NOTES TO YOU

PREFACE.

SOME years have now elapsed since the completion of the Encyclopædia Heraldica, which contained, as the Author professed it should, the subject matter of all the principal works upon Heraldry then extant, such as Edmondson, Gwillim, and Nesbitt, and the more ancient authors, who had written upon the Science generally, but condensed into a more concise form, and blended with his own elaborate collections in alphabetical arrangement, as a book of ready reference, embracing the whole Science of Heraldry, and matters connected with it: but, although this extensive collection contained, (in the Dictionary of Arms, only with the Armorial Bearings of the Peers and Baronets,) about sixty thousand Coats of Arms; yet the Crests being generally omitted, at least very few of them, comparatively speaking, having been given with the Arms in Edmondson and Gwillim, the Author of the Encyclopædia Heraldica was induced, after the completion of that Work, to collect a great number of the Crests omitted, as well as many ancient Bearings from Manuscript Collections in the Library of the British Museum, and also the new Coats which were yearly emanating from the College of Arms upon the acquisition of wealth, or the grant of new honours and dignities; which, altogether, were sufficient to furnish materials for an additional volume, and could not be otherwise than useful. The following Addenda has therefore been arranged in the same manner, in every respect, to correspond with the preceding volumes of the Encyclopædia Heraldica, referring to that Work where the information is additional, and correcting such parts of it as may have been erroneously given ; and some thousands of ancient and modern Arms have been added to the former collection, in the whole amounting to nearly a hundred thousand Arms and Crests, with the Armorial Bearings of the Peers and Baronets to the present time.

THE FOLLOWING IS THE TABLE OF CONTENTS OF THE SUPPLEMENT VOLUME.

I.

Alphabetical Arrangement of additional matter, with Ancient and New Bearings not in the former Dictionary of Arms.

II.

The Armorial Bearings of Peers, created and restored since the completion of the Encyclopædia Heraldica.

III.

The Arms of the New Baronets, created since that period, with additions and corrections where necessary.

IV.

The Arms of Subscribers, and others, engraved in the Plates at the end of this Volume, alphabetically arranged, though not so in the Plates.
