-r-y, III 312.
<sup>o</sup>-ty, g. n., III 576.
<sup>o</sup>-d-m<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 714.
<sup>o</sup>-d-r<sup>o</sup>-<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 716.
<sup>o</sup>-d-rw, g. n., IV 712 n. e.
<sup>o</sup>-d-rw-m<sup>o</sup>-m, g. n., IV 712 n. f.
<sup>o</sup>t<sup>o</sup> (enemy ?), II 15 n. b.
<sup>o</sup>y, r. n., II 989.
<sup>o</sup>c (a title), IV 547 n. c.,
<sup>o</sup>c (-jar), IV 228, 233, 283, 286, 344,
 376, 387, 390.
<sup>o</sup>c-bw (-jar), IV 294, 299.
<sup>o</sup>bw, g. n., IV 679 n. c.
<sup>o</sup>my (or Hnmy), p. n., I 343.
<sup>o</sup>n-yw-g-s<sup>o</sup>, g. n., II 490, 507, 557;
Yn-yw-g-s<sup>o</sup>, II 436.
<sup>o</sup>n-n-r<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 114.
<sup>o</sup>n-r<sup>o</sup>-t-w, g. n., II 470.
<sup>o</sup>r (violence), I 423 n. e.
<sup>o</sup>rk, g. n., II 845 n. f.
<sup>o</sup>k (-herb), II 159.
<sup>o</sup>k't (field), II 1 n. b.
<sup>o</sup>k't (first season), I 218 n. a.
<sup>o</sup>ty, p. n., II 258.

Y

- Yt*, g. n., I 510.
Y-y-r<sup>o</sup>-y, p. n., IV 445.
Y-m-r, g. n., III 141; see <sup>o</sup>-m-w-r<sup>o</sup>.
Y-ny-ny, p. n., IV 440.
Y-nw-<sup>o</sup>c-mw, g. n., II 436, 557; III 90, 114, 617.
Y-r-c-s-t, g. n., II 784 n. f.
Y-r-t-w, g. n., III 306; see <sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-ty-wt.
Y-r-c-d<sup>o</sup>c, g. n., II 416; Y-rw-d<sup>o</sup>-<sup>o</sup>, IV 714.
Y-hm, g. n., II 419.
Y-ktp, g. n., I 312.
Y-k<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup>, g. n., II 787; Y-k<sup>o</sup>-ty, II 787.

- Y*<sup>o</sup> -rd, g. n., IV 368.
Y<sup>o</sup> -t<sup>o</sup>, p. n., I 728.
Y<sup>o</sup> -tw, p. n., I 723.
Y<sup>o</sup> -t (cattle), IV 242.
Y<sup>o</sup>, g. n., I 496.
Y<sup>o</sup> -w't (goats), III 428 n. d.
Y<sup>o</sup> m, e. n., I 324; Y<sup>o</sup> m, g. n., I 333, 334, 336; Ym<sup>o</sup> w, g. n., I 510; Ym<sup>o</sup> m, I 311.
y<sup>o</sup> m't, d. n., I 98.
Y<sup>o</sup> mw-Khk, g. n., II 42.
Y<sup>o</sup> ny, p. n., II 343.
Y<sup>o</sup> hib, g. n., I 431.
Y<sup>o</sup> h-n-Ytm, r. n., II 959.
y<sup>o</sup> h (spirit), III 510.
Y<sup>o</sup> h-nb't, p. n., I 230.
y<sup>o</sup> hw't (horizon), II 316 n. c.
Y<sup>o</sup> hwty, d. n., II 325.
Y<sup>o</sup> hw't-n-Ytm, t. n., II 1018.
Y<sup>o</sup> hw't-hp-hr, p. n., I 252.
y<sup>o</sup> sr (tamarisk), IV 241; read <sup>o</sup> sr.
Y<sup>o</sup> t-Sbk, g. n., I 173.
Y<sup>o</sup> tw, p. n., II 912.
Yy-mrs, g. n., I 173.
Yy-hr-njr't, p. n., I 664.
Y<sup>c</sup> h, d. n., II 896.
y<sup>c</sup> h (-grain), II 733, 737, 739, 748, 749.
Y<sup>c</sup> h-wbn, p. n., IV 1029.
Y<sup>c</sup> h-ms, p. n., II 6.
Y<sup>c</sup> h-ms-njr.t-yry, p. n., II 26.
Y<sup>c</sup> h-ms-s<sup>o</sup>-p<sup>o</sup>-yr, r. n., IV 519.
y<sup>c</sup> hty (peasant, lit. "belonging to the field"), I 536; see hwty.
y<sup>o</sup> hw-ys't, IV 520 n. b.
Yw-w<sup>o</sup>-p-ty, p. n., IV 705.
Yw-w<sup>o</sup>-p't, r. n., IV 830.
Yw-w<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-t, p. n., IV 794.
Yw-p-ty, r. n., IV 794.
Yw-fy-ty (-plant), IV 234, 344, 378, 392.
Yw-mytrw, g. n., I 459 n. c.
Yw-n<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 948.
Yw-r-d-n, g. n., IV 716.
Yw-d-h-m-rw-k, g. n., IV 713.
yw-t<sup>o</sup> (where), III 288 n. b.
Yw-tw, g. n., III 114.
Yw'f, p. n., II 112.
yw'hr, II 224 n. b.
yw-ty'sn, III 174.
yw-tw'hr bs'k, IV 730 n. a.
Ywy, p. n., III 32B.
Ywy<sup>o</sup>, p. n., II 862, 867.
yw c'ty (peasantry), III 322.
Yww, g. n., II 299 n. b.
Ywjrr, p. n., IV 991.
Ywh, p. n., III 32C.
Yws-c<sup>o</sup> s, IV 278; Yws-c<sup>o</sup> -st, d. n., IV 183.
Yb-s<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 86.
Yb-s<sup>o</sup>, p. n., I 620 n. d.
Yb<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 958B.
Ybb, p. n., I 707.
Ybby, p. n., I 283.
Ybnw, IV 378, 395.
ybh't (-stone), II 501.
Ybh't, g. n., II 852.
Ybh<sup>o</sup>'t, g. n., I 321.
Ybdw, p. n., I 303.
yp't (measure), IV 232, 234, 238, 239, 240, 241, 244, 286, 294, 295, 297, 301, 350, 380, 385 n. a., 390, 392, 393.
Yp't-ys'wt, g. n., III 510.
yp'w (dues), II 716 ter, 717.
Ypy, p. n., I 387.
ypy yht nb ypt n hnw m rs pn, I 320, n. b.
Ypw, d. n., I 500.
ym, I 784 n. c.
Ym<sup>o</sup> w, g. n., I 351.
Ymy, p. n., I 450.
ymy-w c b, I 370.
ymy-wr't nt W<sup>o</sup> s't, II 905 n. d. ymy-pr (fortune), IV 946.
ymy-r<sup>o</sup> ys't m W't-hr, II 385 n. a.
ymy-hnty, II 1009.
ymyw-hnty (courtiers), III 267.
ymyw-st't, e. n., II 658 n. d.
Ymn-ys-r-w<sup>o</sup>, r. n., II 896 n. d.
Ymn-wsr-s, p. n., I 777.
Ymn-m-yn't, p. n., IV 522.
Ymn-h<sup>c</sup> w, p. n., IV 449.
Ymnw-hrp (pyramid name), I 601.
Ymsw, p. n., I 529.
Y<sup>o</sup> h't-yrny, p. n., I 387.
Y<sup>o</sup> hw-mnw, t. n., IV 753 n. a.

- Ymts*, r. n., I 310.
yn'w (tribute), III 481; yn'tw, III 632.
Yn-yw-g-s<sup>2</sup>, g. n., II 436; see <sup>2</sup> n-yw-g-s<sup>2</sup>.
Yn-mw't'f (pillar of his mother), III 155; IV 761.
Yn-n-r<sup>2</sup>-y, p. n., IV 553.
yn-n-hw (-stone), IV 600.
Ynij, p. n., I 365.
Yn-tw'f-ε<sup>2</sup>, r. n., IV 516.
Yn-tj-ε<sup>2</sup>, r. n., I 423; IV 514.
Yny, g. n., I 459.
Yny, p. n., I 373.
yny (brought), II 271 n. c.
Yny't, g. n., I 459, n. d; II 1 n. b.
Ynw-w<sup>2</sup> ww, p. n., III 635.
Ynw-Mn't'yu, e. n., III 118 (read Yntyw).
Ynw-šjnw, p. n., IV 366, 367.
Ynw šm<sup>ε</sup>, g. n., II 1018.
Ynbw-hd, g. n., IV 857.
ynm (?), I 736 n. d.
ynr-n-m<sup>2</sup>-t (granite), III 54.
ynr nfr n<sup>ε</sup> mw, II 339 n. b.
yntyw, I 104.
Yr-wn, g. n., III 309 n. d; Yr-wn't, III 312.
Yr-sw, d. n., II 959 n. c, 985 n. b; III 285 n. a.
Yr't-rw, p. n., IV 792.
Yry, p. n., I 333.
Yry, p. n., I 369.
yry (to visit), I 602 n. d.
yry-ε t-n-pr-hd (treasury official), I 718.
yry srt yri kd m rs pn, I 320 n. f.
yry'w-pt (fowl), III 404 n. e.
Yry't-s't, p. n., II 112.
yryt'n'y pw m wn'm<sup>2</sup>-ε (in reality), I 471 n. c.
Yrm, g. n., II 494, 845 n. f.
yrr (-stone), IV 377.
Yrrty, d. n., II 828.
Yrtt, g. n., I 311, 317, 334 bis, 336.
Yrrtt, g. n., I 324.
Yh<sup>2</sup>, p. n., I 688 n. a.
Yhy, p. n., I 165.
Yhy, p. n., I 387.
Yhw, p. n., I 298.
yhwty (peasant), IV 229; see y<sup>ε</sup> hty.
yh't (thing), I 652 n. a.
yh't (offering), II 618.
yh't-ntr (divine offerings), IV 1020.
Yhy, p. n., I 183.
Yhy, p. n., I 298, 301.
Yhrkyn, g. n., I 510.
Ys-sw-r<sup>2</sup>, g. n. (read <sup>2</sup> s-sw-r<sup>2</sup>), II 446 bis, 449.
ys-m<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup> (emory), IV 600.
ys-h<sup>2</sup> k't, II 916 n. b.
ys't wr't nt W<sup>2</sup> s't, II 905 n. d.
ys.t-m<sup>2</sup>-ε<sup>2</sup> (necropolis), IV 668.
Ysy, g. n., II 493, 511, 659.
Yssy, r. n., I 351, 353.
ys (tomb), II 36.
Ys't-yb, r. n., I 250; Ys't-yb-t<sup>2</sup> wy, r. n., I 250.
ys't-dsr't (cemetery), I 770, 771.
yswy (chamber), II 165.
Ykn, g. n., I 652.
Ykr-yb, p. n., I 343.
Ykw-dydy, p. n., I 526.
Ykw, p. n., I 419.
Yty, r. n., I 387.
Yty, p. n., I 459.
ytwr (aisle), IV 971.
ytr (measure), II 479; ytr'w, II 852.
ytr (river), IV 831 n. f.
yth (fortress), I 396 n. h.
Yt-t<sup>2</sup> wy, g. n., I 628 n. c; IV 856.
yd (youth), I 257.
Yd<sup>2</sup> ht, g. n., I 431.
Ydy, p. n., I 466 n. c.
ydf (-garments), IV 239, 375.
Ydnywyw (-plant), IV 235, 379, 392.
ydg<sup>2</sup> (-garments), IV 232, 374, 375.

c

- <sup>ε</sup> (-jar), IV 279, 300, 301, 347, 348, 350.
<sup>ε</sup> (-measure), IV 299, 348, 394.
<sup>ε</sup> (-vessel), IV 238.
<sup>ε</sup> -mw (water-supply), I 407 n. c; II 15 n. c; III 170 n. a.
<sup>ε</sup> -n-p-rw-n, g. n., IV 716.
<sup>ε</sup> -pw-r<sup>2</sup>, IV 281.
<sup>ε</sup> -pr-d-g<sup>2</sup>-r<sup>2</sup>, p. n., III 632.

- **-s-ly-r* > -t, d. n., IV 105.
 **-k* >, g. n., III 114.
 **t* (house), III 625; IV 956, 957.
 **t ni ht* (arbors), IV 264 n. a, 1021 n. b.
 **t-hk* > t (beer-hall), IV 451 n. c.
 * > (chieftain), IV 111, 129 bis, 726.
 **-phly-st*, r. n., III 542.
 **-m-k* > w, p. n., I 782.
 * > -n-k > h (chief of a district), IV 699.
 * > -n > -n > y, p. n., IV 452.
 * > -r > -n >, g. n., IV 713.
 * > -r > -iy (ramp), IV 189 n. a.
 * > -rw-n >, g. n., II 421, 422, 425, 426, 427.
 * > -rw-d >, g. n., IV 716.
 * > -hpr-n-R >, II 116; IV 637.
 * > -hpr-R >, r. n., IV 784.
 * > -š > -k (to oppress), IV 188 n. a.
 * > -g-m, p. n., III 337.
 * > -iy-k >, g. n., IV 408.
 * > t (costly stone), IV 1011 n. c.
 * > m (-club), I 365 n. c.
 * > m-hryw-š >, e. n., I 311.
 * > m > w, e. n., I 360 bis, 681 bis; II 4, 296, 303, 657, 658 n. e; III 139, 457; IV 31, 72, 80, 994 n. a.
 * > mw n šw, e. n., I 620 n. d.
 * > > bw, p. n., I 707.
 * > d (stretch of land), I 430 n. h.
 * > w ("doors"), I 322 n. e.
 * > w > (to take), IV 1005.
 * > w > (to reap), IV 893.
 * > yn ("to build with limestone of Ayan"), I 212 n. c; * > yn > (limestone), IV 216, 355, 356, 358.
 * > wt (tablets), IV 202 n. d, 231.
 * > pr (equipment), I 366 n. a; IV 466.
 * > m > w, g. n., II 387; IV 34; * > m > mw, II 298 n. c.; * > mw, II 265.
 * > mw, p. n., I 512.
 * > n > nht, p. n., I 360.
 * > n > f-sw, p. n., IV 550.
 * > mw, g. n., II 27, 103, 339; see also * > yn.
 * > mw (tablets), IV 202 n. d, 231.
 * > nb-šm > t, II 726, 727.
 * > nbw (-plant), IV 379, 395.
 * > nbw (-fruit), IV 240, 393.
 * > nn, p. n., II 931.
 * > nh (citizen), III 51, 57, 59; IV 397; * > nh > w (people), I 286 n. e, 681 bis; III 65; IV 397 n. a.
 * > nh (wreath), III 208 n. d.
 * > nh-njr-yb-R >, r. n., II 896 n. d.
 * > nh-Hr, p. n., IV 958B.
 * > nh > f-Ymn, p. n., IV 689.
 * > nh > y (-vase), IV 269, 334.
 * > nhw, p. n., I 783.
 * > nhls, p. n., IV 1029.
 * > nty, d. n., III 467; * > n-ty-t, III 84; * > nt, d. n., IV 105.
 * > nty (myrrh), III 116.
 * > n-t-r > -ty, d. n., III 386.
 * > nd (safety), II 105 n. f.
 * > r-k > -tw, g. n., II 529.
 * > ry > t (hall, judgment-hall), II 764, 767; IV 931; * > rry > t, II 763.
 * > rk (measure), IV 231.
 * > h > -nfr, p. n., IV 539.
 * > h > w (warriors), III 479.
 * > h > ty-nfr, p. n., IV 551.
 * > h > c (standing), I 317 n. c.
 * > h > c (heap), I 785 n. h.
 * > h > c (-jar), II 571.
 * > h > c (violence), I 423 n. e.
 * > h > c (palace), IV 900, 966 n. b.
 * > h > c (magazine), I 370.
 * > h > c -stny, II 292 n. c.
 * > h (altar), IV 1020.
 * > hw (-vessel), IV 334.
 * > hm > t, II 339 n. a.
 * > š (-jar), IV 924.
 * > š > -hb-šd, p. n., IV 438.
 * > k (-loaves), IV 238, 291, 393.
 * > k (-priest), IV 753.
 * > k-hr (=enter upon), IV 460 n. c.
 * > kb > t, e. n., II 70.
 * > g > t, II 447 ter.
 * > th (kneader), III 624 n. g.
 * > d > (guilty), IV 533 n. e.
 * > dd (youth), IV 570.

W

W > —, g. n., II 457.

W > -yw-h > -s > -t >, p. n., IV 726.

- W* > r > n >, p. n., IV 437.
W > r > k > ty-r >, p. n., IV 574.
W > -š-š, e. n., IV 403; W > -š > -š >, IV 64.
W > -š > ty-h > -t >, p. n., IV 784.
w > w (officer), II 987.
W > wt-Hr, g. n., II 385 n. a.
w > t, (way), IV 75 n. b.
W > tt-Hr, g. n., II 385 n. a.
W > y > t, g. n., II 1037.
W > w, g. n., I 510.
W > w > t, e. n., I 311, 317, 324, 358, 367; II 475, 487.
W > *rt*y, p. n., IV 566.
w > h (wreath), II 185.
W > h-yb-R >, r. n., IV 958D, 960, 988F, 990, 1000.
W > h-ys > t, g. n., II 736 bis.
W > h-c nh, r. n., I 396 n. h, 423, 529.
W > h-k > R >, r. n., IV 811, 884.
w > h > t (oasis), I 335 n. h.
w > hy > t (station), II 614.
w > s (-scepter), I 646.
W > s > t, g. n., III 30; IV 913, 926.
w > g, f. n., II 35.
W > g, g. n., I 433 n. d.
w > ḡ (-fowl), I 729.
w > ḡ (fresh), I 429 n. b.
W > ḡ-c nḡ, r. n., I 90.
w > ḡ-wr (sea), II 450 n. a; III 118; IV 921 n. e.
W > ḡ-hpr-R >, r. n., IV 519.
W > ḡ-t rnp > wt, r. n., II 239.
W > -c-n, g. n., II 582.
w > s > w >, III 622, n. b.
w > b (-priest), I 538, 552, 563, 564, 572, 583; II 97; III 31, 78, 160; IV 753, 958D, 988H, 1018.
[W > b-k > w]-Hthr, p. n., I 218.
w > b > t (joint of beef), II 114.
w > b > t (pure), I 370.
w > b > t (kitchen), III 624 n. i; IV 958J.
W > r > t (bend), g. n., I 370, 509 n. f.
w > rtw (commandant), I 679, 683.
w > w (-well), IV 726.
w > (forecourt), II 627; IV 514.
w > (inspect), I 312 n. e; w > (explore), I 334 n. e; IV 720 n. e.
w > (-stone), IV 303, 350, 395; w > > t, IV 287, 377.
w > -hr (instructed), II 758 n. c.
W > h > w, p. n., III 650.
w > p, IV 465 n. f.
W > p-w > wt, d. n., I 763 n. i.
W > pg, t. n., IV 1020.
w > m > t (-linen), II 554.
wn (coffin), IV 965 n. e.
Wn > phiy, p. n., IV 552.
wn-hr (appearance), IV 200 n. a.
wn-hr (experienced), II 758 n. c.
wn [hr n] sš > m yrw > t, II 371 n. c.
wn-dw (-oxen), II 723, 742; III 413.
Wny, p. n., I 293.
Wnw, g. n., IV 833, 843 bis.
Wnšk, g. n., II 848 n. a.
Wr-Ymn, p. n., IV 512.
w > r > c > (great chief), III 426.
w > pr hḡ (chief of the White House), I 722.
Wr-k >, e. n., I 112.
w > r > t (greatly), I 317 n. g, 493.
w > r > t (princess), III 391 n. c.
w > r > t-hk > w, d. n., IV 66.
Wr-m-r >, p. n., IV 43.
Wrm, g. n., II 845 n. f.
Wršw, f. n., IV 727.
w > rdw (-bird), IV 345 bis.
Whm-yb-R >, r. n., IV 1028.
whm > nh nfr (repeating a happy life), I 725.
Whm-mš > wt, r. n., IV 545.
whm-stny (royal herald), II 764; whm-n-stny, II 764 n. c.
whm kj > (repeating captures), II 20 n. f.
whm-sn nj (they answered him), IV 922 n. b.
whm > w (heralds), II 925 n. a.
wh > (to quarry stone), I 335 n. h.
wh > -ny ("I reaped"), I 658 n. f.
Wh > > t, g. n., I 335.
wh > > t (a measure), I 556.
wh > > (to loose), II 148 n. a.
Wsr-m > > > t-R > -P > > nhyy, r. n., IV 941 n. a.
Wsr-h > > t, II 888 n. b.
Wsr-hpš, p. n., IV 526.

- Wsr't-k>w*, r. n., I 239.
wsh (-ship), IV 19, 720 n. d.
wsh-hb-sd (jubilee-court), IV 707 n. d.
wsh't (castle), I 532 bis.
wsh't (broad hall), II 1018; III 515.
Wsr-h'c w, r. n., I 163.
wšmw (pail), II 32.
wtwl (to stir), II 616.
wib (-priest), I 668.
Wintyw, g. n., II 660 n. e.
wts-nj'r't (barque-shrine), II 92; IV 982.
wts't njrwf (bearer of his beauty), II 316 n. d.
Włk, g. n., I 369.
Włs-Hr, g. n., I 500.
Włł, g. n., I 367.
wd (put, place), I 423E n. c; wd'n'y (have placed), II 198 n. h.
wdn, II 735.
wđ (-mineral), IV 348, 377.
wdnw-ni (-loaves), IV 238, 291, 297.
wđ (storehouse), II 751; wđ, II 751.
Wđ -Hr, r. n., IV 980.
Wđ-Pih-c n'h'j, p. n., IV 792.
wđ't-md't (command, edict), I 193 n. b.
wđ (prosperity), II 105 n. f.
wđ (sacred eye), IV 201 n. b.
Wđ -rn's, p. n., IV 951.
Wđ y, p. n., I 343.
wdb (pay), I 219 n. b.
wđh (offering-table), I 610; II 32.
wđh (=sparkling), II 533 n. g.
- B
- B-c-l-tw-R* -m-g-w, p. n., III 630.
B-n-i-r-š, p. n., III 436.
B, g. n., IV 716 n. b.
b (soul), IV 187.
B -w-y, g. n., III 340
B -wr-dd, p. n., I 351, 353.
b -b -y (stone), IV 377.
b -nw (-fruit), IV 378, 395.
B -rw-m -m, g. n., IV 713 n. f.
B -hw, p. n., IV 481.
B -k, g. n., III 285.
b -k -y (plant), IV 234.
B -k -n, g. n., IV 405.
B -k -R, r. n., IV 921.
B -ty-h-w -rw-n, g. n., IV 712.
B -ty-š -n-r, g. n., IV 712; B -t-š -r, III 114.
B -ty-t -rw-m -m, g. n., IV 713 n. h.
B -t-c-n-t, g. n., III 114; B -y-ty-c-n-ty, III 356.
B -dy-r, g. n., IV 565.
B -b, p. n., II 7.
B -stt nt tš-ršy, d. n., I 396 n. c.
B -k't, p. n., I 622.
B -k, g. n., III 284.
b -k -y't (precinct), III 31 n. b.
By, g. n., I 353 n. c. 735.
by (iron), II 537 n. c.
By -t (mine-land), I 602, n. d.
by -t (loaf), II 113; III 77, 159; IV 238, 291, 297, 347; by't, III 624 n. h.
by -y't (gritstone), IV 287 n. c.
Byn, g. n., IV 867.
Byn-m-W -s't, p. n., IV 443.
By -s-t, g. n., IV 956, 957.
b -ny (-plant), IV 380, 395.
Bw-yw-w -w, p. n., IV 792.
Bw-pn-Ymn-h -c, p. n., IV 682.
Bb-r, g. n., II 446, 484.
bp (-jar), IV 300, 348.
bp -ny-ny, IV 234.
bnw't (-stone), II 643.
bnbn (pyramidion, sanctuary), II 572 n. e, 935; bnbn't, IV 982.
bnr (sweet), II 433 n. h.
brk (tribute), IV 577 n. a.
brk (to hail), IV 122; b -r -k (gifts), IV 207 n. e.
Bhny, g. n., III 79; Bhn't, III 159; Bwhn, III 285.
Bhksy, p. n., I 365.
bh (-loaves), IV 238, 393.
Bh-hw-k, r. n., IV 514.
Bhw, g. n., II 597.
bhn, IV 235.
bhn (black basalt), I 675 n. a; bhnw, III 246.
bhn'w (strongholds), IV 141.
bhn't (pylon), III 508.
bst't (tool), IV 189 n. d.
Bš, r. n., I 81.

- bk* (-oil), IV 239, 376; bk (oil), IV 390.
Bk, p. n., II 975.
bk (tower), IV 842 n. b.
bk (serve, labor, pay taxes), IV 931, 932, 933.
Bk-wr-n-r, p. n., IV 555.
Bk-n-Wr-n-r, p. n., IV 512.
Bk-n-nfy, p. n., IV 830.
Bky, g. n., II 852.
bk'w (imposts), I 731; II 716; III 481.
- P
- P-c nky*, r. n., IV 816.
P-w-r-m, p. n., IV 881.
P-w-r-m, p. n., IV 821.
P-n-dw, p. n., IV 430.
P-y-ry, p. n., IV 442.
P-y-y, p. n., IV 444.
P-y-s, p. n., III 337 bis.
P-yf-r, p. n., IV 423.
P-y-yw, p. n., IV 429.
P-y-r-nw, p. n., IV 423.
P-y-r-sw, p. n., IV 443.
P-c-n-byw, p. n., IV 512.
P-c-c-k, p. n., II 839.
P-c-c-m-k, p. n., IV 715.
P-c-n-k, p. n., IV 512.
P-wr-c, p. n., IV 511.
P-wd, g. n., IV 368.
P-b-y, g. n., IV 716 n. b.
P-B-s, p. n., IV 878; P-y-b-s, p. n., IV 423, 452.
P-m, p. n., IV 815, 878.
P-mr-hm, p. n., III 634.
P-mry-Ymn, p. n., IV 546.
P-mh-t, p. n., III 94.
P-r-hw, r. n., II 258.
P-r-k, p. n., IV 445.
P-R, III 542.
P-R-c-p, p. n., IV 593.
P-R-c-m-hb, p. n., III 634.
P-R-c-m-hb, p. n., IV 423.
P-R-c-hp, p. n., IV 281.
P-rw-k, p. n., IV 439.
P-h-r, g. n., III 114.
P-hw-k-rw, p. n., IV 715.
- P-s-c-k*, p. n., IV 784.
P-sr, p. n., IV 513.
P-Sbk, p. n., IV 784.
P-knw, p. n., IV 784.
P-krr, p. n., IV 932.
P-k-n-c-n, g. n., III 88; P-k-n-c-n, III 617.
P-k-wt-yw, p. n., IV 485.
P-t-w-mdy-Ymn, p. n., IV 431.
P-twt, p. n., IV 792.
P-tnf, p. n., IV 878; P-tnfj, p. n., IV 815.
P-dy-Hr-sm-t, p. n., IV 878.
P-drps, p. n., IV 937 n. b.
P-dkw, g. n., II 9.
P-y-b-k-y-k-mn, p. n., IV 427.
P-y-nfr, p. n., IV 512.
P-y-r-k, g. n., III 386.
P-y-k-mn, p. n., IV 547.
p-k (a bread), I 577.
P-dy-Ymn-ns-t, p. n., IV 881.
P-h-t, p. n., IV 726.
P-y-d-s, g. n., III 306, 309 n. d, 312; P-y-d-s, III 349.
Pyy, r. n., III 644; Pyy, IV 224.
pypy't (keel), IV 582 n. a.
p't (people), I 445; III 578.
p.c.t. (-loaves) IV 238.
p.d't (-bird), IV 242.
-pw, r. n., I 90.
Pw-r-s-t, g. n., IV 44, 82, 403; Pw-r-s-t, g. n., IV 64, 71, 81.
pw-g (-jar), IV 300, 350.
Pw-t, g. n., IV 948.
Pw-tw-hy-p, p. n., III 391.
Pwnt, g. n., I 353.
pw-s-c-k (-loaves), IV 238.
Pf-nf-dyy-B-s't, p. n., IV 852.
pn ("this"), I 353 n. c.
Pn-ytt-t, p. n., IV 338.
pn wnt, II 808 n. c.
Pn-nw't, p. n., IV 482.
Pn-Nhb't, p. n., II 20.
Pn-rnw't, p. n., IV 423.
Pn-hwy-by, p. n., IV 442, 455.
Pn-t-wr, p. n., IV 444.
Pn-t-wr't, p. n., III 315.
Pny-n, g. n., IV 867.

- pnsw* (joint of beef), II 113.
Pnty-Bhyn't, p. n., IV 878.
pr (house), III 507, 567; IV 183, 195, 197, 215, 222, 223, 225, 227, 277, 283, 288, 340, 355, 357, 365, 366, 367, 369, 958J, 972, 988D, H.
Pr-yubw, g. n., IV 956.
Pr-yr, g. n., III 579 n. d, 583; Pr-yrr, III 588.
Pr-c, I 148 n. c.
Pr-c nĥ, g. n., IV 547.
Pr-wr, g. n., I 159.
pr-wr (great house), I 609.
Pr-wr-s h, g. n., I 174.
Pr-b r r ys't, g. n., III 576.
Pr-m o (château), III 588 n. c.
Pr-nw, g. n., I 156.
Pr-nb-tĥ-yĥ, g. n., IV 818.
Pr-nsr, g. n., I 159.
Pr-H't-hr-Mjk, g. n., IV 1003 n. e.
Pr-H't-hr-ršyt, t. n., I 373.
pr-ĥ ty-c (count's estate), I 536.
Pr-H c p, g. n., IV 878.
Pr-Hr, g. n., II 742.
Pr-sp o, g. n., I 172.
pr-sn (-loaves), II 113; III 624 n. b; IV 238, 297, 347.
pr-stny (palace), III 20; IV 751, 958J.
Pr-šstĥ, g. n., I 172.
Pr-kd, g. n., I 172, 174.
Pr-g-w ty, g. n., IV 405 n. c.
Pr-G-rw-rw, g. n., IV 878.
Pr-d d o, g. n., IV 726.
Pr-Dhwt-y-Wp-rĥwy, g. n., IV 830, 878.
pr-đi (estate), I 545.
pr'w (houses), III 498.
pr't (second season), I 735.
pr't-s (-loaves), III 77, 159.
Prww, g. n., I 510.
Ph-c n, g. n., IV 1003 n. d.
ph sw (foe), IV 921 n. a.
phrr, III 579; IV 58, 65, 75, 80.
phr-wr (the Great Bend), III 118.
ps o (-measure), IV 378, 395.
Psmik, r. n., IV 960.
psn (loaf), I 241.
psgw (-wood), II 447.
psđ't (ennead), III 533; IV 399.
ps (flax), IV 241, 379, 392; ps't, IV 235.
ph o t (-linen), I 727; ph't, II 554, 571.
Phy, g. n., II 94.
pg (-vessel), II 571.
Ptn, g. n., I 493.
Pth-n-k o w, p. n., I 387.
Pth-špsš, p. n., I 256.
pd't, II 572.
Pd'ty-šw, e. n., III 580.
Pd'tt, g. n., II 798.
pdr (crate), IV 241.
- F
- f* o (pay), IV 482 n. c; 577 n. a; f o y (to deliver), IV 266; f o y n (we bring), IV 933.
F o t c o t nt Mwt, p. n., IV 641.
f o k o t; see m f o k o t, I 602 n. e.
Fnhw, e. n., II 27, 529.
Fk o t ("Malachite"), g. n., I 266 n. c; see m f k o t.
- M
- m* c y (in charge of), I 423D.
m ys-h o k (spoil), II 431 n. f.
m c m c (unclean), IV 882 n. d.
m w o (from afar), IV 822 n. b.
m ws (in vain), I 637 n. a.
M-n-g-b-ty, p. n., IV 565.
m nĥi, IV 722 n. b.
m-r o -y-n o (lord), II 436, 585, 590.
M-r o -y o -yw-y, p. n., III 579; M-r o -y o -y, III 612; Mw-r o -y o -y, III 586; M-r o -y o -yw, IV 43; M-w-r o -y o -y, III 610; M-w-r o -wy-y, III 615.
M-r o -s o -r o, r. n., III 373, 391.
m rĥ't, III 583 n. d.
m hĥ j nĥ n ĥ c ("at the his every feast of appearance"), IV 988J n. c.
m-ĥ o -w (an animal), II 449.
m ĥi (hereafter), IV 722 n. b.
M-s o -b o -t o, g. n., IV 405 n. d.
m-s o ĥy (-jar), IV 233.
m sp n šp (because of occasions of shame), IV 880 n. f.
m sp tĥy (at the first time), IV 988J n. b.
m sn't r (in likeness to), II 755 n. b.

- M-š* > -w > -š >, g. n., III 580, 589; IV 40, 43, 58, 405; M-š > -w >, IV 87 (90).
M-š > -š > -r, p. n., IV 90.
M-š > -k-n, p. n., IV 43.
m-š > -k > -bwy (tax-officials), IV 266, 324.
m šrt—l, I 315, n. b.
M-k-ty, g. n., II 437; My-k-ty, II 402, 420 ter, 428, 430 ter, 431, 432; My-k-t, II 437; M-k-d-yw, IV 712.
m-k-ty-r > (tower), III 100.
M-k > -m-rw, p. n., IV 566.
m k > t yb' y, II 303 n. b.
m ty > t (at this moment), II 36 n. c.
m ty > t (as an emanation), IV 912 n. c.
My-t-n, g. n., II 659; My-tn, II 773; My-in, II 804; M-t-n, IV 722.
M-t > -d-w-ty-w, p. n., III 632.
m t > wt (secretly), IV 541.
m > (court), IV 393.
M > -b > -r >, g. n., III 578.
M > -nw, g. n., II 905.
M > -s >, g. n., III 306, 312; M > -sw, III 309.
m > yw (copper), IV 548.
m > c (offering), I 437.
m > c -hrw (triumphant), III 280 281, 626 n. c.
M > c -hrw-R <, r. n., I 749.
M > c t-njr'w-R <, p. n., III 417.
M > c t-h <, p. n., I 257.
M > c t-k > -R <, r. n., II 344.
m > w (new), IV 910 n. b.
M > w > sn, p. n., IV 792.
M > wt-hnty, g. n., IV 368.
M > jd' t, d. n., I 115.
M > d, g. n., IV 915.
m > dy' w (officials), III 272.
m > dydy (-jar), IV 376.
My, p. n., IV 423.
My-yw, g. n., IV 480.
My-l-pr, g. n., I 172, 174.
My-t > -ry-m, p. n., III 337.
My-t-šry, p. n., IV 523.
My >, p. n., III 32B.
My < m, g. n., II 1037; IV 474, 477; My < m > m, III 285; My < t, IV 474, 479.
mynw (-stone), IV 233, 302.
myk, II 11 n. f.
myg > (archer), II 15 n. a bis.
M < y, p. n., II 1002.
m < h < t (tomb or chapel), II 36.
M < hr, g. n., I 334.
Mw-š > -n-t, g. n., III 306, 309.
Mw-t-n-r >, r. n., III 374, 375, 377.
mj > k > t (malachite), I 602 n. e.
Mn, p. n., II 975.
mn (-jars), II 447 bis, 462 bis, 482, 491 ter, 501 bis, 509, 518, 571, 621; IV 233, 239, 292, 299, 341, 348, 376, 378, 390, 393; mn > t (-jar), IV 395.
Mn-m > c t-R <, r. n., III 169, 171.
mn-njr > t (ornament), I 534.
Mn-h < w, r. n., I 263.
Mn-h-pr-R < -P- < nhy, r. n., IV 941 n. a.
Mn-h-prw-R <, r. n., II 812.
Mn-k > w-Hr, r. n., I 263.
mny > t (necklace), I 500; II 93.
mny > t (-geese), I 729.
mny > t (pigeons), IV 242.
mny > t-wd (-metal), IV 302.
Mn < t-Hwfw, g. n., I 624.
Mn < t-Hfw, g. n., I 456.
mnw (-stone), II 491, 509, 518.
mnjy > t (troop, infantry), I 707; III 484, 578.
mnmn (herd), IV 212 n. d.
mnk (officer), IV 593.
mnk (-plant), IV 295.
Mnh-yb, r. n., IV 988C.
Mnh > t, p. n., I 508.
mnk > t (-linen), II 165.
mnk > t-nir (clothing), I 369 n. j.
mnš (-ship), III 274.
mnkb (shrine), I 787.
Mntw, g. n., I 728; Mn > t yw, e. n., III 118; Mnty-š > t, e. n., II 14; II 721; Mntw, e. n., I 236.
Mntw-m-t > wy, p. n., IV 423.
Mntw-hr-hpš > j, p. n., IV 512.
Mntw, d. n., II 844.
mr (canal), IV 853 n. a.
mr (chief, properly ymy-r >), III 322; IV 821.
mr (a wood), I 146; mr >, IV 288, 379,

- 391; mr̄y, II 435; IV 288, 378, 391;
mrw, II 447, 449.
Mr-yw-, g. n., II 487.
mr-<sup>c</sup> prw (captain), I 606 n. d.
Mr-wr, p. n., IV 551.
Mr-Mw't-K<sup>o</sup>-m<sup>o</sup>-m<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 696.
Mr-n-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 320, 333.
Mr-sgr, p. n., II 171.
mr't (peasant-slave), I 623; II 881.
Mr't-wbḥ't, p. n., IV 957.
mr't-ntr (-priest), II 713, 936; mr̄y-ntr
(-priest), II 1036; IV 958B.
Mr̄y, p. n., I 508.
Mr̄y-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 302.
Mr̄y-ḥt, r. n., I 302.
Mr̄y-k<sup>o</sup>-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 399.
mr̄y't (peasant-slaves), III 271.
Mr̄yy-t<sup>o</sup> wy ("Beloved of the Two Lands"), r. n., I 302, 305.
mrsw (-jar), IV 376.
mrk (tribute), IV 577 n. a; see brk.
Mrt̄y-wsy-Ymn, p. n., IV 446.
Mrt̄t-yt-š, p. n., I 189.
mḥywt (-fruit), IV 240, 378, 399.
mhn (-jar), IV 301.
mḥrw (vessels), II 162.
mḥ-yb'f (favorite), IV 1007 n. b.
Mḥ't-m-wšḥ't, p. n., IV 958C.
Mḥy, p. n., I 276.
mḥtt (-jar), IV 350.
mḥ<sup>o</sup> (barge), I 423F n. c.
mḥ<sup>o</sup> (-weight), IV 240.
Mḥ<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup> wy, g. n., IV 864 n. a.
Mḥ, r. n., I 90.
Ms-sw̄y, p. n., IV 445.
ms'w (children), I 456 n. c.
mswy II 449 n. f.
msn't (a stone), I 500.
Mšd, g. n., IV 879.
mskt't (morning-barque), IV 67, 73.
mst<sup>o</sup> (-measure), IV 582; msty, IV
234, 235, 240, 287, 301, 344, 350, 378,
390, 391, 392, 395.
Msd-sw-R<sup>c</sup>, p. n., IV 428.
msd't (-stone), III 246; msdm't, IV 302, 345.
Msqwt, g. n., I 174 n. h.
Mš, d. n., I 159.
- Mš-t<sup>o</sup>*, g. n., IV 956.
Mš<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 368.
mš<sup>c</sup> (army), III 298 n. a.
mšd't (channel), II 784 n. f.
mḥ-r<sup>o</sup>-ḡy-n<sup>o</sup> (horn), II 447.
mt (chief), IV 468 n. b.
mt (-linen), II 719, 721, 722, 723, 726, 727 bis, 730 731, 736, 738, 744 bis.
mt̄y (customary), II 798 n. a; III 580
n. d.
Mtr, g. n., I 368.
Mḡ<sup>o</sup>, e. n., I 311, 317, 324; Mḡ<sup>o</sup> y,
e. n., IV 466.
mḡ<sup>o</sup> (-measure), IV 295, 347; mḡ<sup>o</sup> yw,
IV 244.
Mḡ[r], r. n., I 180.
- N
- N<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>-t<sup>o</sup> ys-nḥt't*, p. n., IV 918.
N-<sup>c</sup> nḥ-Šḥm't, p. n., I 250 n. c, 266
n. a.
N-<sup>c</sup> nḥ-ššy, p. n., I 230.
N-<sup>c</sup> nḥ-Ḥnt̄y-ḥt, p. n., I 266.
N-w<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>-ty-rw-k<sup>o</sup>-n<sup>o</sup>-yw, p. n., IV 784.
N-wšr-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 250.
n-by<sup>o</sup> y't (marvelous stone), IV 287 n. c.
N-m<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>-t-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 250 n. c, 673, 719.
N-m<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>-t-R<sup>c</sup> N-ḥ<sup>c</sup>, r. n., I 786 n. a.
N-m<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup>-t-ḥ<sup>o</sup> p, p. n., I 173.
n-n-y-bw (-wood), IV 344, 391.
N-h-r-n, g. n., II 479 n. a, 631 bis, 656,
800; III 118, 434; N-h-r-n<sup>o</sup>, II
449, 867; N-h-r-ny, II 858 bis; III
114; N-h-ry-n, II 420, 818, 871; III
306, 309, 344; N-h-ry-n<sup>o</sup>, II 479,
481, 485, 498, 500, 532; N-hy-r-n,
III 321; N<sup>o</sup>-h-ry-n<sup>o</sup>, II 85, 862;
N<sup>o</sup>-h<sup>o</sup>-ry-n<sup>o</sup>, II 81.
N-ḥb̄, r. n., I 90.
n-ḥny-ḥny (necropolis), IV 526 n. b.
N-k<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup> nḥ, p. n., I 343.
N-k<sup>o</sup>-<sup>c</sup> nḥ, p. n., I 216.
N-k<sup>o</sup>-n-nbt̄y, p. n., I 194.
N-k<sup>o</sup> w, r. n., IV 1028.
N-k<sup>o</sup> w-Pth, p. n., I 250 n. c.
N-k<sup>o</sup> w-R<sup>c</sup>, p. n., I 250 n. c.
N-g-b<sup>o</sup>, g. n., II 580.
n t<sup>o</sup> wt (secretly), IV 541 n. c.
n(y)t Njr-k<sup>o</sup>-R<sup>c</sup> mn<sup>c</sup> nḥ, I 341 n. b.

- nw-pr-yt* (paternal estate), I 536.
Nt-ykr't, p. n., IV 943.
nt bsj, I 423 D n. b.
nty m ht, IV 764 n. g.
nty s>wt, IV 726.
n>-yy, IV 44 n. e. n>-ck, IV 44 n. e.
N>y-šnw-mh, p. n., IV 682.
N>y-bw (-wood), IV 234.
Nyy, g. n., II 481, 588.
Nc-nš-B>s't, p. n., IV 1025.
Nc r, g. n., IV 968.
nc r yn (recruits), III 302.
nc h, (-bale), IV 371.
Nw-g-s, g. n., III 309.
nw't (city), IV 485.
Nw't, g. n., I 423; sec >n-yw->-s>.
nws> (-weight), IV 302.
nb (to fashion), I 610 n. c.
Nb-c, r. n., IV 945.
Nb-c nh, IV 187 n. b.
Nb-wc'wy, p. n., II 179.
Nb-wn-nf, p. n., III 255.
Nb-ph'iy-Rc, r. n., II 7.
Nb-m>c't-Rc, r. n., II 884, 845.
Nb-hp't-Re, r. n., I p. 344 Add; IV 520.
Nb-hc s, p. n., IV 517.
Nb-hpr-Rc, r. n., I 773 n. b, IV 515;
Nb-hprw-Rc, I 775.
Nb-hrw-Rc, r. n., I 426; p. 344 Add.
Nb-snt, p. n., I 175.
Nb-k>w-Rc, r. n., I 595, 600.
Nb-t>wy-Rc, I 437, 446, 450.
Nb-đf>w, p. n., IV 445.
Nb't, p. n., I 349.
nb't (all), II 102 n. d.
Nb't-ytf, p. n., I 782.
Nb't-w, p. n., II 779.
nb't-pr (lady), III 542.
nb y (-wood), II 449.
Nbnšy, p. n., IV 792.
nbdw, IV 241.
Npt, g. n., II 797.
Nf-wr, g. n., IV 675.
Nfw-wr, g. n., III 281.
nfr, II 233 n. c.
nfr (-loaves), II 472.
nfr't (-loaves), II 462.
Nfr-yr-k>-Rc, r. n., I 165, 244.
Nfr-h>t, p. n., II 839 n. d.
Nfr-Hr, p. n., IV 957.
nfr ht (beautiful rest), IV 665 n. f.
Nfr-k>-Rc, r. n., I 340, 351.
Nfr-k>-Rc-Stp-n-Rc, r. n., IV 493 n. b.
Nfr-im, Hw-Rc, r. n., IV 888.
nfr'w (base), IV 517 n. d.
Nfr'w-Rc, p. n., II 344, 362.
Nfr'w-Rc, p. n., III 435.
Nfr'w's, g. n., IV 820.
nfr'wt (maidens), II 567 n. b.
Nm>yw, g. n., II 267.
nms't (-jar), II 32 ter; IV 269, 301, 334, 350.
nn sn'y ym (none equal thereto), I 471 n. a.
Nr>w, g. n., IV 296.
nr>w (gazelle), IV 242.
Nhy (Negroes?), IV 477 n. b.
nhb (-wood), II 449.
Nhry, p. n., I 622, 628.
nhh (-oil), IV 239, 376, 390, 395.
Nhsy, e. n., I 365 n. c.
Nhbt, d. n., I 131 n. a.
Nhb, g. n., II 7.
Nht-m-Mw't, p. n., IV 539.
Nht-Hr-n>-šnw, p. n., IV 878.
nht-hrw (strong-voiced), I 172.
Ns-n>-c>y, p. n., IV 830.
Ns-n>-hd-y, p. n., IV 830 n. c, 878.
Ns-sy-p>-hr-n-Mw't, p. n., IV 660.
Ns-sw-Ymn, p. n., IV 511.
Ns-sw-b>-nb-dd, p. n., IV 564.
Ns-sw-p>-k>-šwt y, p. n., IV 689.
Ns-sw-b>-yš't, p. n., IV 726.
Ns-wt-t>wy (Thebes), I 484; III 223, 503, 510; IV 900, 913, 924.
Nstnt, p. n., IV 844.
nš (?), I 309 n. h.
nšm't (sacred barque), I 534, 613, 668.
nšm't (feldspar), IV 287 n. b, 302, 243, 389.
nšn (to rage), II 828 n. g.
nšn c> (great wrath), IV 764.

- Nkry*, p. n., II 1 n. c.
nkp<sup>o</sup> ty (rosemary), IV 234.
ng<sup>o</sup> (ox), IV 242, 293; ng<sup>o</sup> w, II 719.
Ng<sup>o</sup> w, g. n., I 493.
ngmgm (to plot), II 787.
ntr w<sup>c</sup> nn ky hr sp<sup>o</sup> w<sup>o</sup> f, IV 969 n. b.
Ntr-h<sup>c</sup> w, r. n., I 340.
ntr-dw<sup>o</sup> t (divine votress), IV 942; see also dw<sup>o</sup> t-ntr.
Ntr<sup>o</sup> t-h<sup>o</sup> w, r. n., II 239.
ntry (divine), IV 261 n. a.
ntry<sup>o</sup> t (goddess), IV 261 n. a.
Ntr, r. n., I 250.
ntry (sanctuary), I 156, 159.
Ntry-mw, r. n., I 117.
Ndy<sup>o</sup> t, I 669.
nd<sup>o</sup> j-r<sup>o</sup> hr<sup>o</sup> f, II 134 n. b.
nd<sup>o</sup> t-r<sup>o</sup> (oracle), II 606 n. c.
nd<sup>o</sup> ty (avenger), II 660.
nd<sup>o</sup> (a measure of capacity), II 159 bis, 571 bis.
Ndm-yb, p. n., I 278.
nds (citizen), I 459, 536; III 565; IV 863.
- R
- R-b*, g. n., IV 784; R-b<sup>o</sup>, IV 783; R<sup>o</sup>-bw, III 611.
L-b-a-n, g. n., IV 716.
R-m-n-n, II 783; R<sup>o</sup>-mn-n, g. n., II 483 bis, 510.
r-h<sup>o</sup> w (over against), II 627.
r ht (under charge of), IV 784 n. a.
r dr<sup>o</sup> f (to its extent), I 468 n. d.
r-d<sup>o</sup> t, II 97 n. a.
r<sup>o</sup> (-geese), IV 242.
R<sup>o</sup>-<sup>o</sup> w, g. n., I 212, 239, 307; R<sup>o</sup>-<sup>o</sup> wy, II 875.
R<sup>o</sup>-y, p. n., III 630.
R<sup>o</sup>-yn<sup>o</sup> t, p. n., II 975.
R<sup>o</sup>-yn<sup>o</sup> t, g. n., I 218, 221.
R<sup>o</sup>-wy-<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 131.
R<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-yw-r, p. n., III 337.
R<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-sw-n-n<sup>o</sup>, p. n., III 337.
R<sup>o</sup>-pr (temple), IV 283, 340.
R<sup>o</sup>-m, p. n., III 621.
r<sup>o</sup>-h<sup>o</sup>-wt (harbor-mouths), II 916 n. h; IV 44 n. a, 65 n. h.
r<sup>o</sup>-hw-sw (-cakes), IV 238, 291, 393.
R<sup>o</sup>-hn<sup>o</sup> t, g. n., IV 853.
r<sup>o</sup>-hr (chief), II 372; IV 398, 400; r<sup>o</sup>-hry, III 25, 288 n. e.
R<sup>o</sup>-h<sup>o</sup>-sy-n<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 386.
R<sup>o</sup>-st<sup>o</sup>, g. n., I 177, 179, 180.
R<sup>o</sup>-š, t. n., I 159.
R<sup>o</sup>-š<sup>o</sup>-ty, g. n., II 299 n. a; IV 31; R<sup>o</sup>-š<sup>o</sup>-t, IV 34; R<sup>o</sup>-š<sup>o</sup> w, II 299 n. a.
R<sup>c</sup> J<sup>c</sup> m<sup>l</sup>, p. n., I 281.
R<sup>c</sup>-wny(?), p. n., I 336 n. h.
R<sup>c</sup>-ms-sw-š<sup>o</sup>-hb, p. n., III 496; IV 465.
R<sup>c</sup>-n-k<sup>o</sup> w, p. n., I 193.
R<sup>c</sup>-nfr, g. n., IV 830, 878.
R<sup>c</sup>-ndr, r. n., I 786 n. b.
R<sup>c</sup> y<sup>o</sup> t, d. n., II 325.
R<sup>c</sup> hmn, p. n., I 375.
Rw-<sup>o</sup>-nr-s-k-n-y, p. n., IV 812; n. d.
Rw-b<sup>o</sup>-ty, g. n., IV 712.
Rw-m<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 442.
Rw-h<sup>o</sup>-b<sup>o</sup>-<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 712.
Rw-k<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 309; Rw-k<sup>o</sup>-t, III 312; Rw-ku, III 574, 579.
rw<sup>o</sup> t (false door), I 322 n. e.
rwyt (granite settings of doors in the wall), I 322 n. e.
rwyt<sup>o</sup> t (banks), IV 405 n. b.
Rwty, I 148 n. c, 239 n. a.
rud (shore), IV 405 n. f.
rud<sup>o</sup> w (inspectors), II 1026.
rud<sup>o</sup> t ("enduring or hard stone;" "alabaster," later "sandstone"), I 323 n. d, 696 n. c; II 153 n. e, 606 n. d.
rpy<sup>o</sup> t (figure), III 391 n. c.
rpk<sup>o</sup> ty (hereditary prince), I 419 and n. d bis; III 132, 288 n. c; IV 124 n. b, 980.
rmł (people), II 257 n. e, 287, 288.
Rn-šnb, p. n., I 752.
rn<sup>o</sup> t pw (thy name, etc.), II 288 n. c.
rn<sup>o</sup> w (young men), IV 63 n. a.
-rrt (-loaf), I 590.
rhd<sup>o</sup> t (kettle), II 436; III 589.
Rhs<sup>o</sup> wy, g. n., IV 878.
rh, I 634 n. b; rh<sup>o</sup> f (he knows), II 233 n. c.
Rh-phtw<sup>o</sup> f, p. n., II 642.
rh stny, I 636 n. g.

- rḥy't* (people), I 445 bis; II 236, 776, 767, 768, 805, 840, 858, 993, 1002; III 174, 175, 265, 268, 578, 580 n. e; IV 43, 47, 398, 921.
Rs-nf't, g. n., II 731.
rš-d' d' (watchful head), II 28 n. c.
ršy (southern), I 396 n. h.
ršy (grain), I 459.
Ršy ynb'f, d. n., II 900 n. b; IV 866.
rkrk (to gallop), II 784.
Rkh, f. n., IV 768.
rkh (heat), I 630 n. b.
Rtnw, g. n., I 680; II 548, 549, 616, 761; III 94, 97, 102, 103, 106, 107, 111, 112, 139, 147; IV 28; Rtnw, II 888, 1030, 1033; III 270, 457, 498; IV 219; Rtnw't, II 413.
rdy't m b' h, IV 733 n. a.
rdyn ny y't y, II 616 n. a.
rdw (-garments), IV 239.
- H
- H' s'*, g. n., IV 405.
h' f (he descended), I 283 n. d.
h' y (laborer), III 531.
h' w-mn (-garment), IV 375.
H' n-wln-Ymn, p. n., IV 448.
H' k-r', f. n., I 746; II 35.
hy't (hall), IV 889.
hbn (-jar), IV 950, 952; hbn't (-jar), I 590; II 159, 164, 509, 567, 734, 736, 738, 739, 741, 743, 745.
hnn (head), II 509 n. a.
Hnk'w, p. n., I 281.
hnd (to charge), III 608 n. e.
Hrw-nfr, p. n., IV 482.
hd't (-plant), IV 235.
- H
- h't* (house or temple), II 36; III 229, 232, 528, 644 n. e; IV 219, 223, 227, 274, 281, 283, 311, 338, 340, 355, 365, 366, 367, 958J; h' wt (temples), II 358.
H't-ybt'y, g. n., IV 916.
h't- c' t, III 229, 240.
H't-w' r' t, g. n., II 4, 8, 296; IV 820.
H't-wr't-Ymn-m-h' t, g. n., II 735.
H't-Bnw, g. n., IV 839.
 III 16.
h't-bnb'n (sanctuary), II 987.
Ht-nb, g. n., I 323; II 45.
h't-ntr (temple), III 244, 507; IV 751, 958K, 965 n. d.
H't-shm, g. n., II 737.
H't-stny, g. n., IV 818.
H't-š' c' t, g. n., IV 102, 107.
ht-k' (ka-temple), I 289.
H't-k' -Pth, g. n., III 77; IV 724.
H', g. n., I 602 (in III 498 read H' m).
H' -y' -n-m, g. n., IV 713 n. e.
H' -pw-rw-m-', g. n., IV 712.
H' -nbw, e. n., I 428.
H' -nfr, p. n., II 358.
H' -r' -b' -ty, g. n., III 84.
H' -ty-b', p. n., IV 591.
H' -ty-hn-k-r, p. n., IV 784.
h' t (land-measure), I 574, 584 bis, 586, 591, 592.
h' w-tyw (leaders), IV 55.
H' t-Ymn-t' -nfr, p. n., IV 660.
h' tyw (officials), III 65, 103, 643.
H' t-y' y, p. n., II 932; III 32C.
H' p'y, p. n., I 675.
H' pw, p. n., I 616.
H' m, g. n., III 498.
h' ty- c (count), I 320, 348, 376, 377, 385 n. c, 536, 622, 629 bis; IV 815 bis, 815 n. a, 878, 881, 902 n. a, 980.
h' tyw (prime linen), I 382.
h' y (rejoice), III 607 n. c.
H' c -yb-R c, r. n., IV 986, 988F, 990, 1003.
H' c p, p. n., IV 818.
Hw-p' -n', g. n., III 100.
Hw-r-n-k' -rw, g. n., II 436, 557.
Hw-r' -b' -s, p. n., IV 878.
hw-k' -m' -mw (-stone), IV 377.
hw-kw-kw (dom-palm fruit), IV 241.
Hwy, p. n., II 1029.
Hw c, g. n., II 848 n. a; Hw c' t, II 848 n. a.,
hwn (young man), I 665; III 565; IV 895.
hb- c' (chief fowler), I 718 n.
hb-sd (jubilee), II 630; IV 335; hb-sd,

- II 1029; IV 750 bis, 848; hb-st, IV 335.
hbs (-well), IV 726.
hbs-bg't (tomb), IV 972 n. d.
Hbnw, g. n., IV 820 n. b.
Hj'ṯ, g. n., I 459.
hm-hrd, IV 582 bis.
hm't-ntr (divine consort), II 612; IV 988 H.
Hmy, g. n., IV 734 n. d.
Hmw-hrw, p. n., I 343.
Hn-Hthr, p. n., I 225.
hn'y (my majesty), II 617 n. g.
hn't (queen), II 288 n. a; IV 958M, 988H; hnw't, II 52.
hn<sup>c</sup>-k, II 1007 n. a.
hnw (-measure), IV 393.
Hnw't-ntrw, p. n., IV 727.
Hnw't, p. n., I 725, 750.
Hnw't-sn, p. n., I 180.
Hnmy (or ṯmy), p. n., I 243.
hnmm't (people), II 767, 858; IV 47, 188.
Hnk't-c nḥ, t. n., II 552 n. i.
hnty (period), IV 895, 909.
hntw (-dish), II 436.
hr (upon), II 11 n. f; hr'f (upon it), I 438 n. d.
Hr (name of a pyramid), I 211.
Hr-wr, I 637 n. a; II 203.
Hr-wr-R<sup>c</sup>, p. n., I 735.
Hr-m-y ḥw't, d. n. (Harmakhis), I 179.
Hr-m-Ymn-pn<sup>c</sup>, p. n., IV 593.
Hr-m-s'ḥ, p. n., IV 706.
Hr-myny, p. n., II 47.
Hr-n-t ṯ-mḥw, p. n., I 718.
hr-nb (every man), IV 1003.
Hr-nb-m<sup>c</sup>t, r. n., I 312.
Hr-nḥt, p. n., I 718.
Hr-rn, t. n., I 119.
hr ršw (watchfulness), I 320 n. b.
Hr-hwj, p. n., I 332.
Hr-hb, p. n., IV 952.
Hr-hnt-hty, d. n., IV 369.
hr šhr't (to overthrow), I 602 n. f.
hr-ḏ ḏ<sup>ḏ</sup>, II 621 n. d; III 27.
hry (chief), II 389; hry'w, IV 405.
Hry-Hr, r. n., IV 615.
Hry-š-f, d. n., I 111.
Hry-šfyw, d. n., IV 368.
Hry-šry, p. n., IV 526.
hry-ḏ ḏ<sup>ḏ</sup>-c<sup>ḏ</sup> ("great lord"), I 381 n. b; III 267.
Hry-w-š<sup>c</sup>, e. n., I 360; III 155.
hry't-yb (hypostyle), II 603 n. d.
Hrrt, d. n., I 396 n. c.
hrst (-stone), IV 233, 302, 377; hrs, IV 287.
Hh, g. n., I 652, 657.
hs (vase), I 500 n. b; hš't, II 32.
Hs-wr, g. n., I 174.
hsyw (-vase), IV 269, 334.
hsb (to reckon), I 407 n. a.
hsb (dues), IV 34; hsb't (dues), III 481, 484.
hsb (-official), II 881.
Hsb-k<sup>ḏ</sup>, g. n., IV 830, 878.
hsb'w (-people), III 192.
hsp (land), IV 972.
Hsn, g. n., I 174.
hk't (measure of capacity), I 408 n. f; II 274.
hk<sup>ḏ</sup> (ruler, prince), I 400 n. a, 402, 627, 628 bis, 632, 636.
Hk<sup>ḏ</sup>-yb, p. n., I 356.
hk<sup>ḏ</sup>'t (rulership), I 620 n. a, 629.
Hk<sup>ḏ</sup>'t-nfr'w-Mw't, p. n., IV 988I;
Hk<sup>ḏ</sup>'t-nfr'w-mry't-Mw't, IV 988I n. a.
Hk<sup>ḏ</sup>-, g. n., I 103.
Hk<sup>ḏ</sup>w, d. n., II 210.
Hkn-m-m<sup>c</sup>'t, r. n., I 616.
ht (loaf), I 241.
Htp, g. n., IV 247.
htp (peace), II 105 n. f.
htp (-bundle), IV 350, 949, 950, 952, 953; htp't (-bundle), IV 301.
Htp (-measure), IV 238, 240, 244, 291, 294, 379, 392, 393.
htp-hr-nmtt (-measure), IV 294.
ht (dues), II 543.
hty (span), II 784 n. e.
Hḏt-hknw, p. n., I 216.
- H
- H<sup>r</sup>-l*, g. n., I 510.
H-w ḏ-k<sup>ḏ</sup>, g. n., III 386.

- H-n-b* <sup>o</sup> -t <sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 386.
H-r-p <sup>o</sup> -n-ty-ry-s, g. n., III 386.
H-t <sup>o</sup>, g. n., II 485; Ht <sup>o</sup>, III 114, 151, 152, 306, 309; IV 64; Ht <sup>o</sup> w, III 143, 144; H-y-t <sup>o</sup>, III 148; Ht <sup>o</sup> -t <sup>o</sup>, III 147.
H-t <sup>o</sup> -s-r <sup>o</sup>, r. n., III 371; H-t <sup>o</sup> -s <sup>o</sup> -r <sup>o</sup>, III 372.
h <sup>o</sup> (a measure of capacity), I 408 n. f.
h <sup>o</sup> (hall), II 778.
H <sup>o</sup> -yw, r. n., I 90.
H <sup>o</sup> -my-h-mw, g. n., III 114.
h <sup>o</sup> -n-rw (corselet), II 447; h <sup>o</sup> nr, II 785 n. h.
H <sup>o</sup> -r <sup>o</sup> -bw, g. n., II 582; H-y-r <sup>o</sup> -bw, III 312, 319; H-y-r <sup>o</sup> -b <sup>o</sup>, III 321, 337; H-y-r <sup>o</sup> -b <sup>o</sup> y, III 322; H-y-r <sup>o</sup> -p <sup>o</sup>, III 386.
H <sup>o</sup> -rw, g. n., II 420, 436, 555, 821, 822, 884, 1015; III 84, 457, 617, 630, 633; IV 226, 229, 233, 398, 565, 723, 724, 883.
h <sup>o</sup> -tpy (commander), I 410 n. c.
h <sup>o</sup> m (people), I 390.
h <sup>o</sup> s-wt (countries), III 88; h <sup>o</sup> s-t (desert), IV 1024.
h <sup>o</sup> s-ty (barbarian), II 849 n. c.; h <sup>o</sup> s-tyw, I 532; II 106.
H <sup>o</sup> sht, g. n., II 848 n. a, 849 n. c.
H-y-r <sup>o</sup> -p <sup>o</sup> -s <sup>o</sup> -r <sup>o</sup>, p. n., III 337.
H-y-s <sup>o</sup> -s <sup>o</sup> -p <sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 386.
hy-t <sup>o</sup> -n <sup>o</sup> (-fruit), IV 240.
H <sup>o</sup> -b <sup>o</sup> w-Hhr, p. n., I 218.
H <sup>o</sup> -m-yp-t, p. n., IV 433.
H <sup>o</sup> -m-m <sup>o</sup> -n-r <sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 434, 466.
H <sup>o</sup> -m-m <sup>o</sup> c-t, II 864, 890.
H <sup>o</sup> -m-ty-r <sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 466.
H <sup>o</sup> -shmw, r. n., I 136.
H <sup>o</sup> -k <sup>o</sup> w-R <sup>o</sup>, r. n., I 647.
h <sup>o</sup> c-t-h <sup>o</sup> c w my y <sup>o</sup> h-wty, II 314 n. g.
H <sup>o</sup> c y, p. n., I 750.
H <sup>o</sup> c y, p. n., III 630, 632.
h <sup>o</sup> c w (regalia), I 668.
H <sup>o</sup> c w-m-shmw, r. n., I 163.
H <sup>o</sup> c wy, p. n., I 675.
H <sup>o</sup> c ww, p. n., I 305.
H <sup>o</sup> c f-R <sup>o</sup>, r. n., I 189.
H <sup>o</sup> c f-R <sup>o</sup> -[h] <sup>o</sup>, g. n., I 199.
h <sup>o</sup> c r (a measure), I 556.
hw-b <sup>o</sup> k (protector of the oil tree), d. n., I 785 n. e.
Hwy, p. n., I 299, 349, 361.
hw y mky (protected and defended), I 768 n. e.
Hwy-t, d. n., IV 874.
Hwj, p. n., I 387.
Hwny, p. n., I 336.
hbhb (-jars), IV 875, 878.
Hpy, p. n., I 342.
hpr (carry out), I 322.
hpr hms-t, II 138 n. d.
Hpr-hd-R <sup>c</sup> -Stp-n-R <sup>c</sup>, r. n., IV 724.
hpr-sh, I 361.
hps (-sword), II 802; III 117, 163.
hpr-t hprw my hpry, II 314 n. g.
H[w], r. n., I 189.
hjt (corresponding to), II 614.
hjt-hr (opposite), II 795 n. f.
hjt hrs (nave), III 515.
Hjt-t-hr-nbs, d. n., II 655.
Hmnw, g. n., IV 833, 842, 848 bis.
hn ("tent"), I 353 n. b, 471 n. d.
hn n c b c ("without a lie"), I 658 n. h.
hn-t (prison, stronghold), I 471 n. d.
hn-t (water-skin), I 471 n. d.
Hnw, p. n., I 299.
hnw (court), III 65.
hnwtwy, II 70 n. a.
Hnm-c nh-f, p. n., I 343.
Hnm-n-c nh-ss, p. n., I 305.
hnmt, I 431.
hns (to course), I 471 n. e.
hns-t <sup>o</sup>, II 225 n. d.
Hnsw-h <sup>o</sup> t-nir-nb-t, p. n., III 432.
hnky (-garment), IV 374.
hnt, II 903.
Hnt-y <sup>o</sup> wif, d. n., I 159.
Hnt-c bwy-ntrw, g. n., IV 369.
Hnt-m-smy-ty, p. n., I 608.
Hnt-hn-njr, g. n., II 80.
hnt-hr-f (before it), I 436 n. d.
Hnt-hr-wr, p. n., I 605.
Hnt-hty, d. n., IV 874.
hnty, I 442 n. f.
hnty (a substance), IV 378, 395.
hnty (image), IV 988D n. b.

- Hnty-hsr't*, d. n., IV 730.
hr, I 598 n. c.
hr-c (assistant), I 383 n. g; II 975.
hr-c h³, g. n., I 165; II 814; IV 878.
hr-n-hny (necropolis), IV 530 n. a.
hry-sd't ("fire-bearer"), IV 735 n. a.
hrw (criminal), IV 427 n. a.
hrw (lowland), I 632 n. b.
hrp (-baton), I 646.
hrp (leader), III 172.
hrp-c h³ (chief of the palace), IV 1017.
hrs (-bundles), IV 301.
hrtw (one says), III 580 n. d.
hsjy h't (repulse the matter = punish),
 I 311 n. e.
hsj-c (hostility), IV 764.
hsjyw (subjects), IV 933 n. c.
ht (-measure), II 965 n. a.
ht-c³ (-fowl), II 159, 571 bis, 793; IV 242, 347.
hty (carving), IV 489.
hty (timber), IV 380.
htm (fortress), III 100; IV 853.
hd ("to sail downstream"), I 353 n. a.
- H
- Hnw-k³*, p. n., I 220.
Hnt-yšwt-Hthr, p. n., I 218.
Hnt-nfr, g. n., IV 878.
hrd (child), I 256.
Hš³ y, g. n., I 510.
- Š and S
- (NOTE.—The distinction has not been maintained after Volume I, viz., the end of the Middle Kingdom, when the Egyptian Scribe himself had entirely ceased to maintain it.)
- S³*, g. n., IV 878.
s³ (phyle), IV 468 n. b.
S³ (-oxen), II 723.
S³-y-hy-p³ y-n³, g. n., III 386.
S³-yw-k³, g. n., IV 713.
S³-yn-hr't, p. n., I 785.
S³-c³-r³, g. n., IV 404.
s³-c³š³ (-bud), IV 242, 298, 347.
Š³ ww, g. n., I 605.
- S³-p³-rw-rw*, r. n., III 373, 377.
S³-p³-t³-r³, p. n., III 337.
S³-my-r³-tw-s³, p. n., III 337.
S³-Mntw, p. n., I 596.
S³-n-g-r³, g. n., II 484; III 479;
S³-n-g-r, II 859.
S³-r³-p³, g. n., III 386.
S³-r³-m, g. n., III 356.
s³-t³ (-cakes), IV 240, 378, 392.
S³-ry-sw, g. n., III 386.
S³-t y³ h³, p. n., II 612.
S³ yw't, g. n., IV 358.
S³ bny, p. n., I 364.
S³ w (a temple), I 103.
S³ bw, p. n., I 283.
S³ bw km, p. n., I 287 n. b.
S³ hw-R³, r. n., I 236.
š³ r (honor), I 382 n. d.
s³ r't (counsels), II 142 n. e.
š³ h¹-stny, g. n., I 102.
s³ s (cube), IV 378, 395.
s³ tw (precincts), III 223 n. b.
Sy³, d. n., I 747, II 316 n. a.
Šy³-yb, r. n., IV 976.
sy³p (to investigate), I 179 n. c.
sy³p't (title), IV 473 n. c.
syd (-loaves), IV 238, 393.
s³ b (-loaves), IV 238.
s³ mw (-plant), IV 240, 344, 378, 392.
Š³-c n³h³, p. n., I 455, 459.
Š³-c n³h³-t³ wy, r. n., I 420 n. f.
S³-c r't-m³-c't, II 374.
s³-c rk (to end), III 580 n. f.
Š³-c h³ (sculptured(?)), I 500 n. a.
Sw-n-r³, p. n., IV 466.
sw't (-grain), II 737, 742.
Swm, g. n., I 493.
swm (to trade), I 493.
Swny, g. n., IV 734 n. d.
swr't (water-supply), II 707.
Swkn m Yp't, g. n., II 402 n. b.
šb³ (gate), IV 889.
šb³ hr n wb³-w r yr't, II 371 n. c.
šb³-hry (upper portal), II 835 n. a.
Sby, g. n., III 20.
šby (to dispatch), II 290 n. b.

- sbḥ·t* (chamber), II 164 n. f.
sbḥ·t (-measure), IV 241, 379.
sbḥ·t (-plant), IV 235, 392.
sbḥ·t (towers), II 889.
Sḥḥ-tᵛ wy, r. n., IV 886.
Sbk-m-sᵛ f, r. n., IV 517.
Sbk-ḥr-ḥb, p. n., I 725.
S·bdš (quell), I 428.
Sp (to bind), I 323 n. g.
sp (virtue), III 626.
Sp-Rᶜ, t. n., I 156.
sp tpy (beginning), IV 958J.
sp·t (for s·yp·t) (=investigation), I 178.
n. e.
Sp², d. n., I 156.
spr (-measure), IV 299, 348.
spr (-salt), IV 299, 348.
spr·n·f (he arrived), IV 1004.
špt (harp), II 32 n. c.
spḏ, II 32 n. c.
sjt (-oil), I 241, 382; II 509, 518; IV 376.
Sm (-priest), I 668; II 936.
Smᵛ -Ḥwḏ·t, g. n., II 935.
smᵛ t (-bolt), II 722.
smn·n·s (she fastened), II 828 n. c.
s·mnḥ-sw, I 420 n. f.
smḏ·t (-stone), IV 377.
Sn-Wsr·t, r. n., I 720.
sn-tᵛ ("smelled the earth" = did obeisance), I 317 n. f, 468 n. e.
sn·w (loaves), II 353, 378; sn·t, III 624 n. h.
Šnwṭ, I 141 n. a, 159.
Sn-mw·t, p. n., II 361.
Sn-mw·t, g. n., II 718.
Sn-ḏᵛ-rᵛ, g. n., II 584; see Šᵛ-ḏᵛ-rᵛ.
Sny, p. n., IV 485.
snj (-jar), IV 378, 395.
snj·t, I 668 n. c.
snb (-berries), IV 350.
Snjr, r. n., I 189.
Snjr-Rᶜ-P-ᶜ nḥy, r. n., IV 941 n. a.
snm (orderly), II 1 n. c; III 584; IV 40, 65.
Snt, g. n., I 172.
snṭyy (chapel), I 668 n. c.
snḏs (?), I 324 n. b.
sr (official), I 281, 536, 547.
sr (decree), I 173.
s·rwd-kᵛ (cause to grow), II 288 n. b.
shr, IV 309.
sh (-vessel), IV 732, 733, 734.
shy (boat), I 423F n. d.
shn (commander), IV 400.
shn (-vessel); see sh (-vessel).
shntw, II 785 n. h.
shṭp (-bundles), IV 295.
S·ḥtp-yb-Rᶜ, r. n., I 465, 473.
S·ḥtp-ntr·w (name of fortress), II 1041.
shḏ (commander), I 677, 707.
—shḏ, I 370.
Sh·t-mjk, g. n., IV 1003 n. e.
shwy (list), III 343.
shy-yrf (ruler), I 779, n. d.
Shṭ-Rᶜ, t. n., I 159; Shṭ-Rᶜ, IV 918.
s·ḥpr (create), IV 141 n. c.
s·ḥpr (to train), IV 402 n. e.
Shm, g. n., IV 878.
shym (-sistrum), II 93.
shym (adytum), II 806; III 244.
Shym-ntrw (name of a house: "Mighty-of-the-Gods"), I 97.
Shym-Rᶜ-Wp-mᵛᶜ·t, r. n., IV 516.
Shym-Rᶜ-ḥw-tᵛ wy, r. n., I 752.
Shym-Rᶜ-Šd-tᵛ wy, r. n., IV 517.
Shymw, g. n., I 174.
Shymt-n-ᶜ nḥ, p. n., I 238.
shr (character), I 665.
shṭ (-loaves), II 735.
shkr (deck), I 668.
s·šᵛ ("sustenance," lit. "a causing to be satisfied"), I 354 n. e.
Ssy, p. n., I 299.
ssj (ashes), IV 67 n. a, 72 n. c.
Sssw, g. n., IV 369.
Ššḏ, I 150.
Ššᵛ·t, d. n., I 109, 115.
s·šm·w (leaders), II 925 n. a.
S·šmw-tᵛ wy, r. n., I 616.
sš-štny-ḥry-ḏᵛ ḏᵛ (superior king's-scribe), II 916 n. d.
sš-štny-ḥry-ḏᵛ ḏᵛ (inferior king's-scribe), II 915 n. b.

- sšw* (-loaves), IV 297.
sšd (window), IV 873 n. a.
Šknn-R<sup>c</sup>, r. n., II 7; IV 518.
šk (to line up), IV 864 n. d.
Šk-tw (-ship), II 294.
Škmm, g. n., I 678.
Šk<sup>2</sup>, r. n., I 90.
šksk (capture), II 822.
st ("offering-tablet"), I 322 n. e.
Sty-m-pr-Dhwty, p. n., IV 435.
st ḥḥ<sup>2</sup> w nw (chiefs of), I 317 n. d.
st<sup>2</sup> t (a land measure), II 840.
Sty-m-pr-Ymn, p. n., IV 436.
Sty-r<sup>2</sup>, p. n., I 716.
štp-ḥ<sup>2</sup> ty<sup>c</sup> (to begin), II 303 n. c.
Šny-mr-ntr, p. n., I 243.
Šnh, r. n., I 166.
Št'w, g. n., I 334, 336; Št't, g. n., I 728;
Št'ty, e. n., IV 72; Št'tyw, e. n., I
 423 H; II 784, 787; III 20, 479, 490;
 IV 119, 122, 246; Šty'w, e. n., IV 217.
št<sup>2</sup> (-jar), I 569, 571.
šts (carrying pole), I 430.
sd'w ("broken"), I 657 n. e.
šd<sup>2</sup> (pleasure), II 813 n. g.
Š<sup>2</sup> -ḏ<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup>, g. n., II 798A; see Sn-ḏ<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup>.
s'ḏj<sup>2</sup> (plenty), III 404 n. a.
šdm, I 598 n. a.
s'ḏd't (proverb), III 611 n. a.
šdm-c š (servant), II 854, 985.
šdm-w (-officers), I 633; II 684; III, 55.
- Š
- Š-y-wt*, g. n., II 465.
Š-m-šw-y-tw-my, g. n., II 783; Š<sup>2</sup> -my-ša-y-t<sup>2</sup> -my, II 783 n. b.
Š-k-rw-š<sup>2</sup>, g. n., III 574; Š<sup>2</sup> -k-rw-š<sup>2</sup>, III 579, 595; IV 64; Š<sup>2</sup> -k<sup>2</sup> -rw-š<sup>2</sup>, III 588 ter, 601; IV 81.
Š<sup>2</sup> -y, g. n., IV 405.
š<sup>2</sup> -w<sup>2</sup> -b-ty, II 537.
š<sup>2</sup> -w<sup>2</sup> -bw (mastic tree), IV 245.
Š<sup>2</sup> -b-tw-n, g. n., III 310, 319, 324;
Š<sup>2</sup> -bw-dw-n<sup>2</sup>, g. n., IV 131.
Š<sup>2</sup> -m-B-c-r<sup>2</sup>, p. n., III 632.
Š<sup>2</sup> -n-m<sup>2</sup>, g. n., IV 712.
Š<sup>2</sup> -r-dy-n<sup>2</sup>, e. n., III 307, 588; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -
- d-n*<sup>2</sup>, III 601; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -d-ny, e. n., III 491; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -d<sup>2</sup> -n<sup>2</sup>, IV 129, 397, 402, 410; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -d-n, III 574, 579; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -d-n-n<sup>2</sup>, III 588.
Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -ḥ<sup>2</sup> -n<sup>2</sup>, g. n., II 113; Š<sup>2</sup> -r<sup>2</sup> -ḥ<sup>2</sup> -n, g. n., II 416.
Š<sup>2</sup> -sw, e. n., II 124, 517; III 101, 108, 457, 638; IV 404; Š<sup>2</sup> -w, II 170.
Š<sup>2</sup> -š<sup>2</sup> -n-k, r. n., IV 724.
Š<sup>2</sup> -k<sup>2</sup> -n<sup>2</sup>, g. n., III 576.
Š<sup>2</sup> -t, g. n., II 661 n. g.
Š<sup>2</sup> ys-ḥr't, g. n., IV 994.
Š<sup>2</sup> c ym (beginning of), I 429 n. e.
Š<sup>2</sup> c't, g. n., I 510 bis.
š<sup>2</sup> w (dues), II 110.
š<sup>2</sup> w (cabbage), IV 240.
Š<sup>2</sup> bt, g. n., I 429 n. f.
Š<sup>2</sup> s-ḥtp, g. n., IV 366.
š<sup>2</sup> d (dig), III 173; šd't, III 196.
š<sup>2</sup> c (-cakes), IV 949, 950, 952, 953, 954.
š<sup>2</sup> c (-grain), II 737.
Š<sup>2</sup> c d-mšqr, p. n., IV 445.
šw, IV 929.
šw (-rolls), II 742.
šw (sun), III 198; IV 958D.
šw<sup>2</sup> (citizen), II 920.
šps, w-stny, II 292 n. c.
špsš (luxuries), I 718.
Špsš-k<sup>2</sup> f, r. n., I 257.
šfw (doves), IV 106.
Šm-R<sup>c</sup>, g. n., I 125.
šm't (go), I 423E n. d.
Šmyk, g. n., I 510.
Šm<sup>c</sup> (Middle Egypt), I 396 n. h, 407.
Šm<sup>c</sup> w (Middle Egypt, perhaps the "South"), I 442 n. e.
Šms, I 438 n. d.
Šn-wr, g. n., III 480; IV 45.
šn<sup>c</sup> (-fish), IV 243.
Šnw't Ynbw-ḥḏ (granary of Memphis), IV 878 n. d.
Šrt-Mtn, g. n., I 172, 173.
šhr'w (-linen), II 554.
šs (-linen), II 554, 571.
šs<sup>2</sup>, IV 378, 395.
šs<sup>2</sup> -ḥr (skilful), II 758 n. c.
Šs<sup>2</sup> w, e. n., II 170; see Š<sup>2</sup> -sw.
šsy't (-sistrum), II 93.

- šsm*·t (-stone), IV 302.
šš (militia), IV 968, 972.
št (stone-cutting), I 239 n. c, 349 n. d.
Št-Mtn, g. n., I 173 bis.
Št°, g. n., II 864 bis.
št°·t (holy place), IV 857.
št°y, IV 726 n. b.
Št, t. n., I 288.
šd (collect), I 382 n. e.
šd (gift-lands), II 689 n. e.
šd (-bird), II 571.
šd (-skin), II 675 n. d.
Šd-ybd, g. n., IV 780.
šdw (water skins), I 456.
šdh (-wine), IV 213.
- K
- K-b*°-c°-n°, g. n., IV 712.
K-r°-k°-m-š°, g. n., IV 64. K-r°-k-my-š°, III 306, 309; K°-r-y-k°-m-y*c*-š°, II 583.
k° (be high), III 607 n. c.
K°-y-k°-š°, g. n., IV 405.
K°-yšwt-*Ht*hr, p. n., I 218.
K°-r°-b°-n°, g. n., IV 405.
K°-r°-m-y-mw, g. n., III 114.
k°-r°-n°-ty (foreskin), IV 52; see also *k*rn·t.
K°-r°-k-y-š°-c, g. n., III 306; K°-r°- k-y-kš°, III 309; *K*y-r°-k-y-š°, III 349.
K°-rw, p. n., IV 550.
K°-h°c w, r. n., IV 942 n. d.
k°-t°-rw-ty (-measure), IV 378.
K°-dw-rw, g. n., III 94.
K°-d°-—, g. n., II 821; K°-d°-r°, III
 606, 617.
K°-d°-w°-dn, g. n., III 309; K°-d°- w°-d°-n°, g. n., III 312; *K*y-d°-w°-
d°-n°, III 386; *K*y-d°-w°-d-n, III 391.
k°-d°-m-r° (garment), IV 375.
k°t, II 808 n. a.
K°y, g. n., IV 948.
k°y (tomb), IV 665 bis, 666 667.
*K*y-n°, g. n., II 428, 430.
*K*y-nn, p. n., I 776.
k°h (district), IV 726.
*k*w (-loaves), II 735.
- kwnk* (-bread), IV 238, 291, 297.
kby (-jar), I 556.
Kbh, g. n., II 101, 844; IV 296.
*Kbh-nt*rw, t. n., I 143.
Kbhw-Hr, g. n., II 845.
Kbsw, g. n., III 337.
km°-n-yb (conception of heart), II 164
 n. d.
*kn*yw (portable shrine), I 667 n. b.
knb·t (official staff), III 58 n. h, 63, 64, 65 bis.
knb·t c°·t (great court), IV 531 n. d.
*k*rn·t (foreskin), III 587 n. h; see also k°-r°-n°-ty.
*k*rt y (bolt), IV 929.
Khk, e. n., IV 402, 410, 747 n. c.
*k*k·t (transport ship), III 441.
Kd, g. n., III 321; Kdy, III 306, 309;
 IV 64; Kdw, II 420, 434.
Kd-n°, g. n., II 598.
Kd-š, g. n., II 430; Kdš, III 141, 306,
 308, 309; Kd-šw, II 420, 465, 531,
 585.
Kdm, g. n., I 493.
- K
- K*°, p. n., I 731.
k°-bw (-jar), IV 233, 239, 292, 299, 376, 390.
k°-bw-s° (-measure), IV 240.
K°-pw-r, p. n., IV 90; K°-pw-r°,
 IV 97.
K°-m-W°s·t, p. n., IV 539.
K°-m-y-t°, p. n., III 337.
K°-m-y-dw, g. n., III 114.
K°-ms, r. n., IV 519.
K°-n-nbty-wr, p. n., I 197.
K°-n°, g. n., II 529.
K°-n/r, p. n., I 389.
K°-n/r, g. n., I 490 n. a.
K°-r-h-n-—-n-—-—, g. n., III 386.
K°-r-d°y-t°-—, g. n., III 386.
K°-r°, p. n., IV 423.
K°-r° (-boat), IV 387.
K°-r°-y, g. n., II 800, 862, 889; K°-
r-y, II 818.
K°-r°-pw-s°, p. n., IV 432.
K°-r°-pw-t, g. n., III 356.
k°-r°-rw-ty (-weight), IV 286.

k > r > -hw-ty (string, basket), IV 244, 301.
K > -h-ny, g. n., IV 873.
k > -hr-k > (-jar), IV 294.
K > -k-rw-y, g. n., IV 713 n. h.
K > -km, g. n., IV 873 bis, 874.
k > -t > (-plant), III 55.
K > -d-t-m, g. n., IV 712 n. a.
k > t (design), II 303 n. b.
K > w, e. n., I 311.
K > y, p. n., IV 224.
K > w-k > w, g. n., IV 948.
K > m, p. n., III 645.
k > nk (-wood), II 449.
K > š, g. n., I 510.
k > š (shell), II 272.
K > k-mn (-vessel), IV 582.
K > k-s > -R<sup>c</sup>, p. n., I 218.
ky (form), II 906 n. b.
Ky-r-gy-p >, p. n., II 867.
Kj-tyw, e. n., II 659.
—k-j > -yb, I 616 n. c; II 708.
Km-wr, g. n., I 493; IV 724A, 875.
Km't (Egypt), g. n., I 451; II 11 n. d.
Kmy, p. n., I 755.
knm't (-stone), IV 302.
Knm'tyw, g. n., II 808.
krt'y, III 171 n. b.
Kš, g. n., II 39, 845 n. f.
Kš-kš, g. n., III 309, 312.
Kdndnn >, p. n., IV 423.

G

G-wt-wt, g. n., IV 405.
G-r-b > -tw-s >, p. n., III 337.
G > -k > -iy, g. n., III 632.
G > -d > -tw, g. n., II 417; G > -d > -y, III 630.
g > y (-jar), IV 238, 241, 294, 300, 301, 350, 393.
gmyy, I 334.
gn (-vase), IV 334.
gr (be silent), I 598, n. c; gr mdt (silent in a matter), I 657 n. d.
grg-hry (armed), IV 65 n. g.
grg't (establishment), IV 1021.
gs-r > (-measure), IV 295, 303, 380, 394.

T

t-h-r (-warriors), II 459; t-h-r >, IV 44;
tw-hy-r > III 337 bis, 344.
T > yr'y, p. n., IV 774.
T > -c > -n-k >, g. n., IV 712.
T > -c > -n > -k >, g. n., II 421, 426.
T > -c >, r. n., IV 518.
T > -c > -c >, r. n., IV 518.
T > -c yn, g. n., IV 878.
T > -yh, g. n., III 580.
T > -wr, g. n., II 692.
T > -pd't (Bowland, Nubia), g. n., I 500, 510, 602, 644; II 122, 176 bis, 375, 794 n. a, 828, 894; III 31, 479, 484, 499, 500, 501, 502, 643; IV 898, 900, 929, 994, 1014.
T > -mry (Egypt), g. n., I 451; II 98; III 77, 155, 159.
T > -ny-s >, g. n., III 337.
T > -ntr, g. n., II 451 n. d.
T > -r > -y, g. n., II 852.
T > -r > -ty-š-bw, p. n., III 372.
T > -s > -h-r >, d. n., III 386.
T > -s > -t-nht, p. n., IV 499.
T > -sn't-Hr, p. n., IV 990.
T > -šry, p. n., IV 547.
T > -ty, p. n., IV 547.
T > -d > -r >, p. n., III 337.
T > y-nht't, p. n., IV 452.
T > yw-hnw't, p. n., IV 727.
T > ywq > t, g. n., IV 818.
T > j-nht-t, p. n., IV 818.
T > n-w > -ty-Ymn, r. n., IV 921.
T > dn't-n-B > s't, p. n., IV 795.
Ty- >, p. n., III 542.
Ty-y > -dwr >, p. n., III 337.
Ty-m-h-nw, g. n., III 379 n. c.
Ty-n-r >, p. n., II 984.
Ty-n-r > -Ymn, p. n., IV 539.
Ty-n > -y, g. n., II 537.
Ty-r > -yw >, g. n., IV 114.
Ty-r > -g > -n—, p. n., III 337.
Ty-r > -g > -n-n > -s >, p. n., III 337.
Ty-r > -g > -ty-t-t > -s >, p. n., III 337.
Ty-k-sy, g. n., II 487.
Tyy, p. n., II 862.
Tyw, r. n., I 90.

- Tynt-nw't*, p. n., IV 589.
Tynt-s<sup>o</sup>-h<sup>o</sup>-rw-yw, p. n., IV 784.
Tynt-i<sup>o</sup>-c-mw, g. n., II 15.
tyhty (tin?), IV 929.
Tyhnuw, g. n., II 892; III 116, 132, 134, 139, 588; Tyhy, III 147; Tyhn, IV 792; Tyhnwt, IV 482; Thnuw, IV 822; see also Thnuw.
tyt, I 784 n. c.
Tw-np, g. n., II 459, 470, 530; Tw-n-p, III 365 bis; Tnpw, II 773.
tw-r-pw (-geese), IV 235, 242; turp (-geese), IV 342.
Tw-r<sup>o</sup>-ss, g. n., IV 114.
Tw-rw-s<sup>o</sup>, g. n., III 574, 588 bis, 601; Tw-ry-s<sup>o</sup>, III 579; Ty-w-r<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>, IV 129.
Tw-tw, p. n., II 1009.
twr, IV 302.
twt ny (shape for me), II 200 n. e.
twt . . . wh<sup>o</sup> m rnp't in ("a statue . . . quarried in this year"), I 323 n. e.
tb (-grain), II 737.
tp rsy (south), I 396 n. h, c, 529, 665 n. b; II 614, 692, 717, 726; IV 857.
Tp-hl, g. n., I 159.
tp't, IV 334.
tpy-c (first), IV 822 n. b.
tpw (bullocks), IV 242.
iph't (opening), II 564, n. e; III 171 n. b.
Tj-yby, p. n., I 395.
tm ssdr ("not causing a matter to sleep") I 657 n. c.
tm<sup>o</sup>, II 735.
Tmh, g. n., I 335 nn. h; Tmh<sup>o</sup>, I 335 n. h.
tmhy (-stone), 373, 389.
iny'w (offering vessels?), II 93.
Tnpw, g. n., II 773.
Tnt-s<sup>o</sup>y, p. n., IV 695.
Tnt-sph, p. n., IV 792.
int<sup>o</sup>'t (throne), IV 401.
Trrs, g. n., I 334.
Thnuw, g. n., IV 822; see also Tyhn<sup>o</sup>.
Tty, r. n., I 294.
Tty-c n, p. n., II 16.
- T
- T-k<sup>o</sup>-n-s<sup>o</sup>*, g. n., IV 818.
T-kw, g. n., III 638.
T<sup>o</sup>-w<sup>o</sup>-t<sup>o</sup>-s<sup>o</sup>, p. n., III 337.
t<sup>o</sup>-pw-r (-vessels), III 589.
T<sup>o</sup>-m-r<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 43.
T<sup>o</sup>-mw't, g. n., II 641, 814 n. a; IV 634, 914.
T<sup>o</sup>-n-m't, p. n., IV 792.
T<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>, p. n., III 633.
T<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-y, p. n., IV 532.
t<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-ty (warship), IV 229 n. b.
T<sup>o</sup>-rw, g. n., II 415; III 54, 88, 100, 307, 542, 631.
t<sup>o</sup>-sr't (standard bearer), II 839.
T<sup>o</sup>-k-k<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>, g. n., IV 44, 64, 77; T<sup>o</sup>-kw-r<sup>o</sup>, IV 129; T<sup>o</sup>-k-r<sup>o</sup>, IV 403; T<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>, IV 565.
t<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup> (tower), IV 189 n. a.
T<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-rw-B-c-r<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 566; T<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-r<sup>o</sup>-B-c-r<sup>o</sup>, p. n., IV 567.
T<sup>o</sup>-k<sup>o</sup>-rw-m, p. n., III 632.
t<sup>o</sup>-gw (-wood), II 485, 490, 491.
t<sup>o</sup>-ikmw, IV 217 n. k.
t<sup>o</sup>y (-measure), IV 238, 240, 294, 378, 393.
T<sup>o</sup>cw, g. n., I 456.
t<sup>o</sup>b (-jar), II 621, 622.
Tw-r<sup>o</sup>, p. n., II 55.
Twy<sup>o</sup>, p. n., II 862, 867.
Tb-ntr, g. n., IV 878.
t<sup>o</sup>b (-vessel), IV 582 bis; t<sup>o</sup>b'w (-jars), III 589; IV 294, 476, 477.
Tbw, g. n., IV 957.
tm<sup>o</sup> (district), II 686, n. b.
tm<sup>c</sup>'t, II 743.
Tmh, e. n., I 311, 335; T-m-h, g. n., III 580; Tmh<sup>o</sup>, IV 944 n. a; Ty-m-h-w, g. n., III 586.
mtm (-measure), IV 238, 291.
inyw (flat dish), II 32.
Tnw, g. n., II 798 A.
Tnt-rmw, g. n., IV 878.
Tnty, p. n., I 182 n. a.
trf (measure), IV 292.
Trty, I 703.
Thnuw, g. n., III 465; see also Thnuw and Tyhn<sup>o</sup>.

l̥hnt (oil), I 366.
Ts-hn, p. n., I 186.
tsw (flats?), I 323 n. h, 669 n. c.
ts̥ (commander), IV 821 ter.
ts̥ (command), IV 747 n. a.
Ts-B > s̥-t-pr̥t, p. n., IV 774.
Ts-R < m-yw, t. n., II 1018.
ts̥t (troop), II 916; IV 825 n. b.
Tš, r. n., I 90.
Tty, I 184.
Tty, p. n., I 361.
Tty, p. n., I 423C.

D

D > -y-n-yw, e. n., IV 64; D > -y-n-yw-n >, IV 81, 82, 403.
d > -w > -r > (-measure), IV 294.
D > -pw-r >, g. n., III 356.
d > mw (-measure), IV 240; dm > w (-measure), IV 345; dm > mw (-measure), IV 379.
D > -r-d-ny, g. n., III 306; D-r > -d-n-y, III 349.
dy-rs-d̥ > d̥ > (taskmaster), II 758 n. f.
dy̥ h̥d h̥nt, I 459 n. g.
dy-stny-h̥tp, II 52.
Dy-d, p. n., III 579; Dy-dy, p. n., IV 43.
Dyy-s-nk, p. n., I 338.
dydy (-measure), IV 295.
d̥w (-altar), IV 735.
d̥w (-garment), IV 232, 239, 241 374, 375, 394.
d̥w (-vessel), IV 735.
Dw > -Hr-pt (a feast), I 125.
Dw > -t > wy, I 146, 147.
d̥w > d̥w > (early morning), I 468 n. b.
Dw > -d̥j >, I 138.
d̥w > t (-hall), III 154.
Dw > t (nether world), III 259, 272.
d̥w > t-ntr (divine votress), IV 988G, H bis.
d̥wd̥t, I 500.
db̥h̥ (to crave), IV 784 n. a.
db̥h̥t-h̥tp (offering table), II 32.
Db̥hn, p. n., I, 239, n. a.
d̥ph̥t (-apples), IV 301.

dm̥y (town), III 84, 86, 88, 94, 141, 147; IV 52, 485.
Dn >, p. n., IV 682.
dm̥y (-measure), IV 294; dm̥y't (-measure), II 621, 622; IV 240, 294, 299, 300.
dm̥y > (-vase), IV 238, 269.
Dmrg, p. n., II 114.
dm̥t̥ > t (palanquin), IV 958E.
dhn (forehead), IV 988H n. b.
dhn'n'j wy r nb, II 805 n. a.
Dh̥wty-rh-nr, p. n., IV 423.
dh̥t (= hd̥t = "to sail down stream"), I 353 n. a. ds (-jar), I 569, 585; II 113, 114, 620, 621; III 77, 159; IV 347.
ds (-stone), IV 972.
Dsr, f. n., I 94.
dk̥, II 571.
dd̥t (flat dish), IV 735.
ddm̥t (-flower), IV 345, 379.

D̥

D̥ > -y-n-, g. n., III 386.
d̥ > -w (-linen), II 722, 727 bis, 736, 738, 744 bis.
D̥ > -w > d̥-wr, g. n., IV 921 n. e.
D̥ > -pw-y > -r > -n-d >, g. n., III 386.
D̥ > -pw-r >, p. n., III 630.
D̥ > -my-r >, g. n., II 465; III 114.
D̥ > -mw't, g. n., IV 1002.
D̥ > -n- — -nw-ty, g. n., III 386.
D̥ > -r > -Rw-m, g. n., III 633.
D̥ > -rw, g. n., III 114.
D̥ > -rw-m > m, g. n., IV 714.
D̥ > -hy, g. n., II 20, 482, 489, 492, 497, 616, 658; III 318; D̥ > -h >, III 423; IV 219, 328; D̥ > -h, IV 211.
D̥ > -d-p-t-t-rw, g. n., IV 713.
D̥ >, p. n., I 676, 683.
D̥ > y-y > -t-h̥y-r-ry, g. n., III 386.
d̥ > mw (classes), IV 402 n. f, 1823 n. d.
d̥ > d̥w (audience-hall), I 239 n. a, 423E, n. d, 500.
D̥ > ty, p. n., I 389.
D̥ > tyy, p. n., I 343.
d̥ > d̥ > w (courses), IV 489, 654 n. b.
d̥ > d̥ > t (council), II 686 n. a.

- ḏ* > ḏ > t-wr·t (great council), II 706.
ḏ<sup>c</sup>w, p. n., I 347.
ḏ<sup>c</sup>w, p. n., I 381.
ḏ<sup>c</sup>n, g. n., IV 564.
ḏ<sup>c</sup>*r-wḥ*², g. n., II 869.
ḏb > (costume), I 366 n. a, 668.
ḏb >·t (-hall), III 154.
ḏf·*t*y, g. n., II 421.
*ḏm*y, p. n., I 336 n. a.
*ḏr-n*², g. n., II 470.
ḏrw (masonry), IV 515.
ḏs, later ḏs (-jar), I 430 n. i.
- ḏsr-k* > -*R*ᶜ, r. n., II 39.
ḏsr-t, g. n., IV 520.
ḏt, f. n., I 101, 131.
ḏt (endowment), I 217 n. a.
ḏd, II 872 n. a; ḏd-ny (I have spoken),
 I 658 n. g.
ḏd-ḥy-yw, p. n., IV 878.
ḏd-ḥ<sup>c</sup>w, r. n., I 264, 265.
ḏd-k > -*R*ᶜ, r. n., I 264, 265.
ḏdm·t (-measure), IV 244, 294, 301, 394, 768.
ḏdm-t-ḥr-i > (-loaves), IV 238.
*ḏdt*y, p. n., IV 957.

INDEX IX

HEBREW

- אָבֵל, IV 715 n. a bis.
אָבֵל פְּרָמִים, IV 715 n. a.
אָבְלִים, IV 715 n. a.
אָנָן (־k־n־), II 436 n. e.
אָדוֹרִים (־d-rw-m־m), IV 712 n. f.
אֶדֶל (־d-rw), IV 712 n. c.
אֶדְמָה (־d-m־־?), IV 714 n. d.
אֶדֶר (־d-rw), IV 712 n. c.
אֶדְרִי (־d-r־־), IV 716.
אֶדְרִים, IV 712 n. f.
אֶהָל, III 576 n. d.
אֵיזוּה (yw-t־), III 288 n. b.
אֵינְלוֹן (־yw-rw-n), IV 712.
אֶלְרִים (־r-r-y-m), IV 455 n. d.
בֵּית־הָרוֹן (B־ty-h-w־rw-n), IV 712.
בֵּית־שֶׁקֶן (B־ty-š־n-r־), IV 712.
בֵּית־תְּלָם (B־ty-t־rw-m־m), IV 713 n. h.
בַּלְמִם (B־rw-m־m), IV 713 n. f.
בַּרְךְּ (b־r־k־), IV 127 n. a, 207 n. e.
גְּבַעוֹן (K-b־c־n־), IV 712.
הָדִים (hdmw), II 436 n. k.
זַכְרָבֶעַל (T־k־rw־B-c־r־), IV 566 n. b.
זֹדֶפְת־אַל (D־d-p־t־r w), IV 713.
חֲאָנִם (H־y־n-m), IV 713 n. e.
חֲוִינִם (H־y־n-m), IV 713 n. e.
חֲנִס (Heracleopolis), IV 790.
חֲפָרִים (H־p-w-rw-m־), IV 712.
חֲקֵל, IV 715 n. f.
חֲקֵל אַבְרָם (P־h-w-k־rw־b־r־־m), IV 715.
חֲקֵלִם, IV 715 n. f.
חֲרָבָה, III 84 n. a.
יִדְהַמְלֵךְ (Yw-d-h-m-rw-k), IV 713.
כַּבֵּד, IV 410 n. d.
כְּפָר (K־k־rw-y), IV 713 n. h.
כְּסָת (k־t־ty), IV 232 n. a.
מָתָם, IV 199 n. d.
מָגִדוֹ (M-k-d-yw), IV 712.
מַהֲרֵ בַעַל (M-h־r־b-c־r־), IV 423 n. a.
מַהֲנִים (M-h־n-m), IV 712.
מַרְחֶשֶׁת (r־h-w-sw), IV 238 n. a.
נָנַב, IV 715.
סַגְרוֹר (t־k־r־), IV 189 n. a.
סִים לַב, I 745 n. g; II 175 n. c.
עִזְזָא (c־y־d־), IV 715.
עִינ־פְּרִן (c־n-p-rw-n), IV 716.
עֶרְדִּי (c־rw-d־), IV 716.
עַלְיָה (c־r־ty), IV 189 n. a.
עַצָּא (c־y־d־), IV 715.
עַצְמוֹן, IV 715 n. d.
עַרְלָה (kern־t), III 587 n. h.
עַרְן (c־r־n־), IV 713.
עַשְׂקִי (c־š־k־), IV 188 n. a.
צִוְרִים (D־r-w-m־m), IV 714.
צַעֲקִי (d־k), IV 97 n. g.
צַדְפַּתֵּל (D־d-p־t־r-w), IV 713.
רְבִיחָה (Rw-b־ty), IV 712.
רְחֹב (Rw-h־b־־), IV 712.
קַל, IV 410 n. d.
שְׁבִלָת, IV 715.
שְׁוִנִם (š־n-m־), IV 712.
שִׁכְּהָה (S־y-w-k־), IV 713.
שְׁנָה, IV 715 n. f.
שְׁנִים, IV 715 n. f.
תְּעַנְךָ (T־c־n-k־), IV 712.

INDEX X

ARABIC

الفقاعى, IV 83r g. n.      ضرب مثلا, III 61r n. a.
دخل على (c k h r), IV 46o n. c.

Denkmäler	Records	Denkmäler	Records
Taf. 65, a	II 791-97	Taf. 155	III 339-40
68	II 812-15	156	III 356
71, a-d	I 66 n. c; II 875	157-61	III 335-38
76, 77	II 819, 871-72	159, b	III 448 n. b
81, g	II 844	159, d	III 520
81, h	II 843 n. c	164, 165	III 335-38
82, a	II 845	166	III 356, 359-62
89, a	II 894	174, d	III 558
89, c	II 895	275, b	I 75 n. h
89, e	II 896	175, f	III 552
92-97, d	II 982-88	175, g	III 479
98, a	III 1007-8	176, a, b, d, e,
100-2	II 1014-16	f, g	III 458-77
103-6, a, 107 a	II 989-96	180	III 504
107, a	II 1010-13	182, b	III 504
110, d	II 932	183, a	III 503
110, i	II 934-35	187, a, b	III 499
115-18	II 1019-41	187, c-e	III 317-27
119	II 844 n. b	188, a	III 452-53
120, a	III 44	189, a	III 496-99
120, b	III 43	192, b	III 501
121, a-b	III 41-2	192, c	III 500
126, a	III 87-88	192, d	III 500
126, b	III 83-84	195, a	III 392
127, a	III 85-86	196	III 415-24
127, b	III 109-112	197, b	III 297
128, a, b	III 98-103	197, c	III 297
129	III 153-56	199, a	III 574-92
130, a	III 142-44	200, a	III 627-28
130, b	III 145-48	201, c	III 641 n. a
131, a	III 114	202, a	III 648
131, b	III 213	202, b	III 646
131, c, d	III 213	202, c	III 647
132, a	III 215-16	209, b	III 129
132, d	III 218	209, c	IV 132-35
123, e	III 217	212	III 641
132, g, h	III 213	213, b	IV 13
138, g	III 200	213, d	IV 4
138, h	III 249	213, e	IV 14
138, n	III 198	219, c, A	III 641 n. e
139, a	III 163-64	219, e	IV 463-68
140, a	III 165	220, c	IV 11
140, b	III 169-74	223, e	IV 457-60
140, c	III 175-94	229, b	IV 474
140, d	III 195	229, c	IV 479-83
141, h	III 204 n. b	230	IV 476-77
145, c	III 355	231, a	IV 474
146	III 370-91	237, c	III 621-26
149, a	III 507	243, a	IV 622-25
152	III 217	243, b	IV 626
152, a	III 517-18	248, b	IV 615-18
152, d	III 218	251, a	IV 632-33
152, f	III 521	251, c	IV 649
152, g	III 521	251, d	IV 635 n. a
153	III 317-27, 329-30	251, e-g	IV 634
154	III 331-32	252, 253, a	IV 709-22
		255, i	IV 753

Denkmäler	Records	Denkmäler	Records
Taf. 256, a	IV 762-69	Text III, 64	IV 615-18
257, a	IV 760-61	III, 91, 92	III 64 n. a
258, a, b	IV 770	III, 127, 128	III 356
301-6	II 1019-41	III, 130	III 641 n. c
		III, 134	III 515
	ABT. V	III, 152	IV 889
Taf. 1, e	I 74 n. a	III, 156	III 356 n. a
5	IV 897	III, 164	IV 634
7, c	IV 898	III, 170	IV 132-35
12, a	IV 899	III, 172	IV 72
13, b, d	IV 900	III, 174	IV 85-92
		III, 175	IV 61-68
	ABT. VI	III, 176	IV 51
Taf. 23, 8	IV 19	III, 177	IV 53-55
		III, 178	IV 37-58
	TEXT	III, 209-214	III 641 n. b
Text I, 20	II 799-800	III, 238	IV 513
III, 43	III 574-92	IV, 37	III 505
		IV, 49	IV 414
		IV, 175	III 553