TOP 10 Singapore's Highlights

At the crossroads of East and West, Singapore has a complex mix of culture and history. At first glance, the city appears to be wholly modern with soaring skyscrapers, but a closer look reveals the legacies of its Eastern and European heritage. The grand Neoclassical buildings of the Colonial District stand alongside the ethnically diverse neighborhoods of Chinatown, Little India, and Kampong Glam, with the Singapore River carving its way between them. It is a multi-faceted city with both traditional and contemporary appeal.

1 National Museum of Singapore

The ideal introduction to Singapore and its multitude of cultural influences, the newly refurbished National Museum (left) presents history using interesting multimedia displays (see pp8–9).

Singapore River

Once the lifeline of the island's early settlers, the Singapore River is lined by countless water-side dining and leisure establishments, most in old converted warehouses. It is best experienced from aboard a restored bumboat (right) (see pp10–11).

3 Thian Hock Keng Temple

This is Singapore's first Chinese Taoist temple and is undoubtedly one of its finest (above). It is a good starting point for exploring the many wonders of Chinatown. Since 1839, it has been an important cultural icon for the city's Chinese inhabitants (see pp12–13).

4 Sultan Mosque

With its gold onion domes (left) that rise above Kampong Glam, the city's traditional Muslim quarter, Sultan Mosque is a fine blend of Persian, Moorish, and Turkish design. It is the heart of the local Muslim community (see pp14–15).

5 Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple

Statues of Hindu gods crowd this temple's roof (above), where they watch over Little India. Dedicated to the deities Vinayagar, Viswanathan, and Kali, this 1881-built temple is one of Singapore's oldest (see pp16–17).

Singapore Botanic Gardens 6

On sprawling grounds just beyond the city center, the beautifully maintained botanic gardens (right) are especially refreshing in the early mornings when the air is cooler (see pp18–19).

7 Singapore Zoo and Night Safari

A perennial tourist favorite, this award-winning zoo is recommended for adults as well as children. The Night Safari (left) is the world's first for viewing nocturnal animals in settings much like their natural habitat (see pp20–21).

Singapore Flyer 8

The largest observation wheel in the world (right) looms high above Marina Bay. It offers incredible views over the Singapore River, from the nearby Colonial District out to neighboring islands visible in the distance (see pp22–3).

9 Raffles Hotel

This grand hotel (below) represents the unending romance of colonial exploration that helped to build early Singapore, and the drive for absolute luxury that characterizes its success. The hotel has its own museum (see pp24–5).

Sentosa

10 Singapore's popular playground, Sentosa (above) is an island of relaxing spas and resorts, thrilling water and land sports, and other attractions for people of all ages (see pp26–7).

TOP 10 National Museum of Singapore

The colonial splendor of the National Museum, unveiled on Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee in 1887, reflects the British empire at its most confident. Following Singapore's independence in 1965, the building was developed as a monument to the country's history and culture. Behind the original building is a modern wing. Its glass and steel structure is a striking contrast to the original restored building. The galleries make creative use of design, lighting, and interactive exhibits to tell Singapore's story.

Video installations in the Living Galleries

Admission to the Singapore Living Galleries is free 6–8pm daily.

The museum has several cafés, bars, and restaurants offering snacks or formal Chinese and European dining.

1 Architecture and Design
Built to Sir Henry McCallum's design in 1887, the Neo-Palladian architecture (above) was joined in 2006 by a stunning Modernist structure that more than doubled the size of the original building.

2 The Glass Passage
The construction of the glass passage is an architectural achievement and a visually stunning link between old and new. It provides a close view of the old dome and its Victorian stained-glass panels.

3 Multimedia Displays
Interactive displays play a vital role here. The Singapore History Gallery (left) is enriched with sound effects, while the Food Gallery smells of the fruit and spices of Singaporean cuisine.

Sir Frank Swettenham's portrait by John Singer Sergeant, in the Singapore History Gallery, is valued at more than S$4 million.

4 Singapore History Gallery
A spiral path leads to the last fragment of the 14th-century Singapore Stone (below and see p11). Ceramics, jewelry, and coins indicate trading before Stamford Raffles reached the island.

7 Fashion Gallery
This gallery looks at the nation's love affair with shopping. Its displays also, quite importantly, highlight the role of dress as an expression of changing national identity in Singapore.

8 Film & Wayang Gallery
Three screens here show interesting excerpts of early Singaporean cinema. One of the rooms has displays of Wayang (Chinese opera) costumes and hair ornaments, and a puppet theater.

5 Gallery Theatre
The museum holds regular film screenings, theater performances, and retrospectives in its 250-seat theater.

6 Singapore Living Galleries
Four interesting permanent galleries in the old wing comprise the Fashion Gallery, Film & Wayang Gallery, Food Gallery, and Photography Gallery. Visitors can view the restored stained glass of the dome (see below) before entering the galleries.

9 Food Gallery
This gallery explains how Singaporeans have easily adapted traditional dishes of immigrant cultures. Favorites like roti prata (Indian flat bread with gravy) and nasi lemak (Malaysian coconut rice) are the results of culinary intermingling.

Restoration and Expansion

The museum's dome is the clearest sign of a painstaking restoration, begun in 2004 and completed in 2005. Victorian stained-glass panels were restored and invisibly reinforced. In the new wing, it took a year just to design the Glass Passage, but the results have been hailed as a superb marriage of contrasting architectural styles. A team of curators is seeking new exhibits and treasures to display here.

10 Photography Gallery
A century of history is revealed in wedding portraits and family snaps (left), alongside personal filmed accounts of Singapore life. This gallery has on display one of the earliest known photographic images of Singapore, taken in 1844.

TOP 10 The Singapore River

Flowing past the 1920s godowns (warehouses), the bars and restaurants of Clarke Quay, and the skyscrapers of the financial district, the Singapore River has always been at the center of city life. The river, which forms a natural harbor, was the first to attract Sir Thomas Stamford Raffles, the city's founder. A walk along the banks is the best way to enjoy some of Singapore's iconic views. Better still, step aboard one of the bumboats that once jostled for space around Boat Quay. Since an intensive clean-up operation in 1987, the river has become the city's emotional heart. It may no longer be the main artery of commerce, but it has moved on from its frenetic and polluted heyday.

Elgin Bridge

Bumboats may look touristy but they are the best way to appreciate the city's skyline.

The outdoor terrace at Indochine, next door to the Asian Civilisations Museum, offers a stunning view of Boat Quay and the Central Business District. Arrive early to get a good table.

1 Raffles' Landing Site

The spot at which Sir Thomas Stamford Raffles landed is commemorated by a marble statue (below), a cast of the bronze original at the Victoria Theatre and Concert Hall. It is framed to the north by the Colonial District and to the south by the Central Business District towers.

2 The Merlion

Half-fish and half-lion, the Merlion symbolizes the unity of the lion city and the sea. Guarding the river like an ancient mythical beast, the Merlion was created by the Singapore Tourist Board in 1964. The current statue was unveiled in 1972.

3 Cavenagh Bridge

Designed as a drawbridge and built in Glasgow, this bridge was named after a former governor of Singapore. Long since pedestrianized, a Victorian sign forbids the passage of cattle and horses.

4 Asian Civilisations Museum

Built in 1867, these former government offices were renamed the Empress Place Building in the early 1900's, and reopened as the Asian Civilisations Museum in 2003 (see p36).

5 Old Parliament House

Singapore's oldest building (left), erected in 1827, was named Parliament House after Singapore gained its independence in 1965 (see p34).

6 Boat Quay

The quay (below) hasn't stopped buzzing since Chinese merchants first built godowns here in 1820. Most of the boats have gone and the quay is lined with bars and restaurants.

7 Elgin Bridge

The oldest crossing point of the river was but a wooden drawbridge in 1822. The current bridge, completed in 1929, is named after the Earl of Elgin, Governor General of India in the 1960s.

The Singapore Stone

On display in the National Museum (see p9), this piece of inscribed sandstone remains a mystery. Part of a rock discovered at the mouth of the river in 1819, its 50 lines of inscription eluded translation by scholars including Raffles. The rock was blown up in 1843 on the orders of a British engineer. This fragment is the only surviving relic.

8 Clarke Quay

Singapore's favorite evening spot, Clarke Quay is the river's largest conservation project. Godowns (below) have been stylishly renovated to create a fashionable hub of waterfront bars and restaurants.

9 G-MAX Reverse Bungy, GX-5 Xtreme Swing

Thrill-seekers can fling themselves skywards for an alternative view of the Colonial District. Bungy jumping is only recommended for those with a strong heart.

10 Robertson Quay

As trade grew, swampland upriver was reclaimed and used to build godowns, creating Robertson Quay. The area is now a metropolitan waterfront scene, with chic restaurants, bars, and galleries.

10 Thian Hock Keng Temple

Built in 1839, this is one of Singapore's oldest Chinese temples. It was raised by sailors in homage to the goddess Ma Zu, who, it is believed, laid down her life to give seafarers a safe passage. The temple, paid for by individual donors such as Hokkien leader Tan Tock Seng, was constructed in the southern Chinese architectural style. It is laid out along a traditional north-south axis, with shrines to several deities. The temple underwent a facelift in 2000.

The Chung Wen Pagoda

Ma Zu, the Guardian of the South Seas

Thian Hock Keng celebrates festivals such as the Chinese Lunar New Year and the birthdays of Guan Yin and Ma Zu with prayer, traditional music, and dance. Since all Chinese holidays are guided by the lunar calendar, it is best to ask the temple exactly when these holidays fall.

At the corner of Telok Ayer and Amoy streets, a popular hawker center offers cold drinks, local dishes, and fruit.

- 10 Chong Hock Girls' School

1 The Front Step
The temple was originally located by the river, but land reclamation has cut it off from the sea. This raised step protected it from the tide that once lapped at its foundations.

3 Door Paintings
Paintings on the door depict auspicious creatures (above). In Taoist tradition, these protect the temple. A plank across the threshold keeps ghosts away, and ensures visitors bow heads upon entering.

2 Construction
Craftsmen from Southern China built the temple (above) in the traditional manner using no nails. All the materials required for building it were imported from China, including ironwood for the pillars and pottery used in the roof's mosaics.

4 The Ceiling
During the renovation of the temple in 2000, artists from China were brought in to restore the carvings on the ceiling under the main altar, replacing the gold leaf and bright paint.

5 Ancestral Tablets

In keeping with the Taoist practice of ancestor worship, ancestral tablets (above) inscribed with the names and dates of departed devotees, are regularly tended with offerings of incense, food, and prayers.

6 Ma Zu, the Guardian of the South Seas

The main hall contains an image of Ma Zu, the sea goddess. She was born in AD 960 in China's southern Fujian province, and risked her life to save fishermen and sailors.

7 Guan Yin, the Goddess of Mercy

In the courtyard behind the main altar sits Guan Yin (above), the Goddess of Mercy. She is said to have rejected nirvana to return to earth especially to help the needy and unfortunate.

8 Statue of Confucius

Confucius (below), one of China's greatest thinkers (551-497 BC), developed a social value system that promoted education, self-discipline, respect for family, and political responsibility – values that continue to shape Chinese society today.

9 Statue of Chen Zhi Guang

This 8th-century Chinese governor was so successful in developing the economy and improving living standards that the Hokkien people came to worship him as a deity.

10 Chong Hock Girls' School

The temple housed one of Singapore's first girls' schools, funded by the Huay Kuan, a Hokkien community association. Such clan associations were the backbone of the local Chinese.

Etiquette in Chinese Temples

As in any place of worship, respect for devotees deep in prayer is appreciated. Photography is permitted but visitors must refrain from touching anything on altars. Unlike Hindu temples or Muslim mosques, clothing norms here are relaxed. Shorts and sleeveless tops are allowed and footwear can be worn inside the temple.

TOP 10 Sultan Mosque

The Sultan Mosque is at the heart of Singapore's Muslim community. It is located in the neighborhood that, in 1819, was assigned to the Malay Sultan of Johor and the temenggong (chief) of Singapore. The original mosque that stood on this site was constructed in 1824. Partially funded by the East India Company, it resembled the style of mosque typically found in Southeast Asia, with a low two-tiered roof like a pyramid. A century later, the old mosque had fallen into a state of disrepair and planning for a replacement began. Design for this structure was entrusted to Denis Swan, an Irish architect with Swan & McLaren, the local architecture firm responsible for many landmark buildings.

The royal graves at the maqam behind the mosque

After sunset during Ramadan, the month of fasting, the streets around the mosque fill with stalls and stores selling delicious Malay treats.

Sip Turkish or Malay-style tea or fresh lime juice in one of the cafés along the shady, palm-fringed Bussorah Mall, located opposite the mosque.

- 3 The Domes
- 4 Mosque Alignment
- 5 Ablutions
- 6 The Central Prayer Hall
- 7 The Mimbar
- 8 The Mihrab
- 9 The Maqam
- 10 The Annex

1 Architectural Design

The mosque is built in Saracenic style, combining Persian, Moorish, and Turkish design including pointed arches, minarets, and domes. The interior is adorned with calligraphic verses and mosaics.

2 The Bottle Band

Around the base of the main onion dome is an unusual architectural feature. This is a wide black band made from rows of bottles stacked on their sides, five or six bottles high. Their bottoms appear to glisten like black and brown jewels in the sun.

3 The Domes

A tradition in mosque architecture, the onion dome originates from Turkey and the Middle East. It creates a roofline distinguishable above the city's low-rise buildings. At the top of the gold domes (left) is the star and crescent – a traditional symbol of Islam.

4 Mosque Alignment

Most mosques are built with the prayer hall facing the holy Muslim city of Mecca. For this reason, North Bridge Road has a distinct bend to allow for the correct alignment of Sultan Mosque.

5 Ablutions

Two areas have faucets, for worshippers to wash before prayers. Ablutions, or wudhu (above), is a ritual to purify the body and soul.

6 The Central Prayer Hall

Large enough to accommodate 5,000 devotees, the main hall (center) is for men only, while female worshippers occupy the galleries above. The carpet, donated by a Saudi Arabian prince, bears his emblem.

7 The Mimbar

On Fridays, the Muslim holy day, the imam is known to deliver his sermon, or khutba, to a prayer hall packed full of devotees. He does so from the mimbar, an elaborate pulpit atop a staircase reserved for the purpose (below).

8 The Mihrab

The mihrab is a small niche that marks the direction of Mecca, and from where the imam leads the congregation in prayer five times a day. It is surrounded by motifs and represents a doorway to the holy city.

9 The Maqam

At the rear of the mosque is a maqam, or mausoleum, with graves of important local community members, including the grandson of Sultan Hussein, who signed over Singapore to Raffles in 1819.

10 The Annex

Mosques serve many purposes for Muslims – providing space for schools, religious celebrations, and fundraising. The annex at the Sultan Mosque (left), built in 1993, offers similar services to the local Muslim community.

Mosque Etiquette

Non-Muslims are welcome to visit the mosque, but are not permitted to enter the main prayer hall. Viewing is allowed from the surrounding courtyard and corridors. Appropriate dress, such as pants or long skirts and shirts with sleeves, is required for men and women. The mosque provides robes at the entrance for visitors dressed inappropriately. Footwear must be removed outside.

TOP 10 Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple

In the mid-19th century, Indian laborers, who settled in what is now Little India, built a Hindu shrine there. The original temple, a small nondescript structure, was demolished in 1983 to make way for the one that stands here today. It took three years to build at great cost, with artisans brought from India. The Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple is dedicated to the goddess Kali, which is why Hindus who worship here leave with red ash smeared on their foreheads; those who pray at temples for male deities receive white ash. This is one of Singapore's oldest temples and remains popular with local Indians.

Idol of Kali

1 During Deepavali (see pp44-5), the most significant holiday for local Hindus, the temple is illuminated with tiny candles, symbols of the eternal light of the soul.

2 Across the street at the Norris Road Coffee Shop you can watch fresh chapatis (Indian bread) being made and order cheap curries to go with them.

- 4 Muruga
- 5 Roof Figures
- 6 The Altar of the Nine Planets
- 7 Ganesh
- 8 Sri Periachi
- 9 Washing of the Deities
- 10 Sri Lakshmi Durgai

1 Kali
Kali, occupying central position on the main altar, is the Divine Mother. She represents the cycle of birth through death – her name comes from the Sanskrit for “endless time.” She is also known as the Destroyer of Evil.

2 The Gopuram
Row upon row of figures, representations of deities, top the gopuram or main gate (center) and the roof. On holy days, when the temple is full, devotees can appreciate these images from outside.

3 Smashing Coconuts
Before entering the temple, devotees smash coconuts (left) in a small metal box. This is symbolic of shattering their obstacles to spiritual concentration. These coconuts even have “eyes” carved into them, which are meant to “see” the obstacles in a devotee’s path and destroy them.

4 Muruga

Muruga is the name given to the God of War – the six-headed deity who grants great success to his devotees. He is mostly worshipped by Tamils, who form the majority of the city's Indian population.

5 Roof Figures

On the main temple's roof are carved figures that tell stories from Hindu lore, including how Ganesh (see below) got his elephant's head.

6 The Altar of the Nine Planets

Each planet is represented on this altar (left), at which devotees pray to their zodiac sign. Jewelry stores nearby sell rings adorned with nine stones, placed according to the astrological alignment of each wearer.

7 Ganesh

Distinguishable by his elephant's head, Ganesh (below) is the most worshipped of all Hindu deities. As the Remover of Obstacles, he is invoked at the start of prayers to help clear the mind, and consulted at the beginning of any new ventures by devotees.

8 Sri Periyachi

In one corner of the compound a dais holds the statue of the fierce Sri Periyachi (above). Despite being depicted amid blood and gore, she is the goddess of fertility, safe childbirth, and the good health of newborn babies.

9 Washing of the Deities

On the right side of the main altar, a small spout serves the purpose of draining the water that has rinsed the deities during their morning cleansing ritual (below). This water is considered holy and used in prayer.

10 Sri Lakshmi Durgai

While many Hindu figures and deities appear aggressive, Sri Lakshmi Durgai is represented as beautiful and graceful. According to Hindu belief, the goddess's three eyes and 18 arms will bring peace and joy to those who pray to her.

Etiquette in Hindu Temples

Visitors must remove footwear before they enter, and wear appropriate attire – legs must be covered, and shirts should at least have short sleeves. In Indian culture, the left hand is reserved for toilet tasks, so pointing toward a person or sacred object with the left hand is impolite. If you must point, use your open hand. You should also turn off cell phones before entering.

TOP 10 Singapore Botanic Gardens

This extensive park is one of the finest botanical gardens in Southeast Asia. Pathways meander through a tropical landscape that showcases the region's natural habitats and species. There are avenues of frangipanis and scarlet lipstick palms, and wide, sloping lawns adorned with trees and sculptures. On weekends, the gardens are a magnet for families, joggers, and dog walkers. During the week, it is an oasis of calm in the city. The park was founded in 1859 as a pleasure garden. It has also played a role in the production of cash crops, including spices and rubber.

1 National Orchid Garden

This beautiful enclosure with over 1,000 orchid species and 200 hybrids is the fruit of 80 years' work. The hybrids are named in honor of VIPs, royal visitors, and political alliances. It is the only area with an admission fee (see p42).

The Marsh Garden 3

This area displays water-loving plants at their best. A natural depression has been turned into a pond with lilies (right), papyrus, Siamese screw pines, and the indigenous scarlet-leaved Sealing Wax Palm.

2 Vanda Miss Joaquim

There is debate over whether this hybrid of pink, violet, and orange-rose was discovered or bred by Miss Agnes Joaquim in 1893. It is a lovely orchid (left), and was chosen as Singapore's national flower in 1981.

6 Rain Forest

The park's first designers recognized the importance of the indigenous forest and preserved an area of rain forest, where ancient trees (above) continue to thrive today.

7 The Lakes

The gardens have three lakes. Swan Lake is named for its Australian swans while ducks and herons enjoy Eco Lake. Concerts by the Singapore Symphony Orchestra (see p85) are staged at Symphony Lake (above).

"Mad" Ridley

Henry Ridley, a young British botanist, became the first director of the Botanic Gardens in 1888 and spent the next 23 years developing their horticultural potential. In the late 19th century, he devised a way to tap rubber without damaging the trees. Convinced by the crop's potential, he lobbied planters so zealously that he became known as "Mad Ridley." A sculpture dedicated to his work can be seen in the gardens.

4 The Spice and Herb Garden

A fascinating, fragrant area, this garden showcases the spices that formed the backbone of Singapore's early trade, including cloves, pepper, cinnamon, lemon-grass, nutmeg, and several species of ginger.

5 Sculptures

Several sculptures by Sydney Harpley near the bandstand celebrate the families who come to play on weekends. Favorites include Joy (left), The Girl on a Bicycle who freewheels along the top of a spiral hedge, and Girl on a Swing who pauses mid-air.

8 The Sundial Garden

This formal garden (center) is named for its sundial, which is surrounded by four symmetrical pools. You will often see brides and grooms being photographed here.

10 Children's Playground

At the Jacob Ballas Garden, children under 12 are encouraged to discover life sciences through play, and to investigate the role of plants and water in everyday life. Carry sunscreen and a change of clothing.

9 The Ginger Garden

More than 250 species of ginger are displayed here, along with other ornamental and edible species, including lilies and turmeric. The waterfall (below) provides a great photo opportunity.

AT 10 Singapore Zoo and Night Safari

One of the island's most visited sights, the Singapore Zoo and Night Safari offer the chance to see more than 3,200 animals living in spacious enclosures designed to resemble their natural habitats. They are often grouped with other species with which they would have coexisted in the wild. The zoo is sensitive to conservation and environmental concerns and now focuses on animals best suited to Singapore's climate. Interactive exhibits, shows, programs, and informative signs, all in English, educate visitors about the animals and their behavior.

1 The Open Zoo

Enclosures at the open zoo (above) avoid the use of cages. Animals here are separated from visitors, and each other, by dry and wet moats. The more dangerous animals live in landscaped areas, viewed through glass walls.

2 Jungle Breakfast

Visitors are invited to join playful orangutans and other friendly residents for breakfast, one of the zoo's most popular activities. This is also the best time to visit the zoo, while the air is still cool.

3 Elephants of Asia

This display is designed to resemble the type of logging camp found in Myanmar (Burma). Visitors can ride on Asian elephants (left) or observe them from elevated boardwalks.

Of the Top Ten features, entries 1–5 are in the zoo; entries 6–10 are in the Night Safari.

4 Orangutan Exhibit

The zoo is home to 24 Southeast Asian orangutans (right), living as a community within a large enclosure with climbing platforms, trees, vines, and thick foliage.

5 Amphitheatrers

The Shaw Foundation Amphitheatre stages a rain forest show and The Splash Amphitheatre features a "Splash Safari" with marine animals. Both focus on wildlife conservation.

7 Asian Zone

Of the Night Safari's eight geographic zones, six are Asian. They protect animals that have been hunted almost to extinction, such as the Malayan tiger (below).

8 Trails

Three footpaths – the Fishing Cat Trail, the Leopard Trail, and the Forest Giants Trail – offer a closer look at nocturnal animals. You can view leopards, flying squirrels, and mouse deer.

Park Guide

The Singapore Zoo and Night Safari are two separate parks located side by side. Both are operated by Wildlife Reserves Singapore. While the zoo is best toured on foot, there is also a tram at extra cost. Visitors can also take a tram at the Night Safari, although this is not included in the entry fee either. It operates an enjoyable circular route, with a number of stops at which visitors can alight and explore the trails.

6 Night Safari

With over 1,000 animals, this night zoo and wildlife park allows visitors to observe animals at night, when they are most active. It also stages shows, such as the Thumbuakar performance (center).

9 South American Zone

Species such as the capybara (right), the world's largest living rodent, and the giant anteater, live within an area that replicates the dense rain forests of South America.

10 African Zone

In the Equatorial Africa zone, landscaped to resemble the African savannah, visitors will see cape giraffes (left), the world's tallest animals; servals, which are night-time predators; and bongos (forest gazelles).

The Rainforest Kidzworld playground has outdoor activities, plus a fountain lagoon with slides for all ages. Bring swimming gear.

10 The Singapore Flyer

The city's newest attraction and the world's tallest observation wheel, the Singapore Flyer (center) offers 360-degree views of the city and environs, including neighboring Indonesia and Malaysia. The wheel's 28 air-conditioned capsules can hold up to 28 passengers each, and reach a height of 541 ft (165 m). On a clear day, you can see for nearly 30 miles (48 km). According to Buddhists, the round shape of the wheel is auspicious for Singapore and its motion is positive feng shui. The following sights can all be viewed from the top of the wheel.

1 Marina Bay
A massive barrage project, to be completed in 2009, will dam Marina Bay and create a freshwater reservoir in the city. A development of office towers, luxury residential high-rises, and 24-hour leisure facilities will surround the bay.

2 The Skyline
Singapore's tallest skyscrapers (below), the OUB Centre, UOB Plaza One, and Republic Plaza, rise above Shenton Way, the city's downtown financial district, while the water's edge is flanked by low-rise heritage buildings.

3 The Singapore River
The river (see pp10–11) bisects the city's downtown, separating the Shenton Way business district from the buildings around the Padang. Old godowns now serve as a riverside leisure center.

4 The Padang

While the Padang, or playing field, cannot be seen itself, visitors can view the heritage buildings around it, such as the Old Parliament House, the former Supreme Court, St. Andrew's Cathedral, and the Esplanade - Theatres on the Bay (above).

8 Kallang River Basin

To the east of the Flyer is the Kallang River, which is great for watersports such as sea kayaking and waterskiing. Beside the river, the Singapore Indoor Stadium has restaurants and cafés along a wide promenade.

10 Indonesia and Malaysia

To the south of Singapore, islands belonging to Indonesia can be seen beyond the shipping lanes. To the east are the conical mountains that belong to the Malaysian state of Johor.

9 Kampong Glam

The golden domes of Sultan Mosque (below) gleam in the sunlight in the neighborhood of Kampong Glam - Singapore's Islamic quarter and the traditional heart of its Muslim life.

5 Keppel Harbour

For over a century this port has operated shipping facilities and served as a link between downtown businesses and industries on the island's West Coast.

6 Shipping Lanes

The endless stream of tankers and small ships plying the waters around the island (above) are a sight to behold as they head to and from the world's busiest port.

7 East Coast Neighborhoods

Government housing and condominium towers (above) blanket the city. But among these are culturally significant heritage neighborhoods, such as Katong and Geylang.

Singapore's Big Plans

At the time of writing, much of what is seen from the Flyer is construction activity. In 2009, the Marina Bay Sands resort will open beside Marina Bay, introducing casinos to Singapore. The US$3.6-billion facility will have dining and shopping areas, and convention space. The first phase of the Financial Centre is scheduled to open in 2010.

TOP 10 Raffles Hotel

Behind the famous façade of Singapore's grandest old lady is a labyrinth of tropical courtyards and verandas. Raffles Hotel was founded by the Armenian Sarkies brothers in a beachfront bungalow in 1887. It was saved from the city's perpetual modernization when it was declared a National Monument during its centennial. Following a multimillion-dollar renovation, the hotel is once again the epitome of colonial grandeur. With a range of restaurants, boutiques, galleries, bars, and its own museum, Raffles is much more than the sum of its elegant parts; it is a destination in its own right.

1 The Hotel

Character and opulence come at a price, but few hotels can match Raffles' blend of history, luxury, and colonial ambience. The hotel's famous and exotically dressed Sikh doormen are charming and patient with photo requests.

Architectural Restoration 3

It took three years and S$160 million to restore Raffles Hotel to its position as the Queen of Singapore's luxury hotels. Inspired by its 1900s heyday, the revamped hotel and Raffles Arcade were unveiled in 1991, with new stores and extra suites.

2 The Long Bar

Birthplace of the Singapore Sling, this bar (left) must be the only spot in the city where guests are encouraged to litter peanut shells. Singapore Slings are often pre-mixed, but if the bar is quiet, ask for a fresh cocktail.

4 Bar & Billiard Room

Legend has it that Singapore's last tiger was shot under the billiard table in 1902. Billiards (above) has given way to buffets, but you can still bag a Tiger in the form of a popular beer.

5 Writer's Bar

A quieter place to sip a Sling, this elegant bar is located in the hotel's colonial lobby. Browse the works of former guests Somerset Maugham, Joseph Conrad, and Rudyard Kipling. The resident pianist plays a range of musical genres.

6 Restaurants and Bars

All Raffles' restaurants maintain high standards in food-obsessed Singapore. Refuel with pastries at Ah Teng's Bakery, or enjoy the signature dishes at the Raffles Grill (above).

7 Gift Shop

The Raffles palm motif adorns everything, from slippers to hats, in the hotel's extensive gift shop (above). Fancy bottles of pre-mixed spirits for creating Singapore Slings make a compact memento.

8 Jubilee Hall

Designed by theater specialist Charles Cosler of New York, this Victorian-style playhouse theater within Raffles Arcade is a popular venue for plays, recitals, and films. A list of events is available at the hotel's front desk.

10 Museum

Raffles' small museum focuses on the hotel's early days until its restoration and opening, and gives a fascinating picture of pre-war Singapore. Photographs, letters, and travel memorabilia celebrate the hotel's glory days.

9 Raffles Culinary Academy

Rudyard Kipling urged Victorian travelers to "feed at Raffles," but today's patrons can take a more active role. Courses at the on-site academy (below) range from wine appreciation to master classes by world-renowned chefs.

Top 10 Famous Guests

Raffles' celebrity guest list includes writers, actors, and singers from every era. The literary tradition began with Joseph Conrad and Rudyard Kipling, who were early guests, followed by Somerset Maugham. In the 1950s, Anthony Burgess stayed en route to Malaya. Old Hollywood stars, such as Charlie Chaplin and Maurice Chevalier, were followed by Noel Coward, Ava Gardner, and Elizabeth Taylor in the post-war years.

TOP 10 Sentosa

Sentosa is Singapore's pleasure island – a local getaway dedicated to recreation. Although mocked as “Disneyesque,” it is a well-planned resort with varied attractions that should appeal to everyone. The beaches may be man-made, but they are clean and pleasant, with plenty of bars, restaurants, and facilities nearby. The island was originally called Pulau Blakang Mati, meaning “death from behind,” possibly because of the pirates that once attacked its shores. It was later renamed Sentosa, which means “peace and tranquillity.”

A cross between a toboggan and a go-cart, the luge (right) is great fun for all ages. Take the Skyride chairlift to the top of the hill and meander your way back down again. Each cart has sophisticated speed controls for safety.

2 Underwater World

Visit early to enjoy the walk-through shark tank and marine displays here. The spa offers “fish reflexology,” where fish nibble at your toes before their human counterpart takes over for a therapeutic pummeling (see p50).

4 Sentosa 4D Magix

Billed as Southeast Asia's first 4D theater, Magix features a state-of-the-art digital projection system, surround-sound, and seats that move with the on-screen action. The effects include mist spray in water scenes.

5 Nature Walk

If lucky, you may spot long-tailed macaque monkeys, wild white cockatoos, and insect-eating pitcher plants on this walk through Sentosa's forest. Though not comparable with reserves like Bukit Timah (see p97), the half-hour walk is worth the effort.

6 Siloso Beach

This beach (center) is where the young and beautiful hang out, sunbathing and playing volleyball. Several beach bars and stores operate during the day, although the pace – and volume – picks up at sunset.

7 Fort Siloso

Original features at this fort are enhanced to re-create the life of colonial soldiers (above). Special effects include battle sounds and re-creations of Japan's surrender (see p40).

8 Sentosa Golf Club

Home to two attractive and challenging courses with great views over the harbor, the Tanjong course features natural lakes and an undulating fairway. The Serapong course is home to the Singapore Open.

9 Spa Botanica

This spa in Sentosa's lush gardens has been repeatedly voted one of the best in the world. Signature therapies include jasmine body scrubs and papaya wraps, followed by aloe vera facial treatments.

Cable Cars

The most exciting way to arrive at Sentosa is by cable car. Standard or glass cabins swing from Mount Faber or HarbourFront over the water to Imbiah Lookout. The views of the world's busiest port and nearby islands are stunning.

Travel Tips

The Sentosa Express monorail is fast and cheap. It runs from VivoCity shopping mall to two stations. Free red, yellow, and blue buses ply around Sentosa from 7am to 11pm (Sun–Thu) and 7am to 12:30am (Fri–Sat). Private cars, buses, and taxis can cross to Sentosa using the causeway. Car and taxi passengers must pay the entrance fee at booths near VivoCity.

TOP 10 Moments in History

1 1390: Iskandar Shah
A deposed prince called Iskandar Shah declared himself ruler of the island of Temasek. Legend has it he saw a lion-like creature and renamed the island Singapura, or lion island. The Keramat at Fort Canning is said to be his tomb (see p42).

2 1819: Arrival of Sir Stamford Raffles
On a mission to find the East India Company new trading sites, Stamford Raffles stepped ashore at Singapore. Convinced it could be a strategic trade site, he persuaded its leaders to sign a treaty giving exclusive rights to Britain.

of the Straits Settlements and became a flourishing Crown Colony by 1867.

4 1869: Suez Canal
The opening of the Suez Canal in Egypt in 1869 transformed Singapore's trading potential by opening new markets and reducing travel distance between Europe and Asia.

5 1873: Steam Ship Travel
The development of steam ships brought more reliable shipping schedules. Singapore quickly became a major refuelling port, employing thousands of porters to heave coal.

6 1907: Rubber and Tin
New technologies demanded new materials. Rubber seedlings grown in the Botanic Gardens were used to create Singapore's first rubber plantation. Meanwhile, the first smelter for producing tin opened at Pulau Brani to satisfy the demands of America's new canning industry.

7 1942: World War II
After a Japanese attack sank HMS Repulse and the Prince of Wales, British forces retreated down the Malay peninsula, blowing up the causeway to delay the invasion. Singapore fell on February 15, 1942, and an estimated 50,000 people, mainly Chinese Singaporeans, died during Japan's three-year occupation of the island.

8 1959: Singapore's Self-Government

After years of negotiation, the British agreed to hold general elections, resulting in a victory for the center-left People's Action Party, which promised a Singapore united with Malaya and fully independent of Britain.

9 1959: Lee Kuan Yew

Lee Kuan Yew became the island's first prime minister on June 3, 1959. Revered by many as the father of the nation, Lee stepped down in 1990 but remains a towering figure in Asian politics. He now acts as Minister Mentor to the current leader, his son, Lee Hsien Loong.

10 1965: Singapore's Independence

Singapore became part of the Federation of Malaysia in 1963. However, political and racial tensions led to riots in 1964 and on August 9, 1965, Lee announced a separation and the Republic of Singapore was born.

TOP 10 Ethnic Groups

1 The Chinese – Hokkiens
The majority (78 percent) of Singaporeans are ethnic Chinese. Of these, 41 percent are the Hokkien dialect group from China's southern Fujian province. They were the earliest Chinese immigrants and built the Thian Hock Keng Temple (see pp12–13).

2 The Chinese – Teochews and Other Dialect Groups
Other Chinese groups include the Teochews and Cantonese, from China's Guangdong province, who make up 21 and 15 percent of the Chinese community. Their contributions to local culture include cuisine and opera.

3 The Malays
Although Malays are Singapore's native inhabitants, today they are a minority comprising 14 percent of the population. The term "Malay" should not be confused with "Malaysian": Malay is a race; Malaysian is the nationality of Singapore's northern neighbors.

A Peranakan woman

4 The Peranakans
Also known as "Straits Chinese," a Peranakan is a person born in colonial Southeast Asia to a Chinese father and non-Chinese mother. Fluency in many languages and cultures made them locally prominent. Their culture is celebrated at the Peranakan Museum (see pp36–7).

5 The Indians – Hindus
Indians first came to Singapore as early as Raffles (see p30). Many were businessmen or financiers who contributed to Singapore's progress. Today, Indians (more than half of whom are Hindus) make up 9 percent of the population.

6 The Indians – Sikhs
Originating from the Indian state of Punjab, the Sikhs are a small yet visible group, identifiable by their turbans. Their reputation for bravery inspired the British to employ Sikhs for security work.

7 The South Asians – Muslims
Muslims comprise a quarter of the Indian population. Most are Tamils from southern India and

Hindu priest and worshiper at a temple

Friday prayers at the Sultan Mosque

northern Sri Lanka. Tamil is one of the official languages of Singapore, in addition to English, Malay, and Mandarin.

8 The Eurasians
In colonial times, marriages between Europeans and locals created mixed-heritage families who developed their own unique traditions. Today, though many locals are considered Eurasian by race, their heritage is dying out with the older generation.

9 The Arabs
Singapore's Arab community is small but influential. Most Arabs came from Hadramaut in Yemen, heading trading firms and undertaking philanthropic projects, such as building schools and welfare associations.

10 The Expatriates
Almost 20 percent of the population is made up of non-resident workers, mostly people from the Philippines, Indonesia, and Bangladesh who work in industries shunned by locals. White-collar workers come from North America, Australia, and Europe, but the most significant number is from China and India.

Top 10 Words in "Singlish" – the local Patois

- 1 aiyoh
The Chinese Mandarin exclamation of surprise or concern.
- 2 Alamak
The Malay exclamation of surprise or concern, meaning "Mother of God."
- 3 Ang moh
From the Chinese Hokkien dialect, ang moh ("red hair") is the local slang for Caucasian. It is not usually derogatory.
- 4 chope
Chope means "to reserve." A common way to chope a table in a food court is to place a tissue packet on it.
- 5 die-die
From the English word "die," this means to be absolutely certain.
- 6 face
Stands for reputation or status, as in "save face" or "give face" – Chinese concepts developed to show respect for superiors.
- 7 goondu
Literally "heavy stone" in Tamil, goondu means "idiot."
- 8 kiasi
Meaning "fear of death," kiasi describes one who is afraid to take risks.
- 9 kiasu
From the Chinese Hokkien word for "fear of losing," kiasu describes one who is afraid of losing out to someone else. Kiasi and kiasu are often-cited characteristics of the typical Singaporean.
- 10 lah
Lah along with lor, meh, and mah, are words used in sentences for emphasis.

TOP 10 Architectural Sights

1 Old Parliament House
Singapore's oldest building, dating from 1827, was mistakenly built as a private residence on a spot reserved for government use and subsequently taken over by the colonial administration. Designed by G. D. Coleman, a popular architect, the Neo-Palladian style incorporated verandas, high ceilings, and porticos. However, renovations over the years have almost obliterated the original design (see pp10–11).

2 Empress Place Building
In 1867, the government built the Empress Place to house its administrative offices. Placed at the mouth of the Singapore River, the Neo-Palladian structure was one of the first things newcomers to the city would see on arrival. In the 1980s, it was converted into the Asian Civilisations Museum, its design surviving four major extensions over the years (see pp10–11).

3 Victoria Theatre and Concert Hall
This ornate structure was designed in the Italian Renaissance style popular in Victorian England at the time. The Theatre, originally a Town Hall, was finished in 1862. In 1905, the Memorial Hall was added to honor Queen Victoria. Today, this national monument is the venue for the Singapore Symphony Orchestra (see p85).

4 City Hall and Supreme Court
The wide stairs and columns of this building are in a style that was standard for government structures when it was built in the 1930s. Beside it, the former Supreme Court has a dome like St. Paul's Cathedral in London. Both will become the National Art Gallery in 2012. ☉ Map M2

TOP 10 Places of Worship

1 St. Andrew's Cathedral
Named for the patron saint of Scotland, this Anglican church is on a piece of land selected by Raffles himself. Inside the church is the Canterbury Stone, presented by the Metropolitan Cathedral Church of Canterbury. The Coventry Cross is made of silver-plated nails from the ruins of Coventry Cathedral, and the Coronation Carpet is part of the one used for Queen Elizabeth II in Westminster Abbey (see p34).

2 Armenian Church
Built in 1835 and dedicated to St. Gregory the Illuminator, this church was the focal point for an Armenian community that has now dwindled to almost nil. Behind the church are grave-stones of prominent community members, such as the Sarkies brothers who founded the Raffles Hotel and the lady for whom the national flower, the Vanda Miss Joaquim, is named.

📍 Map L2 • 60 Hill St. • 6334-0141

3 Cathedral of the Good Shepherd
Catholicism arrived with the Portuguese in the 1500s. In Singapore's early days, Catholic services were held in a thatched structure at Bras Basah Road. By the mid-1800s this church had been built, along with a school, St. Joseph's Institution, and the Convent of the Holy Infant Jesus, all within close proximity. Non-Catholics are welcome for mass. 📍 Map M1 • 4 Queen St. • 6337-2036 • Open 7am-5pm Mon-Fri, 7am-7:30pm Sat-Sun • www.veritas.org.sg

4 CHIJMES (Convent of the Holy Infant Jesus)

The Gothic chapel within this complex is Singapore's most ornate church. Although services stopped in 1983, when it became an entertainment complex, the chapel still hosts weddings and receptions. A door in the northeast corner of the grounds is the spot where abandoned babies were left to be cared for by nuns (see p35).

St. Andrew's Cathedral

5 Sri Thandayuthapani Temple

This Hindu temple had humble beginnings as a statue of Lord Muruga under a bodhi tree.

A permanent temple was built in 1859 but was replaced by a new one in 1983. It is renovated every 12 years, in keeping with Hindu tradition. 📍 Map K1

This shrine is dedicated to the Tan family clan. It was originally built on the riverside, but due to land reclamation it now lies well away from the water's edge. Behind the temple, a private hall encloses ancestral tablets of diseased clan members. 📍 Map K3 • 15 Magazine Rd. • 6533-2880

7 Hong San See Temple

Built on a hill above Mohammed Sultan Road, this 100-year-old temple complex was erected by migrants from the Fujian province in China. Inside the entrance hall are granite plaques listing the donors who contributed to the building. It is dedicated to the God of Fortune, the Goddess of Mercy and the Heavenly Emperor. It was designated as a national monument in 1978. 📍 Map J2 • 31 Mohammed Sultan Rd.

TOP 10 World War II Sights

1 Changi Chapel and Museum

This museum is dedicated to prisoners held at Changi Prison and camp from 1942 to 1945, and features replicas of the murals painted in St. Luke's Chapel by Bombardier Stanley Warren (see p37).

2 Fort Siloso

The last British coastal fort on the island offers an insight into the lives of World War II soldiers. The Surrender Chambers re-create the 1945 British and Japanese surrenders (see pp26-7).

3 Labrador Park

Guns capable of firing shells almost 10 miles (16 km) were installed at Fort Pasir Panjang to help protect it from attack by sea. Many of the gun emplacements can still be seen. 📍 Map S3 • Labrador Villa Rd. • 6339-6833 • Open 10am-6pm daily • Adm

4 Battle Box

7 Kranji War Memorial and Cemetery

This memorial stands over the graves of more than 4,000 Allied servicemen. The pillars list the names of 24,000 others whose bodies were not found (see p99).

8 Civilian War Memorial Locally known as the “chopsticks memorial,” the four pillars here symbolize the races (Chinese, Malay, Indian, and others) that suffered during the Japanese occupation. Remains of unidentified victims are buried at the base of the monument.

9 The Padang The spot where Japanese troops gathered and divided the European population. British and Australian soldiers were to be held at the Seralang Barracks, while 2,300 civilians were sent to Changi Prison (see pp22–3).

10 Lim Bo Seng Memorial This monument is a tribute to local hero Lim Bo Seng, who escaped to Sri Lanka after the Japanese invasion to train resistance fighters. Captured upon his return, he died in captivity.

Major World War II Events in Singapore

1 December 7–8, 1941 The Japanese attack Pearl Harbor and simultaneously launch a massive offensive, invading the Philippines, Hong Kong, and Thailand, and drop the first bombs on Singapore.

2 February 8, 1942 Japan invades Singapore from Malaysia, by crossing the causeway.

3 February 15, 1942 General Percival surrenders to General Yamashito. The Japanese occupation begins.

4 February 16, 1942 The European population assembles at the Padang, before being marched 14 miles (23 km) to Changi Prison.

5 May 1943 The first group of 600 prisoners is dispatched to work on the Burma-Thailand “death railway.”

6 1943 Rations are cut as the war turns against Japan and living conditions begin to worsen.

7 November 1944 Starvation and disease is widespread. The US carries out its first raid on the Singapore harbor.

8 Early 1945 Living conditions are almost unbearable, with many people dying of malnutrition.

9 May 1945 News of the end of the European War reaches Singapore – the end is near for the desperate city.

10 September 12, 1945 Japan formally surrenders to Lord Louis Mountbatten, the last British Viceroy to India.

TOP 10 National Parks and Gardens

1 Singapore Botanic Gardens

Although Orchard Road is just a short walk away, the city seems deceptively distant when you are surrounded by frangipani trees, lakes, and rain forest. A walk through the tranquil gardens is the perfect follow-up to a day of sightseeing or shopping. Locals may be seen practicing the martial art Tai Chi on the lawns in the morning (see pp18–19).

Monkey at Bukit Timah Nature Reserve

called “Forbidden Hill,” it is said to be the site of the tomb of Iskandar Shah, who first settled Singapore. Raffles built his bungalow here but, in 1859, it was replaced by a military base and renamed Fort Canning. The fort became the British headquarters in the Battle for Singapore. Raffles designated it the island’s first botanic garden (see p85).

2 National Orchid Garden

One of the highlights of the Botanic Gardens is this collection of over 3,000 species of orchid. Beautifully landscaped, the garden boasts different environments for each group of orchids and bromeliads. The Coolhouse provides a welcome respite from the heat (see pp18-19).

4 Chinese and Japanese Gardens

Two unique landscaping philosophies have been used to create two gardens on adjoining islands on Jurong Lake. The Chinese Garden features an excellent Suzhou-style bonsai collection, colorful buildings, and a stone boat. Steps away over the Bridge of Double Beauty, the Japanese Garden is the essence of serenity. Enjoy the view of both from the top of the Chinese Garden’s seven-story pagoda (see p97).

3 Fort Canning Park

5 Bukit Timah Nature Reserve

One of the last remnants of Singapore's primary rain forest, Bukit Timah is thought to hold more plant species than all of North America. Expect to see long-tailed macaques and flying lemurs. Routes around the reserve range from 45-minute walks to 2-hour hikes and mountain biking trails (see p97).

6 MacRitchie Nature Trail

Vestiges of Singapore's rubber plantations can be seen from the boardwalk encircling this reservoir park. Trails through the forest range in length from 2 to 7 miles (3 to 11 km). The 82-ft (25-m)-high treetop walk has views of the forest canopy and the reservoir. 📍 Map S2 • Off Lornie Rd. • Open daily • www.nparks.gov.sg

7 Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve

Boardwalk trails wind through this reserve among mangroves that are home to mudskippers and monitor lizards. Look out for the Atlas moth, one of the largest in the world, with a wingspan of up to 1 ft (12 inches). Hides by the pools allow you to observe some of the 144 bird species found here (see p98).

8 East Coast Park

For many visitors, this park is their first glimpse of Singapore, stretching along the expressway from the airport to the city. The long strip of sandy beach with paths shaded by casuarina trees and coconut palms is popular with bicyclists and rollerbladers. From here the

10 Sentosa Nature Walk

Given its short distance and well-graded paths, this walk is one of the easiest ways for children or less able visitors to glimpse Singapore's forest. However, it is not accessible for strollers and wheelchairs (see pp26-7).

TOP 10 Religious Celebrations

1 Chinese New Year
Singapore's most important public holiday is celebrated in January or February. Celebrations begin on the eve of the holiday, with families gathering for dinner. People visit their friends and family, and hong bao (red packets containing money) are given to elders and kids.

2 Chingay Parade
This Chinese New Year parade features performances of dance, music, and acrobatics as well as floats along the route. Troupes from China and performers from all over the world add a multicultural aspect to the event.

3 Thaipusam
In January or February, this day of thanksgiving sees Hindus honor Lord Muruga. A parade

Family celebrating Hari Raya Puasa

begins at Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple (see p75) and ends at Sri Thandayuthapani Temple (see pp38–9). Many devotees carry heavy kavadis (metal racks with fruits and flowers), pierce their tongues and cheeks with skewers, and dig hooks into their backs.

Hungry Ghost Festival offering

4 Hungry Ghost Festival
The Chinese believe that menacing spirits wander the earth in August and September. To appease these spirits, they offer food, burn joss sticks and "hell money," and stage Chinese operas. New ventures, such as marriages and business openings, are suspended during this inauspicious time.

5 Mid-Autumn Festival
Also called the Lantern Festival, this celebrates the harvest with mooncakes stuffed with sweet lotus paste, egg, and other fillings. The Chinese and Japanese Gardens (see p42) are a wonderland for kids, with huge paper and plastic lanterns.

6 Hari Raya Puasa
Ramadan, the Muslim month of fasting, culminates with Hari Raya Puasa, also called Aidil Fitri, and is celebrated with family and friends. Non-Muslims are often invited to feasts in private homes. The dates for this public holiday change every year.

7 Thimithi

Every October or November, a procession of Hindu devotees makes its way from the Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple to the Sri Mariamman Temple (see p67) where a fire-walking ceremony is led by priests.

Offerings at a family altar during Deepavali

8 Deepavali

Also held in October or November, this festival is celebrated by Hindus and Sikhs to mark the triumph of good over evil. Hundreds of oil lamps are lit to guide the souls of the departed, who come to earth on this day, back to the afterworld.

9 Nine Emperor Gods

Taoists believe that the Nine Emperor Gods come to earth for nine days each November to care for the sick and bring luck to the living. Priests in Chinese temples chant prayers, and spirit guides write charms in their own blood.

10 Christmas

Singapore keeps the Christmas spirit alive with spectacular decorations on Orchard Road (see pp90–91), which attracts almost a million tourists during the colorful festive season.

Top 10 Sporting and Cultural Events

Chinatown

IN 1822, SIR STAMFORD RAFFLES LAID OUT a town plan that divided Singapore into clearly defined quarters – enclaves that remain distinctive even today. At the time, the area south of the Singapore River was developing fast with godowns (warehouses) and shipping offices. Behind these, Chinese laborers lived in close quarters. Chinese temples sprang up alongside clan associations – groups of Chinese who had a common dialect, name, or similar origins, and helped newcomers find work and lodgings. As with Singapore’s other enclaves, Chinatown was not homogenous. Indian workers also lived here, especially after the opening of the port at Tanjong Pagar in the mid-1800s. Taoist and Hindu temples, churches and mosques now stand side by side – representing the multicultural spirit that is at the heart of Singapore today.

Sri Mariamman Temple façade

1 Thian Hock Keng Temple

Though a main stop on every tourist itinerary, Thian Hock Keng maintains its authenticity as an important temple for Singapore's Hokkien population. Built in the architectural style of southern Chinese temples, it follows feng shui, traditional rules that govern the placement of objects for optimal flow of energy. Though Taoist and dedicated to the goddess Ma Zu (Ma Cho Po), it respects Buddhist teachings, too, with a shrine of Bodhisattva Guanyin and a swastika symbol embellishing its outer walls (see pp12–13).

2 Wak Hai Cheng Bio Temple

A Taoist center for the Teochew community, this small temple seems almost magical. Inside the courtyard, rows of smoking spiral joss sticks are suspended from a grid, while the temple itself, with its sloping roof covered with figurines of colorful ceramic shards, is curiously juxtaposed against the glass and steel skyscrapers that completely surround it. Two halls are dedicated to Ma Zu and Xuan Tian Shang Di, a powerful god who is believed to control the elements. Map L4 • 30-B Phillip St. • Open 9am–6pm daily

3 Sri Mariamman Temple

Sri Mariamman, or “Mother Goddess” as she is known to Hindus, is honored at this temple, Singapore's oldest Hindu place of worship. It was established in 1823 by Narayana Pillay, a government clerk who arrived aboard Raffles' ship and decided to stay. The current temple was built in 1843 by former Indian convicts. Sri Mariamman is believed to cure diseases, so it is appropriate that free medical services are available here.

4 Jamae Chulia Mosque

The Chulias were Muslims engaged in trade and money changing who came from India's southern coast. They financed the building of the nearby Al-

Abrar Mosque as well as this one. The impressive façade of Jamae Chulia is southern Indian in style, with latticework embellishment and two tall minarets with mihrab (small niches) carved in the sides. Cloaks are available inside the entrance to cover visitors wearing shorts or sleeveless tops. Map K4 • 18 South Bridge Rd. • 6221-4165 • Open 9am–6pm daily, closed noon–3pm Fri

Enter the Tourist

In the early 1980s Singapore recognized the value of preserving its architectural heritage for posterity and began restoring historic buildings. Chinatown was one of the first areas to be transformed: crumbling shophouses were restored to their original beauty, and streets once bustling with hawkers and gossiping aunties now had souvenir shops, giving Chinatown a vibrant feel.

5 Al-Abrar Mosque

Once the island's most important mosque, Al-Abrar was originally a seaside hut built from wood and attap (thatch), that served the community living and working in the area – hence its name “Koochoo Palli,” or hut mosque. Squeezed between shophouses, its façade blends in with the city. It is very quiet, serving a handful of workers in the area, while most Muslims prefer to pray at mosques closer to home. 📍 Map L5 • 192 Telok Ayer St. • 6220-6306 • Open 11:30am–9pm Sat–Thu, 10am–9pm Fri

This museum, located in three restored shophouses in the heart of Chinatown, illustrates the harsh conditions in which the Chinese community lived and worked in Singapore's early days.

Doctor's room, Chinatown Heritage Centre

Shoppers at Chinatown Pedestrian Mall

Occupying three levels, it re-creates scenes from old shops, coffee-shops, and living cubicles, with an interesting exhibit dedicated to the “four evils” of gambling, opium smoking, prostitution, and secret societies. 📍 Map K4 • 48 Pagoda St. • 6325-2878 • Open 9am–8pm daily • www.chinatownheritage.com.sg • Adm

7 Chinatown Pedestrian Mall

Closed to vehicles, these two streets lined with stalls sell a jumble of gifts, trinkets, and treasures, mostly from China. There are also batiks and carved wood items, most likely from Indonesia, and lacquerware and silk items from Vietnam. Behind the stalls, stores sell pricier gifts, art, and antiques. Nearby Smith Street is closed to traffic in the evenings as tables are set and food is served from roadside stalls. 📍 Map K4 • Trengganu St. & Pagoda St. • Open 10am–11pm daily

9 Buddha Tooth Relic Temple

This complex, completed in 2007 at a cost of S$53 million, houses a sacred tooth relic of the Buddha. The building contains halls for prayer and meditation, a theater, museums, an exhibition center, a gift shop, and a teahouse. While the layout is based on the Buddhist order of the cosmos, the architecture is inspired by the Tang Dynasty of China. Shorts, skirts, and sleeveless tops are not allowed. 📍 Map K4 • 288 South Bridge Rd. • 6220-0220 • Open 7am–7pm daily • www.btrts.org.sg

10 Ann Siang Hill Park

Chinatown and Tanjong Pagar were once covered in hills, but most have been levelled. Ann Siang Hill is one of the few that remains. This park stretches along the hilltop, with stairs and boardwalks offering views over shophouse rooftops. 📍 Map K4, L4 • Park entrances: Amoy St. & Club St.

A Day in Chinatown

Morning

🕒 From the Chinatown MRT, take the overhead walkway across Eu Tong Sen Street and New Bridge Road to Pagoda Street. Start with the Chinatown Heritage Centre on Pagoda Street which will give you an overview of the neighborhood's heritage. Outside, meander through the stalls of the Chinatown Pedestrian Mall at Pagoda and Trengganu streets, where shops sell drinks and snacks. Nearby on South Bridge Road is the perfect example of multicultural harmony in Singapore. Here, you can visit the Jamae Chulia Mosque (see p67) on the corner of Mosque Street, the Sri Mariamman Temple on Temple Street, and the Buddha Tooth Relic Temple on Sago Street.

Afternoon

🍴 Have an authentic local lunch and something cool to drink at one of the food-stalls at the Maxwell Food Centre (see p56) opposite the Buddha Tooth Relic Temple. If you prefer to eat lunch in a restaurant, stroll up Ann Siang Hill to Club Street where you will find a selection of chic Asian and international restaurants in restored shophouses. After lunch, take a stroll along Club Street to admire the architecture, then take the shortcut through Ann Siang Hill Park to Amoy Street where many legal, public relations, and advertising firms have offices. The park ends just behind the Thian Hock Keng Temple (see pp12–13).

Little India and Kampong Glam

IN SINGAPORE'S EARLY DAYS, ranchers settled and raised cattle in the area that is now Little India. The industry blossomed, supported by Indian labor. The government later opened brick kilns and lime pits that also relied on Indian workers. Thus, Little India was not a planned ethnic quarter but sprang from the community that gravitated here. Today, stores selling goods

It attracted other Muslim residents such as Malays, Bugis (from Sulawesi), and Arabs. Bugis immigrants set up ship-building firms, while some Arab companies are still in business today. A recent resurgence of Arabic culture can be seen here in the cafés and sheesha lounges, and in some stores.*

1 Serangoon Road

This avenue is the heart of Little India, an enclave that has escaped modernization amid a changing Singapore. Family-run stores still operate from old shophouses with peeling paint, covered walkways, and a jumble of goods. A number of Indians settled in Singapore still come here to buy items from India, from clothing to groceries and ceremonial treasures. Inside some of the stores, traders, such as spice grinders, laundrymen, and goldsmiths, operate as they have done for decades. Map F4, H4

4 Sakya Muni Buddha Gaya Temple

This small Buddhist temple is also known as the Temple of a Thousand Lights, thanks to the 989 lights surrounding the main Buddha image, turned on for special ceremonies. Around the base of the main altar, painted murals depict episodes from the life of the Buddha. Behind the altar, a small doorway leads to an inner chamber with an image of the reclining Buddha. The temple has many Thai aesthetic influences handed down from its founder, who was a Thai monk. Map G2 • 366 Race Course Rd. • 6294-0714 • Open 8am–4:45pm daily

2 Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple

Since its humble beginnings in the mid-19th century, this temple has been associated with the laboring classes, as it was built mainly by and for workers in the area. It was constructed for the worship of Kali, a divine mother figure who provides comfort to worshippers far from home. As with all Hindu temples in Singapore, the colorful figures on the roof were created by skilled craftsmen brought in from southern India especially for the job (see pp16–17).

3 Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple

The first temple in Singapore to be built for the worship of Vishnu, Sri Srinivasa Perumal temple has an impressive gopuram with more than five tiers of figurines, including representations of Vishnu's various incarnations as well as his steed, the half-man-half-eagle Garuda. ### Istana Kampong Glam

In 1824, Sultan Hussein signed away his sovereign rights over Singapore to the East India Company in return for a plot of land and an annual stipend. After his death, his son Sultan Ali built Istana Kampong Glam on the land. Royal fortunes dwindled and in 1897 a court ruled that the estate belonged to the crown. The royal family was later resettled and the state turned the palace into the Malay Heritage Centre.

5 Abdul Gafoor Mosque

This mosque is a mix of Islamic and European architecture, with stately columns supporting Moorish arches. A sun motif above the main entrance contains names of the 25 prophets of Islam in delicate calligraphy in each of its rays. This mosque compound includes the shophouses around it. The rent from these has contributed to its restoration.  Map F4, G4 • 41 Dunlop Street • 6295-4209 • Open 9:30am–9pm (except prayer times 12:30–1:30pm, 4:45–5:30pm) daily

Named for the Arab traders who were among the earliest foreign settlers, Arab Street is the main thoroughfare in Kampong Glam, Singapore's Muslim quarter. The original stores here traded in spices and textiles, while today browsers can find batiks, baskets, fabrics, and items from Indonesia and the Middle East.  Map G4, G5, H5

8 Sultan Mosque

The most important mosque in Singapore, Sultan Mosque was built using contributions from the Muslim community. Even glass bottles donated from the poor were used for the band at the base of the onion dome. The mosque's governing body is made up of two members from each ethnic

9 Hajjah Fatimah Mosque
A local businesswoman, Hajjah Fatimah lived at this site in a house that was repeatedly burglarized and eventually set on fire. In gratitude for her escape, she decided to build a mosque here. Built in around 1846, the building is a mix of European, Chinese, and Malay architecture. Most interesting is the tilting minaret, Singapore's take on Italy's Leaning Tower of Pisa.

Exploring Little India and Kampong Glam

Morning

From the Little India MRT station, walk one block to the start of Serangoon Road at the corner of Bukit Timah Road. Here, Little India Arcade (see p82) hosts a nice collection of stores that sell imported goods from India. Follow Serangoon Road to Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple (see pp16–17) to witness the vibrant traditions of a Hindu temple. Farther down Serangoon Road is Sri Srinivasa Perumal Temple (see pp74–5), which, with fewer crowds than Sri Veeramakaliamman Temple, is a more peaceful environment in which to contemplate Hinduism. Next, take Perumal Road beside the temple to Race Course Road. Turn right and walk to the Sakya Muni Buddha Gaya Temple (see pp74–5) which is on the right.

Afternoon

From Little India take a short taxi ride to Kampong Glam and try a relaxing Egyptian-style lunch at Altazzag (see p83) or authentic spicy local fare at Sabar Menanti Restaurant (see p83). In Kampong Glam, start at the Sultan Mosque (see pp14–15) for a glimpse inside the religious heart of the neighborhood. From the mosque stroll down Bussorah Mall (see p81) and browse through batiks, antiques, and other souvenirs from the region. At Baghdad Street turn left and walk to Sultan Gate. Turn left and continue to the Malay Heritage Centre for an introduction to Malay culture and history.

Colonial District

BEFORE THE ARRIVAL OF SIR THOMAS STAMFORD RAFFLES, Singapore was a small fishing village surrounded by jungle. In time, the jungle gave way to building programs to house the local, and eventually colonial, government. The hill overlooking the district was cleared and a governor's residence built on top, with botanical gardens. In the 1800s, the district expanded. Many existing buildings date from this era. The oldest place in the city is Fort Canning, a hilltop park. Here a grave is tended, believed to be that of Iskandar Shah, who settled in Singapore before Raffles but moved on to found Melaka in Malaysia.

1 Fort Canning Park

Raffles built his home at this site, but it was replaced by Fort Canning in 1860. The military stronghold atop the park's hill was impressive, but it proved useless protection as its cannons could not reach as far as the harbor. The fort was demolished in 1929, but a Gothic gate remains. Military offices now house art groups and the lawns host concerts. The underground bunkers, known as the Battle Box, are now a World War II exhibit (see pp40-41). 📍 Map K1-2, L1-2 • 51 Canning Rise • 6332-1302 • Open 24 hours daily • www.nparks.gov.sg

2 Old Parliament House

Before Raffles' Town Plan could be executed (see p86), construction began on the first modern structure in Singapore. It was built as a private mansion for a Scottish merchant, but because Raffles had intended the area for civic use, Maxwell's House was later sold to the government. In 1999, having outgrown the space, the government left the building for the new granite Parliament House next to it (see pp10-11).

3 Victoria Theatre and Concert Hall

The Town Hall, completed in 1862, was the first structure purpose-built for the colonial government. It was designed on what was then a grand scale, but the government soon outgrew the premises. In 1909 it was converted into a theater. The adjacent concert hall, now home to the Singapore Symphony Orchestra, was finished in 1905. Both venues were then dedicated to Queen Victoria. 📍 Map M3 • 9 Empress Place • 6339-6120 • Open only to concert ticket holders

4 The Empress Building/ Asian Civilisations Museum

Since Maxwell's House was ill-suited to the growing colonial administration, a new government office was built. The oldest part was erected in 1864, with three extensions being added before it was reopened in 1905 as the Empress Place Building. It continued to be used for offices until the 1980s. Among these was the Registry of Births and Deaths – it was said that every Singaporean passed through its doors. In 2002, the building became the Asian Civilisations Museum (see pp10-11).

5 Statue of Raffles
This bronze statue of Sir Stamford Raffles was erected at the Padang in 1887, and it was moved to its current location outside the Victoria Theatre and Concert Hall in 1919, to mark Singapore's first centennial. A replica is perched at the spot along the Singapore River where it is believed that Raffles first set foot on the island in 1819.

Raffles' Town Plan of 1822

In 1822 Sir Stamford Raffles formed a committee to design a plan to divide Singapore into government, residential, and commercial areas. frequent guest since the 1920s, commented that the hotel stood for "all the fables of the exotic East" (see pp24–5).

7 City Hall and the Supreme Court

Since its completion in 1929, City Hall has been the site of many historical events. In 1945 the Japanese surrendered here; in 1959 Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew proclaimed Singapore's self-rule on the steps; and in 1966 it was the site of Singapore's first National Day celebrations. The Supreme Court was built in 1932, and while both buildings are massive, the government has outgrown them. The judiciary now operates from the new Supreme Court building behind the original one, while the City Hall offices now occupy other modern buildings. 📍 Map M2, M3

A Walk Around the Colonial District

Morning

🕒 Begin at the National Museum (see pp8–9), where you can spend a few hours exploring the history of Singapore. From here, turn right onto Stamford Road and walk as far as Armenian Street to your right. Along Armenian Street you will find the Peranakan Museum (see p36), which explores the culture of the Peranakans, or Straits Chinese. Continue along Armenian Street until you reach the intersection with Victoria Street where the Funan – DigitaLife Mall (see p49) is located. Here you'll find an array of electronic goods, including computer hardware and software.

Afternoon

After lunch, exit the Funan Mall from North Bridge Road and turn left. At the intersection of North Bridge Road and Bras Basah Road turn left into CHIJMES (see p35), a 19th-century missionary school, which is now a dining and shopping area. Back at the intersection, cross to Raffles Hotel for a tour of this landmark. Exit from its main entrance on Beach Road, turn right and continue as far as St. Andrew's Cathedral (see p38) beside City Hall MRT. After visiting the chapel, follow the road with the Padang to your left and the Supreme Court to your right. Walk past the Old Parliament House (see pp10–11) and Victoria Theatre (see p85) on your right to the Empress Place Building to spend the rest of your day exploring the Asian Civilisations Museum (see pp10–11).

Orchard Road

ORCHARD ROAD GETS ITS NAME from the plantations that sprouted here in the 1830s at a time when nutmeg was an important cash crop, along with fruits, spices, and pepper. By the mid-1800s, the nutmeg plantations had been wiped out by disease. Around the same time, the European population grew larger, demanding more space. Orchard Road cut through a narrow valley and suffered terrible floods, but once drainage plans were in place, businesses settled in the area to serve the colonial expatriate community. In 1958, C.K. Tang opened the first store here, and by 1973 Orchard Road had its first skyscraper, the Mandarin Hotel, now Meritus Mandarin Singapore, with a revolving restaurant on its 39th floor offering views of the entire area.

1 The Istana and Sri Temasek

The Istana was considered expensive for a governor's residence, but upon completion in 1869, its design won critics over. Situated at the top of a hill, it is surrounded by tropical gardens. The Istana no longer serves as a residence, but is used for state occasions, VIP receptions, and is open to visitors on public holidays. Sri Temasek, a smaller building in the compound, was built for colonial officers (see p35).

2 Emerald Hill Road

Away from the cacophony of Orchard Road, Emerald Hill Road is surprisingly tranquil. A lane of millionaires' homes, the Hill's Peranakan-style row houses have been well restored. There are various house styles, from plain, boxy 19th-century buildings, to the pre-war Chinese Baroque-style terrace houses, and even ornate Art Deco variations of the 1950s shophouse. 📍 Map C4-5 lush tropical forest. The gardens are a favorite spot for joggers in the mornings, for photographers in the late afternoons, and for families on the weekends, who come for the Jacob Balas Children's Garden. There are also music and dance performances, and movie screenings by the lakes (see pp18-19).

4 Tangs

Singapore's home grown department store sprouted from the dreams of a door-to-door salesman who arrived from China in 1923. Called the "Tin Trunk Man," C.K. Tang carried goods in a tin trunk that became his trademark. Tang bought this prime piece of property in 1958 to be near the European settlements in the area. His family still owns the department store and the plot of land on which it sits, located at the city's busiest crossroads.

A Stroll Along Orchard Road

Morning

🕒 Start at the Orchard Road Promenade and head to Ngee Ann City, which has some of the world's most luxurious brands. Shop for books at the city's largest bookstore, Kinokuniya Singapore (see p94), and inspect handcrafted batiks from Indonesia at Bin House (see p94). From Ngee Ann City follow the promenade past street buskers and resting spots. On your left is Tangs department store, next to Lucky Plaza, known for cheap electronic goods – but beware, some stores will take advantage of tourists. On your right, pass the Merit Mandarin Hotel Singapore, known for its chicken rice. Farther down Orchard Road is the Heeren shopping mall on your left and Orchard Cineleisure on your right. Continue along Orchard Road to the junction at Peranakan Place on your left. This nook has many cafés and watering holes.

Afternoon

🕒 Walk past Peranakan Place to Emerald Hill Road to view the private homes converted from Peranakan shophouses. A few of these are now pubs and stores, where you can see inside. No. 5 has retained many original details. Walk back to Orchard Road and continue along the promenade. Detours into its malls can easily occupy most of your day. On public holidays, the late afternoon is the best time to visit The Istana and Sri Temasek (see p91), which is located past the intersection with Clemenceau Avenue.

A drink at Que Pasa, Singapore's first wine bar, is a must when you are in the Orchard Road neighborhood.

Farther Afield

SHAPED LIKE A DIAMOND, SINGAPORE is only 7,349 sq ft (683 sq m) in size with 120 miles (193 km) of shoreline. The urban center sits at the southernmost tip of the island. At the city's outskirts, pre-war neighborhoods consist of low-rise streets with homes and stores where traditional trades are still practiced. Beyond these, New Towns – clusters of high-rise apartment buildings – are supported by schools, businesses, and other facilities. The Mass Rapid Transit line (RMT) runs a full circle around the major New Towns, linking them with the city. It is possible to spend several days exploring the vast countryside.

1 Singapore Zoo and Night Safari

A must-see attraction, the zoo has exotic animals in landscaped enclosures, a playground for children, scheduled feeding times, guided tours, and animal shows. The Night Safari is the world's first, and a novel way to see nocturnal animals at their most active.

Located next to the Mandai Reservoir, the zoo attracts many local animals, such as monitor lizards and macaques, that wander in from the surrounding jungle for free meals (see pp8–9).

Over 40 years ago, then Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew recognized the value of nature. By the 1970s, several areas had been planted with shady angsana trees and bougainvilleas. Since then, new urban plans have continued to be drawn up with nature in mind. The National Parks Board manages 23,475 acres (9,500 ha) in more than 300 parks.

5 Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve

A series of paths and wooden walkways leads visitors through mangrove swamps, mudflats, and pools, overgrown with the unique flowers and foliage that thrive at the edge of the sea. Kingfishers, plovers, sandpipers, egrets, and herons are just some of the bird species found here. Other wildlife includes otters, crabs, and mud lobsters. This 19th-century suburban bungalow was a private residence before it was donated by a local businessman to Chinese revolutionary Dr. Sun Yat Sen for use as the headquarters of his operations in Southeast Asia. In 1911, after Dr. Sun's Kuomintang Party deposed China's Qing dynasty, it was entrusted to the local Chinese Chamber of Commerce. The bungalow is now a museum tracing the history of Dr. Sun's revolution and the contributions made by Chinese of the Nanyang, or South Sea, to his cause. Map T2 • 12 Tai Gin Rd. • 6256-7377 • Open 9am–5pm Tue–Sun • Adm • www.wanqingyuan.com.sg

7 Lian Shan Shuang Lin Temple

Singapore's oldest Buddhist monastery, whose name means "Twin Grove of the Lotus Mountain Temple," claims a 110-year history. It has three main halls – the Hall of Celestial Kings, the Mahavira Hall, and the Dharma Hall. Each of these is built in the typical architectural style of China's southern Fujian province. The compound has a seven-story granite pagoda. The local Hokkiens call this temple Siong Lim in their dialect. Map T2 • 184 Jalan Toa Payoh • 6259-6924 • Open 24 hours daily

A Day Trip from Singapore

Morning

🕒 Register in advance for a GT one-day pass (www.bushub.com.sg), which permits unlimited travel between major attractions for S$11 per adult. Take an early Express Service bus from one of the stops on Orchard Road to the Singapore Zoo (see pp20–21). Take advantage of the cooler morning hours to tour the zoo while the animals are more active. Next, hop on public bus #138 for the five-minute trip to the Mandai Orchid Garden to explore its winding green trails between hundreds of beds of flowering plants.

Afternoon

🕒 Have lunch at The Vanilla Pod restaurant at the Mandai Orchid Garden, where chefs prepare dishes using fresh orchids as well as other herbs and spices cultivated on the site. Both the air-conditioned dining room and the veranda offer refreshing views of the gardens. After lunch, hop on bus #138 back to the zoo, and board the Express Service bus to Jurong BirdPark (see p97) in western Singapore. You could spend a whole afternoon touring the grounds on the panoramic, exploring the Waterfall Aviary, learning about native species, and taking in one of the animal behavior shows. Another great option for the afternoon is a visit to the Chinese and Japanese Gardens (see p97), a taxi ride away. Its picturesque bridges, lakes, pagodas, and bonsai are wonderfully photogenic.

SINGAPORE'S TOP 10

TOP 10 Planning Your Trip

1 When to Go

Singapore's temperature remains fairly constant throughout the year, with an average high of 88°F (31°C) and relative humidity of 85 percent. Rainfall is highest from November to January and lowest in June and July. Peak travel season is from mid-December through to the Chinese New Year in January/February.

2 Passports and Visas

Visitors to Singapore require a passport that is valid for at least six months, evidence of sufficient funds for their stay, and documents for onward travel. Western nationals do not require a visa and are issued a social visit pass of up to 30 days on arrival. Women who are over six months pregnant need to apply for a social visit pass before arrival; these can be obtained through local embassies or the Immigration and Checkpoints Authority.

☎ ICA • 6391-6100

• www.ica.gov.sg

3 Health Precautions

There are no mandatory vaccinations but it is recommended that visitors have up-to-date hepatitis A & B, diphtheria, tetanus, and typhoid shots. Customs regulations are strict – you may need to show your doctor's prescription if you are using any sleeping pills, stimulants, or depressants.

4 Customs

Duty-free allowance is 1 liter of spirits, 1 liter of wine or port, and 1 liter of beer. No duty-free cigarettes can be brought into Singapore. There is no duty-free allowance for visitors from Malaysia or those out of Singapore for less than 48 hours. Firecrackers, pirated CDs/DVDs, and chewing gum are all banned items. The city's mandatory death sentence for drug offenses applies to foreigners too.

5 What to Pack

Pack light summer wear. Locals dress in western casuals, though some restaurants may frown upon shorts or sandals. Carry a jacket or shawl for air-conditioned places, and an umbrella to protect you from both sun and rain.

6 Time Zone

Singapore is 8 hours ahead of GMT, 13 hours ahead of New York, and 3 hours behind Sydney. There is no daylight savings time; sunrise and sunset are around 7am and 7pm all year.

7 Electricity

Singapore's electrical voltage is modeled on the British system of 220–240 volts. Power plugs are also of the British three-pin type. Transformers are available and hotels have a supply to loan guests.

8 Languages

There are four official languages in Singapore. These are English, Mandarin, Malay, and Tamil. English is the most commonly used language and is taught in all schools. However, many Singaporeans also tend to use "Singlish" slang terms in their casual conversation (see p33). Public notices and signs are all in English.

9 Currency

The Singapore dollar (SGD) is divided into 100 cents. Notes come in denominations of S$2, S$5, S$10, S$20, S$50, and up to S$10,000. Coins come in 1, 5, 10, 20, 50 cent, and S$1 denominations. Although some stores accept British, US, Brunei, or Australian currency, you will find that SGD is needed for most transactions.

10 Driver's Licenses

Visitors intending to drive in Singapore require a valid driver's license from their country of residence, an English translation of their own license document, or an International Driving Permit. ☎ www.driving-in-singapore.spf.gov.sg

TOP 10 Getting to Singapore

1 Direct Flights

Changi Airport is a major hub, and with more than 80 airlines flying into Singapore, most travelers enjoy a wide choice of airlines, fares, and schedules. There are frequent direct flights to major cities including London, New York, Paris, and Sydney.

2 Stopovers

Singapore Visitors Centre offices, located in terminal arrivals, suggest activities for stopovers. Depending on the length of stopover, passengers can make use of napping areas, transit hotels, spas, and even a rooftop pool at Terminal 1. Free English-language tours are available for all passengers with a stopover of more than 5 hours, subject to entry visa regulations.

3 Flight Booking Tips

The best deals are often available online and many airlines offer Internet-only fares on their websites. Some sites, such as Kayak or Travelocity, send email alerts for tickets below a target price. Buying very early or late can net good results. www.kayak.com; www.travelocity.com

4 Regional Budget Carriers

The global expansion of low-cost airlines has served Singapore well, and several carriers such as Tiger Airways, JetStar, and Air Asia offer budget flights across the Asia Pacific region. The competition has also pushed down prices on the main carriers, so don't exclude them when looking for a deal. www.tigerairways.com; www.jetstar.com; www.airasia.com

5 Changi International Airport

The opening of Terminal 3 in 2008 consolidated Changi's reputation as one of the world's best airports. Many people check in early to relax and use the facilities. The terminals are clean and efficient, and the Visitors Centre helps with information and reservations. www.changiairport.com

6 Traveling By Rail

Two rail options exist between Malaysia and Singapore. Each operates from Tanjong Pagar station. The daily service to Johor Bahru and Kuala Lumpur is operated by Malaysia's Keretapi Tanah Melayu (KTMB). It is slow but comfortable and reliable. The opulent Oriental Express makes a weekly passage between Bangkok and Singapore, stopping at Penang and Kuala Lumpur. www.ktmb.com.my • www.orient-express.com

7 Traveling by Bus

Make the short hop to Malaysia's Johor Bahru using SBS bus 170 from Queen Street or SMRT 950 from Woodlands Interchange next to Woodlands MRT (www.plusliner.com & see p106). Passengers leave the bus at the checkpoint, so keep your ticket to board the next bus.

8 Traveling by Taxi

Licensed taxis to Malaysia are available at a Queen Street stand or by calling 6293-5546. These only travel to the checkpoint, where you must transfer to a Malaysian-registered cab.

9 By Private Car

Cars entering Singapore require an Autopass and Vehicle Entry Certificate from the immigration booths. Cars rented in Singapore need additional insurance to be driven in Malaysia and at least three-fourths of a tank of fuel before leaving. Driving is on the left in both countries.

10 By Ferry

Ferries are the best way to reach islands near Singapore. Catch ferries to Kusu and St. John's at Marina South Pier or rent boats to the Sisters' Islands and Pulau Hantu. The Indonesian islands of Batam and Bintan are reached from the Tanah Merah ferry terminal or Singapore Cruise Centre.

TOP 10 Getting Around

1 Transportation from Changi

The easiest way to get to the city from Changi Airport is by the Mass Rapid Transit (MRT), taxi, or the airport shuttle bus, which stops at larger hotels. For two or more people, a taxi is the fastest, most economical way to get around. There are taxi stands at each of the terminals.

2 MRT

The efficient and cheap Mass Rapid Transit (MRT) network operates three lines across the island that run from 6am to midnight. The North-South Line runs from Jurong East to Marina Bay, the East-West Line shuttles from Pasir Ris and Changi Airport to Boon Lay, and the North-East Line operates from Punggol to HarbourFront.

3 Taxis

Taxis are normally inexpensive, although a complex system of peak hour and other surcharges can increase fares significantly. Rainstorms and rush hours are best avoided. Within the city center, wait at a taxi stand for a cab or call one of the operators to reserve ahead (fees apply).

4 EZ Link Cards

These pre-paid and refundable cards are an excellent way to use Singapore's extensive public transportation system. Available at any MRT station, they can be used on the MRT, LRT (overground light railway) and buses. One-, two-, or three-day Singapore Tourist Passes are also available from Changi Airport and MRT stations, or from www.singaporetouristpass.com

5 Buses

Singapore has a comprehensive network of buses. Fares vary according to distance and whether the bus is air-conditioned. Routes are more complicated to understand than the MRT for short-term visitors, so the transitlink online journey planner is useful.

6 SIA Hop-on Bus

This air-conditioned bus plies between more than 20 spots, including Chinatown, Orchard Road, Little India, and Sentosa. The usual fare of S$12 a day is reduced to S$3 for passengers travelling with Silk Air or Singapore Airlines.

7 Walking

Plan your walking routes carefully, because Singapore's heat and humidity can make even a short stroll exhausting. Take plenty of breaks to rest and rehydrate.

8 Car Rentals

Several major car rental companies operate in Singapore and the rental process is simple for holders of an international driving permit or an English-language license. Local driving behavior, such as tailgating and frequent lane changes, can be stressful, though.

9 Chauffeur Rental

Chauffeur-driven cars and mini-buses can be arranged by many hotels, at Changi Airport, or by rental firms. Depending on itinerary and group size, costs can be surprisingly reasonable.

10 Biking

Renting a bicycle is an ideal, if energetic, way to enjoy the straight, level paths of the East Coast Park, or the challenging Bukit Timah or Pulau Ubin nature reserves (see pp42-3). On the roads, however, a bike is an uncomfortable and unsafe way for visitors to travel.

3 Visitor Information Centers (VIC)

There are several visitor information centers in Singapore, including those at Changi Airport terminals 1, 2, and 3, and four branches in Central Singapore. Well-trained staff at all centers offer useful information and tips. ☎ Orchard Rd. VIC: Map C5 • Orchard Rd./Cairnhill Rd. ☎ *Valley Rd. ### 4 Local Newspapers

The national daily broadsheet is the Straits Times, carrying world news from an Asian perspective. To glimpse the daily life of ordinary Singaporeans, the letters pages of free tabloids, Today and My Paper, can make interesting reading.

5 Local Magazines

Time Out Singapore is published every two weeks. Available at news stands, bookstores, and big supermarkets, it has good listings of current events all over the island, with an emphasis on the arts and music. Upcoming events are also detailed in the Singapore Tourism Board's monthly newsletter, which is available from visitor centers.

6 TV and Radio

Singapore has two local TV channels in English. Channel News Asia offers CNN-style rolling news, while Channel 5 shows drama and lifestyle imports from the US. On the radio, most local English-language channels play mainly western pop music. Hotels offer cable via StarHub, which covers international channels such as Star World, CNBC Live, HBO, and Discovery.

7 Maps

Visitor Information Centers and hotels provide free maps of the city center. These can also be picked up at hotels and tourist spots. The city is easy to navigate, so cumbersome street directories are rarely necessary.

8 Disabled Visitors

Although Singapore is working toward better accessibility for visitors with disabilities, wheelchair users may be frustrated by the lack of ramps in many places. MRT stations are equipped with elevators and many have braille and tactile flooring. Wheelchair-friendly taxis can be booked from the main taxi operators.

9 Gay and Lesbian Visitors

Homosexuality remains technically illegal in Singapore, despite a 2008 attempt to repeal the laws. However, these are rarely enforced and Singapore has a growing, but relatively discreet, gay scene. There are many gay bars near Tanjong Pagar Road.

10 Media Censorship

The Government of Singapore considers the local media a responsible partner in nation-building. The Singapore press has responded to this policy with effective self-censorship. There is little overtly political activity and rarely are foreigners visiting or living here politically active.

TOP 10 Budget Tips

1 Budget Airlines

Various budget airlines ply the region. Visitors arriving from within Asia or those planning to travel around the region will do well to check for discounted fares from airlines such as Tiger Airways (with routes throughout Asia), Cebu Pacific (to the Philippines), Bangkok Airways (to Koh Samui, Thailand), and JetStar (throughout Southeast Asia and to India).

2 Getting Around

Passengers flying Singapore Airlines can enjoy discounted tickets on the SIA Hop-on Bus, which stops at over 20 favorite tourist spots. The bus and MRT systems sell Singapore Tourist Pass one-price tickets for unlimited rides all day. They cost S$18 a day (see p106). 🌐 www.singaporeair.com; www.thesingaporetouristpass.com

3 Cheap Eats

Singapore's hawker centers and food courts offer a truly wide variety of fine local and international dishes. An entire meal with a drink can cost as little as S$5. At hawker centers outside the city center, the same dishes can be found for as little as S$3.

4 Cheap Nights Out

Most pubs and bars have daily happy hours, from afternoon to early evening, depending on the place. Discounts can include cheap jugs of beer or two-for-one drinks, but premium liquor is rarely included. Some nightclubs have Ladies' Nights when they offer free drinks to women all night long.

5 Free Parks and Gardens

As well as offering free admission to most of its parks and gardens, the National Parks Board offers free guided walks on select weekends at parks such as Fort Canning Park and Bukit Timah Nature Reserve.

🌐 www.nparks.gov.sg

6 Free Entry to Museums

Museums run by the National Heritage Board, such as the National Museum of Singapore and the Asian Civilisations Museum, have free admission every Friday evening (7–9pm) and on some public holidays.

🌐 www.nhb.gov.sg

7 Free Cultural Events

Besides hosting free religious and cultural festivals, the city holds free arts performances, including street buskers, live music, museum talks, movie screenings, and fringe events for festivals and exhibitions. 🌐 www.visitsingapore.com

8 Discount Tours

Hippo Tours sells Singapore Sightseeing Passes. The 1- and 2-day passes offer unlimited rides on the open-top Hippo tour bus, which stops at many major attractions around the city. There are five optional themed city tours. The bus is very good value for money; it is the cheapest tour option in the city.

9 Cheap Stays

Although more expensive than their Southeast Asian counterparts, budget hotels and hostels in Singapore offer excellent safety for guests and are packed with convenient services such as travel libraries, public lounges, Internet, telephone services, and laundry.

10 Good Buys

The 24-hour Mustafa Centre (see p76) is the cheapest place to buy souvenirs, t-shirts, knick-knacks, Singapore Airlines hostess costumes, and more. The price here is fixed and usually much lower than at stores in the center of town. For some really serious shopping, visit during the Great Singapore Sale, every June through July.

TOP 10 Banking and Communications

1 Banks, ATMs, and Credit Cards

Most major international banks have branches in Singapore, with local banking hours between 10am–3pm Monday–Friday and 9:30am–1pm Saturday. ATMs that accept cards linked to Cirrus or PLUS networks can be found in shopping malls and MRT stations. Visa, American Express, JCB, Diners Club, and MasterCard are widely accepted but smaller retailers may charge extra for credit card purchases.

2 Changing Money and Transferring Funds

Currency can be changed at any hotel or bank, but best rates are given by licensed money-changers operating from booths in shopping centers and commercial hubs. Wire transfer by Western Union can be arranged at any SingPost outlet.
 ☎ www.singpost.com

3 GST Refund

The 5 percent Goods & Services Tax levied on all purchases can be reclaimed by visitors spending at least S$100 a day at a store that participates in the GST Refund scheme. Upon purchase, ask for a GST Refund form. Fill in the form and present it with your receipt and the goods purchased to the customs officer at your point of departure. You will be given a voucher to present at a kiosk where the refund can be given on the spot, credited to your card, or transferred to a bank account.

☎ www.customs.gov.sg

4 Mail

SingPost provides efficient mail and package handling from many locations including Ngee Ann City and Lucky Plaza, both on Orchard Road, and Suntec City. Hours vary between outlets. Overseas postcards cost 50 cents each and letters S$1.10 each. Poste Restante services are at SingPost's Eunost Branch, a bit far from the city center.

5 Public Telephones

Find coin- and card-operated phones in shopping malls and MRT stations. Local calls cost 10 cents for three minutes. Most phones accept payment by credit card or pre-paid phone cards. These can be purchased from SingPost outlets or 7-Eleven shops that also sell international pre-paid phone cards.

6 Calling Singapore

Singapore's country code is 65. There are no area codes within Singapore. Local phone numbers are eight digits and begin with 6. Cell phone lines also have eight-digit numbers, but begin with an 8 or a 9.

7 Cell Phones

Singapore operates on two cell phone networks, GSM900 and GSM1800. There are three local cell phone service providers – SingTel, M1, and StarHub.

8 Internet Access

All major international hotels provide in-room Internet access, and many have wireless Internet access throughout. There are usually Wifi hotspots in the city's cafés, and many Internet cafés are located in central shopping areas.

9 Business Centers

Most big hotels have well-equipped business centers, some operating round the clock. Smaller and budget hotels are also able to offer fax, copy, and other services from their front offices.

10 Public Holidays

Singapore has 10 public holidays. These include: New Year's Day (Jan 1), Chinese New Year (held over two days, Jan/Feb), Good Friday (Mar/Apr), Labour Day (May 1), Vesak Day (usually May), National Day (Aug 9), Deepavali (usually Oct/Nov), Hari Raya Haji (in Nov), and Christmas (Dec 25). However, many religious holidays have no set date, but fall according to the lunar calendar or other calculation.

TOP 10 Security and Health

1 Emergency Numbers

Emergency numbers in Singapore can be dialed free from public phones. Dial 999 for police, 995 for ambulance and fire emergencies.

2 Police

Singapore is generally a very safe city. Laws are strictly enforced by an efficient police force. Many minor offenses carry a fine and a foreigner accused of breaking the law may not necessarily have access to legal advice from his home consulate.

3 Theft Prevention

Despite a very low crime rate, pickpocketing does occur, especially in crowded areas such as the night markets in Bugis Street and Chinatown. Most hotels have in-room safes, or important items can be placed within the hotel's main safe. It is a good idea to keep passports, airline tickets, and credit cards in here – a photocopy of your passport is acceptable as identification.

4 Hospitals

Singapore's standard of health care is known to be one of the best in the world. The most central hospitals in the city are Mount Elizabeth Hospital, Gleneagles Hospital, and Singapore General Hospital.

5 Infectious Diseases

In recent years diseases such as Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) and Avian Influenza have made headlines. In 2003, Singapore's efficient response to SARS earned kudos. Government agencies control imports of poultry infected with the Bird Flu virus.

6 Mosquito-borne Illnesses

Singapore has been malaria-free for decades, but other mosquito-borne illnesses pose a problem, such as dengue and chikungunya. Mosquito repellent is advisable.

7 Pharmacies

There are branches of Guardian and Watsons in most shopping malls around the city. Remember prescriptions from overseas doctors are not accepted. www.guardian.com.sg; www.watsons.com.sg

8 Drinking Water and Food Safety

Tap water is safe to drink. Bottled water is available at convenience stores, cafés, and restaurants. Street food is generally safe. Hygiene standards are rated by the government, and restaurants and food stalls failing basic health requirements are strictly closed down. The highest rating is "A."

9 Women Travelers

Singapore sees many solo female business travelers. The crime rate against women is low.

10 Consulates

It is recommended that you register your travel dates with your embassy or consulate, to ease assistance in case you run into problems.

TOP 10 Things to Avoid

1 Overheating

To really get the most out of your time in Singapore, it pays to slow down. Opt to dress in cool, casual clothes. The heat and humidity here tend to drain you of energy fast.

2 Dehydration

Constant perspiration leaves you at a risk of dehydration. Bottled water is available at convenience stores, food courts, and cafés across town. It is a good idea to carry water with you everywhere you go.

3 Exposure

In the tropics, downpours can come with very little forewarning. Always carry an umbrella with you, as most locals do. Singaporeans use them as parasols, especially the compact umbrellas that are covered in reflective silver fabric. They can help prevent sunburn and keep you cool.

4 Freezing

The air conditioning in malls, office buildings, and movie theaters is usually kept at very low temperatures so it is a good idea to carry a jacket, a wrap, or a long-sleeved shirt.

5 Peak-hour Taxis

Public transportation is generally reliable and cheap. However, try to find a taxi just after office hours or during a rain-storm and you may find yourself in a line for up to 40 minutes. There is often a rush for taxis just before midnight, since a 50 percent surcharge is added to all fares between midnight and 6am. Taxis can be reserved when you need them, but they may take a long time to arrive. It is therefore a good idea to find out the locations of the nearest MRT stations and major bus routes that serve your hotel.

6 Driving

While Avis and Hertz do rent cars, it is not recommended for visitors to drive themselves. Electronic Road Pricing charges and parking require pre-paid cash cards and tickets. Traffic can be frustrating, and so can the behavior of some local drivers, who change lanes frequently. Parking can be hard to find, too. The city's public transportation is efficient, cheap, and reliable, and is therefore a good option.

7 Touts

Touts are illegal in Singapore, but you will still come across them in certain shopping malls along Orchard Road and elsewhere. Beware of aggressive sales tactics. It is always wise to check on the international warranties for relevant purchases, too. The Singapore Tourism Board (see p107) also operates a system to alert the public and visitors to the country of disreputable retailers.

8 Smoking

It is illegal to smoke indoors, even in restaurants and pubs. Some alfresco pubs and cafés have small sections where smoking is allowed. Visitors must remember that smoking is also forbidden in taxi lines, and any other lines of more than five people. If caught smoking, the maximum fine is S$1000.

9 Drugs

Singapore's drug policy is very strict – import, possession, and use of illegal narcotics all carry a penalty. This may even include the death sentence if the quantities involved are large enough for a trafficking verdict or if the authorities can prove an intent to traffic. These laws apply to foreigners as well.

10 Crowds

On weekends, shopping malls and attractions become crowded with local families, foreign maids, and workers all enjoying their day off. Places like Orchard Road and Little India become especially crowded, so if you are heading out on the weekend, be prepared to encounter crowds and lines everywhere.

TOP 10 Accommodation and Dining Tips

1 Hotel Reservations

Singapore's hotels enjoy super-high occupancy rates year-round, so it is highly recommended to reserve early. If you do arrive without having a reservation, the Singapore Hotel Association operates Hotel Reservations counters at all Changi Airport arrival halls round the clock, seven days a week (see p105).

☎ Singapore Hotel Association, 260 Tanjong Pagar Rd., #04-01/03 • 6513-0233 • www.sha.org.sg

2 Rack Rates

Hotels charge a standard room rate that includes breakfast, newspaper delivery, and some other added benefits. Several international hotels now charge a "best rate," depending on the dates of your stay and the time that you book. In some hotels, discounted prices are available for guests who do not need any additional services.

3 Peak Season

Because Singapore hosts business events and conventions year-round, there is no strictly defined peak season. During the summer months of July and August, vacationers tend to replace business travelers. The busiest season for hotels, however, is from Christmas through Chinese New Year when top rates apply.

4 Long-stay

Hotels offer discounted long-stay rates, but a number of operators have serviced apartments at varying degrees of luxury for long-term guests. These generally have kitchens furnished with cooking utensils and other domestic conveniences. Long-stay apartments can be a good option for families.

5 Hotel Taxes and Tipping

Hotels will sometimes quote "plus, plus" or ++ following their rates. This means you will be charged the rate plus an additional 10 percent service charge and 7 percent Goods and Services Tax (GST). Tipping is not expected in hotels. However, it is not uncommon for travelers to tip the bellhops in hotels from S$2-5 per bag.

6 Restaurant Reservations

Inexpensive restaurants seldom accept reservations. For some upmarket restaurants, a reservation is highly recommended.

7 Meal Times

Most restaurants close between mealtimes to set up for the next seating. If you find yourself hungry in the mid-morning, afternoon, or late at night, it is best to try your hotel coffee-shop, a café, a hawker center, or a food court. Many Western fast-food chains have franchises in Singapore as well.

8 Restaurant Taxes and Tipping

Almost all restaurant and bar bills will include a 10 percent service charge and 7 percent GST. Tipping is not practiced in Singapore, but many diners leave small change behind for the server. This is not considered impolite. Tips added onto a credit card slip will probably not be given to the server.

9 Dress Codes

The term "dress casual" means no shorts, flip-flops, or tank tops. Most occasions requiring special attire request guests to "dress casual." Women should wear a dress, pants, or a skirt with a blouse and men should wear pants and collared shirts.

10 Wine and Spirits

The legal drinking age in Singapore is 18. Duty-free concessions allow each visitor to bring 1 liter of spirits, 1 liter of wine or port, and 1 liter of beer. Alcohol is taxed heavily in Singapore – drinks in restaurants and bars tend to be on the pricey side.

Home to the award-winning Spa Botanica, this luxurious resort is set amid lush greenery and tropical fishponds. Ideal both for couples and families, all of its rooms boast plasma TVs and most promise a garden view. The Cliff restaurant has superb seafood. Map S3 • 2 Bukit Manis Rd. • 6275-0331 • www.thesentosa.com • $$$$

4 Treasure Resort, Sentosa

Rooms at the Treasure Resort, once the old British Barracks, have a colonial feel, with high ceilings and a balcony or deck area. This resort is situated next to Imbiah station, so transportation to the mainland is easy using the Sentosa Express (see pp26-7). Map S3 • 23 Beach View • 6271-2002 • www.treasure-resort.com • $$$

5 YMCA International House

Of the several YMCAs in Singapore it's hard to beat International House for location, just a couple of minutes' walk from the National Museum and other historic sights as well as Orchard Road. It also has a cafe, pool, and a gym. The rooms range from four-bed dorms to family suites. Map E6 • 1 Orchard Rd. • 6235-2498 • www.ymcaih.com.sg • $$$

6 YWCA Fort Canning Lodge

The YWCA shares its great location with the YMCA. The well-equipped rooms and family suites are a good size with views of the pool or the park. There is a tennis court and self-service laundry, and the staff are friendly and helpful. Map E6 • 6 Fort Canning Rd. • 6338-4222 • www.ywcafcldodge.org.sg • $$$

7 Parkroyal

Close to Arab Street, the Parkroyal has good facilities at a reasonable price. Rooms are slightly bland but clean. Interconnecting rooms are available, too. The huge rooftop pool is popular with children. Map H5 • 7500 Beach Rd. • 6505-5666 • www.parkroyalhotels.com • $$$

8 Orchard Parade Hotel

This is a great location at a good price. The hotel has a pool, laundry facilities, and family studios with lounge and dining areas. Map A4 • 1 Tanglin Rd. • 6737-1133 • www.orchardparade.com.sg • $$$

9 Fraser Place

For stays of more than a week, Fraser Place has well-equipped one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments on the waterfront. There is a playground and a pool with a supermarket and cafes nearby. Map J2 • 11 Unity St. • 6736-4800 • www.frasershospitality.com • $$$$$

10 Fraser Suites

Like its sister property, this long-stay hotel offers luxurious one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments with kitchens and a playground. Map S3 • 491A River Valley Rd. • www.frasershospitality.com • $$$$$

TOP 10 Value-for-Money Hotels

1 Hotel Bencoolen
Only a few minutes' walk away from Orchard Road and Little India, the Bencoolen's location makes it a good choice. The rooms are clean and equipped with TV and coffee-making facilities. Breakfast is a western-style buffet and there is a modest rooftop pool.
 ☉ Map F5 • 47 Bencoolen St. • 6336-0822 • www.hotelbencoolen.com • $$$

2 Hotel Grand Central
Nowhere else in the city will you get such a great location for the price. Do not expect much in the way of facilities, but it may appeal to visitors who use a hotel as a crash pad and want to be close to Orchard Road.
 ☉ Map D5 • 22 Cavenagh Rd. • 6737-9944 • www.grandcentral.com.sg • $$$

3 RELC International Hotel
RELC offers a good combination of location and facilities at a very good price. There's a decent range of rooms and prices, but all are reasonably large and equipped with balconies, cable TV, fridge, and coffee-making facilities. The free breakfast is not too great, but you will find tempting options on Orchard Road just 10 minutes' walk away.
 ☉ Map A2 • 30 Orange Grove Rd. • 6885-7888 • www.relc.h.com.sg • $$$

4 Robertson Quay Hotel
The same great location as the Fraser Suites, but at a lower price. The rooms and bathrooms are very small and basic. The best and quietest rooms face the river. There's a small pool on the roof and an outside bar. The restaurants and bars of Robertson Quay are moments away.
 ☉ Map J2 • 15 Merbau Rd. • 6735-3333 • www.robertsonquayhotel.com.sg • $$

5 Lloyd's Inn
More of a budget motel than a hotel, Lloyd's is simple with no pool and not many facilities. But the location is excellent and surprisingly quiet for one at Orchard Road.
 ☉ Map D6 • 2 Lloyd Rd. • 6737-7309 • www.lloyddinn.com • $$

6 Strand Hotel
The Strand does not look like a budget place. Rooms are large and colorful with a range of deluxe and family rooms, which can accommodate up to seven guests. "Special" rooms are vividly decorated.
 ☉ Map F5 • 25 Bencoolen St. • 6338-1866 • www.strandhotel.com.sg • $$

7 The Inn at Temple Street
Right in the heart of the Chinatown Conservation Area, this award-winning inn takes up a row of five renovated shophouses. It is not strong on modern comforts and the rooms are small, but it has a charm that is unusual at this price. ☉ Map K4 • 36 Temple St. • 6221-5333 • www.theinn.com.sg • $$

8 Peninsula Excelsior Hotel
The result of a merger of the Excelsior and Peninsula hotels gives you twice the facilities and two pools. Ask for a room facing Marina Bay – you will not get a better view at the price. ☉ Map L2 • 5 Coleman St. • 6337-8080 • www.ytchotels.com.sg • $$$

9 Holiday Inn Park View
Though not absolutely budget, this hotel has rooms that are large, clean, and equipped with fridges and coffee-making facilities. There is a decent breakfast buffet, service standards are high, and there are pools for adults and children.
 ☉ Map C4 • 11 Cavenagh Rd. • 6733-8333 • www.holidayinn.com • $$$

10 Summer View Hotel
This inexpensive hotel is surrounded by a host of attractions. It has all the basics – breakfast buffet in its Thai restaurant, cable TV, Internet, and coffee-making facilities, but no pool. ☉ Map F5 • 173 Bencoolen St. • 6338-1122 • www.summerviewhotel.com.sg • $$$

TOP 10 Boutique Hotels

1 The Scarlet Hotel

An experience for the senses, every inch of the Scarlet is swathed in deep sumptuous velvet, silk, and satin, with bespoke furnishings and glistening lacquer accents. Suites are intimate. Standard and deluxe rooms are tiny. Map K5 • 33 Erskine Rd. • 6511-3333 • www.thescarlethotel.com • $$$

2 New Majestic Hotel

An experiment in whimsical design, each room here is decorated by a local designer or artist, with site-specific artwork and contemporary furnishings. This is a fashionable address for cocktails and modern Chinese dining. Map J5 • 31-37 Bukit Pasoh Rd. • 6511-4700 • www.newmajestichotel.com • $$$$

3 Link Hotel

This unique Art Deco property is the result of the government's first public housing project. Located in a charming old suburb not far from Chinatown, the hotel has interiors in contemporary teakwood with lively ethnic themes. Map T3 • 50 Tiong Bahru Rd. • 6622-8585 • www.linkhotel.com.sg • $$$

4 Hotel 1929

Contemporary chic design is used to maximize space and brighten up this little hotel in a renovated shophouse located in the heart of Chinatown. Rooms are small. Its restaurant, Ember, is award-winning. Map J4 • 50 Keong Saik Rd. • 6347-1929 • www.hotel1929.com • $$$

5 Albert Court Hotel

This cozy little hotel is decorated with local Peranakan textiles, carved wood furnishings, and traditional floral tiles, to charming nostalgic effect. Facilities are limited, but the coffee shop has an excellent menu of local favorites. Map F4 • 180 Albert St. • 6339-3939 • www.albertcourt.com.sg • $$

6 Gallery Hotel

Singapore's first hotel to sport contemporary artistic design uses bold colors and Post-Modern architecture to create eye-catching rooms. The cantilevered glass lap pool juts out over the street below. Map J2 • 1 Nanson Rd. • 6849-8686 • www.galleryhotel.com.sg • $$

7 Naomi Hotel

This stylish property is part business hotel – with its central location and 24-hour butler service – and part boutique hotel, being smaller and more intimate than most. Rooms and facilities at the Naomi focus on state-of-the-art technology and edgy design. Map G6 • 41 Seah St. • 6403-6000 • www.naumihotel.com • $$$$

8 Berjaya Hotel

Tucked away in the picturesque backstreets of Chinatown, Berjaya is built from converted shophouses, which means it is big on charm but has few facilities. Rooms are small and decorated in European style. Map K5 • 83 Duxton Rd. • 6227-7678 • www.berjaya-hotels-resorts.com • $$$$

9 The Keong Saik Hotel

Another boutique hotel built from old shophouses, with small, sparsely furnished rooms. The hardwood floors are clean, and decorative molding surrounds windows overlooking an attractive Chinatown lane. Map J4 • 69 Keong Saik Rd. • 6223-0660 • www.keongsaihotel.com.sg • $$$

10 The Royal Peacock Hotel

This property is located in an area known for heritage hotels, such as the Keong Saik. The Royal Peacock is similar, but its rooms have bold, dark tones. Reserve a room with a window, since not all have them. Map J4 • 55 Keong Saik Rd. • 6223-3522 • www.royalpeacockhotel.com • $$

Note: Unless otherwise stated, all hotels accept credit cards, and have en-suite bathrooms and air conditioning.

5 The InnCrowd Backpackers' Hostel

A very popular and well-planned place, this hostel is clean and spacious.

The air-conditioned dorms and private rooms are supported by stylish bathrooms, a kitchenette, an inexpensive pub, Internet facilities, a travel library, and a rooftop sundeck. Map F4

• 73 Dunlop Street • 6296-9169 • www.theinncrowd.com • $

6 Sleepy Sam's

With a nice relaxed location in Kampong Glam, this charming guesthouse is in a pretty traditional building that is surrounded by late-night cafés. Both private rooms and dorms are available here. A café, Internet-access, free breakfast, kitchenette, and lounge complete the facilities. Map H5 • 55 Bussorah St. • 9277-4988 • www.sleepysams.com • $

7 Summer Tavern

The location of this hostel is superb, within walking distance of Chinatown, Clarke Quay,

Boat Quay, and the Colonial District. Dorms and private rooms with shared bath offer good security, and free Internet, breakfast, and lockers are available in the common areas.

Map L3 • 31 Carpenter St. • 6535-6601 • www.summertavern.com • $

8 Bugis Backpackers

Though very basic, Bugis has conveniences such a kitchenette, air-conditioned private rooms and dorms, and a launderette. Map G5

• 162B Rochor Rd. • 6338-5581 • www.bugisbackpackers.com • $

9 Fernloft Backpacker Hostel

A terrific Chinatown location adds to the appeal of this guesthouse. It has private rooms and dorms, all with shared bath. The owners also operate a great hostel in a quiet neighborhood in the suburb of East Coast.

Map K4 • Block 5 Banda St. • 6323-3221 • www.fernloft.com • $

10 Prince of Wales

POWs, as it is known locally, is a popular hip bar and beer garden that hosts local bands. It also has adequate dorms and private rooms. Recommended for those who don't mind trading sleep for fun. Map F4 • 101 Dunlop St. • 6299-0130
